MOODY'S MEETINGS.

A Successful Series Held by the Great Revivalist. University Hall Crowded. The Result Beneficial to the S. C. A.

Of all the men who are to-day engaged in christian work there is probably no one whose name is as familiar throughout the civilized world as is the name of Mr. Moody. The wonderful work accomplished by him in the British Universities which brought the Studd Brothers and Stanley Smith into such active christian work made his name a family word in England. Smith and the Studds have visited America and their influence has done much toward arousing that enthusiasm in the college volunteer missionary movement which has made it one of the strongest if not the strongest missionary movement the world has ever known.

As the direct result of this movement over three thousand college students have offered themselves for missionary work.

Mr. Moody's work in Scotland was also wonderfully successful. The largest cities were all visited by him and the numbers who were started on a better life by his efforts there reached many thousands. No better testimonial could be given to the esteem in which Mr. Moody is held in Scotland than is given by the fact that each summer a number of students cross the Atlantic for the purpose of attending Mr. Moody's summer school at Northfield, and the one aim and desire of all in their coming seems to be to know and hear Mr. Moody.

A BUSY WORKER.

His work in this country is too well known to need any comment. There are three colleges, two at Northfield, Mass., and one at Chicago, which are supported very largely by his efforts. These colleges are established on such a basis as to make the cost to students who attend very small indeed. Over one thousand students are in attendance at these colleges at the present time. In addition to this work Mr. Moody is raising money all the time for many institutions with which he is in no way connected. While in Ann Arbor he expressed his willingness and desire to try to raise some money toward the completion of Newberry hall, and no doubt we shall realize something from his efforts in this direction.

Mr. Moody's preaching is a revelation to many. All must acknowledge his power, but few can explain in what it consists. He makes no pretensions to great learning or eloquence, but still it is safe to say that no man in the pulpits of to-day has better control over his audience than has Mr. Moody. He is the best illustration possible of the power of simplicity in public speaking. He takes a theme, and by application and illustration he presents that theme with such force and vividness as to send it home to his hearers with tremendous power. It is impossible to hear him preach without feeling very often that he is talking to you. His wide experience has taught him that the chief difficulty with men is that they do not think enough about themselves, and hence he continually aims to turn men's thoughts inward upon themselves.

HIS LABORS IN THIS CITY.

While in Ann Arbor, Mr. Moody conducted three services each day, two being held in the Methodist church and one in University hall. These services were all largely attended, but the largest crowd gathered on Sabbath evening when the churches of the city united in a union service and on Wednesday evening at the closing service.

In the evening service Mr. Stebbins would begin with a half hour song service. This would be followed by several brief prayers and then Mr. Moody would preach. At the close of the sermon he would invite the unconverted to meet him below in the chapel. Here with the aid of a large number of workers each person who was not a christian received special attention from Mr. Moody or some of his helpers. It is impossible to estimate the number who attended these after meetings but it was large in each case.

One of the most striking features of this series of meetings was the heartiness with which the various churches and the Students Christian Association united in the work. Mr. Moody came here as the result of an invitation extended to him by the delegates from the S. C. A. to the Northfield school last summer, which has however been repeated several times since. Mr. Sayford and the national com. of the Y. M. C. A. also brought their influence to bear upon him to induce him to make us a visit. But the heartiness with which the pastors and members of the city churches assisted in making his services a success was a great inspiration to the students interested.

EXPENSES.

Many questions have been asked during Mr. Moody's visit here as to how the expenses of the meetings were to be paid. Mr. Moody makes no charges for his services; but as many here expressed a desire to contribute something to his work, such contributions will be received by the pastors of the various churches, or the Pres. of the Students Christian Association. It is hoped that liberal contributions will be made. All that Mr. Moody receives above his expenses goes into his schools, and other benovolences, and the liberal hearted people of Ann Arbor will certainly want to do something to help on his work.

RUN OVER BY THE CARS.

Probable Suicide of Wilhelmina Stabler on Friday night.

Saturday morning about four o'clock, as a switchman on the Michigan Central went to open the switch near Hangsterfer's ice house to let an east bound freight train in, he discovered the body of a young woman lying between the rails on the main track. The freight train was so close that the body could not be moved until the entire train had passed over, neither the engine or any of the cars striking it however. The train employees went back and found the body cold, apparently having been dead several hours. The head was smashed, one leg cut off and the body mutilated in several parts. The remains were taken to the depot and undertaker Martin called.

Marshal Walsh was notified and an effort made to identify the body. Word had been given out that Wilhelmina Stabler had left the home of her sister on W. Liberty-st, about eight o'clock on Friday evening, in an excited state of mind, and parties were searching for her all night, but without success. The marshal, at once connecting the missing girl with the accident, notified the friends and they went to the depot where the remains were identified. The body was removed to Martin's undertaking rooms, where Justice Pond took charge of the remains and impanelled a jury.

The case has more the appearance of suicide than accident and it is more than probable that the young girl died by her own actions. She drove to this city from her father's home in Lima, Friday morning, with a younger sister, to visit a married sister, Mrs. M. Paul, on W. Liberty-st. She expected a young gentleman, with whom she has been keeping company for some time past, to call on her that evening. He failed to come and she finally left the house without stopping to put on any outside wraps, saying to her younger sister, "If I don't come back, bid pa and ma good bye for me." That was the last seen of her alive, although when she failed to return search was made for her everywhere.

The jury met in Justice Pond's office Monday and rendered a verdict that she had been killed by the cars and exhonorating the railroad company. It was brought out on the inquest that she must have been killed by the evening express about 9.30 Friday evening, and that at least four trains had passed over her body while it laid between the tracks.

The deceased was 23 years of age and was well thought of by all her friends, no motive for suicide being known to them The funeral was held Monday afternoon.

Look Out for the Lunatic.

The state is probably spared the expense of caring for one insane man, who was to have been taken to the asylum by Superintendent Mason, Tuesday. The man, who gave his name as John Martin, made his appearance at the county house Nov. 6, coming from nobody knows where. He became violent at times and it was decided to send him to Pontiac as a state charge. Mr. McCormick brought the man here Tuesday and left him in the probate office in charge of a pauper while he went to notify Mr. Mason. Having some other business to attend to, it was some time before Mr. Mason was able to get around and see about the patient. The pauper, who has a peculiar weakness for intoxicating liquors, stood guard for a time and then decided that he would go and quench his thirst. He went and forgot to return, and the Martin, finding no one to oppose him, concluded that he would go also. When Mr. Mason went to the office after Martin, intending to take him to Pontiac on the next train, neither Martin nor his keeper could be found. The pauper was finally brought to light, but a careful search failed to bring forth Martin, who has probably concluded that he would take up his residence elsewhere than at the Pontiac asylum. If he is captured he will be sent to the asylum, but Mr. Mason thinks he has left the county and will keep away.

In Memoriam.

At a meeting of the members of Forest Hill Cemetery Board, held Jan. 11, 1890, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

William W. Wines, born Nov. 20, 1816, died Dec. 21, 1889, for many years a member of, and clerk and treasurer of this board, ever faithful in the discharge of his duties, earnest and diligent in every effort made to improve and beautify the cemetery, watchful of the funds of which he by virtue of his office was the especial guardian, and affable and courteous to all with whom he came in contact, now sleeps beneath the beautiful spot that had for so many years received his watchful care, therefore resolved,

1st. That in his death this board has lost a faithful and efficient member, and Forest Hill Cemetery an earnest and zealous friend.

2d. That in paying this passing tribute to his memory we realize that not only has this board lost a faithful member but that the community has lost one of its most honorable and upright citizens, the church one of its most faithful christiens, his neighbors a kind and helpful friend and his family a devoted husband and father.

3d. That these resolutions be spread in full upon the records of this board, and that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased.

ON THE CAMPUS.

The sophmore hop takes place to-morrow evening. Look out for the freshmen.

The class of '90 will hold a meeting in room A, Saturday morning at ten o'clock.

Both the senior and junior laws made unsuccessful attempts to elect officers last week.

The Palladium board has extended the time for handing in contributions to Jan. 27.

A social was held at the residence of Judge Cheever, Friday evening, by the freshmen.

The Argonaut last week had an excellent article on the late Dr. Frieze, by Prof. M. L. D Ooge.

"La grippe," has been prevalent among the students this week, and has been the excuse for many a flunk or absence.

Prof. Trueblood will give readings at Saline to-morrow evening, under the auspices of the Young People's Association.

Prof. Kelsey has written a short work entitled "An Outline of Greek and Roman Mythology," which has recently been published.

The Students' Christian Association deserves great credit for giving the students and citizens an opportunity of listening to D. L. Moody during the past week.

The Lambda chapter of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity gave their Detroit alumni a banquet at the Cadillac last Friday evening. A most enjoyable time was had.

An interesting sketch of the late Dr. Frieze from the pen of Newell Lovejoy, of Rochester, formerly of this city, appears in a late number of the Boston Transcript.

The junior hop has been set for Friday evening, Feb. 14, and the rink is the place where the event will occur. The members of '91 expect to outdo all previous efforts in this line.

Profs. J. B. Davis, McLachlan, dePont and Vaughan have been pretty sick with the fashionable influenza this week, and many other members of the faculty have had it in a minor degree.

The U. of M. is said to be the only institution that is holding back in the formation of the proposed inter-collegiate football league. This institution should be the first instead of the last.

It is nearly time to swing out the announcement that "the Palladium will be out about the middle of next month." It won't be out then, but the announcement is made as an annual custom.

About 350 books are missing from the Adelphi library, and any student or citizen who discovers one of these books wandering around is requested to leave it at either Calkins' or Goodyear's drug store.

The Engineering Society will hold a meeting of unusual interest to morrow evening, the general topic of the papers being "The St. Louis Merchants' Bridge" on which several U. of M. engineers have been employed.

The opening meeting of the Political Science Association takes place next Friday evening. A paper on "The Four New States," will be read by F. S. Bourns and another on "The Recent Revolution," by W. B. Ramsay.

The Lotus Glee Club gave an entertainment at University hall, Saturday evening, which was the best concert given in this city in some time. A large crowd attended and the S. L. A. would do well to get more equally as good clubs on their course.

The contribution contest for the Castillian has closed, and Profs. Walter, Hinsdale and Demmon will award the prizes Saturday. A large number of contributions have been received by the committee, and it was not found necessary to extend the time.

President Angell found a large pile of correspondence awaiting him upon his return from Washington, Friday night. The correspondence of his office is growing rapidly and an extra clerk could be used answering the many questions which are asked in these letters.

The officers who will govern the freshmen class are as follows: Pres., P. M. Day; Vice-Pres., Miss M. Colver; Sec., D. C. Morgan; Treas., M. Osburn; Historian, H. D. Curtis; Orator, Hugo Pam; Prophetess, Miss J. Eddy; Poetess, Miss Grace Ford; Marshall, A. Beardsell; Toastmaster, Mr. Forbes.

Arrangements are being made by Prof. Stanley to give an organ recital during the coming month for the benefit of the S. C. A. The proceeds of this recital will be used for a special purpose—to fit up a room in the new Newberry hall as a memorial to the late Prof. George S. Morris, one of the most ardent supporters and workers in the association.

The increase at the University still continues, the record of the different departments being as follows:

Pharmacy	83
Literary	940
Medical	393
Law	532
Dental	106
Homeopathic	73
Total	2,127

Cord. L. Ford spent a few days under the parental roof at his Dundee home, during the past week. He is now connected with the medical college at St. Paul, Minn. He left for Detroit, Monday, and we hear that he is about to bring suit in the U. S. court against the Regents of the University for refusing to grant him a diploma last summer.—Dundee Reporter.

The formal opening of the magnificent new home of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity was held on Friday evening, and was a pleasant affair. After a reception until ten o'clock, dancing was indulged in until an early hour in the morning. Mrs. Winchell and Mrs. Richmond of this city, and Mrs. Sherman and Mrs. Lyster of Detroit, assisted the D. K. E's in receiving their guests.

What a fleeting shadow 'tis to be great! The Stockbridge Sun speaks of the wife of "Prof." Angell—A. A. Register. And pray tell us the particular harm in the use of "Prof."—Sun. Certainly. In University circles nearly everybody connected with the institution, excepting perhaps the janitors, receives the cognomen "Prof." while the head of the institution alone is given the title "President."

The programme of the next meeting of Alpha Nu will be devoted to "American Humorists," as follows: "Life of D. L. Locke," (Petroleum V. Nasby). Mr Jenks; declamation from Locke, L. Wood; reading from Locke, C. C. Spencer; music, Miss Worrall; "Life of Chas. F. Browne," (Artemas Ward). C. E. Filkins; reading from Browne, T. R. Lyons; recitation from Browne, W. H. Nichols; music, Miss Worrall; "Life of Sam. B. Clemens," (Mark Twain). Miss Josey Jackson; recitation from Clemens, H. Pam; reading from Clemens, E. Marshall; music, "The Silent Cell," Alpha Nu quartette.

A driving club is the latest fad at Stockbridge.

Dogs are playing sad havoc among the sheep about Dundee.

The Patrons of Industry are preparing for a big time at Howell on Jan. 27.

The installation of officers of the Manchester A. O. U. W. was held last week.

The Brighton high school has three more scholars than are provided with seats.

The M. E. Society of Pinckney is to erect a new, $12.000 church in the spring.

The Patrons of Industry have organized a branch in "Union district," near Saline.

The German Benevolent Society of Manchester cleared $100 from a New Year's ball.

L. S. Allen has been chosen superintendent of the M. E. Sunday School at South Lyon.

Fred Lutz of Freedom is suffering from injuries received by falling from a load of lumber.

George Ryder has been elected manager of the creamery at Salem, in place of D. E. Smith.

The school at Lima has become so large that it has been necessary to put in 20 new desks.

J. L. Gilbert, of Chelsea, shipped a car load of 39,000 pounds of dried apples to one point recently.

Congressman Allen has recommended the appointment of Miles B. Johnson as postmaster at Dundee.

Dwight Pebles of South Lyon has started for Dakota to hunt up some genuine winter weather.

A Good Templars' lodge has been organized at Chelsea, with W. H. Wood as the presiding officer.

D. D. Durgy, who made a failure of business at Chelsea, has moved to Addison, where he will try again.

The Methodists of Pinckney cleared $30 from "An Old Fashioned School" which was held there last week.

M. J. Noyes, of Chelsea, will plant 1,000 peach trees this spring and see if there is any money in raising fruit.

The Michigan branch of the Women's Auxillary Society of the Episcopal church, will meet at Ypsilanti, Jan. 21.

The post-office war at Howell is ended, Congressman Brewer recommending Thomas G. Switzer for the position.

The Union Agricultural Society met at Stockbridge last week and elected George McIntyre of White Oak, president.

The next entertainment in the Saline Y. P. A. course will be given by Prof. Trueblood, of the University, to-morrow evening.

The Howell council has contracted for a tower clock and bell to cost $991, to be placed in the tower of the new court house.

Will Smith of South Lyon made a "miscue" while cutting brush last week and will limp around on crutches for several weeks.

The "Queen City Building and Loan Association" is to be started at Ypsilanti, with a capital stock of $500,000 (not all paid in).

"Millie, the Quadroon" is to be rendered by the Dexter amatures to-morrow evening, for the benefit of the Ladies' Library Association.

Jenter & Rauschenberger, Manchester furniture dealers, have purchased a steam engine and will engage in manufacturing furniture.

George H. Bogardus has been elected captain of the Ypsilanti Light Guards, in place of Chas. Hemphill, whose term of office had expired.

The clerk of Oakland county has issued 320 marriage licenses during the past year, and for once the divorces and deaths fall in the rear.

The ladies of Ypsilanti have organized a class in physical culture and gymnastics, and soon 'twill not be safe to talk back to an Ypsi. girl.

The insurance companies have adjusted the recent loss by fire at the Peninsular mills at Ypsilanti, at $3,425, and the cash has been paid by them.

On Tuesday evening of last week, Irving Hamlin and Miss Belle Wood, were quietly married at the residence of the bride's father, Geo. S. Wood, in Lodi.

A farmers institute will be held at Saline, Feb. 4 and 5. Among the speakers will be Prof. Johnson of the Agricultural college, and Hon. Wm. Ball of Hamburg.

Dexter is troubled with wood thieves. A little powder judiciously distributed through the wood piles will prove a great preventive to a second attack by the thieves.

Gersham M. Lyons of Stockbridge has become insane and has been taken to the Pontiac asylum. His insanity was the effect of injuries received in a runaway accident.

The Dexter K. O. T. M. are lively "bees." They held an initiation, election of officers and an oyster supper, all the same night, recently, and every member was ready to repeat the task the next night.

With hundreds of our citizens we want to extend our thanks to Marshal Moore for cleaning the street lamps.—Chelsea Standard. The marshal of Chelsea evidently has to earn his wages, when all is quiet in that burg.

The Milan band has elected officers for the term ending July 1st, as follows: President, E. A. Farrington; secretary, M. W. Hitchcock; treasurer, Willis Delaforce; leader, A. W. Reynolds; business manager, Albert S. Hayden.

Jacob Armbruster, of Freedom, will keep his thumb out of a hog's mouth while butchering hereafter. He swears this with reference to the thumb that he still has left, the other one having been sacrificed in this manner recently.

The Workingmen's Benevolent Society is one of the solid institutions of Manchester. The society now has 139 members, 24 having been added during the past year. Arbeiter block is owned by the society and besides furnishing fine rooms above is a source of revenue, the lower floor being rented.

Frank Brown of Bridgewater, was fooling around on the roof of his father's house when he slipped and fell. No bones were broken but the boy received a shaking up that he will not recover from for some time to come

The traveling fakir who "writes up" the business men of the town has been "doing" the surrounding places, but his success has been poor. The business men everywhere have become disgusted with these catch-penny schemes of advertising.

Manchester now has the gas and oil fever. There's no doubt but a vein can be struck there if they only drill deep enough, but it may be necessary to go half way through the earth before the gas can be found. Dundee had a little experience with boring for gas.

The last meeting of the Southern Washtenaw Farmer's Club was held at "Wheatland's," the handsome farm of J. F. Spafford in Sharon, and was a most interesting meeting. The question for discussion was: "What preparations can farmers make to counteract the effects of a drought?"

On New Year's day three young men of York, Jim. Litchard, Orel Harmon and Lew Koucher, having read of boys bathing in Detroit river Christmas day, decided to break the record, go them one week better and take their bath New Years' day. Consequently about noon of that day, with probably more "sand" than discretion, they repaired to a small lake or pond, and actually took a genuine summer "swim," diving and plunging as in June. These are cold (the boys said it wasn't cold) facts. Affidavits furnished if demanded.—Saline Observer.

LITERARY NOTES.

The North American Review for January, is one of the most important numbers ever issued. The first fifty-four pages are occupied by a discussion on Free Trade or Protection, in which the two sides of the question are able and brilliantly presented by the Right Hon. William E. Gladstone and the Hon. James G. Blaine. The recent death of Jefferson Davis lends particular interest to his reminiscences of General Robert E. Lee. Prof. R. H. Thurston, the well-known director of Sibley College, Cornell University, writes of "The Border-Land of Science" in a fascinating manner. An exceedingly interesting article is "A Romance of Old Rome," told by Rodolfo Lanciani, Professor of Archæology in the University of Rome. In "By-gone Days in Boston" the Hon. Charles K. Tuckerman furnishes some highly entertaining recollections of celebrities of the olden times. Camille Flammarion, the famous French astronomer, narrates how he beame interested in the study to which he has given his life work, and another Frenchman, Count Emile De Keratry, points out the debt of the United States in regard to international copy right to France. Still another instalment is given on the subject of Divorce, the contributors this time being all women. Although with some noticeable differences, there is substantial agreement between Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, Mrs. Rose Terry Cooke, Mrs. Amelia E. Barr, Mrs. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps (Ward), and Jennie June. The Notes and Comments are interesting as usual. [$5 a year. 3 East 4th St., New York.]

Mrs. Deland's Serial, Dr. Holmes's "Over the Teacups," and the first installment of Mr. Frank Gaylord Cook's promised series of papers on "Forgotten Political Celebrities" make the Atlantic for January a number to be remembered. The "Forgotten Celebrity" of Mr. Cook's initial paper is John Dickinson, the author of "Letters from a Farmer of Pennsylvania." Another political artical, "The United States Pension Office," by Gaileard Hunt, contains some suggestion as to the reform of the present pension system.

The short story of the number is one of Miss Jewett's best New England dialect sketches, called "The Quest of Mr. Teaby." Agnes Repplier writes about "English Love-Songs." "A Precursor of Milton,' forms also the subject of an interesting paper. Mr. Aldrich's "Echo Song," in a most unusual and graceful metre, and Miss Thomas's "Mens Sana," are lasting contributions to poetry. Reviews and the Contributors' Club close as able a number as the Atlantic has ever had. Houghton Miffin & Co., Boston.

The January number of Drake's Magazine contains for frontispiece a picture entitled The Village Milkman. The leading article is a description of the City of Havana, Theo. F. Wolf, A. M., of Columbia College, describes Byron's school-boy days at Harrow, and relates many incidents regarding the youthful days of the poet. New Year as observed in New York thirty years ago, is treated by Robert Morris. Drake's Quacks, a leading feature of the Magazine, are always funny. One Dollar a year or ten cents a copy.—The Drake Publishing Company, 21 Park Row, New York City.

The January Harper's has the following excellent articles: The Russian general who gives an account of the "Russian Army" presents the Tsar's empire in an altogether new light—even in this day of Russian "revelations." Howard Pyle contributes the first of two papers on "Jamaica, New and Old." The paper has been elaborately illustrated by the author. The "Two Phases of American Art," which Mrs. Lucy C. Lillie sketches, relates to the period from Copley to Cole, and the band of landscape men which followed them, and to the later period of the pre-Raphaelite school in this country. Anna C. Brackett has written an article entitled "A Woman on Horseback." Katharine S. Macquoid, the author of "At the Red Glove," etc., will tell the story of an inexplicable ghost. The title is "A Night at Ouseley Manor," "The Philosophy of Chinese," a picturesque during-dinner sketch by John Heard, Jr., gives an unusual insight into "the idiom of Ah Sin."

Elizabeth Stoddard, the wife of the poet, contributes a short story—"Polly Dossett's Rule." The story of "Bartheiemy de Macarty's Revenge," which Hon. Charles Gayarre contributes is the record of an actual occurrence. Andrew Lang and Joseph Pennell join in contributing an illustrated article on "St. Andrews."

"The Centre Figger," a new short story by M. E. M. Davis, appears in this number. George William Curtis has written for the "Editor's Easy Chair," an enthusiastic opinion upon "A Hazard of New Fortunes," by W. D. Howells. W. D. Howells has something to say in regard to comity in international criticism. A. B. Frost contributes a series of humorous articles on "Our National Game," and in the "Editor's Drawer," Charles Dudley Warner discusses the reasonableness of the chewing-gum habit.

[Harper and Brothers, New York.]

The January Cosmopolitan has for its novel complete in one number, St. Mary of the Angels, by Thomas A. Janvier. Other articles of interest are:

Bouguereau, Artist and Man, by Carrol Beckwith.

Columbia College, by Hyalmar H. Boyesen.

Thrones That Will Totter Next, by Mayo W. Hazeltine.

Sugar Cane and Sugar Making, by William H. Ballow.

The Development of the Coat and Waistcoat, by Wm. Hamilton Bell.

A Cruise Around Antigue, (In the Field Papers) by Poultney Bigelow.

Famous Beauties, by Elizabeth Bisland.

Blenheim, the Famous, by Chas. S. Pelham Clinton.

Romantic Story of a Great Corporation, by J. Macdonald Axley.

Social Problems, by E. E. Hale.

There are poems by Frank D. Sherman and William B. LeDuc. The illustrations are very profuse.

$2.40 a year. The Cosmopolitan. New York.

The Bookbuyer for January completes its sixth volume. Besides its notices of newest books and its usual departments this number contains a sketch of Capt. Charles King; Literary Affairs in Boston by Arlo Bates; English Notes by J. Ashby-Sterry, and an extended notice of Marie Bashkirtseff's Journal, with illustrations. Notice is also given of a Literary Prize Competition, four cash prizes being offered for correct answers to thirty literary questions.

$1.00 per annum. Scribner's Sons. New York.

The first number of the first volume of "Kate Field's Washington," a National Independent Review, published every Wednesday, and mailed to subscribers for four dollars a year, is at hand. The first number is bright, witty, and throws considerable side light on many interesting, society, literary, musical, dramatic, and political topics, at the National Capital. Says the "Judge," "Miss Field makes no claim to the ownership of the late Mr. George Washington, merely assuming to possess the city of Washington of the existing moment. She is a bright woman with vast experience as writer, lecturer, editor, manager, etc., and her weekly will be worth twice the money it costs."

Besides the customary departments the Magazine of American History for January has a number of valuable articles. Among them we may mention. William C. Bryant in History, by the editor, Mrs. Martha J. Lamb. A Rare Picture of Early New York, by Dr. Thomas, H Emmet. Uncle Tom's Cabin and Mrs. Stowe, by Flornie Thayer McCray. Federal and Anti-federal, by Hon. Gerry W. Hazelton. Impress of Nationalities upon the City of New York, by Hon. James W. Gerard. Ralph Izard, the South Carolina states man by G. E. Manigault, M. D., and American Republics— Their Differences, by George M. Pavey. [$5.00 a year in advance. Magazine of American History. 743, Broadway New York.]

PE-RU-NA, MAN-A-LIN, LA-CU-PI-A.

Where to Get These Famous Family Remedies.

In consequence of numerous letters of inquiry as to where the medicines—Pe-ru-na, Man-a-lin and La-cu-pi-a—can be obtained and prices of the same, we desire to state that it was and is our desire to furnish these medicines to the people through the regular drug trade, where they could be prescribed by the medical profession, and used as family medicine also. But if anyone should be unable to get the remedies of a druggist, they can be obtained by remitting price to the Peruna Medicine Company of Columbus, Ohio,—$1.00 per bottle, $5.00 for six. A copy of Dr. Hartman's book, the "Ills of Life," a very valuable treatise on medicine will be mailed free to any address on application. We are much gratified at the popular favor with which our remedies have met and the flattering commendation by laity, trade and profession, and beg to assure all that it shall be our earnest endeavor to always keep our preparations up to the present high standard of usefulness by the selection of fresh and pure materials, and compounding them in our own original methods, with the strictest accuracy and care.

These remedies are for sale in Ann Arbor, at Goodyear's drug store, Main street, and Jno. Moore's Huron street, where sample bottles of Peruna and Manalin can be had free for a few days only.

Interested People.

Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam, for coughs and colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all druggists to give those who call for it, a sample bottle free, that they may try it before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from Consumption.

You are always saying that your friends desert you at the time you need them most, but they do exactly what you have been doing all your life.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents bottle.

On'y believe half of what you hear that great people say; only believe half of what you hear that little people do.

Why Will You

Allow your health to gradually fail? If you are closely confined indoors with little or no exercise, and desire good health, you must take care of yourself. Use Sulphur Bitters, and you will have a sound mind and a strong body.

It is a cold, clammy thing to say, but those people who treat friendship the same as any other selfishness get most out of it.

SLEEPLESS NIGHTS, made miserable by that terrible cough. Shiloh's Cure is the Remedy for you. Sold by Eberbach & Son.

The sympathies of people are always with the unfortunate, because the people know they are so liable to be unfortunate themselves.

It Is Foolish

To send for the doctor every time you don't feel just right. My doctor's bill for years was over one hundred dollars a year, which made a pretty big hole in my wages. For the past two years, I only spent ten dollars, with which I bought a dozen bottles of Sulphur Bitters, and health has been in my family since using them. Robert Johnson, Machinist.

A pup looks so mild and innocent that we sometimes think it will turn out better than others of its race, but it always turns out a dog.

Ruby's Letters.

A letter from Mr. J. W. Ruby, Union City, Ind., says: "I have used your "Clarke's Extract of Flax (Papilion) "Cough cure and find it a complete cure "for deep seated cold. It has done more "than two of our most skillful physicians. "My children had the Whooping Cough "and with the aid of your Cough Cure, "they had it very light compared with "neighbors' children who did not take it. "I believe it to be the best Cough Cure in the "market." So it is. A large bottle only $1.00

Clark's Flax Soap for the skin. It leads them all. Price 25 cents. Cough Cure and soap for sale at Eberbach & Son drug store.

Dr. FRUTH

Of New York, the well known and successful Specialist in Chronic Diseases and Diseases of the Eye and Ear, by request of many friends and patients, has decided to visit

Ann Arbor, Tuesday, Jan. 21, 1890.

Consultation and examination free and confidential in his parlors, at COOK'S HOTEL, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

DR. FRUTH,

—OF THE—

Provident Medical Dispensary,

NEW YORK CITY,

Ably assisted by a full corps of competent physicians and surgeons, treats with unparalleled success all Chronic Diseases and Diseases of the Eye and Ear of every nature upon the latest scientific principles. He particularly invites all whose cases have been neglected, badly treated or pronounced incurable. Patients who are doing well under the care of their own physicians need not call on us, as our province is to treat those who cannot find relief otherwise. Believing that science is truth and "truth is mighty and will prevail," when known, and knowing that disease can be cured with positive certainty, he invites the afflicted to call and receive advice free and be cured of their diseases.

There is no subject that requires so much study and experience as the treatment and cure of chronic diseases. The astonishing success and remarkable cures performed by him is due to a thorough knowledge of the structure and functions of the human system, and the cure of disease by natural remedies. Let those given up by others call for examination. He has successfully treated the following diseases since his arrival in this State: Eye and Ear diseases, Chronic Diarrhœa, Chronic Inflammation of the Womb, Chronic Inflammation of the Bladder, Painful or Irregular Menstruation, Fever Sores and Ulcers, Incontinence of Urine, Tape Worms, Crooked Limbs and Enlarged Joints, Spinal Curvatures, Club Foot, Hip Joint Disease, White Swelling, Discharging Abscesses, Sterility or Barrenness, Nervousness and General Debility, Impotency, Disease of the Kidneys and Bladder, Leucorrhea or Whites, Blotches, Pimples, Skin Diseases, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Dropsy, Cancer, Epileptic Fits, Erysipelas, Gravel, Goitre, Gleet, Gonorrhœa, Hydrocele, Heart Disease, Headache, Piles, Hysteria, Syphilis, St. Vitus Dance, Chronic Dysentery, Enlarged Tonsils, Fistula in Ano, Hernia or Rupture, Ovarian Tumors, Paralysis, Prolapsus Uteri, Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Scrofula, Consumption, Chronic Cough, Female Weakness, Spermatorrhea, Rheumatism, etc. All surgical operations performed

Free Examination of the Urine. Each person applying for treatment should bring an ounce of their urine, which will receive a careful chemical and microscopical examination.

Remarkable Cures perfected in old cases which have been neglected or unskillfully treated. No experiments or failures. Parties treated by mail or express, but where possible personal consultation preferred. Curable cases guaranteed. List of questions free.

HOWLING WINDS.

Frightful Results of Cyclones at Various Places.

Four Persons Killed at St. Louis and Eleven at Clinton, Ky.—Many Others Injured—The Property Loss Will Be Very Large.

A TEMPEST'S FURY.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13. — At 4:30 Sunday afternoon a cyclone struck the southwestern section of the city and swept through to the northern limits, marking a pathway nearly a quarter of a mile wide and leaving death and desolation in its track. In additions to dozens of dwellings and stores in the southern, central and northern sections of the city more or less wrecked, the following buildings were damaged: The Anchor mills, Goodwin candle factory, Pullman shops, Van Brock's furniture factory, Kingsland & Ferguson's farm-implement works, Missouri Pacific Hospital, Hodgen School, German Evangelical Church, Second Presbyterian Church, and others yet to be heard from. It was also reported that another section of the Academy of Music, which collapsed a few days since, had been leveled by the storm, but this is now denied.

The list of killed reported up to 9:30 p. m. comprise the following persons: Mrs. Maggie Connors, aged 40; Bernard McConnell, aged 40; Joe Weaver, aged 9; Willie Marks, aged 6. The latter resided with his parents in the northern part of the city. He was in bed sick with a fever. The storm blew the roof off the Marks home and bricks came crashing into the room, resulting in the death of the boy from sheer fright.

A messenger just arrived from the east side of the river says that the storm in St. Clair County, Ill., was unusually severe and that the cry of "Good Lord save us!" was heard frequently outside of the church walls. Brooklyn, a village of about 500 people, seems to have suffered most. The damage at East St. Louis and Venice was largely confined to railroad property and small dwellings and telegraph and telephone poles. Brooklyn is about three miles north of East St. Louis. Its population is largely composed of colored people. At 8 p. m. it was reported in East Louis that the little village had been swept off the face of the earth. It proves not quite so bad as that, though bad enough, and though several were injured no lives were lost. A number of dwellings are in ruins. The Baptist church is entirely demolished, and the Methodist Episcopal church, a frame building, unroofed and turned clear around on its foundations.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 13.—A heavy wind-storm, accompanied by rain, struck Memphis about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, but beyond a general prostration of wires no damage was done in this immediate vicinity. A special from Sardis, Miss., sixty miles south of here, reports a heavy storm of wind, rain and hail. The Episcopal and Presbyterian churches and Ballentine's livery stable were blown down. Benderson Bros.' store and the Reporter office were unroofed, and several stores and residences damaged. No fatalities are reported.

CAIRO, Ill., Jan. 14.—A terrible death-dealing cyclone swept the town of Clinton, Ky., thirty miles south of here, on the Illinois Central railway, at 7 o'clock Sunday night, demolishing seventy-five buildings, instantly killing eleven people and injuring fifty-five others more or less severely. Following is a list of the killed:

J. A. Rhodes, wife and two children, John W. Gaddie, Walter Nance, aged 13; Mrs. W. C. Bones, Burnet Bones, aged 14; J. R. Graham and two children.

Following is a partial list of the houses demolished or damaged:

J. R. Graham, J. W. Nance and G. R. Gwinn's residences; C. S. Voorhees' residence and store; C. S. Justice, J. W. Gaddie, Mrs. M. A. Taylor, W. I. Rudd, D. Stubblefield, Robert Johnson, Mrs. R. S. Foster, R. L. Anthony, E. Sublette and W. C. Bone's residences.

The storm came swooping down upon the town with a horrible roar from the southwest, leveling every thing in its path and filling the air with missiles of every description. It picked up buildings as though they were toy houses and utterly wrecked all telegraphic communication in every direction.

The entire east side of the town is wrecked. Most of the buildings were of a substantial character, of brick and stone, costing $3,000 to $4,000 each. These went down like chaff. The intensity of the wind actually killed poultry and birds, many being picked up dead in the street. An eye witness thus describes the cloud as it whirled toward the doomed city:

The force of the wind was sufficient to lift buggies, carriages and wagons in the air hundreds of feet, dashing them to the earth into splinters. Organs, pianos, sewing machines, every thing that was portable was wrecked.

A young man named Bones, aged 14, was picked up by the wind from the flying timbers and dropped upon the ground dead a considerable distance away.

Within five miles of Cairo at Wickliffe, Ky., the storm also did havoc. Seven buildings were destroyed and six persons were injured. Five freight cars were overturned on the track.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 14.—A cyclone struck this city Monday afternoon, leaving death and destruction in its track. A building in course of construction was blown down. One of the workmen was killed and ten others more or less injured. The one death was that of William Willis, a carpenter, instantly killed, who leaves a wife and three children.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 14.—A hurricane prevailed here Monday. The wind is said to have reached a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour. Many buildings have been partially demolished and several persons have been injured by falling debris. George Welter was struck on the head by a falling chimney and killed. The south wall of the Jos[illegible]n block on State street was blown down, falling on and crushing a frame building next door. No one was injured.

FIFTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

Work of the Law-Makers in the Senate and House.

Many New Measures Introduced and Resolutions Offered—Several Bills Passed—A Complete Summary of the Proceedings.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Senator Morgan addressed the Senate yesterday in favor of the bill providing for the emigration of colored people from the South. A bill was introduced to provide for a World's Exposition at the National Capital in 1892.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9. — The Senate after some routine business yesterday took up Senator Voorhees' resolution in regard to the failure of United States District Attorney Chambers, of Indianapolis, to arrest and prosecute W. W. Dudley, and Senator Voorhees spoke on the subject, severely arraigning the President and Mr. Dudley. Senator Edmunds (Vt.) replied to Senator Voorhees, and offered a resolution, which was adopted, cutting out the preamble and charges and calling for an investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The Vice-President laid before the Senate yesterday a communication from Attorney-General Miller in which he states that no instructions, oral or written, have been given to District Attorney S. N. Chambers, of Indianapolis, on the subject of the arrest of W. W. Dudley. Several bills of minor importance were reported and numerous appointments were confirmed. Adjourned to the 13th.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In the Senate yesterday Senator Mitchell introduced a bill to prohibit the coming of Chinese into the United States whether subjects of the Chinese empire or otherwise. Bills were reported for public buildings in St. Paul, Minn., $1,500,000; Sioux City, Ia., $500,000, and Cedar Rapids, Ia., $200,000.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—In the House yesterday the rules were discussed at length, and a bill was introduced providing for a pension of $72 per month to disabled soldiers requiring the aid of an attendant, and another bill giving dependent soldiers a pension not to exceed $15 nor less than six dollars a month, according to disability.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—In the House yesterday a bill was introduced providing that the terms of members of Congress shall begin January 1. Adjourned until the 10th.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The House was not in session yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—In the House yesterday resolutions were passed eulogizing the career of the late Judge Kelley and an adjournment was taken as a mark of respect to his memory.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Memorial services over the remains of the late Congressman Kelley of Pennsylvania, were held in the hall of the House of Represntatives on Saturday with the members of both houses in attendance.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—In the House yesterday bills were introduced for the admission of Wyoming and Idaho into the Union; for an Indian industrial school in Michigan; to transfer the Pension Bureau to the War Department; declaring that no Mormon shall be eligible to vote at any election, or hold civil office in the Territories of the United States, or be naturalized as a citizen of the United States or settle upon any public lands; providing that the public lands shall be sold only to citizens of the United States.

VALUABLE HORSES BURNED.

Disastrous Fire in the Stables of Macy Brothers, at Versailles, Ky.

VERSAILLES, Ky., Jan. 13.—Bell Boy, the famous 5-year-old stallion, was burned at Macey Bros.' stables Saturday morning during a fire that destroyed the entire establishment and forty horses quartered there. Bell Boy, the most valuable, belonged to J. Clarke, who bought him at auction some months ago for $51,000 and since then refused $102,000 for him.

Temperance Insisted On.

GALESBURG, Ill., Jan. 11.—The Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company has issued circulars containing a new temperance regulation. Men known to be in the habit of becoming intoxicated will not be taken into the employ of the company. Station agents, train and engine men and operators who visit drinking places must cease frequenting them or be discharged.

The Iowa Legislature.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 14.—The Legislature met yesterday afternoon, but owing to a deadlock in the House over the Speakership the inauguration of Governor-elect Boies was deferred. The Senate effected a temporary organization without any trouble and adjourned until to-day.

Failures for the Week.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Business failures during the last seven days for the United States, 334; for Canada, 39; total, 373; compared with 332 last week. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 361 in the United States and 30 in Canada.

Chicago's Losses by Fire in 1889.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—The annual report of D. W. Gillen, the reporter of the fire insurance system, shows the total loss by fire during the year 1889 in this city to be $2,251,471.91. This exceeds last year's record by about $800,000.

Found Cleopatra's Tomb.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Advices from the curator of the Museum of Egyptian Antiquities at Boulak announced that the tomb in which Cleopatra was buried had been discovered.

FROM WASHINGTON.

A Daily Record of Events of General Interest to All.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—A count completed yesterday shows that there are 460,516 unadjudicated and pending claims on file in the Pension Office.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Rear-Admiral William Radford, U. S. N., retired, died at his residence in this city yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Prof. J. H. C. Coffin, U. S. N., a distinguished mathematician, died Wednesday night at his residence. The deceased was in his 75th year, and for some time past has been in feeble health.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The feeling in favor of a postponement of the exposition until 1895 is growing very rapidly, and it is believed that a sufficient number of Senators are of that opinion to settle the question, as they have the power to do, by delaying proceedings, even if the House should vote for 1892. Such men as Sherman, Edmunds, Morrill, Hoar, Dawes and others on the Republican side and nearly half the Democrats have expressed themselves very emphatically on the subject. It is a curious thing that members of both parties object to an exposition in 1892 because it is a Presidential year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The President has sent to the Senate the nomination of Benjamin S. Baker to be United States Attorney for the district of Nebraska.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14.—The proclamation to open the Dakota Sioux reservation has been prepared and will be issued some time this week. This will add to the public domain about 11,000,000 acres of land.

FULL OF ERRORS.

The Cronin Murderers Claim Their Trial Was a Farce.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Late yesterday afternoon Attorneys R. M. Wing, Daniel Donahoe and W. S. Forrest filed with the clerk of the criminal court a motion for a new trial in the cases of Dan Coughlin, Martin Burke, P. O'Sullivan and John Kunze, convicted of the murder of Dr. Cronin. The motion was filed in accordance with the order of Judge McConnell, before whom the arguments will be made Monday.

The motion is very long. It covers eleven typewritten pages and assigns thirty-nine causes of error in the rulings of Judge McConnell during the trial of the case. These grounds of alleged error embrace every point contested by the attorneys for the defense, and range from an objection to the court's overruling the motion to quash the indictments up to the assertion that the defense has, since the trial, discovered new evidence which entitles them to a new trial.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

The Punishment Awarded Young Elkins, the Twelve-Year-Old Murderer of His Parents Near Elkader, Ia.

ELKADER, Ia., Jan 13.—Wesley Elkins, the 12-year-old boy who a week ago murdered his father and stepmother in Elk township, this county, and made a complete confession of the crime, pleaded guilty before the district court now in session here to murder in the first degree and was Saturday sentenced by Judge Hoyt to imprisonment for life at hard labor at Anamosa. Young Elkins manifested no feeling when the sentence was pronounced. He is undoubtedly the youngest life prisoner ever sentenced in this State. The judge has ordered that the confession shall not be given to the public, owing to its sensational character.

THE COLOR LINE.

Race Troubles in the Schools at Upper Alton, Ill.

ALTON, Ill., Jan. 11.—The war between the blacks and whites on the school question has broken out afresh in Upper Alton, and Thursday and Friday attempts were made by the negroes to force their children into the high school which has heretofore been attended by the children of the whites alone. The blacks and whites were both armed Friday and there might have been bloodshed if the blacks had not withdrawn. The white people are fully determined that black children shall not attend the white schools. The blacks are equally determined that they shall.

Utah Practically Bankrupt.

SALT LAKE CITY, U. T., Jan. 14.—The Utah Legislature met Monday. Governor Thomas sent in a brief message, referring mainly to Territorial affairs and recommending in general terms that the Legislature take steps to bring Utah in accord with the general Government. The Auditor's report shows $185,697 of warrants in circulation and the Treasurer's report shows but $39.73 cash on hand. The Mormons are in control of the Legislature.

Iowa Prohibitionists.

DES MOINES, Ia., Jan. 10.—The Prohibitionists held a State Temperance convention in this city yesterday which was largely attended, and a series of resolutions indorsing the prohibitory law and demanding its retention intact were adopted.

Took the Oath.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 14.—James E. Campbell took the oath of office as Governor at noon yesterday. In his message to the Legislature he commended the Australian ballot system, and advocated State control of the sale of school books.

LA GRIPPE poetry is said to be more fatal than the "grippe" itself. Any one can see the moral to this.

A NOVEL idea, and one that does not seem impracticable, has been developed by one of the leading railroads of this country. It proposes to insure all its passengers in an accident insurance company, having every ticket provide for the trip and insurance.

FREE PRESS: Mr. Gladstone is now at work upon six important magazine articles. His tireless industry should be a rebuke to many younger men without a tithe of his labor and responsibility who groan over the amount of work they are called upon to do.

WE all rejoice that if "Johnnie" did "get" his "gun," it did not go off and hurt or kill some one in Judge Cooley's beautiful home last Thursday. Many famous lives have met with strange, untimely ends, with irreparable loss to the world, such as this would have been if the insane purposes of the servant man had been accomplished. The city and nation and all his friends will congratulate Judge Cooley that he escaped the Guiteau-like tragedy that threatened his life.

WHEN asked to name the twelve greatest events of 1889, the Chicago Tribune replied as follows: 1, commencement of the Nicaraguan canal; 2, creation of four new states in the union; 3, settlement of the Samoan controversy; 4, the Pan-American congress; 5, the Brazilian republic; 6, defeat of Boulangerism; 7, renewal of the triple alliance; 8, abdication of King Milan; 9, proclamation of constitutional government for Japan; 10, opening of China to railroads and electric lights; 11, the Paris exposition; 12, the Stanley expedition. There are many others almost as important.

VAN BUREN county will hold a local option election Feb. 24, the first under the new law. Under the unconstitutional law of 1887 thirty-eight counties voted on the question of local option, and only two gave majorities against it—Washtenaw and Iosco. Probably in the balance of the 84 counties of the state those opposed to local option would carry the greatest number. It is difficult to understand how any one can read the daily papers and see the crimes and misery caused by the liquor traffic, and not be convinced that there is great need of more restrictive measures than are now in force. We hope to see Van Buren county "wipe it out."

OUR neighbor, the Courier, devoted half a column of its characteristic, left-handed flattery to THE REGISTER last week. It gave us a down-hearted feeling to learn from the first paragraph that "For several weeks it (referring to this paper—ED. REGISTER) has attempted to throw the exudations of its nasal appendage at the Courier," etc. That is a very serious charge, and if THE REGISTER has insulted its "nasal appendage" in such a disgraceful manner, the authorities at Washington ought to know it at once, so that the transaction in all its bearings in reference to the appointment of a postmaster in Ann Arbor may be duly investigated. When this most important matter is settled THE REGISTER will proceed to confute the other minor statements of the article, all of which are very weak and devoid of truth.

WHY THE DELAY?

People have been wondering why the appointment of E. E. Beal as postmaster is not confirmed. The daily papers are scanned with eager eyes to discover the first announcement of the change that was expected at least two weeks ago. It is suggested that Congressman Allen may have heard the mutterings of the storm, and have listened to the advice of some sage friend, not to crowd this matter in too great haste just now. Perhaps he has been asked a question or two by the appointing powers at Washington as to the history of the man he recommends—as to his qualifications for the position, and so forth, and found himself a trifle embarrassed in his replies. He may have been asked, (as employers often do ask when hiring new men) how successful his candidate has been in the different business transactions he has heretofore carried on, and how much managerial talent he displays in the position he now holds—whether he is satisfying his employer or not? Perhaps he may have been asked if it was necessary for the Courier to satisfy certain conditions under which it is said to hold its great property, to turn this relative over to the support of the public? Perhaps our Congressman may have had a dream, and in his night visions have seen his constituents at Ann Arbor, prosperous and contented, with "fences" all in good repair, with a postmaster pleasing to nearly every one; gladly casting their ballots every two years to continue in their service at Washington the man who took a sober, second thought and afterwards decided to name a candidate satisfactory to his entire party and an honor to the position. Something like this may have caused the delay.

Mustered Into Service.

An enthusiastic meeting of Welch Post, G. A. R., was held at their hall Friday evening, and the newly elected officers were mustered into service by Col. H. S. Dean, as follows:

Commander—J. T. Jacobs.
Jun. Vice Commander—Edward Hatch.
Chaplain—W. K. Childs.
Officer of the Day—Jas. B. Saunders.
Quartermaster—Conrad Noll.
Adjutant—J. Q. A. Sessions.

Commander J. T. Jacobs appointed the following committees for the ensuing year:

LITERARY COMMITTEE:—Robert Campbell, Prof. C. E Greene, J. B. Saunders, W. Paul.
RELIEF COMMITTEE:—C. H. Manly, H. S. Dean, C. Noll, Wm. Walsh and A. Gardner.
FINANCE COMMITTEE:—H. S. Dean, F. Pistorius and W. H. Jackson.
EMPLOYMENT COMMITTEE:—John Moran, H. Krapf, Job Marshall, M. Donahue and A. D. Markham.
CEMETERY COMMITTEE:—W. I. Clark, E. S. Manly, P. Erwin and J. H. Stark.

In Memory of Mrs. John Wahr.

Gone out with the tide, on the dark river,
Oh, dear heart thou hast left us forever.
Left motherless babes and dreary hearth stone,
Left weeping kindred, desolate and lone.

Beloved, thy life's lessons all are o'er,
No tears can wet thy cheeks on Jordan's shore.
No pain nor sorrow can reach thee there.
For angel wings will waft away each care.

Oh, eternity bells, eternity bells,
Across the years your music swells,
Like healing from the Savior's wing,
This promise doth thy ringing bring.

And in thy chimes this healing balm,
Falls on the heart with holy calm.
Hope on, hope on, for the sweet story rings,
The grave has lost its terrors, death its stings.

Then aching hearts that at her grave have wept,
And weeping eyes that have long vigils kept,
And faithful memories that cherish dear,
The sound of her voice that ye no more hear,

Be comforted: For ye shall meet once more,
By the waters blue near the heavenly shore.
Then sleep on beloved, we only leave thee,
Till the tide bears us out to eternity.

The Wedding Bells.

Last evening at eight o'clock, Miss Ida Belle Winchell of this city, and Horace V. Winchell of Minneapolis, Minn., were married at the residence of the bride's father, Prof. A. Winchell, on N. University-ave. Rev. W. S. Studley performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of friends, both from this city and elsewhere. The affair was the most enjoyable social event of the season, the guests spending a social evening after the ceremony had been performed and an elegant collation spread. The bride was one of the best known and most popular of Ann Arbor young ladies. Her connection with musical, dramatic and social circles has brought her into prominence not only in this city but in the state.

The groom is a graduate of the literary department, class of '89, and is now studying in absentia for a M. S. degree. He is assistant state geologist of Minnesota. The couple left on the evening train last night for the west.

Presbyterian Benevolences.

The reports of the various societies and organizations of the Presbyterian church have been made, and the amount of work done compares favorably with that of previous years. From the various reports the following interesting facts are gathered:

Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society, 54 members, contributed	$178 37
Helpers Band, youth, 32 members, contributed for home and foreign missions and freedmen	44 75
Ladies' Home Missionary Society, paid $132 towards salaries of lady missionary teachers in Los Vegas, New Mexico, and Muscogee, Indian Territory, and $20 to Mary Allen Seminary for colored children, in Crockett, Texas	185 00
"Willing Hearts," children; gave $20 to home missions; on hand $15.60	35 60
Total benevolences	$448 72
Deacon's fund for the poor of the church etc	$71 62
The Ladies' Society spent in repairs and furnishing for the church building	841 00
The Sunday school collections amounted to	262 62
The treasurer's report showed that the total receipts for pastor's salary, etc, amounted to	2574 00

The pastor reported 548 calls, 13 funerals, 9 weddings, 91 sermons preached, preparatory and other lectures 8, bible readings and the like 12.

There were added to the church 87 new members and 31 dismissed. The total resident membership is 304.

Probate Order.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, } ss.
COUNTY OF WASHTENAW. }

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, the 14th day of January, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Stephen Fairchild, deceased.

Benjamin Brown, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, comes into court and represents that he is now prepared to render his final account as such executor.

Thereupon it is Ordered, That Tuesday, the 11th day of February next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and allowing such account, and that the devisees, legatees and heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, in said county, and show cause, if any there be, why the said account should not be allowed. And it is further ordered, that said executor give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor REGISTER, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Probate Order.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, } ss.
COUNTY OF WASHTENAW. }

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, the fifteenth day of January in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety.

Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate.

In the Matter of the Estate of Eli Benton, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Emily Hill, praying that administration de bonis non with the will annexed of said estate, may be granted to Comstock F. Hill or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is Ordered, That Monday, the tenth day of February next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this Order to be published in the Ann Arbor REGISTER, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

TO CLOSE THEM OUT
We'll Give You the Advantage.
TWO NEW PIANOS AND FOUR ORGANS AT COST.

We have made contracts with certain Piano Manufacturers to sell our Organs, we selling their Pianos. This exchange system enables us to buy lower than we otherwise could do.

We have in stock two Pianos, the manufacturers of which are also makers of, or interested in, the manufacture of Reed Organs. With these firms, therefore, we could not make similar contracts, and shall close out the following Pianos of these manufacturers at any price above actual cost, to enable us to use the money in different directions.

ONE KRANICH & BACH CABINET GRAND PIANO, Style E, 7⅓ octaves, Ebonized Case; round corners; fancy carved mouldings; patent metal action rail; repeating action; new swinging desk; new nickel-plated continuous hinge; height, 4 feet 9½ inches; width, 5 feet 5 inches.

The instruments of this company are well known, having been manufactured since 1864, and possessing some of the most valuable patents known in Piano manufacture, being thoroughly reliable, of easy touch, and of most excellent wearing qualities, and used by many of the most prominent artists.

We ask your examination of this Piano and an inspection of catalogues, testimonials, etc., as we will make it an object in price to any intending purchaser.

Also ONE KIMBALL, Style 4, (7⅓ octaves, 3 string and agraffe. Handsome case, with patent rolling fall board and new design trusses). Manufactured by the well known Kimball Piano, Organ and Manufacturing Co., being one of the largest manufacturers of Reed Organs in the world. This Piano has received the endorsements of some of the most prominent artists of the Metropolitan Opera Company, by whom it was used during the engagement of this company in the series of German Operas given in Coicago during the past year.

We will sell, also, TWO 5-OCTAVE ESTEY ORGANS, ONE 6-OCTAVE ESTEY ORGAN and ONE 6-OCTAVE Chicago Cottage Organ, at equally low rates.

This offer is no bluff or loud talk. Our company has the reputation of doing as they agree. We shall drop this line of goods, for the reason mentioned, and if you want a Piano or Organ, you will never have a better chance to buy such standard instruments for so little money. Not one of the instruments has ever been rented, sold or used, and we wish it understood that they are not second hand instruments, (although we have a large number of this class of instruments which we are able to show customers desiring them.)

If you are interested, call early, as the first one paying us enough to enable us to get out whole, will get these instruments.

Mr. ALVIN WILSEY, Dear Sir:

We purchased our Boardman and Gray Upright Piano of you about six years ago. It has never been tuned, never been out of order. No piano could do better.

Yours truly,

Ann Arbor, Aug. 1st, 1889. Tom. E. Nickels.

From Prof. Francis L. York, of the Ann Arbor School of Music, and Organist at the Church of Our Father, Detroit, Mich..

ALVIN WILSEY, Esq., Dear Sir:

The Boardman & Gray Upright Piano that I purchased of you five years ago has been in almost constant use, much more so than is usual. It wears like iron, and stands in tune remarkably. The B. and G. is a very reliable piano.

Francis L. York.

Ann Arbor, March 7th, '89.

The Boardman & Gray stands unrivaled in the essentials of a first-class piano.

DETECTIVE DOWNEY.

By MRS. CASHEL HOEY.

TINUED

Such was the man, a queer specimen of a strange class, to whom the elegantly dressed lady, on whom he waited at the appointed time, gave an agitated and not very clear account of her loss of a valuable diamond star. He received the communication without comment, but made elaborate notes, and complimented the perturbed lady on her foresight in bringing the four remaining stars for him to see, although, he added, one would have been sufficient for purposes of identification. Mr. Morrison was present at the interview, but took no part in the narrative of the loss of the star, and on its conclusion locked up the jewel case in his safe, at the suggestion of Downey, who inclined to the belief that the robbery was a put up affair, and suggested that it would be well to inquire into the antecedents of Mrs. Morrison's maid. But this theory was impatiently routed by Mr. Morrison intervening to explain that Louise had not known until she had to dress her mistress for the ball that Mrs. Morrison intended to wear her diamonds. Downey regretfully accepted the conclusion that the case was only one of common "grabbing" after all, for he dearly loved a complication, and was especially partial to affairs in which household treachery was a leading agent. He took his leave, having laid due professional emphasis on the difficulties presented by the case, and went away wishing that the job were of a higher order, that, for instance, Mrs. Morrison —like so many ladies in fact and fiction —had stolen her own diamonds, from motives of which it would have been a joy to him to discover and expose. "La femme," in the character of a claimant in a case of legitimate grievance, interested Mr. Downey only moderately.

In the course of that day Mr. Morrison's message of the previous morning was answered from Melbourne, but not by Mr. Barrington. An agent telegraphed, "Barrington sailed on first." This was startling news; the margin of safety was contracting. When Mr. Morrison left the bank that afternoon, after he had transacted some very important business, he wired to his wife that he should be detained in town, and betook him in a hansom to a street of very modest pretensions in Pimlico. There he dismissed his cab, and carrying his inseparable black hand bag, he walked on to the far end of the street, knocked at the door of a house, bearing a small brass plate inscribed "Josephus," and was admitted. From that house Mr. Morrison came out only just in time to catch the latest train for Riverside.

"Josephus isn't a bad fellow at all," said Mr. Morrison to his wife, after he had run through the narrative of his proceedings subsequent to the receipt of the startling telegram; "for that sort of man, he's a very good fellow. Of course it has to be made worth his while, but then, it is so well worth ours, now that the push has come. The whole thing disposed of by private contract, the money paid down to-morrow, and nothing touched until all is safe. I really don't see how we could have done better."

"The things cost twice the money," said Mrs. Morrison ruefully.

"More than that, my dear; but the question is who paid for them?" He smile and chuckled; with the smile and the sound his sly callousness came out, and the full vileness of the man somehow revealed itself. "Cheer up, and don't look so melancholy over your pretty things. You will just have as many 'in the land we're going to,' as the Irish emigrant so sweetly sings, provided we get there."

"What will happen here?"

"I can't pretty well guess, but what need we care? We shall either do it or not do it. If we do it, I don't believe anything will ever be heard of the matter. The bank can stand the racket. It isn't a shaky affair, to be knocked over by a Farquharson; they'll settle it behind closed doors, among themselves, and square it with Barrington and the others. If we don't do it," he paused, and his heavy brows contracted, "well, you and I know about that. We are partners in this game, Jane, but I have more to lose. You will be safe any way."

His wife looked at him for a moment with something of terror and repulsion in her face; but the next she conquered the movement.

After a brief silence he said briskly, "That ass, Downey, called today to say he thought he already had a clew. It would have been awkward if he had wanted a second look at the diamonds."

"Lest he might have seen the five stars in the box?"

"No, no. I must be a muff if I couldn't have hidden that from such a duffer as Downey! Because the empty case was in the safe, and the diamonds were securely packed for traveling in this."

He held up with a chuckle a small leather pouch with two loops, made for a belt to be passed through them, dropped it back into his breast pocket, and said with his evil smile:

"What a lot of the ridiculous there always is in everything! The 'U. and D.' would give Downey something handsome by and by for a clew to the history of the 'Walsh' diamonds—they were known by another name once."

"You never told me that story."

"No; but I will, if we pull this through."

On the following day Mrs. Morrison applied herself to a number of household and social duties. The servants were informed that Mr. and Mrs. Morrison would go abroad for Mr. Morrison's time of leave, and Louise was instructed to pack sundry trunks in advance, and label them for Paris. Mrs. Morrison proposed to replace her by a Frenchwoman. In the afternoon Mrs. Morrison made several calls, during which she talked of the approaching journey, and said she hardly felt equal to it, but could not allow a day of her husband's precious "leave" to be lost. Her appearance confirmed her words: she was looking ill.

Mr. Morrison returned in high spirits, and before dinner his wife knew that so far all was well, and Mr. Josephus had been as good as his word. While the solemn butler was in the room, Mrs. Morrison suggested to her husband that as an alleviation of the fatigue of the start they should go to the Grosvenor hotel for a day or two and set out from thence. Mr. Morrison replied that she could do so if she liked, although he did not see that she would gain much by it. So this plan was agreed upon and at noon the next day. Mr. Morrison having left home at the usual hour, Mrs. Morrison stepped into her brougham and was driven away from Quorn Lodge for the last time.

The repose of the pleasant villa remained unbroken for some days, but at last a letter, bearing a London postmark, was received by the solemn butler and caused a commotion. The letter was written by Mr. Morrison, and it simply instructed the recipient to expect the arrival of a Mr. Josephus, who would pay all the servants on a liberal scale, indicated by Mr. Morrison, and dismiss them, their services being no longer required, settle all local claims and take possession of the house, thenceforth his own property.

It is sufficient to record here that all this took place. Mr. Josephus shut up Quorn Lodge for awhile, with a policeman in charge. But the villa did not long remain unoccupied. Mr. Josephus acquired an eligible tenant; the family, however, is of the "serious" kind, and Quorn Lodge is now known as Gilead Grove.

Mr. Treherne duly returned to town and his directoral duties, but the bursting of the storm did not ensue immediately. The signal for that was given by the arrival of Mr. Barrington at the "U. and D." in splendid health and spirits, actuated by an eager desire to get through his business, and full of the happy colonial delusion, so painful by its dispelment, that what it were well should be done quickly is quickly to be done "at home."

Into the details of the discovery there is no need to enter. The "U. and D.," in its present corporate capacity, and in the easier going days when it was a private firm, had cherished in its business and its bosom as finished a specimen of the "unmitigated viper" kind as ever knew a bank, to the detriment of that institution.

Morrison's frauds had been as ingenious in the beginning of his career as his thefts were audacious at its close. He had enjoyed extraordinary luck, never failing to win at whatever game he played. And yet he must for years have been frequently within a hair's breadth of detection, up to the moment when the Barrington incident made it a certainty. "The coolness, too, of the really reckless scoundrel!" said Mr. Treherne, who always boasted and sometimes almost believed, he had never trusted Morrison—("I have a remarkable faculty of reading character," he would say)—and could not quite refrain from a kind of perverse admiration of the man who had done them all so thoroughly—all except him. How thoroughly the victims did not appreciate just at once, for when the first installment of the truth was discovered, it was fondly believed that Mr. Morrison might be caught by the simple expedient of silence on the part of all concerned. If nothing were done, if nothing were said, to alarm him, was there not reason to believe that he would come back as usual, totally unsuspecting? As the bank authorities knew nothing about his telegram nor did Mr. Barrington, there was nothing to suggest to them that anything had occurred to startle Morrison, and he might therefore walk into the lion's den —otherwise his own room in the "U. and D."—with fearless confidence. This theory was so soothing (especially as there was every reason to believe that Morrison could be made to disgorge freely, that there would be more than the mere punishment of the criminal to be attained) that Mr. Treherne began to talk about the "providentialness" of Mr. Barrington's not having arrived until Morrison had gone abroad.

But this sanguine mood underwent a modification when, after cautious inquiry had been made by Downey at Riversdale and at Quorn Lodge, it became known that the house was not only shut up, but had changed ownership. Mr. Josephus was interviewed, and found to be completely en regle; he had purchased the villa and all its contents from Mr. Morrison; and the fact that the snug little place had been Morrison's freehold property became known to his employers for the first time. Things now looked very serious, and the victims were only moderately sustained by the representations of Downey, who, having been employed at first merely to "inquire," was now called into consultation at the special instigation of Mr. Treherne.

Unbounded, although carefully concealed, was the delight of Downey. Here was a really good case, and he was the man to deal with it. He proposed to deal with it on the pessimist side; to take for granted that Morrison had some reason for believing that the game was up, and had absconded on the pretext of a trip to the continent. If this were so, then Downey could safely affirm that Morrison was the coolest hand he had ever met in the whole course of his business; for he had sent for him, Downey, and employed him in a personal matter a few days before he left London. Downey had also been with him the very day before, to arrange for communicating with Mrs. Morrison on the subject of the stolen diamond star. The address, up to a certain date not yet expired, was to be Lucerne; and, Mr. Downey argued, why should she not have gone there, even supposing Morrison to have pushed on to a safer place? From his experience of women, Mr. Downey argued that if you calculated upon one of them sticking through almost any amount of difficulty and danger to her diamonds or the ghost of them, as he might call the chance of getting any stolen ones back, you'll find you've started right anyhow.

"Wherever he is, she's at Lucerne," repeated Mr. Downey; "and a very good thing it is that I can identify her."

"Providential, quite!" murmured Mr. Treherne.

"The sooner I start the better, gentlemen," proceeded the detective. "There's just the chance—though the sale of the villa's dead against it—that he may be there quite unsuspectingly, and there's also the chance that she's keeping him hanging on, like a fool, waiting for news of the star. She hasn't much head, I should say, judging from the way she told the story of how she'd been robbed —stuttering and stammering and crying and contradicting herself—she'll want the diamonds at any price. It's so much the better for this job, but if I was an absconding criminal of any description I should not like a woman with a head like Mrs. Morrison's to abscond along with me."

"But," said Mr. Treherne, "if you found Mrs. Morrison alone at Lucerne what would you do then?"

"Watch her. If he knows he's found out, and yet is such a fool as to stop where I've got his address, I'll catch him; but up to the present his record has not got any folly in it—very much the other way. If he's waiting for her anywhere, she will join him."

The victims in council concurred in Downey's views, with one exception—a mild director, who was disposed to regard an address given to a detective by an intending fugitive with despondency rather than confidence. He was, however, put down by Mr. Treherne, and then Downey was dismissed to make certain inquiries at the Grosvenor hotel. He was to report the result to the conclave at 3 p. m., and to receive final instructions.

"Gentlemen," said the detective, on his reappearance at the appointed hour, "I have to tell you that I have been wrong, quite wrong." It was not agreeable to Downey to make this admission, nevertheless there was a subdued elation about the man. "There will be no call for me to go to Lucerne to watch Mrs. Morrison; it is to be done easier and cheaper than that."

"What! what do you mean?" asked Mr. Treherne excitedly.

"Do let him tell his story his own way," expostulated the mild director.

"Thank you, sir; it is best in general. Well, gentlemen, you are prepared by what I have said to hear that Mrs. Morrison is not at Lucerne. (The mild director's whole form silently proclaimed: I told you so!) But you will be surprised to hear that she did not leave London with Mr. Morrison, and that to the best of my belief she is in England still! I acquired this valuable information in the following manner," here Downey dropped into his professional tone and produced his note book: "On inquiry at the Grosvenor hotel I found that Mr. and Mrs. Morrison had stayed there for two days and nights, and that during that time Mrs. Morrison had complained of illness. On the second night she told the chambermaid in attendance that although there was nothing serious the matter she really could not face foreign parts, but had made up her mind to go to a quiet English sea place during Mr. Morrison's absence. The girl remembered this well, because, as she acknowledged, Mrs. Morrison gave her something handsome on leaving the hotel, which she did with Mr. Morrison. In less than half an hour she came to the hotel door in a cab, and asked if she could see the chambermaid. The girl had only that moment given notice that a handbag had been left in a drawer in the room which Mrs. Morrison had occupied. This was a lucky accident; for Mrs. Morrison's return to the hotel to get her bag proves that she did not leave England with Mr. Morrison. I assumed a troubled air, and said it was very annoying—I had occasion to communicate with Mrs. Morrison, and how was I to get her address? Of course, nobody knew and nobody cared, and I was turning away, when the young chambermaid said: 'Perhaps this may help you,' and handed me a card. 'It was stuck in the looking glass to tighten it,' she added; 'I saw Mrs. Morrison put it there, and I'm sure I don't know how I came to put it in my pocket, but I did.' That's the card, gentlemen. It is evidently a lodging house address—'100 Marine terrace, Broadstairs'—and there I shall find Mrs. Morrison."

"Very likely," said the mild director; "but what then?"

"This," answered Mr. Downey, who had been reserving his effect; "I don't believe he's gone either! From inquiries I have made I am satisfied that no one in the least resembling Mr. Morrison crossed to Calais that morning; and every passenger on board, of anything like his age, had a lady with him. He isn't gone; and he will come or write—communicate with her somehow; only give him time and we shall get him."

"I can't imagine any motive that could lead him to remain in England, having a fair chance of getting away," said the mild director, "but as there's nothing to be done until we've traced him, and your plan offers a chance of doing so, I see no objection to it."

The others assented more readily, and the council of victims again separated. Mr. Morrison would have been amused could he have known how very near to its fulfillment was his prediction of the conduct of the "U. and D."

Mr. Downey had been on the watch at Broadstairs for a full month before he had anything to report to his employers, beyond the fact that Mrs. Morrison was living at No. 100 Marine terrace, Broadstairs, under the name of Spears; that the house was a respectable boarding house, at present tenanted by ladies only; but that he fully expected Mr. Morrison to appear in the character of a gentleman boarder. He was as far as ever from being able to account for the proceedings of either the man or his wife, but his belief in his own maxim, "Keep the woman under your eye and you'll get the man if he's above ground," remained intact. Mrs. Morrison was in bad health; she had not been out of doors, to the best of his belief, since his arrival at Broadstairs, and an ingenuous servant girl, judiciously questioned, had given him many particulars of the malady of Mrs. Spears. He was, therefore, not a little surprised, when taking his usual stroll on the beach in front of Marine terrace, to behold Mrs. Morrison, just as he had seen her in the manager's room at the "U. and D.," but without her discomposure, come forth from No. 100 and cross the road to the beach in such a fashion as to come up with him and confront him at once. She was the picture of health, and her bright, dark eyes shot a bold, derisive glance at the dumfounded detective, as she accosted him:

"How do you do, Mr. Downey? How do you like Broadstairs? You must find it rather dull, I fancy, but I suppose the pay atones. I'm sorry to cut off your supplies, but I really cannot keep on dodging you when I want a walk any longer, and it takes up my clever housemaid's time to watch you go off and come on your beat; besides, it isn't necessary now, and even though it is a bank that pays, one ought not to waste their money, you know. Eh, Mr. Downey?"

"How do you do, Mr. Downey?"

"Madam! Mrs. Morrison!"

"Mrs. Morrison? What do you mean by calling me out of my name?"

"Do you mean to tell me you are not Mrs. Morrison?"

"Certainly I do."

"Not the—not the person who lost a diamond star and employed me to find it? Why, Mr. Morrison named you to me as his wife."

"Mr. Morrison did nothing of the kind. He named you to me, and you, with your wonderful cleverness, you know, took the other thing for granted."

"You mean to tell me you personated"——

"I personated nobody, Mr. Detective Downey. I merely possess a little talent for acting, and—pray, have you found my star, or the thief who stole it? No! Never mind, you can keep that twenty-pound note 'on account' until you do. But I really don't think you ought to hang on here any longer."

Downey was hardly able to get out the words: "Explain, woman, don't jeer like that. Who are you? You must be Mrs. Morrison; you were seen at the bank; you must have been; you passed as Mrs. Morrison at the Grosvenor hotel."

She laughed in his face.

"I was seen at the bank, but the persons who saw me would swear I am Mrs. Morrison as readily as you. I did not pass at the Grosvenor hotel as Mrs. Morrison; I never was inside the hotel in my life. I stopped in a cab at the door and I asked for Mrs. Morrison's bag. My name, I repeat, is Spears, Martha Spears; I am the wife of a sea captain, at present on his way to Calcutta; I have kept the boarding house in which you take so deep an interest for ten years; the invalid for whom you inquire of Susan so tenderly is old Mrs. Spears, my mother-in-law. I see you're still puzzled and so I will put you out of your pain. I am Mrs. Morrison's twin sister, and remarkably like her." Downey started. "I am very fond of her, and of him, too, and so I ought to be, for he set me up in No. 100 when he married my sister Jane."

"Oh, ho!" said Downey, "so that's how it was worked, was it?"

"That's how it was worked; though, mind, I don't commit myself to saying what 'it' means, either in your mouth or mine. You've got nothing against me, you know, and you'll get nothing out of me if you were all the detectives who never find anything but mares' nests rolled into one, for the excellent reason that there's nothing to get."

She paused in her voluble talk and laughed again—a long laugh, full of fun and enjoyment.

"Where are they?"

He had grasped her arm voluntarily, and she shook off his hold with good humored contempt.

"Come," she said, "you're not quite a fool, though you're not far off one. Do you imagine I know—do you think I'm such a fool as to want to know? Drop it, my good man, and do go back to all the 'cases' you will never make anything of by the very next train, for you are a nuisance as well as a ninny, I assure you."

With another laugh she left him, tripped across the road as lightly as a girl, and let herself into her house with her latchkey, turning for an instant before she shut the door to wave him an ironical salute.

Downey went back to town by the first train and reported himself at the "U. and D." No minutes of that interview exist among his papers. He was much depressed for a time, but he gradually consoled himself by the reflection that he had been right after all. He had looked for the woman at the bottom of this Morrison case and he had found her —only there were two and they were twins.

THE END.

A Quick Motion Valve.

An ingenious device has been patented by Mr. J. H. Fagan, of Chicago, for closing steam and other valves quickly. In the application of this device the ordinary screw thread is not dispensed with except when, through accident, it becomes necessary to shut down suddenly. An independent bushing is used to carry the ordinary operating screw of the valve, which by a simple attachment can be locked in place, thus utilizing the screw thread for raising or lowering the valve, or in case of accident or necessity it can be relieved, and by the aid of the lever instantly lowered to shut off steam. —New York Commercial Advertiser.

Saved From Consumption.

Several physicians predicted that Mr. Asa B. Rowley, druggist, of Chicago would soon have consumption caused by an agravated case of Catarrh. Customers finally induced him to try Clarke's Extract of Flax [Papillon] Catarrh Cure. He says: "The result was unprecedented. I commenced to get well after the first application and am now, after a few weeks, "entirely cured." It will do the same for you. Price $1.00. Try Clarke's Flax Soap for the Skin and you will use no other. 25 cents. All of Clarke's Flax remedies are for sale by Eberbach & Son.

ARE YOU INCORPORATED?

An Important Decision Handed Down by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court has set the seal of its condemnation upon another important case, with the result that many business corporations in the State will find immediate reorganization an imperative necessity. Act 187, of the session laws of 1875, provided for the incorporation of manufacturing companies. Act 274, of the laws of '881, amended this law by adding a clause providing for the incorporation of mercantile companies. A recent decision of the Supreme Court declares the amendatory act illegal and void, on the ground that "the constitutional provision that no law shall embrace more than one object, which shall be expressed in its title, is violated if an act is so amended as to embrace a purpose outside of its title and inconsistent with the provisions remaining unrepealed."

The court also holds that the fact that the corporations have supposed in good faith that they were legally organized does not constitute them corporations de facto, and that all members of mercantile corporations organized under the law of 1881 are therefore as liable for the entire indebtedness of the company as though they were simply engaged in a partnership business.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the State Board of Health by fifty-three observers in different parts of the State for the week ended on the 4th indicated that scarlet fever, influenza, puerperal fever, cerebro-spinal meningitis, inflammation of the brain, remittent fever, membranous croup, cholera infantum and cholera morbus increased, and that measles, typhoid fever, whooping-cough and dysentery decreased in area of prevalence. Influenza increased one hundred and three per cent. over the preceding week. Diphtheria was reported at twenty-seven places, scarlet fever at thirty-three, typhoid fever at eighteen and measles at four places.

The Michigan Masonic Home.

At the annual meeting in Grand Rapids recently of the Michigan Masonic Home Association the following officers and directors were elected: President, William Dunham; Vice-President, R. D. Swarthout; Treasurer, Jacob Barth; Secretary, William P. Inness; Directors, for three years, George W. Thompson, E. J. Horton, E. E. Wilson, all of Grand Rapids; William Steele, Ionia; E. D. Wheeler, Manistee; Bruce Goodfellow, Detroit. The association has expended about $25,000 on the home, which is now inclosed. About $15,000 more is needed to complete the institution. The membership is about thirty-five hundred.

Walked the Wire.

The other day at Jackson a dog chased a mouse, and the frightened little animal ran up a telegraph pole and then started out on a wire for the next pole, one hundred and sixty feet distant. The wire swung gayly in the breeze, but the trembling traveler hung on and reached the next station in about an hour. He descended the pole, and when he reached the base he was so tired that he allowed himself to be picked up by a spectator.

Important Gold Discoveries.

The diamond drill at the Grayling gold and silver mine cut a vein of gold-bearing quartz at a depth of 400 feet the other night. The discovery is of great importance, inasmuch as it proves the permanency and depth of the argentiferous deposits of the Grayling and adjoining gold mines on the Ishpeming gold range.

Frozen to Death.

Oscar Schlott, of Madison, Wis., was frozen to death near Lake Gogebic a few days ago while walking from the railway station five miles across the country to the lake, where he had been connected with a hotel for several months. He was twenty-one years of age.

Victims of the Detroit School Fire.

Edna Fonda, the sixth victim of the Tilden school fire in Detroit on December 19, died the other night after suffering excruciating pain. Bessie Bamford was at the point of death, and all hopes of George Homer's recovery had been abandoned.

FOURTEEN KILLED.

Fatal Error of a Drunken Boss Near Louisville, Ky.

A Caisson Gives Way on a New Bridge, and Fourteen of the Workmen Are Buried in the Ruins—Only One Body Recovered.

THE FATAL CAISSON.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 10.—The most appalling accident known here in many years occurred Thursday evening about 6 o'clock, fourteen lives being lost. Following is a list of the killed: William E. Haynes, John Knox, James McAdams, Frank Mahar, Pat Naylor, Thomas Ash, Monroe Bowling, Charles Chiles, Thomas Johnson, Joseph Gordon, Hamilton Morris, Thomas Smith, Frank Soaper and Robert Tyler. The disaster was caused by the giving away of caisson No. 1 on the new bridge now being constructed between Louisville and Jeffersonville. The caisson was located about 100 yards from the Kentucky shore.

The engineer's theory of the accident, which is partially supported by facts obtained from the workmen who escaped, is that the foreman, who, it is alleged, had been drinking, while attempting to reduce the air pressure turned the valve of the supply pipe too far and the pressure on the interior of the caisson became so low that the caisson settled in the mud of its own weight, at the same time admitting the water.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 11.—No more bodies have been recovered at the bridge caisson since that of Hamilton Morris was taken from the outer lock of the entrance shaft Friday morning. Two other bodies were visible to the men who brought out the body of Hamilton, packed in the mud and sand and wedged between the trap doors of the middle lock, where they had met death after escaping from the caisson room beneath, and in their struggle to get up the shaft had jammed the traps and prevented their own egress. At 10 o'clock Friday night the air pumps were shut off and the work of attempting to reach the interior of the caisson through the shaft was abandoned. Another caisson will be sunk alongside the old one, and an effort be made to reach the interior of the caisson room in which the fourteen workmen are entombed, by working from the new caisson.

DEATH OF JUDGE KELLEY.

The "Father of the House" Passes Peacefully Away in Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—William D Kelley, the father of the House of Representatives, so called because he was the longest in continuous service of all the members, the champion of protection, passed peacefully to his last rest at 6:20 o'clock Thursday night. For the last six years Judge Kelley had been suffering from a cancer similar to that with which General Grant was afflicted, and was caused, he often thought, by excessive smoking some years ago. He leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters.

[William Darrah Kelley was born in Philadelphia April 12, 1814. His grandfather, John Kelley, served as an officer in the revolutionary war. Having lost his father at an early age he learned the printer's trade and later served an apprenticeship to a jeweler in Boston. In 1840 he returned to Philadelphia and began the study of law, and a year later was admitted to the bar. He was elected Attorney-General of Pennsylvania in 1845, and in 1846 was made judge of the court of common pleas of Philadelphia. In 1860 he was a delegate to the National Republican convention and in the same year was elected to Congress, where he had served continuously ever since and longer than any other member in the lower House, and for this reason was often called the "father of the House." He had for many years been known as "Pig-Iron Kelley." He was at one time a free-trader, but later became an ardent protectionist and had written several works in opposition to the free-trade theory.]

Death Caused by a Cat's Bite.

MILTON, Wis., Jan. 14.—Prof. Charles A. Clarke, principal of the Allison Academy, died Sunday night of what is believed to have been hydrophobia. He was bitten by a cat last March, but no serious results were feared at the time. Recently, however, unmistakable signs of hydrophobia appeared, and his death was a painful one.

Given Up for Lost.

HAMBURG, Jan. 11.—The German Consul at Hong Kong reports that all efforts to obtain information in regard to the fate of the missing steamer Duburg, of Flensburg, Schleswig, have been fruitless. She had on board twenty-two Europeans and 400 Chinese. It is supposed that she foundered during a typhoon.

Accidentally Killed His Mother.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 11.—Thursday evening while John Drake, aged 20 years, was cleaning the cylinder of his revolver, the trigger snapped and the pistol was discharged. The bullet entered the head of Drake's mother who was standing near by, killing her instantly. The killing was clearly an accident.

Ordered to Resume Work.

WOBURN, Mass., Jan. 11.—At a meeting of the striking working-men Friday night Grand Master Workman Moreland announced that the strike lockout in the leather industry is practically ended, and the men were ordered back to work Monday morning. The strike cost $100,000.

Four Young People Drowned.

CARMI, Ill., Jan. 14.—While out boating-riding in a lake about fourteen miles southeast of Carmi Sunday afternoon Misses Lou Asbury and Lizzie Bowles, and Will Rose and Dan Asbury were drowned. They were all young people living near the lake.

A Singular Case.

DANVILLE, Ill., Jan. 14.—Miss Carrie Barcus, of this city, aged 21 years and in perfect health, lay down New Year's afternoon for a nap. She fell into a deep sleep from which all efforts to arouse her were futile, and died yesterday.

Got Half He Asked For.

STILLWATER, Minn., Jan. 11. — John Olsen got a verdict of $10,000 against the St. Paul & Duluth road Friday. Olsen lost his right foot last fall while aboard a freight train with a car-load of horses. He sued for $20,000 damages.

It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

DISCOVERY AND TRAINING METHOD

In spite of adulterated imitations which miss the theory, and practical results of the Original, in spite of the grossest misrepresentations by envious would-be competitors, and in spite of "base attempts to rob" him of the fruit of his labors, (all of which demonstrate the undoubted superiority and popularity of his teaching), Prof. Loisette's Art of Never Forgetting is recognized to-day in both Hemispheres as marking an Epoch in Memory Culture. His Prospectus (sent post free) gives opinions of people in all parts of the globe who have actually studied his System by correspondence, showing that his System is used only while being studied, not afterwards; that any book can be learned in a single reading, mind-wandering cured, &c. For Prospectus, Terms and Testimonials address

The deceased was an old resident of this city, and had spent the larger portion of her life here. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon, the remains being interred in the Lower Town cemetery.

On Monday a man of respectable appearance went to the Toledo & Ann Arbor depot and purchased a ticket for a point in Kentucky, offering in payment a check on one of our local banks. The agent informed him that he must be identified before he would take the check. The man claimed that he was a professor in the university and had been for over thirty years, and thought that was identification enough. Mr. Hazlewood told him that he did not know this to be so, and refused to take the check, the man then becoming very mad and leaving to go by some other route where they were not so particular. Telephoning to Secretary Wade brought forth the fact that none of the faculty were going away, and the man was evidently a fraud.

Entertainments at the opera house have been scarce during the past two months. Manager Sawyer has had the time nearly all booked, but it has been cancelled on account of a general breaking up of the theatrical companies. The poor shows have had a hard season, only the very best being able to pull through.

The Fraternal Mystic Circle, of Columbus, Ohio, an order maintained principally for its insurance as well as its social features, and which has a branch organization in this city, has a wonderfully light death rate for 1889, reaching an average of only 1⅝ per 1000 members. Wheeler, Edward Kinne, Alpheus Felch, Henry Cornwell, Wm. McCreery, and James Clements. The directors met yesterday morning and re elected Chas. H. Richmond, president; and Philip Bach, vice-president.

The Adrian electric street car line, which is about two and a half miles long carried 40,156 passengers during the first three months it was in operation. The population of the town is about 10 000, which gives Manistee, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Escanaba, Au Sable, Oscoda, Ishpeming, and Negaunee and the other towns that are hoping for this kind of a road something to figure on.—Evening News.

Charles Taylor, the colored man who threatened the lives of Judge Cooley and his family with a shot gun last Thursday afternoon, was adjudged insane by Judge Babbitt, Friday morning, and committed to the Pontiac asylum, where he was taken by deputy sheriff Peterson that same day. Taylor had formerly worked for Judge Cooley and was laboring under the impression that his honesty was doubted by Judge Cooley and his family.

Ann Arbor Canton, Patriarchs Militant, gave a public inspection and review at the armory last evening, the inspection being conducted by Maj. H. Soule, general of this division of the order. The members of the canton have gained a remarkable proficiency in drill during the short time they have been drilling, and the exhibition last evening was greatly enjoyed by the visitors. A party was given at I. O. O. F. hall at the conclusion of the drill.

Rev. Mr. Sunderland will begin next Sunday evening a short series of sermons upon Mr. Moody and his teachings. His first discourse will be upon "The Good and the Evil of Mr. Moody's Work." This will be followed by discourses upon his theology, his treatment of the bible, and a candid inquiry as to whether it is not such views of religion and the bible as Mr. Moody and the revivalists preach, that is the main cause of Ingersollism in this country.

The board of directors of company A, met Monday evening and organized for the year. The civil officers elected were:

George Dengler—President.
Wellington Tate—Vice-President.

Robert Ross	6th "
Albert Imus,	7th "
John St Clair,	8th "
Alvin St. Clair, Quartermaster.
Louis Hoelzle, Color Sergeant.

The Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Michigan railroad will prove a boon to the Northern part of the state, since the line has been opened through to Frankfort. This gives the T. & A. A. the best north and south line in the state, running through all kinds of country and drawing from all the different resources. What is now needed is a route into Detroit, giving an outlet in that direction. By building a road from Ann Arbor to Detroit, or from Ann Arbor to Belleville, to connect with the Wabash, would not be very expensive, and even for local travel this line would soon pay. The people of Ann Arbor have the most kindly feeling for this road and it would obtain a large share of the patronage. The project of building a new line is being earnestly discussed. Ypsilanti is urging the matter, and it is now time that our citizens were taking an interest in urging the T. & A. A. company to build this line.

Meeting of Descendants of 1776.

To the descendants of the men of 1776 who established the Independence of the United States:

A meeting for the purpose of organizing the Michigan Society of the Sons of the American Revolution is hereby called to take place at the Russell House, Detroit, at 11 a. m. Saturday, Jan. 18th, 1890. Every descendant of the men of the Revolution is invited to be present.

The National Vice-president expects to arrive in Detroit, Thursday evening, Jan. 16th and will be present at the meeting. This meeting is in continuation of the one called at Lansing previous to Centennial Day, April 30th, 1889, and the persons that participated at that time are especially requested to attend.

Respectfully Yours,
WM. O. MCDOWELL,
National Vice-president.

Dr. Fruth, the eminent New York specialist, who has been making regular visits here, will again visit Ann Arbor, Cook's Hotel Tuesday Jan., th 21. On the doctor's former visit here he turned many patients away, being unable to give them attention. We would advise all new patients to call early and avoid the necessity of waiting. Dr. Fruth came well recommended and his work here proves him to be all he has been recommended and we would advise the sick to go where genuine ability is a leading feature.

Mr. Henne of the firm of Koch & Henne has decided to give more attention from this on, to the undertaking part of their business. With their increased facilities for fine work, they will, no doubt, soon, greatly increase their business, in this line. They already have one of the finest furniture stores in the state which is a sufficient evidence that what these enterprizing young men undertake will be thoroughly done.

Young men and women who cannot attend day school, should take advantage of the excellent facilities offered at the evening school commencing next Monday in the business rooms of the High School. See small circulars. 785

ANN ARBOR'S

NEW ENTERPRISE

THE PENINSULAR SOAP CO.,

Located on the corner of South Main and Mason Streets, manufacture only the best grades of Fine Laundry and Toilet Soaps.

Our manager having had many years of practical experience in this line and using only the purest stock, we can assure the public that our goods will be second to none found on the market.

We Ask You to Patronize Home Industry

Only on condition that our goods are equal to those manufactured elsewhere. Your attention is called to some of our brands now ready for the trade.

"GOLD BLOCK"

Is our leading brand of regular Laundry and is warranted to be in every respect second to none, and all we ask is a fair trial with the very best the market affords.

"SILVER BLOCK"

Is our specialty in the way of a pure White Soap at popular prices. It is specially adapted for washing fine clothes, also for general kitchen and toilet use. It is absolutely pure and its equal is not found in the trade.

"HAPPY FAMILY"

Is one of our popular brands and is in every way a full value Soap,

"OLD GERMAN"

Will be just the thing for those wishing a large amount of goods for a small sum, while our

"SCOUR BRIGHT"

Is absolutely indispensable if you wish all the kitchen utensils and house kept generally clean and bright.

Maiden's Blush, Golden Rod, Student's Own, Pure Cocoa Oil, Pure Pine Tar, Honey, Fine Castile, Etc.

Are some of our many brands of

Toilet Soaps,

All of which are made from the best imported and domestic stock.

All of our brands stamped plainly
