A STRANGE INTRODUCTION.

BY LEOLA GREENWOOD.

"Mother, may I take a pair and go down to the orchard to pick some of those beauties for tea? Father looks so good, and the tree is just loaded."

A PERILOUS VOTAGE.

Going Down the Rapids with a Lion for a Companion.

"I've had many a queer voyage in my time, said Captain J., but the queerest I ever had was one that I made (somewhat unexpectedly, as you will see) upon the Great Fish River in South Africa on a way back from a hunting excursion."

A FEW SNAKE STORIES.

Brooklyn Eagle.

"Do you want some items about snakes?" asked an agriculturally looking gentleman of the Eagle's city editor, the other day.

How English Lawyers Grow Rich.

From the London Law Times.

There we sat, Mr. Lion and I, staring at each other with all our might—a very picturesque group, no doubt if there had been anybody there to see us.

Every Season a Favorite.

If we were asked as to positively required to state which one of the seasons of the year we would willingly do without, it would be hard to come to a decision.

DEMOCRATIC NOMINATIONS.

For President—WINFIELD S. HANCOCK, of Penn. For Vice-President—WILLIAM H. ENGLISH, of Indiana.

STATE NOMINATIONS.

Governor—FREDERICK M. HOLLOWAY. Lieutenant-Governor—EDWARD H. THOMSON. Secretary of State—WILLIAM STEARNS.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION.

For Representative in Congress—WILLIAM H. WALDBY.

LEGISLATIVE NOMINATIONS.

For Senator—DAVID G. ROSE. For Representatives in the State Legislature—First Dist.—EDWARD KING.

COUNTY NOMINATIONS.

For Judge of Probate—WILLIAM D. HARRIMAN. For Sheriff—EDWIN W. WALLACE. For County Clerk—EDWARD DUFFY.

DEMOCRATIC MEETINGS.

[All meetings in the evening unless otherwise stated.] FRIDAY, OCT. 15. Lima Center—Chas. R. Whitman, John N. Bailey.

Local committees will please make arrangements for holding the meetings, secure rooms and see that the necessary notices are posted.

Senator Ferry said in his speech of Wednesday evening that no one could say anything against Garfield. His conscience like many other speakers has become seared against perjury, hypocrisy and bribe-taking.

A terrible railroad accident occurred last Saturday night in Philadelphia. One section of a passenger train ran into another. The latter was crowded with passengers who had been in attendance at the exposition and a political demonstration.

It is well to keep the earnest and telling words of Charles Francis Adams before the public. Regarding the presidential steal Mr. Adams says: 'I have no sort of sympathy with the republican party because of that act, and because it justified and sustained it.'

Tuesday's Elections.

Contrary to expectation the election in Indiana has resulted in the defeat of the democratic ticket by a majority of 7,000. Our nominee for governor, Mr. Landers, handicapped the ticket by his extreme soft money views.

The republican majority in Ohio is about what Foster received last year, 17,000. We lost nothing in that state, except several members of congress, to be accounted for by the shameful gerrymandering of the districts by the republican legislature of two years ago.

West Virginia elects the democratic ticket, as usual. Although we lose Indiana in the October struggle, the situation is by no means discouraging.

Wenay's Game of Duplicity.

The complicity of Gen. Weaver, the greenback nominee for the Presidency, in playing into the hands of the republican party, has aroused much indignation in greenback ranks.

STATE SOVEREIGNTY.

As between themselves and against the outside world, they were thoroughly unanimous. In their opinion, the states should not exercise efficient powers in their separate capacities.

THE PROPERTY OF A UNION MAN.

Residing in Virginia during our civil war was liable to capture or destruction, precisely like the property of a union man in the hands of the enemy.

Colonia Cristata.

The Colonia, or Cock's Comb, is an old and well-known plant which from its singular form must prove interesting to all cultivators. The old forms have been greatly improved of late, and some very peculiar varieties are now offered.

Nemophila Discoidalis.

The Nemophilas are among the most charming and useful of our dwarfing garden plants. All the varieties have a neat, compact and uniform habit of growth, with shades and colors the most strikingly beautiful.

Estate of Peter M. Burlingame.

STATE OF MICHIGAN COUNTY OF WASHTENAW, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, held at the Probate Office in the City of Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, the thirtieth day of October, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty.

Speech of Hon. Jere Black at York, Pa.

This government of ours, though based on the theory of a unitary management, is still virtually first and foremost a confederacy.

ALL RIGHTS OF SELF-GOVERNMENT from ten states and cutting up, root and branch, the liberties of their whole population.

THE DIGNITY OF A HUMBUG.

As an electioneering device it is too good to be long denied. Any candidate has exploded it by declaring that he would veto any such measure.

THE PROPERTY OF A UNION MAN.

Upon the faith of this promise millions in the north and hundreds of thousands in the south were lulled into a false sense of security.

Our Reporter Visits a Clothier. Samtering up Main street the other day our reporter's attention was so attracted by the bustle of liveliness around the beautiful store of Little Mack, the King Clothier's establishment, that he was constrained to enter and enquire the cause, believing material could be collected with which to prepare a contribution to our columns.

Little Mack—Yes sir. Rep.—Observing a particularly lively scene in and around your establishment, I desire to enquire the meaning of it.

Little Mack—It is nothing unusual. I assure you. Our trade is pretty brisk just now and the people you see are simply making purchases and enjoying the advantages I have been offering in your columns.

Rep.—But isn't your business remarkably good for these times? You are, it would seem, especially favored.

L. M.—Possibly so. I know no stone has been left unturned to bring about the result you see before you.

Rep.—What reason do you assign for your success?

L. M.—Well, there are many reasons. In the first place the people actually need clothing; secondly, woolen goods, you know, have been far below the cost of production, I could not resist the temptation to buy an immense stock as an investment.

L. M.—I was coming to that. No, I am not a gainer except I am enjoying advantages over other dealers. The gain is shared with our customers, they are enabled to buy clothing of me at lower prices than ever before.

Rep.—I observe a great many boys in the throng.

L. M.—Yes, I have a department especially for boys of all ages, also a large stock to fit the fat and lean men. I propose to clothe all who buy of me in suits that fit them.

Rep.—Do you make clothing to order?

L. M.—O, yes. I have the finest assortment of cloths in the west, and one of the best cutters I could find, also coat makers that can not be beat. I warrant a perfect fit in every case.

Rep.—I am greatly obliged for your attention.

L. M.—Not at all, sir; it is my business to be civil. Come again.

Wm. A. Throp of Detroit says, nothing but Spalding's Lightning Gun ever did him any good. Len. T. Clark, formerly of Howard House, Detroit, says it has done wonders for him. Charles Redfield, Adrian, Mich., says it cured his daughter who has been suffering for years with Rheumatism.

Wm. C. Gustin, Grand Rapids, Mich., says he has been a chronic sufferer from Inflammatory Rheumatism in his knees and feet for ten years, and nothing but Spalding's Lightning Gun ever did him any good.

Dr. F. B. Wray, Printer, Detroit, says his wife (who had not been able to walk across the room for months), can now, after having used a few bottles of Liniment, walk about quite comfortably.

The Liniment is now for sale by all druggists, price 60 cents per bottle, only one size.

MACK & SCHMID.

It has cured most stubborn cases, when every other known liniment has failed. Why suffer dear reader when a remedy so sure and simple is now within your reach. Read please the testimony of those who have used it and prove its value.

Wm. A. Throp of Detroit says, nothing but Spalding's Lightning Gun ever did him any good. Len. T. Clark, formerly of Howard House, Detroit, says it has done wonders for him. Charles Redfield, Adrian, Mich., says it cured his daughter who has been suffering for years with Rheumatism.

Wm. C. Gustin, Grand Rapids, Mich., says he has been a chronic sufferer from Inflammatory Rheumatism in his knees and feet for ten years, and nothing but Spalding's Lightning Gun ever did him any good.

Dr. F. B. Wray, Printer, Detroit, says his wife (who had not been able to walk across the room for months), can now, after having used a few bottles of Liniment, walk about quite comfortably.

The Liniment is now for sale by all druggists, price 60 cents per bottle, only one size.

Cows Under the Weather.

Cows are very sensitive as to the influence of the weather. In bright, clear days their vital forces are more active and vigorous, digestion is more rapid, and assimilation and waste are more active and accurate. Milk, like butter, depend upon the destruction of tissue, are more abundant. Lassi-tude is favorable to transudation, because it relaxes the delicate membranes and makes the passages of liquids easier, and consequently more abundant. Thus, while the fats in milk diminish, the albuminoids increase in muggy weather; and yet a given weight of milk makes less cheese than in fair weather. This loss in cheese is owing to the fact that as the albuminoids of the milk pass over into the milk vessels, the major part of it is converted into casein, which is coagulable by rennet, while albumin is not. This change means that the albuminoids, which are the vital forces, and is more or less complete as they vary in strength. The greater energy of bright days increases the per cent of casein, and makes that of albumin less. In muggy weather, the albuminoids are more abundant, and changes often amount to enough to make five per cent difference in the yield of cheese in favor of good weather, while the total of albuminoids, as shown by analysis, is the greater in the milk. The albuminoids are more in fat and the increase of albuminoids, which are heavier than fat, the milk of the muggy days shows the greater specific gravity, and yields a less per cent of butter.—Prof. L. B. Arnold in N. Y. Tribune.

Homes of the Poor.

Passing into First Avenue, New York, we find that nearly every tenement house, and a large majority of them are six stories high. Every building has its row of stores facing on the street, and then its three or four, five layers of families—families of French, Italian, German, Irish, children, but not families in the sense that we are used to, where both parents and all the children strive to make home happy. Each floor is divided into many suites of rooms, each suite occupied by from two to six or more persons. The door of one of these tenement houses stands invitingly open—if anything in this cheerless neighborhood can be said to be inviting. No one will have any objection to our going up, for nothing is very private hereabout. The people we are going to see are as likely to be honest as we are, and they work and earn their own living. They are independent and beg of no man. As for vice, they have it, but they are too busy struggling for life. The heat of nearly every one of these families in this great building is a laboring man. They have broad shoulders, and "brawny arms, and strong muscles, and sturdy frames, and except in a few cases where gin and the head of the house go off on a picnic together. By their hard labor, taking a few holidays, they can barely save enough together to keep themselves and their families alive. The city's price for these men is $1.60 per day, and this may be taken as an average. This gives them $9.60 a week, out of which they have to pay sixty cents for rent. The family then have $9 a week to live on, and buy their clothes. These people cannot afford the three things they are foolish enough to believe have been furnished alike to the rich and the poor—air, light, and water. Even water is costly in New York, but air and light must be reckoned among the expensive luxuries.—Times.

The Golden Lion.

The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette writes that the restaurant known as the Golden Lion, in the Rue de la Harpe, is the grand mode of the hour. It is a fortune was suddenly on the Bourse, the winner asks the friends who rush to felicitate him to go with him to dine or sup at the restaurant known as the Golden Lion. The host of the Golden Lion transported that he had been invited to the Rue de la Grange-Bateliere, where it was being put up first 100,000 francs, and the highest bidder was the golden lion was put away in a stable loft. The idea of regarding and laughing him up again over the door of a tavern, built and decorated in the Henry II. style, occurred to the hand of the Golden Lion. The Golden Lion is just such a one as Catherine De Medici might have patronized in journeying from Touraine to Blois. Dishes, plates, drinking vessels, silver, chairs, tables, hangings, and all the furniture according to models found at Cluny, and in M. Double's collection. Stuffed peacocks, with tails erect, stand on the sideboards, and are superbly decorative. Ancient Flanders tapestry, representing sylvan landscapes, covers the walls, and a large porch, which is in old oak, and richly carved as the stall of an Abbot. Daylight is mellowed by the amber tint of the bottle-and window panes, which are set in leaden frames. Henri II. is the name of the restaurant, and the glass having been in their time had and dear, utilized the ends of wine bottles in the windows of their palaces. But in their reign bottles had not the deep "kick" which is now a source of pride and profit in the wine trade. Every drop of monde able to pay its way is assembled in the restaurant of the Golden Lion. The private rooms which are arranged in a more modern style, are especially reserved for the double monde.

Adapted Olive Oil.

It is a matter of considerable difficulty to discover whether cotton-seed oil has been used to adulterate olive oil. Benjamin Nickels thinks that the spectroscopic might be turned to account in detecting its presence. This is his reasoning: When examined in a good direct-vision instrument, pure olive oil presents a deep shadowing of the blue or violet ray, with an indistinct line in the green and a strong band in the red, and cotton-seed oil, when so examined, shows a very different shadowing of the blue and violet is concerned; but the adulterated sample will give hardly any line in the green, and the strong band in the red will be nearly as bright as the violet. In an adulterated sample of olive oil, the depth and intensity presented by the pure or standard stratum. A dilution of 25 per cent, he says, may not be determined. This method is not advanced as absolute proof, but there is a very strong presumption in an adulterated sample of olive oil, but as affording strong presumptive evidence that such had been the fact.

Manufacture of Bells.

Only two methods are now used in large bells—the English and the Belgian. The English are reported to excel in musical bells, use 23 to 30 per cent of tin; the English learn to more tin, 25 to 31 per cent. Tin makes the bell sound bright, but it also makes it brittle, and the reason why the English can afford to put in more of this brittle element is because they make their bells thicker as a rule; and the reason why they are made thicker is that, instead of being merely chimed, they are rung round on a tree which bears the hammer with great force upon the bell; while the Belgian bells resonate very easily, requiring but a gentle stroke to elicit their full tone. In a word the Belgian bell is a musical instrument, and the English bell is a piece of iron. The thickness and general proportions of the bell are of the utmost importance. Bells vary from 1-10 to 1-12 of the diameter at the thickest part of the sound-bow, and in weight they vary from about twice the thickness. The thickness of the bells at different levels is all-important. The thickness near the top is as important as that at the sound-bow, and the diameter of the crown is as important as the thickness of the rim. The deep, rich tone of some of the smaller bells manufactured in this country is probably due to the wide top diameter, combined with the thickness in certain portions of the sides, if we may so say. The way in which altering the thickness affects the tone, and even the pitch, of a bell, is shown by the fact that a sharp bell can be flattened by shaving off the metal inside above the sound-bow, and that a heavy bell can be made to disappear at a certain point, where on continuing to scoop, they reappeared. All this shows how purely tentative and experimental is the process of bell-making. When we consider that the art of bell-founding, notwithstanding it is a business that has been going on for ages. The wonderful ancient bells were constructed on principles which the masters of the art have left us to discover. When we analyze their methods, we may be able to make their bells. So thought the Germans, when they measured and analyzed Laphel and Tintoret, and produced the correct bell which was sold for the bell which the Venetians bought the Villalmo when he imitated the very worm-holes in the Amatis; but for all that the French fiddlers are not Amatis. It may turn out that in the making of such musical bells, like those of Van Zeechoud, there is something which cannot be taught.
