"Are there still living any of your colleagues in the first legislature?"

"There is not a man now living who was with me in that legislature. The last man died about two years ago; his name was Townsend D. Gidley. He lived about eight or ten miles west of Jackson. He never held any other office but once ran for governor on the whig ticket and was beaten. At the last meeting of of the legislature-I took pains to inquire just how many were living. At that time there were two besides myself: the Mr. Gidley mentioned before, and a J. Dr. Earle called the meeting to leniency which permitted them this approval of all, and Dr. Davis without further ceremony introduced Dr. Gibbes, mentioning the fact that the doctor in addition to his connection with the Michigan University had been sent to Africa some years ago by the English government to investigate cholera germs.

Dr. Gibbes is a middle-aged man of large physique and wears a heavy ence listened with deep interest.

Dr. Gibbes said that pulmonary phthisis is a general term for all diseases of the lungs, and said that He argued that there are two forms of the disease. One he called inflammatory and the other tuberculus. The inflammatory form, he said, was ing in the lung formed a clot and became dangerous. The tuberculus condition he said was a growth. It was peculiar that it started from one ary tuberculosis.

The doctor thought it would be a good idea if some chemist would or four years younger than I am. Normal school, by a villian who stance forming in the lungs. He held that if the bacillus is the virus of the disease or the cause it was absent in the early stages. The speaker then explained that Dr. Shurly and himself had proceeded upon the theory that the cause of the destruction is some morbid chemical formation and that it was necessary to antagonize it with a chemical that would destroy it. Disregarding the bacterian theory, he said they had gone to work to find a chemical that would produce the result desired. Then Dr. Shurly took up the story. He said it was a hard thing to explain away the belief that the bacillus is the specific cause of all the various forms of pulmonary accepted theory. He said every form of the disease was accredited to the bacilli when it is not reasonable. He suggested that something else than the bacilli might be responmation, and told of the experiments with gases to stop the destruction and separation of the tissues. He spoke of the chlorine experiment, ride of gold and sodium. He gave interesting accounts of their experiments on guinea pigs and monkeys,

I know you do not want the office, but if you only stand by me in this everything will be all right.' The final conclusion reached was that I was to accept the office and hold it until after the legislature then in session had adjourned. I held the office just three weeks, at which time I received my appointment to the supreme bench. Before this Barry had wanted to make me his secretary of state, which, however, I had declined. The pecuniary advantages of the state offices in those days were not very large, only a few hundred dollars. The salaries of the justices of the supreme court at this time was $1,500 a year, and this was the best office in the gift of the executive."

"Beginning with your term of office, Governor, can you give me a few of the leading features of the of the administration.'

With a sort of a benign smile the governor went on: "We were a very harmonious set of folks in those days. I had no trouble with my appointments. Wm. L. Greenly of Adrian was lieutenant governor and acted as governor after my resignation. I don't remember my majority but I know it was safe. The action of the convention troubled me exceedingly, but at length they persuaded me to accept the nomination. One of the most important acts during my term of stones have been placed in the of office was the sale of the railroads which originally belonged to the state. The expenses of the railroads were too great, and they were unwieldly for the state government to carry on. Upon my return from California I saw Hamlin in Washington. He told me at that time he was going to change, and his reason was that the democrats were not free soil enough. He said they were too much proslavery. I advised him strongly against this move, but he said he was acting in accordance with his conscience. The public at large said he changed merely to continue to hold office. Mr. Bradbury served but one term in the senate. We are the only two living who went into the thirtieth congress together. THE NOT CALL OUT WHY TROOPS?

We should like to have the thinking republicans-and there are a good many of them in private lifethink of the things that are now going on in several state capitals. In Connecticut the democratic candidate for governor had, beyond dispute even by republicans, more than 3,000 votes more than the republican candidate had, and on the face of the returns he has more votes than all his competitors, and yet the republican branch of the legislature is keeping him out of his office until the governor de facto assumes to say that the time within which he could be declared elected has expired, and that he, the old governor, has a right to hold the office another year.

In Nebraska the republican governor assumed to decide that the democratic governor-elect, who had the greater number of votes, and who had been declared elected, was not eligible, and Governor Thayer attempted to retain his office by the aid of state troops. In the Colorado legislature the members are engaged in resisting each other by physical violence.

In New Hampshire the democrats had a majority of the unquestionably qualified members. Besides these there were two groups of claimants under different laws. One man, a mere clerk of the last legislature, surrounded by policemen, with revolvers in their hands, assumed to constitute the legislature, by enrolling the names of the republican group of claimants, and omitting the names of fhe democratic group of claimants. A Diplomatist Downed by a Kitten. We remember to have seen a distinguished diplomatist, trained to hold his own in the courts of kings, and never at a loss to get out of an embarrassing position or to meet an act of rudeness by a rapier thrust of wit, utterly put down by a small black kitten. The diplomatist had been playing with the kitten, but he went too far. Instead of making fun for the kitten he made fun of her, and this she was quick to see and to resent. Determined to mark her sense of his conduct, she at once put a stop to the game and calmly but resolutely placed her small person in front of the man of ceremony, wrapped her tail neatly round

Her hus-Left alone and abandoned, without resources, she had formed an intimacy with the man who had saved her husband. After living for years with this lover, to whom she was deeply attached, she besought him to apply for a pardon wife who had saved him from execution and procured his liberation. On the way home, however, he learned the truth. He changed his name, disappeared, and lived in hiding for many years. Then, when divorce became possible in France, he wrote to his wife: 'Apply for a divorce against me; I will do all I can to secure one for you. Marry him and be happy." On South State Street. A new Gymnasium will be built on this ground.

We believe Ann Arbor is the best city in Michigan in which to live. The educational advantages here are unsurpassed. The streets are broad and well kept. Ann Arbor has a low rate of taxation. It has the best system of water works in the west. Our addition is just

BLOCKS FROM THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN 5

It has a front of one hundred rods on State street, the best residence street in the city. It's location is unsurpassed for health and convenience. The levels taken by our engineer, Geo. W. Sanborn, show the lowest point on our addition to be higher than Main street in front of the Savings Bank. The slope of the ground is such, that the drainage is perfect, having a fall of from six to ten feet. We have laid six inch drain pipe across our land. We have filed our plat and have given eight and one-half acres for a park. We have paid fitty dollars for a handsome and attractive plan for a Park. Work has been commenced on the streets and Park.

He Took Her Hand with Her Fortune. A young solicitor the other day got a verdict for a client of considerable riches but little beauty. Shortly afterward, in due course of business, he sent her a somewhat formidable account. On the following day his client called on him, following day his chent called on him, and asked him if he had been serious in his proposal his proposal.

"Proposal? But I have not proposed," replied the solicitor somewhat aghast. "What!" replied the fair client calmly.

"You have asked for my fortune! along with it."
