Some of the scientists who make a specialty of folk lore have lately been making inquiries about the malady which the country people called spring fever. It is a genuine malady, though more disagreeable than serious. Yet it should be taken note of. While the scientists are inquiring about the tone of the malady, those who are suffering the lasitude, nervousness and melancholia, that are its symptoms, should run the disease out of their systems, by means of that subtle scientist and folk-curist-S. S. S. This is particularly necessary, since spring fever leaves the system in such a condition that it soccumbs readily to diseases that are more dangerous and less easily controled. S. S. S. is a preventive as well as a remedy.

RESTITUTION AT LAST.

THE RESTORATION OF A STOLEN FORTUNE BY THE THIEF.

A Ceremony That Was Delayed Many Years-Hardships of a Family That Had Been Robbed-The Rascal Marries One of the Daughters.

The truth of the old saying that fortune favors those who wait has again been illustrated in the case of Lal Wickland, an old man 63 years of age, and an employe of the Illinois Central railroad at McConnell, some fifty miles north of Milan, Tenn. The story reads like a romance. There resided in the city of Aberdeen, Scotland, seventeen years ago a rich and prosperous jeweler, Mr. Lalland Wickham, a man of family, which consisted of himself, his wife, three sons and three daughters.

The name of the eldest son was John. and he was engaged to a young lady of her daughter. The other night she his native city by the name of Craig, one kissed her, and the young lady mur- of the foremost of the beautiful Scotch maidens of Aberdeen. Their marriage was only deferred on account of some business transactions.

One day Wickland burst into his wife's room, greatly agitated, and exclaimed: "Mary, we are ruined—utterly ruined! The shop has been broken into and at least £12,000 worth of plate and jewelry carried off. I have been with the detectives through all the holes in the city, but we found no trace of the thief or of the goods. The detectives think the goods will never be discovered, and we are ruined if it is so." When this robbery occurred John Wickland was in London, and he read the news in a London newspaper. He hurried home and found the family in the greatest distress.

SEEKING A NEW FORTUNE. For many days the Wicklands indulged themselves in the hope that some clew would be found to the robbers and their precious wealth be restored to them. These hopes were never realized. The robbery, as the police said, had been cleverly and cleanly done. No trace of the perpetrators or any part of the property was ever discovered.

In the meantime Wickland had paid all his outstanding debts, and found himself a pauper without a sixpence. He might have urged the robbery as a plea for bankruptcy, but he was too conscientious ever to think of such a course, so he paid his debts to the last penny. The utter ruin which had overtaken the Wicklands postponed the proposed union between John and Miss Craig, and Mr. Wickland struggled on for a few years, his son John assisting him all the while, but they could not even make a living. It seemed that fate was against him.

About this time thousands of people were leaving the old countries of Europe and heading for America. Mr. Wick land caught the emigration fever and longed to come to this country. He sold all his personal effects, and securing steerage passage for his family landed in New York. He had some money and it went fast. He began to realize that he must find something to do.

He left New York and went to St. Louis. When they arrived in that city, some fifteen years ago, they had very little left. The boys found employment as hands on the railroad. In 1883 they came to Cairo, Ills., and the boys stayed there, while the old gentleman secured a position further south, at McConnell, as track walker and keeper of the tanks in that vicinity.

HAPPINESS AT LAST.

For years they have battled with difficulties. During all this time John and Miss Craig kept up correspondence until griping pain commonly following the use of Pills. They are adapted to both adults and children with safety. We of John Wickland, who bore the joyful intelligence that his family, their fortune restored, would soon be in their old home. How was it?

This happy termination came out in this wise: A man named Johnson located himself at McConnell as a merchant, running a plantation and supply store. His wealth in ready money was the talk of the town. He sold goods rapidly and made money hand over fist. He took great interest in the Wicklands and seemed to evince especial interest in the facts relating to their robbery and utter ruin. It finally came out that Johnson had been a prison bird and the cold shoulder was turned to him by Lucy Wickland, to whom he was paying attention. This seemed to nettle him, and he sent for the old gentleman to come to

Their interview lasted two hours. At length Johnson confessed that it was he who had robbed Wickland of his wealth, and coming to this country had trebled his possessions. He gave the old man his check for $50,000. So soon as this happened the Wicklands decided to return to their native land. When John-

The strangest feature of the affair was that Johnson immediately sold out all his belongings and went back to Scotland a month after the family of Wickland had returned, and a letter from him to a friend announcing his marriage to Miss Lucy Wickland, eldest daughter of the man whom he had robbed, has been received.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

He Had Good Reason to Be Afraid. "Your uncle," said a friend to a young fellow who has great expectations from a rich uncle, "told me today he was going to seek a change of air.' "What? Oh, don't say it. Not that, of all things. What would have possessed him to do it?"

"Do what?" "Look for a change of heir."-St. Joseph News.

Itappears that out of 68,800 letters posted by the bank of England authorities, notifying the conversion of stock, no fewer than 12,700 were returned through the dead letter office, owing to change of address, and the bank learned for the first time that hundreds of stockholders were dead and their representatives un-

GOOD ROADS ARE COMING

The Widespread Agitation Has Taken Root and Is Bearing Fruit.

The roads improvement agitation is growing apace throughout the length and breadth of the land. Progressive ideas generally have a hard time of it at first, but when they get a start they go with a rush. The idea of good roads is progressive and it has been no exception to the rule. But it has passed its babyhood, is now in a vigorous youth and promises to pass on to a hearty, aggressive maturity.

No better evidence of this is at hand than the fact that Uncle Sam himself is interested in it. And well he may be, for no reform will do more to add to the general prosperity of the American people than a reform of the ancient and pernicious methods which have made American thoroughfares the abominable nuisances which they undoubtedly are now. Some time in November of last year Mr. Isaac B. Potter, who is doing more than any other one man to bring good roads from fancy land and make realities of them, wrote to Secretary of State Blaine asking for information regarding foreign highways and highway making. Now, every American consul in Europe has been instructed to forward to Washington reports on the subject. These reports will be invaluable to friends of good roads, for they will show what has been accomplished, and will command the belief of many people who are now skeptical as to the good results which improved highways are sure to

The fact that the state department has taken up the matter gives assurance that the agitation has taken deep root, and the fact that the state governments are passing laws about it shows that it is bearing fruit. The report submitted to the Pennsylvania legislature by the commission recently appointed to ascertain the best way of going about the task of improving the highways of the state is of particular interest, as it doubtless embodies the most carefully considered, equitable and effective plans yet offered. The commission had held over twenty meetings in different parts of the state, and at least 5,000 farmers and others had attended those meetings and given their experience with roads and as road makers.

The supreme difficulty faced the road commission in its work of formulating a general road law that was to avoid the burden of a direct cash tax upon the farmers of the state, and vet do away with the pernicious and absolutely valueless system of "working out" a road tax.

The new law will make the township the unit upon which it will base all operations. It will not propose any special system of road making, for while some of the counties have an abundance of stone, others have none to speak of, and therefore attempts to build macadamized roads in these latter counties would be attended with such an exorbitant cost that it would reduce the farmers and land holders to practical beggary in the payment of road taxes. The best permanent roads suitable to the soil and resources of the various counties will be recommended.

The amount of money expended upon the roads of Pennsylvania will exceed $9,000,000 annually. This money, or what represents money, labor, is almost thrown away under the system known as "working out" road tax. What is collected in cash goes into the capacious pockets of supervisors, or is paid in wages to road workers, who make a holiday of the occasion.

The road supervisors will continue under the new law, but with somewhat restricted privileges, and will be known as township commissioners. There will be frage with satisfaction. Dispatches from three elected in each township. They other large cities of Kansas indicate that will be under the direction of a state officer, who will be known as the district supervisor or engineer, and will act in conjunction with him. The counties will be divided into districts, with an engineer in charge of each. This official must be a practical engineer, whose duty it will be at regular intervals to inspect all the roads in his district. He will also supervise the letting of all contracts for road building, superintend or inspect the work as it proceeds, and pass judgment upon the character of the work before it is taken off the contractor's hands. The township road commissioners will be subject to his orders. All road tax must be paid in cash. In road improvements or construction the commissioners are authorized to give the first chance for employment to men and teams to persons residing in their district, with whom a strict account will be kept and the amounts earned, at the same rate per diem for men and teams as would be paid others outside the district, paid in cash to those so employed. Thus, while the law makes the collection of cash road tax mandatory, it opens the way for the farmer to get back his money and more, too, perhaps.

With reference to new roads the road commissioners, in conjunction with the county road engineer, will lay out new roads and vacate or change the location of existing roads within the townships on petition of not less than six taxpayers, whenever they, or a majority of them, think it necessary to the safety or convenience of public travel. In case of roads running through two or more townships, they will be laid out by the road engineer, in conjunction with the president of the board of each township. The viewers in each case will make a report to the next term of court of quarter sessions, with the right of any taxpayer to be heard by exception, remonstrance, testimony or otherwise. The road engineer, in conjunction with the road commissioners, will determine which of the roads within their respective townships shall be laid out or selected principally with a view to accommodating through travel, yet having due regard to the demands of local travel. The roads will be macadamized or otherwise permanently constructed in the most approved manner, considering the location and material to be had, in strict accordance with the plans and specifications to be furnished by the county road engineer. All roads are to be built by contract.

.CLOSE AT CHICAGO.

Only a Few Hundreds Plurality for Mayor.

FINE WEATHER AND A HEAVY VOTE.

Both the Memocrats and Republicans Claim the Mayor - Balance of the Ticket Probably Republican-Returns from Other States-Michigan Elects the Republican Ticket-Wisconsin Chooses Women Voters in Kansas-Gleanings from the Figures on Municipal Offices.

CHICAGO, April 8.—The polls closed at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon on one of the most exciting municipal elections ever known in the city of Chicago. The day was bright and sunny, and this, coupled with the fact that there were five candidates for the mayor's chair, viz: Dewitt C. Cregier, (Democrat), the present incumbent; Hempstead Washburne, (Republican); Carter H. Harrison, (independent Democrat); Elmer Washburn, (independent Republican), and Thomas Morgan, (Socialist), caused a very heavy vote to be cast. The Democrats did the most of their voting early in the day. Seventy per cent. of the total vote cast was in the boxes before noon. The vest-pocket vote was simply enormous, comprising nearly two-thirds of the total. Singularly enough, after so bitter a campaign, in which so many conflicting interests were arrayed against each other, there was less brawling and fighting than was expected.

A Small Margin for Washburne. Returns up to 12:40 a. m. indicated the election of the whole Republican ticket Washburne for mayor having, with thirteen precincts to hear from, 158 plurality. The votes in the reported precincts was, according to The Herald, which gives Democratic authority, as follows: Hempstead Washburne, Rep., 45,144; Cregier, Dem., 44,986; Harrison, bolting Dem., 39,-855; Elmer Washburn, Citizens, 23,034. The full Republican ticket is as follows: Mayor, Hempstead Washburne; treasurer, Jacob Tiedemann; city attorney, B. F. Richolson: city clerk, James R. P. Van Cleave. As Mayor Cregier, Dem., is running ahead of his ticket it is safe to as sume that the majorities on the Republican ticket outside of the mayor will be higher than that for mayor.

Democrats Still Hopeful.

LATER. -The general impression at 1:30 a. m. is that the Republican city ticket has been elected, although Mayor Cregier's friends claim his election by a majority of 240. The result will not be definitely known until later in the day. Herald at 3 a. m. claimed Cregier's elec-

STILL LATER.—The Inter Ocean, Trib-une, and News say that Washburne is elected by the police returns. It looks as though the official figures will be required to settle the matter at this writing.

WOMEN AT THE POLLS.

They Take Great Interest in the Kansas City Elections.

KANSAS CITY, Kas., April 8.—Elections were held in all the cities in Kansas vesterday. The returns from several citics show that the Citizens Alliance did not cut much of a figure in the elections excepting where it endorsed the Democratic nominee. Abilene is the only city reporting a Citizens Alliance victory. Returns from Leavenworth show that the entire Republican ticket has been elected for the first time in six years.

The Fair Sex at the Polis.

The registration of women exceeded any former registration. In this city all the candidates provided carriages to take the women to the polls. About two-thirds of the female vote was cast here. The number of negresses that voted was notable. They marched to the polls with as much, if not more, pride the sisters, and exercised their rights of sufthe vote of the women, compared to the registration, was proportionate to the male vote.

Big Woman Vote at Topeka. At Topeka the female vote was the largest since the municipal suffrage law went into effect. Several ladies showed ability as political workers among their lady friends that was quite surprising. The best women of the city were represented at the polls. They felt it to be a public duty which they owed to society and good government, while with others of less intelligence the novelty of voting or the solicitation of others was doubtless frequently the chief factor.

DEMOCRATS WIN IN WISCONSIN.

Pinney Elected Associate Justice-Other Municipal Elections.

MILWAUKEE, April 8.—Returns up to 11:30 p. m. yesterday indicate that S. U. Pinney, Dem., has been elected associate justice of the supreme court. Robert N. Austin, Dem., present city attorney of Milwaukee, who was indorsed by the Bar association, has been elected judge of the superior court of Milwaukee county over the regular nominee of the Democratic county convention.

Wisconsin City Votes.

Madison, Prairie du Chien, Ashland, Portage, Oconomowoc, Columbus, Juneau, Oshkosh, Watertown, and Appleton are among the cities going Democratic. Among those going Republican were Evansville, Eau Claire, Lake Geneva,

Monroe, Manitowoc, and Elkhorn. FIGHTS FOR MUNICIPAL OFFICE.

Republicans Carry Cincinnati and Cleveland, O .- Votes in Other Cities.

CINCINNATI, April 7.—The municipal election yesterday resulted in the re-election of Mayor Mosby, Rep., by a majority of about 400, and the entire Republican ticket. Theodore Horstman, Republican candidate for corporation counsel, ran ahead of his ticket, his majority will probably reach 9,000 when the returns are all counted. For board of legislation twenty-one Republicans and nine Democrats were elected. The Democrats made their fight on the head of the tiket.

Looks Like a Ground Swell. BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 7.-The Republicans yesterday elected William H. Marigold mayor, by 250 majority. The Republicans also elected the tax collector. The rest of the ticket is Democratic. The result was a surprise, as the city is usually Democratic by about $10,000 majority.

Democracy Carry Denver. DENVER, Colo., April 8.-Returns indicate that Judge Platt Rogers, Dem., is elected mayor by 2 00) majority. The rest of the Democratic ticket is elected by large majorities, except that for city clerk Vick Roy, Rep., is probably elected by a small majority. There were four tickets in the field—the Republican, Democratic, People's, and Citizens. The People's and Democratic were practically the same, as were those of the Republican and Cit-

Hot Election at St. Louis. St. Louis, April 8. - The municipal election which took place yesterday was one of the hottest in recent years. There were three tickets in the field, Independent or Municipal Reform, the Republican a Democrat - Much Interest Among and Democratic. The Independents polled a big vote, defeating the Republican, but the indications are that the entire Democratic ticket is elected. About three fourths of the registered vote was polled.

Between Citizens and Republicans.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 8.—The city election passed off quietly, and a large vote was polled. At 1 o'clock a. m. the returns were incomplete, but the indications are that Weir, Citizens, is elected mayor. The Republicans elect the balance of the city officers. They also elect four out of seven councilmen, the remaining three in doubt.

Republicans Win in Michigan. GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 8.-Re turns from the state election Monday

have not yet all been reported. The Republicans claim the state by 3,000 to 5,000, but later returns are cutting into these figures. It is probable that the Republicans have won by a narrow margin. Elections in Illinois. CHICAGO, April 7.-Returns received from town elections in this state give the following results, which turned principally on the liquor question: License-Carroll, Geneseo, Salem, Canton, and Harvard, Bridgeport voted no license.

Kansas City, Kan., Democratic.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 8.-Incomplete returns from nearly all of the voting predints of Kansas City, Kan., give a small plurality for Stout, Dem., for mayor. Of ficial returns may change this.

P. T. BARNUM DEAD.

The Veteran Showman Passes Away After a Long Illness.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., April 8.—P. T. Barnum is dead. He passed away at 6:22 last evening in the presence of his family and intimate friends. Among the sorrowing group in the room when the end came were Mrs. Barnum; Rev. L. P. Fisher; Mrs. Thompson, Barnum's daughter; Mrs. Clarke, of New York, a granddaughter; Miss May Read, his niece; Mrs. Bushtelle, another daughter; Clinton H. Seely, his grandson and principal heir: Benjamin Fish, Mrs. Barnum's brother; Dr. Hubbard; Mrs. Rikeman, the housekeeper, and the nurse. Mr. Barnum's illness and confinement to the house began twenty-one weeks ago and during this period there have been frequent fluctuations in his condition. The change for the worse, which occurred Monday night was so much more pro nounced than the previous attacks had been that the attending physicians became convinced that the great showman had but a few more hours of life left.

Death of a Famous Stallion. LONDON, April 7.—The famous stallion,

When he was retired for stud purposes in 1883 he was sold for 9,000 guineas.

His left leg was mashed to a jelly, and his right hand and arm broken in several places and his face was terribly mutilated. Fireman J. S. Grove had a leg badly sprained.

Poured Poison in the Tea.

London, April 7.-A horrible attempt at agrarian crime is reported from Wicklow. A farmer named Jackson, who occupied an evicted farm, was expected to take tea with a neighbor named Driver. A girl named Julia Murphy, in the employ of Driver, poured corrosive sublimate, used for sheep dip, into the tea. She was detected before anybody drank the poison, and confessed her guilt, and that she had been prompted to the act by other parties.

who is famed for the good taste which he invariably displays in his dress, was asked the other day if there was any secret in the absolute correctness with which he always enveloped himself. He hesitated a moment, but finally replied, "Certainly there is, my dear fellow, but if I tell you, you know, you mustn't give it away. It is just this way. When I determine to buy me a new hat I don't go to my hatter's and allow myself to be bulhied into ordering something I do not want. Oh, dear, no. I take a stroll up the avenue and examine all the hats that are worth considering. I always look at the men who are just my size, and when I see a man who has a hat on that just suits me I march down to the hatter's with the image of that particular hat indelibly impressed on my mind, and insist upon getting one just like it.

"I follow out the same plan with all of my clothes. So that when I enter a tailor's shop I know exactly what I want and never think of ordering until I have found the exact thing, but when once found I order at once. So that while I have the reputation among my tradesmen of being very particular-which is a good thing by the way—they like me because I know just what I want."-Brooklyn Life.

The Dollar Mark. Writers are not agreed as to the derivation of the sign to represent the word "dollar" or "dollars." Some contend that it comes from the letters U and S, which, after the adoption of the federal constitution, were prefixed to the currency of the new United States. and which afterward, in the hurry of writing, were run into each other, the U being made first and the S over it. Others say that the contraction is from the Spanish pesos, dollars; others, still claim it to be derived from the Spanish word fuertes, meaning hard, so called to designate silver and gold from paper or soft money. The more plausible explanation of the puzzle is this: That it is a modification of the figure 8, and that the character, as we make it, denotes that we are speaking or writing of a sum of money equal to eight reals; or, as the dollar was formerly called, a piece of eight.—St. Louis Republic.

Belief in a Future State.

It is curious and interesting to note that the British Columbian tribe of the Shanakons have a soul belief which is an almost exact counterpart of that cherished by the old Israelites. They believe that every being has its double or shadow, thin, pale figure, seldom or never seen by mortal eyes, which after death descends to an abode beneath the earth and there leads a sad and gloomy existence. The Israelites called this place Sheol; the Shanakons know it as "Eotea." -St. Louis Republic.

Secretary Wade's Improvements. When Secretary Wade came here, eight years ago, the campus presented a very unattractive appearance. A large part of it was in its natural state. In front and in the rear of the main building there were low swampy places. The walks were few in number and the trees untrimmed. Some parts of the campus were used as a dumping ground for rubbish. The grass was allowed to grow and in the summer great quantities of hay were made. In May and June the campus was covered with tall grass, there being only paths so the students could get cago Graphic containing illustrations to the different buildings. Mr. Wade upon his arrival, began a systematic plan of cleaning up and leveling the campus.

Where the campus was low the surface soil was removed and the next month, will be postponed until ashes and cinders remaining on the grounds were put in and covered ous attractions to be here during over with the soil which had been removed. In this way a large part of the west side of the campus has been filled up. Last spring he began the construction of the State street walk. Eventually, this walk will be extended around the campus, a distance of very nearly one mile. This spring the walk will be continued on the north side of the campus and possibly on one of the other sides, if a sufficient quantity of cinders can be obtained. The surplus ashes and soil will be used in filling up the south-eastern corner of the campus. An attempt will also be made to have the city authorities "park" S. University avenne, as they have State street and N. University avenue.

Just before leaving for his vacation, Sec. Wade made a statement to the Regents, calling their attention to the work which it was necessary that they make some provision for at their meeting this month. There are in the statement fifteen distinct items, representing an amount of work greater than has ever been done here before in two seasons. A few of these items may be passed over for the time but it is imperative that most of the work be done this summer. The items are

A Charming Actress in a Noted Woman's Play.

One of the interesting events of the Opera House, next Wednesday, when the peerless Maude Granger will be seen in "Inherited," the new play she has recently purchased from Mrs. Lucy Hooper. The coming of Miss Granger has evidently awakened a great deal of pleasurable anticipation. So much has been said of her coming, her talent and her beauty, that now when Ann Arbor theatre goers finally have an opportunity to see her they should take advantage

A great deal of interest is also felt in Mrs. Lucy Hooper's play. MAKES YOUR LINEN AND WHITE GOODS SOFTER All the literary world knows Lucy Hooper, and those who have admired her brilliant Paris letters in the New FLANNELS WILL NOT SHRINK, If you use CONDENSED York and Philadelphia papers, are anxious to see what she can accomplish as a playwright. It is certain that Mrs. Hooper is a woman of great originality and inventive genius in a literary sense. With the assistance of so adept a collaborator as Richard Davy to arrange the details of stage representation she should be able to produce a strong dramatic work. Mr. Francisque Sarcey, the most eminent of French critics, has described the play as weirdly powerful and dramatic like a story by Edgar Allen Poe, and with a death scene worthy of Sar. Bernhard or Mme. Pierson.

The American contemporaries of the Bernhard and Pierson school of emotional artistes are Clara Morris and Maude Granger, but none of them can approach in regal beauty the lustrous-eved Granger.

Its makers profess to cure "cold in the head," and even chronic catarrh, and if they fail they pay $500 for their over-confidence,—

WORK WITH WINCHESTERS AT LAST.

Civil Power Is "Exhausted," and Ten Corpses Bear Witness to the Fact-A Told by the Two Parties to the Trouble -The Labor Leaders Swear Out Warrants for the Deputies, and Charge

Murder-What a Reporter Relates. MT. PLEASANT, Pa., April 3.—This town was shaken to its very center at 3:25 o'clock yesterday morning. At that hour and twenty or more wounded by deputy sheriffs. The greatest excitement prevails. The stable in the rear of Undertaker Zimmerman's store was used for a morgue and streets and alleys near it were crowded with anxious Huns and natives. As fast as the bodies were recognized friends took them, and the moaning and wailing of the relatives was heartrending.

Deadly Result of the Firing.

Following is a list of killed: James Proehle, shot through the breast; Paul Dohannisin, head; John Fudor, left eye; Valentine Zedal, neck; Anton Rist, head; Jacob Shucoskey, head; Creszo Binero, breast. All were Poles or Slavs except Binero, who was an Italian. Shucoskey is the only one known to have been married. None of them was naturalized. The names of the wounded are not all obtained. All are foreigners.

Gathering of the Strikers.

At about 2:30 o'clock yesterday morning about 1,000 men gathered around Morewood. The deputies were keeping a sharp lookout. Their orders were definite. No one was to fire unless attacked, or 'when an advancing enemy failed to halt at the command. Finally, at almost 3 o'clock, about 500 strikers arrived on the Morewood road from Standard. This is thought to have been the last arrival. Each man in the crowd of 1,000 or perhaps more was armed. Some carried sticks, some fence rails, some clubs that looked like small battering rams. As the Standard men and their allies drew up on the road leading past the company's store, the other forces on the hills gradually drew nearer the "B" shaft. At that time strikers were stationed, besides at the above named places, on the hill west of the works, called old Fort Defiance, and immediately in front of the store.

A Dash for the Company Fence. "Your reporter followed the Standard crowd and halted on a hill to the east of the store. From there a fair view could be obtained. The moon, which had been hiding behind a cloud, suddenly appeared and threw its rays across the scene of the conflict. The column advanced toward the Morewood store. The guards were in charge of Deputy Sheriff McConnell and Capt. Loar. The latter had been sworn in as a deputy, as were also some twenty men from Company E. They were stationed at the west side of the company's store. The deputies under McConnell were at the east side. As the Huns advanced making but little noise, the deputies remained silent. Then the Huns passed, but they were bent on mis-The column had not all passed when those in front made a dash on the company fence.

Huns Fire the First Shots.

Capt. Loar cried "Halt," but not a Hun stopped. Their answer was a fusillade of revolver shots. One bullet whizzed past Capt. Loar's head, and two men standing near him each felt the hot lead pass their bodies. The deputy sheriffs then came to the relief of the soldier deputies. The Huns dashed down the road and broke mand to halt. Another answer to the call by pistol shots. The infuriated men kept their course toward the stables. command was given to fire and the deputies came to aid Capt. Loar. The strikers replied, but there were too many shots from the repeating rifles. The air was alive with bullets. How many shots were fired will probably never be known.

When the Smoke Cleared Away. When the smoke cleared away and the men ventured near the dead it was found that seven men had fallen, and one will die from the effects of a bullet. The surviving strikers fled with remarkable rapidity. Soon physicians and undertakers arrived and the bodies were examined and those wounded given all possible aid. The exact number of wounded cannot be given, but Dr. Marsh said that at least fifteen were disabled. The Huns were careful enough to help those away who were able to travel. No deputy or guard was hurt in the least. These men did nobly. It is not thought that they are to blame, although prominent labor leaders telegraphed to one of the national leaders that "seven Hungarians were killed without cause.

The Military in Charge. At midnight Morewood was under military control, the entire Tenth regiment, including staffs, being on the ground. Two companies of the Eighteenth regiment arrived at 1:30 a. m.

FROM THE UNION STANDPOINT.

The Labor Leaders Call It Murder, and Get Out Warrants for Deputies.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 3.-Vice President Penna and Executive Committeeman Hays, of the United Mine workers, arrived in this city last night and went into conference with members of the order. Mr. Penna, in speaking of what he learned at the scene of the riot, said: "When our evidence is developed Americans will stand aghast. Personal spite is responsible for the occurrence. In the coke region the men go to work early. The marching about of the strikers is to strengthen weak-kneed ones and for the moral effect on non-union men. It would be useless for the strikers to march about after the men had gone into the mines. In my opinion the men had no intention of committing any overt act.

Got a Dozen on the List. James McBride, secretary of the district, and Robert Waddell, of the strikers' committee, swore out warrants against the following: For murder-Capt. J. A. Loar, Richard Burns, J. A. Zundla, L. S.

Nichel, as accessories-Thomas Lynch. general manager of the Frick company, and Morris Ramsey, superintendent. Several of the warrants have been served and each man arrested has given bail for a hearing. Milles Hamm denies that he was in the fight, and has witnesses to prove this.

Troops on the Move. Four companies of the Tenth regiment National Guard of Pennsylvania, about 175 strong, under Lieut. Col. Streeter, passed through this city at 8 o'clock last night. They picked up another company at Greensburg. Eight companies of the Eighteenth regiment N. G. P., about 350 strong, Col. Norman Smith in charge, left here at 10:05 p.m. The companies of the Eighteenth regiment have 40,000 rounds of ammunition. The companies will be distributed throughout the region, wherever there is any danger of an out

HUNS ACTING SUSPICIOUSLY. Some Prospect of More Trouble in the

Coke Regions. MT. PLEASANT, Pa, April 7.-It was stated last night by a member of Gen. Wiley's staff, who had been at Morewood all yesterday, that the Hungarians in that vicinity are arming themselves, and were meeting in the houses in the locality during the afternoon, and it is feared they may make trouble when the men go to work. Extra guards were thrown out and every precaution taken to prevent any trouble. Capt. Loar and eight deputies gave themselves up yesterday, and gave bail in the sum of $300 each on the charge of felonious shooting.

Rioters Put Under Arrest. Sheriff Clawson arrested three of Thurslay's rioters yesterday and they were held in $1,000 bail each. He has warrants for twenty-five others. The strikers and their friends say they are being discriminated against, inasmuch as Capt. Loar and his deputies who are charged with felonious shooting are only held in $300 each, while the strikers are held in $1,000 bail on a charge of rioting. The coke operators say the backbone of the strike is broken, while the strikers claim they are more determined than ever to win it.

BIRTH OF THE GRAND ARMY.

Celebration of the Silver Anniversary at Decatur, Ills.

DECATUR, Ills., April 7.—The city is filling up with Grand Army veterans for the encampment this week. The festivities began last night at the Grand Opera house, where services were held to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary. Gen. Veazy, Gen. Oglesby, and Gen. Marsden (of Lowell, Mass.,) were among the dignitaries present. The exercises consisted of addresses, historical sketches, and music. The Grand Army had its birth here twenty five ago.

Programme for the Week. The first post was organized by Gen. B. F. Stephenson, of Springfield, with twelve charter members, six of whom are living and were present at the opera house last night. To-morrow will be the great day, participate in the silver anniversary parade. Thursday and Friday the business meetings of the encampment and the Woman's Relief corps will be held.

DECATUR, Ills., April 8.—Decatur was a blaze of glory last night. The city had filled up with veterans, and thousands were coming. The weather was perfect and the city is a streak of red, white and blue. The bands played "Marching Through Georgia," and the veterans in their blue coats and brass buttons were smiling and happy. It was the quiet day of the encampment. The township election was in progress, and it was arranged to have as little going on as possible.

Election and Reception. The only public event was the reception at the Grand Opera house in the evening by the Woman's Relief corps. Veazy and the council of administration met and elected George H. Innis, of Boston, senior vice commander, to succeed Richard F. Tobin, of Boston, who died shortly after being elected by the last national encampment.

The Sligo Election.

the greatest excitement and turbulence the election at Sligo came off Thursday with comparatively little trouble. There wer: a few unimportant "scraps," and herce exchanges of compliments, but nothing calling for hard work by the police. The Parnellities were defeated, priests did not stop urging the voters until their ballots were deposited. They made direct and personal appeals to the voters as they stood in line, to vote against Parnell. A Wisconsin Supreme Judge Dead. MADISON, Wis., April 4.—Supreme Court Justice David Taylor died suddenly last night. He had been in court all day, and going home ate supper apparently in his usual health. Shortly afterward he was seized with a pain in the region of his heart, and expired before medical assistance arrived He was born in Carlisle, N. Y., March 1818, and came to Wisconsin in 1846, being chosen justice in 1876. He leaves a wife and five children.

The War Scare Over. London, April 7.-The Times' Rome correspondent says: The arrival of the text of Baron Fava's first note showed that the misunderstanding was due to Mr. Blaine's interpreting the demand for a trial as a demand for conviction. CHILLY FANATICISM

Cranks Who Find Delight in Taking Frigid Plunges in Midwinter.

I found myself at the Serpentine at an unusually early hour in the morning. A little way out in the water, in front of the diving board, was a ladder lying on The latest reports place the number of the ice, and in front of this ladder were persons injured in the riot at fifty, three two trestles. Between these two trestles whom (names unknown) have since the ice was broken away, leaving a space of water to dive into about ten feet long by five or six wide, the trestles being placed there for the purpose of keeping the miserable little plunge bath select from the skaters.

To the left of the trestles was another tison, as soon as he learned of the riot ladder lying on the ice. Near the bank yesterday morning, issued orders through I found a policeman who was communi-Adjt. Gen. McClelland, of the National cative. No matter proceed to the seat of the trouble at once. what the weather is, in they go just the same. All classes of people belong to the club, I was further told, and some came from a good distance. One enthusiast is 75 years old. His hair and beard are white as snow.

Just behind us was a very fine old elm tree. "That," said the policeman, "is their favorite tree. That is where they dress and undress." I soon found that this was the case, as the bathers came up. The first man to arrive lost no time in undressing, but went to the tree and threw off his clothes, chatting to the policeman the while. Then he sped gayly to his little patch of water between the trestles. Into the water he jumpedit is very shallow here-and dipping underneath it began to throw out some very large blocks of ice to the right and left of him.

This done, he leaped nimbly on to the diving board, poised himself, plunged and disappeared beneath the water, but only for a few moments. He was out again in that space of time and ran nimoly to the tree, where he quickly dried himself and rather shyly dressed. The others also undressed quickly, mounted the board and dived, but only once, and they were out like the other man and rapidly drying themselves. They never take more than one plunge in the cold weather. This was the general routine of all the bathers, who seemed to enjoy the bath immensely, uttering delighted "Ahs!" as they went in and came out.

"How do you feel?" said I to one who was drying himself, "cold?" "No; all of a glow-warm all over."

"How do you feel when you go in first -cold?"

"No, not at all. Of course it's use." He went on to say that he had indulged in the cold plunge bath for twelve years and never missed a day. Nor did any of the others miss if they could help it. Rain, hail or snow-in he went and in they went. "I've been in when it's been 20 degs, below freezing point," he said delightedly; "it's only about five now," and he seemed sad because it was too warm. "And you like it?"

"Rather-most healthy thing in the world-feel quite fresh for the day.

FARM. FIELD, GARDEN.

TOPICS OF PRACTICAL INTEREST TO PROGRESSIVE FARMERS.

Fertilization by Crop Rotation, as De monstrated in Field and Farm-A System That Gives Alternately a Nitrogen Gathering and Nitro Consuming Crops

Some authorities, among whom is Professor Wagner, divide crop growth into two very distinctly marked classes. They are the nitrogen gatherers and nitrogen consumers. Except a small amount of nitrogen in the soil to start the growth, the nitrogen gatherers draw all their supply from the atmosphere. It is therefore waste to supply nitrogen to these crops. The nitrogen consumers draw no perceptible amount of nitrogen from the atmosphere, but take it all up through the soil, and nitrogen must be applied to the soil or furnished to the soil by some other means. It may be through the roots and stubble of a previous nitrogen gathering crop, or by the direct application of nitrates. All crops require potash and phosphoric acid, and in some cases it may be necessary to supply lime. Hence all soils should be fertilized with these three ingredients until they contain so much that any addition makes no perceptible increase of crop. A soil so charged is in a maximum condition. A system of rotation should be adopted that will give alternately a nitrogen gathering crop and a nitrogen consuming crop, and there will be very little demand for the application of nitrates, as the nitrogen gathering crop will each time furnish the requisite amount of nitrogen for the following nitrogen consuming crop. In this way nature is made to furnish to the soil the most costly of all fertilizers. Such is the theory. Now, what crops are nitrogen gathering The answer is, all the leguminous plants -as peas, beans, clover, ludins, seradella, lentils, esparsetta, etc. What crops are nitrogen consuming? Answer: All the cereals, the grasses, and some, if not all, of the roots, fruits, etc., including maize and potatoes, wheat, rye, oats, barley and so on. The proper rotation of these two classes of crops, if the soil is well supplied with potash, phosphoric acid and lime, is supposed to secure the maximum crops and the most economical fertilization-both the crops and the economy to be enhanced by a careful and judicious saving and application of all available fertilizing material on the

The Four Classes of Combs. H. S. Babcock, writing in The Fancier's Review, reduces the variety of combs upon our fowls to four classes: First, the single comb of the original progenitor of our domestic fowls and the type toward which other combs constantly tend to revert. It is upright, should be straight, and normally is serrated upon the upper edge. The tendency to revert to this type manifests itself even in old breeds. Second, the rose comb, which differs from the single in being broader, flat upon the upper surface and usually terminating in a spike at the rear. The upper surface is generally covered with small points or corrugations, and is described by the English fancier as being "full of work." One of the most peculiar forms of this comb is that known as the "cup comb," which is found on the Sicilians. The comb is round, hollowed out like a cup or saucer, and the outer edge covered with small points.

Third, the pea comb, which is the were lost in a fire at this place Sunday triple comb of the Bramah and round upon Indian games, and bred upon the building on New York street which was more recent varieties of the Plymouth Rocks. It has not been inaptly compared to three single combs pressed together at the rear and front, with the middle one the highest. Pea combed varieties have great reputations as winter layers, and this reputation has doubtless been deserved through the immunity from frost which the comb gives. The fourth is known as the leaf comb. The true leaf comb would be, of course, two single combs pressed together at one edge and opening outwardly, a style of comb which is rarely seen, but from which, in all probability, the combs of the Polish and Houdan and even the upright horns of the La Fleche have been evolved. The typical leaf comb of our day is that of the Houdan, two horns more or less sprigged like the antlers of a deer.

The Root Growth of Corn. It is quite well known that growing corn is often injured by deep plowing, but no instance is remembered where the reasons for it have been better given than has been done by the Illinois Experiment station. The purpose of the experiments were to ascertain the number of the roots of corn and their depth at the points where they are likely to be disturbed by deep cultivation. Nine plants which averaged 12 inches high had altogether 94 roots, or an average of over 10 apiece. The longest was traced 35 inches when the plant was 22 inches high. A plant 41 inches high had a root 13 inches long. Three-fourths of the roots would not have been broken by cultivating 3 inches deep, but all except one would have been at 4 inches.

Seven other plants had 97 roots, of which 78 were traced, with few exceptions, their entire length. Rather more than three-fourths of the roots would not have been broken by cultivation 3 inches deep; nearly two-thirds would have been at 4 inches. Over one-third were 4 inches deep at 6 inches from their base. Three went straight down. The roots (except those at the seed, which afterwards die) start usually at from one to two inches from the surface, without reference to the depth at which the seed has been planted. In case the seed has been planted deeper than this, the stem is simply elongated between the first or seminal whorl, and the second or first nodal whorl. Thus, unless necessitated by dryness, nothing is gained by planting corn over three inches deep. Deeper planting would merely require of the plants extra force and time to reach a position where the roots which eventually nourish them will grow.

I heard about the man who was giving away town lots free, and one day I left the train at a small station and hired a man to drive me over to the site of the future great city. I found a sixty acre farm staked out into lots 20 feet front by 50 deep, but only one house and one person were in sight. The house was a farm cabin, and the person was the owner of it and the one I wanted to see. "Come for a lot?" he asked as we drove up.

"Yes, in case my information is cor-

"I had heard so."

I took a walk around and made a selection, and he found the number and

"You want an abstract of title, of course. Here it is, and the fee is $3."

When I had received it he hunted out a deed already signed, and filled my name in, called in the teamster and his wife for witnesses, and said:

"Here is your deed. I'll have to charge $4 for that.'

I paid the sum named, and he then got down a big book and said:

"You want it recorded, of course. I am the county clerk. The fee for recording is $3."

I had it duly recorded, and just then dinner was ready. He invited me to sit down, but when we were through he

"My charge for dinner is seventy-five The taxes on your lot will be due next week, and you had better leave the money. The amount is $1.75, and my commission for receipting will be twentv-five cents.'

I paid him the sum named and was about to get into the wagon, when he said:

"The charge for bringing you over and taking you back is $2. Half belongs to me, as I own the wagon. One dollar, please.

"Can you think of anything further?" I asked, as I handed him the dollar.

"Well, you'll have to stop at the junction about four hours before the eastern train comes along. I own the restaurant there. Please eat all you can.

"I have," I said, after a little figuring, "paid you $13.75 for a lot you advertise to give away free. How much do you call this land worth an acre?"

"All of six dollars, sir. I've been offered five and wouldn't take it." "Then I've paid you more than the value of two acres to get a lot large enough to bury a couple of cows on!" "Exactly, sir-exactly, and I congratulate you on your bargain." "Then you don't call it a swindle?"

"No, sir! No, sir! A man who will kick on buying a chunk of the glorious west for less than $14 isn't straight, and, Mr. Tompkins, I'd advise you to keep an eye on him going back and see that he doesn't jump out of the wagon and bilk you out of your dollar."—Wilmington News.

Private Interview.

One may sometimes be made to see the nselessness of a foolish habit by being made the victim of similar behavior on the part of another. Here is an example of being paid "in one's own coin:"

The man was asked his errand, but he persisted that he must see the hotel keeper alone. The latter stepped outside, when the farmer motioned him to follow and walked around to the rear

When they were well around the corner the farmer stated that he wished to buy a cow and had heard that the landlord had one to sell.

"Come on," said the other, and led the way through a garden, a patch of potatoes, and after climbing a fence, through a muddy barnyard and into the hotel

When they were inside the landlord put his mouth near the other's ear and Nicknames at College.

With students the range of sobriquets is wide and varied, a condition due to the close relations between the nicknamer and the nicknamed. Some well defined rules obtain, however, which show there is some method in this phase of undergraduate madness. Surnames often carry the same nicknames, although the persons may not be related, and may be separated by five or ten years in the time of their residence at college. For instance, Jones, "79, is dubbed "Buck," and the chances are excellent that Jones, '89, will receive the same nickname. Why, no one knows, but it is a curious instance of persistent personality. Again, nicknames received previously at school or at home count for naught, for the collegian is no respecter of traditions outside of the college world. So "Billy" becomes "Sister," "Jack" is transformed into "Beddy," "Joe" is elevated into "Senator," etc.—New York Tribune.

A Swedish engineer has invented a novel method of blasting by electricity. He employs a volta arc produced between two-carbon rods placed parallel. When the arc is moved close to the spot where blasting is to be effected an in-tense local heat is created, followed by expansion, which has the effect of splitting the rock.

PEDIGREE ANIMALS.

often leads to a neglect in making him | will. self fully acquainted with the excellencies or defects of its individual members. Then a man may have an excellent breed of cattle in which many of the animals, if they could be tried by the pedigree test, would be found to have descended from ancestors in no way remarkable for the better characteristics of the breed to which they belonged.

There are existing differences among bean fodder. the members of a herd of Jerseys or Holsteins as wide as any that separate the breeds. Consequently, in the improvement of a breed by the selection of animals as breeding stock, where it can be shown by pedigree that in addition to their own inherent fitness for certain purposes the selected ones have descended from progenitors possessing more than an average proportion of the dominant quality of the breed, a steady improve ment may be confidently expected. In other words, there are individual families in breeds that possess, when compared with the average, either in a high or low degree, the excellencies of the strain. In the selection of the breeders it is also to be remembered that very much depends upon the male as well as upon the female. Hence the progeny of a cow of high milking qualities, and a sire from a family deficient in that respect, although of the same breed, is quite likely to show a falling off from the record of the mother. These principles, however, although believed to be correct, do not necessarily preclude the idea of improvement from parents not of registered or pedigree stock. There are numerous instances of unusually fine milking qualities to be found in cows of the so called native cattle that cannot be traced back to any ancestral stock. With such a dam and a male from a family of superior milkers, an improvement is not only possible but probable. At the least, it may be expected that the best traits of the mother will reappear in her offspring. Through careful selection and breeding for a series of years, not only is a great improvement in cattle possible, but it is in this way that some distinct and valuable breeds have been formed, says the agricultural editor of The New York World, authority for the foregoing.

Clover Rust.

Of this disease, which differs from two other diseases of the red and white clover of minor importance, it is said that it has not been long known in America, but has prevailed to such an extent during the several wet, cool seasons preceding 1890 in many sections of the northern states that it must be regarded as one liable to affect seriously under conditions favorable to its development this agricultural crop. In the scientific discussion of this parasite, which is found in a bulletin of the botanical division of the Agricultural Experiment Station of Cornell university, while the description of its different forms and stages will no doubt be readily understood by botanists and mycologists, it will not be so easily comprehended by farmers.

As a summary of the matter, so far as it has been investigated, it is assuring to be told: First-That the early crop of red clover is not likely to suffer injury from the rust. Second-As the second crop is likely to suffer greatly if the midsummer is cool, and as clover becomes a valuable fertilizer when plowed in, the fields should be carefully watched in such seasons, and the crop might be plowed under to advantage. Third-Burning the clover fields in the fall would probably have some effect in checking the spread of the disease during the next season, but the application of fungicides seems impracticable.

Manuring Orchards.

W. Sommerville told at the Minnesota Horticultural society that he manured his bearing orchard every year at the rate of forty loads to the acre, mulching thoroughly. He has trees that have stood twenty-eight years that are as healthy as they were twenty years ago. He sold four tons of apples this season from an orchard seven by nine rods in size. With this manuring his trees bear every year. Producing fruit tends to exhaust a tree, and hence the importance of feeding bearing trees, while cultivation only of young ones may be sufficient.

An English correspondent advises that tea leaves in a pan of water be kept for drinking places for bees.

Farm, Stock and Home advises in painting hives that dark colors be avoided, for in extreme hot weather the combs in such hives will melt down, while in a hive that is painted white no damage

Bees serve as active agents in the fer tilization of plants, and it is generally conceded that they are not destructive to the same.

In reply to the query, "How do you keep brood combs when not in use?" the editor of The American Bee Journal says: The bees will take care of the empty combs in the summer season better than you can do it. In winter they should be boxed up tightly, after being thoroughly fumigated with sulphur, if they have any moth germs in them.
