

Hot weather is bearable or exceedingly annoying, according to the condition or state of one's mind.

We would not advise Ulsters as the proper wearing apparel for these beautiful June days, and then expect your mental faculties to temper the heat to your overburdened body, but would suggest a Serge or Mohair Coat, a Duck or Marseilles Vest, a Manilla Hat, and Neglige Shirt, all of which, in endless variety, can be found at the Star Clothing House—then, with a mind equally cool, you are prepared for old Sol's fiercest rays.

REPUBLICAN POW WOV.

The Machine Worked Smoothly in Washtenaw Tuesday.

BUT YORK DELEGATES LEFT IN DISGUST.

And the County Chairman Was Left a Home. Rich Men Carried Things With a High Hand. The Courier Still on Top.

The Republican machine is in good working order in this county. As the delegates to the Republican County Convention began to arrive Tuesday morning it was seen that the machine was all right, that Boss McMillan's lieutenants were awake and that

THE POSTOFFICE CONTINGENT had been particularly active. We did not enquire what candidate the different postmasters were for, as that was not necessary, but among the postmasters present were: Postmaster Wheeler, of Salem; Postmaster Nestell, of Manchester and Postmaster Judson, of Chelsea. Then there was R. H. Marsh, husband of the postmistress of Saline, W. S. Carpenter, son of the postmaster at Ypsilanti, and the Courier had two delegates in the convention and one of the Ann Arbor carriers was represented by a proxy. Very evidently the postoffices were in it.

Dr. W. B. Smith as chairman of the county committee, stated that he had been instructed to call George S. Wheeler, of Salem, to the chair. Mr. Wheeler was a Rich man. He proceeded to lay it down that it was the meanest and most despicable kind of a politician who wouldn't support the nominee of the Republican convention, and otherwise to covertly threaten the anti-Rich men. Joshua G. Leeland, jr., of Northfield, was made secretary. The chair then proceeded to appoint the strongest kind of

Credentials—William Judson, George H. Pond and J. B. Wortley. Permanent organization and order of business—Samuel Post, H. C. Waldron and W. S. Crafts.

Resolutions—E. P. Allen, George H. Pond and A. J. Sawyer. When the motion to appoint the committee on resolutions was made Mr. Sawyer moved that the committee be instructed to bring in the Republican national platform as their report, but in putting this motion Mr. Wheeler changed it to make the platform part of their report. This was to permit of Rich instructions if the committee thought prudent. But nothing came of this as the committee made no report at all.

Webster township had held no caucus, but two sets of men came up claiming to be delegates. After some jangling two of each set were admitted.

Hon. E. P. Allen was made permanent chairman and J. G. Leeland, jr., was continued as secretary. Mr. Allen made a rousing campaign speech, in which he said that the Republican party commanded or should command the intelligent approval of the entire community. He recognized the honesty of the Democrats in their belief and said it was the duty of Republicans to bear with them with patience, while enlightening, educating and converting them. The convention has a very important duty to transact. We made two years ago in staying at home. He nominated James O'Donnell for congress and said he would carry the district, the Republicans would storm the citadel of Democracy in Washtenaw county and capture some of the offices. As will be seen his views were very rosy and a few moments later he remarked that he expected to live to see the Republicans carry Freedom.

A FEARFUL MISTAKE

The convention then separated into districts to name delegates and began. No scene like it was ever before witnessed in the Republican conventions. There was no quarter shown. There was no consideration shown any worker. The question was solely, is this man on the slate or is he a Pingree man. The Rich men held a caucus in Lawrence's office during the noon recess and came in with handfuls of bearing the names of each of the eighteen men they had decided to send to the convention. All the work laid out for the convention was to ratify the slate. This the convention proceeded very largely to do.

Blinded by the glare of that "will-o'-the-wisp" Protection, the American workingman allows Monopoly to eat up the fruits of his labor.

THE FIRST DISTRICT contained 43 Rich delegates and 17 Pingree delegates. Major Stevens was put in the chair and G. Frank Allmendinger was made secretary, Nathan Pierce and John R. Miner acting as tellers.

Mr. Sawyer placed Dr. W. B. Smith in nomination and Henry Waldron nominated John F. Lawrence. The Pingree men had to borrow paper to write their ballots, but the Rich men began throwing little printed slips of paper in the hat, regular tissue ballots, printed on paper so thin that it would take several of them to make a thickness of ordinary book paper. The result was:

John F. Lawrence.....43
Dr. Willard B. Smith.....17

For the second delegate the ballot resulted:

Henry C. Waldron.....43
O. C. Burkhardt.....16
G. Frank Allmendinger.....1

Mr. Sawyer then made a motion that the names of those on the printed slips be declared elected delegates and further time saved. This was defeated and a third delegate was elected by ballot as follows:

George H. Pond.....43
A. J. Sawyer.....4

The Pingree men had evidently ceased voting. John R. Miner then renewed the motion that the names on the remainder of the printed slips be announced and the election made by acclamation. This motion carried and the delegation filled out as follows:

John F. Lawrence, Henry C. Waldron, George H. Pond, W. E. Boyden, Henry S. Dean, William C. Stevens, Thomas Jewett, William Judson and George S. Wheeler.

When the congressional delegation was named an earnest attempt was made by the Rich men to place A. J. Sawyer upon it, but Mr. Sawyer refused to have it. Mr. Allmendinger declined, but Col. Dean insisted that he should stay on. Mr. Sawyer got in the first motion on this election and it was that John F. Lawrence be empowered to name the nine delegates. The delegation elected was as follows:

Dr. Fleming Carrow, John W. Bennett, William Bacon, G. Frank Allmendinger, S. A. Moran, Lester Canfield, A. C. VanSickle, A. R. Beal, O. C. Burkhardt.

An attempt was made to keep S. A. Moran, the editor of the Register, off the delegation which was quieted by the cooler Rich leaders who were striving not to sit down too hard on the Register.

THE SECOND DISTRICT

convention was longer drawn out and, if anything, less harmonious than the first. The machine ruled here as in the first and tissue ballots again ruled the day. Ex-State Oil Inspector Henry C. Platt was the chief leader of the Rich forces. E. P. Allen presided impartially and W. S. Carpenter was secretary. The slate was slightly broken. The first move to break it was by Supervisor Edwards, of Ypsilanti. He moved that E. P. Allen and J. B. Wortley be named by acclamation. This was done. Allen was on the slate, but Wortley, though a Rich man, was not. A. A. Wood, of Lodi, and H. D. Platt, of Pittsfield, were next elected. The York delegation put up Charles S. Blackmer for delegate. H. D. Platt moved to amend by substituting the name of John Cook, of York. Dr. Pyle, of Milan, said the York delegation felt that York ought to be permitted to have something to say about who should be her delegate and the delegates from that town wanted Blackmer. In spite of Platt's protests Cook was knocked out. Then a gray haired delegate wanted to know if the convention knew where it was drifting. They had met to send Rich delegates. Blackmer must not be allowed to go. Platt also made several speeches and was informed by the York delegation that he was talking about something he (Platt) didn't know anything about. But Blackmer's nomination by acclamation was defeated by a vote of 32 to 13. A ballot was ordered and John Cook, once rejected, was selected, the ballot standing: Cook, 31; Blackmer, 10; Farrell, 7; Whitmarsh, 3; Bachelder, 1; Crafts, 1. The York delegation had a little meeting, all by themselves, at which one of the most prominent Republicans moved that the delegation withdraw from the convention in a body so as not to be bound by the action of the convention. This was seconded and carried and

YORK WITHDREW FROM THE CONVENTION.

The convention had selected as York delegate a man who had tried to come to the county convention but had failed in his home caucus, but his name was on the Republican slate and of course the dictates of the machine must be rammed down the throats of York Republicans.

The next ballot resulted: R. H. Marsh, of Saline, 33; Farrell 7; Smith 5, Whitmarsh 1. Then news was received that the first district caucus was over and in the hurry to get out, T. J. Farrell, of Manchester, Perry Townsend, of Superior and W. S. Crafts, of Sharon, were rushed through by acclamation.

The delegates to the congressional convention elected were: M. L. Raymond, Peter Cook, W. J. Wallace, S. R. Crittenden, Charles Lewis, M. S. Lawton, W. S. Carpenter, H. P. Thompson, George Wiard.

When the convention reassembled and the delegates elected were reported to the convention, Hon. A. J. Sawyer arose and stated that the Republican party in the coming contest wanted the votes of the German and Irish Republicans and he wished to call the attention of the convention to the fact that in the list of delegates to the state convention reported there was

NOT A GERMAN OR IRISH REPUBLICAN.

At this statement the delegates looked aghast. A funeral gloom descended over their countenances. The Rich slate didn't want to break their ranks for such a consideration as this. Finally Dr. Fleming Carrow came to the rescue. He was a delegate to the congressional, not the state, convention and withdrew his name, moving that the name of John Heinzman be substituted for his. This was carried with cheers, the Rich delegates in their relief not thinking that the slate delegation remained without a German or Irish Republican on it. The convention then ratified the list of delegates.

Mr. Sawyer called the attention of the convention to the fact that there was present in the hall a Mr. Britten, a young stump speaker from Illinois, whose voice would be heard on the stump this fall. Mr. Britten was called for and took up a position behind the judge's desk, close to the chairman, and let loose which ended the convention in a roaring farce. He was glad to address so intelligent an audience—he meant, he continued, he was glad to address so intelligent looking an audience, their clothes looked intelligent, intelligence shone right out through their clothes. He came from the proud republican state of Illinois, and dwelt on the word proud for a half minute. Here Capt. Allen in an aside told him he couldn't speak but five minutes. The delegates were getting under shelter out of the torrent of eloquence. Britten continued: "I say to you and I hold it on my honor, Illinois sends you greeting." He predicted a Republican majority of 40,000 or 50,000 in Illinois this year, but he didn't say whether he held the majority on his honor as he did the greeting. "I would say that republicanism is a thing on which we can base our religion." Here Captain Allen pulled his coat tail. He was getting on ticklish grounds. The Patriotic Sons of America might be his topic. And although the five minutes had not expired, the speaker was informed that the delegates would have to take the motor line. He came to a stumbling close and left the hall uttering a stronger word than we can portray in type.

THE RESULT.

The Rich men claim the entire delegation. The Pingree men claim two or three in the second district. The convention was the most shameless piece of machine work ever put up in Washtenaw county.

The little slips of tissue ballots printed at the Courier office did their deadly work. The delegates were named before the convention met. All the convention had to do was to ratify the plan of the Rich leaders.

The machine had no use for the chairman of the county committee because he did not wear the machine collar, preferring to use his own judgment, and declined to let him go to the state convention.

Col. H. S. Dean, who was unable to get on the county delegation from the first ward, turned up as a delegate from the third ward, his removal to that ward having been accomplished over night.

E. F. Johnson, secretary of the county committee, who had hitherto lived in the first ward, turned up as a delegate from the fifth ward.

Many of the Pingree delegates in expressing their dissatisfaction, said that the Republican machine must be broken and the only way to break it was at the polls. They didn't propose to have a machine ram a candidate down their throats, revile them while doing it, and aid the machine to maintain its power by ratifying its nomination.

Hank Platt was happy. So were the postmasters. So undoubtedly is Senator McMillan. Great is the boss, great is the machine in Washtenaw.

What a Meddlesome Old Woman Did.

EDITOR ARGUS:—In a paper on "Erysipelas and its Treatment" in the "Medical World" by L. Frank Siegler, M. D., occurs this passage. "A failure to successfully treat this disease but adds to the prevailing opinion of the laity, that the only safe and effective thing to do is to 'pow' wow." Of course you have all no doubt experienced the meddlesome old ignorant woman who professed to speedily cure, with gesticulating hands and unmeaning guttural, an obstinate case of erysipelas." He then explains the cause and the cure according to the theories laid down in books, and the revelations of the microscope, declaring that erysipelas was alarmingly contagious and might be communicated through contact with articles of apparel.

I do not intend to dispute anything the wise doctor says in his scientific elaborations, but to make a simple statement, and the gentleman most concerned is still living in Ann Arbor and will readily confirm the statement if asked to do so. He had been suffering intensely for many weeks with acute erysipelas in his hand and had received the services of some of the best physicians, who failed to give relief. After considerable persuasion from the meddlesome old woman to let her see it, it was carefully unwrapped and the woman's hands first dipped in water passed over it a few times, not on it. It was too sore to be touched. Soon the pain was all gone. The hand grew pale and shrivelled, the swelling subsided. Gradually the well hands of the healer were pressed upon the sick hand, gently at first, then harder, then quite hard, and still "it didn't hurt." In ten or fifteen minutes the hand was cured; without medicines or any other outward application.

The next morning the hand looked blue and spotted but was of a natural size, was painless, and he soon resumed his work in the lumber yard and has had no return of it since. Nor was the disease communicated to any other person. Here is an actual occurrence that sets at defiance all the fine theories of Dr. Siegler. What has he to say to this? This was no mind or faith cure, it was healed by a natural therapeutic agent. Let the wise doctors find out by investigation what it was and give the meddlesome old woman credit for the good she may do where medical skill fails.

Adrian Press Washtenawisms.

Some very petty thief recently stole nineteen fleeces of wool from a Bridgewater man. He must have been a small minded wretch to steal wool at the McKinley prices.

Mayor Doty, of Ann Arbor, very sensibly vetoed the ordinance passed by the council, giving saloons till half past eleven to close. Health, wealth, morality and decency required the veto.

The Apian way between Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor will soon be finished, from the University end. It will then remain for Ypsilanti to place her part in traveling order. It is understood that this is to be a free trade road.

Last week a hackman of Ann Arbor was thrown under the wheels of his juggernaut, which passed over his breast without harming him. The glazing of a hackman's cheek extends further downward than we had supposed.

Stony Creek has a young David, who, armed with his sling, would be safe, turned loose with the "Tammany tiger." He drew his sling the other day and slung out six teeth belonging to Dan Wentlet, of Frenchtown. The rock caught Wentlet squarely in the mouth.

A Freedom man fell down stairs the other day and struck the "home plate" with such force as to set off a box of matches in his hip pocket. The injured man was drenched in time to save him. Let's have no laughing—a box of combusted matches in a hip pocket ought not to be made light of.

The Ann Arbor Courier's account of the Cleveland ratification contains two notable passages, which show precisely where the reporter left off to go and get a drink. The printer was obliged to draw on the "hell-box" for exclamation points. Mayor Doty is to be congratulated for his veto of the "late closing" ordinance.

Oscar Howell, a Willis blacksmith, melted some resin for a horse's hoofs. This would have been just a common everyday, tame affair but for the cartridge that went in with the resin and entirely relieved the monotony. Howell received part of the dose in his face, and narrowly missed having an ear shot off.

There is a sweet July poem in the Ladies' Home Journal for July.—Ypsilanti Commercial. Don't sing it to us. Saying nothing about your voice, it probably smacks too much of roman candles, popcorn balls, torpedos, cheap oratory, fire crackers, roasted peanuts, gingerbread, noise and bowery dances to make it enjoyable. Take it away and bury it!

The alligator belonging to Phil Hall escaped last week but was found in a creek in their pasture.—Ann Arbor Democrat.

The Press is pained to learn that while the alligator was in the creek, Mr. Beal of the Courier, who had wandered forth to ruminate, i. e., chew his "cud" and reflect, saw the alligator and mistaking him for the "toad of free trade," launched out into such a philippic against commercial freedom that the reptile which had intended to dine on him, slid under a grassy bank out of sight.

"Rev. Dr. Thumper is a modern minister." "Indeed! It's a pleasure to listen to a man who is up to the times, isn't it?" "Yes; the doctor in praying Sunday said, 'Oh, Lord, you press the button and we'll do the rest.'"

Hibbard's Rheumatic and Liver Pills These pills are scientifically compounded and uniform in action. No gripping pain commonly following the use of pills. They are adapted to both adults and children with safety. We guarantee that they have no equal in the cure of Sick Headache, Constipation, Dyspepsia and Biliousness; and, as an appetizer, they excel any other preparation. For sale by John Moore.

FARM FIELD AND GARDEN

STACKING HAY AND GRAIN.

Important Points to be Observed in the Construction of the Stack. As between the two usual methods of preserving hay and grain from damage, after these have been harvested and properly cured, storing in the shelter of a good barn will result in the least loss. It is, however, often necessary to stack a portion of one or both of these crops from the want of sufficient barn space. In such cases it is highly important that the stack be properly constructed. The agricultural editor of the New York World has the following to say on the subject:

The safety of the grain or hay to be stacked depends largely on the expertness of the man who builds the stack. Any farm hand can pitch hay or sheaves of grain from a wagon, but unless the staker is a man of some experience in the business and with a good eye for proportions and outlines the stack is quite certain to be faulty in shape, and probably so lopsided that one-half of it will offer but little resistance to rain.

While the shape of a stack is very important, the manner of laying on the hay or sheaves while building it is equally so. In all cases the center of the stack should be kept the highest, so that the incline of the sheaves or forkfuls of hay as they are laid on shall be outward. Again, hay should not be tramped down on the stack in wads and rolls, but should fall flat from the fork so as to make as compact and water resisting a body as possible.

When a stack has been properly topped off and presents no rough or jagged outlines from top to bottom, it affords quite a safe method for protecting either hay or grain that cannot be cared for in a barn.

Clover is more liable to damage and harder to be protected from wet in stacks than are the finer stemmed hay grasses, and where there is only room for one variety of hay in the barn it is best to put the clover into the mow.

The Barrel Coop.

Everybody knows what a nuisance it is to have a hen in a common barrel coop, and there is a possibility that the chicks do not think much more of it than we do. There are dangers with the round barrel. If not looked after, especially when there is a high wind, there is a likelihood that the breeze will try to use the coop as a football. Again the excrement of the hen and chicks gathers in the barrel, and with the straw that is usually thrown into it forms a fine breeding place for vermin, from which they can go forth in armies to conquer their incubators, the chicks. But barrels may be made into coops that will prove efficient.

Each barrel should be divided into two coops, saving the barrel lengthwise. To do this is an easy matter. Take a pencil or piece of chalk and mark the hoops just where you propose to cut them, which should of course be where two staves meet. Care should be taken also to cut the barrel the right way of the head so that the saw will have to be used only to cut the hoops. Now it is desirable that the hoops should remain to keep the staves in place, and to do this some nailing will be necessary before the hoops are cut. Having marked where the hoops are to be cut, nail the hoops to the staves on either side of the mark. It may be necessary to nail into some of the other staves to insure a firm, permanent coop.

The advantage of this coop is that the hen and her chicks have the ground under them, and their sleeping place may be kept clean by removing the coop from place to place, while in the other case, the coop if moved carries all its refuse with it. There are other advantages which the user will discover.—Farmers' Review.

Cultural Notes for the Garden.

As soon as the early crops—onions, radishes, lettuce, etc.—are harvested, clear the soil and prepare it for second crops. Keep the celery plants growing by frequent cultivation, and be sure and thin the plants as needed. On the thinning of the plants depends much of the future success of this crop. Celery plants are by no means the only ones that require thinning. Thin carrots, beets, onions from seed, parsnips and salsify. Stir the surface of the soil as frequently as possible among all the garden crops. This cultivation keeps down the weeds and conserves the moisture. Be ready with your spraying apparatus for the potato beetles and slugs. Don't forget to plant some cucumbers, especially for pickles, and also set some celery plants for an early crop.

Thorough cultivation and frequent hoeing will make the young bean plants grow vigorously. Remember that the limas call for high cultivation.

How to Destroy Ragweed.

Everywhere along roadsides may be seen the coarse, dusty foliage and dull green spikes laden with pollen of the unsightly ragweed plant. To destroy this undesirable plant run the mower along the infested roadsides in August, before the flowers are enough advanced to perfect their seeds. Being annuals, this method, if thorough, will destroy the crop for another year. Sheep will eradicate the weed if pastured on the infested ground.—Prairie Farmer.

Peach Yellows and Peach Rosette.

The edition of the report on the communicability of peach yellows and peach rosette, which was issued by the United States department of agriculture in December last was soon exhausted. As additional copies have recently been printed, peach growers and those interested in the diseases of the peach may obtain this report (Bulletin No. 1 of the Division of Vegetable Pathology) by applying to the secretary of agriculture at Washington.

SWARMING.

Wisconsin Woman Expresses Her Views on Hiving Bees.

When hot weather comes on, a thriving hive will begin to "hang out," as it is called; that is, the bees gather in clusters on the outside of the hive. After this a swarm may be looked for at any favorable time. The bees are not apt to come out when the wind blows hard or in cloudy weather. Between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m. is the usual time. Bees have many singular freaks, not always the same, but varying in their ways. Sometimes they will alight on the highest limbs of a tree. Two years ago several swarms all alighted on currant bushes; then they are harder to hive, because they have to be gathered with a large wing or brush broom on a dust pan and then emptied into the hive. A medium sized cherry or apple tree is the most convenient, where the swarm may be reached with a stepladder. When put on their stands in the spring the bees should be placed with a view to some near and convenient tree, where they will naturally cluster. Some have had good results by planting a mullein stalk with its black top resembling somewhat a swarm of bees lighted together, and bees have considerably used these.

Sometimes bees are notional about the hive in which they are put, and will soon vacate it. If they are contented with their quarters they will at once go to work cleaning out the hive if it seems to them to need it. Last year a hive came off and did not appear to take kindly to the hive, and scattered through the air as if demoralized. The queen was found, having fallen in the grass. One of her wings was clipped as an experiment, and she was returned to the hive; but as she seemed restless the beekeeper made a little cage of wire netting, put the queen inside and hung the cage in the top of the hive on one of the cross pieces. In five minutes every bee belonging to the swarm gathered in the hive and made no further movement toward running away. A week or so afterward the top was taken off to see the result, and the bees were making combs as if nothing had happened and had made a little alley up to the queen's cage by which they could get to the queen and feed her through the wires or rather between them. In the course of a month the queen was liberated and all went well with them afterward.

Watching for young swarms becomes very monotonous when they are tardy about making their appearance, unless some one of the family has the time to give to it. If well attended to bees will double and often more, too, in numbers in the same season, besides supplying the table with one of the greatest luxuries, unadulterated honey. On a hot day before bees are shaken into a hive it ought to be well wet on the inside with cold water and a little salt or sugar dissolved in the water.

Mildew of the Gooseberry.

The claim has been generally made, and as generally accepted as correct, that our native varieties of the gooseberry are mildew proof, but according to a bulletin from the Michigan experiment station, when applied to the plant in open culture, it must certainly be taken with grave exceptions, since even the Houghton, which most nearly approaches the native type, rarely, in open exposure, wholly escapes a partial loss of foliage from mildew; while Smith and Downing, with such exposure, very generally in midsummer lose all save a few of the terminal leaves of each shoot. True, says the authority mentioned, these two varieties, usually called natives, may, from certain of their peculiarities, not unnaturally be suspected to possess a strain of foreign blood. Be this as it may, they certainly are too English in this particular.

Sweet Potatoes.

The best soil for the sweet potato is a warm, well drained one of medium fertility. Rich soil is liable to produce too rank a growth of vines and the consequent development of tubers too small for use. A plan followed by some of our progressive farmers is that of scattering a special potato fertilizer in the furrows at the rate of 800 pounds or more per acre. The cultivation consists in keeping the soil free from weeds and occasionally lifting the vines to detach them from the ground where they have begun to strike root between the rows and hills.

Chrysanthemum Show.

The New York Florists' club holds the annual chrysanthemum show of 1892 at Madison Square garden during the week beginning Nov. 1. J. V. Gottschalk, whose office is at the garden, is the one to whom applications for space may be made. The premiums offered amount to nearly $8,000 for exhibits of chrysanthemums, palms, foliage plants, roses, carnations, violets, mignonette, lilies of the valley and miscellaneous plants.

Agricultural Notes.

Cotton has been ginned by electricity at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Alabama, at Auburn. The mesquite bean, that grows rank in Mexico and Texas, when browned and ground, it is said, masquerades as a genuine Java, which it resembles in appearance and odor.

The majority of beekeepers use full sheets of comb foundation in the sections. Only thin sheets, made especially for that purpose, should be used for comb honey, says The American Bee Journal.

It has been demonstrated at the Kansas station that when a high quality of fodder is required farmers must grow the fodder or ensilage crop by itself and keep it distinct from the crop grown for grain.

The furnishing of grass sod for city and town lawns and plats is a flourishing industry among a certain class of farmers in the vicinity of New York and other large cities. Thinning tree fruits is now practiced by our best fruit growers. Better fruit and more money is the result.

NEVER A FAILURE. The Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota has never had a failure of crops. It produced 30,000,000 bushels of wheat besides other cereals in 1890.

It has all of the advantages of an old country in the shape of school, church, market, postal & railway facilities and all the chances of a new country in the way of cheap lands, rich soil, and increase in values.

It is one of the most fertile and promising regions in America not yet fully occupied. In the rush to the far west, however, this rich valley has been over-looked. It has room for a million more people.

Mr. John Nanry, of Superior, got off a good remark to a Republican wool grower the other day. He said: "Dead as wool has been under the McKinley act, and you never knew it to be so dead before, there wasn't a bit of stir in the market until after Cleveland was nominated. Then wool began to look up and I had lots of buyers around trying to buy my wool. Before that not a one came around. Look back a few years and you will find that wool was always lower the higher the tariff."

The excursion to be given by the Ann Arbor Rifles on July 20th, promises to be a big success. WAGES IN IRON MILLS

A WHOLESOME CUT TO BE MADE IN SPIKE OF THE TARIFF.

McKinley's Prohibitory Duty, Made by the Manufacturers Themselves to "Raise the Poor Man's Wages," Has an Entirely Different Effect.

Our high tariff friends are beginning to admit that a serious reduction of wages—a "wholesale cut," the Philadelphia Press says—is soon to be made in the iron and steel mills, but their comments are discordant. For example, the Pittsburg Dispatch is moved by the impending reduction at Mr. Carnegie's factories to say:

"If the iron manufacturers wish to strike every tariff advocate dumb and paralyze the entire campaign for protection, they could not do so more effectually than by confronting them during the campaign with the spectacle of mills standing idle through the forcible attempt to reduce wages 20 per cent. in a protected industry."

The Philadelphia Press complains that it has been forgotten by certain persons "that the McKinley tariff reduced the duties on all forms of iron manufacture in which a reduction of wages is now taking place or has taken place." The Boston Journal makes the same assertion. But neither of these papers has said that the reduction of wages has been caused by the slight reduction of duties in parts of the iron and steel schedule. They know very well that in nearly every instance the duties which were slightly reduced by the McKinley act had been practically prohibitory, and that the corresponding duties as they stand now have substantially the same effect. The old duty on steel or iron beams, for example, was $28 per ton. With the assistance of that very high duty the manufacturers in this country, who had been in combination for years, exacted from consumers a ring price of $69.44 per ton. The duty was reduced from $28 to $20.16. Owing to the dissolution of the trust combination the price of steel or iron beams has fallen from $69.44 to $42.56. The reduction of duty was $7.34 per ton; the reduction of price, caused by the dissolution of an unlawful and greedy combination and the restoration of competition, is $26.88 per ton. The duty is still prohibitory. The manufacturers do not suffer by reason of importations, for the duty is too high to permit importations to be made so long as the price at home is determined by that competition which the manufacturers struggled for sixteen years.

Our high tariff friends should not forget that their own leaders have said about these duties in the present iron and steel schedule. After the enactment of the new tariff the following comments were published in The Bulletin of the American Iron and Steel association, which is the official organ of the manufacturers who have since reduced the wages of their workmen and are now preparing to make further and greater reductions:

"Take it all in all, the new metal schedule is a good one, and our iron and steel manufacturers will never see a better one. It has been secured with much effort and no little anxiety. It is the best that was attainable. We are satisfied."

While Mr. McKinley and his associates were making this schedule Mr. Henry W. Oliver, of Pittsburg, was in Washington as a representative of the iron and steel manufacturers and as an adviser of the majority of the McKinley ways and means committee. After the passage of the bill he returned to Pittsburg, and there made a report in which he declared that the rates of duty in the new schedule "were those proposed by the manufacturers themselves." As Speaker Reed said after the election of 1890, the manufacturers of iron and steel had obtained in the new tariff "just what they wanted." The speaker was complaining then that the manufacturers had shown ingratitude in not contributing for the campaign in 1890 so liberally as they had contributed in 1888. As Mr. Reed also declared in 1890 that the "object of the McKinley tariff" was "to raise the poor man's wages," the manufacturers in Pittsburg and in the Mahoning and Shenango valleys should now employ him to explain to their workmen why it has become necessary or expedient to make what the Philadelphia Press calls "a wholesale cut" varying "from 15 to 50 per cent."

We notice that our high tariff friends no longer rely upon Mr. J. W. Jones, of Hutchinson, Kan., for assistance in their treatment of this subject. Heretofore, when we have ventured to point out reductions of wages in the iron and steel factories the Boston Journal, the Indianapolis Journal, the Tariff League's Bulletin and other advocates of McKinleyism have turned with confidence to Mr. J. W. Jones, of Hutchinson, and have published, with much apparent satisfaction, his authoritative assertion that no such reductions had been made. Has Mr. J. W. Jones ceased to be an authority more trustworthy than the reports of the Associated Press, the trade journals and the testimony of the manufacturers themselves?—New York Times.

ANOTHER COPPER TRUST.

Promoters Have Agreed to Restrict Production After July 1.

The New York Daily Commercial Bulletin of June 16 says: "After a long period of negotiation the producers of copper in Europe and the United States have arrived at an agreement to restrict production after July 1 next. The American producers have agreed to restrict their exports of copper to Europe, in consideration for which the Spanish producers have pledged themselves to cut down their production 5 per cent. The object of this agreement is of course to bring about a higher level of prices."

Whether or not the producers can successfully hold together to put prices back where they were during the existence of the great copper combine in 1888-9, it is certain that there has been left for them a duty of 1 1/4 cents per pound, which was about all McKinley could do to invite another copper trust to repeat the outrage perpetrated in 1889 upon the American people. It will be remembered that in 1889 the copper trust sold American copper so much cheaper in Europe that it was reimported and sold at a profit here after paying a duty of four cents per pound, and from April to August, 1889, the foreign price never exceeded eight cents and the domestic price was never less than twelve cents. But for the duty no such difference could have existed and the effects of the French syndicate upon our industries would have been as slight as they were upon European industries.

The effect of high prices for raw materials of any kind is far-reaching and disastrous. How the consumers of copper were affected by the high prices of 1888 is described by James Powell, president of the Union Brass company, of Cincinnati, in The Engineering and Mining Journal of Jan. 19, 1889:

"When the syndicate began brass workers all over the country were fully employed at good wages, and while the demand for goods may not have been kept up at all times with the same vigor, yet the price of the raw material was such as to afford a living profit to the copper producer only."

"The consumption of brass goods for steam, water and gas has fallen off from 25 to 40 per cent., with no immediate prospect of an improvement. The manipulations of the combine have been the most disastrous calamity for the general copper consuming industries of this country that has ever befallen them."

As evidence that the American end of this "agreement" is made in good faith, it is reported from Marquette, Mich., that a general strike is imminent at the great Calumet and Hecla copper mine. The company instead of acknowledging openly that they intend to restrict production by closing the mine, announce that they will discharge all employees who are members of the Knights of Labor or of any other labor organization. They know that this will not only precipitate a long struggle that will restrict production, but it will give them an opportunity to utilize cheap "scab" labor when they are ready to resume operations, and perhaps to starve some of the strikers into accepting lower wages.

Henry George on Indirect Taxation.

In Henry George's "Protection or Free Trade," which is just now being extensively circulated by members of congress, the author thus clearly shows how oppressively indirect taxes—and especially tariff taxes—bear upon the poor, while the rich almost entirely escape: "A still more important objection to indirect taxation is that when imposed on articles of general use (and it is only from such articles that large revenues can be had) it bears with far greater weight on the poor than on the rich. Since such taxation falls on people not according to what they have but according to what they consume, it is the heaviest on those whose consumption is largest in proportion to their means."

"As much sugar is needed to sweeten a cup of tea for a working girl as for the richest lady in the land, but the proportion of their means which a tax on sugar compels each to contribute to the government in the case of the one is much greater than in the case of the other. So it is with all taxes that increase the cost of articles of general consumption. They bear far more heavily on married men than on bachelors; on those who have children than on those who have none; on those barely able to support their families than on those whose incomes leave them a large surplus."

"If the millionaire chooses to live closely he need pay no more of these indirect taxes than the mechanic. I have known at least two millionaires—possessed not of one, but of from six to ten millions each—who paid little more of such taxes than ordinary day laborers."

The Enormity of Tariff Taxation.

I repeat what I have said before, that the people of this country never waked up to the enormity of the tariff taxation proposed by the Republican party until the McKinley bill was put before them and explained section by section. Mr. McKinley for the first time put in cold type the meaning of his party from the beginning, and that was to exclude from this country all products which came in competition with anything raised or produced in the United States, to build a Chinese wall around this country commercially, to decrease imports (as I shall show before the conclusion of my remarks they have done), to increase the free list upon tropical fruits and luxuries and the little frills of commerce, but upon the absolute necessities of life, whether in clothing or in food, to exclude them from this country in order, as the senator from Vermont (Mr. Morrill), the father of the tariff in this country, has declared, to make a market for the agriculturists at home and not abroad. I shall have something to say about that before I conclude, when I touch upon this new humbug of reciprocity, which day by day is being developed, and which I hope the senator from Maine will have a chance to discuss in every township in this country, as he threatened he would do some months ago.—Senator Vest.

In Favor of Free Wool.

The Boston Journal said recently that those manufacturers who have not signed the remonstrance of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers "are too few and inconspicuous to require attention." The remonstrance is against free wool. The American Wool Reporter, itself a strong supporter of protection, takes the Boston Journal to task and says that in Massachusetts only 169 woolen manufacturers signed the remonstrance, while 205 refused to sign it. It also says that "many of these are very important manufacturers, and that an analysis of New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and other states would show similar results."

WAS A GREAT MULE.

THE GRIZZLY BEAR HAD NO CHANCE FOR LIFE IN THE FIGHT

With Pete a Man Could Travel Anywhere and Need No Weapon Whatever—A Sagacious Animal That Could Kick with the Force of a Pile Driver.

I bought a large iron gray pack mule to carry my goods across the Sierra Nevada. I christened him Pete. The day after we started we—Pete and I—came to a nice grassy place. I tethered Pete to a tree, allowing him about twenty feet range, and taking some ham and crackers out of my haversack sat down on a fallen tree to eat them. While I munched the ham and crackers Pete cropped the fresh grass, which grew long and green. Suddenly he reared up and snorted in a manner that very plainly said, "Look out!"

I sprang to my feet, and it was quite well I did so, for I saved me from the embrace of a very large, very hungry and very ferocious grizzly bear, who was standing erect and preparing to throw his paws around me. I rushed for the nearest tree and was up in it in the twinkling of an eye.

I was safe for the time being, but, alas, poor Pete! The bear went about things in a very cool and complacent manner. I could see by the expression of his eyes that he was taking Pete's measure, for he cocked his head over on one side and assumed an appearance of great wisdom, as you have seen critics look at a picture.

Pete's behavior, much as I had already learned of that remarkable animal, surprised me. When I was safe his alarm disappeared altogether. He dropped his head and began to nibble the grass again. He went on with his grazing just as if there were no such thing as a grizzly bear in the world. He would nip off the succulent green stems and chew with great steadiness and regularity, and occasionally I could hear his contented snort as he struck an unusually delicate bunch of grass.

Pete kept on grazing. The bear was as much astonished as I was. Evidently he considered such conduct without a parallel, for he looked harder than ever at Pete, then scratched his head and tried to think out an answer to the problem. But Pete calmly went on with his grazing and looked neither to the right nor to the left, while I sat in my tree and held my breath.

By and by the bear arose, made a grand circuit around the tree in order to watch Pete from every angle and point. Getting no satisfaction out of that mode of procedure he came over to my tree and looked up at me for an answer. But I had none to give him. Between the bear and me we began to think that Pete had lost his mind. Perhaps fright at the appearance of the bear had so bereft him of reason that he continued to eat grass through the mere force of habit.

Soon the grizzly's appetite overcame his curiosity and he prepared for work. He seemed to me to make a critical examination of his destroying apparatus. He stretched his front paws and slapped the muscles of each with the other. Evidently he was satisfied that he was in good trim, for he showed his great teeth with joy. He appeared satisfied that he was fit to demolish a whole drove of mules.

These things done, the bear gave the signal for action. He opened his mouth and emitted a series of growls which made my flesh creep and my hair rise under my hat.

Pete stopped for a minute. Pete went on grazing. His countenance expressed no proof that he had heard the growling of the grizzly. The latter dropped on all fours, with his hungry mouth open and his great teeth disclosed. Still Pete made no sign that he either saw or heard, but confined his attention strictly to the business of finding dinner. The bear, also having the latter in view, rapidly approached until he was in striking distance, and then, rearing up, prepared to disembowel Pete and break his neck with one blow.

Down came the outstretched paws, and at that moment Pete seemed to become aware for the first time of the presence of the grizzly. He sprang forward, the paws struck only the air and then I saw a gray form double itself into a ball and bound upward. Out of that ball flew two legs, which shot back and forth with the rapidity of piston rods, going thump, thump upon the body of the grizzly. Up and down went the body and back and forth went the two pile drivers. The bear was struck all over, on his head, on his shoulder, on his side, on his paws. He fell in one direction and then in another. He was kicked into the air and pounded into the earth.

The breath was driven out of him and life followed, and at length he lay upon the ground a shapeless mass, every bone in his body broken, while Pete had quietly returned to his interrupted grazing without a hair injured.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Crushed. Young Artist (to a friend who has recently furnished bachelor apartments)—Charley, dear boy, I admire your taste. I see you have a little thing of mine hanging there.

Friend—No; did you paint that? Young Artist—Yes; I'm proud to say it's from my brush. By the way, Charley, if it's a fair question, what did the dealer charge you for it?

Friend—Well—er, to tell you the truth, old man, the dealer threw that picture in.—London Tit-Bits.

The First Manufacture of Rubber. The successful manufacture of surgical instruments was accomplished in 1820, and the wonderful capacities of this strange product then began to be known, and the commercial world realized the fact that a new force had entered the industrial field, which was destined to play an important part in the arts and manufactures of the Nineteenth century.—Youth's Companion.

A POINT FOR GARDENERS.

How to Build an Asparagus Bed Told Concisely.

The building of an asparagus bed where there is any pretense of a garden is a most important operation, as a bed of these delicious plants is as good at the end of fifty years, when properly constructed, as it was in the beginning. A sheltered place should be selected for it, where the northern winds do not have a chance at it and where the sun can get at it pretty nearly all day. The roots of the plants go down deep and spread wide, and therefore they should be planted in rows eighteen inches apart and each plant twelve inches from its nearest neighbor in the row. Determine the size of the bed you wish and excavate it to a depth of three feet and always until it reaches a soil which will drain itself. If this cannot be, then tiles should be laid to take off the water. Fill the bottom of the excavation with broken stone, old cans and other rubbish which will not decay or bind together, and then throw back the best of the earth excavated with a good quantity of well rotted stable manure.

The earth by these two handlings will generally be well broken up, but if it is not it should be broken with the rake as it is put back. Then put in the two-year-old roots as before stated. Cover them well and keep the earth of the bed loose and free from weeds. At the end of two years it will be ready to cut from. In very cold climates the bed should be covered with leaves or something else during the winter. In the spring it should be uncovered the first thing and hoed and raked. Beds may be made either in the autumn or spring, but in northern latitudes the spring is unquestionably the better time.

How to Lay a Carpet.

Put lining down first. Old newspapers will do if there is no better. Fasten the lining in place with a few small tacks. Lay the carpet and tack first at the end of the room which is least regular, as if there is a fireplace or a bay window. Stretch this end smooth as you tack. Then tack one side of the room, stretching the edge only. Next, use a stretcher vigorously from the first end toward the opposite, so that the seams will be straight and parallel with the side already tacked. Fasten the second end thoroughly and finally the other side. Be careful to have the carpet perfectly smooth and tight, or it will wear badly.

How to Water a Horse.

Don't be afraid of watering too often. Don't let the horse get very thirsty and he will not overdrink. Don't give him ice cold water if you can get that which is moderate in temperature. Don't water him when he is overheated. Never let him have too much water at once, especially if he is very thirsty. Give him a little at a time as often as he will drink. When he has enough he will refuse more.

How Eyeglasses Are Made.

The pieces of glass which are to be made into lenses for spectacles, for microscopes, small telescopes and the like are first ground into shape, roughly, by being held against a cast iron tool like a grindstone. This course is curved to give the lens the concavity or convexity desired. From this tool the glass passes to a "fine tool," so called, of similar construction, but made of brass and covered with a fine powder of sulphate of iron, calcined and ground. Jewelers call it rouge. Then a third tool, like the second, but covered with cloth which is thoroughly powdered with rouge, is used for polishing. After both sides have been treated thus the lens is cut to the required shape, oval or round, with a diamond glass cutter and steel pincers, and the edges are ground smooth on metal wheels.

How to Put Away Winter Clothes.

Furs and woolen goods may be thoroughly and perfectly protected from moths by tying them up carefully in strong paper, leaving no cracks or breaks in the parcel, and then putting on a second wrapper of paper well soaked in turpentine. This is surer than insect powder, tobacco, cedar chests, camphor or any other usual expedient. Of course there must be no moths in the garments when they are put away.

How to Make a Cheap Icehouse.

Build a strong board shanty with a strong floor, not tight, and cover the floor six inches thick with sawdust. Pile the blocks of ice on this, leaving a space of ten or twelve inches between the ice and the walls of the shanty. This space is to be filled with sawdust as the ice is piled up. When a sufficient quantity of ice is stored cover it with sawdust eight or ten inches thick. The house should still be large enough to afford free ventilation over all. Ice will keep well in such a house.

How Long We Live.

Tables of mortality differ somewhat, but as careful an average as has been figured is one of the latest. According to this the average life of a civilized human being is 39.88 years. Occupation has much to do with the duration of life. Farmers live 45.52 years on an average and clerks only 34.99 years. Carpenters live 45.28 years and printers only 36.66. Among the healthier occupations are those of the domestic, who lives 42.03 years; the baker, who lives 41.92 years and the weaver, who lives the same length of time.

Marshal Green has a force of hands digging out the gutters and otherwise improving the streets.

Miss Dora Harrington left Wednesday for Chicago, Duluth and other points west for a vacation trip.

Wheat harvesting is in progress. The crop is heavy and if the weather continues favorable the quality will be good.

Many people are out of town now, some recreating and others at work, so that it is very dull and will be for a month at least.

A young student of Albion College, a native of Bulgaria of unspeakable name, talked at the M. E. church, last Sunday.

Corn, oats and barley look remarkably well and a large crop of each will be realized unless something happens to them.

Prof. Hall gave an interesting talk last Sunday night at the Congregational church on the Harmony of Science and the Bible.

The wheat market continues to sink down and the bottom is not yet reached. The top is 75 cents for red or white; oats, 32 cts.; eggs, 12 cts.; butter, 11 cts. Wool still stands at 20 to 23 cts. Arrivals are small now and will be till harvest is over.

Proceedings of Board of Public Works.
[OFFICIAL]

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS, ANN ARBOR, MICH., July 15, 1892.
Regular meeting.
Board met and was called to order by President Keech.

Roll called. Present—Messrs. Keech and McIntyre.
Absent—Mr. Schuh.
Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

On motion the bids for the construction of Felch street culvert were opened and inspected. The bids were found to be as follows:

Gottlieb Schneider.....$ 543.
Henry Koch & Bro..... 475.

Mr. McIntyre moved that the respective bids be transmitted to the Common Council, with recommendation that the bid of Henry Koch & Bro., at the sum of $475, for building Felch street culvert on Mill race be accepted, and, whereas, the appropriation is but $450, we would ask for an additional appropriation of $25 to build said culvert.

Yeas—Messrs. Keech and McIntyre.
Mr. Keech moved that the City Engineer is hereby directed to give to the Street Commissioner notice of all sidewalks not built to the grade, and that the Street Commissioner give due notice to the property owners of all such sidewalks not built to the established grade to at once comply with such order.

Yeas—Messrs. Keech and McIntyre.
The Board then adjourned.
W. J. MILLER, Clerk.

SLIGHTLY USED and SECOND HAND PIANOS.

How we get them.

During the college year we have at rent about Forty Upright Pianos, also a few Squares. July 1 these pianos come in until the opening of college, October 1.

We also receive many second hand Upright and Square Pianos in exchange for New MEHLIN, BRAUMULLER and ERIE Pianos.

What is done with them.

As soon as these pianos come in or are returned to our warerooms, they are taken by our factory workmen, and tuned, regulated and repolished and, if necessary, revarnished, making them practically as GOOD AS NEW.

Why we do this.

We put these pianos in first class shape because we wish to sell them. We are money out if they stand on our floor three months of each year. It is better to sell them at once, get our money in use and buy again when the demand for renting pianos opens in the Fall.

How we sell them.

We offer these pianos at the very lowest figures and accept monthly payments of $10.00 to $15.00. Any time within one year after purchasing, any of them will be accepted by us at full price paid in exchange toward a new Mehlin, Braumuller or Erie Piano.

Prices.

Prices vary. Some pianos have been used but a few months---are good as new. Some have been in use two or three years. Some Squares can be had at $40.00 and $50.00. Good Uprights, $125.00 to $150.00. A few Haines Bros. Pianos, used but nine months, at $300 and upwards. Every piano is marked at bed rock. We want to sell them.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Any person contemplating the purchase of a piano should get our prices THIS MONTH.

Pianos were never offered as cheap before. See how our warerooms are CROWDED.

Money does not take up as much room as pianos. Come in and see what we can show you in Pianos and PRICES.
