Yesterday's Hail Storm.

A heavy hail storm visited Ann Arbor shortly after four o'clock yesterday afternoon. A perfect torrent of water fell. The hailstones were as large as walnuts, and it was several hours before all that fell had Burt, s.g.,... melted. In a few minutes the streets were like rivers. A large nnmber of windows in the University buildhail. The skylights in Randall's other three having a race between photograph gallery were broken in themselves some distance in the Kenny, Fitchel, Tice, Rinsey, Mead on the second floor. Mr. Randall's too fast for the rest of them damages cannot be less than $150.

Considerable damage was done to the peach orchards near the city, Charles Clark reporting that about one-third of his peaches were cut off the trees. The gardens in the city were injured.

The lightning was very severe, and a number of motors were burned out. Ald. Ferguson lost over $100 in this way.

The storm seems to have been rather limited in its area. It was accompanied by wind, and several trees were reported blown down. Two runaways occurred, but no serious damage was done.

A Sudden Death.

Richard Bilbie of Ann Arbor town, line. died very suddenly, Sunday evening, while making a call of condo- Noraline, bl. m...... 1 1 lence at the residence of William Taylor, on Pontiac street. She was seized with an attack of heart failure and died within five minutes. She was apparently a strong and healthy woman, but had had one or two premonitary attacks. A peculiar fact in her family history is that her father died in his chair, in the same manner at the same age and two of her brothers were found dead in bed. The funeral was held at the house Tuesday afternoon and an hour later at the Unitarian church.

Mrs. Bilbie was a highly respected woman, a good wife and a kind mother and many there are who mourn her loss. She was born in Nottingham, England, May 5, 1835. She was married to Richard Bilbie in 1859 and in May of that year left England with him for Ann Arbor, where they have since resided. They have three children, Walter S., ex-supervisor of Ann Arbor town; tion by James William Good, B, S. Proph-Edward N., the violinist and musician; and James, who resides at home.

Death of Ald. Fillmore.

Ariel H. Fillmore, alderman of the third ward, died at his home on Spring street, Saturday night at ten o'clock. He had been ill for a number of weeks and his recovery had not been expected but about a week previous, a turn for the better had apparently come and his friends expected to see him out again. The funeral services occurred Tuesday afternoon at his residence, the city officials and the Knights Templar attending in a body.

Ald. Fillmore was born in Dexter township in this county, September

After dinner the meeting was opened by more music and song.

Mr. Ryan, pastor of the Methodist church at Ypsilanti, delivered a brief address on the remarkable progress our country has made in science since the days of Washington, and was followed by Andrew Campbell and Capt. E. P. Allen on pioneer life in this county. Mrs. Findlay read a paper giving the organization and history of our county poor house, and ex-Governor Felch read an address on the early colonies established by different races and nations in this county.

STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled

How an Enemy was Foiled.

The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs. I had to rub and beat those parts until they were sore, to overcome in a measure the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition, I had a strange weakness in my back and aroundamy waist, together with an indescribable "gone feeling in my stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, from which, according to their universal conclusion, there is nerlief. Once it fastens upon a person, they say, it continues its insidious progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. Such was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no particular benefit, when I saw an advertisement of Dr Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and there has not been even the slightest indication of its return. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 137. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recomendation, and it has been as satisfactory in their cases as in mine."—James Kane, La Rue, O. NEVER A FAILURE.

The Red River Valley of Minnesota and North Dakota has had a failure of crops. It produced 30,000,000 bushels of wheat besides other cereals in 1890. Farms can be had on the crop plan, or long time cash payments.

It is not an uncommon thing to pay for a farm from the proceeds of one crop.

It has all of the advantages of an old country in the shape of school, church, market, postal & railway facilities and all the chances of a new country in cheap lands, rich soil, and increase in values. It is one of the most fertile and promising regions in America not yet fully occupied.

In the rush to the far west, however, this rich valley has been over-looked.

It has room for a million more people.

COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT.

Spurious Money and Dies Found in the House of an Aged Convict in Detroit. DETROIT. June 10.-For several months past the police have been daily receiving complaints of the wide circulation of counterfeit silver dollars, and the authorities became convinced that there was a well-organized gang of counterfeiters with headquarters in this city. Recently Tom Curtis, the veteran safe blower, and "Kid" Smith were arrested in the act of passing the spurious money. The officers finally discovered the place and raided the house of Henry Jackson, at 108 Dane street, and arrested Jackson and his son, Henry P. A search of the house revealed a quantity of the bogus money and a good deal of counterfeiting apparatus. The senior Jackson is almost 70 years old, and he was only released a year ago from Auburn prison, after serving a one-year sentence for counterfeiting.

THE CROPS.

Average of Their Condition in the State on June 1.

LANSING, June 10.-The Michigan crop report for June gives average condition of wheat on the 1st inst. in southern counties 77 per cent.; central, 79; northern, 86, and for entire state, 79. The average condition in the state has been lower but once in eight years. There will be the usual area in corn, but it had not been all planted by June 1 owing to bad weather. The area of oats is 93 and barley 83 of average years and the condition is 96 and 93 per cent. respectively. The condition of meadows and pastures and clover sown this year is 3 per cent. below the average. Apples promise 55 per cent. of an average crop. One month ago it was 90. Peaches promise 90 per cent.

"The Sherman law should be repealed as early as possible. We cannot pay gold for silver bullion. I prefer a protective tariff to an income tax. My experience with wildcat and red-dog money would lead me to oppose the repeal of the state bank tax.

WOMAN AND HOME.

SOME HINTS ON THE KEEPING OF HOUSEHOLD ACCOUNTS.

The Stolen Kiss-You Must Laugh or Idealize-Care of the Nursery-What Shall Schoolgirls Eat?-The Victims of Vanity.

Whether or not it is the part of wisdom to keep accounts is an ever open question; especially is it so with housekeepers and mothers of families. The simplest system that they could adopt would still be a com-plicated one because of the number of separate accounts, and yet every woman who has kept accounts has decided, after years of experiment, that it is wise.

A very good plan to follow is to have several cheap notebooks, small enough to carry in the purse. The only reason one should have several is that they can be purchased more economically than a single book. Enter into one of these notebooks, which is always carried, every item and expense for the day. This book can do service as a memoranda book. Every day if possible, and certainly once a week, check off these accounts into a ledger. The left hand page of the ledger should represent the income page, the right hand the page of expendi-

Most women have but one source of in come, and for such the income page will be come, and for such the income page will be a very easy matter to handle, and part of it can serve as expenditure page. The ex-penditure page should be divided for the leveral heads: House, furniture, dress, children's dress, school expenses, books, amuse ments, church and charities, or in divisions or set of divisions that meet the requirements of the family accounts. These divi-sions or rulings would best be made with

It is unnecessary to say that the expenditures of each day in the little notebook must be under date of that day, and it is very wise to settle accounts on one day of the week. This saves much confusion. Friday or Saturday is usually the best day. There is a certain satisfaction in being able to account for every penny expended in these days when money seems to disappear and leave nothing to show for its expend-iture. The second advantage, and by many people considered the primary advantage, is that keeping accounts is very apt to stop unnecessary leaks.

There are many husbands who would be much more agreeable in money matters if they could see exactly how the money was spent. To most men the disappearance of income is a source of mystery, if not of annoyance. It is an excellent plan, where possible, to have the husband draw off the accounts from the daybook. Many times he will untangle figures that puzzle his wife, and very often their combined intelligence will see ways of modifying expenditures or of expending under wiser assign-

The true secret of managing money is to so divide the income as to keep the best balance in the several departments of expenditure. For instance, decide how much money can be expended for rent, church and charity expenses, dress, etc., and keep within the limit. Accounts help to keep this limit before the mind and serve as a check and satisfaction piece.-Christian

The Stolen Kiss.

Two peach trees in an orchard waved their glossy leaves beneath the torrid rays of an August sun. The one tall, graceful and lithe of limb, bore nothing but foliage, and that of the darkest, richest green, while his neighbor bended wearily under her load of luscious fruit.

Upon one of the extending branches that was nearest to him was a large, beautiful peach that he had watched ever since she was a sweet, pink blossom until now, when the rains, the hot suns and the gentle dews had nurtured her to the perfection of maturity, and it seemed as if the longer he watched her the whiter grew the lily of her brow and deeper grew the flush upon her cheek that vainly strove to conceal its loveliness beneath a delicate veil of snow white velvet down. Perhaps it was the magic of his eyes that one of the finest potato markets in the United States. New York and other for his gaze had grown so constant and so Men should be proud to think how women large cities have had their representa- ardent. The thought came to his heart that she was made for him alone, and he sighed to think that he might not even kiss her cheek, for she hung just beyond his farthest reach.

He whispered the wish that was in his heart just loud enough for her to hear. The blush upon her cheek deepened, and she said: "It cannot be. You would take something of my soul upon your lips."

The zephyrs upon which his prayer was borne arose to a breeze, and as he bent be neath their sway he stole the coveted kiss, when, lo! upon his lips he took the down from her cheek. Alas! there was something of her delicacy gone that nothing could re-store, not even the dewdrops that the evening air was fast distilling there.

Ah, woman, so fair, so beautiful, let none betray thee with a kiss, to inhale aught of thy soul from off thy lips! No bearded lip but thy affianced's may touch thy cheek. none but the liege husband may lavish upon thee his caresses lest something of thy pure loveliness be divorced.—Mary E. Kelly

You Must Laugh or Idealize.

I think that there are just two things, speaking in a nonreligious sense, which are absolutely essential to a woman if she is to get comfortably through this world. They are a sense of humor and the power of idealization. I put humor first advisedly, for there are lots of things no human being living can idealize, and there is where the humor comes in. A good way to divide it is to idealize the big things and see the funny side of small ones.

I know two women who were invited on a yachting trip. They were newspaper women on vacation (spent at home mending their gowns), so of course there was no money to pay car fares to the place of meet-One of them sold a silver bracelet to buy the tickets, and they were the jolliest women on the trip. They saw the fun of the episode, and when the week was over they told the whole story to the party who had thought them living on assured in-Critchett died Thursday night. He had comes. > One of her best jokes related to one day on which she had not eaten a mouthful She was invited to a theater party that night and could hardly sit through the play for anticipating the supper. She told the people bright stories so that they might not notice how much she was eating, and she said afterward she had much ado not to hide a few things in her pocket for break-fast. These are of course exceptional cases, but it helps along marvelously to see the funny side of everyday matters, especially one's men folks.—Donahoe's Magazine.

> > The Care of the Nursery.

The room especially set apart for the children of the family should be the best aired, the sunniest and the driest in the situated as to be kept at a temperature as nearly uniform as possible. As a general thing it should be on the south side of the house. Any excess of sunlight if such ex ists can be easily controlled by shades. Since the nursery is as a rule occupied both night and day it should be as large as possible to facilitate a thorough supply of Considerations of air, sunlight and clean-liness should be paramount, and all ques-tions of decoration should be entirely sub-servient. To this end everything should be simple in construction. In all but exceptional cases the nursery is the scene at some time or other of one or more of the diseases incident to childhood. On this account all materials that might serve as a lurking place for dust and dis-ease organisms should be excluded. The furniture should be plain, so as to be easily kept clean. It should also be light, or else furnished with strong casters, so that it can be easily moved about. Pictures on the walls were better omitted.

Nursery closets, too, should be carefully looked after. They should be always open to inspection, and no accumulation of soiled clothing should be permitted.

The habitual use of disinfectants should have no part in the care of the nursery. The necessity for their use should be avoided by means of scrupulous cleanliness. A room in which disinfectants are needed should be inhabited by no one, least of all by children.

The ventilation of the nursery is an important matter. The essential thing to be secured is a frequent change of air without drafts along the floor.—Youth's Companion.

What Shall Schoolgirls Eat?

This is an age of innovation in all things. The whirligig of reform has now stopped at the schoolroom dinner table. There should be a good time coming for school-girls, since progress has taken their daily menu in hand. How hungry they always are, to be sure! Great growing girls, with an inch or two of red wrist always poking out from sleeves, and spindle legs always peeping unseemly from the skirt hem—let-out tucks notwithstanding. A few years ago, even in expensive schools, the "young ladies" were supposed to be too refined to have large appetites. They lived princi-bally on thick bread and butter and weak pally on thick bread and butter and weak tea. There was no "relish," as homely folks say, with the breakfast, Meat was served only at the midday dinner, and sup-per, when it existed at all, consisted of a nibble of biscuit and a sip of milk and water. No wonder the poor girls grow anæmic! "Unlimited diet" always figured on the school prospectus, but, it, is, a conon the school prospectus, but it is a conveniently elastic term.

The prospectus of a modern girls' boarding school shows that in this respect the old order has changed. There was a neat dietary table, on which were shown the respective meals for each day in the week, even to the rolly poly jam pudding which followed the roast mutton Thursdays and the occasional fish which figured on Friday's bill of fare. If I were the mother of girls ripe for boarding school, I should think more of good plain food and plenty of it than of "ologies" and deportment. Many a young woman of today is suffering the ill effects of genteel short commons in her school days. I code Sam. her school days.-London Sun.

The Victims of Vanity.

What is to be said of the sinful folly (the nania is apparently not confined to the young) of the mother who put her child into corsets at 6 years old, or of the young lady who "enjoys the feeling of tight lacing so much" and never lets her waist exceed 17 inches, or 15% if she has no breakfast? We are not surprised to hear that she can not walk. Are there really such foolish relatives as the one who insisted on a young woman reducing her waist to 17 inches, say-ing, "No man will marry a girl unless she looks smart?" These unfortunate victims of fashion sleep in their corsets and know no release night or day from the agony of tight ligaments pressing gradually on soft and growing bones.

The torture of the Chinese lady's crushed toes and the disfigurement of the savage who shaves off her eyebrows, saws off and blacks her teeth in a mistaken search for beauty are mild discomforts compared with value their admiration and to what lengths they are prepared to go to be pronounced

These young ladies are satisfied with their courage; they revel in their self sacrifice; they are the pioneers and the martyrs of progress. Of them it may truly be said, 'Out of your mouth shall ye be judged," for it is they who have revealed the secrets of the prison house, torn the veil from their sufferings and gloried in the pain which, once conquered, becomes delicious.-Lady Greville in National Review.

Real Pleasant Women.

There are all sorts of pleasant girls in this world with winning ways and charming manners, but the girls of girls is the one who accommodates herself to her surroundings. As a matter of course a girl should be bright and agreeable when she has a beautiful home, every wish granted, luxuries galore and no reason to be for a minute ill tempered or out of sorts. If. however, chance or misfortune throws her out of that comfortable nest among surroundings that are not congenial, where economy must be her watchword and hard work her principle, then if you find her smiling and light hearted, having once known what it was to have been at the top of the ladder, then indeed is she one worthy of all the praise you can give her.

The woman who puts up with the discomforts of travel, of moving and of the numerous vicissitudes that are bound to come into all lives without whining, finding fault or repining is the one that is bound to make some man a good wife. A person cannot visit and find in another's home the numerous little ways of doing things that they are used to in their own; they cannot travel and be as comfortable as in the shadow of their own roof tree; they cannot go on year in and year out with no annoyances, and the disposition that can meet the various changes with a smiling face is worth more to its possessor than money, which can take wings and fly away, for it | brings comfort both to them and those about them at all times and in all places.-

A REMARKABLE CURE.

MESSRS. FOLEY & Co., Chicago.

GENTLEMEN:—I had a scrofulous taint of the blood from childhood. An ulcer began on the side of the nose, having all the appearances of a most malignant cancer, became about the size of a silver dollar and ezuded a thin, offensive matter. The agony of mind I suffered cannot be described as I contemplated the progress of the disease.

I was induced to try the Clinic Sarsaparilla; it appeared to neutralize the poison in the blood, the ulcer ceased. The diseased tissues in the bottom and edges of the sore seemed to loosen and the natural flesh to take its place. Thus the cure continued until an even surface remained. No part of the disease remains.

A WOMAN SCORNED.

It Results in the Murder of Her Recreant Lover.

Dora Velzy, at Grand Rapids, Learning of William Gray's Intention to Desert Her, Kills Him and Commits Suicide.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

GRAND RAPIDS, June 9.-A slender pretty country girl was found lying dead on the floor of a Crescent avenue room Wednesday, with an ugly bullethole in her right temple. On a bed in same room was stretched the body of a man also dead and with a duplicate bullet-hole through the right temple. The man was William G. Gray, well-known and popular about the town and for the last two years bookkeeper for P. H. O'Brien, an undertaker of the city. The name of the girl was Dora A. Velzy and her home was near Allendale, Ottawa county. Both had evidently died instantly, and from bullets from a revolver which was found near the body of the woman. Five chambers of this were empty and one loaded.

Gray had evidently been asleep when shot, as he lay on his right side in a natural position. He had removed his clothing and hung it on a hook near the bed. The young woman was only partly dressed. It is believed that the double tragedy occurred Monday night. The slightly decomposed condition of the bodies confirms this theory. The double crime occurred in Gray's room, which he had occupied for several years, a little hall bedroom not more than 8x9 feet in size. The evidence presented at the inquest tends to show almost conclusively that the girl shot her companion as he slept and then turned the pistol upon herself.

Dora was a domestic in a prominent family, had very respectable parents in Allendale and was exceptionally good looking. She and O'Brien had been intimate for some time, but his affections began to wane and he was paying attentions to another girl. He intended leaving this week for Chicago to break off the attachment, but before going wrote a note to Dora expressing a desire to see her on Sunday. This was the last seen of either of them. It is supposed she went to his room that night. He probably told her of his plans to leave town and refused to take her along and hold out encouragement for the future. The shooting was not heard by other occupants of the block and the tragedy enacted Sunday night was not discovered until Wednesday afternoon, when the continued absence of Gray led to the finding of his room door locked on the inside and then the door was

The inquest began Thursday morning. Annie M. Hethington testified that she was engaged to Gray and that on Tuesday night she visited the room where the bodies were discovered the next day, but did not discover that its occupants were dead-though her testimony shows that both bodies then lay in the same positions in which the coroner found them. She was closely cross-examined, but told her story in a straightforward way, which bore all the marks of truth. She had her gloves on when she touched Gray's face and did not realize that he was dead. The following letter was found in Dora's purse, in her handwriting, and was produced:

The reason I must do this naughty, cowardly thing is because I cannot or will not stand it to be played the way I have been. He thinks it is smart to tell people that I am tough, but he never thinks to tell them that he is the cause of every bit of it. If he had never meddled with ne I would have been a nice, happy girl. the people who used to be my friends will not even look at me when they meet me. He does not tell people about stealing my wages every chance he got I think a fellow that will rob a hired girl of every cent she had ought to be killed. He used to steal my money when he possibly could and then deny it. He is too nice to kill, but I do not care to live and be talked to kill, but I do not care to live and be taked about by people who think they are better than I. I am just as decent as some of the married women who talk about me. My whole life has been one of trouble and hard work, and I might just as well die now as ever. Wishing everybody much happiness and good luck.

A Rattle For Baby.

A novel and pretty baby rattle is made of four yards of cap wire, half a yard of rib-bon, nine bells, a strip of sateen, some cotton wool and a short length of macrame twine. Commence with folding the wire into four and bend it into the shape of a racket; over this wind the cotton wool then bind the sateen all round to make it neat. Now take the macrame twine and thread it across each way to form the network in the center. Procure one ounce of double Berlin wool of a pretty color, and crochet over the edges of the racket with four double crochet in each space between the network. Work round the edge again with one double crochet in every other stitch; fasten off.

For the handle work three chain, eight double crochet into loop, two double crochet into each of eight double, and continue working one double crochet into each of 16 stitches until a sufficiently large piece for the handle is worked, slip it over the handle and sew it to the other part of the crochet work, tie a bow of ribbon to hide where it is sewn, and sew the nine bells at regular intervals all round the racket. Make a ball by working double crochet round and round until it is the desired size, then decrease it by taking two double together. Stuff it with cotton wool and sew it to the network of the racket.-Brooklyn

The night lunch wagon is a product of shades and lengths, prices always the nineteenth century. Its advent has been hailed by thousands of weary night workers, and the delectable frankfurter and hot roll have carried joy and comfort to my-riad hearts and stomachs. Now, Tom Carroll is one of the men to whom the night lunch is a thing of beauty and a midnight joy. The other evening Tom came into the Saunterer's room, munching at his heart's content, with the end of a frankfurter in his hands.

"Where have you been?"
Tom smiled as he swallowed the last bite. "Been out dining a la carte."- Boston
