Burned to Death from Starting a Fire with Gasoline.—What a Business Woman Can Do.—The Farmers' Picnic.

Death of Edwin R. Curtis.

Edwin R. Curtis died at his farm in Dixboro, Monday afternoon, of typhoid fever. The remains were brought to his home in this city and the funeral services were held at ten o'clock yesterday. Mr. Curtis was born in Elmira, N. Y., January 17, 1828, and was the son of Chester Curtis, who came to this county with his family in 1839, settling in Superior. A year later he died and Mrs. Curtis and the family moved to Ypsilanti, where Edwin went to school. At the age of thirteen he began teaching school and settled on a farm in Salem. In 1873 he bought a place in the fifth ward and ten years later he removed to 83 E. Washington street. He was a member of the M. E. church. He leaves a widow and four children, Adalbert C., of Salem; Mrs. Ida Greene, of Salem; and Miss Ella and Ernest, of this city.

Wednesday's Farmers' Picnic.

The following is the official program for the fifteenth annual picnic of the farmers of Washtenaw, Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties, to be held on the fair grounds in Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, August 16, 1893.

Reception at the Cook House from 11 a. m. to 12 m.

Procession, with music, from the north side of the court house to the fair grounds at 1 o'clock p. m.

At 2 o'clock p. m. in the pavilion adjoining the grand stand: Meeting called to order by the president, music, a speech of welcome by the mayor, music, an introductory speech by the presiding officer, presenting the orator of the day, Gen. James B. Weaver, closing with music. Then the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The trouble with the farmers of the United States is they have been too benevolent. You give away one-third to one-half the cash value of all the products sold from the farms. Let us counsel together and see if it is not a Christian virtue to have charity first commence at home; then, after Betsy and the baby are well provided for, we extend a helping hand to those in need.

Cheap rates on railroads that day from Detroit and Jackson to Ann Arbor and from Toledo and Howell to Ann Arbor. The exercises will close with a grand dance in the evening for the young folks at the rink.

After Fire Protection.

As will be seen by a glance at the council proceedings on the eight page, the council held a special meeting, Wednesday night, to consider the propriety of stopping the use of water on lawns and the streets until the reservoir was filled that the city might have ample fire protection. The reasons were fully set forth by the Mayor in his message found on our eight page. The council passed no resolutions regarding the matter but adjourned until last evening. There was however considerable discussion in which the company was handled without gloves. Ald Wagner, in particular, took occasion to remind the council of a large number of unfulfilled promises made by Mr. Hamilton. Mr. Titus F. Hutzel, who was present promised to see what could be done and the council adjourned until last evening to hear from him. Last night only four of the aldermen got together, the others being out of the city, but in the meantime the company had begun to hustle and were filling the reservoir. The gate was partially closed so that the main part of the water would go into the reservoir and a man was placed at the gate to turn on the full force as soon as the fire bell should ring. Mr. Hutzel stated that they expected to have 800,000 gallons of water in the reservoir by this morning. Several those present last evening had been up to the reservoir yesterday afternoon and reported that the water was running in well over the stand pipe. The Mayor has issued the following proclamation which all good citizens should observe.

Owing to the condition of the weather and the want of a sufficient water supply at the present time, the danger from fire is imminent. We hope to have an abundant supply of water for fire protection within the next few days, but in the meantime, water consumers are urged to be economical in the use of water. As an additional precaution, I have appointed Charles A. Edwards special policeman to see that all material placed in alleys that in any manner endangers our safety be removed forthwith. All good citizens are expected to co-operate with Mr. Edwards and obey his instructions, so that it will not be necessary for him to resort to the courts. The ordinance must be enforced.

B. M. THOMPSON, Mayor.
Ann Arbor, August 10, 1893.

A Niece of Randolph Rogers.

A few years ago the business woman was known principally as a milliner and a dressmaker. Today she is engaged in every branch of legitimate trade. A business woman who makes a success of what she undertakes is Miss Katie Rogers, a niece of Randolph Rogers, the famous sculptor of Ann Arbor, Mich. Like her illustrious uncle, Miss Rogers possessed a remarkable talent for art and for many years gave her time almost exclusively to oil painting. She was an artist in the true sense, working neither for money or fame, but for the love of art itself. Portrait painting was her forte and many fine faces, so life like and real as to almost speak from the canvas, have been the productions of her brush. Had not death interposed, Michigan no doubt would have given to the world a woman portrait painter equal in merit to the famous sculptor whose delicately chiselled marble made the name of Bulwer a household word.

The father of Miss Katie Rogers, Moses Rogers, died in 1839. He was the owner of a successful business on Detroit st., Ann Arbor, where for years he had sold all kinds of agricultural implements, garden seeds and miscellaneous articles for farmers' use. The business was well established, but at the death of the owner there was no one to go on with it. With out a moment of hesitation Miss Rogers laid aside her brush and palette and took up the duties of the business woman. And in this as in her art work, she has demonstrated the native perseverance and executive ability so essential to the success of a business career.

Miss Rogers is a woman of striking independence and conducts her business in a straightforward, business-like manner. Her late father, Moses Rogers, was a brother of the great sculptor and one of the pioneers of Washtenaw county, having settled in Ann Arbor in 1839, before the city had a railroad or telegraph line. His gifted and self-sustaining daughter is an example of well directed energies and the possibilities which lie within the reach of women endowed with laudable ambition and a tenacity of purpose.

Miss Rogers, while being a through business woman, is still an artist and executes at odd moments some choice bits of work her fancy may prompt. Her home is full of family portraits and pictures, all her own handiwork, the most notable of the portraits being that of her illustrious uncle, Randolph Rogers. She also has a copy of his famous masterpiece, "Nydia," done in oil, a perfect reproduction, and a copy of his "Ruth," done in colors, which is a triumph of a life time. This piece alone ought to make Miss Rogers famous as a portrait painter. No doubt she will be enabled in the future to give more time to art again, but at present she is devoting her interests to business and has not only maintained the patronage of her father's old customers but many new ones besides.—Detroit Journal.

Burned to Death.

Mrs. Minnie R. Crawford, wife of Arthur Crawford, on Fuller street, was burned to death last Saturday. She was lighting the fire about seven o'clock, pouring what she supposed was kerosene on the wood before lighting it, but really pouring gasoline upon the wood. The gasoline exploded, her clothes ignited and she was severely burned over every part of her body, death ensuing Saturday night. She was about thirty-one years of age and had lived in Ann Arbor nearly all her life. The circumstances are detailed in the testimony at the inquest held by Coroner Clark with the following jury:

Edward Duffy, Moses Seabolt, Geo. W. Cropsey, Joseph Donnelly, John Baumgardner and Jerome A. Freeman. The testimony was as follows:

Arthur A. Crawford, the husband, testified that he was lying on the bed Saturday morning with his little girl, while his wife was kindling a fire in the kitchen with pine boards and hard wood. She poured some of the contents of a can on the wood, took a match and lit it, causing an explosion. The contents of the can exploded the next moment. He heard her scream and before he could get up she ran and jumped at him. Her clothes were all afire. He put a quilt around her which almost extinguished the flames. She ran out of doors, while he started for the child. He continued: "I have never brought any gasoline in my house. I was sitting outside my house Friday afternoon with Mr. Ferguson. My wife says to me 'Art, I want some kerosene.' I asked her how much she wanted. She wanted five cents' worth. Mr. Peters was coming with his kerosene and gasoline wagon. I told my boy, eight years old, to get the kerosene can and go out to the wagon and get some kerosene. I said 'How do you do Mr. Peters? Give this boy some kerosene.' The wagon was some thirty-five feet from where I was, I think. Mr. Peters could have heard me. My boy said nothing when the can was filled. I never bought gasoline of Mr. Peters or Mr. Goodale."

Dr. Sudworth testified to Mrs. Crawford's death being caused by the burns. He thought the burns were caused by a gasoline explosion.

John J. Ferguson testified to being at Mr. Crawford's house just after dinner Friday and to sitting on the side of the house with him. He did not hear him give any order for kerosene oil nor see any kerosene or gasoline oil wagon on the street.

George E. Peters, the driver of the kerosene and gasoline wagon for M. Goodale, testified that he was on Fuller street near Crawford's house. Two little boys and a little girl came to the wagon with cans. The little boy about eight years of age told me he wanted five cents worth of gasoline. I gave it to him. If Mr. Crawford called to me I did not hear him. I never sold Mr. Crawford any gasoline before but had sold him kerosene. I often sell small quantities of gasoline for cleaning clothes.

Don Crawford, aged eight, testified as follows: "I remember going out to the kerosene and gasoline wagon last Friday. I had five cents. I bought some oil as my mother told me to. I thought it was kerosene. My mother told me to get the oil. Father gave me the money and told me to get some oil. He was sitting by Mr. Ferguson. Father called to the oil man when I was with him. The oil man stopped and I went down to get the oil."

The jury brought in a verdict "that Mrs. Minnie R. Crawford came to her death at 58 Fuller street in the city of Ann Arbor on the sixth day of August, 1893. Her death was caused by the explosion of gasoline, while lighting a fire, igniting her clothes and causing her death."

Saline Farm Notes.

The editor of the Michigan Farmer visited Saline recently and writes the following agricultural report from that section:

A few days ago we dropped into Saline to meet Mr. Henry Burns, of San Antonio, Texas, who was a partner of Mr. A. A. Wood in the shipment of Michigan merinos to Australia. It was expected the remainder of the shipment would be sold July 4th, but up to the time of our visit no report had been received from Mr. George Wood, in charge of them, as to how the sale had turned out. The bank failures in Australia, Mr. Burns said, had given all business interests a severe set-back, and the depression following had affected the sheep interests very injuriously. He and Mr. Wood will ship a few very high class rams to Texas as an experiment, but they did not hope for returns at all adequate to the risks involved and the money invested. The rams had been purchased, however, and a test of the market would be made.

The season has been a good one so far in this section. The hay crop had been good, wheat better than expected, but oats were light. On the A. A. Wood farm wheat and hay had all been got in, and Mr. Wood said one field of wheat would yield fully thirty bushels to the acre. There was a good showing in the new seeding. Oats, however, were light, but corn and beans were looking very fine, as were roots. The flock of merinos on his farm did not show the effects of cheap wool. They were up to the standard which Mr. Wood has always maintained, and the lambs were superior in size and quality.

At G. L. Hoyt's the same state of things was observed. In fact, Mr. Hoyt has the best lot of yearling rams he has ever raised—square, blocky sheep, fine heads and great fleeces. Not a poor one in the lot. They were sired by a ram bred by A. A. Wood, sired by The Colonel, and he by Tirojan, and out of a Rich ewe. This doubling up of Rich blood has given Mr. Hoyt a great stock ram.

Ira Wood had got his wheat in, and a thrasher was putting it in shape for market, but the low price is anything but pleasant to contemplate. F. C. Wood was in the oats, but we had a look at his breeding ewes, and found them and his lambs in good shape.

At Saline we called on George J. Nissly, the well known poultry breeder. His yards are situated close to the village, and comprise eleven acres of ground, fitted up with extensive and well arranged buildings adapted to the business. All the latest improvements are in use, and the incubators, brooders, etc., are an attractive feature for visitors. Mr. Nissly has a number of the improved breeds, each kept in separate runs, with high wire fences dividing them. It would require a good deal of space to give a full description of the grounds. The ground not occupied by the buildings and runs has been put into small fruits—strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, etc. A number of plum trees have been planted in the runs to test the ability of poultry to fight that great enemy of the plum—the curculio. These trees had not been sprayed, yet we found them loaded down with fruit and entirely free from any appearance of having been attacked by the insect. Outside of the runs Mr. Nissly had planted a number of plum and apricot trees, and these had been sprayed and fowls allowed to run under them. They were filled with fruit, the plum trees especially being so heavily loaded as to bend down the branches. The apricot is a delicious fruit, and we were pleased to see the trees doing so well. Mr. Nissly keeps his eleven acres very rich, and the yield of the various small fruits is astonishing. By the way, he publishes a fine catalogue in connection with his poultry business, and those interested can get one by dropping him a card.

We also met Mr. George F. Schairer, manufacturer of the Bostem rack, and had a look over his shop. This rack is giving excellent satisfaction, and Mr. Schairer is building them of good materials, and in a careful manner. While at Mr. Hoyt's the question of feeding wheat to stock came up. A. A. Wood said he had been getting it ground coarsely, and found his stock liked it. Grinding made it much more bulky and light, the bran being set free, and in this shape there was no fear of feeding it to any stock. Mr. Hoyt said he intended feeding it, especially to his hogs. Mr. Wood said he would not go to the expense of grinding it for hogs. Fed it on the ground, so they could not eat it too fast, and his pigs did well on it.

In this connection we note a report from Fostoria, Ohio, which says that a large number of farmers in that vicinity are feeding their wheat to hogs, rather than sell it at the low prices now ruling. Hogs are quoted there at from $5 to $7 a hundred, according to grade, and it is estimated that a bushel of wheat properly ground and prepared, and fed with a little other feed to give variety, will put from fifteen to twenty pounds of flesh on a healthy hog. This being the case, the farmer can easily realize a dollar a bushel for his wheat and save the trouble of hauling it to market. In one case just west of here, said the report, a farmer turned 150 head of hogs into his wheat field, not even taking the trouble to harvest it, and it is said the porkers are doing finely on their new provender. It will be better for the farmers' of this state to feed out their low-priced wheat rather than buy western corn or winter. No better pork, beef or mutton can be produced than that from wheat.

I have a fine farm near Ann Arbor which I will sell cheap, or will take a small farm or house and lot as part payment. For particulars address Box 1254, Ann Arbor, Mich.

N. Schmid relates a singular occurrence that took place at his cottage at Sand lake a few evenings since. They sent up a large paper balloon which went up to a great height, then it struck a current of air that carried it west and soon it struck another that carried it east and finally out of sight. A short time after, while setting off some fireworks, they were surprised to see the balloon descend within 100 feet of where it went up.—Manchester Enterprise.

A big row started last Friday in the colored settlement north of here that has started in a replevin suit. A woman got knocked down several times, and a man got pounded severely; then it quieted down till Sunday, when one of the parties drew a revolver on another and was promptly knocked down and badly used up and the revolver taken away from him. This has resulted in the arrest of five parties, and there will be blood on the moon for several weeks yet.—Whittaker correspondence, Milan Leader.

The Manchester M. E. Sunday School are holding a picnic at Wampler's Lake today.

Ann Arbor is not the only place having trouble over fire protection as witness this item from the Manchester Enterprise: If anyone wants to see the new Macomb street reservoir they must go to the engine house, it lies there in an ignominious heap. The tub collapsed when they attempted to unload it. They then attempted to sink it in a quagmire but the water and quicksand troubled so much that they could not succeed and the tub again collapsed and the effort to sink it seems to have been abandoned after an outlay of perhaps $100.

An old man named Leonard Lucas, who has been a county charge, but who has worked around here the past few months, climbed up in Geo. Haeussler's hay mow last Thursday afternoon to sleep off a jag he had been contracting. He fell through and struck on the floor below, where Mr. Haeussler found him in a sadly demoralized condition. He was wheeled to the lock-up and after being washed and clean clothing put on him, was examined by Dr. Kapp who found that his arms were paralyzed. Supervisor Watkins then ordered him taken to the county house.—Manchester Enterprise.

Just before 1 o'clock Thursday, people in the neighborhood of the stove works were startled by a terrible explosion. It seems that the crude oil which is used for fuel was in poor condition, being full of lumps, and when the works had shut down for noon the fire was partially turned off and the pipes became clogged, extinguishing the blaze. When it became time to start up, Peter Easterle, the engineer, not noticing that it was leaking, turned on the oil and lighted it when an explosion occurred which wrecked the arch and broke all the windows in the room. Fred Clark, who had finished his dinner and was on a bench beside the boiler, was slightly injured by falling bricks. Work was immediately commenced repairing the wreck.—Chelsea Standard.

If you're weak or "run-down" it builds you up; if you suffer from any of the painful disorders and derangements peculiar to your sex, it relieves and cures. It improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores flesh and strength. For all functional weaknesses and irregularities, it's a positive remedy. Hence, it's sold in this way: It's guaranteed to give satisfaction, in every case, or the money paid for it is refunded.

BEAKES & CURTISS, PROPRIETORS. TERMS.—$1.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE. OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1893.

The President's message deserves the careful reading by everyone who desires some light on the silver question, now uppermost in the minds of the people. His reasoning that the Sherman bill should be repealed carries conviction. The message is plain and straightforward, the reasoning of an honest and able president. With a few words he proves conclusively that the Sherman bill has not accomplished what its authors wished. It does not materially increase the circulating medium. As President Cleveland shows between May 1, '92, and July 15, '93, $54,000,000 silver certificates were issued. In the same time, $49,000,000 silver certificates were presented for redemption and were redeemed in gold. The Sherman bill exchanges the gold in the treasury for silver. It will eventually if undisturbed, drain the treasury of gold and send gold to a premium. In three years we have lost $132,000,000 of gold. It is time this was stopped. As we said before, the president's message deserves the careful reading of every man.

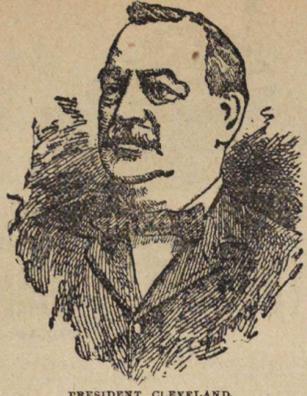

There can be no question in the minds of candid men that there has been grave mismanagement in the conduct of the water works of this city. Year after year as summer approaches we have the same complaints of a bad condition and scarcity of water. Anyone who has gone to the wells and springs, which are the source of the water supply, knows that there the water is pure, clear and tastes well, yet when it comes out of the hydrants it is often of a dirty color, of poor taste, and as analysis shows, contains much animal matter. When the fact is known and conceded that the water works reservoir has never been cleaned out since it was built, one does not wonder that the water does not retain its original purity. Who would expect that it would after passing through catch basins choked with vegetable growth and through an unclean reservoir? What man could expect clean rainwater from a cistern not cleaned in seven or eight years? The water company has had ample warning of the deficiencies of the works. Each summer we have had the same kicking, of course growing more vigorous as age added to the impurities of the reservoir, and the want of repairs impaired the efficiency of the pumping machinery. We believe that an ample supply of pure water can be obtained. We believe that the waterworks company can get it, if it will. That it has not done so is the fault of no one but the corporation itself. We hope this fact is now sufficiently impressed upon the water works company to bring about a radical reform. Our system of water works is all right if properly managed and a due regard paid to the provisions of the contract with the city. The city can enforce the observance of that contract. It is the paymaster.

In the meantime, while the dry spell lasts, we believe it is the duty of good citizens to be careful in using the water until the reservoir is filled, so that we may have, at least, fire protection.

The President's Message.

President Cleveland's message to the LIID Congress, assembled in extraordinary session, is comparatively brief. The message is special rather than general in its character, and is limited to the necessities of the financial situation. Mr. Cleveland insists upon the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law, and he attributes to it principally the ills with which the country is now threatened. The document in full reads as follows: To the Congress of the United States: The existence of an alarming and extraordinary business situation, involving the welfare and prosperity of all our people, has constrained me to call together in extra session the people's representatives in Congress, to the end that, through a wise and patriotic exercise of the legislative duty with which they are charged, present evils may be mitigated and dangers threatening the future may be averted.

Our unfortunate financial plight is not the result of untoward events nor of conditions related to our natural resources; nor is it traceable to any of the afflictions which frequently check national growth and prosperity. With plenteous crops, with abundant promise of remunerative production and manufacture, with unusual invitation to investment and with satisfactory assurance to business enterprise, suddenly financial distrust and fear have sprung up on every side. Numerous moneyed institutions have suspended because abundant assets were not immediately available to meet the demands of frightened depositors: surviving corporations and individuals are too content to keep in hand the money they are usually anxious to loan, and those engaged in legitimate business are surprised to find that the securities they offer for loans, though heretofore satisfactory, are no longer accepted. Values supposed to be fixed are fast becoming conjectural, and loss and failure have invaded every branch of business.

The Silver Purchase Law.

I believe these things are principally chargeable to Congressional legislation touching the purchase and coinage of silver by the general government. This legislation is embodied in a statute passed on the 15th of July, 1890, which was the culmination of much agitation on the subject involved, and which may be considered a truce, after the long struggle, between the advocates of free silver coinage and those intending to be more conservative. Undoubtedly the monthly purchases by the Government of 4,500,000 ounces of silver, forced under that statute, were regarded by those interested in silver production as a certain guaranty of its increase in price. The result, however, has been entirely different. Immediately following a spasmodic and slight rise the price of silver began to fall after the passage of the act, and has since reached the lowest point ever known. This disappointing result has led to renewed and persistent effort in the direction of free coinage.

Meanwhile, not only are the evil effects of the operation of the present law constantly accumulating, but the result to which its execution must inevitably lead is becoming palpable to all who give the least heed to financial subjects. This law provides that in payment for the 4,500,000 ounces of silver bullion which the Secretary of the Treasury is commanded to purchase monthly there shall be issued Treasury notes redeemable on demand in gold or silver coin, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Treasury, and that said notes may be redeemed, if it is, however, declared in the statement on account of the Secretary of the Treasury as to the policy of the United States to maintain the two metals upon a parity with each other upon the present legal ratio or such ratio as may be provided by law. This declaration so controls the action of the Secretary of the Treasury as to prevent his exercising the discretion nominally vested in him, if by such action the parity between gold and silver may be disturbed. Manifestly, if the Secretary of the Treasury is to purchase Treasury notes in gold, if demanded, would necessarily result in their discredit and depreciation, and would destroy the parity between the two metals by establishing a discrimination in favor of gold.

Drain Upon the Gold Reserve.

The policy necessarily adopted of paying these notes in gold has not spared the gold reserve of $100,000,000 long ago set aside by the Government for the redemption of other notes, for this fund has already been subjected to the payment of new obligations amounting to about $100,000,000 on account of silver purchases, and has, as a consequence, for the first time since its creation, been encroached upon.

Up to the 15th day of July, 1893, these notes had been issued in payment of silver bullion, purchased to the amount of more than $47,000,000. While all but a very small quantity of this bullion remains uncoined and without usefulness in the Treasury, many of the notes given in its purchase have been paid in gold. This is illustrated by the statement that between the 1st day of May, 1892, and the 15th day of July, 1893, the notes of this kind issued in payment for silver bullion amount to a little more than fifty-four millions of dollars, and that during the same period about forty-nine millions of dollars were paid by the Treasury in gold for the redemption of such notes.

Resulted in a Lack of Confidence.

The knowledge in business circles among our own people that our Government can not make its fiat equivalent to intrinsic value, nor keep inferior money on a parity with superior money by its own independent efforts, has resulted in such a lack of confidence at home as to shake the stability of currency values that capital refuses its aid to new enterprises while millions are actually withdrawn from the channels of trade and commerce to become idle and unproductive in the hands of timid owners. Foreign investors, equally alert, not only decline to purchase American securities, but make haste to sacrifice those which they already have. It does not meet the situation to say that apprehension in regard to the future of our finances is groundless, and that there is no reason for lack of confidence in the purposes or power of the Government in the premises. The very existence of this apprehension and lack of confidence, however caused, is a menace which ought not for a moment to be disregarded. Possibly if the undertaking we have in hand were the maintenance of a specific known quantity of silver at parity with gold, our ability to do so might be estimated and gauged, and perhaps, in view of our unparalleled growth and resources, might be favorably passed upon. But when our avowed endeavor is to maintain such parity in regard to an amount of silver increasing at the rate of fifty millions of dollars yearly, with the fixed termination to such increase, it can hardly be said that a problem is presented whose solution is free from doubt.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Best Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

The people of the United States are entitled to a sound and stable currency and to money recognized as such on every exchange, and in every market of the world. Their Government has no right to injure them by financial experiments opposed to the policy and practice of other civilized states, nor is it justified in permitting an exaggerated and unreasonable reliance on our national strength and ability to jeopardize the soundness of the paper money. This matter rises above the plane of party politics. It vitally concerns every business and calling and enters every household in the land.

Harmful Effects to the Wage-Earner.

There is one important aspect of the subject which especially should never be overlooked. At times like the present, when the evils of unsound finance threaten us, the speculative mind anticipates a harvest gathered from the misfortunes of others, the capitalist may protect himself by hoarding or may even find profit in the fluctuation of values; but the wage-earner—the man who is injured by a depreciated currency and the last to receive the benefits of its correction—is practically defenseless. He relies for work upon the ventures of confident and contented capital. This falling him, his condition is without alleviation for he can neither prey on the misfortunes of others nor hoard his labor. One of the greatest statements our country has known, speaking more than fifty years ago, on the day when they were uttered, and ought to impressively remind us that a failure in the discharge of our duty at this time must especially injure those of our countrymen who labor, and who, because of their number and condition, are entitled to the most watchful care of the Government.

It is of the utmost importance that such relief as Congress can afford in the existing situation be afforded at once. The maximum of our debt is now $1,000,000,000, and it is directly applicable. It may be true that the embarrassments from which the business of the country is suffering arise as much from evil legislation as from the war-torn conditions actually existing. We may hope, too, that calm counsels will prevail, and that neither the capitalists nor the wage-earners will give way to unreasoning panic and sacrifice their property or their interests under the influence of exaggerated fears. Nevertheless, every day's delay in removing one of the plain and principal causes of the present state of things enlarges the mischief already done and increases the responsibility of the Government for its existence.

Congress Invoked to Act Promptly.

Whatever else the people have a right to expect from Congress, they may certainly demand that legislation condemned by the ordeal of three years' disastrous experience shall be removed from the statute books as soon as their representatives can legitimately deal with it. It was my purpose to summon Congress in special session early in the coming September, that we might enter promptly upon the work of tariff reform, which the true interests of the country clearly demand, which so large a majority of the people, as shown by their suffrage, desire and expect, and to the accomplishment of which every effort of the present administration is pledged. But while tariff reform has lost nothing of its magnitude and importance, and must in the near future engage the attention of Congress, it is necessary to me that the financial condition of the country be dealt with at once, and before all other subjects be considered by your honorable body.

I earnestly recommend the prompt repeal of the provisions of the act passed July 14, 1890, authorizing the purchase of silver bullion, and that other legislative action may be taken to meet the emergency, and to fulfill its pecuniary obligations in money universally recognized by all civilized countries.

HUNTING IN OREGON AND IDAHO.

Dr. J. C. Leonard Tells of Hunting Bears, Elk, Deer, Grouse, Etc.

Dr. J. C. Leonard, of Idaho, has been sending the University museum a number of valuable specimens, animals, crystals, indian relics, etc. He writes very entertainingly to Major Harrison Soule and from one of his letters the following very interesting extract is taken:

"All hunting here is on horseback. The country is open, mountain gorges everywhere, but little timber, only in spots. By getting on top of a ridge, you look across a gulch and with glasses you can range 5,000 acres on the hillside sloping towards you. There may be a spring in the gulch with a snat of brush of two or three acres. By riding down to its edge and sending the dogs in, a bear, deer or elk is liable to run out and you have the whole side hill for 100 to 2,000 yards to shoot at him before he can make over the ridge. Should the bear turn on you, he will have to come down the hill and come up a steep hill 100 yards, in most cases, before he can reach you. So that you see with a good gun, he is at a disadvantage, and will die by the wayside. You don't want less than 45, 70 Winchester, as you will sometimes kill 800 yards.

I have a pair of Spanish mules, weight 650 lbs. each. They are daisies. I shoot from their backs. I also have a pair weighing 900 each. When I go for a trip I pack one and ride one. All will follow and jump logs and streams like elk and stay in camp like dogs. If they get frightened in the night at varmints, they run to camp and give the alarm, when the dogs run out and scare the varmints away.

When the mercury stands 100 in Boise Valley, I take the outfit, in August or September, and hie away in one day's ride to the high mountains and camp by a running stream or spring, set up my little tent and at early dawn, sit in the door and watch an old buck deer or elk who hears the bell on the mules and ventures down the mountain side to see what it is, or perhaps he goes for water, and I have killed many a one while sitting there and then, hurrah boys, we have meat for breakfast.

By way of a change we catch trout that weigh from four ounces to three pounds. Salmon trout weigh from 5 to 15 pounds. Remember, the high altitude is cool. No flies, gnats or mosquitoes, and it is cool enough to sleep with two or three pairs of blankets. The water is cool nearly like ice and the snow is four feet deep on the high cliffs, around the edge of which are mountain sheep, goats, elk, deer and bear. I am resting up here, as I have made over 2,000 miles this spring and my team was pretty tired. I shall start out in a few days and I think I will go to Nevada.

You ask the cost of a grizzly bear, panther, etc. A prime hide of a grizzly is worth $20 to $40. Panther hide probably $5 to $10. They are thick here on the De Schules river, about twenty miles from here. They measure from 7 to 12 feet from tip to tip.

You have the white tail deer in Michigan. They weigh from 75 to 125 lbs. They are a fleet, brisk little animal, but few of them in this country. We have the mule deer here, black tail, that weigh from 100 to 300 lbs. with the head cut off and intestines out. They are not fast runners but rather slow and the horns sometimes have 25 or 35 prongs.

The grizzly here is not so large as the California grizzly. They are the Rocky Mountain bald faced bear, weight from 700 to 1,200. The California grizzly weighs from 800 to 2,200 pounds. The largest grizzly on record was caught in a trap in Siskeyon county, California, in '58 and the parties advertised a bear and bull fight in Fort Jones, on the Fourth of July, '58. Three bulls were turned loose and made a dive for the bear. He gave a swipe at one and took the ribs clean out and caught the other by the horns like a man, and, giving his neck a twist, broke it. He threw his arm over the other's neck and commenced eating its nose. It was all done as quick as you can wink your eye. He killed the three bulls. They shot the bear and, to settle a bet about the weight, he was weighed and tipped the beam at 2,200 pounds. They kill cattle on the range and will kill and carry off a four-year-old steer with ease. They are not as active as a cinnamon or brown bear and are not as dangerous as the two latter, as they cannot climb trees, but they are fearless devils and will not give the road or trail.

You speak about killing ten or fifteen deer in three or four weeks' hunt. I have killed that many in a day. I can take you where you can kill 200 blue grouse in one day.

I like this kind of a life. I have spent 27 years in the profession, (dentistry), for the benefit of the public, but I am happier with my dogs, guns and my little pet mules, Juda and Piggie, away in the mountains, 100 miles from the habitation of man, where game is plenty and I am not annoyed with plug hat conventionalities of society.

Chelsea creditors look in vain for the familiar faces of quite a number of their debtors. The debtors have not left town; but, disguised in "smuggled" faces, they are there yet, seeking new credits, under new names.

It's turning out just about as we predicted—the women are growing very obstreperous, since becoming voters. Mrs. August Schneider, of Ann Arbor, has had her husband sent to the house of correction for 90 days, and has also begun a suit for divorce; and all in the world the man did to provoke these outrages, was to soak her awhile in scalding water. Newkirk, do you see what you've done?

At Bridgewater last week Mrs. Jacob Luckhardt looked hard at the empty pork barrel which she supposed was full, in the cellar. Some hog had hoisted the cellar gate and "swiped" every ounce of swine meat. Hark luck for Mrs. Luckhardt!

The latent incandescence, hanging around the university, even during vacation, recently ignited the coal in the bunkers, containing 3,000 tons, and only the prompt application of water and salt prevented the hottest time the university has had since the recent homeopathic unpleasantness.

A fakir at Milan defied the license and damned the local government; whereupon the marshal yanked him off his wagon and jerked him before a justice, who fined him $6 including costs, these together with the license which he then paid, amounting to $11. "The Lord loveth the cheerful giver."

Justice Bennett, of Ann Arbor, performed his first marriage ceremony the other day, and blushed as blue as an indigo bag, as he put the pair under bonds to keep the peace and fulfill the commandment given to our first parents. After they were gone, he wondered a little while whether he did just right in not kissing the bride, but he soon forgot about it, in the affectionate contemplation of the two round dollars, received as fees.

The Ann Arbor Argus says: "A crowd of Azalia hoodlums rotten egged a young woman from Dundee and drove her out of the hamlet." Now, we can clearly see trouble ahead, growing out of this affair. Azalia has been referred to as "a hamlet" by the Argus, and in the war that will come of it, the young woman with her fragrant wrongs will have time to change her perfume before she is thought of.

Hon. H. Wirt Newkirk, of Washtenaw, is by the ears, with the Saline Observer, over the Woman Suffrage law, and explains in the Dexter News, why the educational qualification was tacked to the bill. He affirms that it would not have passed without it. His statement however, that the women told him they "would submit to almost anything, to make a start towards woman suffrage," has the appearance of a breach of confidence.

A dirty, pusillanimous little ten-year-old George Washington, with his hatchet, has hacked a number of shade trees in Ann Arbor so badly that some of them will probably die. The boy was seen at his work, but escaped. To this journal it has always seemed a pity that the tree-hacking narrative of the father of his country was not suppressed. His pernicious example has cost the lives of untold thousands of beautiful trees.

Council was called to order by the Clerk. Roll called. Quorum present. Absent—Ald. Herz, Ferguson, Prettyman and Pres. Watts—4. On motion of Ald. Kitson, Ald. Manly was elected president pro tem. Chairman Manly assumed the chair and announced that the first order of business would be to hear the call read for this meeting: Following is the call: Wm. J. Miller, City Clerk: SIR—You will call a special meeting of the Common Council for this evening, August 9, at 8 o'clock, to consider the question of our present water supply with reference to fire protection. B. M. THOMPSON, Mayor. August 9, 1893. The call for special meeting having been read by the Clerk, the following communication from the Mayor was read: Ann Arbor, Aug. 9, 1893. To the Honorable the Common Council: GENTLEMEN: This city today is without any adequate fire protection. For a portion of each day during the past three weeks it has been wholly without protection from the water works. When we consider the danger from fire at this season of the year, at all times, and the present condition of the weather, and the additional fact that there is not a single fire-proof building in the city, the situation is full of alarm. You have now under consideration the condition and character of our water supply with reference to its quality for culinary purposes. The city ought to have an abundant supply of pure and wholesome water. Pure water is a prime necessity both from a financial and sanitary point of view. Foul water promotes neither good health nor immigration. Upon this view of the subject there is no occasion to dwell, nor need I make any suggestion, since you have already taken prompt and efficient action in the matter. I think it is agreed among all those who are familiar with the situation that the main reservoir is in as good a condition today as it can be put in until it is paved. In my judgement, we ought not to order it paved now and thus assume the increased fire risk involved. I am informed by the water company that if the use of water for sprinkling is discontinued for three days that the company can fill the reservoir full. If this can be done, it should be done, for then we shall have immediately ample fire protection. As soon as the reservoir is filled, then the water in the catch basins can be drawn off and those basins thoroughly cleansed without impairing or endangering our fire protection. I therefore recommend that the water company be requested to fill the main reservoir immediately; that all water consumers in the city be prohibited from using water for sprinkling for the next three days; and that the water company be requested to turn off the water from any consumer who violates that order and to keep it turned off until the end of said three days; that all persons who are using water for power purposes, who can do so without serious injury do so, for three days, and that all our citizens be urged to be as economical as possible in the use of water during that period. B. M. THOMPSON, Mayor. Ald. Wagner moved that the message be received and placed on file. Adopted. After several hours of discussion by the Mayor, Aldermen and citizens, on motion of Ald. Martin, the Council adjourned to meet tomorrow evening, August 10th. W. J. MILLER, City Clerk. Sufferers from Piles should know that the Pyramid Pile Cure will promptly and effectually remove every trace of them. Any druggist will get it for you. Why? Why is Strictly Pure White Lead the best paint? Because it will outlast all other paints, give a handsome finish, better protection to the wood, and the first cost will be less. If Barytes and other adulterants of white lead are "just as good" as Strictly Pure White Lead, why are all the adulterated white leads always branded Pure, or "Strictly Pure White Lead?" This Barytes is a heavy white powder (ground stone), having the appearance of white lead, worthless as a paint, costing only about a cent a pound, and is only used to cheapen the mixture. What shoddy is to cloth, Barytes is to paint. Be careful to use only old and standard brands of white lead. "Armstrong & McKelvy" "Beymer-Bauman" "Eckstein" "Fahnestock" "Anchor" "Kentucky" "Morley" "Southern" "Shipman" "Red Seal" "Collier" "Davis-Chambers" are strictly pure, "Old Dutch" process brands, established by a lifetime of use. For colors use National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors with Strictly Pure White Lead. For sale by the most reliable dealers in paints everywhere.
