Alfred N. Chandler, of the J. A. Brill Car Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, was in the city last Friday, and looked over the street car plant of this city, together with the franchises of Samuel Nesmith, between here and Tecumseh, partially with a view to taking hold of the matter that has so long been agitated in our midst, with a view to bringing it to a successful issue.

Mr. Chandler, after looking over the plant here, and studying the possibilities of its improvement, took a short trip towards Tecumseh, going over the proposed route of the inter-urban connection. He then came back to Adrian, and left here Friday night for Detroit, where he attended a meeting of the board of and Mr. Chandler, although non-

Then remember, that Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures.

All we ask is, that in taking Hood's Sarsaparilla you will do so with perseverance equalling or approaching the tenacity with which your complaint has clung to you. It takes time and care to eradicate old and deep-seated maladies, particularly when they have been so long hidden in the system that they have become chronic. AGUE CAKE.

Enlargement of the Spleen Caused by Chronic Catarrh.

People who have been much afflicted with malaria or fever and ague are very liable to have a full ness or enlargement of the left side ust under the ribs. This is commonly called in malarious districts The Milan I. O. O. F.'s played base ball against the Dexter I. O. O. F.'s at ague cake. This fullness is due to enlargement of the spleen, caused by the malaria. The enlarged spleen presses against the heart above, causing pa'pitation of the heart and shortness of breath. It also presses against the stomach and bowels, causing disturbed digestion, bloating, constipation, gurgling in left side, and a formation of great quantities of gas. As long as there is a particle of the malarial poison left in the system, not only will the ague cake continue to disturb the function of the other organs, but the enlarged of Kentucky, accuse --- of the offense organ tends to perpetuate the poison in the system.

It seems to be a settled fact that Peruna is the most reliable, if not the only, remedy that can be relied on to cleanse the system in cases of chronic malaria. It never fails to bring relief to these disagreeable symptoms, and if a regular course of Pe-ru-na is taken it does not fail to permanently cure.

In order to furnish the public a complete knowledge of the effect of Pe-ru-na in old cases of chronic malaria The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio, have published an illustrated pamphlet on chronic malaria, which will be sent free to any address.

The Grap.

An experience with this disease during all its past epidemics, warrants the bold claim that Dr. King's New Discorery will positively cure each and every case if taken in time, and the patient takes the ordinary care to avoid expo-sure. Another thing has been proven, that those who have used Dr. King's New Discovery escape the many troublesome after results of this disease. By all means get a bottle and try it. It is guaranteed, and money will be refunded if no good results follow its use. Sold at Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co.'s drug store. Ann Arbor, and at Geo J. Haeussler's drug store, Manchester.

HOW TO MAKE COFFEE

THERE ARE MANY WAYS, AND CON NOISSEURS DIFFER IN TASTES.

Not Widely Used or Known.

wandering breeze of the delicious, in-spiring fragrance? Every cup of coffee that is drunk should smell and taste.

"Iliad," speaks of fishing in these lines: As bearing death in the fallacious bait, From the bent angle sinks the leaden weight. that is drunk should smell and taste just like that fragrant odor, which was the veritable soul of the berry seeking to escape from its transmutation into liquid. Unless you can arrest that slippery sylph of opulent fragrance or prevent the entire escape from your coffeepot before serving you are no expert,

The amount of badly made coffee that is inflicted on the public is simply enormous. One connoisseur says that there are not 20 places in New York, ontside on his hook, which he with fervor drew of private houses, where a first rate cup of coffee can be counted on. Another man about town says this is a gross exaggeration, declaring that no man is sure of a fine cup of coffee in more than half a dozen places in this city. Coffee, to be fit for civilized drinking, should be made, he asserts, on the principle of the cave man to the elegant accessories "little and often." Size in art is of all sizes, and bulk in coffee making runs the risk of a dreadful discount in the appreciation of the learned.

The best kind of coffeepot is one that has a filter. They can be had of many sizes and shapes, all the way from simplicity to an extreme of elegance. To secure a good infusion quickly the ground coffee should be placed in the cylinder on top of the coffeepot, the of the coffee, and the boiling water should be poured over so that the infuvery hot water, so that the infusion may keep a high degree of heat without allowing it to boil. Boiling is the spoiling of coffee.

If you are making coffee for a good many, take 11/2 pounds of Java, 11/2 of Maracaibo, a pound of Mocha and 7 gallons of water. The Mocha, which is meant for the aroma or bouquet, should have been but slightly roasted; the Maracaibo, which is for color, should be well roasted, and the Java, which is for body and effect, should be roasted just between the two.

Cafe a la Turque is made in a peculiar way and only appreciated by peculiar people. The recipe for its composition is this: Take Java and Mocha in equal proportions; grind and pass through a very fine sieve. Put ordinary black coffee, as many cups as needed, in a coffeepot, and for each cup add a tea-spoonful of the sifted coffee and a lump of sugar. Boil this for two minutes; then take it off and pour in a little cold water to settle it. After it has stood a few minutes serve it with powdered

Iced coffee, in New York style, is merely cafe noir that has been cooled in a china freezer by placing ice around it, slightly salted. For what is called mixed coffee a pint of milk, a gill of cream, a gill of sirup and a quart of black coffee subjected to the same cooling process and served when just this side of freezing is considered a proper caper by all who are not real coffee

Brandy coffee is prepared by some in the same way-a gill of brandy and 6 ounces of sugar to the quart of coffee taking the place of the other ingredients. But brandy coffee to most persons means a cup of cafe noir, over which a spoonful of brandy, poured on a lump of sugar, has been burnt. Just as the blue fringed golden flame is expiring the spoon should slip into the coffee, and after one deft stir the contents of the cup should glide down the gladdened throat.

A sherbet of coffee is quite fashionable now and quite delicious if properly made. To a quart of coffee add a quart of double cream and 12 ounces of sugar, and if you wish to be very chic add a few drops of vanilla essence. Then put this in a freezer with salted ice surrounding, keep the sides free as fast as the ice begins to cling, and when it has reached congelation serve in glasses.

Another fashion of coffee drinking, which was first introduced into this country by the Mexicans at the New Orleans exposition 10 years ago, and which is held in high esteem by some bon vivants, is to make coffee in the French way without boiling and then mix it with the very richest chocolate, half and half, or one to two, or two to one, the second proportion being perhaps the most frequent. This is to be served with whipped cream topped with a little sugar dust. The Mexicans used to use the Soconosco chocolate, which is made with a cinnamon addition and is rich beyond description.

In spite of the injunction about gilding refined gold or painting the lily, restless humanity has attempted to improve on coffee in worse ways than by marrying it to chocolate. For instance, take cafe an Kirsch, which is made by shaking up black coffee, cracked ice and Kirsch wasser in proportions to suit the taste. By devotees of the benign Arabian berry this is considered a profanation and eschewed accordingly, but for physical and mental depression, if one s not a habitual coffee drinker, it is a pick me up of rare potency.

Coffee is not a food, but a stimulant and an antidote against some kinds of poisoning. Its excessive use produces a trembling of the hands and a disease of the optic nerves. To keep one awake and to help one endure fatigue or exposure to rough weather there is probably no equal to coffee, except possibly the cacao plant of the Peruvians. Coffee and tobacco-which we owe to the Arab and the Indian—are the heavenly twins in the eyes of every true bohemian. But, like all blessings, they may become a curse. - New York World

ANTIQUITY OF FISHING.

How the Fair Cleopatra Fooled Antony

The art of angling no doubt had its origin in man's necessities. The earliest record of mankind makes reference to A Delicious Berry That Is Much Abused by the taking of fish for food. There are American Cooks Who Do Not Know It frequent allusions to it in the Bible. Possibilities—Some Recipes Which Are Job, in the oldest book of all, says: 'Canst thou draw out a leviathan with a hook, or his tongue with a cord which Have you ever passed a place where 3 thou lettest down? Canst thou put a person was making coffee and inhaled a hook in his nose?" Homer, in the

And it is recorded in the Odyssey: As when the angler, his long rod in hand, On a projecting rock assumes his stand, Casts to the fiery fry the baited snare, Then flings the wriggling captives in the air.

The Romans, Greeks and other races of early days around the Mediterranean practiced the art of angling. Plutarch tells of a prank played by the fair Egyptian, Cleopatra, while out fishing with Antony, "They wagered on their angling, and her divers did hang a salt fish

The ruined walls of Herculaneum and Pompeii abound in frescoes of fishermen. All along the track of history are found traces of this gentle recreation, showing the gradual improvement from the hook of bone and rude equipment of the cave man to the elegant accessories St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Growing Rubber Trees.

From time to time articles are printed in the daily and other press discoursing upon the advantage to be gained in the cultivation of india rubber. One advantage would be in the respect that the rubber tree does not grow in orchards er groves, but generally isolated, sometimes not more than four or five being within the distance of a mile. It is urged that if they could be cultivated in groups the labor could be more advantageously handled. Rubber growing requires a hot, moist climate, and the trees cannot be grown elsewhere. The annual rainfall on the Amazon is about vigorous blasts on his whistle. 140 inches against one-quarter of that as a rule, every day. The temperature being about 90. MONSTER OF ISSOIR.

MYSTERY OF THE FOURTEENTH AR-RONDISSEMENT OF PARIS.

Singular Disappearance of Many Inhabitants of the Quarter-Enticing Its Victims With Music-Death of the Gigantic For many years it is undeniably stated that in the fourteenth arrondissement of Paris-called the tomb of Issoir -a number of persons living in that quarter had mysteriously and periodically disappeared. The most careful researches, the most minute inquiries, the most skillful agents of the police had failed to discover the least trace of them.

Every year successively some inhabitants of this quarter would suddenly disappear, leaving their friends overwhelmed with grief and anxiety. It is also stated that these strange, inexplicable facts always occurred in the early spring-from the 20th to the last of March—and without regard to age or

First a notary disappeared. It was thought he had used his client's funds and fied to parts unknown. Then an old woman, returning late one night from market, was the next victim, then a laborer going home from work. The last victim had been a young girl—a flower maker out late delivering her goods. From that time she had as completely disappeared as if the earth had opened and swallowed her up. Strange to say, no children had been among the vic-

As the time was drawing near for one stituted a strict surveillance, confiding bined efforts of so many zealous agents would surely be crowned with success. You will now see the result.

One night—this fact can be verified by applying to the office of the prefecture-a policeman about 3 o'clock in the 'first English course' had been used to morning heard a distant musical song, which seemed to come from the bowels of the earth. He listened and fancied the sounds came from an opening in the enormous rock called the tomb of Issoir, or the Giant's cave.

It may be interesting to state that this that a great giant had been buried there many years before the Christian era, and this rock had been placed there to mark the tomb.

Surprised at this strange discoveryfor the opening had never been noticed before—the policeman waited, listening to this peculiar song, when he suddenly saw a young man approaching. He knew from his costume that he was a countryman lately arrived in the city. This young man also seemed to hear the subterranean sounds, first walking slowly with a peculiar wavering step, as if in cadence with this musical chant, then faster and faster as he drew near the fatal rock, until he ran with such velocity that in spite of the warning cries of the policeman he was swallowed up in this mysterious opening. The countryman was lying on his back writhing in the grasp of an unknown monster, whose horrible aspect froze the agents of police with terror.

It was as large as a full grown terrier, covered with wartlike protuberances and bristling with coarse brownish hair. Nothing could be seen but the top of the head, and the monster was now engaged in tearing and sucking the blood from his

A MYSTERIOUS CONVICT.

He Conceals His Identity, but Not His Brilliant Accomplishments.

"Who is Hogan?" is a question which has troubled prison officers at the southern Illinois penitentiary for years. Hogan is the brightest convict, intellectually, in the prison and and is one of the most valuable because of his versa tility. Interest in Hogan has increased materially since Governor Altgeld, a few days ago, commuted his sentence from 48 to 21 years, and on next Christmas eve Hogan will transplant his talents to more congenial surroundings.

Thomas Hogan, "Peggy" Ryan and a man named Pritchard were beating their way across the country in 1878 and one day in September they boarded B Chicago and Alton freight train in Greene county, near Carrollton, and found everal other tramps in posses sion. A fight ensued During the meles one of the tramps was thrown from o fell off the train and was killed Hogan Ryan and Pritchard were arrested for murder They were quickly amposed of at the rate of 48 years each in the peni tentiary

The prison officers soon recognized Hogan's superior talents and placed him where he could render valuable service. He took a deep and intelligent interest in every duty assigned to him and was very quiet, orderly and neat in everything he did. He never gave up a word as to his parents, relatives or home. He never wrote a letter, except one his lawyer, or received one, but it is confidently believed that Hogan is highly connected. He is a college graduate.

Said Warden Baker speaking of Hogan: "Do we want a translation from the Greek or Latin inscription, Hogan does it. If any piece of copy is to be does it. If any piece of copy is to be ! written in a copper plate hand. Hogan does it in the most elegant manner. If we require a trial balance mach Hogan makes it. He is filled with accrate intormation upon all sorts of subjects and makes all kinds of calculations with ease, yet he never volunteers to say a word unless asked. He appears to be contented and applies himself diligently to his duties. He is one of the best pris oners we have."

A correspondent met Hogan in the office the other day and was greeted by a cordial handshake. "Yes, I am very glad I am going out," he said. "I have been here 21 years and am anxious for a change. I have had some very warm friends here during that time among the officers, whom I shall be pleased to see again." And he led the conversation away from himself as if he wished to avoid it. - Chicago Correspondent.

A COAT OF IRON RODS.

It Is Bullet Proof and May Revolutionize Heavy Armor Plating.

I have been stimulated by the recent trials of the bullet proof cuirass to try a few experiments on the subject. I will only mention one experiment, which I made this morning, assisted by several members of the Junior Scientific club here. It occurred to me that, if the energy of the bullet could be made to act at rather a large angle to its line of flight, its penetrating power would be diminished.

To effect this I arranged a number of soft iron rods one-quarter inch in diameter and 5 inches long side by side and touching a piece of deal board. On these another layer was placed, so that one of the upper rods touched two of the under ones. A sheet of thin rubber one-sixteenth of an inch thick placed on this separated it from a similar combination At this signal several of his comrades attached to it at right angles, and the

The rifle used was a winchester, 22 bore, carrying a long bullet. At a distance of 20 feet the bullet penetrated five inches of hard pine with certainty, but when the bullet, fired at the same distance, hit my rod target it failed to penetrate even the first layer, but only drove the upper rods aside nearly at right angles to the line of flight. The next experiments will be made with heavier materials and larger shot. Possibly a similar arrangement, but of large steel cylinders, might make a satisfactory barrier to the shots of big guns. -F J Smith in London Nature.

Republicans are very indignant at the nomination of Barkworth. But what is their bark worth?

Our republican chronic grumblers say the new tariff law is badly punctuated. Possibly. But the Mc-Kinley law is badly punctured and its the puncture rather than punctuation, that disturbs the political orthography of the protection howlers .- Adrian Press.

Republican organs continue to agonize over the reduction of wages which is the result (in the sweet by and by) from the new tariff act. How soon this agony might be terminated, and the question settled once for all, and, no doubt, to the entire satisfaction of all laboringmen, would those manufacturers who voluntarily raised wages after the passage of the McKinley act, reduce them now and no others.

Thus far no mistakes have been made and none will be made. The nominations from governor to coroner are of excellent character and there can be no reason why any democrat should vote against any candidate on his ticket on the ground of personal unfitness or lack of abil-

Gen. George Spaulding has been seeking a chance to run for congress for twenty years. His friends have always claimed that he was a great runner. Well, Tom Barkworth has been nominated just one day, and already the dust is settling in the eyes of the Monroe longseeker. Little joy is he wished in his race by James O'Donnell and A. J. Sawyer and Ed. P. Allen. He is all but left at the post, and will never reach even the distance pole.-Free Press.

Even the cloud-capped granite hills of Vermont have succumbed to the under wash of the republican party and tumbled to a republican victory. What! Vermont gone republican? Now the gods forefend! Sdeath! However, since Vermont has been carried by the republicans for the last thirty-five years, perhaps it is just as well not to salt her down with many tears, but in the language of the poet, "Let her rip." Meanwhile let our republican friends who are hugging themselves over Vermont and Maine, turn their eyeballs toward Arkansas and Alabama. Gentlemen, do you see any breach in the foundation or superstructure of the rock-ribbed, mountain-buttressed democracy of those states?

There are just now in sight two local and purely selfish issues of such a nature as will no doubt suggest to republicans the possibility of trading promised national legislation which would defraud the people, for votes whereby the g. o. p. may be re.established in control at Washington. The philanthropic sugar producers of Louisiana will make that state republican for the consideration of a bounty on sugar, and the wavering mining camps of the west will stay in the republican fold, provided they are promised legislation which will give them two prices for their product. The republicans being no theorists in this kind of legislation, having had thirty years' experience in such bargaining at the people's expense, the necessary promises will no doubt be forthcoming.

Castoria is truly a marvelous thing for children. Doctors prescribe it, medical journuls recommend it and more than a million mothers are using it in place of Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, so called soothing syrups and other narcotic and stupifying remedies. Castoria is the quickest thing to regulate the stomach and bowels and give healthy sleep the world has ever seen. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mother's friend.

Fluttering, No Appetite, Could not Sleep, Wind on Stomach.

"For a long time I had a terrible pain at my heart, which fluttered almost incessantly. I had no appetite and could not sleep. I would be compelled to sit up in bed and belch gas from my stomach until I thought every minute would be my last. There was a feeling of oppression about my heart, and I was afraid to draw a full breath. I could not sweep a room without resting. My husband induced me to try

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and am happy to say it has cured me. I now have a splendid appetite and sleep well. Its effect was truly mar-

Sec. 61. Any nonresidents.

Sec. 61. Any nonresident may also receive the benefit of the exemptions hereinbefore provided for by filing with the deputy collector of any district a true list of all his property and source of in one in the United States, and complying with the provisions of section 29 of this act, as if a resident. In computing income he shall include all income from every source, but unless he be a citizen of the United States he shall only pay on that part of the income which is derived from any source in the United States. In case such nonresident fails to file such statement, the collector of each district shall collect the tax on the income derived from property situated in his district subject to income tax, making no allowance for exemptions, and all property belonging to such nonresident shall be liable to distraint for tax; Provided, that nonresident corporations shall be subject to the same laws as to tax as resident corporations, and the collection of the tax shall be made in the same manner as provided for collections of taxes against nonresident persons.

ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS.

The following additional requirements of revenue law are of importance:

Internal Revenue Stamps.

Internal Revenue Stamps.

It shall be the duty of every collector of internal revenue, to whom any payment of any taxes other than the tax represented by an adhesive stamp or other engraved stamp is made under the provisions of this act, to give to the person making such payment a full written or printed receipt, expressing the amount paid and the particular account for which such payment was made, and whenever such payment is made such collector shall, if rement is made such collector shall, if re-quired, give a separate receipt for each tax paid by any debtor, on account of payments made to or to be made by him to separate creditors, in such form that such debtor can conveniently produce the same sep-arately to his several creditors in satisfaction of their respective demands to the amounts specified in such receipts; and such receipts shall be sufficient evidence in favor of such debtor, to justify him in withholding the amount therein expressed from his next payment to his creditor, but such creditor may, upon giving to his debtor a full, written re-ceipt, acknowledging the payment to him of whatever sum may be actually paid, and accepting the amount of tax paid as aforesaid (specifying the same), as a further satisfaction of the debt to that amount, require the surrender to him of such collector's receipt.

Playing Cards.

On and after Aug. 1, 1894, there shall be levied, collected and paid, by adhesive stamps, a tax of 2 cents for and upon every pack of playing cards containing not more than 54 cards, manufactured and sold or removed, and also upon every pack in the stock of any dealer on and after that date, and the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, shall make regulations as to dies and adhesive stamps.

Goods Made by Convict Labor.

All goods, wares, articles and merchandise manufactured wholly or in part in any foreign country by convict labor shall not be entitled to entry at any of the ports of the United States, and the importation thereof is hereby prohibited, and the secretary of the treasury is authorized to prescribe such regulations as may be necessary for the enforcement of this provision.

Imports of Cigars.

Imports of Cigars,

Sec. 2,804 of the revised statutes is amended so as to read:
"Sec. 2,804. No cigars shall be imported unless the same are packed in boxes of not more than 500 cigars in each box, and no entry of imported cigars shall be allowed of less quantity than 3,000 in a single package, and all cigars on importation shall be placed in public store or bonded warehouse, and shall not be removed therefrom until the same shall have been inspected and a stamp affixed to each box indicating such inspection, and also a serial number to be recorded in the custom house. And the secretary of the treasury is hereby authorized to provide the requisite stamps, and to make all necessary regulations for carrying the above provisions of the law into effect." Sec. 2,804 of the revised statutes is amended

Value of Foreign Coins.

Value of Foreign Coins.

The value of foreign coins as expressed in the money of account of the United States shall be that of the pure metal of such coin of standard value, and the values of the standard coins in circulation of the various nations of the world shall be estimated quarterly by the director of the mint, and be proclaimed by the secretary of the treasury immediately after the passage of this act, and thereafter quarterly on the 1st day of January, April, July and October in each year. And the values so proclaimed shall be followed in estimating the value of all foreign merchandise exported to the United States during the quarter for which the value is proclaimed, and the date of the consular certification of any invoice shall, for the purposes of this section, be considered the date of exportation, provided that the secretary of the treasury may order the reliquidation of any entry at a different value whenever satisfactory evidence shall be produced to him showing that the value in United States currency of the foreign money specified in the invoice was at the date of certification at least 10 per cent more or less than the value proclaimed during the quarter in which the consular certification occurred.

CHANCE AND CHANGE.

CHANCE AND CHANGE.

Two for one that there used to bel For there's many a day Twixt May and May,

And many a change in a year!" said she. "And there was a girl 'neath your roof last year. Good neighbor, tell me now," he said. "Does her foot fall light in the cottage near, Or is she wooed and is she wed?"

She lies apart
With a pulseless heart,
A broken heart, 'neath the red rose tree!
For there's many a day
'Twixt May and May,

And many a change in a year!" said she.

CHAPTER V.

After that momentous interview I presented myself to my astonished relatives. These were two lovable old maids. sisters of my mother, who had passed the best part of their existence in the Cathedral square of Marshminster. They knew everybody and all about everybody and pottered through life with the assistance of a comfortable income which they shared in common, a trifle of gossip and a series of afternoon teas. At the daily services of the cathedral they were always to be seen and were intimately acquainted with the dean and chapter. Even the bishop condescended to take tea with them on occasions, and they held their heads high in consequence. Moreover, they loved me greatly, though I was but a graceless nephew to the good souls.

When I made my appearance, the Misses Durrant received me with open arms. They had not expected me till much later in the month, but had already prepared for my reception. My portmanteau, which I had ordered to be sent down from London, had arrived, the bedding of my room was thoroughly well aired, and Rachel, their handmaiden, spread for me a sumptuous meal. When I washed and clothed myse f anew, I made an excellent meal, for the long tramp from the Fen inn made me hungry. I then sat down for a chat and a smoke.

"I think he may, Jane," hinted Sophia gently.

"If he sits near the open window, Sophia," was the firm reply, whereupon, this little comedy having been gone through, as usual, I produced my pipe and took my appointed station. Thus settled, I made inquiries about Bellin Hall and its inmates.

"I see you have the London beauty down here, aunt."

"Olivia Bellin," said they both in a breath and then sighed.

"Is there anything to mourn about, Aunt Jane?" I asked, pricking up my ears for useful information which I knew these gossips could supply. "Ah," sighed Aunt Jane, folding her withered hands, "who knows the wickedness of the heart?" "Olivia's heart."

"Dear me, no, Lionel," said Aunt the dead man by means of the pearl -as good as she is lovely-and not so lady, with feminine spite.

"Then to whose heart do you allude?"

Jane?" "Yes, Sophia. That hussy with the

"Was seen speaking to him in the cathedral by Bishop Jevon's tomb." "And he seemed very intimate with

"Still, Jane, he was glad when she left Marshminster."

"Rather relieved, I think, Sophia." "And poor Olivia Bellin knew nothing about his wickedness," they concluded together. My heart beat rapidly. In this idle talk I saw a link which would bind Felix Briarfield to the girl at the Fen inn. "Was she a pretty girl?" I asked with well simulated carelessness." "Handsome is as handsome does," snorted Aunt Jane, who was remarkably plain herself. Sure, sister, she was not ill looking," said the gentler Sophia, who had been a toast in her youth. "She had a good figure and dark hair and eyes. I admired her complexion, Jane. It was like cream and a dimple here," finished Sophia, touching her chin. "A.pretty, pretty dimple."

"Sophia!" "Well, it was a pretty dimple, Jane, No one can deny that."

In this description I espied Rose Strent, especially as regards the dimple. I had noticed it myself. Evidently there was an understanding between this woman and Felix which had led her to with her father, if indeed the landlord was her father—a fact I was beginning to doubt. I set the garrulous ladies off on another tack.

'Do you know anything about the Fen inn, Aunt Jane?"

'The lone inn, child? Never name so base a scoundrel. it! In my youth it was the scene of a terrible murder, and since that time no one has lived in it save one man."

"It is now in ruins," said Sophia, with bated breath, "and is said to be haunted."

"Does any one go near it?"

"No one. I don't think there is a body you speak of." man in the country who would venture near the lone inn after dark. Two years arfield." ago a stranger refurnished and repaired it, but he did not stay longer than a week."

"What became of him?"

"He disappeared," said Aunt Sophia, nodding her head solemnly, "vanished altogether. It was supposed that he ing. was drowned in the marshes. The house goes near it. " 'What about the landlord?"

"It's in chancery," said Aunt Jane wisely. "It has no landlord."

After this discussion I went to bed with plenty to think about. I saw well house for a certain purpose. That pur- boldly. pose was, I verily believed, to encompass that it was accomplished they disappeared. As Aunt Sophia said, the furniture of the former proprietor was still there, so a touch or two had rendered the house habitable. This accounted for their unwillingness to receive me as a guest and for the mildewed aspect of the rooms which had struck me so forcibly. A second tragedy had accentuated the evil reputation of the house. But, while the first tragedy was known to all, the second was known only to myself and to-Felix Briarfield.

I felt certain that he was connected in some way with the unexpected death of his brother. Francis had been lured to that lonely inn for the purpose of being murdered, and the crime had been accomplished by Strent and his daughter. So far as I knew, Felix had not been near the house on the night in question, yet he was without doubt morally guilty of the crime. Olivia, believing him to be her lover Francis, did not place much faith in my story, but surely, when she was convinced by the sight of the dead body and I had torn the mask from the face of Felix, she would let me deal with him as he deserved.

Next morning I was up betimes, and telling my aunts I would not be back till late went round to the sole livery stables possessed by Marshminster. These were kept by Bob Fundy, a bow legged little man, who had been a jockey in his youthful days and who was a great friend of mine. He expressed great joy at my reappearance in Marshminster and mounted me on the best of his steeds. I was in too great a hurry to exchange more than a few words with the genial old fellow and set out at once for Bellin Hall. Later on I regretted my haste, as a few words of explanation from Fundy would have saved me much money and a long journey.

At 10 o'clock I was at the park gates, but Felix and Olivia had not yet put in an appearance. I intended to denounce Felix as a murderer in the presence of his brother's dead body and to tell Miss Bellin of his friendship with Rose Strent. Jealousy, if nothing else, might make her guess the truth and prevent Felix carrying on the shameless imposture in which he now indulged so insolently. Once I proved the identity of Sophia scandalized. "She is a good girl ring, which Olivia would recognize, I hoped to make short work of the pretensilly as her mother," concluded the old sions of Felix. It was a difficult task, but I was now seized with what is known as detective fever and determin-This question started a duet between ed to run the assassin to earth. His name, I firmly believed, was Edward Strent and that Felix was an accomplice. It was questionable whether Rose Strent had taken any active part in the commission of the crime.

some couple, and I sighed to think how the outward appearance of Felix belied his foul spirit. Olivia looked remarkably beautiful and managed her horse to perfection As they drew near I noticed their haggard looks, as though they had passed the night without sleep, and taking up her quarters in the Fen inn again the thought flashed through my mind that there might be an understanding between them.

But, however much Olivia knew, I felt sure she was ignorant that Francis had been done to death by his brother, else even she would have recoiled from

"I am absolutely certain of it. 'What about this?" interposed Felix, reining up his horse and handing in a telegram. "Olivia received it this morn-

I vouchsafed no reply to this witticism, which I judged to be in bad taste, but rode on rapidly. By this time we had left the town far behind and were some way on the winding road which crossed the marshes. Miss Bellin evidently did not desire to talk, for she pushed forward well in front, and as Felix also relapsed into silence we rode on smartly without uttering a word. A more dismal riding party I never saw. The keen wind brought a touch of color into the pale cheeks of Olivia, but she | The English Bird Is Not Even a Favorite In had dark circles under her eyes and looked considerably worried. Felix rode by her side and addressed her every now and then, but I was too far in the rear to know what they said. I felt anything but comfortable while in their company, as they regarded me with great dis-

"Never mind," I thought, touching my horse with the whip. "Once I bring Felix face to face with his dead brother, and he will be forced to abandon these airs. At whatever cost, I must tear the mask off him, if only for the sake of that poor girl, who believes so firmly in such a villain." There was no change in the appearance of the Fen inn as we rode up to it save that it looked more ruinous than ever. The solitary building had a sinister aspect, and even in the bright sunshine hinted at secret murder. I noticed how thick grew the grass around the house, thereby marking more strongly its desertion and desolation. Sure enough, it had not been inhabited for a considerable period, and this fact alone roused my suspicions as to the motives of Strent and his daughter. They could have no good design in staying in so haggard a dwelling.

"You see, the inn is a ruin," said Olivia, pointing toward it with her riding whip. "No one could find shelter there even for one night."

"I did, Miss Bellin." "It was a dream," she answered—"an idle dream. You may have slept there, but you never met Francis within its

"We are on a fool's errand," said Felix derisively. "I thought so all along." "Come and see," I said, dismounting at the door of the inn. "He laughs best who laughs last."

It seemed to me that Olivia made as though to turn her horse's head away from the house, but by this time the hand of Felix was already on the bridle rein, and she suppressed the momentary inclination to flee. The action revived my suspicions. With a half sigh she Mamounted with the aid of Felix, and we entered the house.

All was as I had left it. The blinds were down, the room mildewed and desskirts closely round her and shuddered. Here the door had fallen down, and we with their mouths crammed full of walked on it into the room. To my surprise, the bed was empty.

The strain on her At a recent session a prisoner was innerves was very great, and now that the dicted for pocket picking, and to most climax was reached she broke down utterly. Felix took her in his arms and soothed her as he best could, while I, utterly bewildered by the turn events had taken, carefully searched the room. All was in vain. I could find neither body nor clothes nor aught pertaining to Francis Briarfield. I began to think to myself that I must be dreaming. But that was out of the question. The only conclusion I could come to was that Strent had watched me leave the house and then returned to make away with the body. Without doubt it was Strent | impatient. who had slain my unfortunate friend and now had hidden the corpse in some

"We are going back to Marshminster," said Felix, gathering up his reins. "Thanks to this wild goose chase, Miss Bellin is quite ill. I trust now, sir, that you are convinced."

"I am not convinced that you are Francis," I answered doggedly. "You still think I am Felix?" he asked, with a sneer.

"I do, notwithstanding the disappearance of the body, which has been made away with by Strent. I firmly believe that Francis is dead and that you are

"For what reason?" "I go to seek Felix. You say he is in Paris. I say he is now before me on that horse. You came to the Fen inn and found nobody, Miss Bellin. I go to Paris-to the Hotel des Etrangers-and I'll wager that I shall find no Felix."

After the extraordinary experiences I had undergone I began to think there might be something in what he said. Nevertheless I desermined for my own satisfaction to go to Paris and see if Felix Briarfield was at the Hotel des Etrangers. If he were not, then my suspicions might prove to be correct, but if he were then I might believe that my adventure at the inn was a dream.

TOO MANY SPARROWS.

His Own Home.

It appears that the detested English sparrow is by no means a general favorite in his own home across the water, where his habits have been more carefully noted. In the course of his paper on "Wild Birds, Useful and Injurious," in the Royal Agricultural society's journal, Mr. C. F. Archibald says: "The sparrow has received an overflowing measure of abuse from farmers and gardeners, and, notwithstanding all that has been urged in its favor by enthusiastic advocates, there can be little doubt that it deserves a large share of the vituperation bestowed upon it. The keynote to the sparrow's character is to be found in the delusion under which it labors that corn growing is carried on for its especial benefit. Grain is undoubtedly the mainstay of the sparrow. This it obtains in the fields at seedtime, when sprouting, in the unripe, milky condition, and when fully matured. At this last named period a quantity of grain is wasted by being shaken out on the ground by the birds, in addition to the amount actually consumed. At this time, too, numbers of sparrows which live for the greater part of the year in their grimy appearance proclaiming their usual haunts.

"In gardens the sparrow finds full scope for its destructive propensities in devouring peas, of which it is very fond, as well as a few gooseberries and cherries. In the most mischievous way, too, it pulls to pieces the flowers of the crocus, dahlia, primrose, polyanthus, hepatica, heartsease, wistaria, the shoots of pinks and carnations, the pods of the laburnum and the blossom of fruit trees. It also does considerable damage to beds of young radishes and lettuces, besides levying toll on the grass seeds sown on lawns. On the other hand, it must be freely admitted that the sparrow does a great deal of good.

"Among the pests destroyed by the sparrows are wireworms, daddy long-the form peas and beans," William Babbutt, Judge of Probate. Webster's Portrait.

Daniel Webster once sat for his portrait to the late G. P. Healy, and the senator's remark when he surveyed the completed picture became one of the artist's favorite anecdotes in after years. "I think," said Webster as he looked at his counterfeit presentment, "that is a face I have often shaved." Healy found Andrew Jackson a disagreeable and unwilling "subject," and he compensated himself by painting Old Hickory with absolute fidelity to nature, not glossing a single defect. The portrait gives Jackson an ugly, savage and pallid face. - Chicago Herald.

The Woman In Black.

"One of the most mysterious circumstances connected with the keeping of national cemeteries is a woman in black who visits them all," said E. C. Trindle. "I was in charge of one of these cemeteries for several years, and this woman made two visits that I know of. She never comes during the day, and it is purely accidental when we learn that she has been there at all. Hiring a carriage at midnight, she will come to the wall, and climbing the inclosure will search the entire cemetery by means of a dark lantern for the grave of some relative. She has never found it, but every year she makes the round of every national cemetery in the country in the vain hope that some day she will learn where her loved one lies buried."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

California, empire of the Pacific, salutes the world. Her Midwinter Fair closed in a midsummer blaze of glory, Second only to the Columbian Exposition in extent, variety and splendor, the coast display was a veritable triumph. Out of her abundance the state poured her treasures-and the nations of the earth came to aid her in her noble exhibition.

Memorable were the exhibits-of gold and silver, of wheat and oil, of fruit and wine, of silk and wool-of all that man and nature could combine to produce. And no exhibit attracted more attention or excited warmer approval

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder

Official tests showed it to be highest in leavening power, purest in quality, and most efficient in results of all baking powders made. Accordingly, the Highest Award and Gold Medal were conferred on Dr. Price's at the Midwinter Fair.

MESSENGERS ON THE STAND.

Little of Interest in the Debs Trial-Witnesses Who Refuse to Answer.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.-The proceedings at the Deba trial were rather uninteresting, the principal testimony being given by telegraph messenger boys with the purpose of connecting Debs and the other defendants with the telegrams already in evidence. The boys testified to taking stacks of telegrams to A. R. U. headquarters during the strike, but in only a few instances did Debs himself or any of the defendants receipt for them. The usual practice in such cases obtained—the man who took the telegrams, even if only a doorkeeper, receipted for them. All the telegrams were addressed to Debs and and replies signed by Debs, or by somebody in Debs' name.

James Clark, who was at the headquarters during the strike, sometimes acting as doorkeeper, said he frequently receipted for telegrams, but counsel for the defense objected to his testimony as it might incriminate himself, and the judge sustained the objection. L. P. Benedict, secretary to Debs during the strike, was excused for the same reason, and James Hogan, one of the defendants, was called. He refused to answer questions on the ground of self-incrimination. The government insisted that its questions were admissible, and proposed to argue the case. The judge said he would leave thematter open for awhile.

Proved to Be a Mare's Nest.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The supposed cipher scheme of the rail ways by which with the use of a sand hill crane waterlined in the paper they were enabled to give a man a flattering clearance and yet show that he was on the "blacklist," is a mare's nest without an egg in it. The crane is the trade-mark of the paper company and has been for nearly 100 years. The different positions in which the paper folded and cut accounted for the several positions in which the bird was found, and also for the fact that every once in a while an applicant would receive a letter with the head of the crane cut off. It was supposed that the headless crane meant that the holder of the letter was on the black
