Three Thieves Caught at a Straw Stack.

—The Judge Learns to Ride a Bicycle.—Detroit Owes the University a Large Sum.

Madame Nordica.

The May number of Munsey contains a half-tone portrait of Lillian Nordica, one of the soloists of the second annual May festival. In connection with the portrait the magazine says:

"Lillian Nordica has a boundless admiration for Frau Cosima Wagner, who personally superintends every detail of the performance of her husband's operas at Bayreuth. 'The intimate knowledge,' says Madame Nordica, 'that she has of every note of the music, every detail of the poems, every detail of the costumes, and every gesture and movement in the action, is simply astonishing.' Nordica sang in Bayreuth last summer, which left her only five weeks' vacation. This was spent in Lucerne, where she had a steam launch, and went fishing every day upon the beautiful Alpine lake. She sang during this period only once, and then as an act of charity. Her permanent home is in London, where she has a handsome house in Regent Terrace."

The Bicycle Mastered the Judge.

Judge Kinne started to the intricacies of bicycle riding the first of the week and in order that an observing public might not see for themselves how expert a gymnast the judge was he took the wheel up on the boulevard, there to learn among the sighing winds. As he is quick to grasp the points of a new situation, the judge soon succeeded in mastering the cycle so that he was able to ride on a level with tolerable ease. He became somewhat elated with his easy victory and thought he would try the bicycle down hill. It wasn't but a moment before he wished he hadn't. The cycle went faster and faster, from side to side, and was evidently beyond all control. Finally the judge was thrown down a fifteen foot embankment, had his face scratched and torn and his little finger sprained so that it grew so large he thought he had two thumbs on one hand. The judge got off very cheaply but it will be some time before he attempts to coast down those boulevard hills, a difficult feat enough for an expert.

Frederick Douglass Memorial Service.

At the memorial service in honor of Frederick Douglass at the Unitarian church next Sunday evening there will be addresses as follows:

Rev. J. M. Henderson, of Detroit, on "Frederick Douglass: his Life, Character, and Influence."

Judge N. W. Cheever: "A Visit to the South: Personal Observations as to the Condition and Prospects of the Colored People."

Rev. A. W. Moore: "Some Wrongs that still need Righting."

Judge W. D. Harriman: "The Career of Douglass as an Incentive to his Race."

A poem will be read by Mr. W. K. Childs.

The two colored churches of the city will join in the service, and both pastors will have parts in the exercises. The addresses will be short. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Fancher Quartette club, of Detroit. "The Old Kentucky Home" and other favorite songs and hymns of Douglass will be sung.

Detroit's Debt to the University.

The agitation of the building of new county and city building in Detroit will accrue to the material benefit of the University of Michigan. If justice is done to the state institution a large sum of money justly its due will be paid into its treasury. The Free Press of today says the following:

"C. M. Burton yesterday completed his researches in the matter of the title of the Griswold street portion of the city hall site, and came to the decision that the fee is in the regents of the State University. This portion of the site was formerly lot 16 of the governor and judges' plan. The title was in the city, which transferred it to the State University on condition that a school be maintained there. The regents fulfilled their part of the agreement until they permitted the city to take possession of it upon a promise to pay them $15,000, not a dollar of which has ever been paid, although the city irregularly paid $5,000 of the amount to the state. At the time the city regained possession of the property it agreed to pay the $15,000 with interest annually at the rate of 7 per cent, and the amount now due, after a lapse of upwards of forty years, principal and compound interest, is a snug little sum."

For the Woman's Gym.

On the evening of May 10 a dramatic performance will be given at the Grand opera house by the University Comedy club for the benefit of the Woman's gymnasium and the Athletic association. Two plays are to be presented, one of which is an amateur piece of old standing but, up to this time, has never been presented here. It is Morton's farce, "Lend Me Five Shillings," in which Mr. Nat Goodwin is making a great hit this season. The parts in the play have been put in the hands of the best known amateurs in the University, and their work at the rehearsals is clever enough to warrant our saying that a splendid performance will be given on the 10th. The people who go to make up the cast of "Lend Me Five Shillings" are all experienced in dramatic work and their action is peculiarly free from that stiffness which usually accompanies amateur efforts. They are: Norman H. Hackett, Karl E. Harriman, F. W. B. Coleman, Ben Cocker, Bob Bourland, Miss Bessie Dunster and Miss Veva Duffy.

The second play is "Woodcock's Little Game," one of the brightest and funniest plays Morton ever wrote. The parts in the piece will be taken by the following: Arthur M. Smith, James Handy, Harry Nightingale, Bob Bourland, Miss Fraine, Miss Bessie Dunster, Miss Dinx Dunster and Miss Belle Norton.

Inasmuch as the entire proceeds of the entertainment are to be turned over to the Woman's gym fund and the Athletic association, the prices have been placed so low that there is no excuse for anyone's not attending. The admission has been placed at 35, 50 and 75 cents. The boards will be open next Tuesday morning at Sheehan's where seats can be reserved up to five o'clock on the day of the performance, May 10. Let everyone turn out and help build the Woman's gym.

Washtenaw County Farms.

As shown by the Secretary of State's report, just issued, there were 3,201 farms in Washtenaw county in 1894, the average number of acres in each farm being 118.12. These 3,201 farms contained 277,040 acres of improved land and 101,076 acres of unimproved land.

The township which contains the largest number of farms is Ypsilanti with 245 farms of an average size of 90.43 acres.

Saline comes next with 215 farms of an average size of 93.47 acres. Dexter township contains the smallest number, 97, the average size being 172.15 acres. York has the largest number of improved acres of farm land, 17,573, and Augusta the smallest number, 9,184. Lyndon contains the largest number of unimproved acres, 8,582, and Pittsfield contains the smallest number, 2,125. The average farm is the largest in Dexter, 172 acres, and the smallest in Augusta, 75 acres.

The number of farms in each township was as follows: Ann Arbor, 180; Augusta, 180; Bridgewater, 192; Dexter, 97; Freedom, 160; Lima, 158; Lodi, 157; Lyndon, 120; Manchester, 156; Northfield, 158; Pittsfield, 133; Sharon, 215; Saline, 200; Scio, 117; Sharon, 127; Superior, 170; Sylvan, 174; Webster, 111; York, 245; Ypsilanti, 151.

The average size of the farms in each township, dropping the fractional parts of an acre, was as follows: Ann Arbor, 93; Augusta, 75; Bridgewater, 109; Dexter, 172; Freedom, 118; Lima, 135; Lodi, 116; Lyndon, 163; Manchester, 125; Northfield, 107; Pittsfield, 140; Salem, 93; Saline, 103; Scio, 157; Sharon, 150; Superior, 117; Sylvan, 113; Webster, 169; York, 90; Ypsilanti, 116.

In the state there are 144,111 farms, of an average size of 89 acres. Only three counties, Oakland, Lenawee and Kent, have more acres of improved farm land than Washtenaw, while fourteen counties contain farms of average larger size, and twenty-one counties have a larger number of farms. The relative high standing Washtenaw has in agricultural products, as was shown in an article in Tuesday's paper, is due to the intelligence and industry of the Washtenaw farmer and the fertility of the soil.

They Stood on Their Dignity.

The special meeting of the board of public works yesterday morning was a sort of brotherly lovefeast between Messrs. Bullis and Clark and Contractor Hutzel. The latter eat a trifle of humble pie pro forma, and the board said he was a good boy. Last fall, when Hutzel used his own hard brick, the board said he must not, even when responsible citizens like Frederick Schmid, Evert H. Scott, Michael Fritz and others were offered as security that the brick would stand the weather. Even the offer of a money deposit sufficient to rebuild the man-holes in case of poor materials would not soften the board. Now all is changed and the board hastened to pass a resolution testifying to the good qualities of the Hutzel brick. Mr. Hutzel was called in to give an account of himself for using his own hard brick and not the Wagner brick. Mr. Hutzel explained that he had difficulty in procuring Wagner brick. He had examined his contract more closely and found that his own brick came within the specifications. Acting under the advice of his counsel, he had gone ahead with the work. The members of the board were in an amiable frame of mind and said that his explanations were satisfactory, but why had he not consulted with the board? Mr. Hutzel said that from his experience last fall he felt he could accomplish nothing by consultations and therefore, acting under the advice of his attorney, he had gone ahead and used his own brick. The board requested Mr. Hutzel to withdraw for a time. Mr. Bullis and Mr. Clark consulted together, and when Mr. Hutzel was called in again said the honor of the board must be sustained. If an apology was made, they would sanction the use of his brick. Mr. Hutzel smilingly replied, if that was all that was necessary to prevent friction, he would comply. Thereupon the board drew up an apology which Mr. Hutzel signed, and the board passed the following resolution offered by President Clark, which is a high testimonial to the good quality of the brick:

Whereas, Mr. Hutzel has applied to this board for permission to use the Ann Arbor brick, and

Whereas, The brick he desires to use are in the opinion of this board of such quality as to be suitable for the purpose for which they are to be used; therefore be it

Resolved, That he, the said Hutzel, be allowed to use the same in the completion of the man-holes and flush tanks in sewer district No. 2.

A Boiler House Meeting.

A special meeting of the North Main street boiler house club was held last evening. It was largely attended, Dennis O'Rafferty occupying a large lump of coal which had rolled down from the pile. The Church street member sat astraddle of the car track, contentedly smoking a cigar that he had borrowed from the Washtenaw avenue member. The president called the meeting to order in the usual manner by striking the boiler with the coal shovel so hard that he chipped the right hand corner. He stated that the object of the meeting was to take action in reference to the approaching second annual May festival. It was one of the greatest events of the kind in the northwest, and while the people of Ann Arbor were giving it generous support, the interest should be awakened to pushing the great event in a systematic manner. He therefore proposed that the club discuss ways and means to help increase its success.

Dennis O'Rafferty taking his clay pipe out of his mouth, said that as now peace had been restored in the little pills department, he was for the music. There had always been harmony in the school of music and that the club had made an enviable record in its work in behalf of the building of the Frieze Memorial hall. At present there was no one thing which was doing so much to make the University of Michigan known among refined, cultured people who, while not always devoted to the practical studies of life, enjoyed the arts. Music was a refining influence.

The Spring street member said he believed it was the duty of every citizen of Ann Arbor to use his personal endeavors to make known to all his correspondents the particulars of the May festival by seeing that a Festival was placed in the hands of each one. While the University Musical society had been fostered by the people of Ann Arbor, it was essentially a matter of state pride, every taxpayer in the state being practically a stockholder in the university.

The Miller avenue member introduced a resolution which was unanimously adopted, recommending that every citizen, recommending that in the distribution of the May Festival Journal.

The Washtenaw avenue member arose and remarked that he would like to bring up an important matter which was interesting many citizens; it was the ——. At this point the archivist's dog espied the engineer's cat, and in making a leap for the animal knocked over the railroad man's lantern doing service for the meeting. As the boiler room was dark, the president declared the meeting adjourned. The members, as they filed out, remarked that there was malaria in the air, and they thought they had better take precautionary measures.

Captured Three Thieves.

From the Daily Courier.

On Sunday last the man who lives upon the farm owned by John F. Lawrence, some three miles south of the city, went upon a straw stack in the barnyard of that place, to pitch down some straw. He had thrown down a few forkfuls only, when he uncovered several stacks of goods consisting of hankerchiefs, stockings, combs, shears, towels, napkins, pipes, and a variety of other things. The goods look as if they might have been taken from a bazaar stock.

The man at once came to the city and reported his find to the city, who notified Sheriff Judson and Prosecuting Attorney Randall. These gentlemen concluded to take possession of the goods, and then watch for the fellows who went after them.

Accordingly Officers Ball, Huhn and Eldert secreted themselves at the barn and watched. Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday nights went by, and no one came. Wednesday night, however, they were rewarded for their waiting. It was a bright and beautiful night and the officers were so situated that they could observe anyone approaching. It was all quiet until about half-past ten when four men approached, and proceeded to the stack where the goods had been secreted. They were allowed to go upon the stack and throw down one bundle of goods, when the officers emerged from their hiding places and ordered them to surrender, which three of them did very peaceably the fourth man making good his escape. They evidently recognized the fact that they were caught and it would be useless to resist. They gave their names as George Richie, Elmer Thompson and George Kelly.

All three of these men were familiar with the jail. Kelly has been sent to jail here twice during the past winter, once from Saline for larceny, and again from Dexter for vagrancy. Richie came to the jail on a charge of breaking into a car on the T. & A. R. R. Thompson was in for vagrancy and claimed Grand Rapids as his home.

There were nine sacks full of goods found, which consisted of almost everything sold in a bazaar.

In one package of goods was a note book, written in Turkish. Not a scrap of anything else hardly. Another package contained a prize package envelope with this address upon it: "Rafie Saber, Toledo, O., 317 Cherry st.," in which were many papers and other envelopes. The theory of Mr. Randall is that these goods may have been stolen from that man, and the various papers, etc., that was in the envelope were taken and chucked into the bag in a hurry along with the other articles. Among other things was an unopened letter addressed to "Geo. Elias 32 Hill st., Cleveland Ohio." Another addressed envelope was to: "Anther Bahara, 43 1/2 Columbia st., Fort Wayne, Ind., U. S. A." Still another to "Mikel Holi y, No. 16 Jackson st., Waco, Texas."

There has been no store robbed about here that the officers know of, but Sheriff Judson will go to Toledo and Cleveland, to find out if there be any clue in those directions.

There has been a surmise that these goods may have belonged to some Turkish peddler who had disappeared suddenly with assistance. The contents of the note books are being translated, and they may perhaps throw some light on the matter.

The prisoners will be held as long as there is any hope of finding out where the goods came from.

DEFYING ILL LUCK.

"The Order of the Opal" Organized by the Salt Spillers and Thirteen Club. To the "Thirteen Club" and the "Salt Spillers" comes the "Order of the Opal." This is an organization designed to challenge ill luck and show how easily it may be bullied when deliberately faced. The club has much of the same rites as other clubs of its kind. It meets on Friday. Its rooms are decorated with peacock feathers.

The members make a point of walking under ladders, eating 13 at table, going and coming on Friday and spilling salt. It is not said that they break mirrors with deliberation, but anybody who does break a mirror is held in great consideration by the other members. The opal is the badge of membership and is put forth on all occasions. It is urged, however, that all these efforts to overthrow superstition fail of their purpose, inasmuch as ill luck cannot be invited.

The element of chance is absolutely necessary to its success. An even worse element to be removed is the pride and pleasure most people take in their superstition. A superstition to an actress in the way of advertisement is only less valuable than the loss of her jewels. To other people superstitions are of importance in giving piquancy to biographical notices and sketches of character now so popular in current weeklies.—New York Advertiser.

Was So Grieved. A little story is told of Sibly Sanderon apropos of her debut at Paris. The next morning the papers teemed with the ravings of the critics, the "beaute de Sibly," her voice and her costumes. There were also telegrams of congratulations, letters and cards. The young divette looked at them all carefully and then made a moan. "Not satisfied yet?" asked some one. "What is the matter?" "Ah, I am so disappointed," moaned the sad faced singer. "I had thought successful singers always got love letters from unknown admirers. There is not one for me!" It is to be supposed that time healed the sorrow.—New York Mail and Express.

Hazel had been to missionary meeting. Her prayers were apt to mirror the impressions of the day, and this is what her mother heard at bedtime: "Oh, Lord, I s'pose you know 'bout these missionaries, and, Oh, Lord, please don't let 'em learn any bad habits from the heathen."

Quarryman, commissioned to break the news gently—Did ye hear that foine blast, mum? Woman—Indade I did. It frightened me. "Would Oi had been near ye to protect ye, mum. It's just such a fine lookin' woman as you Oi loik to protect, mum. It's me ye ought to marry." "It's you ought to be kilt entirely for talkin' that way an' me married to a foine mon like Mickie Finnegan." "Och, ye naden't moind about him, mum. He was kilt by th' blast."

Spring Cleaning Is such a trial that men say "Let the house take care of itself." But the conscientious wife feels bound to risk health and strength in this annual struggle with dust and dirt. She is altogether too liable however, to let her bodily house, most important of all, "take care of itself." The consequence of her feverish anxiety over extra work is depletion of the blood, the source of all life and strength, manifested in that weak, tired, nervous condition too prevalent at this season and very dangerous if allowed to continue. What every man and woman needs in the Spring is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the blood vitalized and enriched, and thus sustains the nerves and holds all the bodily functions in strength and regular action. With its help you will not feel that intense exhaustion, and your natural fatigue at the close of the day will give way to fresh activity in the morning. Therefore we say, besides cleaning your house, be sure to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to Now

Cleanse Your Blood With Hood's We'll Conquer Makes the Weak Strong "Now that house cleaning is upon us, I know that with Hood's Sarsaparilla to help, we'll pass through that trial all right." MRS. HELEN HISCOCK, Tully, New York. "I take Hood's Sarsaparilla every spring, and it is the only medicine I use through the year. It enables me to do my house cleaning and farm work all through the summer. It helped me very much for palpitation of the heart. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for everyone, and all who take it will never be without it. I have also used Hood's Pills and they are the best I ever tried." MRS. F. H. ANDREWS, South Woodstock, Conn. "Last spring I had to give up work, being unable to walk to my place of employment, a distance of only half a mile. I suffered almost incessantly from sick headache. I had racking pains all over my body. The least exertion would tire me out. Going up one flight of stairs would make my heart beat at a terrible rate. I was induced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now, after taking less than two bottles, the pains and aches have all left me. I have only had a slight headache once since. Hood's Sarsaparilla gave me a good appetite, and I can now do a hard day's work." MISS ELIZABETH JENKINS, Queensbury, New York.

Hood's Sarsaparilla "My nerves were in such a condition the closing of a door was sufficient to throw me into a spell of trembling which would last for hours. This was after a severe attack of the grip, which shattered my health. I could not sleep, my food distressed me, and I had darting pains through my shoulders and back. At the suggestion of a friend I tried Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking one bottle, my food no longer distressed me, and my nerves were quieted. Have taken three bottles and I am cured. The asthma trouble, from which I have not been free for years, has entirely disappeared. Hood's Sarsaparilla has done wonders for me, and I am glad to recommend it highly." MRS. LUCINDA RUSTELL, North Dartmouth, Massachusetts. "My health has been poor for a good many years before I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Finally I decided to take Hood's and can honestly say that it has done me more good than any and all other treatments. I was troubled with dyspepsia, food distressed me, and I had but little appetite, was weak and nervous. In fact my trouble bordered on nervous prostration, from which I had previously suffered. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla last summer and it did me ever so much good. It does not seem as though I am the same person. My appetite is greatly improved, I am less nervous, have more strength and a can eat heartily without distress. Such a condition was unknown to me before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. G. C. CLAY, Barre, Vt.

MARRIED IN HASTE.

Few Formalities at a Wedding in a Chicago Police Court.

Quite an amusing episode occurred in Justice Lyon's court recently in the midst of a trial for assault and battery, when a young couple rushed breathlessly into the room and informed his honor that they wanted to be joined in the holy bonds of wedlock as quickly as possible.

In one hand the prospective groom carried a marriage license, which contained the names of August Rohner and Marie Soss. The assault and battery trial came to a halt, and Justice Lyon glanced over the certificate by which two beings were permitted to call themselves one.

"Hurry up, chudge," said the about to be bride nervously as she shifted from one foot to another and glanced apprehensively at the door.

"But why are you in such haste?" asked "Justice Davy."

"It must be now or never," answered the bride, "and we want now."

"All right," said the court; "I guess I can accommodate you," and he repaired to a mirror in the rear of the courtroom, carefully arranged his $18 tie, thought of the immortal Davy, Jr., on the South Side, parted his hair in the middle, took an extra reef in his immaculate Prince Albert and called the couple to the front.

If there is one thing Justice Lyon is perfect in, it is in the art of tying nuptial knots, and he was at his best.

"Have you a ring?" he asked.

"Nein," answered the lesser half.

"One will do," said the court.

"Nein, nein, or none," broke in the bride.

"Oh, all right!" answered the court, while his face took on a deep scarlet hue, and he proceeded with the ceremony. The couple alternately looked at him and at the door, and after it was all over, and they stood together with arms twisted together, a fearful racket sounded on the stairs, and a little old man, with a glare in his eye, burst breathlessly into the room. The new Mr. and Mrs. laughed at him, and swearing volubly in German the little old man gave the door a cruel kick, passed out again, the bridal couple following. Justice Davy poked a beautiful bill in his purse, and the assault case went on.—Chicago Dispatch.

What Esau Hunted.

"About noon we saw a beast standing on a mountain top looking down at us. When we saw it, we thought that it was a camel, but Calinus said that the beast was a rhinoceros or unicorn. It hath a horn set in the midst of its forehead 4 feet long, and whatsoever it butts at it runs him through and pounds him against the rocks. It is said by writers on natural history that they place a young virgin in his way, whereat he puts away from him all his fierceness and lays down his head and is held thus entranced until he be taken and slain."

This wrote that delightfully naive observer, Father Felix Fabri, who visited Sinai 400 years ago. Modern pilgrims who have followed in his footsteps with their eyes open will at once recognize that the animal he saw was the bedan, or Sinaitic ibex, which gazes down on passing caravans from the cliffs which tower above their route. He is seldom visible to them unless his shapely figure happens to be silhouetted on the sky line. This wild goat inhabits the mountains on either side of the Red sea and the steep gullies of Moab and is the only representative of the deer or goat tribes in these regions. Esau doubtless hunted it, and those few sportsmen who have followed his example will not be surprised that the uncertainties of the chase cost him his birthright.—Nineteenth Century.

Metal Railroad Ties.

A protest against the denudation of forests in order to secure material for railroad ties is made in a report issued by the agricultural department at Washington on the use of metal railroad ties and preservative processes and metal tie plates for wooden ties. It shows that about 20 per cent of the railroad mileage of the world, outside of the United States and Canada, is laid on metal. In the United States little practical progress in metal ties is reported. The proportion of track laid with metal ties to the total length of railways throughout the world has increased from 7 per cent in 1890 to 10 per cent in 1894.—Railway Review.

An Extremist.

Mr. Irving tells a good story of an old Scotchwoman living not far from Balmoral who criticised the queen somewhat hostilely for having ridden out on a Sunday. Met with the retort that Christ himself plucked ears of wheat on the Sabbath, the orthodox person exclaimed: "Ah, yes. I ken all about that, and I dinna think any the better on him for it!"—Westminster Budget.

NICARAGUA AFFAIR IS LESS ACUTE.

John Bull Considers the Proposed Compromise and Will Probably Accept the Scheme—Abundant Guarantees That the Indemnity Will Be Promptly Paid—British Officers Piping Off the Land Near the Canal Line—Some New York Legislative Resolutions.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The following dispatch from London indicates that the Nicaragua incident is approaching an end: "The following semi-official announcement was made last evening: 'The statement that the Salvadorean minister had submitted to Great Britain, on behalf of Nicaragua, certain proposals, is correct. The matter is now being considered, and if reasonable security is given for the fulfillment of any undertaking to comply with Great Britain's demand, every proposal in the matter will be arranged without inflicting further humiliation.'"

Guarantees Are Abundant.

Nicaragua is prepared to furnish the best guarantees of the payment of the indemnity. The guaranty will be in any one of several forms as follows: First, the promise of the Nicaraguan government, which, in view of the fact that the government has never defaulted on its obligations, is of itself regarded as a guaranty; second, the Bank of Nicaragua, a national institution with recognized standing in London, will, if need be, give the guaranty; third, the republic of Guatemala, one of the richest of the Central American states, stands ready to deposit $15,500 in a London bank if Nicaragua desires the favor; fourth, the Nicaraguan Canal company, whose word in London would be acceptable in the highest financial circles, will give either a guaranty or the cash if need be.

John Bull Also Saves His Point.

From the British standpoint the acceptance of the compromise and the immediate evacuation of Corinto establishes the good faith of Great Britain in her declaration that there was no purpose of occupying territory. From the first the British authorities have assured Ambassador Bayard, and the latter has so advised Secretary Gresham, that there was no purpose of aggression or of securing a foothold in Nicaragua. The only purpose, Earl Kimberly has said, was to collect a debt by such force as was necessary and then depart. Nicaragua, notwithstanding these assurances, has maintained that the collection of the $7,500 was merely a covert means of occupying her territory. This view has prevailed very widely here, even in some official quarters.

British Spying Out the Land.

A dispatch from Managua says: "Officers belonging to the British fleet were ashore at San Juan del Sur, the small port near which the Pacific entrance of the Nicaragua canal is to be built. It was noticed that they were making measurements and topographic sketches of the land in that part of the country, and they also were apparently making observations along the route to be followed by the canal along the line from the Pacific to Lake Nicaragua. The officers also made sketches and took notes about Brito, and although ordered to desist by the Nicaraguan governor there they continued their work and refused to return on board ship."

NEW YORK SOLONS RESOLVE

That Uncle Sam Has Not Been Sufficiently Belligerent in the Case.

ALBANY, May 2.—Resolutions in condemnation of the administration at Washington for its inaction in regard to the seizure of Corinto, Nicaragua, were adopted by the assembly under suspension of the rules, the vote standing 91 ayes and 15 nays, one Democrat voting with the Republican majority. The resolutions were offered by Ainsworth, the Republican leader in the assembly. They recite in the preamble the recent events in the republic of Nicaragua and the action of the British government in occupying the soil and declare that such forcible interference by a European monarchy in the affairs and authority of a member of the great sisterhood of American republics is an open and flagrant violation of the Monroe doctrine.

The resolutions conclude as follows: "That we condemn and denounce the supineness, dilatoriness and lack of national and patriotic spirit which has characterized the administration at Washington in dealing with this complication; and

"That that we regard as a betrayal of fundamental American principles the omission and neglect on the part of the chief executive and the head of the department of state to interpose resolutely and effectively against such forcible invasion of a sister republic and against such infraction of the principle and precept of the Monroe doctrine."

Colima's Uncomfortable Activity.

MANZANILLO, State of Colima, May 2.—The glare of the eruption of the volcano of Colima, sixty miles in the interior, is plainly seen at this city and at other points along the Pacific coast at night. The disturbances are steadily increasing. Houses in the city of Colima, but a few miles from the base of the mountain are coated with ashes. The earthquakes are short and sharp, and the quakes have thus far been felt in Colima, Zapotlan, Patzcuar, Uruapan, Guadalaajara and many other smaller places.

Blanc's Hide Was Tanned.

TACOMA, Wash., May 2.—The cuticle of Tom Blanck, the murderer, who held up the jailer at Seattle with a wooden gun recently, has been tanned and will be made into pocket books. The people of Sumner say it is an attempt to immortalize a rehandened murderer. They accuse a physician of that place of having charge of the tanning of the human skin. They say he presented enough of Blanck's tanned hide to M. Kelly, of Sumner, to make a pocket book.

Ordered To Be Ready with Winchester.

DEVILS LAKE, N. D., May 2.—The deputy marshal here has received a telegram from United States Marshal Cronin to be ready with Winchester and small arms to accompany him to the Turtle mountains today to make the Indians and half-breeds for whom warrants have been issued. A strong posse will go and the Indians are as determined as ever not to permit the arrests.

THE BLOOMER HAS THE CALL.

Grand Rapids Women and Ann Arbor Cyclists to the Number of 150, Including the City Librarian and several Schoolteachers, met to discuss the bloomer question.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 2.—Women bicyclists to the number of 150, including the city librarian and several schoolteachers, met to discuss the bloomer question. Two hours were spent in exhibiting suits and discussion, and then resolutions were adopted reciting that "our Heavenly Father, with divine love and infinite wisdom in our creation, has made us bipeds and endowed us with reason; that skirts are in the way on the bike (or words to that effect); therefore, where the afore-said skirts are in the way we will wear bloomers (or words to that effect)."

ANN ARBOR, May 2.—Bloomers have come in for good at the University of Michigan, for a number of the coeds have banded themselves together into a bloomer club, pledged to wear knickerbockers both when riding a bicycle and while attending classes. Some weeks ago Miss Edna Daisy Day started wearing them as a walking costume, and had trouble with her landlady, Mrs. H. C. Eames, about the bifurcated dress. Since then the girls here have taken the matter in hand for themselves, and congratulated Miss Day on the bold stand she took for her rights. It is stated on good authority that two of the professors' wives are helping the girls on, and intend to wear bloomers themselves.

LABOR PARADE AT CHICAGO.

Large Crowd Turns Out to Enjoy the Workingman's Holiday.

CHICAGO, May 2.—There was a large number of men in the ranks of the Labor Day parade, and a much larger number of people on the sidewalks to witness the march. The procession started at Randolph and Market streets and the five divisions fell into their places without delay, taking up the line of march to Lake street, to Wabash avenue, to Randolph street, to Michigan avenue, to Jackson street, to Clinton street, to Madison street, to Canal street, to Randolph street, to Jefferson street, to Milwaukee avenue, to West Huron, thence to Aurora Turner hall.

There were in the ranks Turners, cigar-makers, brewers, socialists, bartenders, waiters, carpenters, metal workers, furniture workers, compositors, clothing makers, bakers, bicycle makers, coopers, People's party ward clubs, painters and carriage and wagon makers. The day was fine and the affair passed off with success. Meetings were held in the evening, the principal one being at the Aurora Turner hall. This May day celebration is in conformity with the labor movement in Europe, and is under the auspices of labor organizations which are strongly socialistic in sentiment. Others celebrate the first Monday in September as Labor Day.

Suit the United States is Prosecuting Against the Stanford Estate.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Mrs. Leland Stanford has arrived in Washington from San Francisco and had an interview with the attorney general in regard to the government suit now pending against her husband's estate. She was particularly anxious to have the suit expedited as rapidly as possible, and was assured by Olney that he had been from the first anxious to have the case heard at the first opportunity, and would give the necessary instructions to the United States attorney at San Francisco.

On account of bonds issued by the government to the Central Pacific Railroad company and the accrued interest there will soon become due to the government about $60,000,000. Under the laws of the state of California each stockholder of a corporation is individually liable for his proportion of its debts. The Stanford estate owns about one-quarter, or $15,000,000 of the Central Pacific stock, and hence its alleged liability to that amount. Suit was brought in anticipation of the failure of the stockholders to meet this obligation.

ONLY "INCIDENTAL" QUESTIONS.

Depew's Characterization of the Silver and Tariff Issues.

CLEVELAND, May 2.—Hon. Chauncey M. Depew was in the city attending the annual meetings of the Lake Shore and Nickel Plate roads. He was asked about national politics, but said it was too early to discuss national politics; nothing had developed yet. There would be but one issue in 1896—hard times and good times. "What about the tariff and silver?" "Oh, the tariff and the silver questions will no doubt enter into the campaign, but they will only be incidental issues."

Through the efforts of labor leaders in California since the strike last year on the Southern Pacific, C. P. Huntington, president of that road, has been indicted for giving a pass to a citizen of California. Speaking of this Depew said: "That was certainly a contemptible proceeding, and is an offense for which every railroad president in the country is liable to prosecution. There is certainly no danger that there will be many similar prosecutions, as there is only one man in a million who would descend to such a level."

Disagreed as to Wilde.

LONDON, May 2.—A disagreed jury leaves Oscar Wilde hanging between Satan and the deep sea, as it were, for the verdict amounts to the Scotch affair in that line that is like an old man of the sea on the shoulders of the accused, "not proven." The judge in instructing the jury went over the whole case and recited the fact that all the witnesses except one—Shelley—were well known blackmailers, whose testimony was left for the jury to weigh. Shelley swore to nothing overt; his mind had become excited by his association with Wilde. Generally the judge's idea seemed to be that the case was anything but clear against Wilde. The jury was out about two hours. Bail was again refused and a new jury will try the case.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 2.—The supreme council of the Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias, in session here, appointed a committee to devise secret work for the order. Several cases of importance to the locality from which they come will be considered by the body, which comprises five members.

GENERAL GORDON'S STORY.

A Romance Begun in the Thicket of the Fight at Gettysburg.

"At Gettysburg, while the fight was the hottest," said General Gordon, "I noticed a handsome young Federal officer, whose bravery was conspicuous. After the battle had subsided I found this gallant soldier lying on the field. He was dying and begged me to send a message to the Union lines. His wife had decided to share with him the fortunes of war and was at the officers' quarters in the Federal army."

"I ordered my men to take the wounded officer to our camp and to make him as comfortable as possible. Then I sent some men with a flag of truce to the Union lines with the message from the dying officer to his wife."

"Late that night the party returned, and the meeting of the dying husband and his young wife was the most affecting scene which I have ever witnessed."

"I was compelled to go elsewhere, but before I left the sorrowing couple I ascertained that the name of the wounded officer was Major Barlow of New York. I often thought of the sad incident, which made upon me one of the most vivid impressions that I received in the war."

"Shortly afterward a cousin of mine whose name and initials were the same as mine was killed in battle."

"The war closed. Ten years afterward I was with a distinguished gentleman in New York who invited me to be present at a dinner he was to give that evening. Among the guests to whom I was introduced was a certain Major Barlow. I supposed that he was a cousin of the man whom I had left dying on the field at Gettysburg with his devoted wife beside him."

"I once knew a Major Barlow," I said to my new acquaintance.

"I once knew a General Gordon," he answered.

"But the Major Barlow I knew is dead," I added.

"And the General Gordon whom I knew is also dead," he answered.

"I started to tell him the story of the Major Barlow whom I had left dying on the field at Gettysburg when he interrupted me, exclaiming:

"My God, General Gordon, I am that man! But you were killed at Antietam."

"And I know you died at Gettysburg," said I, "for I saw you."

"Mutual explanations followed. It seems strange to me that the warmest friendship of my life should have begun in those awful scenes of blood and carnage at Gettysburg. The simple service that I performed that day when I sent for that dying soldier's wife has made Major Barlow and his wife the dearest friends I have on earth, notwithstanding I wore the gray and he the blue."

Well Full of Blue-Racers.

"Don't you," said the earnest young woman, "sometimes have thoughts that are beyond your powers of expression?" "Ya-as; I frequently have thoughts that are verily hard to express, and the worst of it is that when I get them expressed I can't help wondering why I went to all that trouble."

Is such a thing possible? It is.

Many a woman suffers month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints.

Foolish do you say? No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully. RESTORING THE VALUE OF SILVER.

A great many people seem to think that the United States government, by restoring the law as it existed prior to 1873, could thereby restore to silver its then value. At that time the silver dollar was not in circulation and had not been for years, for the very good reason that it was worth 103 cents in gold, and was consequently more valuable as a commodity than as money.

In 1873 we had three standards of currency, of which the cheapest had driven the other two out of circulation. Since then a great many events have happened, in France, in Germany, in the Latin Union and in India, and we have no control over the effects of these events.

Notwithstanding the howl that the opponents of the administration feel obliged to make upon one and all of its acts, no matter what those acts may be, the Nicaraguan incident seems likely very soon to be settled and that too without the absorption of territory, the overturning of any existing government, the violation of existing treaties or the trampling of the Monroe doctrine in the dust, the Cleveland haters to the contrary notwithstanding.

There seems at present to be a new war cloud arising in the far east. Japan is in some danger of being defrauded of the legitimate fruits of her victory over China. It appears that the Russian bear backed up by France and Germany is showing a fierce mouth full of teeth because of the fact that Japan is by the treaty of peace to secure a foothold upon the mainland of China.

Another Normal school seems to be assured. The house has passed Representative Brown's bill and the senate has passed Senator Shaw's bill and the two bills are identical. A majority of each house, therefore, has given its assent to the proposition and it may become law by the house passing the senate bill or the senate passing the house bill.

Governor Altgeld, of Illinois, has been somewhat noisy as an advocate of 'free silver.' Consequently his practice has been looked up to see how it squares with his theory. He is known as a thrifty man of business and a man of great wealth.

If today the value of the silver in a silver dollar was worth 103 cents, as was the case in 1873, does any one believe that the great mass of those who want 'free silver' would be raising a hue and cry about the 'infamy of 1873' by which silver was 'assassinated'?

Striving Hard to Defend Them.

At this late day the Courier essays to defend the board of public works for keeping the city without a street commissioner so many weeks while President Clark was striving to get himself elected street commissioner. If there was any merit in being without a street commissioner, Messrs. Clark and Bullis are certainly not entitled to it, for they tried hard to put money in Mr. Clark's pocket for doing the work of street commissioner at a time when the Courier claims the city didn't need any. The Courier also indulges in a mean insinuation against the late Nelson Sutherland as street commissioner in charging that he put men at work just before election for political purposes, an insinuation entirely false and made only to defend the terrible condition in which the streets were found this spring. Such a slur upon the best street commissioner this city will have for many years should be rebuked. Neither are the streets in good condition yet, as they are full of holes and stones, so that a driver is always obliged to use care, if he wishes to keep from laming his horse. Of course, so long as a street is dry, he who does not ride does not appreciate its condition. The country roads are invariably good at such seasons as this.

Death of Mrs. Deborah Wallington.

Mrs. Deborah Wallington died at her home on the river road last Tuesday, April 30. She was the widow of the late Edward Wallington. Mrs. Wallington was born Feb. 8, 1813, at Ludgershall, England, where she passed her early life. She was married to Edward Wallington in 1834. A few months after which both husband and wife united with the old school Baptist faith to which she adhered until her death. Her husband passed away Oct. 8, 1867. They came from Ludgershall to Lodi in 1847 where they lived until 1852 when they moved to a larger farm near Saline, where she lived until 1868 when she removed to Ann Arbor town to live with her daughter, Mrs. R. L. Speechley, remaining there until the angel of death bore her away to the better land above, there to dwell with the loved ones who had gone before.

She leaves three children to mourn her loss, Mrs. Thomas Blake, Mrs. R. L. Speechley, of Ann Arbor town, and Leonard C. Wallington, of Detroit. She was a modest, unassuming woman, always showing her kind, loving, gentle Christian character.

For Water Consumers.

The lawn and street sprinkling season in Ann Arbor has again commenced and the Water Co. has issued the following notice to its patrons:

"To Patrons of the Ann Arbor Water Co.:

"The season for sprinkling is from April to October, inclusive. The hours for sprinkling (city time) are as follows: Morning—All parts of the city, 6 to 8. Evening—All between center of Forest ave. and Fourteenth st., and center of State st., 5 to 7; all west of center of State st., 6 to 8; all east of center of Forest ave. and Fourteenth st., 7 to 9.

"The use of hose larger than three-fourth inch is prohibited without special permit; also sprinkling without nozzle or from nozzle with opening larger than three-sixteenths inch, and the use of more than one sprinkling fixture at a time. In sprinkling streets each consumer must confine himself to his own property.

"For violation of the above rules the water will be turned off without further notice, and one dollar will be charged for turning off and on before service will be renewed.

"A. K. HALE, Receiver."

Dr. Hale says he has got through being lenient with people who persistently sprinkle their lawns and the streets outside of the hours above prescribed, and anyone who is now caught doing so will have the water turned off forthwith. During the early part of this spring he spent a couple of weeks interviewing people, districting the city and getting up the above schedule. He supposed he had got it fixed all right and at hours to suit all parties concerned, only to find that the rules are being daily transgressed in many cases. He has done his best to give the public a good water service and will still continue to do so, but consumers must live up to the rules or suffer the consequences. For that tired feeling take a glass of Ann Arbor Brewing Co.'s Beer. It will strengthen your nerves and put new life into you.

"Women Suffrage in Practice"; "The Renaissance of Woman"; "Woman in Politics"; "The New Aspect of the Woman Question"; "The Modern Girl"; by the author of "The Heavenly Twins"; "The Future of Marriage"; "Evils of Early Marriages"; "The Servant Girl of the Future"; "The Financial Dependence of Women"; "Trades Unions for Women"; "The Lack of Good Servants"; "American Life and Physical Deterioration"; "Good and Bad Mothers"; "The Tyranny of the Kitchen"; "The Amateur Nurse"; Mark Twain's Defense of Harriet Shelly etc., etc.

The Review will publish in 12 chapters, beginning with the January number, the Personal History of the Second Empire.

A historical work of unsurpassed importance, which will throw a flood of new light upon the chequered career of Napoleon III, and the influences which led to the collapse of his Empire in the gigantic struggle with united Germany, under Wilhelm I, and his Iron Chancellor. It is as fascinating as a romance, being richly anecdotal and full of information drawn from sources hitherto inaccessible, presented in the graphic and vivacious style which "The Englishman in Paris," by the same author, has made famous to thousands of readers.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

The Theory of Professor Wellner's Sail Wheel Flying Machine.

The essence of Professor Wellner's innovation is his invention of the sail wheel. It consists of a horizontally placed axis with spokes and arched aeroplanes attached to them in a cylindrical form. While revolving round the axis the latter take a slightly slanting position, which causes the forward edges of these surfaces to be inclined, and consequently to compress the air in the way of a sail or a kite, calling into play the vertical force. Three ribs running across each lifting surface and made in the form of a screw at the same time serve to strengthen the aeroplanes and to add to the horizontal force.

These sail wheels set in pairs can be aimed, according to the size of airship placed at, in one or more groups of two wheels, revolving in opposite directions, behind or beside each other. The cigar shaped car, furnished with a motor and carrying the aeronauts, is attached horizontally under the center of the wheels, so that the whole construction will resemble a colossal bird, propelled, instead of by wings, by revolving wheels, the lifting surfaces of which are consecutively and constantly developing vertical and horizontal power. The bird's movements in flying and the speedy headway motion necessary to the kite flying machines for their support in the air are in Professor Wellner's invention changed to a rotary motion. This construction, while permitting of an easy, slow ascent, assures the horizontal position and constant stability of the airship, at the same time permitting of a high velocity.

The more the latter is increased the stronger is the lifting power developed. The direction is given by a rudder at the end of the ship or by increasing the velocity of the sail wheels on one side only. It is the peculiar quality of these wheels that they do not, as might be supposed, disperse the air around them. They rather attract it toward their rapidly moving surface, condensing it to a powerful stream, which passes down obliquely through their cylinders. Their velocity can be made to surpass by far that of railway trains, thus enabling them to conquer contrary winds and air currents.—Miss Helene Bonfort in Popular Science Monthly.

Electricity Generated in His Mouth.

A curious case has been recorded in which an electric current was found to be generated by a plate of artificial teeth. A patient consulted his doctor on account of a severe pain in his tongue. But the sufferer was assured that there was nothing the matter. He then paid a visit to his dentist, who informed him that his teeth were perfectly sound. Being, however, dissatisfied, he called upon an electrician he knew and asked him if it were possible he could have any electricity in his mouth. On examining the teeth his friend found that two metals were used to fix them to a composition plate. To these metal wires were then attached and connected to a galvanometer. Then the teeth were replaced in the patient's mouth and the metals moistened with saliva. No sooner was this done than the galvanometer showed quite a large current from so small a source—enough, it is stated, to cause ulceration and severe pain when long continued upon so sensitive an organ as the tongue. The plate was covered with an insulating varnish, and thenceforward all the trouble ceased.—Industries and Iron.

New Remedy for Insomnia.

An expert in nervous disorders in Paris recommended to an American gentleman a cure for insomnia which was tried with such success that the patient has prescribed it to many of his friends. It is simply to keep your eyes open when you want to go to sleep and cannot. A person whose brain is too active will sometimes close the eyes and vainly endeavor to sleep. The very closing of the eyes seems to concentrate the mental faculties on business affairs and other distractions. The theory of the French physician is that if the victim of insomnia will fix his eyes upon some gleam of light, some shadow, or even on the darkness itself, he can relieve his mind from thoughts that perplex it and divert attention from himself. Try the experiment when you are sleepless and see how unconsciously your eyes will close and your thoughts begin to take possession of you. Struggle to keep them open and fixed upon an object, either real or imaginary, and before you are aware of it the struggle will have ended and sleep will be victorious.

The Effects of a Sermon.

Once, when Cardinal Manning was preaching in Rome, he recognized John Bright among his listeners. On the instant he determined to preach to him and dwell with as much force and effect as he could on the claims of the Blessed Virgin to our veneration. Two or three years later he met him and reminded him of this incident. "I remember it perfectly," said John, "and I shall never forget it. I was delighted with everything that morning"—a gratified smile came on the cardinal's face—"excepting your sermon."—"Memoirs of an Author," Fitzgerald.

Making Tea in Japan.

In making tea in Japan the hostess pours the powdered tea from the caddy and the water from the kettle simultaneously into a porcelain dipper, as a French water pours hot milk and coffee, and stirs it carefully with a "chosen" bamboo, one end of which is split into small slivers.—Philadelphia Ledger.

THE PLAY.

Lo! 'tis a gala night Within the lonesome latter years! An angel throng, bewinged, bedight In veils and drowned in tears, Sit in a theater to see A play of hopes and fears, While the orchestra breathes fitfully The music of the spheres.

Mimes, in the form of God on high, Mutter and mumble low And hither and thither fly. More puppets they, who come and go At bidding of vast, formless things That shift the scenery to and fro, Flapping from out their concolor wings Invisible woe!

That motley drama! Oh, be sure It shall not be forgot! With its phantom chased forevermore By a crowd that seize it not, Through a circle that ever returneth in To the selfsame spot, And much of madness and more of sin And horror, the soul of the plot.

But see, amid the mimic rout, A crawling shape intrude! A blood red thing that writhes from out The scenic solitude! It writhes—it writhes with mortal pangs! The mimes become a funeral pall, And the seraphs sob at vermin fangs In human gore imbued.

Out, out are the lights; out all! And over each quivering form The curtain, a funeral pall, Comes down with the rush of a storm, And the angels, all pallid and wan, Uprising, unveiling, affirm That the play is the tragedy "Man," And its hero the conqueror, worm.—Edgar Allan Poe.

ASBESTOS MAKING.

Preparing the Mineral For Its Many Important Uses.

If any readers have ever made the acquaintance of asbestos at all, it has no doubt been in the shape of backing to a gas stove or a firebrick. Very few people outside the trade know what enormous quantities are utilized where machinery is used. The business done in domestic asbestos is a mere bagatelle compared with that got through in packing for steam boilers and engine pistons.

Asbestos in its original state is a fibrous mineral indigenous to Canada and other places and is sent over here in lumps like pieces of raw slate on the top and bottom, while the sides are covered with a fluffy substance—the fiber, when it is pulled from the bulk. You can pick each lump to pieces with your nails, although to look at it one would think that nothing less than a heavy hammer would make any impression on it.

When it reaches the factory, it is put into crushers. These are like the ordinary mortar mixers that you see where building operations are going on, and the resulting gritty, fluffy mass is thrown into what is termed a "devil."

The devil tears it up with sharp prongs and then sifts the grit from the fluff. The former is used for mixing with the asbestos in other processes, while the latter is shot into a receptacle that reduces it to a consistency almost as fine as cotton wool. As it falls from this machine it looks for all the world like snow.

In other departments the raw asbestos is crushed and then mixed with certain earths to be used for covering the outer surfaces of steam boilers, asbestos being a nonconductor of heat.

Then, again, large quantities of mill-board are made for packing between fire-proof doors and articles of that description, while occasionally it goes to form one of the main constituents in a fire-proof theater curtain.—Pearson's Weekly.

Kleptomania.

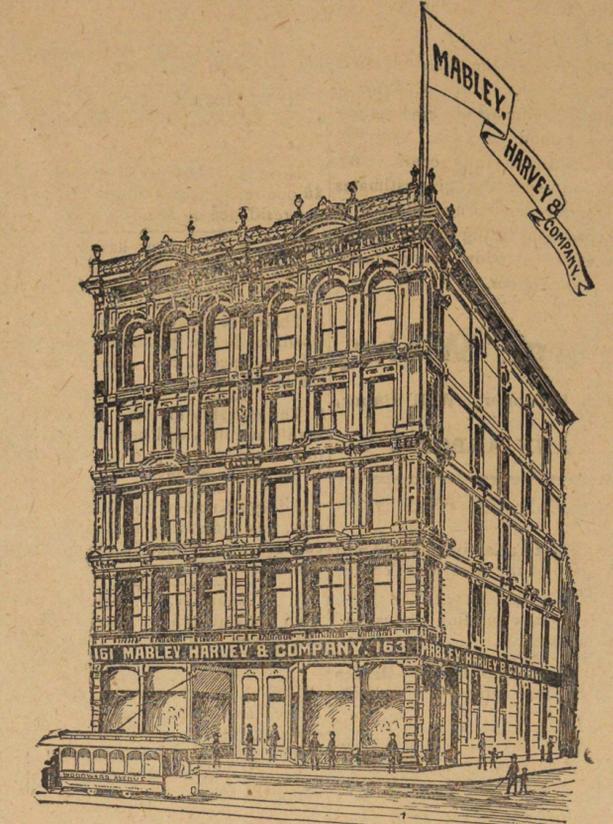

To believe a French writer, there are no fewer than 4,000 women caught every year in stealing during their shopping expeditions, a habit euphemistically styled kleptomania. The number of titled ladies seized with this strange malady while examining the fashions of Paris, he tells us, is almost incredible. Among the most recent culprits were a Russian princess, a French countess, an English duchess and the daughter of a reigning sovereign. As a rule, these more distinguished offenders are let off on the payment of a round sum for the relief of the poor, and when the shoplifter is known to be rich the sum exacted rises to as much as 10,000 francs. The police authorities consent to this sort of condonation.—Baltimore Sun.

VARIETIES OF MARBLE.

Where the Different Kinds Are Found and Their Relative Value.

The selection of marble for a monument is altogether a matter of taste. The finest statuary marbles are found in Italy and Greece, but are very expensive, costing from $15 to $20 per cubic foot. In the United States good statuary marble has for several years been quarried at West Rutland, Vt., where a layer from three to four feet thick is interstratified with 40 or 50 feet of clouded marble. The finest of statuary marble is found at Pittsford, Vt., where there is a bed 20 feet thick, from which blocks have been taken capable of taking a very fine finish. This marble belt extends north and south of Rutland county, through Vermont and Massachusetts, but in losses in quality in both directions. Toward the north it is finer and harder, but less sound, and toward the south it becomes coarser. Another belt of white marble extends along the flanks of the Alleghanies, through a part of Massachusetts, through New York and Maryland and into Virginia beyond the Potomac river. It is quarried at various places in Westchester county, N. Y., and at Baltimore. At Canaan, Conn., and at Lee, Mass., and other places in New England, good building marble is quarried. Marble from Lee was used for the extension of the capitol at Washington. Variegated marbles are found in several localities in the United States. A mottled lilac, chocolate and white, known as Tennessee marble, is regarded with favor for mantels, tables, etc. Another of red, brown and white is quarried at Burlington, Va., but it is rather difficult to work on account of the silica it contains.—Montreal Star.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

Could Not Weaken Such Testimony As This.

(From the Kalamazoo Telegraph.) The following statement is one of great interest to many a citizen of Kalamazoo, and a man as well known as Mr. Wallace should carry more than ordinary weight with our readers. Here it is as taken down by our representative: "My name is John A. Wallace. I am a member of the firm of J. A. Wallace & Co., doing business as tinners, etc., at 106 Eleanor Street, Kalamazoo, in which city I also reside. For the past nine or ten months I have been having attacks of kidney complaint, the pain in my back over my hips was very severe at times; my urinary system was also in a bad state of derangement, sometimes the urine was scanty and then again the amount would be excessive, and a difficulty of passage always existed. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills at a time when I felt that I was going to be sick, but their use worked off an attack, and I am now feeling very much better; the urinary organism has regained a normal condition, and the terrific pain in my back is much reduced in severity, while it is now fast going away altogether. I am continuing the use of Doan's Kidney Pills, with positive feeling that they will effect on me a permanent and speedy cure. I have unbounded confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all kidney ailments; have good reason to be, as they have done so much for me. Can you ask any more than this? Doan's Kidney Pills are relieving more backs of the burdens they have been forced to bear through the kidneys than all other means devised, and, better still, they are doing this right here in Michigan. Ask any one who has ever taken them and see what they will say. Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers, price, 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. THE STORY OF A CLIPPER.

She Sailed Like a Witch and Engaged in More Trades Than One.

A young Swede came to this country in 1851 with some money and the intention of building a craft to be fitted up for passengers to the World's fair in London. For this purpose he located himself at Portsmouth, contracted with shipbuilders who had shipyards at Eliot, just opposite Portsmouth, for a ship of about 1,000 tons, with expensive cabin arrangements for passengers. The model of the ship was that of an extreme clipper.

When nearly completed, the projector fell short of money. Masts, spars and sails had all been contracted for and were in a state of forwardness. The mechanics concluded to complete the ship and put her in the hands of Governor Goodwin of Portsmouth for sale, each contractor to take his pro rata of his contract.

When completed, the ship, under mechanics' lien, was transferred to the governor, brought to Boston, purchased by Sampson & Tappan, named the Nightingale and under the command of a Captain Dumaresque sailed for Australia with a cargo valued at $125,000. From there she proceeded to China, where she took the highest freight of the season, $5 per ton for London. To test her merits Messrs. Sampson & Tappan published in the London Times a challenge to the British merchant fleet to race from the Downs to China and back for £10,000—a distance of nearly 30,000 miles. But no one could be found to accept the challenge. She was afterward sold to a Salem house, who sent her to Rio Janeiro, where she was sold and sent to the coast of Africa as a slaver, was captured by a United States cruiser, the slaves liberated and the vessel sent home. She was subsequently used by the government during the rebellion, and after the close of the war was sold and put into the California trade. The Nightingale made the shortest known run from the equator to Melbourne—25 days. Her whole passage from New York was 68 days.—Proceedings of the Bostonian Society.

AIDED WILKES BOOTH

THOMAS JONES, THE MAN WHO SHIELDED LINCOLN'S MURDERER.

Kept Him in Hiding Six Days and Helped Him to Reach Virginia—The Reward of $300,000 Offered by the Government Had Not the Power to Move Him.

There died in Charles county, Md., not long ago Thomas A. Jones, at the age of 74. Jones held a position in the Washington navy yard, but was dismissed through the influence of Congressman Mudd of Maryland, who had informed the secretary of the navy that Jones had played a prominent part in the escape of John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln.

"It's quite true," admitted Jones at the time of his dismissal. "John Wilkes Booth, with a broken ankle, sick and suffering the tortures of the damned, was placed in my hands to be spirited across the river, and the $300,000 reward, or even $500,000, would not have caused me to turn traitor to the southern Confederacy, the people I loved, and surrender a man whose life was in my keeping, even if I did know he had assassinated President Lincoln."

Jones afterward told how Booth came into his hands. "It was on the morning of the 16th of April," he said, "when friends of Samuel Cox came to my house on Huckleberry farm, Maryland, and told me that Cox wanted to see me at once. I had heard the evening before that Lincoln had been killed. I had a horse saddled and rode over to Cox's, who told me that Booth and David Herold had been there and wanted assistance to get across the river. I was told where the men were—in a pine thicket about a mile and a half from the house.

"I was given instructions how to reach them without being shot—certain signs by whistling, etc. Upon reaching the dense pines I met Herold, to whom I explained that I was sent by Cox. I was then piloted to where Booth was. He lay on the ground wrapped in a pile of blankets, and his face bore traces of pain. Booth asked many questions as to what people thought of the assassination. He appeared to be proud of what he had done. I at the time thought he had done a good act, but, great God, I soon saw that it was the worst blow ever struck for the south!

"I did the best I could for the poor fellow. I carried him papers to read and something to eat and tried to keep him in good spirits until I got a chance to send him across the river. The country was full of soldiers and detectives, and I did not know how soon I could get him away.

"I think it was the following Tuesday I went up to Port Tobacco to see how the land lay, and it was there, in the barroom of Brawner's hotel, that Captain William Williams, chief of the United States secret service, said he would give $300,000 to any man who would tell where Booth was. "That's true," admitted Captain Williams at the time of the above interview, "and he would have been General Jones instead of a discharged employe from the navy yard if he had given me the information."

"I did the best I could for Booth and Herold," continued Jones. "I did not know them, but when Cox put them in my keeping nothing would have tempted me to betray them. I could have placed my hands on Booth, but honor and truth were worth more to me than the entire wealth of the government.

"At the expiration of the sixth day I heard the officers give orders for the cavalry to go down in St. Mary's county; that the assassins were there. That was my chance, and I made good time to where Booth and Herold were concealed. Booth was glad to know that his time to get into Virginia had come.

"The night was dark, and Herold and I lifted Booth on to my horse. Our progress was slow. We finally reached my house, and I went in to get them something to eat. We then proceeded to the river. Booth was lifted into the boat and was placed in the stern, while Herold took the oars. I then lighted a candle and showed Booth by his compass how to steer to get into Machodoc creek and gave him directions to Mrs. Quisenberry's, who, I thought, would take care of him. That was the last I saw of Booth.

"When notices were posted up that to furnish bread or water to Booth meant death," went on Jones, "I felt pretty shaky. I knew that Booth had hit the Virginia shore. I was arrested and taken to Washington, where I was held for seven weeks. Then I was discharged because nobody believed I knew anything."—New York World.

Seat of the Thunder God. "Trembling mountain," a massive pile of peculiarly arranged rocks lying on Rogue river, almost directly north of Montreal, was known to the Indians by a combination of words signifying "seat of the thunder god." According to their traditions, the thunder god formerly used a broad and deep indentation on its summit as a seat, and that there in he would sit for three days in spring, seven in summer, five in autumn and two in winter. They also believed that during the time he was present great chasms would open in the side of the mountain, from which fire would stream for hours without ceasing. Nothing is known concerning the early history of the mountain, but it is thought that the legend refers to old time volcanic action, an opinion strengthened by its geographical name of "Trembling mountain."—St. Louis Republic.

An Opening. "Why don't you quit the stage and start a secondhand book store?" "I don't see why there is any special call for me to start a secondhand book store any more than any other business," replied the actor haughtily. "Oh, I thought it would suit you pretty well. It is the very place for back numbers."—Cincinnati Tribune.

A DINNER IN KOREA.

It is a Ceremonial That Extends Through the Entire Day.

"Korea, the country which caused all the trouble between China and Japan, has many queer social customs," said J. A. Morrill, "and I remember going to a banquet given by a member of the foreign office there, which, in many respects, was quite unique. The guests arrived long before the dinner hour, for in Korea an affair of this kind lasts all day, and were ushered into a pavilion adjacent to the one in which the dinner was to be served. After several half hours had been whiled away in smoking and in conversation the dinner was at last announced, and we were summoned into the other hall.

"As soon as we had entered the officials began to divest themselves of some of their clothing, for parts of a native's wearing apparel seriously incommode him in taking food. We took our places at a large rectangular table, which was heaped with food of all kinds in brazen dishes of hemispherical shape. For the first course we had soup and sul, which is a kind of wine, and for the second the waiters handed around some of the other dishes which stood on the table. These contained meats of various kinds—beef, pork and fried fish cut in thin yellow slices. At this juncture there entered several Korean singing girls, clad in the gaudiest costumes, and whose business it was to make themselves generally agreeable when at a banquet, for they constitute all the female society that there is in that country. Their singing was not what an American would call good, nor was their dancing, but their conversation and presence certainly added a zest to the occasion.

"Long as it is, a Korean banquet eventually comes to an end, and this one closed with a decoction of pear juice colored crimson and spiced with pine nuts. This we sipped at our leisure, while the attendants lighted pipes for us. After watching the performances of the singing girls we summoned our chairs and were carried to our various homes, I at least feeling much wiser by having participated in one of the queer customs of a queer people."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ROBBED BY PARROTS.

These Birds Play a Part in Shaping the Destiny of America.

A flight of birds, coupled with a sailor's superstition, robbed Columbus of the honor of discovering the continent. It is a curious but historical fact. When Columbus sailed westward over the unknown Atlantic, he expected to reach Zipangu, Japan. After several days' sail from Gouera, one of the Canary islands, he became uneasy at not discovering Zipangu, which, according to his reckoning, should have been 216 nautical miles more to the east.

After a long discussion he yielded to the opinion of Martin Alonso Pinzon, the commander of the Pinta, and steered to the southwest. Pinzon was guided in his opinion solely by a flight of parrots, which took wing in that direction. It was good luck to follow in the wake of a flight of birds when engaged upon a voyage of discovery—a widespread superstition among Spanish seamen of that day—and this change in the great navigator's course curiously exemplifies the influence of small and apparently trivial events in the world's history.

If Columbus had held to his course, he would have entered the gulf stream, have reached Florida and then probably have been carried to Cape Hatteras and Virginia. The result would probably have given the present United States a Roman Catholic Spanish population instead of a Protestant English one, a circumstance of immeasurable importance. "Never," wrote Humboldt, "had the flight of birds more important consequences."—Current Literature.

A Haunted Lumber Camp.

Strange tales come from the Sourdanhunk region in regard to Jack Reed's depot camp on the road leading to Strickland's mountain. The camp is built over the grave of a man who was killed in some unknown way, and the woodsman say the place is haunted. At any rate on every moonlight night a listener outside the camp can hear the sound of rolling stones that apparently are grating, grinding, rattling, plunking each other, as though sliding down a steep bank.

Diligent search has been made for the source of this strange noise, but so far no one has solved the mystery. Old lumbermen remember that the camp has been considered to be haunted for years, and the sound of the rolling stones has been heard on many a moonlight night in the past. Many lumbermen who are on their way into the Sourdanhunk region prefer to push by the depot camp and take a night tramp rather than sleep over that grave and hear those grinding, rolling stones.—Bangor News.

Nonsensical Names. It has been complained that foolish names are often bestowed on the materials in which we garb ourselves, and that it is nonsense to speak of "electric blue," "crushed strawberry" or "Loie Fuller," but such titles are sensible and descriptive compared to many used to describe fashionable tints in vogue during the reign of Louis XIV. What should we think nowadays of "consolidated widow," "expiring ape," "invalid Spaniard," "risen dead," "Jove's desire" and "baboon laughter?"—Chicago Post.

SLANDER.

'Twas but a breath— And yet a woman's fair name wiled, And friends once warm grow cold and stilled, And life was worse than death.

One venomed word, That struck its coward, poisoned blow, In craven whispers hushed and low, And yet the wide world heard.

'Twas but one whisper—one That muttered low for very shame, That thing the slanderer dare not name, And yet its work was done.

A hint so light, And yet so mighty in its power, A human soul in one short hour, Lies crushed beneath its blight.

MYSTIFIED AUTHORS.

Father Prout Made It His Business to Hoax Notable Characters.

Authors have often mystified the public, but a man who made a business of mystifying professional writers is a notable character. Such a one, however, was the Rev. Francis Mahony, better known as "Father Prout." His favorite trick was to take a well known and popular poem, translate it into another language, boldly assert that in its new form it possessed great antiquity and charge the author with having stolen it. This trick he played on more than one noted author during the early days of the present century, and each was sorely puzzled to explain the identity of the poem which he knew to be his own with that in a foreign language.

Prout translated Moore's "Go Where Glory Waits Thee" into excellent French verse, attributed it to Mme. La Comtesse de Chateaubriand and charged Moore with having stolen it bodily. The song, "Lesbia Hath a Beaming Eye," he rendered into choice Latin and claimed it as a youthful production of his own, which he had once shown to Moore. Another of Prout's achievements was the translation of Wolfe's "Burial of Sir John Moore" into French, claiming, at the same time, that the lines were written by Colonel de Beaumont, who was killed at Pondicherry in 1749.

Not satisfied with this, he proceeded further and translated the lines into German verse and stoutly declared that, while Wolfe had stolen from the French poet, the latter had in turn pilfered from the German, the latter poem having, as he stated, been written to commemorate the death and burial of the Swedish General Toistenson, who was killed at the siege of Dantzic. Poor Wolfe was dumfounded at seeing his popularity disappear and was not much comforted when the hoax was discovered.—Philadelphia Press.

One application of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil takes away the pain of the most severe burn. It is an ideal family liniment.

"Home, Sweet Home."

"Home, Sweet Home," Payne's song, was originally a number in the opera "Clari, the Maid of Milan," a production brought out in 1823. The opera was a failure, and nothing is now known of it save the one song, which became instantly popular. Over 100,000 copies were sold in the first year of its publication, and the sale in one form or another has been constant ever since the first appearance of this beautiful theme. The melody is a Sicilian folk song and was adapted to the words by Payne himself.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

ON THE EVE OF WAR.

NEBRASKA INDIAN TROUBLE BECOMING SERIOUS.

Dispute Between the Government Agent and the Flournoy Company Reaches a Climax—The Trouble in North Dakota.

Pender, Neb., May 1.—Sheriff Mullin openly declared yesterday if a single white settler was murdered by Indian police while resisting eviction before the courts settled the Winnebago reservation matter it meant annihilation of the Winnebagos.

The refusal of Federal Judges Dunfy and Riner at Lincoln to grant a mandatory injunction requiring the tenants of the Flournoy Live Stock and Real Estate Company to vacate the Indian lands they claim on the Winnebago reservation has brought the dispute to a climax.

Under holdings of the federal judges the order issued last March by Judge Sanborn of the northern district was continued in force until further orders of the court.

TROOPS NEEDED.

All the North Dakota Trouble Caused by Canadian Half-Breeds.

Devil's Lake, N. D., May 1.—After sifting information from all available sources here, there seems no doubt that the serious state of affairs at Turtle Mountain is mostly if not entirely caused by Canadian half-breeds.

American Indians and half-breeds seem satisfied to await the deliberations of the United States commissioners in settling the question, but the Canadian half-breeds, whose claim is denied and seems to be without equity, persist in asserting claim, disturbing settlers, exciting American half-breeds, committing timber depredations, and going even to the extent of burning houses, in their own district, creating shiftness and disrespect of law.

In 1885 the feed canal burst above Bouzey and carried away a length of sixty feet. Several houses were destroyed on this occasion, but no lives were lost.

This shape of the dam is now given as the cause of the accident, but there is a possibility that the disaster was caused by the illness for fifteen days of the inspector who was charged with the supervision of the dam.
