WEDDINGS AND DEPARTS

Two of Ann Arbor's Charming Young Women Led to the Altar.

ANOTHER WELL-KNOWN PIONEER GONE.

Successful Summer School.—Death of Andrew Hiller.—Teacher's Institute.—Why Plumbing Should be Inspected.

Cramer—Clement.

Miss Alice Cramer, Ph. B., youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Cramer, of Ann Arbor, was married Wednesday evening to Dr. Willard K. Clement of the State University at Moscow, Idaho. Rev. Dr. Camden M. Coburn officiated. Only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present. After the ceremony delicate refreshments were served. The happy couple left on the eleven o'clock train for Montreal and Quebec. They will spend the summer at the home of Dr. Clement's mother in Brandon, Vt, and be at home after Sept. 20th in Moscow, Idaho. Mrs. Clement for many years sang in the M. E. church of Ann Arbor, where her beautiful soprano voice edified thousands.

The good wishes of the large circle of friends of the happy couple will accompany them through life. Among the guests present were Hon. Byron S. Waite and family of Menominee, Mich., Professor Orcott, of Ishpeming, Profs. Beman and Kelsey and wives, Messdames Pack, Penny, Vosmus and Depew, Misses Minnie Depew, Southmayd, Wilsey and Durheim and the Misses Duffy. The happy couple were remembered with numerous handsome and valuable wedding presents.

The Necessity for Plumbing Inspection.

People who have had plumbing work done since rules governing plumbing were adopted by the city realize the necessity for careful inspection of such work. The inspection provided for in the plumbing rules is intended as a necessary sanitary protection for the residents of the city. Too much care cannot be exercised when the interior of our homes are to be connected with the noisome gases of the sewer or cesspool to make sure that the fixtures and plumbing are so arranged as to prevent dangerous gases from backing up into our living rooms. If the plumbing is not properly executed, there may be more danger from sewer connection than from none at all. Defective plumbing is always a menace to health. Through it the foul vapors rising from the refuse of a city insidiously contaminate the atmosphere of the house and breed disease. By this means also contagious diseases may be spread from house to house and from locality to locality.

Anything which concerns public health is of public interest and it is wise and proper for municipal authority to step in and by careful supervision of each work protect the public from this danger. The inspection is intended to insure the occupants of a dwelling connected with the sewer that the fixtures, traps, waste pipes, ventilating pipes and house sewer shall be constructed of such material and in such a manner that such plumbing will do its work effectively without exposing them to the dangers of sewer gas.

University Summer School.

The second annual session of the University summer school opened last Monday with the most flattering prospects. There are already two hundred students on hand. The session will continue six weeks.

A number of prominent educators from other states are here to take up advanced work. Among them being Professor William McCracken, professor of physics and chemistry in Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa., who is doing special advanced work in biology. Professor DeBar, professor of physics and chemistry in Oklahoma University is studying here as is also Professor McAndle, professor of mathematics in North Dakota State University and Professor A. J. Howard, colored, professor of mathematics and astronomy in a Mississippi college. There are also a number of city superintendents of schools of Michigan in attendance, among them the following: Supt. William Bellis of Quincy who has spent several summers at the Cornell summer school, Supt. J. R. Miller of Big Rapids, Supt. L. J. Leisenring of Sturgis, Supt. Biscome and wife of Cassopolis and the superintendent and several teachers from Nashville.

The presence of such people indicates that the reputation of the summer school is widening and that these prominent educators consider it a place where they may get value received for their time and money expended. All this seems to imply that the summer school is now established on a firm basis and that it is destined to become an important and popular educational factor. There is no conceivable reason why it should not or why it should not become equally as valuable and successful as those in other sections of the country. There is a constantly growing demand for summer schools and Ann Arbor should not an evidently does not intend to be backward about taking a leading position in this respect as it does in all other educational matters.

The courses offered this season are various and strong and are under the direction of experienced teachers, and hence the opportunities for advanced work and research are first class.

In addition to the regular work, arrangements have been made for a series of popular lectures by President Angell, Professors Hinsdale, Demmon, Kelsey, Thomas, Carhart and others.

If the first week is any testification to judge from, the success of the session is assured.

"Accidental."

Tuesday afternoon a report became current on the street that a man somewhere in the city had dropped dead suddenly. The report was investigated and the discovery made that Andrew Hiller was the man and that he lay dead in his yard. Before any examination had been made it was supposed that he had died from heart failure as he was known to be subject to fainting spells. A revolver lay by his side but little suspicion attached to this for the reason that it was known that he frequently handled the revolver as a sort of plaything. Doctor A. K. Hale and Coroner Ball were summoned and they at once found the cause of death to be a bullet wound in the head just above the right ear. A jury was empaneled and the inquest held Wednesday morning at the residence of Louis Schneider, 59 S. Seventh street. The following persons constituted the jury: M. J. Lehman, J. D. Ryan, T. H. Wadhams, Frank E. Legg, P. J. Lehman and W. M. Sturgeon. After considering all the evidence, which was very meager, there being no witnesses of the deed, they rendered a verdict that the shooting was "accidental." The testimony developed the fact that he was subject to fainting spells and the supposition was that he had the revolver in his hand it was discharged resulting in his death.

Earlier in the day he was considerably under the influence of drink and it is claimed that he had a number of times when in that condition threatened to take his life.

He had been a resident of Ann Arbor for many years, had raised a large family, but at the time of his death was living alone. He was about sixty-one years old.

The Teachers' Institute.

The state teachers' institute for Washtenaw county will be held at Ann Arbor commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. Monday, July 29, and closing at 4 p. m. Friday, August 2.

There is no doubt as to the value of a good live institute. Experience proves that, as a rule, the most successful, alert, progressive teachers are those who avail themselves of the work given at such meetings.

The persons in charge of the instruction at these institutes are those who have had practical experience in school-works and know how to impart to others a portion of what they have gained in this experience. Effort has been put forth to give the county the best institute ever held.

The work will combine professional and academic instruction. The institute will be divided into sections, and the instructors will conduct classes for the purpose of reviewing some studies, and also to illustrate certain methods of instruction. The workers have been urged to arrange for calisthenic exercises, singing, marching, and the like, so as to make the work move off cheerily and without fatigue.

The time for study at the institute will be necessarily limited, and in order to permit the most profitable of class exercises the following topics are suggested, so that those who purpose attending may make some preparation:

Arithmetic—(1) Mental arithmetic drill; (2) applications in percentage.

Grammar—(1) Substantive clauses; (2) synopsis of verbs; (3) analysis of sentences, selected from Vision of Sir Launfal.

Geography—(1) Michigan; (2) model outline of Europe.

History—(1) 1789-1815; (2) slavery; (3) political parties; (4) important current events.

Physiology—(1) The skin; (2) health lessons—see manual for country schools—(3) circulation of blood; (4) the eye.

Civil Government—(1) Legislative officers of the nation, state, county, city, village; (2) compare duties of governor and president; (3) prohibitions on states, on congress.

Pedagogy—The sixth and seventh chapters of Putnam's Primer, or its equivalent.

Reading and Orthography—Vision of Sir Launfal. A spelling match will be conducted on Michigan Test and fifty technical words of physiology and geography.

The preceding topics are given to aid in a proper preparation for the work. Bring any text-books. Be thinking and studying along the lines of the topics suggested, and even a week's institute may be made very profitable with class work and lectures combined.

There will be no enrollment fee, and every wide awake pedagog or would-be pedagog, should arrange to attend every session. Try to be present at the first session.

Full particulars in regard to board, etc., may be obtained upon application to the local committee, Commissioner W. W. Wedemeyer, Ann Arbor.

Destructive Fire.

About 2 o'clock last Saturday morning people living in the vicinity of George Craig's were awakened by a very bright light streaming into their windows and the crackling of flames. The source of the flame was at once discovered to be George's livery barn. The first person to see the fire was Mrs. Lane and she at once aroused Mr. Craig who summoned the fire department. The department responded in its usual quick time and did fine execution. It was surprising how quick the flames went down when the department began to play on them. The fire had progressed too far however before it was discovered to permit the saving of the barn or contents. Two of the seven horses were saved and that was all. One horse got out of the burning building in such a frightfully burned condition that it had to be shot. Four horses burned to death were they stood in their stalls. Besides the horses George lost considerable quantity of hay and grain, blankets, 10 sets of harness, two hacks, six buggies, a baggage wagon and a pair of bob sleighs. The outbuildings along with the barn were destroyed, the house alone being saved.

It is understood that the barn was insured for something like $600 and the contents for $2000. The loss is probably $3000 or more. The origin of the fire is a mystery as none of the rigs were out that night and no one had been in the barn with a light of any kind.

Mr. Craig has the sympathy of the people generally in his misfortune. He is well thought of by one and all and has worked hard for the success he has achieved in his business. It is understood that he will rebuild.

Death of a Pioneer.

The community was greatly surprised last Friday afternoon when the news spread upon the streets that Ex-Sheriff Thomas F. Leonard had died very suddenly. He was seen on the street but a brief time before and it did not seem possible that he could be dead. But such proved to be the case.

He had not been feeling well for some days and Friday afternoon as he was suffering from a pain in the stomach he went to Doctor Smith's office to get some medicine and there he died about 5 o'clock. Dr. Smith gave him some medicine which partially relieved the pain and Mr. Leonard lay down on a couch in the office while the doctor went out for a few minutes. On his return he found Mr. Leonard breathing his last.

The funeral took place from his late residence on E. Ann street Sunday afternoon at four o'clock, Rev. Mr. Verbor officiating.

The pall bearers were Joseph C. Watts, Charles S. Millen, Leonard Gruner, and Dr. W. B. Smith. A number of friends and relatives from abroad were present at the funeral. The remains were temporarily deposited in the vault in Forrest Hill cemetery and on Wednesday were removed from there and finally interred in Pray's cemetery in Superior where his two wives are buried.

Mr. Leonard was a native of New York, having been born at Mems, August 14, 1818. When but 14 years of age he came to the then territory of Michigan and settled in Superior township, this county. Six years later he married Mary Ann Reed, who bore him a son and a daughter. This son, Andrew Leonard, the only one of his children who survives him, is a farmer residing near Milan. The daughter died in Colorado about six years ago. His first wife died and he married for his second Lora Geer whom he survived six years. By her he had one child, a son that died in infancy.

During the last fifty years "Tom Leonard" as he was familiarly called, has been a prominent character in the county and has had much to do with public affairs. In 1858 he was elected sheriff of the county and served one term. He made a fearless and daring officer and many are the stories told of his ability and skill in capturing law breakers. He never allowed any desperate character to escape because of the danger attending an effort to capture him. He was defeated for election in 1860 not because he had not made a faithful and efficient officer but because his party ticket went under. He ran several hundred votes ahead of his ticket. From that time on he served the public in various capacities, as deputy sheriff, constable and policeman, always with the same efficiency and faithfulness.

He lived in Ann Arbor from 1842 up to the time of his death except during the war when he was in the jewelry business at Jackson.

He formerly owned the present Franklin house. It was then known as the Leonard house.

He never lacked for friends, since every one knew that underneath his gruff exterior beat a warm generous kindly heart.

He was nearly eighty years of age and acquainted with all the hardships of pioneer life, and yet he looked much younger. He will be missed greatly on our streets and many a heart will continue to hold gruff "Tom Leonard" in kindly remembrance.

Thinks Hay will be Cheaper.

"You will see hay $12 a ton next spring," said N. Curtiss, the retired butcher and drover of Dundee. "The farmers will feed every scrap of everything they have, and next spring hay will be down in price. If we get only a little rain, they will sow Hungarian grass, and its large yield of two to four tons an acre will help out the feed. I have always noticed that when a product is very high in the fall, it is low in the spring. The country is so large, that when the price is very high on an article it is shipped in from other places. I will not have to buy any hay, as I have enough to feed my ten horses."

Boylan—Beal.

Miss Minnie, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Boylan was united in marriage to Elmer E. Beal, of Ann Arbor, Tuesday evening. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. M. Coburn, at the bride's residence, in the presence of numerous relatives and friends. Mr. Rice A. Beal, brother of the groom attended him and Miss Anna Muma acted as bridesmaid. The bride is a most estimable young lady who has a very large circle of friends. Mr. Beal is a rising young business man of the city and is well liked by all who know him. Few, if any, happy couple start in life with more friends who wish them success.

How we Celebrated at the County House.

As early as 4 a. m. an occasional fire cracker was heard in different places around the yard, but the sport of the day began in the woman's department when "our Emma," a young colored girl who has been saving her pennies for several weeks, brought out a half dozen bunches of fire crackers and made the house ring. After a bountiful dinner we were treated to bananas and lemonade, the former a present to us from Caspar Rinsey, who also contributed a fine lot of fireworks for the evening, which together with one dollar's worth from Miss H. T., an employe, furnished the inmates quite a nice entertainment.

There were Roman candles, beautifully colored, wheels, chasers, and more firecrackers which had been kept hidden through the day, appearing in great profusion all at once to the dismay of poor Frank W., who was in mortal terror, imagining he was burning up, but he did his share by singing the "Sweet Bye and Bye," in response to repeated calls for a song. This was the finale, and signal for retiring.

After three rousing cheers for the singer the company separated, each going to his own apartments, and soon all were sound asleep.

We want to thank Mr. Rinsey for his thoughtfulness, also a friend who furnished candy all around.

ADRIAN PRESS WASHTENAWISMS.

The Ann Arbor Choral union has grabbed Time by the top knot, so to speak, and begun its preparations for the May festival of 1896. The Theodore Thomas aggregation has been placed under contract, and the price of season tickets is already announced.

A year or so ago a bull hooked a poet at Willis and nearly killed him. Bulls are sometimes impetuous, but do not always lack judgment. Another man there was terribly hurt in the face last week while testing milk. A bottle burst and filled his face with the fluid.

The Whitmarsh-Putnam gas well at Milan continues to gush like an old time greenbacker. Arrangements are being made to harness it for domestic service. The Leader remarks with a fine squirt of descriptive fancy; "In the evening it is a strange and lurid sight to see the geyser—water and fire combined—blazing and spouting many feet in the air."

Miss Rose M. Wood-Allen, a young lady of the Ann Arbor high school, graduated to the essay of "A Psycho-Chemical Discovery," built on the microbe theory, the argument being that human character and thought would yet be determined by analysis of the bacilli contained in individuals. Microbes she avers, may be exchanged by kisses. It pains us to not be able as yet to embrace Miss Rose M. Wood-Allen's position when she offers her kissing theory; but we cannot suck a new doctrine, the proof of which is not within reach. The only way in which Miss Rose M. Wood-Allen can establish the orthodoxy of her theory with us will be under the reciprocity act, through the medium of an osculatory swap. She is invited to browse around our mustache.

Prof. Geo. Dennison, of Milan, last week took a Hack and departed for the state of matrimony, arriving safely. He was united in marriage to Miss Nina C. Hack, at the home of the bride, and after a wedding banquet both took a hack for the Washab depot. The bride's brother, Milton Hack, was married the evening previous, and the quartette rolled away on the same train.

MERCURIAL POISON RHEUMATISM. Is the result of the usual treatment of blood disorders. The system is filled with Mercury and Potash remedies—more to be dreaded than the disease—and in a short while is in a far worse condition than before. The most common result is RHEUMATISM for which S. S. S. is the most reliable cure. A few bottles will afford relief where all else has failed.

Did You Ever Think That you cannot be well unless you have pure, rich blood? If you are weak, tired, languid and all run down, it is because your blood is impoverished and lacks vitality. These troubles may be overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure, rich blood. It is, in truth, the great blood purifier.

Just What's Needed. Explain thousands of people who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at this season of the year, and who have noted the success of the medicine in giving them relief from that tired feeling, waning appetite and state of extreme exhaustion after the close confinement of a long winter season, the busy time attendant upon a large and pressing business during the spring months and with vacation time yet some weeks distant. It is then that the building up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are fully appreciated. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration caused by change of season, climate or life; and while it tones and sustains the system, it purifies and vitalizes the blood.

Adopted. The result of the ballot was as follows:

Paris S. Banfield, 2 Wm. Fletcher, 1.

Mr. Bullis moved that the Board elect a second inspector.

Marvelous Results. From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction, she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery. It was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results. Trial bottles free at the drug stores of Eberbach Drug and Chemical Co., of Ann Arbor, and Geo. J. Haussler, of Manchester. THE FIRST LOCOMOTIVE.

It Was Built by Oliver Evans, Who Couldn't Lay Up Money.

The real inventor of the locomotive never realized a cent from his invention.

His name was Oliver Evans. He was born in Delaware in 1756 and spent all his life perfecting inventions which were destined to bring him nothing but more poverty. He was the original inventor of the high pressure engine used in locomotives, the only kind that could be employed to advantage in this form of transportation, but realized nothing for his idea.

His application of the notion to both land and water power was somewhat novel.

In 1804 the municipality of Philadelphia called for bids for the dredging of the river and the cleaning of the docks. Evans put in a bid lower than any of his competitors, and when it was accepted determined to build a steamboat to do the work.

He fitted out a scow with a steam engine, building both the engine and the scow in his own workshop.

When the boat was ready to be launched, Evans determined to give the people of Philadelphia an object lesson in mechanics, so he put the boat on wheels, fitted up a push wheel behind, set his engine to work and propelled the boat through the streets to the river in the midst of an open mouthed throng, not a few of whom had a dim idea that he ought to be arrested for witchcraft.

When the boat reached the bank of the river, the wheels and axles were taken off, the craft was launched, fitted out with other wheels and made to do the work of dredging the harbor.

So far as the invention of mechanical devices went, Evans had a splendid genius, but when dollars and cents came up for consideration he was a mere child, and even allowed himself to be cheated out of the money that was due him for cleaning the Philadelphia harbor with his new fangled steamboat.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Walker Was Riddled with Bullets. MEMPHIS, July 11.—William Walker, a noted desperado who has been robbing and terrorizing the people of his own race in the Fourth district of this county, has been killed by William Walton, colored, a member of a posse which had besieged Walker in his own house, he having refused to submit to arrest. After remaining indoors all night Walker made a break into the yard armed with a Winchester rifle and ordered the posse to clear out. Walker fired on him and other members of the posse followed his example. Walker was riddled with bullets.

NOT FOR CHICAGO.

Headquarters of the Society of Christian Endeavor.

WORLD'S FAIR CITY MAKES A BID.

Kohlsaat, of The Times-Herald, Offering to Pay $5,000 Per Year for Three Years Towards Expenses if Headquarters Were Removed from the Hub to the Western Metropolis, but the Offer is Declined—Great Religious Gathering.

BOSTON, July 11.—The most important proceedings in connection with the fourteenth annual convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, which formally opened at 9:30 a. m. today, was the meeting of the trustees of the organization at noon yesterday. The session lasted all the afternoon with a brief intermission for lunch. The chief business to be considered was the offer of H. H. Kohlsaat, of the Chicago Times-Herald, who had agreed to pay $5,000 a year for three years towards the maintenance of the society's headquarters, on condition that they be moved from Boston to Chicago. After a committee had passed adversely upon the subject and reported the report was unanimously accepted, and the headquarters will not be removed from Boston at present.

Impressive Headquarters Not Needed. Kohlsaat's offer was presented to the trustees by Rev. John Henry Barrows, of Chicago. The committee appointed to consider the matter consisted of Barrows, James L. Hill, D. D., of Salem, Mass., and Nehemiah Boynton, D. D., of Boston. The committee reported their appreciation of the generosity of Kohlsaat's offer which, they were pleased to note, indicated that the work of the society was thereby recognized as being of a national and international character. The work, however, is wholly one of influence. It is not necessary that the society should have large buildings or incomes. The work is successfully carried on at a nominal expense and the principles of the organization forbid the headquarters being more than a bureau of information, levying no taxes and seeking no authority.

Los Angeles Bids for Next Year. The only other matter of general interest was the presentation of the claims of Los Angeles, Cal., for the convention of 1897. The delegates from lower California, which presented the claims of Los Angeles, included Leonard Merrill, state secretary of the society, who made the argument and urged as chief among his reasons the facts that the city was the only one on the Pacific slope that had three railroads running into it; that its climate at this time of the year was superb and unobscured; that the Endeavorers there had already raised considerable money in anticipation of getting the convention, and that the business men of the place had guaranteed to subscribe enough to cover the expenses of a convention.

Location To Be Decided Today. The trustees then accepted an invitation from Mary Curtis, of Boston, to go with other guests on a trip down the harbor on the city's boat and to visit the public institutions of Boston. The trustees will meet today to decide the matter of the '97 convention for which Portland (Or.), San Francisco and Seattle are also aspirants, and also to take action looking towards the extension of the society into a world's organization.

BOSTON IN GALA ATTIRE. And Still Figuring on Having 50,000 Visitors to Entertain. The city was never more lavishly decorated and never appeared to better advantage. At the reception headquarters at Mechanics hall messengers are constantly bringing reports from the 1,000 white-capped Endeavorers who are at the railroad stations and boat landings, giving aid and directions to the delegates who are coming in from all parts of the country. By noon yesterday about 5,000 delegates had registered at Mechanics hall. It is estimated that when the initial religious exercises preceding the convention began last night at the twenty meetings 80,000 delegates had arrived.

It is expected that about 15,000 more delegates reached the city last night and early this morning, and the indications are that fully 50,000 delegates will attend the various meetings of the convention. The reception committee has met no difficulty in disposing of the throngs of delegates. The hotels are expected to take care of about 10,000 persons, and accommodations have been secured for 40,000 in the city and its suburbs. The great restaurant in Mechanics hall is ready to feed 15,000 persons daily, and 80,000 lunches can be supplied to delegates at the two big tents on the Common.

A large number of delegations arrived yesterday afternoon. Soon after 4 o'clock Iowa was heard from with 500, and the first Indiana section numbering 150 to be followed by 100 more this morning. Illinois had the banner delegation of the afternoon, when 1,000 Endeavorers reached here. Michigan and Ohio, with 800 delegates, were represented early today.

The spirit of the Endeavorers was given a preliminary test at nineteen meetings held simultaneously last night in nineteen different churches in the city's suburbs. These churches are mostly headquarters of the different delegations, large numbers of whom attended the meetings, together with hundreds of outsiders. The latter gathered about the entrances early, but were kept out until the delegations had been accommodated and then in many cases scores had to be turned away.

Horrible Method of Suicide. OSKALOOSA, Ia., July 11.—Mrs. Phil Conklin committed suicide in a horrible manner at her home in the eastern part of the city, by saturating her clothing with kerosene oil and lighting it. When her husband arose he found her in the back yard burned to death. She was 39 years old and leaves a husband and three small children.

Three Days' Fighting in Cuba. SANTIAGO DE CUBA, July 11.—Brig. Gen. Gasco, commanding the Spanish troops at Cristo, reports having had a three days' battle with the insurgents at Sierra Maestra, in this province, capturing a quantity of arms, provisions, etc. No details of the fighting have yet been received.

Trouble Not Over in the Coal Regions. HUNTINGTON, W. Va., July 11.—A telegram from the Elkhorn mining region is to the effect that trouble is breeding again among the strikers, and that an outbreak may occur at any time. The militia here is expecting to be ordered out again.

DRAKE NOMINATED

To Lead the Republicans of the Hawkeye State.

SIX BALLOTS REQUIRED TO WIN.

During Which the Nominee Gradually Grows in Strength Until He Has 864 Votes—Rest of the Ticket Quickly Chosen—Platform for "Sound Money" and Allison for President—Blackburn Denies a New York Herald Special.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 11.—The Republican state convention held in the auditorium of Cavalry Tabernacle was the center of interest to politicians in this state. Among those on the stage at the opening was Senator Allison, and when he appeared the entire assemblage arose and united in a series of tremendous cheers. Senator Allison bowed his acknowledgment, but maintained silence. Chairman Blythe named J. R. Lane, of Davenport, as temporary chairman. Lane's speech was short, but its delivery was delayed by almost incessant applause. On the silver question he said: "In my view we should favor bimetalism, the use of both silver and gold, with the largest use of silver in our currency that will not impair or endanger in any way the parity in value of all money in circulation, whether metallic or paper. We should favor an international conference to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world."

Not in Favor of Free Coinage. "The United States should not open its mints to free coinage of silver until an arrangement has been made with other commercial nations whereby they will agree to concurrently open their mints. Let this convention, with the spirit of harmony and wisdom that prevails among you, do what is right and 75,000 will be our majority." At the conclusion of Lane's speech the usual committees were announced and convention adjourned to 2 p. m. The auditorium was packed with delegates (of whom there was a full attendance) and onlookers, and the whole throng was very enthusiastic.

Permanent Organization Effected. When the convention was called to order again at 2 o'clock Governor Jackson and other dignitaries occupied the platform and every seat in the auditorium was filled. Hon. LaFayette Young, editor of The Daily Capitol, was elected permanent chairman, and J. W. Willets, of Tama county, secretary. Considerable difficulty was experienced in securing seats for the delegates. Chairman Young was escorted to the chair and made a brief speech in which he said that neither defeat nor success seems to have any effect on the Democratic party. It was needless, he thought, to say anything about the Democrats. "They were saying worse things of each other than he dare to say of them. An allusion to the 'valley of the shadow of the Democracy' evoked the wildest applause."

Drake Nominated for Governor. The convention then proceeded to ballot for governor and it required six ballots to settle this matter, Drake beginning at 363 with Harlan next, 248, and gradually climbing—435, 500, 556, 597—to 864 on the sixth, Harlan having 139 3-14 on that ballot; Parrott, 231 3-14; Harsh, 2; Kamrar, 2; and Ormsby, 2. With the announcement of the vote Chairman Young declared General Drake the nominee of the convention for governor. After prolonged cheering balloting for lieutenant-governor was commenced. Matt Parrott, of Waterloo, was nominated on the third ballot, defeating Lieutenant-Governor Dungan, of Chariton, for re-election. In rapid succession Henry Sabin was renominated for superintendent of public instruction; George W. Perkins for railroad commissioner and Josiah Given for judge of the supreme court.

PLATFORM AS IT WAS ADOPTED. What It Says of the Money Question—Senator Allison Indorsed.

During the balloting for lieutenant-governor General Drake reached the convention hall, and amid cheering made a short speech containing very happy allusions to his competitors before the convention. He said he was prepared to make a very vigorous campaign, and that upon the broad national platform adopted by the convention. The platform was presented to the convention during the balloting for governor, and was adopted without debate or dissent. It reaffirms fealty to the "great principles of the Republican party from its birth," and declares that the commercial and industrial history of the past few years vindicates completely the policy of protection. "The Democratic tariff bill is denounced, but in many of its points, it is declared, it maintains the principle which the Democratic party declares to be unconstitutional. On currency the platform says: "We affirm the declaration of the Republican national platform of 1892 adopted at Minneapolis that the American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with such restriction and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of the value of the two metals that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold or paper, shall be at all times equal."

"The interest of the producers of the country, its farmers and the working man, demands that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the government shall be as good as any other. We urge that the United States exert its influence to establish with the important commercial nations of the world such an international agreement as will enable this country to reopen its mints to the free and unlimited coinage of both metals without loss of one or the other from the volume of our money." The platform favors restriction of immigration and pensions for all honorably discharged Union soldiers, and closes with an indorsement of Senator Allison. The resolution of indorsement of Allison, after congratulating the people "upon the fact that the state of Iowa will be represented in the fifty-fourth congress by two senators and eleven representatives, who are zealous and fearless advocates of Republican principles," says: "With especial pride do we remember the distinguished services of our senior senator. . . . We hail with satisfaction the universal desire of the Republicans of the state to continue him in his present field of usefulness until called to the larger services of the nation." At a meeting of the state central committee H. G. McMillan, of Rock Rapids, was elected chairman to succeed James E. Blythe.

BLACKBURN STILL IN THE RACE.

The Kentucky Statesman Denies a Special Printed at New York.

VERSAILLES, Ky., July 11.—Senator Blackburn laughed when shown a telegram from the New York Herald saying it was reported in the east that he had withdrawn from the senatorial race. "I was never more in the race than I am now," said the senator, "and I never felt more confident of success." When asked about the reports that he had been requested by the chairman of the state committee to not make any more silver speeches he said: "The committee has made no request of me to ignore the currency question."

"The late state convention, by a very decided majority, refused to put a free silver plank in the platform, and by a very much more decided majority it refused to indorse a single gold standard. Its only utterance on the currency question was a reaffirmation of the national platform of 1892, leaving the party in Kentucky, so far as this issue is concerned, precisely where it has been for the last three years. My views upon this subject are well known and of long standing. They have not been changed or modified to any extent whatever."

CORNELL CREW GOES TO PIECES.

Another Disappointment at the Henley Regatta in England.

HENLEY, July 11.—The crowds who collected to witness the second day's competition at the Henley regatta were treated to another fluke, where a hot contest had been expected. Cornell was the fluker this time, but it wasn't such a fluke as Leander made. The American crew was pitted against the Trinity Hall crew and had the lead of a boat's length at the half mile. Here Freeborn had a dazy spell and dropped his oar.

Cornell was paralyzed by this, and Trinity Hall shot ahead. Next Hager dropped his oar and Fennell followed. All picked up again, but were evidently exhausted and the Trinity Hall crew went across the line eight lengths ahead; time, 7:15. As Cornell crossed the line Fennell fell in a dead faint, soon recovering, however. In fact the whole crew was "pumped out." The victory was a popular one, for the Englishmen are out of all reason against Cornell for not stopping when Leander made its fluke of the day before.

This event makes it certain that the challenge cup will not go to America. Cornell and its friends had one consolation during the day. The Thames Rowing club four boat "out of sight" at Leander four, all members of the crew that fluked Tuesday, and as it happens the four who have been bitterest in their criticisms of the Cornell boys.

Gov. Altgeld and Crafts.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., July 11.—Governor Altgeld appeared very much annoyed when he learned that a majority of the Democrats of the house voted for Crafts as their candidate for speaker, in spite of the governor's expressed desire that Crafts be not nominated. In an interview last night the governor charged Crafts with advocating measures not only vicious, but which had become known, whether rightfully or wrongfully, as "boodler" measures. The governor talked in this strain at great length. Crafts, when he heard of this interview, said he regards the course of the governor as most remarkable in endeavoring to control the action of the caucus. As to the charges of boodling against him, Crafts said he had no apologies to make to any one for his course upon any public question or bill.

Caucus Action Ratified.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., July 11.—W. G. Cochran was elected speaker of the house in ratification of the action of the Republican caucus, receiving 87 votes to 35 for Clayton E. Crafts, the Democratic nominee, who failed to get the full Democratic vote—being 26 short—it is said because of Governor Altgeld's opposition to nominating anybody. No business of importance was transacted other than the above. In the senate bills were introduced: To amend the act regarding the assessment, levy and collection of taxes; to arbitrate labor disputes and to amend the appellate court act.

Delicate girl made strong by Zoa Phora.

THAT ALLEGED EUSTIS TALK.

It Is Unfortunate for Him Because He Wants to Resign His Job.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Up to this time the alleged very remarkable utterances—for a man in his position—of Ambassador Eustis at Paris have not been brought to the attention of the state department, although it is reported that Spain is desirous of knowing whether Eustis did say what is quoted. The officials here have taken note, however, of the reported interview and even without the denial of the authenticity of the interview given out by Ambassador Eustis it is generally discredited here.

It is unfortunate for Eustis that this particular story should be published at the present time, even though he succeeds in stamping it as baseless; for it is well calculated to affect his future. It may be stated that he has not found his post to be particularly attractive to him, and some time ago he made it known that he would like to relinquish it. Now, however, it is probable that he must remain for some time at Paris, even against his own inclinations, for the sole purpose of showing that his relinquishment of his post is not in any way to be connected with the publication of the interview.

WASHINGTON COURTHOUSE, July 11.—At the free silver rally and conference held here yesterday afternoon General A. J. Warner was present, but Senator Blackburn, W. J. Bryan, and A. W. Thurman, who were advertised to speak, did not come. General Coxey, of the Industrial army, came, but arrived too late for the afternoon session. He addressed a large audience at the Opera House last night.

IN MEMORY OF MARQUETTE.

On August 5, at St. Ignace, a beautiful mable shaft is to be unveiled and dedicated to the memory of Father Marquette, the famous French priest and explorer. It is fitting that his memory be thus preserved, yet how unnecessary; for the fascinating story of his life and works is forever preserved in our school histories and from thence transferred to the memories of each succeeding generation of school boys and girls. What school boy or girl has not followed with delight the story of his journey, in company with Joliet, in search of the great "Father of Waters"—the trip from Mackinaw to the head of Green Bay; the paddle up Fox river in birch bark canoes; how they carried the canoes across to the Wisconsin down which they dropped with the current; their floating out on a beautiful day in June upon the broad bosom of the upper Mississippi, and their three weeks silent journey whithersoever the river would carry them—past open prairies and by miles of unbroken forests—until they reached the spot where DeSoto had crossed more than a hundred years before; their laborious return; their work among the Indians; their wintering in a rude cabin, the first human residence on the present site of Chicago; his continued journey in the spring, stricken with disease, and his death just after Easter, at a point in Michigan just below the promontory known as Sleeping Bear. From here his remains were carried to St. Ignace and deposited in a vault in the center of the church. It is not definitely known what was done with the bones of Marquette when the Jesuits broke up their mission at St. Ignace in 1706. But wherever they may now be resting the monument erected in his honor by his admirers will be equally potent.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge has given notice of his intention to introduce a bill in congress next session defining in some degree or manner the duty of the executive arm of the government relative to the famous "Monroe Doctrine." It is to be hoped that he will persevere in his intention. Up to the present time the doctrine has never received legislative confirmation. During the last fifty years various efforts have been made looking in that direction and resolution after resolution has been introduced into congress but each and every one has ultimately been withdrawn or adversely reported upon by the committee having it in charge. It would no doubt be difficult to define by legislation the scope and limitations of the doctrine and when it shall be the duty of the executive to apply it yet there would be advantages in having some sort of legislative pronouncement upon it. That the real Monroe doctrine involves principles in which the American people are profoundly interested and in which they most earnestly believe and adherence to which has been and will be productive of beneficial results to the people of both American continents, there is none to dispute. But there are certain classes of our people such as the jingoists, the tail-twisters and after-dinner statesmen, who interpret it in such a broad sense as would make a veritable bully of Uncle Sam should any effort be made to carry out their views. Their position seems to be that it is the duty of the United States to stand in front of each of the Central and South American nations in all cases of differences with European countries, no matter which party "hath its quarrel just" and say to the governments of Europe "take me." In other words that this country should as some a virtual protectorate over the Spanish American governments so far as the dealings of European governments with them is concerned, while at the same time permitting them to conduct themselves as they please toward Europeans and their interests. These people can always be depended upon to make considerable noise in case of international complications and thereby farther complicate matters. Legislative action in some degree fixing the limitations of the doctrine, would tend to keep these persons within reasonable bounds and relieve the executive department from embarassment in dealing with international questions by indicating the extent to which congress desired it to go. The doctrine will become more forceful in proportion as its principles are clearly defined and shown to be just.

SOUND ADVICE.

United States consul, Allan B. Morse, of Glasgow, Scotland, ex-chief justice of the Michigan supreme court and democratic candidate for governor in 1892, has written the following letter of warning and advice to the democrats of Ionia county his old home:

"Do not, I pray you, run after false gods. Stop and reflect before you pass any more resolutions, or commit yourselves, further in favor of the unlimited free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

What does such coinage mean? It means:

1. That every holder of silver bullion in the United States can take such bullion to the mints and have it returned without expense to him, stamped as a dollar, to be used as a dollar in the payment of all debts, dues, demands and taxes, national and otherwise. Who holds this bullion? Not the merchant, manufacturer, professional man, farmer, artisan or laborer. It belongs to the millionaire mine owners, one-half of whom are aliens, as our silver mines are largely owned and controlled by foreign capital. The object of these mine owners is apparent. It will double their wealth. It will be millions to them.

When it was ascertained that the free coinage silver bill, introduced last winter by Senator Jones, of Arkansas, gave the profit of such coinage to the government, and only the market value of the bullion to its owners, such silver mine owners as Senators Jones and Stewart, of Nevada, dropped it, as they would a hot potato, and the bill was allowed to quietly die. It means disaster and ruin to the rest of our people, of whom the poor, as usual, will suffer most severely. Wealth like this cannot be created by legislation, and no one can be the loser by it. What these men gain by this law the balance of our people must lose.

2. It means also that all foreign owners of silver bullion can bring their 50 cent silver into this country and have it coined and stamped a dollar; and then, if our government continues to keep gold and silver at a parity—exchanging one for the other at the will of the holder—take their silver dollars to the treasury and get gold dollars for them, and export such gold to their own countries. How long do you think our government could maintain gold and silver at a parity if this were permitted? Within a year gold would disappear from our country, or be at so great a premium as to be found only in the hands of wealthy speculators. And when the government ceased exchanging gold for silver, our silver dollars would be worth what they could bring in the melting pot as a commodity.

3. It means, if the claims of its supporters be true, a corresponding inflation and expansion of prices in everything. If, as they claim, the doubling of the value of silver by law will double the value of wheat in dollars, it must act the same on all commodities. This means that the men who are working upon salaries or for daily or weekly wages (and these men are the vast majority of our people) will receive for such salaries and wages money with just half the purchasing power it has now. The advocates of free silver undertake to break the force of this inevitable result by claiming that salaries and wages are the last to rise in times of inflation. Their increase comes long after the prices of commodities have risen, and such increase is never commensurate with the rise of other things. And what benefit would it be to the laborer, who is now getting a dollar a day to have his wages increased to two dollars if his expenses of living were doubled?

4. It means that every business man who has money deposited in bank will have such deposit reduced one-half for the purpose he wishes to use it, in the buying and selling of goods.

It means that the little hoard of the poor laboring man in the savings banks will be cut in two. It will reduce the patrimony of countless widows and orphans to one-half of what it is now.

5. It means that the benefit of this forced rise in prices which can only come from the use of depreciated currency, will be reaped, as it always has been, by those who have the means to speculate in gold and other commodities, while the great mass of producers and consumers alike will bear the burden of the losses. It means "Black Fridays" on Wall street, and failures in business everywhere. It may bring the want of bread to many a poor man's door. And after a few years of feverish speculation with its attendant extravagance in everything, we shall have to settle down in the end, to a sound money basis; and the men who will have profited by the experiment will be the wealthy, and those who will have lost will be the poor, as it was at the time of the resumption of specie payments.

6. The free coinage of silver, as advocated by the 16 to 1 men, will result in national bankruptcy and repudiation in so far that we shall be unable as a nation to pay our just debts in the same currency in which they were contracted.

I know that the cry of an inflation of prices has a charming sound in the ear of the producer who is now greatly in debt. He may be captivated with the idea that he can get more for his produce and turn what he realizes from his surplus production upon his debts at double its present value. But it is a dishonest thought. The man who lends me a dollar has a right to have a dollar of the same value returned to him. I have been largely in debt all my life, but it is the proudest heritage I intend to leave my children that I never yet asked to pay a debt in any cheaper currency than I contracted it, and have so far paid every debt cheerfully with current rate of interest. This is, however, no particular credit to me. Any other course would have been fraudulent.

Prices cannot be affected by unlimited free coinage unless this coinage depreciates our money. Prices will be regulated in the end by the great economic law of supply and demand—a law that always has and always will in the main control the prices of all commodities, labor not excepted.

Tariffs, corners, combines and cheap money may affect such prices temporarily, but in the end must rely upon the law.

I notice that wheat has materially advanced in price in the United States and elsewhere in the last few months. There are three reasons for this:

1. An increased export demand.
2. Fear of a scant crop.
3. The work of speculation.

Wheat dropped to its lowest price mainly because the world has produced for the last few years more than it consumed. The demand was not equal to the supply.

I do not learn that the present rise in wheat has affected the price of silver or been caused by silver in any sense, or that the price of silver has ever in our history had anything to do with the price of corn, beef or pork. The prices of these articles have been governed by natural causes, with an occasional flutter caused by trusts and combines.

The free coinage of silver by the United States can have no effect upon the prices of wheat in Liverpool, and the price there, as all the world knows, governs our price at home. This is because Great Britain is the chief buyer of the wheat of the world, and therefore makes the prices. We do not consume enough of our own wheat to affect the wheat market in times of ordinary production.

The people who believe that we can coin silver of the market value of 50 cents into a dollar to an unlimited amount without the co-operation of the rest of the world, will find themselves woefully mistaken, and we shall meet the fate and jutly so of other silver nations if we go into it.

The rich will become richer and the poor poorer; and the nation, as a whole, will be treated as a bankrupt by all the other nations of the world. Our commerce will be crippled if not destroyed, and we can take rank with Mexico, where labor is glad to get 30 cents a day, in a currency worth half its face. Perhaps some of you may think that I have no business to inflict my views upon you; but, if I were at home, my sense of duty to our party and my fellow men would impel me, on every suitable occasion, to warn you against this false cry of benefit to be obtained from the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 with gold.

And, therefore I have also felt it my duty ever from this distance to speak to you in behalf of a sound and stable currency, which has had the support of such democratic statesmen as Jefferson, Jackson and Tilden in the past.

Fraternally yours,
 Allan B. Morse.
 Glasgow, Scotland, June 18, 1895.

James A. Garfield, son of the late President Garfield, has been nominated for state senator by the republicans of the Portage-Summit district of Ohio, the same district that sent his father to the state senate in 1859. He was nominated on the second of July, the fourteenth anniversary of the shooting of President Garfield. He is twenty-eight years of age, the same age as his father when the latter first entered public life. Like his father he is a graduate of Williams college, and ambitious to achieve honors in political life. It is said that he aspires to represent his father's old district in congress, the district which was represented so long by Joshua R. Giddings and Ben. Wade and later by Garfield. It is a famous district and one of the few northern districts that in ante-bellum days had great influence in congress because it had the good sense to send an able man to represent it and keep him there term after term. The district had but three representatives before Garfield and he represented it for nearly eighteen years.

The famous Harvey-Horr debate will begin next Tuesday and the country will no doubt be treated to the greatest exhibition of wind on record. The windy city is of course the proper place to hold the same. The doctrines set forth in "Coin's Financial School" will form the basis for the discussions. The subject being chiefly wind is most appropriate for the occasion. One chapter of the book will be discussed each day and three hours time devoted to the same. There will be no set speeches, not more than a thousand words being allowed in answering a question or stating a proposition. The last half hour of each sitting will be devoted to answering questions from outsiders, no one person being permitted to ask more than three. Each disputant is allowed not more than three minutes in giving his answer, statement or question after his antagonist has finished. Owing to this local atmospheric disturbance the weather next week will no doubt be squally.

The contention of two centuries standing between France and Brazil relative to the boundries between French Guiana and Brazil seems to be assuming an acute stage. An actual conflict has occurred between the military forces of the two claimants and each government has called upon the other for an explanation. The territory in dispute lies north of the Amazon and is as large as French Guiana, as usually shown on the map. France uses Guiana as a convict colony. The population there is consequently a desperate and lawless class, made up of a mixture of all races and nationalities. Trouble is constantly growing out of these conditions. It is thought that the matter may yet be adjusted by arbitration. If it is not so settled, Uncle Sam may have an opportunity to remind France of the existence of the principle known as the Monroe doctrine. The question involved is similar to the Venezuelan affair.

That the wollen and worsted industries are sharing in the revival which has taken place in other lines is evidenced by the news which comes from Rhode Island to the effect that wages over all the state will be increased during the month from seven and one-half to twelve per cent. Why is it that the republican papers and statesmen (?) which so persistently howled "calamity," thereby helping to retard business revival, just as persistently allow such items of news to pass without comment? Surely they ought to be sufficiently patriotic to find some gratification in the passing of hard times and the revival of industries. True, their chances of political preferment next year diminish in exact ratio to the increase of prosperity, still if the country cannot have prosperity and republican control then they ought to prefer the country's prosperity.

In the past four years the total assessments amounted to $4,20 for $1,000 insurance. The low rate of losses and expenses of the company enable the members, even with a higher assessment this year, to have a very low rate of insurance.

A kind hearted Milanese loaned a friend a buggy to take the friend and family to a wedding. Had they waited for the horse to get them there the newly married couple would have been grandparents first. Although the degree of B. L. has been abolished at Ann Arbor, about the same number of Black Legs as before flourish there. However they can only be got rid of by degrees.—Adrian Press. The cast off pantaloons we donated to the editors of the Courier last fall are beginning to need patching.

It seems to me that an officer is remiss in performing his duty when he sees men under the influence of liquor driving a horse at full speed.—Ann Arbor Democrat. Certainly, certainly. Any officer who will see a drunken man, in Ann Arbor is guilty of a remiss. What business has an officer to be looking? He might make an arrest if he should see it. Officers do not want to see drunk men driving horses any more than they want to see a fight. Should an officer think that drunken men would be likely to drive a horse at full speed, he should use every means in his power to not see it. He should miss it, otherwise he would be remiss in his duty. Drunken men ought to be made to blow a whistle, or ring a bell when they drive at full speed so as to put an officer on his guard and not take him unawares by coming upon him so suddenly, he is obliged to see them, and thus be remiss in performing his duty. The Democrat does not claim that an officer did see anything of the kind but avers that its man about town saw it and on a Sunday too. Perhaps the Democrat man was remiss. It's proprietor is a Miss, and probably the "Man about town" is re-miss.—Adrian Press.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic as the foremost Review in the English language, and no expenditure is spared in maintaining it in its unrivalled position.

The REVIEW is the mouthpiece of the men and women who know most about the great topics on which Americans require and desire to be informed from month to month.

Subjects that concern the interest of AMERICAN WOMEN receive constant and special attention. Among topics recently discussed are:

- "Women Suffrage in Practice"; "The Renaissance of Woman"; "Woman in Politics"; "The New Aspect of the Woman Question"; "The Modern Girl"; by the author of "The Heavenly Twins"; "The Future of Marriage"; "Evils of Early Marriages"; "The Servant Girl of the Future"; "The Financial Dependence of Women"; "Trades-Unions for Women"; "The Lack of Good Servants"; "American Life and Physical Deterioration"; "Good and Bad Mothers"; "The Tyranny of the Kitchen"; "The Amateur Nurse"; Mark Twain's Defense of Harriet Shelley, etc., etc.

A NEW FEATURE FOR 1895. The REVIEW will publish in 12 chapters, beginning with the January number, the Personal History of the Second Empire.

a historical work of unsurpassed importance, which will throw a flood of new light upon the chequered career of Napoleon III., and the influences which led to the collapse of his Empire in the gigantic struggle with united Germany, under Wilhelm I. and his Iron Chancellor. It is as fascinating as a romance, being richly anecdotal and full of information drawn from sources hitherto inaccessible, presented in the graphic and vivacious style which "The Englishman in Paris," by the same author, has made familiar to thousands of readers. 50 Cents a Copy; $5.00 a Year.

THE SICKROOM NURSE.

Her Duties, Her Authority and Her Powers For Evil or Good.

No person has greater power for evil or for good than has the nurse in the sickroom. Her actual authority is second to that of the physician, but her opportunities for exercising it are almost unlimited. If a physician in a country town wishes to secure a trained nurse, he should telegraph or write to the nurses' directory, to some hospital or physician whom he knows, in the nearest adjacent city, stating for what sort of a case he will require a nurse, what he will pay and when he will require her. Such a message should secure for him almost immediately whatever service he requires.

The traits of character which make the ideal nurse are patience, obedience, tact and good sense and temper. The nurse's costume should consist of a cambric or seersucker gown, with white cap, cuffs and apron. Woolen gowns should never be permitted in a sickroom. Her authority is absolute after the physician's. She must obey his instructions to the letter, even if they are against her judgment. She has no discretion in the matter.

But the patient and the patient's family must obey her. She must never be allowed to disobey the physician's orders, and the first symptom of any such behavior should be reported immediately to the physician. All his instructions with reference to treatment, diet and care should be followed faithfully. The fact that her patient is a man should make no difference in her behavior in the sickroom. He is a patient, not a man, and she a nurse, not a woman. Whenever a nurse disobeys a physician's orders or behaves in any manner which renders her dismissal advisable, the family or the patient should request the doctor to discharge her at once and to supply her substitute. A word from him is sufficient to insure her departure.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Private Electric Motors.

A well known electrical authority has pointed out that it is now as easy and cheap to have an electric elevator in a private house as in a large office building. Stairs are literally a barbarism, to which women frequently owe ill health, and to which many delicate persons may attribute the deprivation of the full enjoyment of their homes. The cost of operating an electric elevator in, say, a five story house, making 50 or 60 trips every day, will not exceed $3 or $4 per month. The devices for operating these elevators have been so improved that an invalid or a child can manage them. The old lever arrangement can be dispensed with, and the elevator ascends or descends on the pressure of a button. It will stop only at each floor and will start only when the elevator door is closed.—New York Times.

Force of Habit.

The genial captain of a steamer plying on one of our American rivers was appointed a vestryman in an Episcopal church in a city which lay at one end of his route.

One day shortly afterward it was reported to him, when on shore, that there was a leak in the church. He was accustomed to promptness, and on receipt of the message he went to the church, took a candle and started down into the cellar to find the leak, evidently thinking of the basement as the hull of the good ship Zion.

The captain himself tells the story with much apparent enjoyment of its humor.—Youth's Companion.

You cannot be well unless your blood is pure. Therefore purify your blood with the best blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Housekeeping at Samoa.

Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson says that housekeeping in Samoa was not so idyllic as it might seem. Her supplies came from New Zealand or Australia once a month, so that if she wanted a bottle of bluing or a bag of flour, for instance, she had to send half across the Pacific to get it. The native diet was all well enough for a few weeks, but as it consisted almost solely of fruit and fish it began to pall on European palates. Housekeeping in this South Sea paradise (of romances) had other drawbacks, particularly in the matter of expense, which was fully six or seven times as great, Mrs. Stevenson says, as living on a corresponding scale in San Francisco. As for society, "there's more of it to the square inch in Samoa than in any other place I know," says Mrs. Stevenson, but it appears to be largely of the living picture kind.

FRIGHTFUL CRASH.

One Hundred Persons Injured at an Elks' Social.

FLOOR OF THE CHAMBER COLLAPSES

Letting 1,000 People Down to the Story Below on Top of 200 More—Only One Fatal Casualty So Far, but a Score Seriously Hurt—A Miracle That the Loss of Life Was so Small—Names of the Worst Wounded of the Victims.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 11.—The social session tendered by Atlantic City lodge to the visiting Elks at the Baltic Avenue Casino last evening ended in a terrible disaster in which fully 100 persons were more or less seriously injured. The session had just opened, and only one of the speakers had been heard when, without the slightest warning, the building, which has not been used for several years, collapsed, and fully 1,000 persons were thrown to the floor beneath. Many women, the wives of the visiting Elks, went down in the ruins.

Those Most Seriously Hurt.

The following are among the more seriously hurt: James J. Armstrong, of New York, both legs broken; Mayer Wolfe, Atlantic City, light house engineer, injured internally; Charles W. Tolwell, Camden, leg and arm broken; Frederick Clapthor, Camden, leg broken; P. Eckman, Camden, leg and arm broken; Frank Bolton, clerk of Hotel Traymore, this city, shoulder badly crushed and otherwise injured; Charles W. Farwell, of Minneapolis, maimed and bruised; Detective James Doyle, of Minneapolis, badly bruised and injured internally; Miss Armstrong, daughter of James Armstrong, aged 11, arm broken; W. Lambert, Boston, leg broken; Horace Annat, East Orange, N. J., back broken; William Varney, base ball manager, Baltimore, injured internally; Mrs. Fleischman, Philadelphia, both legs broken; C. M. Foote, arm broken; Nathaniel Duke, body bruised; Monroe S. Wainwright, of New York, and a number of the members of Jennings' band, of Camden, N. J., internally injured.

One Death So Far Reported.

The first victim to succumb to his injuries was Frederick Clapthor, of 846 Kimer street, Camden. He died shortly after midnight at a neighboring hotel to which he had been conveyed. It is now feared other deaths will result and it is a matter of wonder that more persons who were on the under floor were not killed outright. The list of injured numbers three score others, all from eastern points, and mostly from New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburg, except Miss Guring, of Detroit. Fully 200 persons who were on the first floor of the building and immediately beneath the banquet hall were crushed beneath the timbers, and lay helpless. The fact that all the electric lights in the building went out at the time the building gave way added to the confusion.

Help Was Abundant and Prompt.

As soon as the alarm was given the police and fire departments hurried to the scene, and help for the imprisoned people was abundant and prompt. It was supposed at first that hundreds had been killed, and the anxiety of those who had friends present was agonizing until it was known that no one had been killed instantly and that the disaster was miraculous in the comparatively few cases that were serious. In two hours all the unfortunates were released and under the care of physicians.

SEVEN MEN LOST THEIR LIVES.

Caught in the Fire that Destroyed Case's Livery Stable at Detroit.

DETROIT, July 11.—The fire that destroyed Case's livery stable, 41 West Congress street, caught five men in its terrible embrace, and when their bodies were found in the ruins they were horribly burned and charred—almost past identification. One other person is yet missing, and will possibly make the sixth victim. The five known victims are: John Shaw, driver; John Bowman, second cook, formerly of Bay City; Thomas Webb, painter, London, Ont.; James R. Shaw, harness; Charles Davis, barn man. The missing man, Edward Hughes, a hostler, is known to have been in the building when the fire started, and has not since been seen. There were about eighty horses stabled in the basement, all of which were gotten out, with the exception of Q. A. Gray's Ethel G., valued at $1,000, and one of less value.

LATER—John Cummings, the man who leaped or fell from an upper window of Case's livery establishment during the fire, is still alive at the hospital, but is unconscious. His death is expected. This will make the seventh death.

South Carolina Negroes in Council.

COLUMBIA, July 11.—A largely-attended convention representing the colored people of South Carolina is in progress here for the purpose of formulating a plan of action to be followed in the constitutional convention campaign which is now under way. The holding of the United States court of appeals, reversing the opinion of Judge Goff in the registration case, is said to practically disfranchise the negroes of the state, and their leaders are advising emigration as the only escape from injustice and oppression.

Missouri Democrats to Meet.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 11.—The Democratic state central committee will be convened in St. Louis next Monday. The secretary has received a telegram from Chairman Maffitt, of St. Louis, stating in effect that he is now satisfied that a majority of the Democrats of the state desire the committee to be convened for the purpose of considering the advisability of calling a state silver convention.

How Jones Proposed.

Jones—Miss Arabella, do you like cabbage? Arabella—What a strange question. Mr. Jones!

"I know it is a strange question, but please answer it." "Yes, Mr. Jones, I am very fond of cabbage."

"Ah, I am glad to hear that!" "Why?" "Your liking cabbage goes to show that we were born for each other. I dote on corned beef. Why should not we unite our fortunes?" "Oh, Mr. Jones!" They will be married next week.—Boston Traveller.

QUEER LANGUAGE.

The "Camphor Tongue" of a Wild but Offensive Race.

One of the queerest languages in the world used for the queerest purposes, is the "camphor language" of Johore, a country of the Malay peninsula. It has lately been studied and reported upon by Mr. Lake, an English engineer in the service of the sultan of Johore. This language is called the "Pantang Kapor," or camphor language, and is used by the natives and all others who are engaged in gathering the product of the Malayan camphor tree and only at that time. If they used either of the languages of the region, the Malay or the aboriginal Jakun, the natives believe that they could not obtain any camphor, and for a most curious reason. The camphor tree, Dryobalanops camphora, grows abundantly in certain parts of the peninsula, but only occasionally contains camphor crystals. The camphor is not the same as that obtained from the camphor laurel of Formosa and Japan, which is the source of the ordinary camphor of commerce. It is a sort very highly prized by the Chinese in the embalming of their dead, in incense and in medicine, and the gum brings much more than the common camphor.

The Malays and other Johore natives believe that each species of tree has a spirit or divinity that presides over its affairs. The spirit of the camphor tree is known by the name of Bisan—literally "a woman." Her resting place is near the trees, and when at night a peculiar noise is heard in the woods, resembling that of a cicada, the Bisan is believed to be singing, and camphor will surely be found in the neighborhood. But the spirit of the camphor tree seems to be jealous of the precious gum and must be propitiated, and if she knows that hunters are in quest of it she will endeavor to turn their steps aside. So it is necessary to speak in a tongue which she does not understand. For this purpose the "camphor language" has been invented. It consists of a mixture of Jakun and Malay words, but these are curiously altered and reversed, and the natives positively believe that the divinity of the camphor tree is completely confused. The Jakuns who hunt the camphor are one of the wildest of people, but inoffensive. They live together with monkeys, dogs, cats, innumerable fowls and perhaps a tame hornbill in perfect harmony under movable leaf shelters built on poles in the woods.—Boston Traveller.

The Invincible Armada.

The invincible armada was a famous naval expedition sent by Philip II of Spain against England in 1588. It consisted of 130 vessels, 2,430 great guns, 4,375 quintals of powder, nearly 20,000 soldiers, above 8,000 sailors and more than 2,000 volunteers. It arrived in the English channel on July 19 and was defeated the next day by Admiral Howard, who was seconded by Drake, Hawkins and Frobisher. Eight fire ships having been sent into the Spanish fleet, they bore off in great disorder. Profiting by the panic, the English fell upon them and captured or destroyed a number of their ships, and Admiral Howard maintained a running fight from July 21 to July 27, with such effect that the Spanish commander, despairing of success, resolved to return home, and as escape through the English channel was prevented by contrary winds he undertook to sail around the Orkneys, but the vessels which still remained to him were dispersed by storms or shipwrecked among the rocks and shallows on different parts of the Scottish and Irish coast, and upward of 5,000 men were drowned, killed or taken prisoners. Of the whole armada 58 ships only returned to Spain, and these in a wretched condition. The English lost but one ship.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Animals That Commit Suicide.

Intelligent observers have testified to facts which appear to show that in certain circumstances the snake, scorpion and even some quadrupeds commit suicide. M. Henry, a clock manufacturer of Longuyon, France, has recently described an experiment of the kind which he made with a wasp. The wasp was imprisoned under a glass, and knowing that benzine asphyxiates insects he put some paper soaked in it beside the captive. The wasp became uncomfortable, then angrily attacked the paper, but finding all its efforts unavailing it finally lay down on its back, and folding up its abdomen planted its sting thrice into its body. M. Henry was so curious to confirm the fact that, in spite of his humane feelings, he repeated the experiment on three wasps with the like result.—London Globe.

The Scholars of France.

As a sample of the payment of distinguished scholars in this country it may be mentioned that M. Gaston Boissier, who was lately elected life secretary of the Academy, only received $600 annually as rector of the College de France. In his new position he is entitled to $1,200, or double the sum paid him as head of the great educational establishment over which Ernest Renan ruled. The immortals, according to the foundation rules, are supposed to be paid $300 yearly, in addition to their fees for attending meetings. As a matter of fact, however, they only receive $200 annually. The remainder of the sum forms a sinking fund, out of which eight aged academicians get all wances, if their private annual income falls short of $1,200.—Paris Letter.

Unjust Fate.

"Here is another case of them plutes," said Mr. Dismal Dawson, "in the paper that says he never was so happy as when he was working by the day." "Well?" ventured Mr. Everett Wrest, with languid interest. "Well, you say? W'y, it is just this: Here is a feller that really likes work rollin in more money than he kin count, and here is you and me, that money would go some good. I guess you know where we are at without no farder words."—Cincinnati Tribune.

ONE MAN'S SUFFERING.

The Trials and Tribulations of a Battle Creek Citizen—How He Comes to Tell This Story.

(From the Battle Creek Moon.) Among the moulders at the works of the Michigan foundry company can be found Mr. Amos Maynard; he has lived in Battle Creek for over ten years, is honored and respected by all who know him; such is the man who makes this statement, he says: "I have had kidney trouble for years, and it has made my life miserable. The heavy lifting, necessary in my business, made me worse. I have been compelled to lie in bed in a helpless condition for as long as nine days at a time; the greatest pain was from my back, which sometimes felt as though a bayonet was being run through me in the region of my kidneys; many citizens of Battle Creek knew how bad I was. I could not move without the greatest caution, for as soon as I attempted to stoop over, bend to one side, or even turn in bed, the pain was simply unbearable. I wore porous plaster constantly for the little temporary relief they brought me. Whenever I caught my kidneys and made me straight to my kidneys and made me worse. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and got some. I have taken in all four boxes of them, and I now feel as active as ever. A few months ago I would have ridiculed the idea of being cured so quickly, and being able to work as I can now. All the long-standing pains are gone, and the former traces of kidney disorders found in my urine have disappeared. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends who were troubled as I was, and in every case I have learned they proved as beneficial as with me. Doan's Kidney Pills would be cheap to me at almost any price."

Easily Answered. The advanced woman's husband was gazing idly into the window of the second-hand store, where a number of motes were displayed. "What is Home Without a Mother?" he read in letters of green and yellow worsted.

"Hm!" he muttered. "That is easy to answer. My family is most of the time."—Indianapolis Journal.

A MODERN HERO.

His limbs are fixed in rigid pain, As though in iron bands; He cannot shift his trodden feet; He cannot use his hands.

He dares not turn his throbbing head Or stiffened neck. For why? The handle of a walking stick Would jab him in the eye.

The lagging minutes lengthen out In famine's deadly hold. He sits and longs, like Tantalus, His dinner growing cold.

No hooded, grim inquisitor Inflicts his long drawn pain. He pays a price to suffer it, Disdaining to complain.

Oh, sing of heroes dead in war, But here I pledge in wine The third class passenger who rides On a suburban line! —Fred B. Wells in Home and Country.

HYPNOTIZED.

"There isn't anybody living who can hypnotize me." "Don't be too sure, Leonora," said her husband. "You cannot afford to run a tilt against science."

"But I deny that it is science. What has ever been proved by hypnotism? It is foolish to argue about it, for I will not even admit that there is such a thing. The shrewd people who go about the country giving exhibitions of their power are always in collusion with some one in the audience—you know that yourself, Ned."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Ned, as Mrs. Darl called her husband. "It is a science that is yet in its infancy, and there are only a few individuals who have the hypnotic power and are able to throw less positive subjects into a trance. But I have seen it done, and it is wonderful—wonderful."

"What did you see?" "I saw a young man climb walls like a cat, drink milk out of a saucer, catch a mouse, and then wash his face and hands as a cat does. And when he came out of the trance he had no idea that he had done any of these things or that he had even lost consciousness."

"Hum!" said Mrs. Darl incredulously. "I don't believe a word of it. If he did all that you said he did, he was simply a conspirator. And what good can such a faculty bring to science, I should like to know? Where is the scientific value in acting like a cat or a monkey?"

"Why, don't you see, dear, it is the verification of a theory?" "No, I do not see. And I am not sure that I would believe it if I did see it. The whole stock in trade of these hypnotizers is the power of producing an illusion. I defy any of them to hypnotize me."

"I had intended asking you to go with me to the exhibition tonight." "And be transmogrified into a cat? No, indeed! If I make a sacrifice of myself in the cause of science, it must be for something worth while. You have yet to convince me, Ned, that what you call the hypnotic sleep is not assumed to help carry out the plan of the hypnotizer or as a means of creating a sensation. There is no one living who could by a few ridiculous passes, a stare or pressure of my thumbs make me do anything I did not choose to do."

"But you acknowledge, do you not, that a strong will can control a weak one?" "Yes, and always could, but that is as old as the days of Adam, who was evidently in subjection to Eve. I suppose some one will say that deep sleep which overtook our first father when his rib was taken from him was hypnotic. It would be just about as sensible."

"I have an idea," said Mr. Darl suddenly. "Suppose, since Mohammed won't go to the mountain, that the mountain comes to Mohammed. The hypnotist can come here after the entertainment, and we will invite a few neighbors in, and he can give an exhibition of his powers. How does that idea strike you?"

"Favorably, Ned. There are the Rusts, and the Pebbles and Dr. Smithly and his wife, and Cousin Fanny and her husband. You can let them know, and I will order refreshments, and we will have an evening of hypnotism. It will begin late, but we can find other amusement until your hypnotic operator comes."

Mrs. Darl had everything arranged—her house in beautiful order and herself gorgeous in a dress of ruby velvet, which was far too fine for the occasion, but was worn as a piece of resistance, she having read that velvet resisted hypnotic influence.

The neighbors and relatives came, a merry company, and the time passed in an animated discussion upon the power of hypnotism, one friend going so far in research as to visit the library and look up that wonderful story, the "House of Seven Gables," and read aloud to attentive listeners a passage from the weird history of Alice Pyncheon.

"He spoke, and Alice responded with a soft, subdued inward acquiescence and a bending of her form toward him, like the flame of a torch when it indicates a gentle draft of air. He beckoned with his hand, and rising from her chair the proud Alice approached him. He waved her back, and retreating Alice sank again into her seat."

"She is mine," said Matthew Maule. "Mine by the right of the strongest spirit."

"Oh, that was mesmerism," said Mrs. Darl as the reading ceased.

"And what is mesmerism?" asked one of the company. "I think that it is as unexplainable as hypnotism, if it is not the same thing. Oh, here they are now! Let us hold on to our chairs, or we may be spirited away to China. I, for one, am afraid."

"I am not," said the queenly hostess as she swept forward in velvet and diamonds to meet her husband and his guest.

A pale, composed looking man accompanied Mr. Darl, and he did not seem surprised by the elegance of his hostess or flushed by the critical gaze of the company.

After the introductions were made and conversation became general, Mrs. Darl slipped into the hall and beckoned to her husband, who immediately joined her. Then she whispered in his ear: "If—if—by any possibility he should be able to hypnotize me, you will not let him make me do anything ridiculous?"

"My dear Leona, how can you imagine such a possibility? But if you have any fear?" "Fear!" echoed his wife scornfully in a stage whisper. "You will see that he cannot make the slightest impression on me." And she went back to the parlor and found one of her guests climbing the piano to escape an imaginary bear that was pursuing him. A few passes and he was restored to his normal condition, looking very foolish.

There were some amusing and some perplexing exhibitions of the professor's power, then the company followed host and hostess to the dining room, where a generous spread awaited them. Mrs. Darl was rather silent. Her test would be the next one, and she watched the wiry hands of the young professor as if his secret lay in them. But they were harmlessly busy with the sandwiches. His face was quite uncommittal too. What was the power he held of reducing the will to a mere blank? She would soon know.

Back in the parlor Mrs. Darl seated herself under the brilliant chandelier. "Not there," said the professor, but she did not intend to yield to any command of his and said quietly: "I prefer to sit here."

"Then I cannot hypnotize you." "Oh, you acknowledge that it is only under certain conditions that this great power can be displayed?" "Certainly, there are conditions that must be complied with. I am positive, and you are negative, but you are a very difficult subject because you are resisting me with all your might."

Mrs. Darl looked reproachfully at her husband and said in the dumb alphabet of the married, "You have told him." He flashed back in the same language, "I have not," and she moved in accordance with the wish of the professor and sat with her back to the light. Some of the company were removed to remote parts of the room, but a few, including Mr. Darl, stood near.

"Look into my eyes," said the professor. "Permit me." And he took her hands and pressed the thumbs gently. "It is like being in a dentist's chair," said Mrs. Darl, with a little forced laugh. Then she attempted to rise, struggling slightly, but continued to look into the eyes of the hypnotizer until in the place of two eyes she saw 20. Then she asserted her will and shook herself free.

"I—told—you—I—could—not—be—hypnotized," she said. Her voice sounded strange and far away. "How queer I feel! Staring so long has made me dizzy."

LA BELLE DAME SANS MERCI.

My love is young, my love is fair, Sweet, true and amiable is she, With turkis eyes and topaz hair— Alas, my love is lost to me!

Her no crusades nor cranks confound, Nor Jesuitish problems vex; She has no theories to propound— I've never heard her mention sex.

She doesn't smile on risqué mots; Her taste in dress is quite divine; She's half an angel, goodness knows, But, ah, she never can be mine.

I knew she painted tambourines And pickle jars and copper bells, With flowers and stocks and river scenes And moonlight views on scallop shells.

She's painted photo frames galore— Wood, velvet, ivory and brass; She paints the panels of the door; She has not spared the looking glass.

The plush framed plaques upon her wall, Her limp art musins everywhere, The floral drain pipe in her hall— They know the pangs I've had to bear.

And now the Rubicon is passed, The great abyss between us set, The final blow has fallen at last— I've said goodbye to Amoret.

Goodby to bliss that might have been, Goodby to happy hours that were— She's "draped" a Veris-Martin screen And aspired an empire chair. —Fall Mail Gazette.

HER WEDDING PRESENT.

Marie Was No Doubt as Much Surprised as Freddie Was. Young Mr. Smithers, having eaten an excellent dinner, sat down to smoke a good cigar while his wife ran up stairs to make her toilet for the theater.

So peaceful was his state of mind that he did not even look accusingly at his watch when, after the promised "minute" had developed into 80, she entered the room.

"Seems to me that you are looking very nice tonight, my dear," he remarked. "I am so glad you think so, darling. Of course I care more for your admiration than that of any one else. Besides the Skimmers sit right behind us this evening, and this dress will give her a bad headache before the second act is over."

Mr. Smithers looked anxious. "So that is new, is it? Wasn't the old one good enough?" "N—not quite, dear. Besides I earned the money for this one myself."

"But how did you earn it?" "Oh, after you left I fell to thinking what a lot of money $25 was to spend on a wedding present for Marie when I really needed so many things. Then an idea struck me. I remembered all those pretty things I found in your big trunk after we were married—the ones that horrid girl, whoever she was, sent back when the engagement was broken. I wouldn't have one of them myself, but it seemed a pity for them to lie there, so I went up stairs and looked them all over. I selected that lovely silver backed mirror and cleaned it up until it looked just like new, and then I—"

"Sold it to buy the dress? I see!" "Nothing of the kind. I bought the dress with the money you gave me. The mirror I sent to Marie with our best wishes. Won't she be surprised, and—why, Freddie, are you ill?"

"Not at all, my dear! You are quite right. Marie will no doubt be much surprised, for, you see, she herself was the girl who returned those presents; that is all!"—Baltimore Herald.

4,000 Miles With a Wheelbarrow.

In 1878 Lyman Potter of New York state performed the prodigious task of pushing a common "paddy" wheelbarrow across the continent. He started from his home on Dane street, Albany, on the morning of April 10, 1878, and arrived in San Francisco on the afternoon of Oct. 5 of the same year, being almost exactly 175 days (five hours and three minutes over) in performing the wearisome feat. Potter was a shoemaker, and the trip was the result of a wager made by some friends who believed that such a trip would occupy at least 200 days. The wager was $1,000, but Potter made between three and five times that sum advertising for different parties along the route. The wheelbarrow was made specially for the use to which it was put and weighed but 75 pounds. The distance traveled by Potter was exactly 4,085 1/2 miles.—St. Louis Republic.

A Daring Forgery. A neat forgery was recently committed by a Parisian criminal, one Altmyer, which in its adroitness and audacity was worthy of "Jim the Penman" himself.

The accused had lately had several hearings at the Palais de Justice before M. Villiers, juge d'instruction. Several times during these hearings M. Villiers was summoned from the room for a few minutes at a time.

During one of these absences the culprit contrived to get possession of a sheet of paper and an envelope with official printed heading, and also to affix the official seal. Then he drew up at his leisure a document ordering his own immediate release, counterfeiting with rare skill the judge's signature.

On quitting the court one day he handed the letter thus prepared to the sentinel stationed in the corridor and remarked in an offhand manner, "The judge wants you to carry this letter immediately to the director of the Mazas prison." The soldier, suspecting nothing, took the letter and accompanied the prisoner to Mazas. A few minutes later Altmyer was summoned to the director's office and was informed that he was a free man.

With an outburst of simulated joy and surprise he at once took his departure, and as the fraud was not discovered until the following day he had plenty of time to get beyond the reach of the clutches of French justice.

WASHTENAWISMS.

A fire doing large damage occurred on the farm of Fred Hutzel in Pittsfield last Monday. It started along the Toledo and Ann Arbor railroad, from sparks dropped by an engine it is supposed, and spread to a large wheat field on the Hutzel farm, sweeping through the standing grain with frightful rapidity and licking it up slick and clean. Besides the crops a large amount of fence was destroyed. There was considerable wind stirring at the time and this, together with the fact that everything in the pathway of the fire was so very dry, owing to the long continued drouth, made it look for a time as though it would be impossible to get it under control. Smith's dairy farm suffered considerably from the flames also, but no buildings were destroyed. The fire finally approached a thick piece of timber and here it was got under control. Plows were started and teams set to work drawing water and finally, late in the evening, the fire was gotten under control to such an extent that there was no farther danger. Forty acres of standing wheat was destroyed, but the entire damage has not been estimated.

George Amis has been appointed postmaster at Pittsfield, vice G. J. Van Horne, resigned.

At the recent school election at Adrian two women were elected trustees. Mrs. Olive Shaw was elected in place of Mrs. Lane who declined a renomination, and Mrs. Frances E. Sword succeeds herself. The Adrian school board certainly ought to be a peaceable body with the danger ever present of an appeal to the sword.

Addison Coryell, a wealthy farmer living some two miles northeast of Ypsilanti, lost his large barns by fire Wednesday morning about 8 o'clock. It is not known how the fire originated. A span of mules and a valuable horse were burned, together with farm implements and last year's wheat crop. Mr. Coryell was in the hay mow at the time, and when he saw smoke coming through cracks in the barn floor he went below and endeavored to save the horse, but without avail. In his efforts he was badly burned about the head and shoulders. The loss is estimated at $3,000, insured in the Washtenaw Farmers' Mutual Insurance Company for $1,300.

H. O. Wills with his gospel wagon and male quartet will hold a grove meeting at the Crittenden school house grove, six miles east of Saline and five miles south of Ann Arbor, commencing Thursday evening, July 18, and continuing till Sunday night. Admission, 5 cents, for defraying expenses. Bring lunches and stay all day.

Ben Hawley, of Chelsea, is building a fine residence on Park streets.

The fruit growers of Chelsea complain through the columns of the Standard because the boys of the village persist in helping themselves to berries without asking even so much as by your leave. This seems like a small thing to complain about when those self-same berry growers put their product on the market in what purports to be quart boxes, but which have the bottom inserted a little nearer the top than the other end. The boys under such circumstances ought to be entitled to the other part of the quart, especially if they are willing to pick them themselves.

The Chelsea Standard roasts the buzzers who go to the opera house and keep up an eternal whispering, neither listening nor allowing others to do so. Serves them right. All such deserve to have a spanking machine applied.

The Baptist people of Tecumseh have extended a call to Rev. B. S. Hudson to become pastor of their church. It is thought he will accept.

The editor of the Grass Lake News and E. J. Smith, just now writing yarns for the Adrian Press, have locked horns and are trying to see which one can tell the awfulest lie. Up to date the News man has scored two and Smith one. The Argus could not think of repeating them, they are too tough. But if those two editors are not overtaken by a worse fate than befell Annanias, then the Argus will have its orthodox shaken. There must certainly be a future existence, or those two men can never have justice meted out to them.

Miss Grace Smith, of Saline, will teach in the grammar school there next year.

George Rhoda and Clara Ella Gray, of York, were married last week. May they, etc.

Miss Anna Becker, of Bridgewater, and Wm. P. Kunze, of Detroit, were married last week Wednesday at the home of the bride in the presence of a large circle of relatives and friends.

Bert Tabor, of Milan, smiles all over his phiz these days, and all because he paid fifteen cents for a ticket in Frank Bray's bicycle raffle and drew the machine.

Miss Mabel Dexter, of Milan, met with a serious accident recently. She jumped from a carriage at Azalia and broke her ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Haskell King, of Ypsilanti, rejoice in the arrival of a new son. He is their King.

George Richel, of Ypsilanti, being patriotic, kept open on the Fourth. He settled with Justice Childs for $13.

George Letter, of Ypsilanti, sold some snake's foot oil at the fair grounds on the glorious Fourth. His intentions were all right. He intended to help the old eagle to scream a little louder, but his excuse would not go with Justice Childs, who invited him to put up a saw-buck and three for costs. George said, "Letter go," and the hard cash dropped into the justice's strong box.

Dr. Sheeder and ex-Superintendent Wm. Lister, of Saline, have purchased the drug and jewelry business of the Nichols Brothers, and will continue the business under the firm name of Lister & Sheeder. They will make a great team and will win success in their new venture. They are all right.

The famous three-year-old colt Cannon Ball, owned by C. Gauntlett, of Milan, dropped dead yesterday during a race at Fostoria, Ohio. The colt was valued at $1,500.

Old settlers in Hillsdale county say there never were so many snakes in that neck o' woods as now. We have always claimed that local option was a failure there.

Our neighbor Milan feels mighty big these days. Her electric lights were turned on Wednesday night for the first time, and the Milanese were so taken with the new light that they forgot to go to bed at all. She has a gas well too. Oh yes, Milan is great, and her suburb Ann Arbor against the world.

Two fisherman of near Unadilla caught minnows fish with a net. Later they appeared within the precincts of the court of Justice Stannard, of Dexter, by invitation of Deputy Game Warden Bell, and were persuaded to enlarge the exchequer thereof to the amount of $5.20 each. They now know more. Here endeth the first lesson.

German-American day is to be observed by the Washtenaw Germans this year in Ypsilanti. The date is August 22d.

The spinners of large fish yarns would better look a little out how they tell them to H. G. Beach, of Hamburg, as he is armed with a commission as deputy game warden for Livingston county. Otherwise they may get some pointers from him which will not be relished.

The double wedding of Lewis J. Wallace, of Rockwood, to Miss Selvia Smith, and Herbert Lord, of Willis, to Miss Lola Smith, was celebrated at the residence of the brides' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Smith, of Carleton, at noon yesterday. A large party of relatives witnessed the ceremonies. Rev. Scheurer, of South Rockwood, officiated. The two couples left on the evening train for an extended trip in the east, via Niagara Falls.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

A TOO MODEST WOMAN!

Is such a thing possible?

It is.

Many a woman suffers month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints.

Foolish do you say?

No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully.

Both the book and medicine may be obtained either direct from the Zoa-Phora Medicine Co., at Kalamazoo, Mich. or through your druggist. All correspondence is kept strictly confidential.
