THE FARMERS' PICNICS

Held at Whitmore Lake and Bridgewater Last Saturday.

EXCELLENT SPEECHES WERE DELIVERED.

Senator Palmer, W. A. Moore and Others at Whitmore Lake—The Bridgewater Farmers Did Their Own Talking and Did it Well.

The 17th annual basket picnic of the Farmers' Picnic association, of Washtenaw, Wayne, Oakland and Livingston counties, was held at Whitmore lake Saturday. A good rain early Saturday morning and the lowering clouds seemed to indicate that there would be a small crowd present. The first trains in brought so few passengers, and the main street looked so deserted that everyone declared there would be a very slim attendance. As the skies brightened the people came in buggies, carriages and wagons, so that after the noon trains were in the crowd was as great if not greater than last year. The sandy loam on the lake shore has the property of drying quickly after a rain. This with no dust made an almost perfect day. The usual preparations for the entertainment of the people, such as "Wonderland," watermelon, peanut, and popcorn vendors were on hand. So was Sheriff Judson and deputies, who stopped, all games of chance. One party started up but stopped as soon as he learned it was the Washtenaw county jail if he didn't. General feelings of disgust were written over the countenances of this class of gentry who were watched very closely by the sheriff and his deputies.

The speaking was announced to commence at 1.30 o'clock but apparently by general consent, to the disgust of those who had hurried their dinners in the hotels in anticipation of promptness, it did not commence for an hour later.

As in former years the beautiful little spot in the park that is shaded by mighty oaks was selected for the exercises. A platform had been erected for the speakers and music and before this there were rows of benches. As the people arrived on the grounds they seemed to break up into little groups, talking and renewing old acquaintanceship. The ladies largely predominated.

It was almost 2.30 o'clock when Pres. Henry Waldron called the meeting to order, the first on the program being the national hymn sung by the quartet that furnished the music for the occasion. Rev. Fr. Dwyer followed with an appropriate prayer, "Almighty and merciful God, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, come and replenish the hearts of thy people assembled here today and fill them with the fire of thy divine love, the love of neighbors, and soften the stony hearts of sinners and make them susceptible of the inspiration of Thy heavenly grace. Amen."

In addition to the speakers the platform was occupied by William P. Groves, Philip Duffy, John Kappeler, Robert Martin and others. After more music Pres. Henry Waldron gave his annual address which with the short speeches he made when introducing the speakers, showed that as far as he was concerned the meeting should be strongly in favor of free silver.

Mr. Waldron said he had taken pains to look up the history of the association. He found it was the outgrowth of the Grange movement and was organized by well known men like G. A. Peters, E. A. Nordman, William P. Groves, E. T. Walker, E. T. Sutton and others. Mr. Sutton, a genial gentleman of the old school, had been the first to pass away. The objects of the association were two fold, social, and to discuss questions pertaining to agriculture. For the first few years, the hall was large enough to hold the entire crowd. The growth of the association reminded him of the story of the Georgia nigger as told by a drummer who had lived in Georgia. Niggers are noted for being afraid of blue snakes. He had been hoeing corn with a nigger. All at once the nigger hollered "blue snake." The drummer did not see the snake but took after the nigger who run away. The next morning he returned and found the blue snake had struck his hoe handle plumb in the middle. It had swollen so that he was able to cut 40 cords of wood, 5000 rails and have enough flooring cut to cover the Baptist church and what was left was still swelling. This was the kind of true stories they told to Sunday schools. The speaker then branched out into a rabid free silver speech. He thought the farmers did not appreciate the place they occupied in the country. After putting on his glasses, so as to be able to read statistics, he said Secretary Morton reported that last year they sold to foreign countries $889,000,000 and had ordered from lands $625,000,000. Of all the products that went abroad over two-thirds were those of farmers. He thought that the class in this country that furnished the wealth should have some political influence. In his judgment on the question of finance no attention had been paid to the farmers for the last quarter of a century. He showed how the farms and live stock in the state had shrunken in value during the past ten years and asked how many more years it would take until they would have to go over the hill to the poor house. What caused it? He was as strong a protectionist as could be found. He believed in protecting American homes. Some say it is the free traders tinkering with the tariff. In answer to this how will you account for the hard times in Europe. The speaker then in tragic tones repeatedly called, "Will some one lend me a gold dollar." After everybody, excepting the reporter, dived around in his pockets, the only gold produced was a $5.00 pocket piece from Hon. William A. Moore, which Mr. Waldron disdainfully returned, remarking that even Senator Palmer was not rich enough to own a gold dollar. "I have a gold dollar," he then said pulling one from his pocket. Senator Palmer dryly remarked, "I thought you had one from the way you talked." The speaker held it up in view of the people. He said he had gone to Ann Arbor and tried at the four banks to get one. The Ann Arbor Savings bank said it would cost $2 to get one. At one of the other banks, whose name he forgot, the cashier asked how much money he had. That it would cost $5 to produce a gold $1. They had none but would have to send for it. He then went to a jewelry store where he finally found a gold dollar. He found the standard of value in a jewelry store. It was a disloyal dollar. He liked the dollar that had an eagle on it. The gold dollar had no part in achieving the independence of 1776. That was fought with the Spanish milled dollar. It had no part in the war of 1812. It had made the last war of the rebellion cost double what it should. It had stolen one half of the value of the farms, 75 per cent. of the value of every pound of wool and nearly all of the value of horses. Call that an honest dollar that had stolen the birthright of its silver brother. What they asked was simply that the silver dollar of 1712 be the standard of value. What they asked was that legislation put back the silver dollar where it was in 1873 where it had been for 80 years. Whether they should coin silver in this country without other countries joining them was not the question. Mortgages were being foreclosed and tenants were occupying the farms. How long would it be until this country would be in the condition of Ireland.

After music by the quartet, Pres. Waldron gave utterance to another free silver thought and introduced ex-Senator Thomas Palmer of Detroit.

Mr. Palmer addressed the audience in addition to the customary title of ladies and gentlemen as brother farmers. He said he had been a horny-handed son of toil and kept it up until it nearly mastered him. He told of his experiences as a farmer. He plowed close to the fence and met his neighbor and talked so long that his crops got in late, harvest was late and it almost broke him up. He had come to their gathering that day because he was invited. He was glad to be with them to meet a representative gathering of the people who had settled the county and were indignant to the soil. Pres. Waldron had telegraphed him to come, saying it would be a "good thing" for him. He assured them he was not after votes, he had no fences to fix. He had come out to the lake to have a good time. He was like the girl that had not been invited to a party who dressed up for the occasion and sat in the parlor. Her mother asked her what she was doing, as she had not been invited. She replied she would rather be ready and not go, than go and not be ready. So he would rather have his friends want him to be in office, than he be in office and they want him to be out. He was no pioneer, but his father and grandfather was. He told of the poor condition he was in 65 years ago when he arrived in this country only weighing 11 pounds and with no clothes, and having to subsist on a diet of milk. He then related in brief how as a young man with three others he had traveled to Rio Janeiro, Brazil, via Cadiz, Spain. Since his return from that trip his life had been with them. He believed in these gatherings. The great trouble with the farmers was that they did not get together often enough. The first step in civilization was that people got together and discussed questions. He was not going to touch on the silver question, it was one too many for him, like the father in the "Mill on the Floss," when notified of the loss of his mill, his son and lastly his daughter exclaimed, "This world has been one too much for me." And the old miller died. Mr. Waldron had given them one of the best silver speeches he had ever heard, because it was forcible. He wanted more silver, but that it be kept on a parity with gold. One of the best arguments in favor of this are the exports to Europe. A few years ago gold came into the country. It was the salvation of the farmers that confidence be retained in the currency. As long as they send out products they must have one standard of value. He believed with Bro. Waldron that they could get anything they wanted by asking for it. They could have their way, if they only insisted upon it. He never saw a rich man make money in hard times. They must understand he was no silver man, but he did not want farms depreciated 50 per cent. more than now. If out of debt, he did not think a man was worse off than formerly. With the exception of perhaps beef, everything was lower. A man in Detroit getting $1.50 wages per day could buy more than 30 years ago at 75 cents per day. He thought they were now on the up-grade. For the last 40 years agents had been sent to Europe to draw immigration to this country. No harm had been done, but now the time had come to have restrictive laws. The steamship companies were scouring the shores of the Mediterranean for men that they landed on the American shores for $20 apiece, pouring out the riff-raff of the old country. He favored the plan that the consuls be required to give certificates of good moral character, before the immigrants be permitted to land. He spoke of the great increase in murders in Michigan and favored going back to capital punishment, leaving it, however, in the hands of the jury. They all probably knew that he favored woman suffrage. He believed that would stop speculation in high places. Women were better morally than men. Women were more gamey, more sensible for the right. He hoped the time would come when they all could vote. When they found out stealing meant so many less shoes for the young ones, they would be particular whom they put in office. The future of the nation rested on the children. The methods of educating the children at the present time were all wrong. Should not the child have as good a time as the colts? Don't put them into school too much. Teach them a little reading and arithmetic, and if they get an appetite they will get education. Many that were over-educated reminded him of the Strassburg geese, who were not worth anything until they were dead. He thought the old men should have as good a time as the young men. If he did not see them again in this life he hoped to meet them in the happy hunting grounds where all the inequalities of this life were made clear and they even understand the silver question.

After the applause died away the quartet sang a comic piece about engaging an actor, which caused much merriment.

Pres. Waldron twitted ex-Senator Palmer on his going to Europe and said only 4 per cent. of the people went and tried to show that it was unnecessary to pay any attention to foreign countries.

Ex-Senator Palmer said Brother Waldron's conclusions about his life were as much off as they were on the silver question. He had not been in Europe in five years. He would not have gone to Spain if some men might not have thought him disgruntled. His wife had a crying spell when their trip was decided upon.

Pres. Waldron then introduced

Attorney William A. Moore, of Detroit, as an old Washtenaw county boy. Mr. Moore said he hardly knew why he had come there that day. In the letter of invitation it had been stated that last year all the candidates for governor had spoken from that platform. He did not know of any candidates, except it were perhaps Mr. Waldron and ex-Senator Palmer, but their vote would be restricted as they were both Republicans. He was not born in Washtenaw county, but came to the county long before Michigan was a state. From 1831 to 1851 he had lived in Washtenaw county. He believed in its institutions, particularly in the University, which gave more fame to the state than anything else, and should be sustained and he believed it would be. He had voted for every Democratic candidate for Governor except one who ran in the year that he was in the south. He believed he had known every one of them personally. The first one had been a boy, S. T. Mason, the secretary of state of Governor Porter, who had died. Mason was elected Governor in 1835 when only a little over 21 years of age. Mason was the soul of honor, but had a little bit of personal vanity. A story is told of the sturdy old Judge Leroy who seldom joked. One day sitting in the hotel, Judge Leroy was smoking his pipe when Gov. Mason came up to him and said: "Judge, I believe I am the youngest man who was ever governor of a state." The Judge answered, "Very likely." The Governor walked up and down and came back and repeated his question with the same answer. The Governor then asked the Judge, "How old do you think I am?" "Fourteen," answered the judge as he removed his pipe from his mouth. Mr. Moore then paid a high tribute of respect to the white-haired man in Ann Arbor without spot or blemish, ex-Gov. Alpheus A. Felch.

He explained that the $5 gold piece that he had offered Mr. Waldron was a pocket-piece. Mr. Waldron had not explained why the $1 gold pieces were so scarce. They had not been coined in 25 years, because they were too small and liable to be given out for a nickel. He had the misfortune to be interested in a silver mine in Colorado. If silver was worth 75 cents, what justice was there in taking that and having it coined and passed on the people for $1. He wanted $1 of gold, silver and paper to be of equal value. (Great applause.) Going back to the question of his being a Washtenaw county boy, the speaker said when he was a boy eight years old he had spent a winter cutting underbrush with an axe. He presumed a good farmer had been spoiled by his becoming a poor lawyer. He had never been a candidate for office. He did not know what he should do if he were pressed. Every man in the audience who would figure up would find he was not as well off as three years ago. Every one suffered equally. Much of this came from speculation, trying to make a living by not legitimate means.

Ex-Senator Palmer and Mr. Moore had to leave at this point to take the train. Pres. Waldron said he hated to talk after the best Senator the State of Michigan had ever seen and the best lawyer in the state had left, but he had arguments to knock "hell" out of their fine statements. If they put silver back into its place, they would get $1.50 for what Senator Palmer paid 75 cents. There were five thousand millions indebtedness held in Europe, and it was no wonder they had no gold. He wanted them to pay their debts, but not in 200-cent dollars. The association was broad and liberal without restrictions of religion or politics, and the questions had that day been discussed in a non-partisan manner.

After music, Rev. Fr. Dwyer, of Minnesota, who had kindly taken the place of Rev. Louis P. Goldrick, absent in the east, was introduced. He said it was with pleasure as well as with regret that he stood before them. They were deprived of the intellectual feast of a noble soul. When leaving Fr. Goldrick said he could not enjoy his vacation if he (Fr. Dwyer) would not promise to address them. He would not detain them on the silver or gold question. He only once in a while got a copper or a button. If he said anything interesting they could lay it to gold, and if not appropriate lay it to his incompetence. When the history of nations of former times was studied, various schools holding different tenets were

The crowd gathered in the forenoon, enjoying a basket picnic in the beautiful grove near the lake. A good program was carried out. The speaking was done from the porch of Mr. Frank Staffan's summer cottage, the use of which he kindly furnished for the occasion. Wm. H. Gray, of Sylvan, made the address of welcome, which was responded to by Rev. Mr. Girdwood, of Chelsea. E. A. Hough, the well known Sunday-school worker, of Jackson, made an address. Among the other speakers were Rev. J. Wuertel, of Waterloo, who spoke in German, and School Commissioner Wedemeyer. The speaking was interspersed with music. Altogether the occasion was a most pleasant and interesting one.

A TOO MODEST WOMAN!

Is such a thing possible?

It is. Many a woman suffers month after month, whole years, because she shrinks from talking about her complaints. Foolish do you say? No, it is simply due to a natural, commendable modesty. Still she owes it to herself either to consult a good Physician or else to get the Zoa-Phora Medical Book on Diseases of Women and Children, and, after satisfying herself that Zoa-Phora is what she needs, obtain a bottle or a box of it and use it faithfully. Both the book and medicine may be obtained either direct from the Zoa-Phora Medicine Co., at Kalamazoo, Mich. or through your druggist. All correspondence is kept strictly confidential.

NEARLY A RIOT.
 Police Officers at Rockford Ill., Have to Draw Revolvers.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 29.—There came near being a riot over the Royal Mantel factory strike on Seventh street last night. A man standing on the corner was recognized as one of those who had taken a striker's place, and immediately a cry of "scab" went up. The man started to walk away, but a crowd of several hundred strikers quickly gathered and started on a chase after him. One of the crowd struck an officer, and then the bluecoats pulled their guns and threatened to shoot. Then the trouble ceased. Later in the evening the crowd on Seventh street, which was an immense one, became troublesome, shouting "Scabs!" and attacking and insulting passers-by. A riot call was sent in to the police department, which brought out a dozen officers. Nine of the strikers were arrested. An extra force of officers has been placed on that beat and the crowd has dispersed.

COURTS ALL RIGHT

Judge Taft's Reply to Recent Criticisms by Governors.

CHARGES OF USURPATION DENIED.

No Attempt Either to Protect Corporations or Destroy Organized Labor—Reforms Needed Must Come from the People, Not from the Courts—Debs' Strike Declared a Nuisance—The Tendency to Socialism—Governor Altgeld Criticized.

DETROIT, Aug. 29.—Immediately upon the reassembling of the American Bar association Judge William H. Taft, of the United States circuit court, began the delivery of the annual address of the association. He said in part that within the last four years the governors of five or more states had thought it proper in their official messages to declare that the federal courts had seized jurisdiction not rightly theirs and exercised it to the detriment of the republic, and to urge their respective legislatures to petition congress for remedial legislation to prevent future usurpation. The principal charge against the federal courts which an examination of these documents disclosed was that the courts had flagrantly usurped jurisdiction, first to protect corporations and perpetuate their many abuses, and second to oppress and destroy the power of organized labor.

Has no Objection to Fair Criticism.

The right and opportunity freely and publicly to criticize judicial action was beneficial in proportion as it was fair and dispassionately discriminating and based on a knowledge of sound legal principles. While professional criticism was highly useful, non-professional criticism was by no means without its uses, even if it were accompanied by a direct attack on the judicial fairness and motives of the occupants of the bench. He believed that the governors who were the chief accusers of the federal judiciary were merely putting into language the hostile feeling of certain of their constituents toward the federal courts, and but for such feeling the criticisms would hardly have been uttered. He quoted the enforcement of the "fugitive slave law" before abolition, and the protection of the negro in his electoral and civil rights after that event as historical instances showing how federal courts might be subjected to most severe criticism without just grounds.

Reforms Must Come From the People.

The marvelous material development of the last two generations, he said, had been effected by the organization and enforced co-operation of simple elements that for a long time previous had been separately used. The impersonal character of corporations afforded a freedom from restraint in the corrupt use of money to secure undue business advantages from legislative and executive sources, and thus many of the political agencies of the people had become tainted. The prospect of ill-gotten gains attracted the dishonest trickster into politics and debauched the weak, while the honest and courageous were often driven into private life. The reforms of such wrongs must come from the people, not from the courts.

Corporations Are Indispensable.

"In spite of these well-known evils," said the judge, "nothing can be clearer to a calm, intelligent thinker than that under conditions of modern society, corporations are indispensable, both to the material progress of this country and to the maintenance of what we have. The evils must be remedied, but not by destroying one of the greatest instruments for good that social man has devised. While socialism has not obtained much of a foothold in this country, schemes which are socialistic in nature are accepted planks in the platform of a political party, their underlying principle being that it is the duty of the government to equalize the inequalities which the rights of free contract and private property have brought about and to afford occupation and sustenance to the poor by an outlay, derived, as far as possible, from the rich.

PEOPLE FREQUENTLY PREJUDICED.

Some Remarks About the American Railway Union Strike.

"The real abuses, however, find their chief cause in political corruption, which is wholly beyond the power of federal courts to prevent or eradicate. Too frequently the popular impulse is to remedy or permit the evil by giving judgment against the corporation in every case, no matter what the particular facts are, on the ground that the corporation has probably increased its capital or attained success by corrupt methods. Under the fourteenth amendment the question whether legislation and state action may deprive any person of his property without due process of law has become a federal one. Prejudice against corporations has led to much legislation hostile to corporations. It takes the form of discriminating taxation, of regulation of rates to be charged by those companies in quasi-public business, and sometimes of the direct deprivation of vested rights."

He referred in detail to the relation of federal courts to organized labor, especially to their action in issuing injunctions in the American Railway union strike. In this connection he strongly criticized the action of Governor Altgeld, of Illinois, in maintaining that a conspiracy described in the Debs case was not unlawful. When the history of the great strike should be written in years to come the absurd expectations and purpose of its projectors and their marvelous success in deluding a myriad of followers into their active support would seem even more difficult of explanation than it did today. The mind that would conceive and so far execute the plan of taking the entire population by the throat to compel them to effect the settlement of a local labor trouble in Chicago was that of a genius misdirected.

If the combination and conspiracy described in the bill in the Debs case and enjoined in the order of injunction was not unlawful, then there was no law in this country securing the right of private property, no law authorizing the federal government to operate the mails, no law by which the regulation of interstate commerce was vested in the general government. A public nuisance more complete in all its features than that which Debs and all his colleagues were engaged in furthering could not be imagined. "Has any injustice been done to Debs in his trial by the courts?" Judge Taft asked. "Is there the slightest doubt in the mind of his fiercest supporter that he violated the injunction? Why then complain of his conviction before a tribunal authorized to try him?"

LIKE A RIDE ON AN EARTHQUAKE.

The Sensation Produced by an Elephant Running Away.

Nothing but a ride on an earthquake could be compared to the sensation of being run away with by an elephant. Nothing stops his wild rush, and he does not swerve for an obstacle, but goes straight at it. A few shakes fling off everything on his back, and the rider has but a second or two in which to make up his mind which overhanging branch he will cling to or if he will risk throwing himself off. A broken neck would be the certain consequence of remaining. As for stopping him, somebody has well said that you might as well try to stop a runaway locomotive by pulling with your walking stick on the funnel as to seek to check an elephant at such a moment with the goad.

By stroking an elephant's lip in a certain manner you can make it purr like a huge grimalkin till the earth shakes beneath your feet. When it is afraid or angry, it squeaks like an uncoiled hinge. But when it suddenly jumps aside like a flea you imagine for a moment that the ultimate terrestrial cataclysm has gone off.

The Malays never wholly trust their elephants and were nervous at my familiarities with mine, a sweet tempered old female on which I rode hundreds of miles. During the midday halt I used to call her up, and she would come and stand with one foot on each side of my chest as I lay on my back and fed her with bananas. I was never angry with her but once, when she tried to kill the cook.

On one occasion a little elephant of our party, running behind its mother, teased her beyond endurance, and she turned and gave him a shove that landed him feet foremost at the bottom of a deep brook. For two hours he screamed like a steam whistle while we were all engaged in getting him out.

Every night when we reached camp and the loads were taken off each driver would hobble his beast by tying its front legs together with rattan so that it could only hop with both together. Then a huge wooden bell was hung around its neck, and it was turned loose to wander in the jungle. All night long the faint dong, dong of these bells made a mournful noise around the camp. At daybreak each driver tracked his elephant by the sound, often going many miles for him.—Atlanta Constitution.

SLEEP REFORM.

The Man Who Tried It and the Way His Scheme Worked.

Colonel Henry Watterson tells a story of an old compositor whose life had been given up to hard work and the following of eccentric ideas, one of which was that the human race slept too much. He had several theories to advance in support of his idea. One of them was to cut down the usual number of sleeping hours by gradation and finally arrive at a state where, by practice, one would be satisfied with a much smaller amount of sleep than one was getting.

To show his confidence in his theory he began to practice the new idea as follows: He usually slept nine hours. He explained that he would cut this down to 8½ hours for each week that passed until he had reduced his number of sleeping hours to two, which, he claimed, was all that was needed by any one.

The time went by, and the old fellow had kept to his rule laid down and finally reached the two hour time.

He went along for several weeks sleeping but two hours daily, devoting the time gained in reading and advocating his idea. While there was a noticeable decrease in his weight, he seemed to stand it very well.

Then he began to talk of further reducing the time, and when enthusiastic talk of the possibility of one doing without sleep entirely.

He set type and was an old hand on the paper. One morning about three weeks after he had reached his low sleeping mark the compositor at the case next to his noticed the old man had dropped his head upon his arms, that were folded over the case. It was near quitting time. All the forms were up, and the old chap was not disturbed. He had gone to sleep. The office was soon deserted, with the exception of the janitor and the sleeper. The janitor was instructed not to bother him.

The next day when the first men arrived he was still sleeping as they had left him and snoring so hard that he jarred the type in the case on which he rested.

Some one told his wife where he was, and she concluded to let him sleep. He slept on in that position for 20 hours. Then they carried him to a bed at home, still sleeping. He slept for 32 hours, and when he woke up he had forgotten how to set type and had to learn to read again, although his memory was good in other respects.—Exchange.

BOY'S BODY FOUND.

SEARCH FOR HOWARD PITZEL IS ENDED.

Ghastly Discovery Made in a Suburb of Indianapolis—Body Had Been Burned in a Stove, but Identification Is Complete.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 29.—Indianapolis will claim the right to try H. H. Holmes for murder. This claim will be based on the horrible developments of yesterday, which include finding of charred remains of 9-year-old Howard Pitzel and evidence which, before any jury in the country, would convict H. H. Holmes of having murdered him and then partially burned his body in a stove.

Detectives Geyer, of Philadelphia, Richards, of Indianapolis, and Inspector Gary, of the Fidelity Insurance Company, have been at work for two weeks hunting for traces of the boy's body. He was traced here with Holmes and disappeared. The city was scoured and work began in the suburbs hunting for a house rented by Holmes on Oct. 10, 11, or 12 of last year.

Yesterday morning the detectives went to Irvington, a pretty suburb of the city, and the seat of Butler College, and before they had been at work an hour their attention was called by a local real estate dealer to a small vacant cottage situated in the woods at the edge of town, and far removed from any other dwelling.

The party went to the house, and a few minutes later the officers found beneath the side porch the missing trunk, which was taken from the side door of the Circle house in this city October 10 by H. H. Holmes, and which was thought to have contained the body of the boy.

Great excitement followed and hundreds flocked to the scene as soon as the discovery leaked out, although the officers endeavored to keep the matter a secret. The house was guarded and the work of searching for additional evidence began. Developments followed thick and fast, and the chain of evidence is damning.

In a barn connected with the house was a large stove of cylindrical shape, of the same pattern as Holmes bought in Cincinnati. He had rented the house under the same alias.

The stove had been moved from the house to the stable by the owner of the house after Holmes left. It was at once concluded that the body had been burned in the stove, and search began for the remains.

Late in the evening Dr. J. F. Barnhill's attention was called by a small boy named Walter Jenny to the stove hole where the stove had been. The hole was filled with refuse. This was pulled out, and the remains of the Pitzel boy were found. In this pit of refuse hundreds of pieces of charred bones were found. The teeth showed that the body was that of a boy between 8 and 10 years of age, and all the other bones confirmed this. All were charred, and pieces of flesh clung to some of them. The skull bones and pelvis added to the same convincing truth. The body had evidently been burned in a cob fire and in the huge stove found in the barn. Howard Pitzel's overcoat was found at a grocery store near by, where Holmes had left it, saying the boy would call for it. He never came.

Owners of the house recognize Holmes from pictures, and several neighbors distinctly remember his face. All identify him as the man who, last October, rented the house, with the same story he told in Toronto and other places, came with the boy and the big stove, washstand and bed, stayed two days, and then disappeared. Several people have identified him, and all doubt is removed. Other developments are expected to-day, and with this evidence Indianapolis will demand Holmes for trial.

Colored Templars Meet.

Cleveland, Ohio, Aug. 29.—The twenty-fourth annual convocation of the Grand Commandery Colored Knights Templar of Ohio and jurisdiction began here yesterday, with Most Eminent Grand Commander of Louisville presiding. The delegates, who number 150, attended divine service at St. John's A. M. E. Church, where Rev. R. C. Ransom delivered a sermon. At the business session in the afternoon questions of a routine nature were taken up. In the evening a concert was given for the benefit of the visitors.

Rob a Postoffice.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 29.—The postoffice and the general store of T. E. Phillips, at Rush, twenty miles north of here, were burglarized by three men Monday night, who secured something over $1,000. The safe in the postoffice was brand new, but the cracksmen understood their business and looted the place in a few minutes. Citizens gave chase, but the robbers escaped.

Tramp Found Murdered.

Mansfield, Ohio, Aug. 29.—An unknown man, a tramp, aged about 28, was murdered in a box car on the Pennsylvania railroad near Mansfield yesterday afternoon. He was found unconscious, with his throat cut, upon the arrival of the train in this city, and died at 5 o'clock. Two tramps who were on the train were arrested, but they say that one or two tramps who were seen to jump from the train by others committed the murder. Officers and citizens are in pursuit.

CONFESSION GOOD FOR THE SOUL.

That the republicans are sore over the return of business prosperity is evidenced by nearly every issue of their leading papers. That they would have been delighted had the hard times lasted a year longer, is but too apparent. More business, longer hours, increased wages, were admitted by them at all, are very grudgingly acknowledged. Even when such admissions are made, there is coupled with them the assertion that the country is not yet in these particulars where it was in '92 under McKinleyism. They studiously avoid allusion to the conditions during 1893-1894 under McKinleyism. They are no longer able, however, to deny that their calamity howl is shelved and that a democratic tariff has brought renewed prosperity to the people.

The United States seems to be getting a firmer hold on the trade of other countries since the Wilson tariff became operative. Recently we sent to Chili twelve American ten-wheel mogul locomotives, four express locomotives and two engines for light work. Heretofore this trade has gone to England. Our manufactures are also finding their way in increasing quantities into England itself. Not only are we able to hold our own markets, but find it possible to carry our competition into the home markets of the European countries. With equal opportunities for obtaining raw material we can pay higher wages and still hold our share of the world's trade. This is because of the vastly greater productiveness of our labor.

Governor McKinley prophesies that the majority by which he was elected in the year of the great political landslide "will not be materially decreased" in the Ohio election this fall. Predictions of this sort may be expected all around. But with republican politicians generally it will be nothing more than whistling to keep their courage up. The fact is that the world has moved fast and far since November, 1894, and the conditions have altogether changed. That was a time of depression, low wages, poverty—a republican year. This is a time of business revival, of rising wages, of comfort and hope—a democratic year.—Boston Post.

That is a fine object lesson to duellists which comes up from Mexico. Two "bloods" of very high social position quarreled and a duel resulted in which one of the two was killed. Public opinion demanded that the survivor be tried for murder. The trial resulted in conviction, and the judge sentenced the guilty duelist to four years' imprisonment at hard labor, the payment of $4,500 annually to the widow for eighteen years and the costs of the suit. Not many experiences of that nature would be needed to keep such crimes in pretty close bounds.

It is said that England has a surveying party running lines up in Alaska with the view of laying claim to some of Uncle Sam's land. If this be true, they should be taken by the nape of the neck and the seat of the pantaloons and unceremoniously pitched across the boundary. England is said to claim a strip of land varying from fifty to a hundred and fifty miles wide and including some of the best harbors on that coast. She will know more before she works any such scheme on our Uncle Sam. Previous experience in this line should have taught her wisdom.

TEACHING A PROFESSION.

Dr. J. M. Rice, who has attracted considerable attention during the past few years as a writer on the work of our schools, in the current number of the Forum says: "The greatest fault in the schools of our country lies in the professional weakness of our teachers."

That Dr. Rice is correct in this view of the case there will probably be few to question. Of course this criticism does not imply that there are not many teachers in our schools who in professional knowledge and skill are the equals of the practitioners in any other profession, but that the number of those who lack a knowledge of pedagogical principles and skill in their practical application is so large as to be a source of serious weakness to the schools. That such a condition should exist is due in large measure, no doubt, to the fact that our people have been slow to recognize that anything more than a general education is necessary as a preparation for teaching. They have not, and many do not yet regard teaching as a profession in the sense they do law and medicine. Nor is this opinion held by nonprofessional and business people alone. It is no anomaly to find lawyers and physicians on boards of education who, while claiming for their own professional opinions the weight conceded to experts, are slow to admit that the professional ideas and opinions of the teacher should be entitled to the same consideration. The result is that boards of education which are or should be business organizations rather than educational, fail many times to recognize the proper boundary between the business and educational administration of a school. Instead of permitting the professional head of the school system, the superintendent, to select his assistant, under such restrictions as will prevent favoritism and abuse of power, they, with little knowledge of the teachers' preparation and the work he wanted to do, proceed to elect some relative or some person who "needs" the place, or who has a "pull" with a member of the board. Thus our schools are many times made asylums for the "halt and the lame and the blind" teacher rather than institutions the object of whose existence is the good of the children, the proper training and developing of their powers and the storing of their minds with useful knowledge. For the accomplishment of these ends the teacher stands, or should, for vastly more than brick and mortar, the text-books, and in fact than all other factors combined. The controlling principle in the selection of teachers should always be therefore, moral worth combined with a knowledge of pedagogical principles and skill in their practical application. The weakness of our schools, resulting from poor teachers, can only be overcome where this principle is given its due weight and the selection of teachers is entrusted to those who are competent to judge of the teachers' professional preparation and skill in practice.

OHIO IN LINE.

Last Wednesday Ohio joined hands with the democrats of Kentucky and Iowa in favor of sound money. This result was accomplished, too, in the face of the most strenuous efforts on the part of the friends of free silver for the adoption of the crazy 16 to 1 platform of last fall, on which the democracy of the state was buried under an adverse majority of 140,000, the worst defeat in the history of the state. The friends of sound money in the convention outnumbered the advocates of free silver two to one, and no doubt the majority would have been even greater had it not been for the fact that they were obliged to carry the load of unpopularity attaching to Senator Brice for his course in the last congress. Of course the friends of fifty cent dollars will say that the convention was carried against them through the potency of the senator's barrel, but such a claim is nonsensical, as his unpopularity due to his course on the tariff cost more than his money could win, granting that it entered freely into the canvass for delegates.

The real lesson of the convention is that the dishonest thought of being able to pay debts with fifty cent dollars which found lodgement in the minds of thousands during the period of their distress is upon sober second thought and the return of prosperity being rapidly driven out. Hard times and enforced idleness have given place to better times and employed labor, to increased activity and increased wages in nearly every industry and the result is that general contentment is again taking possession of the people and they now see more clearly the fallacy and wrong of the remedy which in their distress they were so eager to try. Changed circumstances enable them to appreciate the fact that no permanent prosperity can result from a policy that will advantage one class of our citizens by wronging another class. That there was no bad blood exhibited by the defeated element indicates that those who still hold the free silver idea are democrats first and that they do not intend to seek the carrying out of their views through some other organization. They are loyal to democracy and this ensures the presentation of a solid front to the enemy. The effect of the democratic legislation of the last congress are becoming more and more apparently manifest as time passes and as these results force themselves more and more on the attention of the masses, through the revival of industry and increase wages, voters are sure to see the mistake they made last fall in charging the evils of years of vicious republican legislation to the democratic administration and will vote for the continuance in power of the party which by its wise legislation has brought about a revival of industry and general prosperity. Democratic prospects for 1896 are becoming brighter every day.

Again Arrested for Arison.

Cuyler J. Barton, waiting trial in the circuit court on the charge of burning the barn of Stephen Hadley in Lyndon a year ago, is again in the toils of the law. This time it is on the charge of burning a dwelling near Unadilla.

Stephen Hadley, of Lyndon, lost a barn worth $4,500 by fire a year ago last June. The origin of the fire seemed to be incendiary, the circumstances pointing to Cuyler J. Barton as being the incendiary. The case was put in the hands of Marshal Peterson, then a deputy sheriff, who with the aid of Detective Flynn, of Chicago, arrested Barton on Monroe st. in the latter city. The examination was had before Justice Turn Bull, of Chelsea, who bound him over to the circuit court, his uncle, Loren L. Babcock, of Chelsea, going on his bond in the sum of $1,500. Hon. A. J. Sawyer appeared as his attorney. The case was adjourned from the March term from time to time on account of the unaccountable absence of two witnesses.

Since the arrest two more barns, valued over $7,000, have been burned in the vicinity of the Hadley fire. In all the cases the buildings seem to have been set fire by a peculiarly constructed machine in a little box. It was made up of a bottle containing combustible fluid, with a fuse.

The more recent cases in which Barton was suspected and which have caused his re-arrest were the burning of the barn of Mr. Bangs, of Unadilla, and the house of Gilbert May. Barton helped Bangs thresh and after it was finished his barn was burned. Public sentiment was inclined to believe Barton was the incendiary. An important witness in the case was Gilbert May. He moved into a new house but before he was settled the house was burned to the ground. Barton is under arrest for this last fire.

New York Yachtsmen Uneasy Over the Situation.

New York, Aug. 22.—The first formal trial race between the Defender and the Vigilant to give the America's cup committee an opportunity to decide which boat should be named to defend the cup was held yesterday outside of Sandy Hook in the same waters where the cup race will take place. An accident prevented the Defender from really showing what she could do in a breeze that went over the water probably at the rate of twenty knots an hour. The breeze stirred up her rigging so much that it loosened it to a material extent, doing such damage that the Defender had to withdraw or take a liberal chance at carrying away her topmast. It was afterward found that the slackening up of the rigging was so extensive that the yacht would not be able to compete in the second trial race for a week. Yachtsmen are considerably alarmed over the accident.

THE VOICE.

A Few of the Opinions of Waldstern Pegg, Musical Doctor.

Dr. Pegg, who was once an associate of Abbé Liszt, entertains the opinion that the voices of singers may be affected by their diet. In those parts of Europe where fish is the chief article of food, there are few fine vocalists, and the voice in ordinary speech there is apt to lack delicacy of timbre and also dignity. Dr. Pegg has come to the conclusion that the food most desirable for singers is of a granivorous kind, yet they may properly include a moderate quantity of meat in their daily repast. He discards the idea that malt liquors give strength to the voice, though they may stimulate its action for a brief time. They had better be avoided by those singers who desire to keep their tones fresh and rich.

The smoking habit is not necessarily injurious to the voice, if the indulgence in it be well restrained and temperate. Dr. Pegg has no patience with those French composers professing to be symbolists who would mingle with music the "potent spirit of perfume." The ancient Romans believed that in perfume there was a subtle power to create emotion, but it ought not to be used in combination with music to intensify an artistic impression. The music alone should be all-powerful.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

Canadian Statesman Talks of Affairs in That Country.

New York, Aug. 28.—The Hon. John F. Stairs, one of the conservative leaders of the dominion parliament, in an interview said:

"The issue in Canada is the Manitoba school question. Protestants in Manitoba outnumber the Catholics five to one. This is a recent preponderance, because ten years ago the tide of immigration had not set in toward the northwest. At that time the schools were segregated. Most of the settlers of late have been Protestants. There is practically no annexation sentiment in Canada to-day. Canada has too much national pride to desire annexation to the United States. With regard to the Imperial federation plan I do not know where we stand. We are virtually independent of England and the question arises as to the right of veto concerning matters of legislation which come up in the Canadian parliament."

HARD ON THE SETTLERS.

Farmers on Government Reserves to Be Removed.

Port Townsend, Wash., Aug. 28.—Consternation has been caused in this and adjoining counties by the appearance of an army lieutenant and a squad of men with instructions to all settlers on government reserves to vacate the same before September 15 or be removed by the troops. This move is the outcome of a recent order of the war department and it is conservatively estimated that 1,500 settlers will lose their homes. It is feared here that trouble will ensue should the government attempt to forcibly take from the settlers the home, which they built by many years of toil. It was claimed by some that this action of the department is simply preliminary to the extensive and much-needed fortification of Puget sound.

CAUSED BY WHISKY.

Spree of a Drunken Cowboy Results Fatally.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 28.—A special from Butte, Mont., says:

"Word has been received here of a triple killing which occurred at Sweet Grass, on the international boundary. Yesterday William Long, a cowboy for the 'F' outfit, who is also said to be a whisky smuggler, killed a mounted policeman named Richardson. The two men met near the middle butte of Sweet Grass, had several drinks, got into a row and the killing resulted. After the shooting of Richardson Long went to C. B. Toole's ranch, where he is alleged to have killed Ira Brown, foreman of the sheep ranch. The latter, before dying, shot Long, killing him almost instantly. Long's mother lives in Los Angeles, Cal."

England May Give Up Trinidad.

New York, Aug. 28.—The Herald's correspondent in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, telegraphs that it is reported in official circles that, despite the assertions published in the English press, the Brazilian government has good ground to believe that England will relinquish her claim to the island of Trinidad. In regard to the proposed ratification of the terms for Rio Grande do Sul the president says that it is impossible for him to change the constitution of the state without express sanction from the national congress.

To Form a Colony.

Portland, Ore., Aug. 28.—George F. Ormsby, an agent of the Sociological and Reform League of Boston is investigating the resources and the advantages offered by the country to a colony of people seeking homes in the west. The aim of the Sociological and Reform League, Mr. Ormsby states, is to better the condition of mankind living in the crowded centers of the east.

Texas Fever in Kansas.

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 28.—Texas fever has broken out in a herd of cattle on a farm two miles west of this town. The farm has been placed under strict quarantine. The cattle were shipped to Paola from Mountain Grove, Mo., on Aug. 15. It was only last week that Texas fever was found in Cowley county.

MAY BE LYNCHED.

Posse After the People Who Whipped Mrs. White and Her Daughter.

Sergeant, Ky., Aug. 29.—Great excitement prevails on the Virginia side of the Cumberland mountains east of this place over a White Cap outrage. Monday night White Caps went to the home of Martha White, a well known woman, aged 65 years, pulled both her and her 20-year-old daughter from their beds, and taking them to a patch of woods near their home, tied them to trees and beat them most brutally. They were finally rescued by a neighbor. They are both alive, but are not expected to survive their injuries. A posse of twenty men, headed by Sheriff Holbrook of Wise county, is scouring the Cumberland mountains for the perpetrators, and if caught the whole party will likely be lynched.

The Clancy Inquest.

The inquest in the Frank Clancy case was concluded last evening, the jury bringing in a verdict that Frank Clancy, the deceased, came to his death on Tuesday, August 6, at about 8 a. m., at the Washtenaw county house, in the township of Pittsfield, from a blow upon the head or neck, sustained in the city of Toledo, State of Ohio, on or about Saturday evening, August 3, 1895, inflicted by a person unknown to the jury. The jury also are of the opinion that owing to the negligence or inefficiency of the Toledo police department, the many clues which have arisen in the case have not been investigated to an extent that would enable the jury to positively fix the responsibility for the injury sustained by the said Frank Clancy upon any particular person.

The investigation, since our last issue, occupied Friday, Wednesday, and yesterday afternoons. A vast amount of dirty family linen was washed in the presence of the jury, and a large audience, among whom were many small boys and girls. The star witnesses in the case were William Hasenack, Mrs. Edith Clancy, and Pat. Boyle. The stories of none of these witnesses agreed in some essential points with the stories of the others, and it was easily evident that much of the testimony had to be taken with large grains of salt. The case has been a peculiar one from start to finish. And the clues developed were so promising that it would seem if the Toledo officers had not dropped the case like a hot potato, the exact truth of the matter could have been determined. Looking over the case after the evidence was in, it would not seem to be the most difficult case in the world for any detective to clear up.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic as the foremost Review in the English language, and no expenditure is spared in maintaining it in its unrivalled position.

THE REVIEW is the mouthpiece of the men and women who know most about the great topics on which Americans require and desire to be informed from month to month.

AMERICAN WOMEN

receive constant and special attention. Among topics recently discussed are:

- "Women Suffrage in Practice"; "The Renaissance of Women"; "Woman in Politics"; "The New Aspect of the Woman Question"; "The Modern Girl"; by the author of "The Heavenly Twins"; "The Future of Marriage"; "Evils of Early Marriages"; "The Servant Girl of the Future"; "The Financial Dependence of Women"; "Trades-Unions for Women"; "The Lack of Good Servants"; "American Life and Physical Deterioration"; "Good and Bad Mothers"; "The Tyranny of the Kitchen"; "The Amateur Nurse"; Mark Twain's Defense of Harriet Shelly, etc., etc.

A NEW FEATURE FOR 1895.

The REVIEW will publish in 12 chapters, beginning with the January number, the Personal History of the Second Empire.

a historical work of unsurpassed importance, which will throw a flood of new light upon the chequered career of Napoleon III., and the influences which led to the collapse of his Empire in the gigantic struggle with united Germany, under Wilhelm I. and his Iron Chancellor. It is as fascinating as a romance, being richly anecdotal and full of information drawn from sources hitherto inaccessible, presented in the graphic and vivacious style which "The Englishman in Paris," by the same author, has made familiar to thousands of readers.

AVERTED A SPLIT.

Pennsylvania Republicans Compromise Their Quarrel.

THE EXPECTED DOES NOT HAPPEN.

And the Proceedings of the State Convention Are Marked by Their Peacefulness—Quay Having Won Makes no Fight on Candidates and the Only Struggle Is for Harmony—Platform Comes Out Clear on the Silver Question.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 29.—The Republican state convention met without a row today and unanimously agreed upon the following ticket: State chairman, M. S. Quay; state treasurer, Ben J. Haywood, of Mercer; for superior court judges (six to be elected), James A. Beaver, of Center county; E. N. Tillard, of Lackawana; Charles E. Rice, of Luzerne; George B. Orady, of Huntington; John J. Wickham, of Beaver; Howard Reeder, of Northampton. Senator Quay is now the hero as well as the idol of Pennsylvania politicians of all degrees of prominence. His rooms at the Lochiel hotel have been constantly besieged since the convention ended by men anxious to pay homage to his leadership. The senator takes all of the praise and congratulations that are being showered upon him with his usual stoicism, and so far as outward appearance goes his demeanor is just the same as when the fight seemed to be going against him.

First Blood for the Quay Men. The convention, which started out with every promise of being one of the most exciting ever known in the state, developed into a "love feast" and wound up about as tamely as any ever seen here. The first battle between the factions came on the election of a temporary chairman. The Quay candidate won by a majority of 30, and after this the senator had his own way completely. An incident of the day was the offering by Senator Quay of a resolution calling for the purification of politics and civil service in all branches of the public service, which was afterwards embodied in the platform. Regarding this document there was much discussion in committee.

Came Near Forgetting Hastings. Because of the fear that the outside rabble might break in it was deemed unwise to open the doors of the hall after all entitled to admission were inside, and it was necessary for the fifty platform-makers to get in one corner and discuss their business. The anti-Quay minority, led by Congressman Dalzell, fought for a more definite expression in favor of "sound money," and being outvoted in committee brought their fight to the convention floor and here carried their point without much opposition, Quay accepting their plank as additional to the one in his platform. The resolutions were prepared by men opposed to Governor Hastings, and the matter of endorsing his administration was very nearly overlooked, a thoughtful delegate offering the necessary plank a few minutes before final adjournment.

Some Leaders Who Do Not Speak. Although there was an outward indication of harmony and forgiveness it is said that this extends only to Governor Hastings and his friends. Those on the platform observed that Quay did not look at or speak to C. L. Magee, David Martin and Senator Porter, the men who have led the fight against him. In nominating Quay for state chairman Congressman Stone, of Allegheny, put in a plea for harmony after the fight. He said: "We have had a great contest inside the party. Let us ever keep our contests within the party. Let us remember that we are Republicans. Let nothing be said or done here today that will come back to plague us when the battle is on with the Democratic party. It has been hot and many things have been said and published, and more things have been published than said, which have only made it hotter.

Should Not Treasure Up Hard Words. "These things should not be treasured up as wrongs. In a fight like this we fight our best, and while the desperate fighting provokes and worries at the time, yet after it is over the hardest fighters are only remembered with admiration for their courage and their bravery. There are too many good soldiers on both sides of this controversy to spare any of them from the ranks, and in a party contest no Republicans can ever dislike another so much as to wish to see him become a Democrat."

PLANKS OF THE PLATFORM.

National Declaration of 1892 with a More Radical Conclusion.

The platform is a standard Republican document as to the tariff, claiming that the national prosperity lies in protection and that the recent business depression is traceable entirely to Democratic success and free trade and the present recovery to Republican victories in recent elections. On the money question the national declaration of 1892 is reaffirmed with the following further defining the same: "The Republican party believing it to be the settled doctrine of the party that the honor of the nation and the interests of its citizens require the maintenance of the national currency, every dollar of which, whether in gold, silver or notes, shall be of stable value and of equal purchasing power, hereby declares its opposition to the debasement of the national currency by the admission of silver to free and unlimited coinage at the arbitrary ratio of 16 to 1."

Senator Quay was thanked for his opposition to the Wilson tariff bill, and the governor of the state was commended as follows: "We commend the splendid administration of Governor Daniel H. Hastings, which has fully justified the confidence in him of the voters of the commonwealth as expressed in the enormous majority given him last fall," which ought to satisfy the most exacting of his friends.

In fact harmony was the motto of the convention. A split had been averted by a compromise reached by the Quay and anti-Quay men in the "wee sma' hours," by which, while it was agreed that Quay could have the chairmanship of the state committee if he had the delegates, it was also agreed that Governor Hastings men for judges should be nominated. Then, although a Quay man was the temporary chairman, Governor Hastings was made permanent chairman.

Populists of Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Aug. 29.—At least 500 delegates were in attendance at the Populist state convention. The most prominent leaders of the party—United States Senator Allen, ex-United States Senator Varwick, Campbell, of Fremont, Heaton of Kearney, and others were present, with a large following of representative Populists of the country. Samuel Maxwell was nominated for supreme judge and James K. Thurston and E. W. Poastle for university regents. The platform is the Omaha declaration including the initiative and referendum, against which a fight was made.

Utah Republican Convention.

SALT LAKE CITY, Aug. 29.—The Utah Republican convention nominated D. H. Wells for governor and C. S. Zane, J. W. Bartsch and J. W. Miner for supreme judges. The platform demands free silver at 16 to 1, and otherwise a regulation Republican declaration. O. E. Allen was nominated for congress, J. D. Hammond for secretary of state, J. C. Chipman for treasurer, A. C. Bishop for attorney general, Morgan Richards for auditor and Mrs. Emma J. McVickar for superintendent of public instruction.

Proportional Representation Conference.

SARATOGA, Aug. 29.—The proportional representation conference continued the consideration of a system of election. Papers were received from Judge William M. Springer, of Illinois, and others. The conference adjourned after adopting an address and resolutions recommending the Swiss system of proportional representation, especially in municipal elections.

CHICAGO DRAINAGE CHANNEL.

Board of Investigation Report on the Effect on the Lake Level.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The board of engineers which recently examined the Chicago drainage channel with reference to its effect on the lake level submits estimates made by other engineers indicating that a loss of seven inches is possible in Lakes Michigan and Huron as the effect of the canal. The trustees of the drainage canal contemplate taking only 800,000 cubic feet under present conditions, but after the canal is opened the board assumes that ultimately the entire 600,000 cubic feet will be drawn from Lake Michigan, as authorized by the state charter.

The report says that while the channels and harbors of the great lakes below St. Mary's falls will be injuriously affected by a diminution in depth, the inner harbor of Chicago will be diminished also by the introduction of a current which, in the present condition of the river with the minimum flow of 5,000 cubic feet per second, is entirely inadmissible. The estimate of the effect of the canal on this harbor should, they say, also consider this element. The board of trustees have not yet determined upon a plan of treatment of this navigable channel, and their plans may, the report suggests, be such as to improve, impair, or destroy its utility as a navigable river.

FOUR DROWNED IN THE RIVER.

Boat Capsized in a Squall—Three Women and One Man Lost.

PORT HURON, Mich., Aug. 29.—An accident occurred on the St. Clair river, near Marysville, during a squall and rain storm in which four persons lost their lives. A picnic was being held at Stag island, opposite Marysville, and Mrs. Michael Derufg, Frank Derufg—her brother-in-law—and three young ladies, Misses Celia Choniski, Minnie Schvenhart and Edith Comrow, rowed over early in the day. When the storm was seen coming up they started back for home, but when within 400 feet of the shore the squall struck the little craft and capsized it.

Miss Schvenhart, a girl of 15, clambered up on the boat, but the other three all got hold of Frank Derufg. For a while he held on to the upturned boat with one hand and made a heroic battle for life, but when one of the women in her desperation got hold of his free hand the handicap proved to much and he had to let go, and all four sank to the bottom. The Schvenhart girl clung to the boat and was rescued later by some boys.

Has Whiskers Inside His Mouth.

RED OAK, Ia., Aug. 29.—W. R. Lidwell, living several miles north of here, had a surgical operation for cancer of the face performed in Omaha a short time ago, in which it was found necessary to turn a flap of the skin back on the wound, turning the hair on the inside. The hair keeps on growing, and at regular intervals Lidwell has to go to a doctor to have the inside of his mouth shaved, the hair growing from the reversed flap of skin through into his mouth.

German-American Vets at Hamburg.

HAMBURG, Aug. 29.—The German-American veterans arrived here yesterday afternoon from Bremen. They were received at the railroad station by a committee of the Hamburg military society and by deputations of citizens carrying banners. After cordial greetings had been exchanged the band struck up "Deutschland Ueber Alles," which was followed by American national airs. They will visit Prince Bismarck at Friedrichsruhe today.

Texas Fever in Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 29.—The state board of live stock commissioners reports that an official inspection of the outbreak of Texas fever at Mt. Sterling, Brown county, shows the disease had been brought into Illinois by cattle shipped from the Union Stock yards at St. Louis. The disease is under control in Brown county and no further trouble is anticipated.

German Methodist Conference.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 29.—The Chicago German conference was opened at the First German Methodist church. In deference to Bishop Merrill, who is in attendance, the proceedings are being conducted in the English language. Last evening Chaplain McCabe delivered a lecture.

Cloudburst in Algeria.

CONSTANTINE, Algeria, Aug. 29.—There was a cloudburst in the district of Sidiach, which caused enormous damage. An Arab village was destroyed, fourteen persons were killed and sixteen others severely injured have been removed from the ruins.

Society Young Woman a Lawyer.

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 29.—Miss Marguerite T. Shult, a leading society young lady of this city, and daughter of ex-State Senator and now United States District Attorney William E. Shult, has been admitted to practice law by the supreme court.

Struck Speechless While Blaspheming.

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 29.—William Haygood, while profaning on Monday at the High Shoals, declaring there was no God, no heaven and no hell, had his tongue paralyzed. The matter has caused a great sensation in that community.

GENERAL THOMAS.

He Might Have Been a Southern Soldier but For His Wife.

General William Mahone of Virginia sat in Chamberlin's, deeply interested in a well bound volume of substantial size. To a reporter who ventured to ask the title of the book the general courteously said:

"It is made up of 'Papers of the Military Historical Society of Massachusetts' and contains critical sketches of some of the leading Federal and Confederate generals. I was at that moment engaged on the sketch devoted to General Thomas. It is a very fair and interesting account of his character and services.

"I knew Thomas personally, for he was born and reared in my section of West Virginia. He was a military man of excellent parts, rather slow to act, but never able to grasp the idea that he had been whipped. His bulldog tenacity was a strong characteristic.

"I know a good deal more than this book about Thomas' predilection for the southern cause. In passing through the state on his way from Texas to New York at the time that the legislature was deliberating on the question of secession, Thomas said, with emphasis, 'There is nothing for the south to do but to fight.' It was well understood that his sympathies were with the people of his native section.

"I was empowered by the governor of Virginia to offer him an important position created for him and tendered it with the full expectation that it would be accepted. He married a Miss Marcy of New York, and it is no doubt true that his wife's influence had much to do with keeping him on the Union side."—Washington Post.

The Origin of "Linger."

A correspondent sends the following derivation of the term "linger": "Early in the forties there moved from Vermont to one of the then flourishing cotton manufacturing villages of New Hampshire a man with a large family of children, to keep one of the corporation boarding houses. He was a tall, lank dyspeptic. There was but one shoe store in the village; in the rear of the store was a room for making and repairing shoes. Here was a Frenchman, and a lover of mischief. One day the tavern keeper entered the shop and said: 'Hello! Are you a shoemaker?' 'Yes,' was the answer, 'and linger at it.' The Frenchman caught on, and in a day or two there was hung outside the building, with other store goods, probably the most uncouth, bunglingly made pair of shoes ever seen on the continent, labeled 'Lingers.' There they hung until every man, woman and child in the village had looked them over. From that day the members of the dyspeptic's family were known as 'lingers.' And the word was applied to everything as a superlative, to a fine yoke of oxen or a big fish."—Boston Journal.

The Spent Cannon Ball.

General Sherman's reminiscences of wartime are very entertaining. One of the most magnificent specimens of manhood I ever saw, said he, was a soldier who was constantly laughing at the poor fellows who became fatigued by long marches or who sank under seemingly trifling wounds. His courage, health and strength seemed invincible. One day a heavy projectile from the enemy's cannon—what we call a spent ball—came rolling along. The temptation to put out one's foot to stop such a ball was irresistible. The soldier I have mentioned yielded to it. With a merry smile he put out his foot, and in an instant it was cut off, and he sank to the ground a maimed, shattered cripple for life, weeping like a child at his awful misfortune.

"For three years I suffered from Salt Rheum. It covered my hands to such an extent that I could not wash them. Two bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters cured me." Libbie Young, Popes Mills, St. Lawrence County, N. Y.

SINFUL HABITS IN YOUTH

LATER EXCESSES IN MANHOOD MAKE NERVOUS, DISEASED MEN

THE RESULT of ignorance and folly in youth, overexertion of mind and body induced by lust and exposure are constantly wrecking the lives and futures of thousands of promising young men. Some fade and wither at an early age, at the blossom of manhood, while others are forced to drag out a weary, fruitless and melancholy existence. Others reach matrimony but find no solace or comfort there. The victims are found in all stations of life.—The farm, the office, the workshop, the pulpit, the trades and the professions.

A BACK BLOW.

The Weapon Small,—but None More Certain or Effective.

In these times when backs are lame, when almost every other one we meet has now and then, or all the time, a back that aches or pains—"a weak back," "a bad back," a back that makes their life a misery to bear—and still they go on day by day in pain and suffering. Now 'tis the easiest thing in the world to give this played out back "a blow" that will settle it, and put in its place a new one equal to any.

Here is a case from Battle Creek: Mr. Josiah M. Shoup lives at 51 Broad Street, he was a member of the Battle Creek police force for many years. As a member of the force he served the city well, but the rough weather he was often subjected to laid the foundation of kidney disorder, which has troubled him very much. Here is what he says about it:

"About three years ago, while on the police force, I contracted from exposure a kidney trouble, which has since given me no end of trouble. The pain was right through my kidneys and across the small of my back; if sitting down and I wanted to stand up, I had to arise very slowly and gently to avoid increasing the pain; I had such tired-out feelings all the time, and I was steadily getting worse. About two months ago, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box. Their action and effect was most complete, they removed the old aching pains for good. I can now get around as quickly as anybody. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly as represented."

BRILLIANT DRILLS.

Put Up by the Knight Templar Commanderies.

MANY UNIQUE MOVEMENTS SHOWN.

Great Throng Assembles at the Base Ball Park to Witness the Exhibition—Little Masons from an Orphan Asylum Show Their Skill—Six Thousand Couples at a Reception to Grand Master McCurdy—Other Entertainments.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Business and pleasure combine to take up the time of every Knight Templar now here. Everywhere receptions are being held and the sir knight who was venturesome enough to attend them all would find himself heavily laden with souvenirs. The streets are still thronged with people at all hours, notwithstanding the thousands who each day go on some of the numerous excursions by water or land. The grand commandery of Ohio is holding receptions every day and is entertaining thousands. More than 12,000 of the state's unique battle axe souvenirs have been distributed already. The most entertaining feature of yesterday was the competitive drill, and the base ball grounds were never so crowded as they were with people to see this drill. The first knights to appear were those of the Columbia commandery, of Washington.

Fancy Manoeuvres Given. The knights marched and counter-marched, wheeled by company and by platoons, and then executed many manoeuvres which had no military significance, but were arranged with a view to effect and complication. The climax of Columbia's exhibition was superb, coming down the field in perfect alignment, the men suddenly breaking ranks and forming three simultaneous tableaux, representing "attack," "defence" and "defeat."

Apollo commandery, of Troy, N. Y., then took the field. The feature of this exhibition was the formation of words on the ground by arrangement of swords. In their different manoeuvres the words "Apollo," "Troy, N. Y.," and "Boston" were shown.

Banner Commandery Exhibits. St. Bernard commandery, of Chicago, made a magnificent display. This commandery holds the banner which was awarded at the last competitive drill, and their magnificent work and discipline this time showed them to be able to defend it strongly whenever challenged.

The Minneapolis Knight Templars' drill corps followed the Chicago men, and aroused great enthusiasm, executing several original features. The last on the field was Detroit commandery, of Detroit. Their exhibition was one of the features of the day. Their alignment was perfect and every movement was made with a precision which showed careful practice and a perfect knowledge of tactics.

Boys of the Orphans' Home. "The little commandery," from the Masonic Widows' and Orphans' Home, of Louisville, furnished a unique drill during the exhibition. Although small boys, they marched perfectly and performed a series of manoeuvres in a circle around their stands which was extremely difficult. Not a single mistake was made and the little fellows received a storm of applause.

TRULY A GRAND RECEPTION.

Six Thousand Couples Presented to Grand Master McCurdy.

Knights and their ladies turned towards Mechanics' hall last evening to attend a grand reception tendered the grand master, Most Eminent Sir Hugh McCurdy, by the grand commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Fully 6,000 couples were presented to the honored guest. The hall presented a brilliant spectacle, the elaborate and many-hued costumes of the ladies blending in harmony with the dark and profusely ornamented regalia of the knights. Seated behind the receiving party the Salem Cadet band discoursed a programme of excellent selections.

Prior to closing the reception, the members of the Little Masonic home, of Louisville, Ky., marched into the hall and on to the platform, where Grand Master McCurdy made a short address, urging them to be good and true men. Over 4,000 templars were entertained by St. Bernard commandery, No. 35, of Chicago, T. L. Miller, generalissimo of the commandery, with his lady, assisted by an efficient corps, received the guests.

The principal business of the grand entertainment was the discussion of the matter of time and place of the next convocation. It was referred to a committee. It was learned last night that the committee had reported in favor of Pittsburg. It is asserted that this is practically equivalent to a vote, as the report of the committee will, without a doubt, be ratified. Today the officers will probably be elected.

Suicided While Temporarily Insane. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 29.—W. H. Keys, of Louisville, committed suicide last evening by drowning. He jumped off the Baltimore & Ohio bridge west of the city. Some boys saw the net and the body was recovered. Keys was traveling salesman for the Louisville Chair Company, of Louisville, and the Crescent Furniture Company, of Evansville, Ind. It is supposed Keys was temporarily insane.

Civil Service Reform in China. WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The department of state is in receipt of a dispatch from Denby, minister at Peking, transmitting a decree of the Chinese government concerning appointments to office. The decree states that the first of essential in the administration of government is the selection of good men for office.

May Be an Ocean Horror. MARSHFIELD, Or., Aug. 29.—The steamer Bawmore went ashore in the fog near Bandon, Or. There is no telegraph line to Bandon and particulars of the wreck have not yet been received. It is stated that twenty-five to thirty persons could be seen on her decks, but whether they were saved is not known.

BALLAST FOR SPIDER CRABS.

A Difficult Problem Solved in Time of Flood at the New York Aquarium. In one of the tanks at the New York aquarium there are eight spider crabs. The spider crab is the decorating crab grown up. The decorating crab plants upon its back little sprays and streamers of various marine plants, which it snips off with its pincher claws. It carries these first to its mouth, where it seems to keep a supply of waterproof glue, and thence to its back. It is supposed to do this for protection from its enemies, for, half buried in the mud and with these things rising from its back, it is practically invisible. It is possible also that the crab uses the sprigs for adornment, as it often selects growths of bright colors. In its larger growth, after it has come to be called a spider crab, it ceases to decorate itself, though sometimes the seeds of marine plants settle on its back and grow there, but it never loses the handy use of its pincher claws.

The largest of the spider crabs at the aquarium is about 3 inches in length. From side to side its legs spread about eight inches. The bottom of the spider crabs' tank is covered with gravel. The tank was cleaned the other day and all but about three inches of the water drawn off. When the refilling of the tank was begun, all the crabs gathered around the intake. Crabs and fishes in captivity usually do this, welcoming the fresh incoming water as a man in captivity might welcome an incoming current of fresh air. The flow of water through the intake pipes can be regulated at will. Here it was permitted to run in at its natural force, which was about that of water flowing from a hose. The flow was broken somewhat by the wire strainer over the opening of the intake, placed there to keep little fishes and crustaceans from getting into the pipes, but it was too strong for the spider crabs to face. They began to settle themselves down into the gravel and to pile gravel upon their backs, apparently to weight themselves down so that they could withstand it. On a sandy or muddy bottom they could have buried or partly buried themselves. Here the work was more difficult, but they were equal to it.

They would work their legs down into the gravel and then lift them, displacing stones in that manner, and with their pincher claws they would pick up stones. Sometimes a crab would pick up two gravel stones at once, one in each claw, and place them both on its back. It might tackle a stone so big as to require both claws in the handling of it and raise that and put it on its back. Some of the stones would roll off down by the crabs' legs, but they were not lost there, for they helped to build up around, and the crab would go ahead and put up others on its back.

When the tank was full and the inflow cut off, the crabs went walking about again as usual.—New York Sun.

ALBERT EDWARD'S EXPENSIVE JOKE.

How He Smashed the Crockery and Furniture of an Elderly Countess.

Albert Edward, prince of Wales, is perhaps the most popular man in England. This popularity is due to his love of sports and all manly traits which are particularly commendable in the eyes of the average Britisher. As a youth his audacity and appreciation of a joke, either as a perpetrator or victim, were well known.

One of his early escapades resulted in her majesty the queen footing a bill for broken crockery and wrecked furniture which the young prince caused in the house of one of the lesser members of the nobility. A rather elderly countess whose quick temper and sharp tongue drove even her servants away from her advertised for a footman. The prince, to whose ears tales of the peculiarities of the old lady had come, resolved to teach her a lesson. He therefore presented himself in disguise at her ladyship's house and applied for the position of footman.

The countess had just finished her breakfast, and pushing her chair back from the table instructed the servant to bring before her the applicant. The prince was thereupon ushered into the room. The countess looked him over from his feet up.

Apparently pleased with the appearance of the prince, she said, "Let me see you walk."

Albert Edward did as commanded and walked backward and forward several times across the floor from one end of the room to the other, now walking briskly at the request of the old lady and then pacing slowly, as she wished to obtain points on this score.

This performance over, the countess ordered him to trot. The dining room still the theater of action, the prince trotted around it several times. When this exercise was completed, he again came to a standstill near the head of the table, where the countess was seated. Her ladyship seemed pleased and was just on the point of asking the young man some questions about himself when he shouted: "Now see me gallop!"

Grasping a corner of the tablecloth firmly in one hand, the prince rushed around the room, pulling the crockery off on the floor in a heap, knocking over the furniture and finally winding her ladyship up in the folds of the cloth. He then bolted for the door, leaving the countess sputtering and shouting and the servants running about in a distracted way to liberate their mistress and quiet her rage.

In the hubbub and confusion the prince escaped. The next day a check from the keeper of the privy purse settled the amount of the damages and likewise established the identity of the mischief maker.—New York Herald.

CHICAGO, July 18.—The third annual convocation of the Northwestern Electrical association opened here with a large attendance. The day's sessions were taken up largely with preliminary work.

A HARVEST SONG.

Behind the scythes a trodden path, Bind, bind the sheaves, Wide and wider grows the swath, Either side the bright corn heaves Billows of gold. Trees a glory of bronze and red, Bind, bind the sheaves, Misty sunshine overhead, Through the chequer of thinning leaves The air is cold. Breath of the coming frost is there, Bind, bind the sheaves, Vines that cling to the house grow bare, Swallows leave their nests in the eaves Empty and old.

Apples globes, crimson and white, Bind, bind the sheaves, Winnowed grain, sunnily bright (Glittering gold that want relieves), The wide bins hold. Fill the fagon up to the brim, Bind, bind the sheaves, Until the foam runs over the rim, (It mellowed long where the spider weaves In dusk and mold.)

Fill and drink the cider clear, Bind, bind the sheaves, Bid farewell to the passing year, Close the book with blotted leaves, Their tale is told. —Neith Boyce in Outing.

The Thoughtful Chauncey.

A good story is told on Chauncey Depew. He received a letter from a young married friend in Albany asking for a pass for his mother-in-law, who was coming to make him a visit, and closing with the delicate hint, "Don't forget to have the return coupon attached." Mr. Depew is nothing if not worldly wise and sympathetic, and in sending the pass he wrote, "I have not neglected the return coupon and have limited it to three days."—Minneapolis Journal.

Valley Forge's Lone Gravestone.

Only one grave, that of John Watterman of Rhode Island, marked with a rudely carved sandstone, has been identified of all who died at Valley Forge during that perilous winter of 1778. "J. W., 1778," are all the marks that are on the stone, but the records show whose grave it is. All the other graves have been plowed over for more than a century.—Richmond Dispatch.

Nervous Prostration Cured by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

Prolonged derangement of the nervous system not only affects the brain and mental powers, but develops disease in some of the vital organs. The most dangerous of these indirect results is when the heart is affected. This was the case of the Rev. N. F. Surface, Fawn River, Mich., who writes under date of Feb. 14, 1895:

"Fourteen years ago I had a slight stroke of paralysis. Overwork brought on nervous prostration. I was exceedingly nervous and the exertion of public speaking caused heart palpitation that threatened my life. I used two bottles of Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure for my heart trouble, and two of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for my nervousness and feel better than I ever expected to feel again. I can speak for hours without tiring or having my heart flutter as it formerly did, and I have you to thank that I am alive today." On sale by all druggists. The Farmers' Picnics. (Continued from first page.)

found. To show the followers of these tenets they wore different garbs. In like manner when this government was established a tenet or badge to distinguish the true American patriot was bequeathed. It has had a magnificent influence, arousing man's better nature, making heroes of cowards. They knew the sacrifices of the American people. Through ignorance or hallucination the poor South wanted either secession or slavery. They would not wish to be patriots without wishing to love their neighbors and do them good. They could not be good citizens unless they were industrious, moral and religious. It was not necessary to talk about industry. There might be idlers among farmers as well as among every other class, as lawyers, or, he was sorry to say, even the clergy. Firstly they should beautify their homes; then their boys and girls would like them so well that they would not flee to large cities and fail materially as spiritually. The speaker told a good story of a man with only one shirt, who while it was being washed had to retire to bed. On one of these occasions his wife called to him that the goat had eaten his shirt, and the man stoically remarked, "Those that have must lose." Fr. Dwyer said Irishman that he was he was a full American, and he did not want men of the stamp of the man in the story to come to these shores. The next thing was to be temperate. He was not one of those men that believed a man could not drink moderately without doing harm to himself or his country. There should be a moderation in eating and drinking. As it was a great temptation he advised them to take upon themselves to become total abstainers. The young man that takes the pledge puts on the top rail. However many may disagree as to this question, all will agree that the man never drinks a drop will never get drunk. The speaker told a thrilling story of a man in a boat in the Niagara river. He passed the danger mark trusting in his strength, but when he turned back an oar broke and he was lost. Many men, trusting in their iron will and constitution, may have a time when an oar may break and they die drunkards and go the bottom of hell. To be a true patriot they must be temperate. Then comes morality. The farmers were the purest people of the land. They worked so hard that their time was well occupied and there was little danger. But he recommended that they should be very cautious of the company their sons and daughters kept. If the citizens had not virtue the fall of death would soon pass over the land. They should be enlightened. Get good books. Study the constitution. Then cast an honest ballot knowing for whom they voted. If they did not they should be disfranchised. They should be religious. He was not there to dictate any particular denomination, but if they belonged to any denomination they should live up to it to the best of their ability. They could not be moral if they were not religious. He then quoted from George Washington's farewell address. "Of all the advantages and duties that lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are the indispensable support," etc. They could not expect national morality without religion in private life. He exhorted them to be industrious, temperate, moral, enlightened and religious. Give us a Christian Sunday with the sweet music of its bells, the incense of the uplifting prayer; then America would be worthy of its liberty and the republic secure.

When Fr. Dwyer sat down there was general applause. He had a clear, distinct voice, and was a worthy substitute for Rev. Louis P. Goldrick. His speech was well received and universal commendation was heard.

After the excellent quartet again entertained the people with another song, William Ball, of Webster, was introduced. He said he felt considerable delicacy in saying a word, because through some inadvertence the names of some of the local speakers had been omitted from the program. He had listened that day to the horny-handed farmer from Detroit. He had listened to the discussion of their president on the silver question. He did not agree with Mr. Waldron at all. It was not shown by past experience that Mr. Waldron's remedy for hard times was the one to use. Like them he had been thinking about the loss of his hay crop and one half of his wheat crop. Farmers had more interest in these questions than in other questions than in those particular theories about which they knew nothing. The great question was how to raise crops. Agriculture of today and the future as compared with the past was as diverse as day and night. Now they had to compete with the world. This was a question more pertinent than whether silver or gold goes up. The question had arisen in his mind how could they raise crops in a dry season, and they might rely upon it that there were more dry seasons to come. Can the land be better prepared for them. He believed farmer would succeed best who attended to his business and had little time to loaf. They must economize these times, and by careful study get the value of the experiences of others. Deeper and cultivation was thought to help. The vagaries of the silver question were good because they set people to thinking. He believed in sustaining the state institutions, but when men in the state prisons lived better than the farmers did, then something was wrong. There were always men in the legislature who gave the institutions all they asked. Every committee appointed had an interest in some local institution. No matter what the legislature did, the people by united action could undo. The institutions were run too extravagantly for the good they did.

Mr. Ball then touched up the silver question. In the year 1860 they had to pay 10 per cent interest. Now with silver demonetized, only 6 per cent. Bro. Waldron spent much time on the question, and he did not care if Bro. Waldron pitched into him. The silver was untried legislation, and they must help themselves with what had been tried. Pres. Waldron then gave some more silver talk. He said the discussion was without feeling. Somebody should tell him why the American congress demonetized silver. From Mr. Waldron's talk an unsober man might wrongfully think he was well acquainted with Wall street business. Mr. Waldron, continuing, slapped the caucus system, the notices being put in little country papers with patent insides. If they wanted to change the system they must stop hoeing corn. Did they want America to adopt a monetary system for America or Europe? George W. Peters being called for, willingly responded. He said he was glad to see the day that the president had said something to take home with them. They must do one of two things, either go to the poor house or discharge their hired man, and only raise what they could cultivate themselves. They worked too much, raised too much, and did not talk enough. Let me tell you in all solemnity the liberty of this country is in danger. I tell you they are! In '76 the people fought for their liberties. How was it today? Men are losing their homes. Are they fighting or are they asleep? If they had free coinage of gold and silver, one would balance the other.

When Mr. Peters stopped, on motion of Mr. Waldron, William Ball was elected president for the ensuing year. The other officers elected were: Hascall Laraway, secretary; Nathan Sutton, treasurer; and the

This closed one of the most pleasant picnics ever held by the association.

The Bridgewater Picnic.

The eighteenth annual farmers' picnic of Bridgewater was held this year in the grove at Joslyn's lake last Saturday. Mr. Shellenberger, the owner of the grove selected for the meeting, had it nicely cleaned off, a good dock made for the landing of boats from the lake and things in good order generally. A nice rain in the morning laid the dust and cooled the air. The continued appearance of rain kept many from the gathering, yet there was a large attendance. Among the old pioneers we noticed D. W. Palmer, Mrs. Katner and Mr. Welch. Mr. Palmer is nearly 90 years of age and Mr. Welch is considerable past that age. The K. O. T. M. band of Clinton was on hand and gave nice music. Mr. S. Tate, the chairman, called the people to order at 3 o'clock and announced the programme. Four young ladies gave recitations and acquitted themselves nicely.

B. G. English, president of the Farmers' club, spoke upon the drainage question and the value of the lakes as a water supply for evaporation. He also gave some reminiscences of early life in Bridgewater. He pronounced himself decidedly in favor of the gold standard on the money question. The most of men who have bank stock or mortgages on others' farms hold to the same opinion.

C. M. Fellows was the next speaker called upon. Owing to the lateness of the hour, he decided to make his speech short. He spoke of the farmer as a necessity, his responsibility in government and in society. First, the farmer produces a living for the rest of mankind. The world could live without the lawyer, the doctor or preacher, but could not live without the farmer. Second, to secure good laws he should attend the primary meetings, looking to the selection of the right men to fill official positions. Third, he should keep up with the times in reading and knowledge of current events, prices of produce, sun-fourth and last, walk in the etc. shine; stop complaining; let "hard times," "dry weather" and "no profit in farming" have a rest.

George Rawson, the Bridgewater orator, was given the last place on the programme. George fills most any place well and so he did this. He took exceptions to Mr. English's view of the money question and said if one kind of money was made the standard, it would double the value of that kind of money, and it would take twice as much produce to buy it. He favored free coinage of silver. Mr. Rawson read a letter from Augustus Wilcox, one of three surviving brothers who settled on the land where this gathering is held, coming there many years ago with an ox-team from New York and living in their wagon until they could build a house. Mr. Wilcox now lives in Shiawassee county. By a unanimous vote all agreed to come to the same place next year for their nineteenth annual picnic.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

- Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?
Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?
Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?
Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?
Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than all other remedies for children combined?
Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?
Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?
Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?
Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that they may have unbroken rest?
Well, and these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.
