"Hand in hand they wandered
By the summer sea."

They were lovers, you see, and could not wander any other way. But while they wandered his shoes wore out. She told him to go to Wahr & Miller's, when he purchased a new pair. He did so. He married her shortly afterward, and explained to his rich old uncle that he did it because she was the most sensible girl he had ever known. Sensible women, there is an opportunity for you—but a word to the wise is sufficient.

We are "hand in hand" with the people. A reputation for selling shoes that fit, shoes that last, shoes that make tired feet glad, is what packs our store on sale days, and brings a steady trade at other times.

QUIETER THAN USUAL

Not So Much Stir at the U. of M. Commencement.

BUT FEW GRADUATES

Of the Older Classes Were Present This Year.

The Number of Diplomas Given Was Also Smaller.—Due to the Extension of the Courses.—A Legislator's Warning.

The 52d annual commencement week of the University of Michigan with its baccalaureate sermon, its brilliant social functions, its class day exercises and class reunions, and its commencement day exercises and address have again come and gone and with it have gone from our midst to take their places in the busy hum and whirl of the world's daily grind 550 young men and women who have earned their diplomas in the various departments of the university. Quite different to the first commencement in 1845, six years after the organization of the university, when a class of an even dozen men graduated, have been those of the years from 1893 (when the largest number ever graduated was turned out), up to the present year. In 1893 the number was 747; in 1894, 708; in 1895, 745; in 1896, 745, and in 1897, 550. The falling off in numbers this year is not due to a lack of scholarship, but to the increased demands and lengthened terms in some of the departments, notably in that of the law, where the number of graduates has fallen from 348 to 51, enough in itself to make up the total deficiency.

BACCALAUREATE ADDRESS.
The exercises opened in University hall Sunday evening, and the spacious auditorium was completely filled by the large audience of students and townspeople who had gathered to hear Dr. Angell's last address before leaving Ann Arbor on his important mission to Turkey. The graduating classes occupied seats in the center of the hall and the members of each class were grouped together. The hall was draped with the university colors and the platform was fringed with a row of palms.

Music for the occasion was furnished by 53 members of the Choral Union and Prof. L. L. Renwick officiated at the organ. Fred J. Dansingburg also sang a baritone solo during the services. Prof. M. L. D'Ooge read the scripture lesson from Acts xxvi, and offered prayer, in which he feelingly alluded to Dr. Angell's intended departure for his eastern mission.

Dr. Angell's address was one of the best he has ever delivered during his long term as president of the U. of M., and it was listened to with the greatest interest and attention by his large audience. He said:

"The week of graduation brings much the same kind and degree of interest to every graduating class. But with each successive year this week brings a deeper and more absorbing interest to us, who remain and follow with solicitude and affection the hundreds of young graduates, as full of hope and enthusiasm they go forth to their various experiences, disappointments, and triumphs in life.

"When, on the baccalaureate Sunday or on commencement day, your teachers, look from this stage into your eager and radiant faces, glowing with the vigor and hopefulness of young manhood and young womanhood; what thoughts and emotions crowd our mind. Sometimes the dominant thought which comes to me is of the tremendous power concentrated in these hundreds of active and well furnished minds. If you will pardon the simile I often think of hundreds of locomotives, with all steam on, impatiently waiting for the word to start with a rush into the world, and I wonder whether under wise self-control they will reach some worthy destination bearing a precious freightage of noble influence with them and making men happier and better. Alas! one cannot but have a certain solicitude lest here and there one with more propulsive power than wisdom, will dash recklessly on, bringing disaster and ruin to himself and to others.

"Then again I read in your faces the satisfaction which you may justly feel at having completed the long curriculum, which is supposed to prepare you in a measure for the responsible duties of life, and I mark the exceptional satisfaction of those of you, who in straitened circumstances have been able to secure the privilege of being here only by great self-denial, manifold anxieties and strenuous toil in season and out of season for many a long year.

"Yet, in the case of some, this satisfaction is slightly disturbed by a certain solicitude about the years that are still required for acquiring a professional education, or about the problem of living for some time with the help of only a few clients or patients, or about the possibility of finding that ideal school board which is willing to employ a teacher without experience.

"Over the faces of all there flits now and then a shade of sorrow at severing the old intimacies and dear friendships of college life. And well there may. For the chances are that you will never quite make them good by new friendships in life. New friends and good ones you will find. But they will rarely fill the places made vacant by the separations of this week. To those of us who look back over the chasm of years to our college days the realization of this fact lends a tender pathos to every commencement week.

"But the fact which to the thoughtful observer lends the deepest interest to the closing days of students' connection with the university is that as a rule they leave us with lofty ideals of their calling and of life. During the whole course of their study they have been taught to cherish the highest views of their professions and of their duty to their fellow men, and have been pointed to the great exemplars of lofty professional spirit and noble living. History, biography, philosophy, have all impressed their lessons on them. Fortunately at their age in life the graduating students are susceptible of fine enthusiasms for what is highest and noblest in character and achievement. Hard experiences and bitter disappointments have not quenched their enthusiasm. Fired with burning zeal for truth and purity, they are ready with the most chivalric courage to plunge into the thickest battles of life with devotion to the right.

"So generally is this the case that cynics find these high ideals of the young graduate a favorite theme of ridicule, and newspaper humorists see in them a subject for caricature. They delight in pointing out how speedily contact with actual life will sober his enthusiasms, and lead him to abandon his ideals and to cherish the grosser and more selfish ambitions of what they call the practical man.

"Now I wish to warn you that unless you are on your guard, unless you set out in life with a firm resolve to cherish your noblest ideals of action, there is a real danger that these ideals may be supplanted by merely selfish ambitions.

Let me at the outset make clear the sense in which I use these terms ambitions and ideals. No doubt we often attach to them such meanings that there would be nothing incompatible in one's cherishing both. One may have the ambition to be true to the highest ideal. But in this discussion I shall use the word ideal to describe one's highest and noblest conception of purpose and life, and the word ambition to denote one's selfish aim to win personal success, whether in the acquisition of wealth, or power, or fame, or in finding a way to lead a life of ease and self-indulgence. Today most of you, I am confident, are cherishing the high ideals rather than the narrow ambitions of life. If ambitions you have they are crowned and exalted and gloried by the ideals above them. But it is wise to consider the perils which threaten to blind you to the inspiring visions of your ideals, and bind you in the fetters of sordid and unworthy ambitions."

President Angell then spoke of the proper ideals of professional life and gave instances of how the earlier years of successful men's lives had been used as a preparation time for events that came later on. He also spoke of the habits of indolence of some students who having studied diligently, to enter college, fall by the wayside by reason of their indolence and are left behind. So it is with some graduates who never seem to advance one inch beyond their position at graduation and some, cut off from the stimulation of college associations, actually seem to retrograde.

"There is no faculty more to be coveted than the faculty of continuous growth. It should be the ideal of every one to build his manhood on so large a scale that it should overlap and stretch away beyond his profession. The man should be more and greater than the lawyer, the physician, the engineer, the teacher, the preacher, the merchant, the farmer.

"In these days of narrow specialization in professional and scholarly life, there is a real danger that one's ambition and development should be bounded by the limits of one's vocation. Beginning then from this day, let all your professional ambitions be tempered and exalted and inspired by this high ideal of the best and fullest development of your complete manhood.

"Closely akin to what we have called the social duties of educated men are the more distinctly civic duties. Here, too, is a marked contrast between the ideals and the ambitions of graduates. They should recognize the call which their training lays upon them to play a conspicuous part in securing good government. They should be willing to subject themselves to some inconvenience in bearing their share of the civil burdens, whether by the somewhat disagreeable task of serving on a jury or by accepting at times an official position of higher responsibility. It is a matter of congratulation that of late years more of our young men of education and wealth and leisure have been willing to accept laborious offices in our large cities in the hope of remedying our most crying evil, misrule in municipalities. Men of such special training as you have received ought after some experience among men to be able to be of real service in the conduct of public education, charities, penal and reformatory institutions, sanitary and hygienic boards, and in general legislation. When called by your fellow citizens to such work, which is commonly unrequited in money, be ready to do your full part in the spirit

COME AND CELEBRATE

The Fourth of July in Ann Arbor Tomorrow and

IT WILL DO YOU GOOD

A Good Time Is Assured to All Who May Attend.

Mammoth Parade, Patriotic Exercises, Band Concert, Baseball Game, Bicycle Races, Dress Parade, Fireworks, etc.

Arrangements for Ann Arbor's celebration of the Fourth of July tomorrow are about complete and they ensure a celebration which will please the senses and delight the hearts of all loyal and patriotic citizens. A salute of 45 guns at sunrise will usher in the day and from then until late at night it is certain that things will be kept pretty lively in this city. Everyone in Washtenaw county is invited to turn out and assist in this celebration and enjoy a good time with us tomorrow.

The parade will form at 10 o'clock and move precisely at 10:30.

First Division—Eight military companies. They will form on N. Main st., north of Catherine st.

Second Division—Carriages with officials, invited guests and common council. Will form on Catherine st., right resting on N. Main st.

Third Division—Fraternal societies and organizations of the city. Form on Miller ave., right resting on N. Main st.

Fourth Division—The bicycle brigade. Form on N. Main st., north of the military.

Fifth Division—Industrial cars. Form on Ashley st., right resting on Miller ave.

The line of march will be south on Main st. to Liberty st.; east on Liberty st. to Fifth ave.; south on Fifth ave. to Jefferson; east on Jefferson to State st.; south on State to S. University ave.; and counter march to State; north on State to Huron; down Huron to court house. Maj. Harrison Soule will be the marshal of the day and with his aides direct the procession.

At 1:30 p. m., the eight bands will gather at the south front of the court house and play "Hail Columbia" in unison.

At 2 o'clock the exercises of the day will commence at the stage on the court house square, Mayor Hiscock presiding. W. W. Wedemeyer will read the Declaration of Independence, and Hon. J. W. Donovan, of Detroit, will deliver the oration.

At 4 p. m., the fire department, under the direction of Chief Siple, will give a specimen of modern methods of putting out fires.

At 4:30 will be the great balloon ascension and parachute drop by George B. Rooney. It will start from the court house square.

At 6:45 will occur the grand open air band concert, on the court house square.

At 7 p. m. the military dress parade will take place on the court house square.

At 8:45 the fire works will commence ascending.

Besides these there will be bicycle races, baseball games and other attractions that will be of more or less interest to all.

Headquarters for all committees and all information during the day will be at County Clerk Schuh's office.

In the bicycle races there will be four events with prizes and donors as follows: One mile novice—1st, pair of tires donated by H. J. Brown; 2d, silver fruit dish, C. H. Keys and L. T. O'Toole; 3d, brown saddle, A. Hunter. Half mile open, amateur—1st, bicycle, donated by F. Stofflet; 2d, tailor made suit, F. Stofflet and S. W. Burchfield; 3d, racing tires, Morgan & Wright. One mile handicap, amateur—1st, diamond pin, J. L. Chapman & Co.; 2d, pair union suits Ypsilanti underwear, Hay & Todd Co.; 3d, bicycle suit, hose and shoes, M. Staebler. Mile consolation—1st, fishing rod, F. Biermann; 2d, saddle, Tucker & Co.; 3d, lamp, J. H. Miller's Sons; 4th, pitcher, W. D. Adams; 5th, mirror, Goodyear Drug Co.; 6th, toe clips, F. Stofflet. There are also other minor prizes.

The baseball game will be between the Ann Arbor Browns and the Jackson Athletic Club's team. The management is extremely fortunate in securing such a team and lovers of the sport can expect an interesting game.

Saline High School Commencement.

Commencement exercises at Saline were held on Thursday of last week at which a class of nine were given diplomas. Promotion exercises were held in the morning while in the evening the commencement program was given by the graduates themselves. The class consisted of two boys and seven girls. There were two in the Latin-Scientific course, one in the German-Scientific course, and six in the English course.

On Friday evening the alumni meeting in the school hall was addressed by Judge Newkirk, after which the alumni banquet was given in the opera house. One hundred and sixty covers were laid and a short program of toasts was given.

ST. THOMAS CHURCH PICNIC

At Whitmore Lake on Monday Next, July 5th.

The regular annual Fourth of July picnic at Whitmore Lake by St. Patrick's parish, Northfield, had come to be such an established matter of local history that when it was announced that the good priest of that parish and his people had abandoned it this year in favor of St. Thomas' parish, of Ann Arbor, it came somewhat in the nature of a surprise. The reason for this is to be found in the fact that a new church is being built in Ann Arbor, funds are needed to complete it, and so the proceeds of the picnic this year will go to swell the building fund.

Every arrangement has been made for as complete a picnic and as good a time as has been had in former years, and it is an assured thing that the celebration in Ann Arbor Saturday will in no wise interfere with the attendance at the Whitmore Lake picnic Monday. The Ann Arbor Railroad will give a special rate of 25 cents for the round trip to Whitmore Lake from Ann Arbor, and 30 cents from Howell.

An excellent and substantial dinner will be served at noon on the picnic grounds for 25 cents during which the Salem "Coon" band will discourse sweet music.

At 3 o'clock a program of speeches and singing, with Rev. L. P. Goldrick as master of ceremonies, will be given. Hon. T. J. McDonald, of Toledo, Mayor Hiscock, of Ann Arbor, Henry Conlin, of Webster, and others, will speak; James E. Harkins, Bruno St. James, Joseph Kelly, Henry Meuth, Frank McIntyre and the Misses Fances Caspary, May Clarkson and Lizzie Kinney will sing; Miss Nellie Brown will preside at the piano; and Dean Seabolt and James E. Harkins will introduce some new specialties of their own.

After the program is over a balloon ascension and parachute drop will be made by Prof. Rooney. The first excursion train will then return to Ann Arbor. Lawrence O'Toole has donated a White sewing machine on which chances will be sold, and it will go to the one holding the lucky number.

The trains will run as follows: Regular train at 8:30 a. m., specials at 10 a. m., and at 12:15 noon. Returning at 6 p. m. and 8:15 p. m.

AGAINST THE GLAZIERS.

Judge Kinne's Decision Was in Favor of the Chelsea Village Council.

Judge Kinne has rendered his decision in the case of William G. Lewick et al. vs. Frank P. Glazier et al., to settle the validity of a three years' contract entered into between the village council of Chelsea and the Electric Light Co., to furnish the village with water for that length of time. It was shown on behalf of the complainants that three members of the council at the time the contract was made were also stockholders in the Electric Light Co., and therefore it was argued the contract could not be valid. In his decision Judge Kinne upheld this argument, as follows:

"Under the evidence in this cause and the law as applicable thereto, it is my opinion that the contract entered into between the defendant, Frank P. Glazier, and the village of Chelsea, on the 8th day of June, and the 24th day of August, 1896, relative to a supply of water cannot be sustained and should be declared and held to be invalid. A decree may be entered accordingly.

"E. D. KINNE,

"Dated Jun 29, '97."

RECEIVED A LIGHT SENTENCE.

Glenn A. Trowbridge Gets One Year at Detroit House of Correction.

Glenn A. Trowbridge was on Wednesday sentenced by Judge Swan of the U. S. District Court, at Detroit, to one year in the house of correction at Detroit, for having abstracted money from letters and from the safe in the post office at Ann Arbor. Of the $800 taken by the young man $450 has already been paid back by his relatives and the remaining $350 will be returned as soon as they are able to do so.

In pronouncing the sentence Judge Swan told Trowbridge that his voluntary confession, a rare occurrence, was greatly in his favor, and that he had considered this as well as other circumstances and made his punishment light. The judge also expressed his confidence that the prisoner would in the future, after the expiration of his term of one year, prove by his conduct that he had been deserving of the leniency shown. Trowbridge was allowed to bid his relatives farewell in the judge's office where they had remained while sentence was pronounced. The young man broke down completely and cried like a child.

O'Dwyer-Schmid.

Mr. Oscar F. Schmid, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schmid, of this city, was married Thursday evening of last week at the home of the bride's parents on Wildwood ave., Jackson, to Miss Ellen O'Dwyer, daughter of Mr. James G. O'Dwyer. After the ceremony a large reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O'Dwyer. Mr. Schmid is a member of the Weeks Drug Co., Jackson, and the young couple will make their home in that city.

Wonders may sometimes cease, but they haven't yet. A Plymouth hackman fell on a loose plank, last week, and cut a hole in his cheek.

A greater question than that which made the Turk yawn, when

"He woke to hear his sentries shriek 'To arms!' They come! The Greeks! The Greeks!"

has been settled. The red head of the Moslem woodpecker has withdrawn his objection to an Angell visitation and the fore front of the Michigan University will sail in July.

School children near Lansing, who played in the woods on their way home, report a strange sight. They came upon a naked and hairy wildman, who had slaughtered a lamb and was devouring it, but at their approach, left off his bloody banquet and fled with the speed of the wind. He was undoubtedly one of the leading members of the muskrat legislature, and lacked the capacity to find the way home.

At the pioneer meeting in Saline Wednesday of last week, Senator Andrew Campbell scored Governor Pingree very hard and spoke of him as "Our illiterate and vacillating chief executive."—Ann Arbor Argus.

By this it appears that the Campbell has "got his back up." Let him not exalt himself above the other members of the state zoological wonderland. Said the camel to the elephant, in the one-ringed circus: "The sheriff is coming to get your trunk." "Don't get gay," replied the elephant, "if this ere show busts up, you'll have to hump yourself."

The Detroit Journal says business is booming in Texas. Texas is a good ways off. Tell us something about a business boom in Detroit.—Washtenaw Times.

The Times like the unreasoning Jew, who during the Clan-nae-gael trials in Chicago, was pointed at by two priests in a car, one of whom remarked, "There is a representative of that accursed race who killed the Savior." "Ish dot so?" returned Isaac warmly, adding with nasal resonance, "You dell us vat happened over eighteen hun'erd years ago. Vy doud you dell us something vot happened in our day?" then with great dramatic force and a twist of the hand at the wrist—"Who—killed—Cronin?"

Deputy Railroad Commissioner Wedemeyer, of Washtenaw, honored the Press with a brief but pleasing call, last week. Mr. Wedemeyer, who is more than six feet long, is "the tall sycamore of the Wabash and many other railroads in Michigan. The sun of his life is not yet far up toward the zenith, from the eastern horizon; but physically and intellectually he is in full vegetation, and worth a dozen of the old fellows of his party, who think they are its leaders, but are in fact all overgrown with moss and mistletoe. His gigantic system, including trunk-line and branches, is in perfect order, and taken together, the young son of good luck may be set down as one of the most creditable junior deities that revolve around the bald-headed and bandy-legged joss in the Pingree pagoda.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair, was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles free at Eberbach Drug and Chemical Co., Ann Arbor.

He Meant It.

"Our cat has just had chickens," remarked Mr. Toadhole. "Nonsense, Mr. T." snorted his spouse. "You must be inebriated. I suppose you mean our cat has had kittens?"

"No, I don't," meekly murmured the poor fellow. "I brought home a couple of chickens for tomorrow's dinner, but Sarah tells me that the cat has eaten them."—Pick Me Up.

PRISON BOARD A BIG ITEM.

It Cost $187,908.71 for Arresting and Keeping Prisoners in 1896-7.

The twenty-fourth abstract of the reports of the sheriffs relating to Michigan jails, which has just been issued by Secretary of State Gardner, shows that for the last fiscal year the total cost of maintaining the jails of the state was $142,261.03. Of this total there was paid sheriffs for board and keeping prisoners, $123,476.69; paid for medical attendance, $3,432.75; for clothing, $1,576.39; for repairs, $5,480.13; for furniture, $1,010.98; for all other necessary supplies, $7,284.09. The traveling and other expenses incurred in arresting and taking prisoners to the jails, aggregated $29,909.86; expenses of taking prisoners to penal and reformatory institutions, $13,207.47; other expenditures, $2,580.35; total expense for arresting and detaining prisoners, $17,908.71.

The cost per week for board and keeping of each prisoner in the jails was $4.74; average cost of each prisoner confined in the jails, $10.43; number of prisoners confined in the jails under city and village ordinances, 1,808; amount received by sheriffs for boarding city and village prisoners, $5,587.30.

The number of prisoners in the jails at the beginning of the year was 466; number received during the year, 16,423; total number, 16,889. The number of days prisoners were confined in jails during the year was 209,815; average number in jails during the year, 574.8; average duration of imprisonment in days, 12.42; whole number of males received, 15,324; number of males under 18 years of age, 1,170; whole number of females received during the year, 1,099; number of females under 18 years of age, 128.

The number of males and females charged with high crimes was 2,192 and 150 respectively, while the number under 18 years of age charged with high crimes was 192. Minor offenses were charged against 12,944 males and 867 females, a total of 13,811. The number under 18 years of age charged with minor offenses was 1,038. A total of 87 witnesses, 44 debtors and 350 insane persons were detained.

The number of prisoners sent to state prison was 280; to state house of correction, 1,174; to the industrial school for boys, 177; to the industrial home for girls, 40; number escaped, 31; insane soldiers or marines transferred to asylums, 13; number remaining in jails at close of the year, 458.

As a rule the sheriffs report the jails in excellent condition, practically all having separate apartments for female and juvenile prisoners, while very few have any special accommodations for insane or idiotic persons. Dickinson county has no jail, its prisoners being confined in the Menominee county jail. The sheriff of Van Buren county reports that the jail at Paw Paw is "40 years old, and it is almost impossible to hold an experienced criminal in it."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

The Ladies of Constantinople.

It was amusing to see negresses with the thickest of lips veiled. All the pretty faces were more or less painted and the eyelids and eyebrows penciled. The quality of the paint showed the quality of the lady. Poor women daub themselves with horrid pigments. No Turkish gentleman goes out to walk with his wife. To do so would be counted in the highest degree absurd. At most she is followed by a slave. But, wrapped up in the ugly black silk feridje, she can go where she pleases and alone. No man would dream of looking at a veiled lady in a feridje. Were a Giaour to scan her face, he would run a risk of being massacred. Shopping is a feminine pastime. Another is holding receptions, which, of course, ladies only attend. Munching sweetmeats renders Constantinople belles grossly fat while still young and rather spoils their teeth. All over the east teeth are even, white and of medium size and months well shaped. They are mouths made for laughter, gormandizing and sensual love. Eastern women are far better looking in youth than western. Those of Stamboul are the least graceful. They are seldom neat about the ankles. Their stockings are not well drawn up, their shoes are a world too big, and their gait is heavy and shuffling.—London Truth.

The Shakers have made a discovery which is destined to accomplish much good. Realizing that three-fourths of all our sufferings arise from stomach troubles, that the country is literally filled with people who cannot eat and digest food, without subsequently suffering pain and distress, and that many are starving, wasting to mere skeletons, because their food does them no good, they have devoted much study and thought to the subject, and the result is this discovery of their Digestive Cordial.

A little book can be obtained from your druggist that will point out the way of relief at once. An investigation will cost nothing and will result in much good.

Five of the '97 graduates of the Milan high school received third grade certificates at the Monroe county examination of teachers at Petersburg a few days ago.

Joseph Gauntlett, Milan's genial and efficient postmaster for the last four years, steps down and out of his office this week amid the regrets of a host of friends regardless of party politics. Mr. Gauntlett has been faithful to his post and the work has been done from first to last with untiring zeal, and compliments from all quarters have been paid Mr. Gauntlett for it. Uncle Sam has cause to congratulate himself on having had so faithful a servant. May Mr. Gauntlett's life from now on be happy and prosperous is the wish of his many Milan friends.

Repairing Tire Punctures.

Some American bicycle riders do not know that European riders long ago discarded all but double-tube pneumatic bicycle tires. This was done after years of experience with single-tube tires, during which time every known remedy was tried to permanently repair a puncture, but without avail. In this country, the Morgan & Wright (double-tube) tire being patented, other tire makers have tried to force single-tube tires into favor, notwithstanding their proved failure in Europe. Many schemes have been employed by the single-tube makers to stop leaks and permanently repair punctures, but without success.

A repair in the Morgan & Wright double-tube tire is easy to make, and is permanent. Inside the inner tube, all the way around, is a thin strip of patching rubber. To make a repair, pump up the tire; then inject some quick-repair cement inside the inner tube. By pressing down on the casing with the thumb at the puncture this cement will pick up the patching strip and close the puncture.

DYNAMITE OUTRAGE.

Great Deal of Damage Done at South Scranton, Pa.

BUSINESS BLOCK IS BLOWN UP.

Also a Double Dwelling Block and a Detached House—Two Persons Badly Injured—The Outrage Supposed to Be the Outcome of Recent Church Troubles—Robert Powley, the Wife Murderer, Electrocutated—The Record of Crime.

Scranton, Pa., June 29.—A dynamite explosion early Tuesday morning in South Scranton blew up the business block of Leon Olchowski, a double dwelling block owned by him, and a detached house, owned by Michael O'Hara. The business block, a two-story building, was torn to pieces. Twenty other houses had all the windows blown out and plaster torn from the walls. The shock was felt all over the city. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but Olchowski alleges that it was the work of enemies he made during political and church disputes in that section, he being one of the principals in troubles which led to a split in the Polish Catholic congregation. Olchowski was seriously injured in saving his wife, and his recovery is doubtful. Following the explosion the wrecked buildings took fire, but the firemen kept the flames from spreading.

Other Properties Damaged.

The other properties seriously damaged were the brick business block and dwelling of Charles Johnson, dwellings of A. W. Grambe, Charles Kiefer, John Kline, Michael Joyce, Dr. J. J. Walsh, James Walsh, Adam Elfinger, Bridget Lavelle, Joseph Ownlins, Philip Klein, Carl Scheurman and George Gardner, and D. Muses blacksmith shop. In some of the houses the sleeping people were covered with falling plaster. The infant child of Michael Joyce was dangerously injured and a little son of John Klein almost suffocated. The total loss will reach $25,000. The ruins are being cleared to ascertain if there are any victims buried in them.

POWLEY ELECTROCUTED.

The Wife Murderer Dies in the Electric Chair at Auburn.

Auburn, N. Y., June 29.—Robert J. Powley was electrocuted at 11:25 o'clock Tuesday morning. The execution was successful.

The crime for which Robert J. Powley was executed was the murder of his wife, committed on the night of March 8 at Niagara Falls, N. Y. Powley at the time of the murder was under indictment for criminal assault in the second degree and had been released on his own recognizance. Some time previous he had been tried for attempting to chloroform his wife, the jury disagreeing on the first trial and acquitting him on the second. Powley's attorney attempted to prove that he was mentally irresponsible at the time of the shooting. Witnesses testified that he had been injured in the head fifteen years ago and that he had suffered from sunstroke on two different occasions.

Robbed by Masked Men.

Titusville, Pa., June 29.—Four masked men entered the farmhouse of Henry Buxton near here Monday night, and after firing off revolvers to intimidate the family, they proceeded to bind and gag Buxton, his son and the hired man and hired girl. They then blew open a safe and secured a small amount of money. It was late Tuesday forenoon when a neighbor discovered the plight of the Buxtons and released them.

Figel Charged with Embezzlement.

San Francisco, June 29.—E. S. Rothschild, partner of the late Isaac Hoffman, who was so mysteriously murdered on the night of June 1, swore out a warrant Tuesday for the arrest of Theodore A. Figel, the bookkeeper of the firm, on four charges of embezzlement. Figel surrendered himself to the chief of police. His bond was fixed at $12,000, and the probability is that he will be released at once.

TO COUNT THE CASH.

Important Preliminary to the Change in United States Treasurers.

Washington, June 29.—Ellis H. Roberts of New York will become treasurer of the United States on July 1. Secretary Gage has appointed a commission to examine the books of the present treasurer, D. N. Morgan of Connecticut, and to count the money in the vaults. This is an enormous undertaking, and will employ about 100 persons, including expert counters and their assistants, for about three months. Most of this time will be taken in counting the vast stores of silver.

It is estimated that the paper money can be counted in about two weeks, and that it will take nearly two months and a half to count the silver. Mr. Morgan's bondsmen will not be relieved until the count is concluded and all the moneys and bonds in his charge have been fully accounted for. Though Mr. Morgan received from his predecessor about $700,000,000, he will deliver to Mr. Roberts about $60,000,000 more than that sum.

Will Go to Canton Friday.

Washington, June 29.—The president has definitely decided to go to his old home at Canton, O., on Friday to visit his mother for a few days. Mrs. McKinley, Miss Mabel McKinley, and probably Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Day will accompany him. They will leave here on the regular train over the Pennsylvania railroad Friday evening at 7:10, arriving in Canton at 10:30 Saturday morning. They will remain over the fourth and return Monday or Tuesday evening. On Thursday night the president will give an informal dinner to the members of the cabinet and their wives.

Schweinfurth to Buy Land.

Monett, Mo., June 29.—Schweinfurth, the so-called "messiah" of Rockford, Ills., has just returned from Benton county, Ark., where, it is reported, he contracted for the purchase of 2,000 acres of unimproved land of Senator Blackburn, with a view of removing his proteges from Illinois and establishing one of his "heavens" there. People in that section are wrought up over the matter.

Pettigrew in the Senate Again.

Washington, June 29.—Senator Pettigrew was on the floor of the senate Tuesday and was congratulated by his colleagues on his speedy recovery from his recent illness.

FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1897.

Come to Ann Arbor tomorrow and assist in celebrating Independence Day.

The Ohio democrats are ready to sweep that state this fall. Just watch their smoke.

The tariff bill is still occupying the attention of congress but the people are getting tired of thinking about it.

Business in the Ann Arbor postoffice was several hundred dollars better the past month than it was in June a year ago. Is this an encouraging sign of business improvement?

The union of the alumni associations of the university is one that should have taken place years ago and will, if properly fostered, insure to the benefit of the university. This is probably the most important step of commencement week this year.

Ann Arbor will hardly vote for the uniform system of text books, which is not uniform and will compel the buying of a new outfit of books throughout, without making the series uniform with the rest of the state. The uniform text book bill as passed is a botched piece of legislation.

The weak spot in the public school system in Ann Arbor is in the ward schools. The high school is the best in the state and in congratulating ourselves on this fact we are apt to transfer the reputation of the high school to the ward schools, and this transfer is hardly warranted by the facts. The main trouble in the ward schools lies in the fact that the city has some inefficient teachers there, who weigh down the work of the good teachers which the city also has. A bad system of employing only Ann Arbor high school graduates keeps out any fresh blood and unfortunately too many of the teachers hold only the lowest grade of diplomas granted by the high school. There is not a proper system of visitation in vogue in the ward schools, so that the board is not enabled to weed out the inefficient in teachers. The good hard working teachers fare no better than the poorer teachers and some of the incentive for hard work is thus taken away. There is great need of a shaking up of our ward schools.

Former U. of M. Professor Dead.

Prof. DeVolson Wood, professor of physics and civil engineering at the U. of M. from 1857 to 1872, died at the home of his brother Prof. H. A. Wood, in Hoboken, N. J., on Sunday, aged 65 years. He was taken ill of diabetes just after the commencement exercises at the Stevens Institute of Technology, in which he was professor of engineering, but had so far recovered that it was supposed he was entirely out of danger, but he suffered a relapse Sunday and died very suddenly. He leaves a widow, two sons, and three daughters. Prof. Wood was born near Smyrna, N. Y. He graduated from the Albany Normal school in 1853 and two years later from the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy. He was appointed professor of civil engineering at the University of Michigan the same year, which place he held for 15 years. He then received a call to the chair of mathematics at the Stevens Institute of Technology, and later to the chair of mechanical engineering. He is the author of many text books which are in use at the principal technical colleges of the country and which are authorities on higher mathematics and mechanical engineering. He had been connected with Stevens Institute for 26 years. While Prof. Wood was connected with the U. of M., he was for a time city engineer of Ann Arbor. He surveyed Forest Hill cemetery, laid out the campus, and drew the plans and superintended the construction of the middle part of the main building which united the two wings.

He was a cousin of Judge N. W. Cheever and his remains were brought to Ann Arbor, Tuesday, accompanied by his son and daughter, and two sisters, Mrs. Beecher, of Flint, and Mrs. Munn, of Flushing, and were buried beside those of his first wife in Forest Hill cemetery. The pall bearers at the funeral were members of the class of '67 which has been having a reunion here this week, and Rev. J. M. Gelston who officiated at the brief funeral services, was also a student under Prof. Wood.

not of personal aggrandizement, but of devotion to the public good.

"Unhappily position is often sought in a very different spirit and for a very different purpose to gratify an ambition which cannot be called lofty. It would not be difficult to name brilliant young men, who for a consideration have placed their talents and attainments at the service of the unscrupulous managers of the worst types of municipal politics in our large cities. It is no secret that a powerful and notorious organization in New York city has for years sought gifted young men from all parts of the country and enlisted them in its service in that city, and crowned them with pecuniary and political rewards. It would be easy to name many men, who with no evil intent have by their irrational itching for office wrecked fair prospects of professional usefulness, and are stranded now in middle life without office and without professional support. I know of few more melancholy spectacles than the long procession of these chronic office seekers now crowding the corridors of the capitol and the White House, as they do at every change of the administration. . . . The adoption of politics as a profession is generally fatal to success in any other profession. While these occasional excursions into the field of public service may not only be expedient, but may even be regarded in some cases as a duty, it should be remembered that they cost one heavily in interruptions of professional work and study, and that one should not suffer himself or be drawn into them by unworthy motives.

"You have made long and careful preparations for your careers. You have studied through long years. You have sought to anticipate the demands which life is to make on you. Have you remembered to surrender your soul to the Divine will? Do your plans contemplate above all harmony with His purposes and plans? As you are eagerly peering into the future, are you asking in the sincerity of your heart, 'Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?' Be assured that any plans which run athwart his plans cannot in the long run succeed. His moral and spiritual laws can no more than His physical laws be neglected or broken with impunity. I adjure you then to put first and highest among the ideals that are to shape your life and character the spirit of Him, whose meat and whose drink it was to do the Father's will.

"And finally, do not be ashamed or afraid to cling to your ideals in the hot contests and the discouragements of life. You will soon, in your contact with the world, find yourselves under strong temptations to fall below those high standards which you are now setting before you. Doubtless you will meet men who will call your lofty purposes and aims visionary and impractical. You will be called to compete with men who have few scruples about the means to accomplish their ends. You will be advised, and perhaps tempted to fight fire with fire. You will be told that ideals are for dreamers, but ambitions are for men of sense. When you are surrounded and pressed on all sides by men with these low ambitions, you may find it harder than you now imagine to remain true to your better self, to scorn victories won with unworthy weapons, to follow the example of Him, who, when offered by the evil one all the kingdoms of the earth, said: 'Get thee hence, Satan.'

"Your alma mater will follow you with loving regard in all your endeavors to fulfill the worthy aims with which you leave her halls. She will sympathize with you in the disappointments which may come to you, as they come to us all. She will rejoice in all your successes, which are honorably won. For your honorable successes are her glory and her strength. She has no endowment, she can have no endowment of silver or gold, so precious and so dear to her as the success and the affection of her sons and her daughters, who like you go forth to the world with her benediction upon their heads. God bless you and bless her evermore, Amen."

LAW CLASS DAY EXERCISES.

During Monday morning the broad walk leading to the University hall was strung with yellow and blue bunting, and the finishing touches were given to the interior of the building, the hall ways and the big assembly room being well covered with the Michigan colors interspersed here and there with the bright red, white and blue of the national flag, which formed a pleasing contrast.

The law class day exercises were held in University hall Monday afternoon and consisted of the president's address by William L. Hart, of Alliance, O.; class poem by Albert Koonrok, of Columbus, O.; class history by Henry Nephi Hayes, of Richfield, Mich.; class oration by James Sumner Handy, of Ann Arbor, on "The Profession of Law"; class prophecy by Max Wellington Babb, of Mt. Pleasant, Ia. The music for the occasion was furnished by the Ann Arbor orchestra.

SENIOR PROMENADE.

The annual senior promenade on Monday evening was a great success. The weather was beautiful and a finer evening could not have been wished for such a gathering. As soon as it grew dark the long lines of Chinese lanterns which had been strung along each side of the walks on the west side of the campus were lighted and with the bright music and light dresses of the ladies made a striking scene. The frat houses which face the campus had also been decorated with lanterns and electrical emblems adding to the gay effect. House parties were also given at many of these houses. Students and townspeople alike enjoyed the occasion until shortly after 9, when the crowd began to thin out, and by 10:30 the campus was just about deserted.

LITERARY CLASS DAY EXERCISES.

The literary class day exercises were, according to the time honored custom, held under the boughs of the old Tappan oak, at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. The weather had been showery and threatening and it was at one time feared that an adjournment would have to be made to University hall, but by the time the class had gathered for the exercises and the 700 or 800 people who witnessed them had put in their appearance the clouds had broken and the sun was shining brightly. A temporary platform had been erected for the speakers, and to the left of this stand was stationed the U. of M. band, which played between several numbers on the program. The class had been especially fortunate in its choice of some of the most talented young men and women in the university for its class day officers, and it is safe to say that no finer program has been presented in years.

Shirley Wheeler Smith, of Hastings, president of the combined literary and engineering classes, opened the program with his address, which was an excellent and practical one from start to finish. He was followed by Miss Oceana Ferry, of Lansing, who in an exceedingly well written article depicted the history of the class of '97.

The oration by Bayard Hoyt Ames, of Highlands, Colo., was a masterly effort. His election for the position of class orator was a most logical one as during his four years in the university Mr. Ames has won the highest college oratorical honors obtainable. The subject of his oration was "The Political Duty of College Men," and his treatment of it was scholarly and practical. Arthur Maurice Smith, of Ionia, was the class poet and his subject was "Temptation." Miss Inez Christabel Perrin, of Detroit, was class prophetess, and foretold the futures of the graduates in well written verse.

Irving Charles Woodward, of Iron Mountain, Mich., the chairman of the memorial committee, made the speech of presentation of the class memorial at the close of the exercises. The memorial this year takes the form of a scholarship fund of $150 which was turned over to Treasurer Soule and will be loaned to deserving applicants, who otherwise would not be able to enjoy the advantages of a university education.

SENIOR RECEPTION.

Tuesday evening the swell social event of the week took place in the gymnasium. The building was ablaze with light and the decorations though not as lavish as those of former years were very beautiful. Yellow and blue bunting, streamers of yellow and blue and the national colors were artistically intertwined, while huge Japanese umbrellas and lanterns were suspended from the rafters. Although the evening was intensely hot 200 couples were present and took part in the program of 20 regular and 10 extra dances, music being furnished by the Chequamegon orchestra, of Ann Arbor and the 19th Infantry band, of Detroit. The grand march started shortly after 9 o'clock and was led by Edwin H. Humphrey, Psi U, of Detroit, and Miss Mary E. Young, of Danville, Ill. The patronesses were: Mesdames James B. Angell, Martin L. D'Ooge, Harry B. Hutchins, Charles E. Greene, Eliza M. Mosher, Harrison Soule, Edward D. Campbell, Henry C. Adams, George W. Patterson, Andrew C. McLaughlin, Paul R. de Pont and Warren P. Lombard. In contrast with the arrangements at the junior hop, there were no booths for the fraternities but the great floor was open to all alike. The refreshments were served in the Woman's gymnasium.

ALUMNI DAY.

Wednesday was alumni day, but of the 14,000 graduates of the university it is not estimated that there were over 300 here for commencement. Among them were 20 members of the lit class of 1867, which numbered 45 at the time of its graduation. They had a banquet at Hangsterfer's Tuesday evening at which Prof. A. E. Dolbear, of Tufts college, Massachusetts, presided, and each member read a biography of himself that he had prepared. The president gave the careers of the absent ones. The only other class reunion was that of 1872.

DENTAL CLASS EXERCISES.

On Wednesday afternoon for the first time in the history of the university the senior dental class held exercises, and it was quite a success, the dental amphitheatre being well filled mostly by ladies. The program consisted of addresses by Profs. Taft, Watling, Hoff, Dorrance, Ball and Haidle; class history by Miss Bessie B. Robertson; prophecy by Miss June A. Burr; valedictory by S. K. Scharlott; vocal solos by Master Fred J. Daley; zither solo by F. J. Klein, and selections by the Senior Dent Mandolin Club.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

An important meeting of the Alumni Association was held in Tappan hall Wednesday afternoon. It was resolved to turn the Williams fund over to the regents to help establish a professorship of ethnology, J. B. Steere to occupy the chair.

The society also resolved to appoint a committee of five to receive subscriptions for a monument to the memory of Dr. Henry S. Frieze, professor of Latin, and a member of the class of 1867. The suggestion came from a member of this class, who said that while walking through Forest Hill cemetery he looked in vain for the grave of his beloved comrade, but could not find it until a native pointed to the mound which stands apparently neglected. The committee was appointed, and no doubt a suitable tablet will shortly mark the doctor's last resting place.

SENATE RECEPTION.

The senate reception Wednesday evening was largely attended by the alumni, their wives, daughters and friends, visitors and townspeople. It lasted from 8 o'clock until 1 a. m. Among those who received were: Mesdames Palmer, Carrow, Mechem, Carhart, Pattengill, Davis, Kelly, Prescott, Hinsdale, P. R. de Pont, D'Ooge, Demmon, Wait, Pettie, Beman, Spalding, Adams, Hudson, Thompson, Stanley, Kelsey, Knowlton, Nancrede, Freer, Dock, Russell, Trueblood, Hutchins, Wenley, and Patterson and Dr. Eliza Mosher. President and Mrs. Angell were the center of attention receiving the good wishes of their friends on their approaching departure for Turkey.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

Commencement day broke fair and clear with no suggestion of the soggyiness that has marked the Ann Arbor atmosphere for several days. As early as 8 o'clock yesterday morning little bevy of students began to congregate before the department building and when the library clock struck 9, 451 candidates for degrees were ready and impatient to take up the line of march.

Shortly the signal was given the U. of M. band by Major Soule, who acted as marshal, and the lines began to move. The capped and gowned and generally dressed-up men and women walked down the diagonal, past the law building to the strains of the El Capitan march and on reaching the State street cement drew up in lines at either side of the walk to allow the faculty, led by Dr. Angell and Dr. Draper to pass through. This finished, the graduates passed immediately into the hall. When all were seated a prayer was offered by Dr. Angell, at the conclusion of which the president introduced Dr. Andrew S. Draper, the speaker of the day.

Dr. Draper's address was entitled "The Recovery of the Law" and at its conclusion it was generally conceded to have been one of the best and most forceful addresses delivered in University hall. When he had finished speaking the diplomas were distributed to half a thousand young men and women. The benediction was offered by President Fisk, of Albion College.

Considered on the whole the commencement of '97 was unusually quiet. It takes the presence of many "old men" to add interest to the events which mark the last week of the college year, and there were very few "old men" here this week. A very probable reason is that all classes with which reunions are possible held them last year and those who were not here then were too poor to be here this week. "Hard times" have as much effect upon university commencements as upon anything else.

COMMENCEMENT DINNER.

The commencement dinner was held at 1 o'clock in the afternoon in the woman's annex of the gymnasium. There were about 350 people present. President Angell opened the speech making and then called on Attorney-General Maynard to represent the state in the absence of Governor Pingree. He spoke of the hostile influences at work in the state against the U. of M. and which are not shared by the governor. President Draper, of Illinois, followed him in a felicitous speech.

A. J. Sawyer was the next speaker. He warned those present that there was a strong and growing undercurrent in the state against granting the university any further increase in appropriations. He said that one man boasted on the floor of the house last winter that he had never gone above the eighth grade in school. "How can we expect men of this caliber to favor appropriating money for an object which they cannot understand?" said Mr. Sawyer. He stated that there are three influences at work. The first is the farmer, who is showing a growing loyalty to the Agricultural college. This institution Mr. Sawyer declared, had swerved from the path originally intended for it, and was now an active competitor of the university in several branches. The denominational colleges, he said, while not jealous of the university, still had their own personal welfare to look after. The professional schools of the state are demanding recognition, he said, and wish to shine in the reflected glory of the state university. All these had representatives on the floors of both houses, and naturally resolve themselves into the opposition. He urged the graduates of the U. of M. to stand by it and was warmly applauded for his remarks.

Brief speeches followed by Dr. Wm. Prall, of Detroit, Prof. G. L. Maris, of Westchester, Pa. At the close of the speechmaking Dr. Angell thanked those who had spoken so kindly of him and Mrs. Angell. Dr. D'Ooge led in singing the doxology and Rev. Dr. Prall pronounced the benediction.

Modern Woodmen Picnic Association. A picnic association representing all the camps of Modern Woodmen of America in south-eastern Michigan, bounded by the north line of Eaton and Ingham counties to the eastern boundary of Michigan and by the west line of Calhoun and Branch counties to the Indiana and Ohio line, was organized in Jackson Friday evening. The object is to hold picnics in the interest of the order, the first to be held in Jackson sometime in August. The officers elected were: President, J. F. Wesch, Jackson; first vice president, Ira C. McKeen, Lansing; second vice president, F. J. Haight, Albion; third vice president, Joseph Seeleater, Battle Creek; secretary and treasurer, Enoch Sears, Ann Arbor.

Liberty Party Convention.

There will be a county convention of the Liberty party of Washtenaw county held in the court house, Ann Arbor, Wednesday, July 14, at 1 o'clock p. m. C. M. SMART, County Chairman, H. C. MARKHAM, Secretary.

HIGH SCHOOL ALUMNI

Had a Pleasant Reception and Banquet Friday Evening.

The annual reception and banquet of the Alumni Association of the Ann Arbor high school Friday evening was more largely attended than usual. It was held in the high school hall and from 8 to 9:30 o'clock a period of visiting, hand shaking and renewing of acquaintances was enjoyed by the alumni present. At that time the march around the hall to seats at the banquet tables commenced, led by W. W. Wedemeyer, president of the association, and Miss Emma E. Bower. Rev. J. M. Gelston invoked the divine blessing and then a vigorous onslaught was made on the viands provided by Caterer Hangsterfer.

This part of the program ended Toastmaster Wedemeyer called for order and read letters of regret from Marion Fletcher, class of '79, Washington, D. C.; George A. Katzenberger, '88, Greenville, Ohio; R. A. Berrian, '76, Washington Agricultural College; and Edward A. Horton, '65, Boston, Mass.

Prof. L. P. Jocelyn was the first one called on to respond to a toast. It was that of "The Faculty," and in the course of his remarks he said a Harvard student in conversation with him had given Ann Arbor the credit of having the finest high school in the United States and the best faculty. He paid a glowing tribute to Prof. W. S. Perry, and said that as Washington was spoken of as the father of his country, and Dr. Tappan as father of the university, so also would Prof. Perry be spoken of as the father of the Ann Arbor high school. He also complimented Profs. Pattengill, Chute, Montgomery and others for their share in making the school what it is.

Miss Emma E. Bower spoke to the toast "The Board of Education." She entered a plea that women who were competent should be paid as large salaries as men when they are called on to do the same work, and referring to the attendance at the graduating exercises said "it was certain that judging from the greater attendance of women than men, that the women took more interest in the school work than the men did."

R. C. Campbell, '90, made a humorous response to the toast "What We Have Forgotten" and kept his hearers in continual laughter with his funny reminiscences.

James S. Handy, '91, had no toast, but told several good stories.

Miss Genevieve Duffy, '89, made a capital talk, in which she told of the hopes and misfortunes, successes and failures of her class in a most pleasing manner.

Jay Fox, president of the class of '97, spoke for his class and at the conclusion of his remarks he and his companions gave the class yell.

Prof. F. C. Clark, '84, criticised the action of a local paper in advocating that teachers' salaries be cut 25 per cent as a very foolish move and gave some good arguments in favor of his assertion. He was followed by H. B. Gammon, '90, and Rev. J. M. Gelston, '65, both of whom gave good speeches.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Rev. J. M. Gelston, '65, president; Miss May Cooley, '91, vice-president; Miss Ella Bennett, '89, recording secretary; Miss Lucy E. Chapin, '76, corresponding secretary; Carl F. Braun, '92, treasurer; H. B. Gammon, '90, Mrs. Elmer E. Beal, '92, Jay Fox, '97, members of executive committee.

The tables and chairs were then cleared away and dancing was indulged in until 1:30 a. m.

A Big Chelsea Farm Assigns.

C. J. Chandler & Co., egg and produce dealers of Chelsea, made an assignment Tuesday to George H. Kempf, assignee, for the benefit of their creditors. The schedules which show the liabilities and assets of the firm have not been completed yet. This company has been doing an immense business for about two years, having branch houses located at Holland, Clare, Manchester, Chesaning, Howell and other places. As soon as schedules are completed a full account will be given showing who the creditors are and amounts owing to each.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand for twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfils every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effect following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent by mail, mention the Argus and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

A SIMPLE TIRE REPAIR.

Punctures in the well known Morgan & Wright tire are mended about as easily as a man would close a hole in his finger with a bit of court plaster. Inside of the inner tube of the tire lies a long strip of patching rubber, like this:

By injecting M. & W. quick-repair cement through the puncture into this inner tube, and then pressing down on the tire with the thumb, like this,

the repair strip inside is picked up by the cement, thus closing the puncture, like this:

Very simple, but—now every rider should remember these two "buts," or he will fail!

Before injecting cement, pump up the tire. If you don't, the inner tube will be flabby, like this, and the cement will not get inside of it, where the repair strip lies.

When you have a puncture, get right off. Riding a tire flat, when it has a tack or nail in it, may damage it considerably.

Estate of Charles Walter Reade.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY
of Washtenaw, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, on Thursday, the 1st day of July, in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven. Present, H. Wirt Newkirk, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Charles Walter Reade, deceased.
Henry Wilson, the administrator of said estate, comes into court and represents that he is now prepared to render his final account as such administrator.
Thereupon it is ordered, that Saturday, the 24th day of July next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for examining and allowing such account, and that the heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, in said county, and show cause, if any there be, why the said account should not be allowed: And it is further ordered that said administrator give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor Argus, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.
H. WIRT NEWKIRK, Judge of Probate.

McClure's Magazine for July opens with an interesting account of the actual daily life in a little "Republic" where the citizens and governors are young boys and girls from the poorest and most crowded districts of the city of New York. Private industry and public functions are pursued precisely as by older people in larger republics, and neglect or abuse of either encounters the same pains and penalties as in life at large. The paper is fully illustrated from special photographs.

There are just two carriers still in the post office force who have been there since the carrier system was first inaugurated 10 years ago yesterday. They are George Blum and James O'Kane. Another who was one of the first four carriers was Frank O'Hearn, who is still on the force, but has not served continuously. Two other carriers, Will Baxter and Chris Donnelly, have been in the post office for nine years each. From a force of four carriers 10 years ago the business of the office has increased to such a degree, that 11 regular carriers are now employed.

A. A. Pearson, city editor of the Times, will spend the summer in Europe. The opulent members of the daily press are not the only ones who will have a summer outing, however. Some hot afternoon in August, Tom Mingay, of the Argus, and the Democrat philosopher propose to make an excursion around the boulevard with, perhaps, a dip in the limpid waters of the Huron for diversion of the monotony of travel.—Ann Arbor Democrat. Glad you did not stretch that trip out any further, Charlie, or our funds might give out. Still, we might manage to get as far as Zukeys lake, seeing we both have a mileage paid for to that point.

He Missed the Biggest Boodle.

A thief climbed into an open window of the Alpha Phi sorority house corner of E. Ann and S. Division sts., early Wednesday morning and stole a gold watch, diamond pin and a small amount of money. The occupant of the room, Miss Winifred Smith, of Cassopolis was awakened by the thief who seized her by the throat and demanded to know where her money was, at the same time telling her he would kill her if she made a noise. She told him where it was in a drawer, but he could not find it, and returning to her bedside again grasped her saying he could not find it. She again told him where it was in a corner of the drawer and he went and got it. It contained $2. He overlooked a purse containing $14 that was in the same drawer. He also missed getting about $400 that the different young ladies who slept in other rooms had with them. There is no clue to the thief.

LOOKING BACKWARD.

Look after the Back: A Fall, a Strain, a Constant Sitting or Stooping Position Brings Backache—Do You Know This Means the Kidneys are Affected?

How few people realize when their back begins to ache that it is a warning provided by nature to tell you that the kidneys are not working properly. You have a severe fall, you strain yourself lifting or perhaps you are compelled to maintain a sitting or stooping position for long intervals at a time, your back begins to ache, then your head, you become listless, tired and weary, but do you understand the real cause? We think not, else you would not use plasters and liniment on the back, which only relieve but do not reach the cause. If you would rid yourself of the pain and cure the root of the trouble, at the same time save many years of suffering and perhaps life itself, you will take a kidney remedy that has been tried and proven that it will cure.

Mr. John Robison of 661 Russell Street, Detroit, says: "As a result of exposure during the war I have suffered ever since with rheumatism and kidney trouble. Pains would start in my hip and go around to my back. Highly colored urine denoted kidney disorder. The pain in my back was often so bad I had to give up work until the severity of the attack passed away. I have used many liniments and other things, but received very little relief. Some time ago I started using Doan's Kidney Pills and they have worked a wonderful change in me. My back is all right now and I owe it all to the almost magical influence of Doan's Kidney Pills."

Mr. Robison was a member of the Fifty-first Illinois Regiment, which served through the war with honor and distinction. Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers—price, 50 cents. Prices of Linens Go Up.

When the tariff bill was about to be framed, the Republican leaders stated that they desired to be moderate and to avoid anything like excessive rates. Mr. Aldrich, when introducing the amended measure into the senate, claimed that his rates were generally lower than those of the house bill. The linen schedule, however, is a notable one of many exceptions. In it the senate rates are higher than those of the house and much higher than anything ever before known.

Under the McKinley bill of 1890 linens were assessed 85 per cent, with a few exceptions as high as 50 per cent ad valorem. Under the rates proposed by the senate a large proportion of the goods in everyday use will be assessed from 65 to 85 per cent and in some cases over 100 per cent. The following table shows some of the changes in the cost of medium and low grade linens:

	Price per yard.	New duty	Per cent	Pres. bill	Cent. bill
Damask tablecloth.....	1.109	25c	87 1/2	25c	87 1/2
Crash for roller towels.....	52 1/2	8	9 1/2	8	9 1/2
Colored canvas for dress linings.....	69	8 1/2	10 1/2	8 1/2	10 1/2
Clothing linens.....	99	16	22 1/2	16	22 1/2
Linen for butchers' aprons.....	65	19 1/2	29 1/2	19 1/2	29 1/2

The domestic manufacturers in whose interests these changes are supposed to be made have stated that they do not deserve over 50 per cent duty on linen goods, and one of the principal manufacturers of linen and cotton handkerchiefs in America (of Acheson, Harden & Co., Passaic, N. J.) states that he does not desire any advance of duty on his goods.

The gross injustice of these duties can be appreciated when it is remembered that, owing to climatic conditions, good fiber flax cannot be grown or linen manufactured successfully in this country, and when it is further remembered that the kind of linen taxed is the kind that is used by the poorest classes, while a much lower duty is put on the finer grades.

The Little Boy and the Stars.

One day he said to his mother, "Mamma, what are the stars?"

"They are a flock of golden sheep that God drives forth at night to feed in his pasture in the sky."

"H'm!" said the little boy, turning to his father. "Papa, what are the stars?"

"They are redhot nails that hold the sky fast to the bottom of God's throne and keep it from crashing down upon our heads."

"H'm!" said the little boy, turning to his mother's sister. "Auntie, what are the stars?"

"The sky is the Virgin's pincushion, and the stars are the heads of the pins which she!"

"H'm!" said the little boy, turning to his father's brother. "Uncle, what are the stars?"

"They are the eyes of truant boy angels, peeping through holes in the big blue tent that incloses what they call a circus and we call the planetary system."

"H'm!" said the little boy, turning to the old woman who told him so many wonderful stories of wonderful things during the blue midsummer nights.

"Nurse, what are the stars?"

"Well," answered the old woman, "some say that the stars are the tears of the dead, which turn into gold and glow. But I say—"

"Yes?" said the little boy eagerly.

"I say that only God knows."

The little boy looked disappointed. Then he raised his head and gazed steadily upward.

"I suppose," he said, after a silence, "that I shall never know what the stars really are."

"Not until you go among them. And may the hour of your going be late, my darling," said the old woman.—Chap Book.

THE BIRDS OF BETHLEHEM.

I heard the bells of Bethlehem ring. Their voice was sweeter than the priests'. I heard the birds of Bethlehem sing Unbidden in the churchly feasts.

They clung and sung on the swinging chain. High in the dim and incensed air. The priests, with repetitions vain, Chanted a never ending prayer.

So bell and bird and priest I heard, But voice of bird was most to me. It had no ritual, no word, And yet it sounded true and free.

I thought child Jesus, were he there, Would Lull the singing birds the best And clutch his little hands in air And smile upon his mother's breast. —R. W. Glider.

HIS TRIUMPH.

Alone in his little bare room, Hartzell was playing softly, telling the story over to himself for the hundredth time. It seemed almost too good to be true, and he could scarcely realize that his opportunity had come at last, and that that which he had longed for all his life had happened in his old age.

It was really only a trifling incident, the indisposition of the great soloist and the substitution of Hartzell, but to the broken down little man it seemed the entering wedge of future fame, and the melody he was playing that afternoon thrilled with triumphant promise.

His life had been almost pathetic in its uneventfulness, marked by only one distinguishing characteristic, his love for music. Ever since the first remembered days, when he stood shivering on the street corners and played uncomprehendingly to an uncomprehending audience, his violin had been his only real friend, listening to him, speaking to him, in sympathy with him always.

Among men he had been a failure, his abstraction of mind, together with an extreme diffidence, rendering him unfit both to follow and to lead. Within himself he might lay plans for vigorous action, for forcing the world to recognize the genius which he knew was his, but when the time for action came he always shrank and waited until it was too late.

And so the dreams of his young days had never materialized, and he was still almost where he had begun, an unidentified part of that great whole, the grand orchestra of the Hyperion.

Never at ease in the company of others, he had drawn further and further away from his fellow men, finding his only comradeship and the clearest expression of his thoughts in the clinging sweep of the bow upon the strings. He fell into the habit of putting all his doubts and hopes into the music which he played to himself, and it seemed as though the violin understood and answered him.

It came to pass that he rarely spoke in any other way, but went through his work silently, unheeding the presence of others, unanswering their words. His fellows in the orchestra called him crazy and made him the butt for many pleasantries of a personal nature. The conductor alone recognized the absolute certainty of time and strength and purity of tone which the little old man evoked, and when some one must be found to take the solo part in the great orchestration Hartzell was chosen.

"We'll give you a chance," the famous musician had said. "Remember your time and don't hurry, and I am sure you will get through all right," and Hartzell had dumbly bowed his thanks and gone home in a condition of dreamy exaltation to tell the glad news over and over again to the only friend whose sympathy he cared for.

The distant peal of the tower clock roused him at last, and he hastened through his simple toilet and went out into the cold, drizzling rain of the autumn night. The streets were crowded with people on their way to the various places of amusement, and he was jostled this way and that like a frail stick among larger craft, but he noticed nothing, for in the glory of hope he was as one marching in the procession of his own triumph.

In the dim orchestra room under the stage Hartzell received his final instructions from the leader, and then, mounting the dusty stairway, found a quiet corner in the wings and sat down to wait his turn, hugging the violin to his breast.

From the auditorium came the faint burr of many voices, mingled with a subdued rustling as the late arrivals settled themselves in comfortable anticipation. Suddenly there was a hush, and the melody of the grand overture burst forth in all its swinging, swaying rhythm. Hartzell listened intently. He had never before been upon the stage during a performance, and the music sounded strangely in his ears. He started apprehensively at the rattle of applause which followed hard upon the closing strains of the overture, and a wave of nervousness swept over him as he realized that he must face so many people. He was conscious of a wish that his trial came later in the programme instead of being the third number.

The prima donna stepped forth from one of the brightly lighted dressing rooms and nodded smilingly to Hartzell as she passed. He envied her the confidence which she showed so plainly. A few moments later her glorious voice rang out as steady and clear as the chiming of a bell, but to him it was only as the running of the sand in an hour glass, for when it ceased he must take his stand on the brilliantly illuminated stage, before the gaze of 1,000 eyes. His heart began to beat wildly against his breast, and he found himself tremblingly shrinking from the moment to which he had looked forward so confidently. Vague thoughts of possible flight flashed through his brain, but he realized that it was too late, and vainly tried to steady his nerves for the ordeal.

Again and again the applause rose and fell as the last notes of the wonderful contralto died away, and the soloist had to bow her acknowledgment repeatedly; then there came a pause, which to Hartzell seemed to last for hours. At length the orchestra played the introduction to his number, and he started to his feet convulsively and stepped out into the glare of the footlights.

The audience saw an undersized, gray haired man, whose clean shaven face was almost childish in expression as he stood there, nervously waiting. Hartzell saw a shimmering, changing blur, from which half indistinguishable forms started out for a moment, and then faded away like phantoms in a gleaming mist, only to reappear again in different shape. A noise like the shouting of an angry mob sounded in his ears, and he reeled and took a step backward, raising his hand to his forehead involuntarily. At last he caught the eye of the conductor, who nodded encouragement, and he raised his violin mechanically and made ready to play.

The smoothly flowing accompaniment began, but Hartzell stood at first motionless, his heart held in the grasp of a deathlike fear. He could recall no note of the air which he knew so well. His memory, confused by fright, was at a standstill and would not respond to his desperate entreaty. Like one in a trance, he saw the conductor give the signal which was fatal to him and his hopes. The accompaniment stopped abruptly, and he felt the wondering hush which came over the great audience.

In his disappointment and hopelessness he could have cried aloud. This was the moment for which he had waited so many cruel, long years. This was his triumph! The tears crept down his withered cheeks and his lips moved tremulously. He made no attempt to leave the stage, but stood with bowed head, while the hopes and dreams of his wasted life passed in review before him and crumbled away in the light of the consciousness that he had been found wanting.

But all this while, unbeknown to himself, he had been drawing the bow across the strings instinctively, unheeding, in unwitting disregard of his surroundings. The accustomed, caressing touch of the violin seemed to answer his vague longing for expression.

After awhile he noticed dimly that the members of the orchestra were bending toward him with curious intensity, and that there was a breathless stillness throughout the house. He did not know or care what was the reason, for he was lost in the distant land of memory, draping the brightness of every recollection with the black of present hopelessness; marking the vainness of every hope and the futility of every sacrifice. The thoughts which were flashing through his mind found an added bitterness in the consciousness that all might have been so different if his courage had not failed him; if he could have shown to the world what he knew to be his real power. Was there yet time? If he could only have another trial—one little opportunity—perhaps he could redeem this mistake. He was sure that he could. Was it too late—altogether too late? Might not—

He came to himself with a start and looked about him appealingly, mutely asking forgiveness and sympathy from some unknown source, then half stumbling turned to leave the stage.

A murmur followed him, fast growing into a roar. The house seemed to tremble and rock again and again in a hurricane of cheering. He heard his name called by many voices and faced about in utter bewilderment, his veins tingling strangely. He saw a wildly tossing sea of faces. The audience had risen to its feet and was crying out to him—to him! The orchestra, too, was applauding madly, forgetful of discipline, and the conductor was smiling at him with shining eyes. What did it all mean? For a moment he stood dazed and uncomprehending, then suddenly he knew the truth. Unconsciously he had been playing the thoughts which were in his mind, and the sobbing, vibrating notes of the violin had told his story to every human heart in the vast theater.—Leland Ingersoll in Looker On.

"Too Much Turkey."

In a conversation with Mr. F. O. Carpenter, reported in the Chicago Times-Herald, Mrs. Grant relates one of Bismarck's grim witticisms. The general and Mrs. Grant, while at Berlin, were shown by Bismarck the war chamber, where the commission to settle the terms of the Russo-Turkish peace was then sitting. Said Mrs. Grant:

The chamber was empty at the time, and he pointed out the chairs in which the different commissioners sat, showing me his chair, that of Beaconsfield and others. As he did so I asked him what it was all for, and he looked at me evidently very much surprised at my apparent ignorance.

I hastened to answer that I knew that it was to settle the terms of the war between the Russians and the Turks, but I could not see what the Germans had to do with it.

Prince Bismarck straightened himself up. His face at first was quite sober, but his mouth soon softened into a smile, and he replied, "To tell you the truth, madam, Russia has taken too much Turkey, and we are helping her to digest it."

THE OLD TREE.

Wave not so sadly in the wind, Thou old and leafless tree, Nor sob that summer nevermore Can beauty bring to thee, That but a desolation thou Must stand upon the lea.

The inspirations of the spring Long years were at thy heart, Thou gav'st through many a summer space Grain images to art. Old tree, thou acted'st gloriously Within the world thy part.

Then sigh not such a mournful dirge. Yet if thy voice must be Like anthems let the undertone Be breathed exultingly. For there was not a wasted life, Magnificent old tree!

Man, white haired man, if thou hast done Bravely in life thy part, If true humanity has made Its music in thy heart, Say why should'st thou at death's cold wind Grieve and terror start?

Oh, stand beside the grand old tree, And, gazing on its dim, Scarred trunk, lift bravely up Thy last but fearless hymn, For thou hast nobly done thy part. What more can cherubim?

—W. R. Wallace in New York Ledger.

THE FIRST LIGHTHOUSES.

They Were an Outgrowth of the Beacon Fires on Headlands.

Lieutenant John M. Elliott, U. S. N., writes for St. Nicholas a paper on lighthouses, entitled, "The Lights That Guide In the Night." Lieutenant Elliott says:

When ships are sailing upon the ocean the lights of heaven are their guides. Even in the dark ages, when the compass and sextant were unknown instruments, the seemingly motionless pole star hung like a beacon light in the northern heavens, and the rising and setting of the sun and stars distinguished the east from the west. When, however, ships come near the land, the lights of heaven are not sufficiently safe to guide them. Rocks lie in their paths, unseen in the night, reefs and shoals spread under the water, while unsuspected currents sweep the frail craft all blindly upon these dangers.

Nevertheless, ships were sailed along dangerous coasts for centuries before a plain system of marking dangerous places was invented. The early mariners were bold and reckless rovers, more than half pirates, who seldom owned a roof of the coasts along which they sailed, and could not have established lights and landmarks on them had they cared to do so. The rude beginning, then, of a system of lighthouses was when the merchants with whom the reckless mariners traded in those dark ages built beacons near the harbor mouths to guide the ships into port by day and lighted fires for their guidance at night. As such a harbor guide had to be a sure landmark in the daytime and a light by night, it soon took on a settled shape—a tower on which could be built a fire, and such a tower was usually built of stone.

This method of guiding ships into the ports which they sought was scarcely established before human wickedness used it as a means for their destruction. Bands of robbers, or, as they came to be called, "wreckers," would hide themselves somewhere near the haven sought by a richly laden vessel, and, after overpowering the fire keepers, would extinguish the beacon fire on the night on which the ship was expected. Then they would light another fire near some treacherous reef. The mariner, sailing boldly toward the false light, would dash his vessel to destruction on the reef, whereupon the robber band would plunder the wreck and make off with the booty.

COURSING LIZARDS.

The Amusement of a Tame Eagle In the Arizona Desert.

In St. Nicholas Wolcott Le Clear Beard writes of "Moses, a Tame Eagle," which was one of his pets while he was engaged in engineering in southern Arizona. Mr. Beard says he was very fond of the lizards with which these plains abounded, and one large variety, called swifts, from their remarkable speed in running, seemed to be especially coveted.

Whenever one of these was caught, which was not often, Moses would be brought out, and, after the swift had taken a ten foot start, would be set free. The lizard would promptly resolve itself into a white streak across the desert, and, screaming with excitement, half running, half flying, Moses would pursue, followed by the laughing crowd, of which only those on horseback had much chance of keeping up. It was in no sense a cruel sport. It amused Moses and us and didn't hurt the swift, for he got away every time, and if the feelings of our pet were a trifle injured as he returned, perched on some one's wrist or saddle horn, from his fruitless hunt these were speedily soothed by the prompt gift of a nice bit of fresh beef, so no one was the worse. The lizards, however, he seemed to view as a sort of dessert, and as he could absorb an unlimited quantity they were always in demand.

A certain stick kept on the veranda of our office was generally under his eye, and when any one picked this up and started for a walk across the desert Moses would hop gravely along behind, sure that some of his favorite dainties would soon be forthcoming.

Of course Moses was perfectly well able to catch the smaller kinds of lizards for himself, but there was less exertion in allowing some one else to do it for him, and exertion at this period of his life was a thing to which Moses was violently opposed. These occasions were almost the only ones when he would be silent for any length of time, for he seemed to understand perfectly that at the first note of his voice every lizard within hearing would run for its life to the nearest refuge, and only when a blow of the stick failed for the second or third time to reach its mark would he give utterance to his deep disgust at such clumsiness.

A WIDELY known Wisconsin publisher, who resides at Green Bay, writes March 26, 1895, as follows:

"Five years ago I became so nervous that mental work was a burden. I could not rest at night on account of sleeplessness. My attention was called to Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, and I commenced to use it with the very best effect. Since then I have kept a bottle in my house and use it whenever my nerves become unstrung, with always the same good results. My son also takes it for nervousness with like never failing success. I have recommended it to many and it cures them. All who suffer from nerve troubles should try it. It is free from narcotics, perfectly harmless, and yet soothes and strengthens. SUGAR TRUST PROFITS.

John De Witt Warner Makes Some Estimates and Scores the Trust.

Ex-Congressman John De Witt Warner is one of the best posted men in this country on sugar tariffs. When in congress, he carried the house for free sugar. In a recently published statement he estimates the net protection to the trust given by the Aldrich schedule at from 35 cents to $1.14 on every 100 pounds of refined sugar.

Without attempting to give his argument as to each of the ways in which the trust would be protected we give his summary of trust profits as follows:

Specific differential.....	$0.10 to $0.40
Differential.....	$0.10 to $0.21
Countervailing duty, say.....	0.08 to 0.35
Additional by substitution of 75 per cent ad valorem for specific duties in low grades.....	0.00 to 0.18
Total.....	$0.35 to $1.14

In the vast majority of cases, however, the actual result is between 45 and 60 cents per 100 pounds net protection to the trust, and it is impracticable so to combine circumstances as to bring this below 40 cents or above 60 cents for any considerable amount.

As an item of tariff taxation the sugar schedule is ideal from the protectionist standpoint. Sugar is the one article used by poor and rich to an equivalent extent, and a tax on which therefore falls most heavily on the poor in proportion to their ability to pay it. Its production and distribution are controlled by a concern which is at once the greatest of our mean trusts and the meanest of our great ones.

It is consistent therefore that on this one article there should be levied more than one-third of our total tariff taxation, and that our people should be burdened by a tax of more than $90,000,000 that realizes less than $70,000,000 for the treasury and more than $20,000,000 for the sugar refining combine, while the same combine is enabled to net an additional $10,000,000 by the opportunity given it to import at present duty rates raw sugars from which it can make refined to be sold by it under the enhanced price assured it by the proposed Aldrich schedule. The net "protection" of from 45 to 60 cents per 100 pounds given the trust on its refining process alone should be considered as sufficient when we remember that the labor cost of this process is slightly less than 6 1/2 cents per 100 pounds—that is to say, Senator Aldrich, in behalf of American labor, proposes unduly to tax wage earners in order to give the trust from five to seven times as much "protection" as it pays for all the labor involved.

Next to the wage earner the farmer is dear to the protectionist heart, and he is therefore equally favored by the sugar schedule. Of late years throughout the eastern and middle and many of the central states the competition of the far west has driven our farmers from grain raising into fruit culture. This has now so developed that except for exports of canned goods—jams, preserves, etc.—in which we ought to supply the world, the business of fruit raising has, in its turn, become almost profitless. And poverty is now assured to those who are dependent upon fruit culture by the proposed tax of two cents a pound on sugar. This increases by from 50 to 75 per cent the article which would make up from 40 to 75 per cent of the total weight of the jams, etc., the export of which might insure living prices for the surplus fruits, but which is now practically prohibited.

And this is "a government of the people, by the people and for the people." Who are "the people?"

GREAT MINERS' STRIKE

Thousands Will Lay Down Their Tools Saturday.

FIVE STATES WILL BE INVOLVED.

The Battle To Cover the Bituminous Coal Centers of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania—National Officers of the Miners' Union Disclaim All Knowledge of the Strike, but It Is Said Orders Will Be Issued at Once.

Pittsburg, June 29.—Notwithstanding the denials of the local officials of the Miners' association an afternoon paper publishes a long article in effect that the national officers of the union will issue orders at once for a strike in five states. The edict, the paper says, will go forth from Columbus that the men are to lay down their tools on Saturday.

Nearly 175,000 men, it is said, will be engaged in this great conflict, and the battlefield will cover the bituminous coal centers of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania. The mining rate asked for is 63 cents, based on the thin-vein district in Pennsylvania.

STATEMENT BY RATCHFORD.

Says He Is Tired of Denying Reports of a Strike.

Columbus, O., June 29.—Michael Ratchford, president of the United Mine Workers of America, when asked what, if any, truth were in the specials sent out to the effect that a strike of coal mine workers had been ordered, said:

"I am tired of denying these reports of a proposed strike. I have been denying them for sixty days. I have nothing to say for publication."

The last national meeting of the miners decided on a scale of 60 cents for Ohio and 69 cents for Pennsylvania and left it to the executive committee to determine the time to put this scale into operation. The committee met here June 24, 25 and 26, and for three days were closeted with positive orders not to be called or to admit anybody. On Saturday they gave out that conditions are not favorable to put the proposed new scale into operation now. That, of course, means that there might have been a strike had the new scale been ordered, but not being ordered there can be no strike.

No Knowledge of the Strike.

Pittsburg, June 29.—Patrick Dolan, president of the Pittsburg district, was seen and emphatically disclaimed any knowledge of the proposed strike. "I am a member of the executive board," said he, "and no such action was taken at the meeting in Columbus last week. If a strike was decided upon, it was after my departure for home, and as this is one of the most important districts in the association, it is to be supposed that notice would have been sent to me. No word has been received, and as far as I know, no strike has been ordered."

BIG EXCURSION BEGUN.

Christian Endeavor Movement Starts for the Pacific Coast.

Denver, June 29.—The Christian Endeavor movement from the large cities of the Atlantic coast has begun and by Thursday the prairie lines will be dotted with long trains bearing excursionists westward. Major S. K. Hooper, general passenger agent of the Denver & Rio Grande road, estimates that the transportation department of the Rio Grande will require fifty-two special trains to carry the business which will be offered during the last three days of the week. Orders have been given for thirty-one engines to be ready for use out of Denver over the scenic line next Friday. The forces in the repair shops and at division points have been largely augmented in anticipation of the tremendous rush.

The Union Pacific, through Colonel George A. Dy, reports twelve specials engaged for the trip over the line from Chicago and Missouri river points, and the demand for train accommodations at Ogden, over the Central Pacific, is said to be the heaviest in the history of the road. Indeed, intimations are given out that the Southern Pacific has attempted more than even such a great system can hope to perform and if latecomers fail to reach San Francisco in time for the Endeavor meeting it will be because the cars could not be secured for carrying the vast throng. The Santa Fe reports eight special trains through La Junta westward Thursday and six on the day following.

Victory for the Pool-Sellers.

St. Louis, June 29.—The test case made against the pool rooms under the new breeders' law has resulted in a victory for the pool sellers. Late Monday afternoon Judge Murphy ruled that the supreme court held such playing not to be in violation of the laws. He cited numerous cases, particularly one which was appealed from his decision a year ago. It is expected all the pool rooms will reopen.

Indians Are Ghost Dancing.

Boise, Id., June 29.—Governor Steunenberg is advised that thirty Indians, mostly Bannocks, with some from the Lemhi agency and some from Nevada, are ghost dancing in the Camas prairie, near Halley, Id. The settlers are greatly alarmed over their action and have appealed to have them removed. The governor has wired the interior department.

Byron McClelland Left $400,000.

Lexington, Ky., June 29.—The will of the late Byron McClelland, the famous horseman, was probated Monday. He leaves $5,000 each to two brothers and one sister, to Francis McClelland, his adopted niece, $10,000. His wife is made executrix without bond. His estate will aggregate something like $400,000.

Died, the Result of "Foaling."

Waltham, Mass., June 29.—Harris H. Cutting, about 10 years of age, was drowned in the Charles river. He was in a double-ended boat and had as a companion Miss Bridget Cady. The accident was the result of "foaling." Miss Cady was rescued by a man in another boat.

Population of Chicago.

Chicago, June 29.—The estimate of Chicago's population by the publishers of the city directory just printed is 1,828,000, an increase of 76,000 over last year.

PERFECTING PROTECTION.

Two Slight Changes Suggested in the Interest of Farmers and Laborers.

The senate is now engaged in remedying the small imperfections of the Dingley bill, which, as all good protectionists assert, is one of the best tariff bills ever drafted. It distributes its blessings to all—farmer, laborer and manufacturer. Without doubting the good intentions of the makers, we wish to suggest one or two minor details which might possibly help the bill to fulfill the expectations of its authors:

First.—Lubin's export bounty scheme might enable the farmer to get a small slice of the benefits of protection. Of course the farmer doesn't expect—especially at first—to get as much of the benefits as the manufacturers have been getting for 30 years. A protection of about 20 per cent—that is 10 cents per bushel on wheat, 5 cents on corn, etc.—would satisfy him, while it takes four times as much to satisfy ordinary tariff infants.

This small export duty would not make good the farmer's loss because of import duties on manufactured products, saying nothing about past losses, but in course of time, after his industry had felt the stimulating effects of real protection "what protects," the farmer might muster up courage enough to follow the example of Oliver Twist—which example has grown into a custom with protected interests—and ask for "more." Possibly also he might form political trusts or combines to demand "more" and raise millions of dollars to send lobbies to Washington to bribe congress. While protection is in order export duties are the farmer's only hope. With them he may hope not only to change his losses to profits, but also to regain that power and position which were once his, but which have long since passed into the hands of the manufacturers.

Second.—It is also fitting to recognize the laborer in the distribution of tariff profits. Like the farmer, he now puts his hand into his pocket to help swell the profits of protection, practically none of which comes his way. It is not an easy matter to equalize the benefits of protection so that the workingman shall get his full share. A prohibitive duty on imported labor might in the course of time afford some protection by restricting the supply of labor, so that manufacturers could carry out their good intentions (expressed when asking for higher duties) and pay "American wages to American workmen."

At present the condition of workingmen in the protected industries is pitiable in the extreme. The Philadelphia Ledger, a good Republican paper, told us about May 1 that in the protected iron and coal industries of Pennsylvania the wage rate has been reduced so low "that it is scarcely sufficient to provide the necessities of decent, sanitary living." It says "the lowest classes of alien cheap labor swarm in the iron and coal districts of the state," and the competition for work is so fierce "that they contend, not against the employers for the highest wages, but among each other for the lowest?" "As appears by the testimony presented to the legislative committee,  they herd in squalor, subjects of abject penury, and are beset by disease, dirt and hunger." The Ledger thinks our immigration laws are "defective and improvident" and suggests that "to properly protect American workmen congress should pass an immigration as well as a tariff bill." This is a good idea and should be acted upon at once. The only wonder is that some of the good manufacturers, in their anxiety to protect and raise the wages of their workmen, did not think of this plan before. Then, if they should have a law passed which should make it compulsory for them to give at least one-half of their protection and monopoly profits to their employees, protection would begin to be an all around blessing. The manufacturers might still be getting the lion's share, but they would not get all.

When these changes are made in the bill, it will undoubtedly be what the New York Tribune declared its prototype, the McKinley bill, to be—"the bravest and best tariff bill ever passed." Will they be made?—Byron W. Holt.

Queer Things About Fishes.

Mr. A. E. Verrill describes the ways in which fishes sleep. They are very light sleepers and frequently assume singular positions. But the most remarkable thing is the change of color many of them undergo while asleep. Usually their spots and stripes become darker and more distinct when they fall asleep. Occasionally the pattern of their coloration is entirely changed. The ordinary porgy, for instance, presents in the daytime beautiful iridescent hues playing over its silvery sides, but at night, on falling asleep, it takes on a dull bronze tint, and six conspicuous black bands make their appearance on its sides. If it is suddenly awakened by the turning up of the gas in the aquarium, it immediately resumes the silvery color that it shows by daylight. Mr. Verrill ascribes these changes to the principle of "protective coloration," and points out that the appearance of black bands and the deepening of the spots serve to conceal the fish from their enemies when lying amid eelgrass and seaweeds.—Youth's Companion.

THE RECALL OF WEYLER

Correspondent Says It Will Occur Shortly.

SOME FUTURE PLANS OF SPAIN.

They Involve the Sending of Blanco and Macias to Cuba—Campos May Possibly Go on a Special Mission—Peaceful Solution of the Cuban Problem Seems Difficult if the United States Insists on Autonomy for the Island.

London, June 29.—The Pall Mall Gazette prints the following dispatch from its correspondent at Madrid:

"Public attention is engrossed by the appointment of General Stewart L. Woodford as United-States minister to Spain. While the government continues to repudiate the intention of recalling General Weyler, I am in a position to reiterate that his recall will be an accomplished fact at no distant date. I learn that in all probability Generals Blanco and Macias will proceed to the island and divide the supreme command, and I have good reason to believe that, coincident with the arrival here of General Woodford Marshal Martinez Campos will proceed upon a separate mission to Cuba. In accordance with the wishes of President McKinley, Martinez Campos should be the executor of any arrangements possibly reached between Spain and the United States.

Will Oppose Autonomy.

"Indications do not point to any arrangements being reached with the United States and intimate friends of Senor Canovas del Castillo (the Spanish premier) declare the premier will strenuously oppose autonomy. Castelar, the Liberal leader, is also opposed to anything of the kind. They both consider that such a concession would render it very difficult to maintain Spanish sovereignty.

"The report that the United States will insist upon autonomy and the withdrawal of the Spanish troops and that, otherwise, it will intervene by force, if necessary, does not make for a peaceful solution, and the position is regarded throughout Spain with considerable anxiety."

POSTMASTERS IN DANGER.

Those in Rural Districts May Lose Their Positions.

Washington, June 29.—The work of consolidating small outlying postoffices with a large adjacent one, making a single postal district with modern facilities, will be pushed vigorously by this administration.

Consolidation abolishes the individual small postoffices, with their usually crude service, and substitutes substations for them; reduces the postmasters to sub-agents, with accompanying saving of salaries and complicated auditing work, and instead of the many postoffices substitutes the large office with branches, all having free delivery and other advantages accruing to a postoffice from such privileges. The postal officials are confident that the extension of the movement will result in a big saving in expenditures, while furnishing immensely superior facilities.

Trying to Corner Gomez.

Havana, June 29.—All regular troops that can be spared from Pinar del Rio, the western trocha, are being concentrated at Sancti Spiritus, where General Weyler has directed the immediate organization of fourteen columns, at the head of which he will drive General Gomez across the new trocha, and invade Puerto Principe province, where Calixto Garcia's forces are now said to be massing. Weyler expects a great pitched battle when he meets Garcia.

Hanged Himself in Church.

London, June 29.—A great sensation has been created at Odessa, and, indeed, throughout southern Russia, by the announcement that Rev. D. W. Ford, the well-known chaplain of the Anglo-American church at Odessa, has committed suicide for no known cause by hanging himself in the sacred building, which is not to be used for divine services again until it has been solemnly reconsecrated by a bishop sent out from England for the purpose.

Fire at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 29.—Fire broke out at 1:30 Tuesday morning in the large five-story building north of Montgomery avenue and between Fourth and Fifth streets occupied by several manufacturers. The loss will aggregate about $150,000. The principal losers are the Pennsylvania Gas Fixture company, the Mattress Mills company, manufacturers of upholstery; J. M. Shwarz, manufacturer of upholstery, and John Yankee, carriage manufacturer.

Crazed by Religion.

Chicago, June 29.—Crazed by religion William Seeback occupies a cell at the detention hospital. Seeback was arrested at his home, 121 West Huron street by officers from the West Chicago Avenue station, while he was trying to demolish the windows of all the houses in his neighborhood with a club and an iron-tipped spear. Mrs. James Luedke, who remonstrated with him, was badly beaten by Seeback, and his wife also suffered.

Fixed the Duty on Coal.

Washington, June 29.—The senate committee on finance has fixed the duty on coal at 67 cents per long ton. This rate applies only to Canada, the Canadian rate on American coal being the same. The committee has also decided to restore paintings to the dutiable list. It is not yet definitely decided whether the rate shall be 20 or 25 per cent.

For McLean and Free Silver.

Columbus, O., June 29.—The preliminary work of the Democratic state convention Tuesday showed that it was almost unanimous for free silver and John R. McLean for senator. There was, however, a continuation of the contests for the different places on the state ticket and for positions on the committee.

Annulled His Power.

Topeka, Kan., June 29.—Judge Foster in the United States district court has annulled Insurance Commissioner McNall's power to revoke licenses unless judgments had been secured.

Brief Cabinet Meeting.

Washington, June 29.—The cabinet meeting Tuesday was brief and unimportant. Only routine matters were discussed.

ROMANCE VERSUS REALITY.

BUT THEY DIDN'T KNOW IT WAS A ROENTGEN CAMERA.

New England is much concerned about free hides. Some of her biggest industries, especially that of boots and shoes, have been built up during our quarter of a century of free hides. She now sells boots and shoes in all parts of the world. Taxed hides would cripple this and other industries. Her leading senators pretend to represent her and to put up a fight for free hides. In reality they will, if necessary, sacrifice free hides to obtain high duties on sugar with plenty of margin for trust profits. Just why this is so should be a matter for senatorial investigation, if such investigation would only investigate. Fortunately for the Sugar trust, but unfortunately for the rest of us 70,000,000 people, the Sugar trust understands well the art of making friends where they will do the most good. It has able attorneys to advise it how to distribute its sweets to politicians and lawmakers and at the same time to steer clear of jails.

In this way and in this way only can we account for the attitude of not a few prominent tariff makers at Washington. The situation is interesting—decidedly so.

CASTORIA.
The famous signature of Dr. H. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.
American Life Insurance.

In no country is the business of life insurance on a sounder or more conservative basis than in the United States. There were some attempts made in the early years of the century to start life insurance companies, but life insurance was not popular in those days, it being regarded by many, as the quaint remark of a writer of the period puts it, as "wicked to insure their lives, or to travel in steamboats against wind and tide." The three largest companies at present doing business began in 1841, 1843 and 1859.

The remarkable development in the business began after the civil war, and it has grown with an unexampled progress. The great conservative life insurance companies stood the shock of the financial convulsions of 1873 and 1893 better than other financial institutions, and the words of the famous mathematician, De Morgan, still remain true, "There is nothing in the commercial world which approaches, even remotely, the security of a well established life office." The three large companies receive annually in premiums and other income about $100,000,000, their assets aggregate about $600,000,000, and they have outstanding insurance to the amount of about $2,400,000,000. The natural presumption arising from a study of the development of such an enterprise is that to have maintained its place in the great field of competition it must have subserved a purpose of great benefit to society.—Catholic World.

Nehrbass-Buchanan.

The following item taken from the columns of the Hartford, Wis., Press, relates to the marriage of a former resident of Dexter, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Buchanan, and family still reside:

"Married—At the residence of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Hahn, Wednesday afternoon, June 23, at 6 o'clock, Miss Eva M. Nehrbass to Mr. Frank R. Buchanan, Rev. J. O. Buswell performing the ceremony.

"The bride, who wore a dainty gown of white organdy with bridal roses, was attended by Misses Maggie Scollard and Louise Schroeder and the groom by T. C. and Herman Nehrbass. The rooms and tables were trimmed with smilax and flowers. A number of friends and relatives were present and partook of a delicious wedding supper.

"The bride who has always lived in this city, was a great favorite with all; her charming voice and pleasant manner winning her a prominent place among Hartford's young people. Mr. Buchanan is also very much respected and liked here although not a resident. The young people left on the six o'clock train for a visit at the home of the groom's parents in Michigan."

Are you troubled with your hair falling out? If so please give Schumacher & Miller's Hair Restorer a trial, this we are convinced will prove beneficial. It promotes the growth and leaves the hair in a soft smooth condition. We do not mean to say that it will do this in every case as that is nonsense, but we do mean to say that it will prevent the hair from falling out in the majority of cases. We allow you to use one-fourth of the bottle which, if used according to directions, will be a treatment for about one month, if at that time you receive no benefit we will gladly refund the money paid for the preparation.

THE HIGH SCHOOL CLASS OF '97.

Over Fifty of the Graduates Will Enter the U. of M.

The High School hall was crowded Friday morning with people interested in watching the graduation of the 79 pupils who formed the class of '97. The hall had been lavishly decorated by the members of the junior class and presented a handsome appearance with its drapings of green and white, the senior class colors, black and yellow, the junior class colors, and maroon and yellow, the High school colors. The platform was also decorated with a tasteful array of palms and potted plants. On the platform were seated the school faculty, members of the school board and the graduating class. As the members of the class filed in they were greeted with much applause.

Promptly on their entrance the program opened with a selection by the Ann Arbor orchestra under the leadership of Prof. R. H. Kempf. Rev. J. M. Gelston offered prayer and Freddie Daley sang the beautiful "Ave Maria" in a most charming manner.

Prof. Pattenhill, who acted as master of ceremonies, then introduced Miss Mary L. Bradshaw, who took for her subject "Cobwebs." She said the spider represented the literary man. Its web the creations of the author's mind. As the spider casts himself loose from his fine spun thread, so does the literary man cast himself off from his friends. The spider's only thought is of self-protection, but the literary man seeks to elevate and help others.

Miss Florence Bowen's theme was "Queen Victoria" and she found it a fruitful one, eulogizing that noble woman in the highest manner. She spoke of the queen's great power of mind and character and said that her childish resolve "I will be good" was the secret of her success. The moral tone of the English nation has been elevated by her influence and she is both great and good.

Harry R. Brown had for the subject of his essay "Laugh and Grow Fat." The young gentleman is a shining example of the truth of his theory and his humorous essay was in keeping with the title and kept the risible muscles of his hearers in constant motion. But, the laughter who grows fat must not be a "giggler" as some young ladies are, the laugh on which to grow fat must be a hearty, whole souled laugh.

A selection by the orchestra was followed by Miss Bessie E. Cordley's essay entitled "In Behalf of My Grandmother." The essay was a well worded defense of our grandmothers, to whom the women of today owe a debt of gratitude. Grandmother, she said, never borrowed any of grandfather's clothes, not even a necktie or a cuff button.

Clarence W. Hughes dealt with "The Death of Hermes." He described the effect on the world at large that the death of the god of lying would have. There would then be no more book agents, no big fish stories and no law suits. He advised his hearers to keep Truthfulness as their watchword through life.

Miss Emma M. Kapp spoke on "Commencement." The general idea seemed to be that commencement day is the end of school. It is the commencement of life when we become dependent on ourselves and not upon others. The essay was a good one and was well received.

"Finn," the mythical hero of the Irish nation, was the subject of Miss Lucia Lyons' essay. She spoke of him as the ideal of the Irish nation in all that is good and kind, so also he is the embodiment of all that is best and noblest in all nations.

Miss Camille Ryan's essay on "Harmony Restored," was one of the best numbers on the program. Its story was of a musician who having lost his daughter, finally has her restored to him through the instrumentality of a strain of music which they two alone knew. It was well received and warmly applauded.

The final essay by Theo. Zimmerman, "A Herald of Liberty," dealt with achievements of Narcissus Lopez, the hero of the first Cuban insurrection, who gave his life for the cause of liberty. The United States should aid Cuban liberty by a recognition of their rights as belligerents.

The presentation of the diplomas to the students of the seven courses was then proceeded with by Supt. Perry and Principal Pattenhill, and afterwards the numerous gifts of loving parents, relatives and friends were distributed to the graduates. The benediction and another selection of music closed the high school graduating exercises of 1897.

Over fifty of the class stepped into the office of the president of the university in a body on Friday afternoon and matriculated as students amid great enthusiasm.

DANGEROUSLY BURNED.

Lighted a Pile of Waste Paper and Her Clothing Caught Fire.

Altie Collum, a little ten year old girl was dangerously burned at nine o'clock this morning. The little girl is the daughter of Mrs. Ida Collum, who lives in the Buchoz block on Detroit st. At nine o'clock this morning the mother told the little girl that she might light a pile of waste paper in the back yard. She did so but the fire quickly caught her dress and she ran for the house. E. J. Stilson was the first to hear her screams and found her enveloped in a mass of flames. He caught her as she reached the house and began tearing her clothes from her. Mrs. Collum also ran to the assistance of the little girl. Her whole body was burned excepting the face but her hair did not catch fire. Dr. Pearson, who was summoned, pronounced her injuries dangerous. Mrs. Collum was also badly burned about the hands.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

A Pittsfield Lad Has Both Legs Mangled By Mowing Machine Knives.

A young lad named Wiedoff, aged 9 years, living in Pittsfield township, near Ypsilanti, met with a terrible accident Tuesday morning which may result in his being crippled for life. Another lad was driving a mowing machine and asked Wiedoff to touch up the horses with a whip. He did so and the horses sprang forward. The unfortunate little fellow was unable to get out of the way quick enough and the knives on the cutting bar struck him squarely on the legs, cutting the calves of his legs clear to the bone, the arteries and tendons being cut so that the ankles flopped around uselessly.

Dr. James Hueston, of Ypsilanti, was called and he bandaged up both legs and reports that his patient is doing nicely, the circulation of the blood being very free in the forepart of the leg. Just what the final result will be cannot yet be determined.

Jefferson's Boyhood Residence.

Jefferson spent part of his early boyhood at Tuckahoe, on the James river, a fine house still in existence about 14 miles west of Richmond, which has not parted with the traditions inseparable from an old Virginia mansion, including a bed slept in by General Washington, a perambulating ghost who wrings his hands before cock crow and stables where a stud of thoroughbred horses consumed annually "1,000 barrels of corn." Near the flower garden, with its box edged walks, stands a little brick building styled the schoolhouse, wherein studied together Thomas Jefferson and Thomas Mann Randolph, the boy heir of the estate, to which his guardian, Peter Jefferson, had removed with his family, the better to watch over his orphaned charge. This Thomas Mann Randolph married, first, Anne, daughter of Archibald Cary of Amphil, the fiery patriot of the Revolution, known by the sobriquet of "Old Iron." The oldest son of this marriage became Mr. Jefferson's son-in-law. Very late in life Colonel Randolph solaced his widowed heart by taking to wife a beautiful young girl in her teens, Miss Gabriella Harvie of Richmond, an event that soon scattered from her husband's home the children of his first marriage.

One might go far without finding advice so kind, so temperate, in such exquisite sympathy with the difficulties of poor human nature in families of diverse elements, as that of the letter written by Mr. Jefferson to his daughter upon the subject of this marriage of her father-in-law in 1790. An odd outcome of the much discussed nuptials was that the new Mrs. Randolph, imperiously ignoring the fact that her oldest stepson was already in possession of the name, bestowed upon her own son also his father's name of Thomas Mann Randolph. From this high spirited and captivating Mrs. Gabriella Randolph descended the Misses Ella and Emily Chapman of Philadelphia, married respectively to the Marquis Louis de Podestad and Prince Pignatelli d'Aragon.—New York Ledger.

DR. W. A. CAMPBELL OUSTED

From His Position as Demonstrator of Anatomy at the U. of M.

At the meeting of the board of regents Tuesday two matters of interest were disposed of. In the one case Dr. M. L. D'Ooge tendered his resignation as dean of the literary department, which he has held for the past seven years. His resignation was accepted and Prof. Richard Hudson was appointed in his place.

In the other the old fight of the medical faculty against Dr. William A. Campbell, demonstrator of anatomy, and who was in line for Dr. Ford's chair at the time of that gentleman's death when Dr. McMurrich was called here from the Cincinnati college, which has been raging ever since that time was fought out to the bitter end Monday and Tuesday and Dr. Campbell went down in honorable defeat before the superior forces of his enemies and he was bounced. The means taken was the same as that used in the Gibbs case—his chair was abolished. The regret of the students at Dr. Campbell's departure from the U. of M. is sincerely and loudly expressed as he has been a member of the medical faculty for 14 years and was universally liked by the students of both the homeopathic and regular schools who have taken work under him on account of the thoroughness of his work.

Dr. Kiefer, one of the regents, is quoted as saying that the action of the board in Dr. Campbell's case was "to preserve harmony; that is all."
