When the Daily Argus, exclusively, announced April 8, that the experiment of wireless telegraphy in the university physical laboratory was a success, we were unable to give a full explanation of it, and until now some of the purely physical problems have never been delineated for tne public. Just as the world is old so are really all the coherer till the electric surging, matters of science, only as we are nearing our accomplishment we go faster until the end.

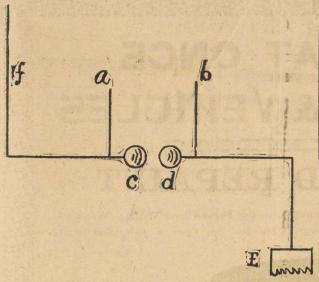

Wireless telegraphy is not new, only in name. Physicologicly it is analogous to light. The magnetic waves are the same with the exeption of certain physical changes. Of course in seeing you do not get the further point of another local circuit by which a bell light, which is really infinite, but this is on account of may be rung, a taper operated, an the occular incapabilities, and the second place the curvature of the earth.

A representaive of the Daily Argus yesterday had an dashes recorded on a trip of paper. opportunity to see the apparatus for wireless telegraphy and its workings. The matter was explained by Prof. Augustus Torwbridge, and from the explanation no layman ought to misunderstand the workings of it any more than of telegraphy by wire.

The one explanation which treats the subject from a physical standpoint has not been published in any paper, either in Chicago, New York or Ann Arbor, and it is of this that we will treat in part.

In the first place it is not sound that travels, but the effect of the electro-magnetic wave which produces the sound—the instrument clicker. The electro-magnetic wave is produced in this way. At the sending station making more rapid strides than did there is an inductive coil. There is a slight current produced which produces a current of high pressure, this in turn produces an oscillation between two poles which is the electro-magnetic wave which travels ad infinetum. As said before this is a wave analogous to the waves of light and when it reaches the receiving station its connection there produces a light current which produces the sound on the clicker.

Dr. Trowbridge stated to the Daily Argus that although it is plain that it is the ether in the astmosheric space that allows these waves to prevail, yet it is possible that it may yet be found that it also passes through the earth as well. In that case the curvature of the earth would not hinder it.

There is a peculiar thing about this space-telegraphy. Although it matters not at what altitude the receiving station is, whether higher or lower than the sending station, it must only be at the same altitude from the surface of the earth as the other instrument is from the Marshal Gerstner's attention to a crysurface of the earth. Another peculiarity is that in ing baby in the outhouse in the alley sending a message it starts from the center (the sending nar his mother's restaurant. This was apparatus) and travels in every direction in a radii as for about 6 o'clock p. m. Mr. Gerstner instance from a buggy wheel. In this case were we to telegraph to Detroit it could be heard in Jackson, providing they have a receiving station. However, the matter with which she was treated. for the cuts used in this connection, also for certain explanations of them by Prof. H. S. Carhart. To give a better idea of this seemingly simple display of physical science the drawings will be explained.

At the sending station only simple means are employed. The wires a and b in Fig. 1 come from the secondary of an induction coil capable of giving a spark eight or ten inches long; c and d are two balls about an inch in diameter. One of these is connected to earth as shown, and the other to a vertical wire f. features of the Marconi system. When the primary circuit of the induction coil is closed by a telegraph key, a spark, or more properly, an oscillatory discharge passes between the two balls, c, d. This causes an electrical charge to surge up and down the vertical conductor, which now becomes the source of the electro-magnetic radiations in the other. They are propagated in all NO POLES, OR WIRES TO BE ERECTED and with the same speed. When they receiving station, they in turn give rise to electrical surgings in it. To utilize them the vertical receiving wire is connected to one end of a coherer, to an electric discharge which affects it s resistance.

In Fig. 2, f is the vertical conductor, the coherer, and e the earth connection. If now the coherer is at the same time made part of a local circuit, containing a battery B and a relay R, then the relay may be so adjusted that its armature will not be drawn down by the very small current traver ing due to an incoming ether or Hertz wave, causes its particles to cohere. Its reduced resistance then allows a larger current from the local battery to pass through the relay sufficient to operate its armature. The relay in turn looses electric lamp lighted, a motor started, or an ordinary Morse recording instru ment may be worked and the dots and

The sensitiveness of the coherer is a very remarkable fact. One of those recently made by Dr. Trowbridge and Prof. H. S. Carhart had a resistance after tapping of a million and a half ohms; but when the induction coil was worked some 30 feet away, its resistance fell instantly to 12 ohms. A slight tap restored itsoriginal high resistance. This is one of the most remarkable facts within the whole range of electrical phenomena.

In speaking of telegraphy it might power on their down town lines. be said that wireless telegraphy is telegraphy by wire. It was some time before it was sucessfully operated between Washington and Philadelphia, but it took only a few days for Marconi to successfully telegraph across the English channel, 32 miles.

> If the recent development in compressed air as a motive power turn out as they promise, Ann Arbor will have one of the earliest railroads to be equipped with compressed air motors. Instead of a second electric line to Detroit it will have a compressed air line to Detroit. There will be no poles along the right of way, no overhead wires and jumping troileys, no costly electric power houses, no stop ping of traffic all along the line by the breaking of the current carrying wires. The promoters of the new road have been for some weeks anxiously watching the development of the new power and they have been more than pleased with the progress made and feel very sanguine o its success. This road is the same one as was previously mentioned exclusively in the Argus and runs through Superior and Cherry Hill to Wayne.

> The new power, compressed air, has halready been adopted by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, of New York, the largest street railway system in America, on some of its lines, and will probably be extended to the others. The Manhattan Elevated railroad company, of New York are also seriously considering its adoption. For more than three years the Metropolitan company has been experimenting with the air motors and have spent about $1,000,000 on them. They now have 80 cars equipped for compressed air and after the last test on April 17, President Vreeland of the company said they were highly pleased and would at once adopt the new

> The air motors cars now in operating on the New York line, do not differ in appearance from the underground electric cars of the company. On each axle is mounted an iron clad motor, having two cylinders and cranks at right angles. One motor has two high pressure cylinders, 3 inches diameter and 6 inches stroke, and the other motor has two low pressure cylinders, 7 inches diameter and 6 inches stroke. Upon the crank shaft is a pinion about 9 inches in diameter, meshing into a 23-inch gear wheel mounted on the middle of the axle; the axle is straight, as used for electric motors, and the wheels are ordinary street car wheels. The motor consists essentially of a cast-iron basin, to which the two cylinders are bolted and in which all the moving parts are located.

The air reservoirs, in the shape of seamless steel The bottles, are under the seats of the car, and a pipe leads from them to a combined reducing and throttle valve, which reduces the storage pressure to the working pres-

The air on leaving the reducing valve passes through a coil kept hot by the heater to a temperature corresponding to the steam pressure of the hot water, and is then introduced into the high pressure cylinders, both of which are in one motor on one axle. The cars are equipped to run about 16 miles on one found in an out house back of the charge of air. It takes only about two minutes to charge a car, and the mileage capacity can be doubled, tripled or quadrupled by a corresponding multiplication of the air 'bottles" carried. The Argus has noticed that some places in the state are having, or are to have, free rural mail delivery. Now what is the reason Washtenaw cannot have the same thing round about Ann Arbor, at least? No better territory can be found in Michigan for a trial of free rural delivery. Why don't the authorities here get a hustle on them and see that we don't have to suffer the humiliation of bringing up the rear in this important advancement. It has been secured at Benton Harbor and Marshall and it would seem that Ann Arbor should stand as good a show as these towns, if the effort is only put forth. But it will not come without effort. The government appropriated $300,000 this year for this purpose, just twice the amount appropriated last year and Washtenaw might just as well have some of it expended here, and also the advantage to the surrounding communities of free delivery. Come now, Congressman Smith and Postmaster Pond, put your shoulders to the wheel and help this good cause along and the Argus will ever pray.

The petition further alleged that the decree signed March 31, 1899, was incomplete in that the total lands had not been extended and that at no time after the signing of the hands of the register had the amounts been extended and that on Saturday, April 29, there were no figures what ever inthe total column

Presecuting Attorney Kirk argued hat the court might make an amended decree directing the register to inset the figures. He said the recent decision of the supreme court in the Bay county case indicated in the opinion that the court did not attempt to say what the effect of such a correction would be that the proceedings in that case were to set aside a sale already made, while in this case there was a chance to correct the decree before a sale was made. Mr. Butterfield argued that the rolls His Boat Drifted Away While | had passed out of the hands of the

Millions of Property. On the Heirs Coming Forward a Will is Discovered in California Which is Pronounced Forged-A Very Strange

Mail Carrier W. J. Miller has recived a dispatch conveying the intelligence of the winning of a big will case which makes an aunt, Mrs. Chris W. Miller, of Dexter, a wealthy woman. There are many romantic features in the case. Mrs. Miller's maiden name was Allport and she had a half brother, John Allport, who went west when 16 years old and accumulated much mining propertry. The last time she saw him was when she was married, when he made her a present of $500. In the fall of 1896 he died but his brother and sisters did not hear of it until about a year afterwards. He left three sisters and one brother living and one sister who had been survived by a daughter. The three sisters are: Mrs. J. M. Farleigh, of Chicago, forelady in Mandel Bros.; Mrs. C. W. Miller, of Dexter, and Mrs. Caroline Kelly, of Butte, Mont. The brother is Devincey Allport, who lives near Howell. When the family heard of his death they sent Mr. Farleigh out to Montana to investigate and they found that the estate had been settled up and Mrs. Caroline Kelly, who represented that she was the only living heir, was in possession of all the property, that she had sold a number of lots and had taken the money in the banks. On application of the heirs the estate was reopened and Mrs. Kelly was prosecuted for perjury, the jury

Some time afterward, Mrs. Kelly's lawyer produced a will, abadly torn, worn and dirty document, which he said had been sent him from California by a man who was on his way to Alaska. This left all the property to Mrs. Kelly. The other heirs denounced the will as a forgery and the case has just been tried resulting in a victory for the heirs.

"Well, what of it?"

"I did not suppose that you would go

so far. "So far as what?"

"Why, haven't you read the papers?" "No; I never do. I am above that class of literature.

"Then, with your permission, I will read one to you.

"Go ahead; I am all attention." Mr. Mitchel seated himself in his most comfortable armchair, and Mr. Randolph, without removing his overcoat, sat in another. Taking a morning paper from his pocket he read the following:

"The inquest upon the body of the mysterious woman found murdered in the Thirtieth street apartment house was resumed yesterday at the coroner's office. Mr. Barnes, the well known detective, testified that he had been upon the Boston express at the time of the robbery of the jewels; that he had an interview with the woman at which she gave the name Rose Mitchel and made an appointment with him at her residence. He called at the time agreed upon-9 o'clock on the morning of the 3d-and discovered her lying in bed with her throat cut. One singular fact brought out by the detective's testimony is that the woman's name had been deliberately cut from every garment. This may indicate that Rose Mitchel is an assumed

"The doctors who performed the autopsy declare it as their opinion that the woman was attacked while she slept. Otherwise there would have been more blood stains found, as the jugular vein and carotid artery were both cut. They think that the assassin used an ordinary pocketknife, because the wound, though deep, is not very large.

'A curious story was obtained from the janitor. The woman Mitchel had been in the house about three weeks. She was not a tenant, but occupied the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Comstock, who are absent in Europe. The woman gave him a letter purporting to be written by Mrs. Comstock, instructing the janitor to allow the bearer to occupy the apartment until suited elsewhere, and also asking that the janitor's wife would see that she had proper attendance. The janitor did not doubt the authenticity of the letter, but it now appears from the testimony of a relative of the Comstocks, who is well acquainted with Mrs. Comstock's writing, that this letter is a forgery.

"After a little further evidence of no special importance the inquest was adjourned until today. It is plain that the detectives are all at sea in this case. A startling piece of evidence has now been obtained by a reporter which may serve as a clew. It is no less than the discovery of the lost jewels. It will be remembered that Mr. Barnes was on the train and ordered that the passengers should be searched. Nothing was found, from which it seemed safe to presume that there were two persons connected with the theft. One of these secured the plunder and handed it through a window of the car to his accomplice outside. A reporter went over the route yesterday, beginning his investigation in New Haven. He went the rounds of the hotels, endeavoring to discover if any suspicious person had been noticed in the city. At one of the last which he visited, which is about five minutes' walk from the railroad depot, the clerk remembered a man who did act strange-It seems that this man came into the hotel at about noon on the 3d, registered, asked that his satchel should be placed in the safe, went out and has not returned since. The reporter at once guessed that this was the missing satchel, and, so stating, the chief of police was sent for, and in his presence it was opened. In it was found a red Russia leather case containing unset jewels of such size and luster that one can well believe that they are worth $100,000, as claimed. That these are the missing gems is plainly indicated by the fact that the jewel case has the name of Mitchel stamped upon it. Unfortunately there was nothing about the satchel or in it which gives any clew to the thief himself. The clerk, however, remembers him distinctly, and from his description the detectives hope soon to have him under lock and key.

'What have you to say to that, Mitch-

"Why, it is just that kind of thing that made me give up reading the newspapers-a sensational description of a mysterious robbery and murder. Yet if one reads the papers he must submit to that almost every day.

"Do you mean that this particular case has no interest to you?

"Why should it interest me? Because I happened to be on the train and was compelled to submit to being searched by an order from a blundering detective?"

"There is more reason than that for attracting your attention. Any man with a grain of sense and with the knowledge of your wager must see your hand in

"My God, I don't know. You and I have been the best of friends ever since we first met. I have stood by you and believed in you in spite of all that your enemies have said against you. But now"-

"Well?" "Well, I don't know what to think. You bet me that you would commit a crime. In a few hours there is a robbery, and a little later a woman is killed in the very house where the Remsens lived. It is known—there is another account in another paper here—it is known that you were in that house for an hour after there a woman was heard to scream from that apartment where the corpse was found. Then here they find the jewels, and the case had your name on "The woman's name, you mean. The paper made that deduction, I think." That is true. I did not think of that. Of course it was her name, but don't you see I am all muddled up and excited?

I came here to ask you to say outright that you have had nothing to do with this thing.'

"That is impossible."

"What, you refuse? You will not claim that you are innocent? Then you practically admit that you are guilty?'

"I do not. I neither deny nor admit anything. Do you remember our wager? I told you then that this crisis would arise-that you would hear of some crime and come to ask me about it. I warned you that I would refuse to enlighten you. I simply keep my word. This was followed by a silence. Mr. Randolph seemed much disturbed. Jamming his hands into his pockets he went and looked out of the window. Mr. Mitchel looked at him for some minutes with a smile of amusement hovering about his lips. Suddenly he said: "Randolph, does your conscience trouto the police?" "I think it is my duty to do so. But I feel like a coward at the idea. It seems like betraying a friend." "Ah, you still count me your friend! Then, my dear friend-for I assure you I value your good will-I will show you how to act so as to satisfy your conscience and yet not injure me.

"I wish to heaven you would!" "Nothing easier. Go to Mr. Barnes and make a clean breast of all that you

"But that is betraying you to the po

"No; Mr. Barnes is not the police. He is only a private detective. If you remember, he is the very one about whom we were talking when the wager was made. You were boasting of his skill. It should satisfy you then to have him on my track, and it will satisfy me if you agree to talk with no other. Is it a bargain?

"Yes, since you are willing. I must tell some one in authority. It is impossible for me to withhold what may be the means of detecting a criminal.'

Mr. Randolph, upon leaving the hotel, went in search of Mr. Barnes. Meanwhile that gentleman was holding a conversation with Wilson.

"You say," said the detective, "that Mr. Mitchel gave you the slip again yesterday afternoon?"

"Yes; he doubled so often on his tracks on the elevated road that at last he eluded me, getting on a train which I failed to board. You see, it was impossible to tell, till the moment of starting, whether he would take a train or not. He would mix with the crowd and seem anxious to get on, and then at the last moment step back. I had to imitate him at the other end of the coach, and finally he got on just as the guard at my end slammed the gates."

'This was at Forty-second street?" "Yes: he took the down train."

"Did he notice you in any way?" "I suppose so, but no one would have gnessed it. He appeared entirely ignorant of the fact that he was followed, so far as watching me was concerned.'

You are not to blame. Go back to his hotel and do the best you can. Leave the rest to me. I will discover where it is he goes on these mysterious trips."

Left to himself Mr. Barnes' thoughts took this form: "Wilson is no match for Mr. Mitchel. and seek, or whether it is simply an intimation to me that he cannot be shadowed. If the latter—well, we shall see. Now let me think about those jewels I was. found in New Haven. They tally exactly with the description. Their discovery complicates the case once more. I had almost concluded that those in the safety vaults were the ones stolen and that as they really belong to Mr. Mitchel, as proved by his receipts, he stole them to win his wager. In this way he ran no risk, since, if the crime were brought home to him, he could not be imprisoned, though he would lose the bet. Now here is another set, evidently the right ones. Mr. Mitchel was plainly surprised at sight of the list which I found. I am sure he did not know of its existence. Therefore he may equally well have known nothing about this duplicate set | of jewels. In that case the occurrence of the train robbery on the very night of the wager may be simply a coincidence. He says that the dead woman was a blackmailer and that he gave her the bill of sale. If this line of argument is true, some one has followed this woman from France in order to rob her, after business of smuggling. Is that person

Brought face to face with Mr. Barnes, he felt confused and hesitated.

"Mr. Randolph, I believe," said the detective, glancing at the card which had been sent in. "Be seated. You have come to see me about this Mitchel case?' The rising inflection with which the last word was spoken seemed almost unnecessary to Mr. Randolph. For if the man could ask such a question he might as well have made it a positive statement. This assumption of knowl edge made him more than ever confident of the skill of detectives, and especially of the one before him.

"You know that?" said he. "Would you mind telling me how?' "We detectives are supposed to know everything, are we not?" This was said "Leading Journal" Has as Much with an affable smile, but the answer plainly indicated that Mr. Barnes preferred not to be interrogated. Mr. Randolph therefore concluded to hurry through with his unpleasant business.

"Mr. Barnes, I have a confession to make, and"-

"Thank you for your warning, but I and Lester Canfield. have come here that I may not be incriminated. The facts, in brief, are simply these." Then he narrated as accujotted down a few notes on a bit of paclusion he said:

Would you mind telling it to me?"
"I should be glad to do so." Mr. Ranwas fond of his friend, and therefore his theory was one which in a measu would excuse him. He was delighted to have the chance of confiding his views to the detective. "You see," he continned, "it is one of the most difficult things in the world to say who is and who is not perfectly sane. Some experts contend that nine-tenths of the people in the world are affected by mania in some form or other. I hold that any man who makes a collection of any kind of things, using them for other than their legitimate uses, is in a measure insane.

"Do you mean legally insane? That is to say, irresponsible?

"As to responsibility, I cannot say. But I think such a mania might tempt a man to an illegal act. I must explain my idea further. Postage stamps undoubtedly have a very important value. One who collects them after they have been canceled, paying many times their face value for them, is in my opinion somewhat crazy, since he pays a fictitions price for what has no intrinsic value.

"You might say the same thing of paintings. The intrinsic value represented in canvas and oil is little, yet thousands of dollars are paid for pictures."

BEET SUGAR BOUNTY.

Report of a Washtenaw Legislator on in Sixty Years.

The beet sugar question is not entirey new in this state. In 1839

Samuel A. Chapin, of Ypsilanti, as chairman of a legislative committee, reported in favor of the state loaning $5,000 to a small beet sugar factory built at White Pigeon. It covers four pages. The number of inhabitants in the estimated price of sugar are of interest at the present day.

"The select committee," says the report, the whom was referred the petition praying for a loan of money to forward operations in the manufacture address of his Paris jeweler. May he of sugar from the beet, report that the not have bought his set from that very committee is well satisfied that there man and may not this woman have have been erected large and substantial stolen the duplicate set recently and buildings and produced a large amount brought them to this country? Plainly of expensive machinery." The comthe Paris jeweler must be looked up. I mittee said: "The amount of money have his name, which I copied from the annually taken out of the state for this one article (common sugar,) and paid in a foreign market, is immense. The committee's estimate of the annual allowing her to accomplish the risky consumption of foreign sugar in the state, computing the number of inhabiour friend Thauret? Along this line of tants at 22,500, and the average argument we arrive at the conclusion amount of sugar consumed by each that Mr. Mitchel has not yet committed person at 20 pounds, making a total of 4,500,000 pounds, which, estimated at member this if I should exculpate him 16 cents, cost $720,000. This number from those already committed. But do in the report is printed in italics.

I do not think that the residents of this county should be sent elsewhere to settle their legal controversies unless it is apparent that justice cannot be secured at home. To grant these motions at least upon the present showing would in my opinion be a rebuke and a reproach to the high quality of our citizenship.

I think the motions should be denied without costs. E. D. KINNE.

HUNTING FOR HER LOST HUSBAND

An Ann Arbor Woman Found Insane on the Streets of Jackson.

SAID SHE WAS LOOKING FOR HER LOVER

She Was Mrs. Jennie Ward of Detroit st. This City.

Separated from Her Husband Eight Years Ago -She Has Worked at the Hay-Todd Company and Also at Housework and Was Thirty-Five Years of

Early Tuesday morning Patrolman Lewis found a woman of 35, well dressed, on the street, who said she came from Ann Arbor and was looking for her lover. The officer concluded she was crazy and took her to jail. Her name, she said was Jennie Ward, but at one time she was Eliza Halliday, and had lived at Stockbridge. - Detroit

Mrs. Jennie Ward has lived in this city for several years. Her present residence is at 503 Detroit st. She is about 35 years of age and does all sorts of house work for

It is now nearly eight years that she has been seperated from her husband, but not divorced. For sometime past she has acted strangely and the neighbors occupying the same house have several times commented upon it to others but the case did not seem so serious until Saturday when she insisted on taking her neighbors two children up town as she felt lonely.

Later she started for Ypsilanti and, although she did not say so, it was hinted that the purpose of this journey was to find her husband, and it was also understood that from there she would go to Pontiac. However, from the above dispatch it is quite possible that she left Ypsilanti for Jackson in quest of her husband.

There seems little doubt now but that she is demented. Recently she has been working at the Hay & Todd factory and drew $2 Saturday. She claimed that she did not have enough to eat, but when Officer Isbell entered her home after she was reported missing, he found a lot of meat, bread and other eatables and the furniture was all turned up-side down.

A Heavily Charged Coil of Electric Wire on a Street Corner Over Night.

Electricity is a dangerous agent in the hands of the ignorant or thoughtless. Tuesday evening the workmen on the D., Y. & A. A. electric railway who are putting in a new feed wire for the road on S. Main and Packard sts. shut off work at 6 o'clock and left a large coil of wire on Packard st., corner of Fourth, a few feet from the ground and within reach of children. It was soon found that it was charged with electricity evidently from induction and an electrical expert made a measurement of the amount of electricity and found that it carried 550 volts. In other words it was a live wire and as dangerous as is the trolley wire itself. If a child had grasped it, it might have been killed. Mayor Luick was summoned and hunted up the new marshal who stationed a watch until the company was forced to send a man to guard the wire. But for the fact that the wire was seen by parties who knew something about electricity, the papers might have been called upon this afternoon to chronicle a terrible death by

Why Women Are Nervous.

The frequent cases of nervous prostration or utter collapse of the nervous system under which women "go all to pieces," as the saying is, have caused much thought and investigation on the part of physicians.

Certain inorganic substances are well known to cause various forms of nervous diseases which are readily traced to the poisons producing them. Further research leads to the belief that alum is a prevailing cause of socalled nervous prostration, for the symptoms it produces on the nervous system after its absorption into the blood are very remarkable indeed. Experiments physiologically made upon animals by Orfila, Professors Hans Mayer, Paul Seim and others, show that alum frequently produces no visible symptoms for many days after its introduction into the body. Then follow less of appetite and other alimentary disturbances, and finally a serious prostration of the whole nervous system. The most prominent physicians now believe that "nervous prostration" and many affections of the nerves from which both men and women suffer are cause by the continued absorption of alum into the

It is probable that many medical men are unaware of the extent to which salts of alum may be introduced into the body, being under the impression that the use of aium in bread is prohibited. Alum, however, sstill used surreptitiously to some extent to whiten bread and very largely in making cheap kinds of baking powder. In families where baking Anna B. "He That Stays Does the Business."

All the world admires "staying power." On this quality success depends. The blood is the best friend the heart has, and "faint heart" never won anything. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best friend the blood ever had; it cleanses the blood of everything.

If you would be strong in the race of life and "do the business," you must "stay." Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the struggle easy. It gives clear, strong blood; hence perfect health ensues.

The firm manufactured about 50,000,000 of cigars in a year for several years and purchased stamps for about 5,000,000. The government soon discovered that most of their revenue stamps were made by themselves. The discovery was made when the government called in all the $100 U. S bills and it was then detected that some of the bills were counterfeits. The government agents ran down the counterfeiters and while doing this discovered that revenue stamps were being manufactured. Deputy Inspector Lemm, of Detroit, in one day got 10,000 of these present 44 men at work. They are cigars. At the same time he was running a cigar store. In looking over his stock he found that he himself had 3,000 of cigars bought from the firm. All of these were confiscated by the government as well as a great many more sold by the firm throughout this state and country.

Some Pertinent Questiens That Can Be Answered With One Reply.

Why is it that Ann Arbor with its suburbs, with a combined population of 12,000 there is only one medicinal preparation which gives statements from residents to back up its representations. Why is it that Doan's Kidney Pills do this inAnn Arbor, as well as every other city and town of any importance in the union? Why is it that there are advertised in every newspaper a dozen remedies and only one can supply local proof, local indorsation of its claims? The solution of the problem is simpe. Only one remedy has the curing and the staying power. Other remedies make all kinds of gigantic yet futile efforts to get local proof, but the attempt ends in producing a statement or two from places that as lar as Ann Arbor is concerned might as well be in the moon. Here in Ann Arbor proof which backs up the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills.

r. F. Wolter, of 1103 Forest avenue.

Mr. F. Wolter, of 1103 Forest avenue, carpenter, says: "Within the last two years I began to have trouble with my kidneys, and in spite of all I could do it continued and gradually grew worse. It seemed to be more of a weakness of the kidneys and a loss of control over the secretions. At times when my work necessitated my looking up or working over my head, I was taken with spells of dizziness. I tried different remedies but they did not give ment remedies but they did not gi any relief. When a friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at Eberbach & Son's drug store and began to use them. I felt better from the dignified judge, upon the bench the start and they did me more good were beaming with good nature and the start and they did me more good were beaming with good nature and the start and they did me more good were beaming with good nature and the prejudiced, but the attorneys the dignified judge, upon the bench the dignified judge, upon the dignified judge, upon the bench the dignified judge, upon the dignified judge, upon the bench the dignified judge, upon the bench the dignified judge, upon the bench the dignified judge, consider them to be a thoroughly reliable and honest kidney remedy."

He declared such persons had not employed every means through the public press and by means of personal interviews to stir up controversies in the political party to which they belong and caused it to split into factions. The deponent further declared his opponents in the political party to which he belongs have endeavored to accomplish a certain result and he has endeavored to accomplish a certain result; that he has no bitterness or animosity against those who may not have agreed with him as to his course in politics, that he is fully conscious that men do not always agree and that of necessity there will be rival factions and rival candidates in the same politi eal party. Mr. Judson denied there was any such feeling in the county as would prevent obtaining an impartial jury or rial of the cause. He said in his opinion his importance and influence have been greatly exaggerated and that most of the feeling that exists is on the part of dissappointed office seekers who exert little influence in the community which they encumber.

But the franchise through the village of Tecumseh has not been granted and the people are taking sides as to whether the proposed road shall be run a skeleton before, and now I am fleshy." through Chicago st. or not. As an example of this we extract the following from the Tecumseh Herald:

"When a foreign corporation, or still worse, a corporation still to be found. the Estate of Her Father Who Was desires the best street in Tecumseh for a passenger and freight railroad with no clause saying that cars shall be run oftener than three hours apart in the same direction and this for no compensation whatever, then it is time for every newspaper and every man to have an opinion and say no to any such proposition. As a matter of fact, Capt. Allen desires Tecumseh to bind herself to conditions which will last for two years, that he may be able to sell the franchise. No company should be given a franchise of any kind to use the streets of Tecumseh for any purpose without filing an indemnity bond of at least $20,000. Suppose at the end of two years, Mr Allen decides not to build this road what pay has Tecumseh for keeping other companies away from here for that length of time. Tecumseh desires to be a station on a long distance electric line, but no franchise should be given till there is a company that will give a bond to do as they agree. The council will certainly grant no franchise to a man for speculation and the Herald has no idea that Capt. Allen would give a bond for one

All this trouble would have been avoided had the powers that be started the proposed line from Ann Arbor. For years there has been talk along the tine of the road after it leaves Saline of a railroad line of some kind between Ann Arbor and Adrian. There are many people who have friends here who would have felt much more confidence that the line would be built and also that it would be well patronized and hence of more value to them when

But the Argus, which has managed to keep in close touch with electric railway matters from a news standpoint and has been tied up with no railway interest so that it has not dared to publish what it learns as quickly as it gets at the facts, may assure the Tecumseh Herald that it is mistaken in its intimation that Capt. Allen is seeking this franchise for speculative purposs. He is simply acting as attorney for Messrs. Glover and Hemphill and they intend building the road. No promoters will put up $20,000 bonds to build a road, for some unforseen finan cial difficulties or change in management of a road may so alter the plans that it may be no longer desirable to build the road as originally planned and as they are now making arrange-It is agreed by all bicycle manufacturers that the 1899 models represent the perfect wheel. Nature is the best

The treatment that works harmoniously with nature is scientific. This is the reason that Pe-ru-na is so uniformly suc

but it is all summed up in the word catarrh. Mrs. Carson, says: "I had been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion for a good many years, and became very much reduced in flesh; could not eat anything without the greatest distress afterwards. My food would raise, and my stomach became very bad and weak from long fasting, as I would rather not eat than to suffer with the after effects. When I did eat it caused me the greatest distress. "I tried every known remedy advertised for dyspepsia without the least benefit, until I got a bottle of Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin, and I had no faith in them when I got them, but after using them a day or two I began to feel better. I continued their use until I had taken six bottle of each, and now I can say l am a well woman. I can eat anything, sleep well, the distress my food caused me is entirely gone. I was

TAKER HOTEL.

The Plantiffs Claims Very Sensational but He Was Not Allowed to Testify as to the Matter.

At the opening of the circuit court Wednesday case No. 8, John N. W. Smith vs. Caleb Eaton was placed on trial. The claims of the plaintiff as stated by M. J. Lehman in his opening address to the jury were substantially as follows: On Feb. 5, '92, Smith was possessed of a life estate in a 120 acre farm in Superior, not far distant from the city of Ypsilanti. The farm was worth about $8,000. In addition to this, Mr. Smith had four cows, four calves, 60 chickens, 12 hogs, wheat, corn and other crops, of the total value of $1,000. Mr. Lehman charged Mr. Eaton with acquiring the remainder, which means the interest of the heirs in the farm, after Smith's death, by contriving and conspiring. As Smith knew Eaton and did not like him, Eaton used Edwin E. Bell, Roan Fletcher and Victor Samon to make the purchase of Smith. This they did by proposing to trade the hotel property known as the Whittaker tavern at Augusta. They represented the tavern as very valuable, worth some $3,000, and worked on the old mans' feelings by claiming that it would be much better for him to own property, than only to have a contingent interest. At last the transfer was made, Smith giving up his rights for the Whittaker tavern and $100. Mr. Lehman further charged that to influence Smith, peeping Toms appeared on Mr. Smith's farm, shots were fired into the window at night, a bullet landing in the top of his bedstead. This was all done to make him frightened and insecure. The Whittaker tavern, he was told, was very profitable, and he could make a good living there. It would be shown that the tavern was run down and not worth
