Twenty-four of he veterans decided to enlist and 16 Tecumseh is Waking Up to the Fact applications were received, making a total of 40, and lacking but eight of the minimum number required to keep the company in the National Guards. Those who wish to re-enlist or to join the company should leave their names with Lieut. Belser, who is charman of the recruiting committee.

Many of the enlistments of the state troops expired while the men were in the national service. General Order No. 2, just isused says: "To the end that the military service of the state may have the benefit of the experience of its men who served during the Spanish-American war-members of the Michigan National Guards or Michigan State Naval Brigade, who served with their organizations in the war with Spain and have been discharged from the state service by reason of expiration of term of enlistment, may be re-enlisted as if the expiration of the term of service.

It is to be hoped that all of the veterans of the Spanish war in the city will notify Lieut. Belser that they will re-enlist. The company has been provided with a good armory by the citizens of Ann Arbor and it is hoped that the company will be made up largely or veterans that it may be one of the crack companies of the state. There has been some talk about the Ann Arbor and Jackson line running on through to Saline, if the Ypsilanti-Saline line runs to Adrian, but there seems to be no real foundation for this desirable statement. The Daily Argus would be glad if this were possible but the Ann Arbor and Jackson road is not apt to branch out until some time after it gets its main line in good working order. The story that Ann Arbor is to be made a spur of the present road to Detroit the main line passing from Ypsilanti to Adrian, will undoubtedly only come true if another line is built from here to Detroit through Superior, four miles shorter than the present line.

AFTER THE MINISTERS.

Who Fail to Promptly Report Their Marriages.

Complaint is being made in the county clerks office that in many cases the ministers who solemnize marris ages, are very remiss in making returns. The last quarterly report had to be held 10 days before it could be forwarded to the state department. It was necessary in some cases to write the bride grooms to find out the ministers name and then write to the ministers. The clerk calls attention to the following notice on the blanks to clergymen and justices of the peace officiating at marriages in Michigan

"The law requires that the clergy man or magistrate officiating at a marriage shall make his return to the county clerk who issued the license within ten (10) days after the ceremony. For neglect to make such return, the clergyman or magistrate prisonment, or both.

Wells that he must cough-up $400 for campaign expenses, if he expects to be the coming post master of Ysilanti. The new Ceaser denied that he ever made any such break. He said it was manufactured by the Argus and contained no truths. He declared that he fixed no definite sum, that he was too foxy to be caught, that way, that he simply told a candidate he would have to do the liberal thing in the interest of the republican campaign tund. When asked by the reporter what he considered a liberal campaign contribution would be for the would be incumbent of the Ypsilanti post office, he declined to state, saying what would be a liberal disgorgement for one candidate might not be for another. He left the notion with the reporter, however, or at least it was the reporters' conclusion from his remark, that $400 was not a high enough figure for the particular candidate be expects to land in the office. At any rate he claimed to be certain that he nad never told any candidate that the contribution must be just $400. PARDON-GIESE.

A Pretty Wedding on Snmmit Street Last Evening.

A pretty home wedding occurred Wednesday at the residence of Mr and Mrs. Fredrick Giese, 223 Summit st., it being the marriage of their daughter Mary, to Frank Pardon. The ceremony was solemnized in the north parlor, Rev. Alexander Nicklas, of Zion's church officiating. The bridesmaid was Miss Clara Pardon, sister of the groom and Henry Lindenschmid acted as groomsman. The bride's gown was cream silk and the bridesmaid was also dressed in white They both carried a bunch of roses. After the ceremony the large number of invited guests sat down to a sumptuous supper. The rooms were prettily decorated with flowers. Both Mr. and Mrs. Pardon have a large circle of friends who showed their regards for the estimable young couple by remembering them with numreous presents both costly, useful and ornamental. Particularly noticeable was the valuable gift of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Babcock with whom Mrs. Pardon has lived for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Pardon have the best wishes of their friends to accompany them through life. It was a late hour before the happy company dispersed for their home.

FELL INTO A CISTERN.

Remained There Several Hours.

Pinckney, Mich., July 18 .- A very peculiar accident occurred today to Mrs. John Birnie, who lives three miles west of this place, which came nearly proving fatal. While in the act of drawing water from a cistern her feet slipped from under her, throwing her forward head first into the cistern. It is not known just when she fell, as the family were away at the time and she was not discovered until noon, when Mr. Birnie returned home for his dinner. The neighbors were summoned and after several hours' work succeeded in drawing her back to life. She is about 50 years old and lies in a critical condition, having been in the water several hours.

At last it begins to look as though there is to be no war after all between England and the Transvaal. The Boers are reported to yield certain points which will make a compromise possible. The Tarnsvaal auhorities now appear to be ready to permit naturalization of bona fide residents tried to do toward the disintegratation under restrictions similar to those which prevail in the United States. This is wisdom on the part of the Boer authorities, for the utterances of Colonial Secretary Chamberlain indicated that he was preparing English public opinion for war, by making war appear inevitable. The only hope for the Boer is to square himself with the demands of the progress of the age.

When Wedemeyer was an aspirant for congressional honors, Helber filled his editorial columns with statements that firmly conveyed the idea that unless the congressional convention nominated Wedemeyer the republican party could not expect any support from his paper. Wedemeyer was the senior warden in the Judson lodge. The convention ended with the nomination of Hank Smith and Helber walked out talking Build a Club House Between Ann both German and English against the Arbor and Ypsilanti-The Building astion. Judson stood pat on the matter of census enumerators. But the invitations had gone forth. All the congressional committee were to be there. Ex-Gov. Rich and others of state prominence nad promised to come. When the time for the function arrived there was a preponderance of the anti-Judson crowd. Judson, Canelfid or none of the most prominent of the "rough riders" with the exception of Pete Lehman, Prof. Johnson and Tom Mingay were present. Judson had still stood pat. Helber took it as a snub and the incident gave rise to the defiance of the boss of Washtenaw county. The fight started. Peace became impossible. The first gun has been fired.

"DEATH IN THE POT."

"Death in the pot." That sentence "Death in the pot." That sentence condenses the story of a tragedy. A little family gathering. A fine dinner cooked in the large copper kettle long disused, and the entire family poisoned by the accumulated verdigris. The story by the accumulated verdigris. was told by the newspapers from one end of the land to the other. But it was soon forgotten. The moral of it is, that the purest of food, put into a foul vessel instead of ministering to life may become a minister of death.

If the stomach is diseased it is like the poisonous kettle, which taints everything that goes into it. The symptoms are irregular appetite, undue fullness after eating, distressed feeling in the stomach, of fluttering and sinking sensations, pal pitation, dizziness, ringing in ears, sour or bitter risings and constipation. Not all these symptoms may be present at the same time, but any of them shows dis-ease in the digestive or alimentary tract.

The intimate relation of the stomach to the blood, heart, liver and lungs makes it a medical maxim in exploring the causes of obscure diseases to "start with the stomach." It is upon this principle that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery effects so many and such remarkable cures. It cleanses the stomach and the system is cleansed. It increases the action of the blood making glands, and the body is enriched by the purified blood. It strengthens the digestive or nutritive organs and these strengthen the whole body by increasing the quantity and quality of its nourishment. It carries off the poisonous, effete matter. In this way it re-establishes health, banishing the bodily aches, which are but symptoms of the stomach's condition.

All medicine dealers sell "Golden Medical Discovery." If they try to substitute something else, it is because "something else" pays better. Insist on "Golden Medical Discovery" if you want to be cured.

Northville, Mich., July 16.—Mrs. of insecticides as Lester Lyke, who was assaulted by a tramp Saturday afternoon, at her home Blue Vitriol near the Washtenaw county line, recovered sufficiently to give a lucid explanation of the affair today. She says a tramp called about 2 o'clock and demanded something to eat. She offered to get it whereupon the tramp insisted upon entering the house, and apon refusal to let him come in he hauled off and deliberately knocked her down. She fell inside the house and from the city. Neighbors were quickly aroused and while they were able to track him in FRESH AND SALT MEATS AND the damp ground to the woods, their search further is as yet in vain. It is thought he is still in hiding there or in the berry na shes adjoining.

The Lykes live about four miles west of the village near the Washtenaw county line. Mrs. Lyke describes her assaulter as a large, thick-set fellow, wearing brown clothes and had sandy whiskers. CHAPTER XIV.

AN INTERRUPTED WEDDING. During the time spent by Mr. Barnes in the south his spies in New York discovered little or nothing against the persons whom they had been charged to detective the actions of all had been most uninteresting. The usual round of social affairs, the customary number of theater or opera parties, the regular afternoon teas-in fact, the ordinary routine life of the man or woman of fashion was all that could be observed. Yet of course these weeks did not pass without any occurrence of note. The chief one perhaps was the naming of the day upon which the wedding of Mr. Mitchel and Miss Remsen was to occur. This was May 5, the very day upon which Mr. Barnes would reach New York with Mr. Neuilly.

Thus fate seemed hurrying on a climax which was to occur on the wedding day. In New Orleans a detective was seeking evidence upon which he hoped to convict a man of the heinous crime of murder, while in New York a beautiful woman was bestowing her faith upon this same man, and, with the assistance of many fingers, preparing to bedeck tion. Meanwhile the man himself acted most unconcernedly. He seemed to censider himself beyond the risk of danger, and he accepted his happiness as does one who had honorably earned it. Of much interest to us, in the light dolph, brightening up. "You mean you of fast approaching events, was the curious conduct of Dora Remsen during this period. Randolph noted with growing uneasidisturbed him most was that after the greatest amount of time spent and wasted in seeking some flagrant defect in the man's character he was at last compelled to acknowledge to himself that he had nothing against Mr. Thauret except a prejudice. But that prejudice was as great if not greater than ever. He determined at length to speak to Mr. Mitchel about it, and did so one afternoon when the rooms were crowded, his rival being as usual the center of an attentive group.

"Mitchel," he began, "how the deuce did that fellow Thauret get into this "Dora met him somewhere, I believe.

"Why? Can you ask that?"

"Can I? Why, certainly I can. I did ask you— Why?"

"I declare, Mitchel, you are either as blind as a bat or else you have eyes on-

I must admit I do not see the danger. What is it?"

"Well, what then?"

"What then? You would provoke a saint. You talk as coolly about that child's throwing herself away on a-a nobody—as though we were discussing a shot at billiards.'

"Randolph, my friend, let me give you a bit of advice. When a man wishes to marry a girl, there are two important rules which he must observe, and both of them I believe you have neglected.

'What do you mean?"

"Before I explain let me ask you a question. Am I right in supposing that you wish to marry Dora yourself?" 'Well, that is rather pointed. However, I will admit the truth. I would be happy to have her love." "Very well. I will tell you those two rules. The first is, 'Never speak ill of your rival.' The second is, 'Don't be too late asking for the young lady.'" Randolph looked at Mr. Mitchel a moment intently, then offered his hand, which was grasped warmly. He said simply, "I thank you," and walked over to the group where Dora was. After awhile, taking advantage of an opportune lull, he leaned over her and said in an undertone:

"May I have a few words of conversation with you?"

She looked up at him, evidently sur prised at his tone, and asked:

"Is it important?"

"Very," he replied succinctly, and excusing herself to the company she permitted him to lead her into the next room, where she sat beside him on the sofa, to which he invited her with a motion. After a brief silence, during which each thought intently, he began: "Miss Dora, I wish you to listen to me, if you please, to the end. I think you know that I love you." He paused just a moment, while she trembled slightly, blushed, and drooped her head. He continued: "I have never told you this before in words, I know, but you are a woman and must have read my heart long ago. You are all so clever at that sort of thing. I am only a man, and I have not been able to read yours at all. I really do not know whether you care for me or not. Once I thought that you did, but of late-but no matter. I will not go into that. In brief, then, I have only to say that it would make me supremely happy to know that watch. Indeed from the standpoint of a | you would some day be my wife. In exchange I offer you a lifelong devotion. And now-I think-that is all I have to say. Dora-little sweetheart-do you, could you trust yourself to me?"

He had gently taken her hand while he spoke, and the fact that she had neither resisted nor withdrawn it had encouraged him to the more affectionate terms which he used at the end of his love speech. She hesitated awhile, then gently disengaging her hand and looking at him with just a suspicion of a tear in her eye she said almost in a whisper:

"Do you care very much?"

"Very much! I cannot tell you how much." He tried to recapture her hand, but she eluded him. Again she asked a question:

"Money is not an object to you in this?'

"Miss Remsen, you insult me." "No, no!" she said quickly. "You misunderstand. I did not mean my herself in bridal finery for his delecta- money. I can't explain, yet you must

She may ill treat him, she may ignore him, it mat-

But invariably the recollection of that one moment, when she had seemed in that indistinct, indescribable way to have yielded her whole self, her whole soul to him, would flash across his mind, and at once his reason was silenced, and he would say:

Then he asked her gently, very gently, whether she had ever thought upon the subject herself, and whether she had felt a yearning for the companionship of one who would be all in all to her. His pleading was very pretty to listen to, and she heard him as though much impressed, but her reply was not exactly what he evidently hoped it would have been.

"Oh, yes," said she, "I have thought of all that in a vague sort of way. But, you see, I have been in love with my beautiful Queen for so long that I cannot imagine a life without her. Thus matters stood when the day dawned upon which the marriage was o occur. Everything was bustle and onfusion at the home of the Remsens. The bridesmaids arrived early, helped to deck the bride, and then stood around in delighted admiration. Dora was in ecstasies. Two magnificent bouquets had been sent to her, one entirely of carnation pinks, from Mr. Randolph and the other a fine assortment of cut flowers, among which were three beautiful calla lilies, tied with long white satin ribbons. These were the gift of Mr. Thauret. She stood admiring the flowers for a few moments, then tenderly untied the pinks, and, taking a few f each color, made a small bouquet, which she pinned just at the opening of her dress near the throat. Thus they were near enough to exhale a fragrance of which she would be continually conscious. Just before leaving the house, however, she took the callas and carried hem with her in her gloved hand.

I relatives. think you know that you may trust me to keep the engagement. Now, gentle-men, we will proceed." Saying which, he and his friends filed out of the room and down the aisle of the church, much to the relief of the immense throng awaiting them, leaving Mr. Barnes utterly discomfited. The ceremony then proceeded without further delay, and in nalf an hour Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Mitchel were taken in their carriage to the Fifth Avenue hotel. Mr. Barnes did not wait to see them leave the cathedral but hurried away almost immediately after having read the document which Mr. Mitchel had handed to him. This was a certificate of marriage dated the day before, and performed at the maydetective had for stopping the marriage the telegram from Sefton had enabled Mr. Mitchel to once more outwit Mr. Barnes by simply allowing a civil contract to antedate the religious ceremony.

CHAPTER XV.

MR. MITCHEL EXPLAINS A FEW THINGS. Immediately upon his arrival in New York Mr. Barnes went to his office. Here he was slightly surprised to find "Well," said he tersely.

"I came here," said the girl, "so that I could report to you the minute you got here. There is no time to lose. Why, what is up?"

"Your plan about my getting information from the East Orange postoffice did not work. The man said that, though he would like to serve you, he was afraid it might be construed into tampering with the mails; that you would need an order from the postmaster general. I went to work then on the other line and began a systematic examination of every house in the place. It was hard work, but at last I found the child. You don't want details now, because she has been taken away again. Mitchel went down yesterday and brought her to New York.

"Why did you not follow him and see where he took her?"

"I did, and this time I am sure he did not suspect that I was after him. He took the child to the Remsens." "To the Remsens? What can that mean?"

"I don't know. But Mitchel and Miss

Remsen are to be married at St. Patrick's cathedral at 10 o'clock this morn-

"Not if I can stop it," replied the detective, and he hastened up to the church with the result told in the last

Promptly at 2 o'clock Mr. Barnes presented himself at the Fifth Avenue hotel accompanied by Mr. Neuilly. They were asked to go up to Mr. Mitchel's apartments, and there they were greeted by that gentleman as affably as though they had been of his wedding party. Indeed he began the conversation in rather a jocular way, saying:

"Ah! Mr. Barnes, delighted that now I can entertain you more at my leisure. This morning, you see, I was in a great hurry. You called at a very inopportune time, and I am afraid that I was rather abrupt.'

"Mr. Mitchel, I am not in the humor for nonsense. This is a very serious visit, I assure you. This gentleman is Mr. Neuilly of New Orleans, and he has come all this distance to aid the cause of justice." (To be continued)

WILL RUN GERMAN DAY.

Expected the Saline-Ypsi Road Will be Completed Then.

Saline, Mich., July 15 .- (Special to Daily Argus). - The master mechanic of the Saline-Ypsilanti road informs us that the road will be completed by Aug. 17, when Washtenaw will celebrate German Day here. The matter of building a bridge over the Ann Arbor road or going a little out of the way and avoid the hill is still in dis-

The car on the road from Ypsilanti to Saline now rups as far as Harwood Corners. It passed Supervisor Case's house for the first time yesterday. Trips are made every 50 minutes, and a number of Ypsilantians rode out to see the country yesterday. The overhead crossing over the Ann Arbor tracks will be a costly job, as it will either require a long bridge or the buying of about five acres as a right of way and one of the farmers who would have to sell expresses his unwillingness

Dr. Miles' Nervine A REMEDY FOR THE Effects of Tobacco.

HE excessive use of tobacco, especially by young men is always injurious and undoubtedly shortens life materially. Mr. Ed. C. Ebsen, compositor on the Contra-Costa News, Martinez, Cal., writes; "I have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and received much benefit from it. I was troubled with nervousness, dizzy spells and sleeplessness, caused by the use of tobacco and stim-ulants. I took Dr. Miles' Nervine with marvelously good results, allaying the dizziness, quieting the nerves, and enabling me to sleep and rest, proving in my case a very beneficial remedy." Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is especially adapted to restoring the nervous system to its normal condition under such circumstances. It soothes, heals and strengthens. Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and
