

EIGHT STUDENTS PUT IN JAIL

For the Disturbances of Last Night.

IT COST THEM $117.04

Patrolman Isbell and One Student Were Injured In The Row.

A mob of 500 students gathered at the campus last night to indulge in the annual Hallowe'en celebration. Howling and giving the U. of M. yell became monotonous, so the gang ventured outside and made a raid on the walks and fences in front of the Consins & Hall and Condon properties on S. University ave.

The special police gathered in the ringleader, a young man from Flint, Mich. He was started for the jail. The mob of 400 students followed and the police were the objects of a rapid fire of mud balls for the three-quarters of a mile distance to the bastille. The student was finally landed in jail, notwithstanding the cries "Abas le police," "Mob 'em," "Rescue him," "Consquez cops," etc. Sheriff Gillen told the mob that he would release the prisoner as soon as the crowd dispersed on condition that he would appear tomorrow at the police court, and the mob adjourned in a body to some other part of the city.

Marshal Gerstner, however, wanted some security for the fellow's appearance, and was walking him around to get it when it was reported that the gang of students were committing more depredations. The Flint student was hustled back to jail.

The students, on their way back to the campus, captured a piano box in front of the Ann Arbor Music Co.'s store. When they reached Thayer st a raid was made on some lumber on the property belonging to Ald. Hamilton.

Then things took a more serious turn. Four students were arrested and were headed for the jail. Somebody hit Patrolman Isbell over the head with a picket, cutting an ugly gash in his scalp. He dropped and his prisoner escaped.

"Mob 'em!" yelled the students. A stone struck Deputy Fred Gillen on the head. The officers drew revolvers to keep the lawless crowd back, and they threatened to use them. The four men were placed in the jail, but still the students kept yelling on Main st.

Thereupon the officers commenced to fill up the vacant cells. A student would be grabbed and taken into the bastille. One fellow resisted and, jerking away, started to run. He stumbled and fell heavily on the flag walk on Main st. He was picked up insensible and taken to the hospital. Early this morning he left there and the authorities deny that they know who he is or where he came from.

Altogether eight students spent the night in jail.

The officers split up the bunch, taking four of the students to Justice Doty and four to Justice Duffy.

They gave their names as Frank Thomas, George Jackson, Frank Whitlark, Charles E. Miller, Charles Anderson, Bert J. Thompson, I. K. Bod and Frank Brooks. All the names were assumed ones, as it meant expulsion to them if their identity became known to the professors. They all pleaded guilty, and the justices fined them each $10 and $4.63 cents costs, making a total of $117.04 that the students had to pay for their "fun" of last evening.

Some of them did not have the ready coin, but they found willing friends to dig it up for them. In the case of "I. K. Bod," who was a poor high school student and who seemingly had no friends in the court room, a 1900 lit stepped up and handed him the required amount. "I. K. Bod" did not know the man who befriended him, but took his address and promised to pay him back. "That's all right," said the other, "I didn't want you to go to jail."

RELATIVE OF SAMUEL J. TILDEN

DANIEL S. TILDEN DIED AT HIS HOME HERE YESTERDAY.

He Had Conducted a Summer Resort Near Port Huron For Several Years.

Daniel S. Tilden, a relative of Samuel J. Tilden, the presidential candidate of 1876, died at his home 608 Monroe st. yesterday, of heart disease. He was 66 years of age.

He was quite wealthy, and for a number of years conducted a summer resort near Port Huron.

The remains will be taken to Detroit tomorrow morning in a funeral car.

WILLING TO REMIT THE JUDGMENT

In the case of Mary J. Tubbs vs. Hannah Higgins, the Dexter case in which the defendant got a judgment of $25 against the plaintiff, a most unusual termination in a suit, the plaintiff made a motion for a new trial on the ground that the jury had no right to render such a verdict and also that the court failed to discharge the jury after being requested to do so by attorneys on both sides.

Cavanaugh & Wedemeyer now file a record in court in which they remit the $25 judgment.

Randall & Jones maintain that their motion for a new trial still stands.

FIRST TO PAY INHERITANCE TAX

The Olsaver Estate in Webster Has That Distinction.

MUST PAY $180 TAX

That Being 1 Per Cent on All Over $5,000 of the Personal Property.

The new state law in regard to inheritance taxes has gone into effect. It provides that in most all cases of bequeathing personal property there shall be a tax of one per cent, over and above amounts of $5,000. This is payable to the county treasurer.

The first estate affected in Washtenaw county is the Olsaver estate in Webster. There was $23,000 of personal property, which will make it obligatory in Mary O. Bennett, the legatee, to pay one per cent. on $18,000 or $180 tax.

I might be said that executors are personally liable if the tax is not paid.

CHANGES IN THE SANITARY MILK CO.

THE DARLINGS SELL OUT TO THE TRAVIS.

And John Travis Takes The Position of Secretary and Treasurer.

Dr. C. G. Darling and U. G. Darling have sold out their interests in the Sanitary Milk Co. to the Travis brothers. U. G. Darling has, in consequence, resigned his position as secretary and treasurer, and his place is taken by John Travis.

HASN'T HAD ONE OF HER "SLEEPS" YET

WHAT DR. HERDMAN THINKS OF THE CLEMENSMITH CASE.

Two Other Very Peculiar Cases Which Were Successfully Treated Here.

The case of Mary Clemensmith, the Coldwater girl who sleeps for three or four days at a time, is a most interesting one and the physicians at the hospital are anxiously awaiting a return of one of these sleeps in order to study the characteristics more thoroughly.

Dr. Herdman says that her trouble is undoubtedly due to some nervous disorder. "All we know about her case is what she herself says," he remarked to the Argus. "She told me that during her long sleep of 30 days, she could be roused and would be conscious for a moment as to what was going on about her, but she would immediately drop back into sleep again. I should say that it was a cataleptic state, and she may be here three months before she can be called cured of her trouble. I am simply treating her with tonics to restore the normal condition of the nerves.

"Did I ever have an exactly similar case? No, none of these cases are exactly alike. Last year I had a case of a young man, apparently strong, who would drop into a sleep just as soon as he sat down, and the only way he could keep awake was to walk around or do some manual labor. The year before, a young lady came to me. Her case was very peculiar. If she happened into a warm room she would fall asleep and then somnambulistic traits would crop out. Both of these cases were permanently cured. I think we will be able to help Miss Clemensmith."

FOUND IN THE RIVER

Body of a Man Found in The Huron.

PROBABLY NAMED COOK

Although a Bystander Identified Him as Hayes, Worker on Saline Electric Line.

Thursday about 10:30 o'clock the body of a man was discovered in the race down at the Ypsilanti water works, lodged against the gate where it was prevented from being carried further by the current. It was discovered by Albert Thayer, the engineer, at the power house. News of the find was telephoned up town, and Constable Ross, Undertaker McElcheran and a number of others immediately repaired to the scene. The body was pulled out of the water and laid upon the floor inside the building. The remains were evidently those of a laborer and a man 50 years of age. He wore heavy, coarse shoes, brown overalls, a checkered shirt and a coat and vest badly worn. He wore a closely cropped, sandy beard and had a slight bald spot at the crown of his head. He was probably about five feet six inches in height and probably weighed about 140 pounds.

A young man by the name of C. P. Spencer thought he recognized him as one Michael Hayes, with whom he worked on the Saline electric road when it was being built. Spencer looked the body over carefully and examined the clothing and hat and was confident it was the man he had known as Hayes. Hayes drove a team for M. J. Griffin, the contractor of Detroit, and was, according to Spencer, a hard drinker.

The pockets were searched for evidence as to his identity. Two envelopes, one containing a letter, were found. They were both directed to Henry Cook Manchester, Mich. They had been forwarded from there to Garsa Lake, and from Grass Lake to Ann Arbor. One was mailed from Moodus, Conn., and the other from Gem, Idaho. The one from Idaho contained a letter written on Sept. 29. It was received at Manchester on the 11th of October, forwarded to Grass Lake and then to Ann Arbor, being received at Ann Arbor on Oct. 19. The letter was signed by J. J. Cook, who addressed Henry Cook as "Dear Father." The letter contained an inquiry about Hayes, Cavanaugh and Daley, who are said to be contractors. There was nothing else found on the body by which it could be identified. There was no money upon the remains. It is thought that he may have fallen into the river while intoxicated. An inquest will be held this afternoon and in the meantime something more definite may be learned as to the man's identity. It is thought he had not been in the water more than 24 hours.

Later.—It has been discovered that the man found in the river was Henry Cook, an inmate of the county house, who escaped yesterday.

SETTLED UP TWO CASES

D. Y. & A. A. RY. PAID THE JUDGMENT IN EACH.

Charles Brandt Gets $75 For Personal Injuries and A. H. Holmes $40 For a Horse.

The D. Y. & A. A. railway settled up its cases instituted by Charles Brandt for personal injuries and Alfred H. Holmes for damages sustained by blotting out the life of one of his horses. The cases were tried in the justice court, and the plaintiffs were awarded $75 and $40 respectively. The railway company appealed to the circuit court. The company has paid the judgments, and the cases are discontinued.

CALLED TO MOREHEAD, MINN.

REV. HENRY P. HORTON, OF ST. ANDREWS PARISH.

Has Received a Call From a Minnesota Parish to Become Their Rector.

Rev. Henry P. Horton, the efficient assistant minister of St. Andrew's parish, has received a call from the parish at Morehead, Minn., to become their rector. Mr. Horton has not yet decided whether or not he will accept the call.

OPPOSITION TO HERBST AFFIDAVIT

Cavanaugh & Wedemeyer have filed an affidavit in opposition to Mr. Herbst's application for the removal of John R. Miner as referee in the Jos. Geromiller case.

They set forth that Mr. Herbst has known all the time everything in relation to Mr. Miner's connection with the Building and Savings Association, and that he agreed upon Mr. Miner at the trial when the question of a referee came up.

GROWTH RETARDED BY ELECTRICITY

Dr. Herdman Established It Could be Increased.

IS NOW EXPERIMENTING

To Show That an Excess of Application Will Have Opposite Effect.

Prof. W. J. Herdman has now completed his scientific research as to the result of electricity upon the growth of animals. He has satisfied himself beyond any doubt that animals subjected to an electrical field can be made to grow more rapidly than the same animals when not surrounded by the influences of an electrical atmosphere.

Some of the time the animals used in his experiments were rabbits and at other times guinea pigs. As soon as the animals were old enough to be separated from their mother, they were divided into bunches as nearly alike in age and weight as possible. The two bunches were placed in conditions of living in all respects similar except that one bunch was treated in a cage through which an alternating electric current passed for a period of six hours each day. When the time expired for the animals to get their full growth, it was found that the "electrically" treated animals had gained from 18 to 24 per cent at the end of each succeeding week.

This has been the stimulating effect and Prof. Herdman has deduced the averages to show that the limit of the time of treatment, or daily application should be about two hours.

He has lately been investigating the depressing effect by applying a stronger and more lasting current and the results he is obtaining are just as interesting. The growth of animals can be retarded as well as it can be increased.

Said Dr. Herdman to the Argus: "Why experiments show that the animals will have an increase up to a certain point and then the curve will decline rapidly when treated for the depressing effect. I have not made up the average yet but the growth can certainly be retarded."

Dr. Herdman has no doubt but that human beings subjected to similar treatments will show similar results but the difficulty in getting "material" for the experiments is obvious.

STRUCK BY A STRAY BULL T.

MRS. HARRY BOSSOH WAS THE VICTIM.

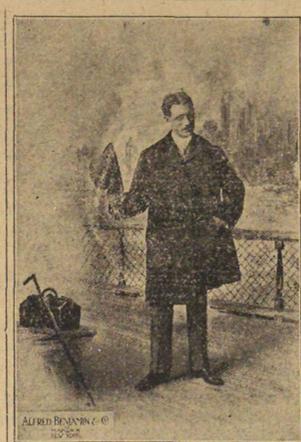

The Bullet Passed Through Her Dress But The Wound Is Not Dangerous.

While Mrs. Harry Bossoh, wife of an employe of Sam Burchfield, was walking on Ashley st. yesterday afternoon, a stray bull coming from somewhere struck her in the leg. The bullet went through her dress, but it did not have sufficient force to make a dangerous wound. No gun report was heard and there is no means of knowing just who made the careless use of firearms.

THE ARGUS DEMOCRAT AND UPSILONI WEEKLY TIMES.

PUBLISHED BY The Democrat Publishing Company. D. A. HAMMOND, President. EUGENE K. FRUEBAUFF, Vice-President. S. W. BEAKES, Secy. and Treas.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY for $1.00 per year strictly in advance.

Entered at the Postoffice in Ann Arbor, Mich as second-class mail matter.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1899.

There appears to be a great deal of fear in the Ohio republican fold over the vote the golden rule candidate for governor is going to pull. He has invaded the "western reserve" and it is said there is a disposition among the employees of the rolling mills there to vote for Jones. This group of counties gave the republican candidate for governor in 1897, 17,000 majority, and it is feared the man without a party may get votes enough here to wipe out this majority and thus greatly endanger the republican majority in the state.

According to the New York Journal, the democrats of Ohio are looking an unmerciful thrashing in the face because they have abandoned the "sound democratic policy of expansion and have stupidly allowed themselves to be put in a position which no American party has ever occupied without ruin—the position of encouragement of armed resistance to the national government." Yet, in Nebraska, John P. Altgeld, than whom the Journal holds there is no greater American, makes this same anti-imperialism the all important plank of his platform. There are opinions and opinions.

It is said, President, McKinley will ask congress for an expression of its policy concerning the Philippines. The president desires a declaration of purpose to maintain permanent sovereignty there at whatever cost, with a promise of self government within the limits of their fitness after the Filipinos have laid down their arms.

Such a declaration would clear up the situation and undoubtedly the hands of the administration. That there will be a fight over the question of permanent retention of sovereignty, to which proposition the president is committed, seems certain.

Yesterday, by invitation of William Jennings Bryan, ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld made his appearance in the Nebraska campaign, delivering a set speech of 10,000 words. It was devoted entirely to anti-imperialism. Not once did he allude to his favorite topic, "government by injunction," or the Chicago platform. In all those ten thousand words there was not one single mention of 16 to 1. John P. Altgeld framed the democratic platform of three years ago. He is today close to the democratic leader, is campaigning Nebraska in his interest. What, then, is the significance of his speech of yesterday? Let him who runs read.

Englishmen who do not accept the doctrine that everything done by the government during time of war is altogether right and above criticism, are having as much abuse heaped upon them as are American citizens who do not accept the dictum that everything in the policy of President McKinley is dictated and directed by Providence. Lord Rosebery, in a recent speech on the Transvaal war, said that there were nations watching with eagerness every trip, every stumble and what is much more, every catastrophe and disaster that may overtake British arms, and he begged the nation to present a solid front. Yet, Lord Charles Beresford, speaking of Lord Rosebery, declared him largely responsible for the Transvaal's resistance and the present war. In the same way some of the ablest, purest and most patriotic American citizens, who differ with the administration relative to Philippine matters, are charged with responsibility for the insurrection there. This is most unjust. Such persons are undoubtedly as patriotic as those who direct the affairs of government.

Given Up

to die several times, yet I am spared to tell how I was saved," writes Mrs. A. A. Stowe, 237 N. 4th St., San Jose, Cal. "I had valvular heart trouble so severe that I was pronounced 'gone' two different times. The valves of my heart failed to work properly, and circulation was so sluggish that the slightest exertion produced fainting. 'There is no hope' said my physician, so I decided to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and the result I consider miraculous. I am satisfied it saved my life."

DR. MILES' Heart Cure

is sold by all druggists on guarantee first bottle benefits or money back. Book on heart and nerves sent free. Dr. Miles Medical Company, Elkhart, Ind.

Those who direct the government are of the people, men in all ways similar to their fellows, given the direction of affairs for the time being for the people. They are no more infallible than the people, nor are they above legitimate criticism. In fact, the doings of a government during and immediately preceding a war deserve more criticism than at other times, for the reason that the step is taken in an atmosphere of passion and excitement and carried on in the same spirit. Questions of going to war and carrying on war are not, as a rule, decided in cold blood and cool calculation as to consequences. There would appear to be, therefore, room and cause for difference of opinion among honest and patriotic men as to government policy even during the progress of war. In a government of the people, they are certainly quite as deeply interested in its policy as are those who temporarily direct that policy.

The international commercial congress in its session at Philadelphia revived interest in the project of a canal across Central America, connecting the waters of the Pacific and the Atlantic, by discussing the comparative advantages of the Panama and Nicaraguan routes. The time now appears to be opportune for undertaking this project, if the government of the United States contemplates the construction and control of this great water way. The concession by the Nicaraguan government to the Maritime Canal Co. expired this month, and our government would experience no trouble through having to deal with that company. There is now no necessity for forming a quasi-partnership with a private concern. This difficulty is well out of the way, and it is not probable that Nicaragua, under existing circumstances, will care to take the risk of granting another concession to a private corporation. It is also said that England stands ready to abrogate the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, thus leaving the United States free to go ahead with the project. The commercial necessities of such a canal have long been clear to everybody, and recently the political necessity of such a waterway has been brought home with a force which convinced all. The trip of the Oregon furnished all the argument needed on this point and also convinced that the canal should be controlled by the government. Public sentiment will in all probability make itself heard at the approaching session of congress relative to this much needed highway. Commerce should no longer be compelled to bear the burden of rounding the Horn to reach its destination.

Some ten years ago the whole state was startled by the report of two willful and premeditated murders, committed by one Charles T. Wright, a wealthy lumberman. Two officers of the law went to make a levy on some property belonging to Wright. He had armed himself with a rifle and revolver and warned the officials away. When they attempted to perform their sworn duty, he deliberately killed one of them with the rifle, and when the other grappled with him, Wright used his revolver on him with fatal results. He then used his large fortune to prevent being convicted, and every possible influence was brought to bear to avoid conviction, but there were no extenuating circumstances and Wright was found guilty of murder in the first degree and sentenced to Jackson for life. His powerful friends have never ceased their efforts to secure his release. Now it is said the pardon board will recommend that his life sentence be commuted to 15 years. If this be done, in about two years more he will go forth a free man. But why should he be given his liberty? If ever a red-handed murderer deserved the life sentence, that murderer is Wright. The officers whom he foully murdered were executing the mandates of the law. Wright had no grievances against the officers. They were not enemies. They had done him no harm. There was absolutely no aggravation. There could be nothing of a personal nature in what the officers desired to do. Nevertheless they were brutally shot down in their tracks and while in the performance of duty. Why then should the proposed mercy be extended to this man? Simply because of the much importunity of his friends. But it makes a mockery of justice and licenses the killing of officers on duty. A state board of pardons that can so outrage all sense of justice as to recommend such a thing should be gotten rid of as quick as possible. Money and position should never be permitted to cheat justice where human lives have been wantonly taken. Let Wright stay in prison the rest of his natural life, where he belongs. No man guilty of the crimes proven against Wright should ever again be allowed freedom among his fellow men.

SWALLOWED SPIDERS

A Young Chelsea Girl is Thrown Into Spasms.

DRANK OUT OF A NOZZLE

And Swallowed a Nest of Spiders—A Live One On Her Lip Two Days Later.

The 13 year old daughter of Peter Cole, of Lima, was brought to Chelsea Monday afternoon, suffering from the symptoms of poisoning. It was learned that she had been watching a couple of cows which had been running in the road, and becoming thirsty had gone to a tank and sucked some water through a brass nozzle. She soon found that she had taken something besides water, and that was part of a nest of spiders—small, black fellows. She did not receive any help, and was taken home. She remained in a critical condition until Wednesday, when she commenced to improve. On that day her parents discovered one of the spiders, which had established itself under her upper lip, and which was still alive.—Chelsea Standard.

LARGE MAILS AT POSTOFFICE

Over 5,500 Letters a Day Go Out.

WHILE 7,500 COME IN Nearly Half a Ton of Mail is Sent Out of The Ann Arbor Office Each Day.

Uncle Sam's postmasters and assistants are busy weighing mail. They are having a siege of it in the Ann Arbor postoffice. The figures may surprise the people.

The mail sent out of Ann Arbor in the first nine days of the weighing, footed up to more than three tons and a half and averaged 814 pounds a day. The number of sealed letters sent out in the nine days was 50,162, an average of 5,564 per day.

The following table shows the weight of the mails sent out for the first nine days, Oct. 3 to 11 inclusive, with the number of letters sent out on those days:

Table with 4 columns: Date, Lbs., Oz., Letters. Totals: 7326 00 50,162

It will be noticed that Oct. 8 was a light day. That is because it was Sunday.

These figures mean that a letter is sent out every third day for every man, woman, child or infant in Ann Arbor. It means that there is an average of much more than one letter a day for each family in this city. It means that there is an average of two letters a day for each house in the city.

Mailing Clerk Sanzi estimates that for every 100 letters sent out, there are 150 received in the city. This would indicate that letters are coming into Ann Arbor at the rate of 7,500 a day.

If Ann Arbor had one or two big factories, the kind which in other cities furnish the bulk of their mail, she would long ago have been a first class postoffice. But there is no manufacturing institution here which buys stamps in what in other places would be regarded large quantities. Hence, it can be seen that the people of Ann Arbor are pre-eminently a letter-writing and a letter-receiving people.

It is no wonder that Postmaster Pond and his assistants have their hands full.

HEROINES OF PEACE. When we read stories of the terrible Spanish Inquisition of the olden times, it seems as if the tortures they depict were almost beyond the invention of the most depraved and fiendish mind; and yet here in our own enlightened land and in this Nineteenth Century of Civilization, thousands of tender women—our own sisters, mothers and wives—suffering from some unnatural weakness of the delicate organism of their sex, are daily undergoing an almost equally terrible, physical anguish and martyrdom.

It seemed as if there was an iron band around my head and it was being twisted tighter and tighter all the time," a New York lady said in trying to describe her terrible sensations. "I could not walk across my room without suffering dreadful pains," said another lady, Mrs. May E. Jones, of 529 Madison Ave., Ypsilanti, Mich., in a letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. "I was troubled with female weakness, I had suffered for two years when I began taking your medicine but now after taking three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I am free from pain. I do all my housework and walk where I please—thanks to Dr. Pierce's medicine." "It is the only medicine that relieved my terrible headaches," said Mrs. R. P. Monfort, of Lebanon, Warren Co., Ohio. "In very truth it is the only medicine ever invented that delicate and ailing women can positively rely upon to give them complete and permanent relief." No other remedy was ever devised that so thoroughly rejuvenates the entire nervous system of women; healing and curing all weakened and diseased conditions of the feminine organism and restoring womanly strength and completeness. It is the only proprietary remedy ever devised for this one special purpose by an educated and eminent physician, a specialist of world-wide reputation in this particular field of practice. No woman need or ought to allow her whole nature, physical and mental, to be undermined by such ailments when by writing to Dr. Pierce she may obtain professional advice free of charge.

The Ann Arbor Courier stretches forth benedictory hands, rolls up its eyes like a duck in a shower, and blesses the reunion of Judson and Moran. It says the lion and the lamb have lain down together, neither beside the other. "Our democratic friends," says the Courier, "will find little comfort in the settlement." Oh, yes they will. Bill and Selby are now in the condition of a couple of snakes after a fight. The reptiles seized each other by the tail and began swallowing. Each finally swallowed the other and both disappeared.—Adrian Press.

A Deering rotary engine of about 25 horse-power has been received at the mechanical laboratory of the University of Michigan for experimental purposes. The machine will be subjected to a series of tests extending over about two months' time, during which it will be run with different pressures of steam and different loads. The exact amount of steam required to operate it under the different conditions will be found by measurement. The object of the tests is to determine the exact horse-power of the engine, the conditions under which it can be most successfully run and whether it can be made a commercial success.

Says the Adrian Press: Before the Congregational Business Men's class of Ann Arbor, Sunday of last week, personally appeared Prof. Brewster in an effort to prove that "fidelity to christian principles is consistent with the successful practice of the law." His plea for the lawyer was almost pathetic, and it must be conceded that considering the desperate character of his client, it was an eloquent piece of pettifoggery as we have noticed in print in a long time. It shows what a sublime advocate the professor would be, with the facts as well as the argument on his side.—Adrian Press.

The Mozart Club gave a delightful musicale on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Minnie Davis, on S. Division st. The members are enthusiastic in their plans for the work of the coming year, and hope to give several open programs for their friends. The officers are: President, Miss Elizabeth A. A gentleman said to the Argus: "Do you know that cross country walkers are now becoming quite the thing? My wife and I took a long walk yesterday afternoon, and three miles from the city we met a number of young people. This was the style years ago, but tight shoes and tight lacing changed it. I attribute the change in fashion to the more sensible footwear."

We would state on authority of the school board that "Railroad Jack's" remarks at the Emerson school were made without approval, consent, or even knowledge of the board, superintendent or principal. It is not the policy of our school management to allow such people that form of publicity, and is an example of "Jack's" nerve in evading authority and imposing his presence upon teachers to whom he was a stranger.—Owosso American. NOT FOR ITS OWN PROPERTY

Will The County Pay For Paving Improvement.

CHAIR. HUNTER MIXED UP

Supervisor Case Fought The Proposition From Start To Finish.

At Tuesday morning's meeting of the board of supervisors there was a hot parliamentary debate on the matter of the county paying for its share of the contemplated paving on Huron st. in front of the court house square.

Chairman Hunter got tangled up like a fish line in a boy's pocket, and when he found where he had landed the board, he wriggled out with a dexterity that was amusing.

Supervisor Childs moved that in case Ann Arbor decides to pave Huron st. from Ashley to State st., that the board authorize the payment of its share, the same not to exceed $1,500.

It was stated that the entire expense of paving Huron st. in front of the court house, not including street crossings, which the city would take care of, would be $3,200.

Supervisor Case stamped it as the most outrageous proposition that ever came before the board. "There is no law to compel us to pave. If it is right that we should pave, there would be a law to compel us," said he. He said that those who favored the motion could not point out a single case in the state where the county pays for paving under similar circumstances.

Supervisor Whittaker "remembered the Maine" in the way the city had fixed his town on the equalization, and he said that, while he was always favorable to a just amount for improvements, his constituents would not stand by him if he voted for the motion since recent developments.

Supervisor Allmendinger said he was unable to understand the antipathy of Supervisor Case toward the city of Ann Arbor when his town was at its very door. Mr. Allmendinger said that the state paid for paving in front of the capitol.

Supervisor Case said that there was not any paving at all around the capitol in Lansing.

Mr. Allmendinger said there was, and proved it by Senator Ward, who happened to be present. Mr. Ward said there was paving on her streets.

Supervisor Bacon moved that the county pay $1,000. "If the county can pay $830 for such a walk as we have on the west side, I guess it can pay $1,000 for paving," said he.

There was no second to his motion. The roll was called, and the seven supervisors of Ann Arbor and Supervisors Seyler and Bacon voted "yes," but 15 country supervisors voted "no." It was lost.

Mr. Childs then renewed Mr. Bacon's motion.

Mr. Schneider said that in Grand Rapids the county had paid its share for paving on three sides of the court house—and asphalt at that.

Mr. Bibbins said he could not vote on the question until he was satisfied that other counties paid for pavements. He moved that the matter be left for a committee to investigate. It was seconded.

Mr. Case moved that the whole question be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Allmendinger—"It looks as if somebody was afraid of having the facts brought out."

On Mr. Case's motion to indefinitely postpone there was a tie vote, 15 to 15.

Chairman Hunter—"The motion is lost."

Mr. Childs—"I now call for a vote on Mr. Bibbins' motion."

Chairman Hunter—"After a slight hesitation—"I made a mistake. The motion was carried. A tie vote carries the motion."

The chairman was called down on this, and Supervisor Case got in a motion to adjourn, which was carried.

A MOST WONDERFUL CURE

Eminent Physicians Pronounced it Consumption.

Dr. C. D. Warner, Coldwater, Mich. Dear Sir:—I have received great benefit from your White Wine of Tar Syrup. I had a cough and the doctors gave up all hopes of my recovery and pronounced it consumption; I thought that it was death for me. I tried everything that we could hear of. Finally one of my friends prevailed upon me to use your White Wine of Tar Syrup. I took 1/2 bottles and am cured entirely. Such medicine I can recommend to those who are afflicted as I was.

Very Resp'y Yours, JOSEPH E. UNDERHILL, Doland, South Dakota

CONVINCING PROOF.

The Average Ann Arbor Citizen Must Accept the Following Proof.

The great Sir Isaac Newton, one of the most profound reasoners the world ever produced, once cut a large hole in a board fence to allow a favorite cat access to two gardens, and cut a smaller hole to allow her kitten to follow her. The weakens manifested in Sir Isaac's action was due to want of thought. Any reader who mentally debates the proof offered here about Doan's Kidney Pills and arrives at any other conclusion than that stated in this citizen's statement, is as short of reasoning powers as the philosopher when he turned carpenter.

Mr. Charles Shott, of 617 Fourth avenue, says: "There is no doubt in my mind as to the excellent properties and high merits of Doan's Kidney Pills and I unhesitatingly recommend their use to anyone requiring a remedy for the kidneys, believing they will always fulfill all the claims made for them. From the result of a cold settling in my kidneys, I was for a long time troubled with a heavy aching pain through my loins. At times it was so severe that I could scarcely bend and could hardly rest comfortably in any position. I noticed Doan's Kidney Pills recommended by parties who used them, so I procured a box at Eberbach & Son's drug store and took them. I used them but a very few days when the pain disappeared."

Doan's Kidney Pills sold by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box. Sent by mail on receipt of price. Foster-Milburn Co., sole agents for the United States, Buffalo, N. Y. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.

Costume of Lavender Foulard. An extremely pretty dress of lavender foulard, printed with design in black. The corsage is slightly open at the neck, and has small lapels, faced with guipure. The dress can be closed

If desired with a small front of guipure. The bust is encircled with a high corset of the same guipure, which falls over the skirt in two panels, one over each hip. A broad band of guipure insertion runs around the skirt at the height of the knees and a narrow band around the bottom. The waistband is made of lavender satin. The lower part of the sleeves is of guipure.

For Tired and Tender Feet. There is nothing more strengthening to the feet than salt. But bathing the feet in salt water, however, is not enough. Put about a quart of warm (not hot) water in a basin, and add a tablespoonful of salt. Having first thoroughly washed the feet with warm water and soap, place them in the salt bath fifteen or twenty minutes, then wipe dry. An occasional treatment of this kind is very restful, but continued persistently once a week at least, for several months, it will be found that the feet are not only rested, but strengthened.

Mrs. M. P. O'Brien.

Iresdale, Ill., writes: "I have used Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin as a family medicine with the best of results. For derangements of the stomach and as a general laxative I like it better than anything I have ever used. It is so pleasant to taste, my children are always anxious to take it."

Meat Balls.

Grind two and one-half pounds of round steak, one-half pound salt pork, four or five crackers; mix with one onion, two eggs, one pint of milk. Season with pepper and salt. Fry in hot butter.

Cabbage and Celery Salad.

Mix equal parts of fine-cut celery and shredded cabbage with one cup of salad dressing. Serve in bowl made of cabbage head.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Spinner, of 1125 Howard st., Philadelphia, Pa. when she found that Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption had completely cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. All other remedies and doctors could give her no help, but she says of this Royal Cure—"It soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises throughout the Universe." So will everyone who tries Dr. King's New Discovery for any trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c and $1.00. GLIMPSE OF CORSICA.

SOMETHING ABOUT CORTE, THE CAPITAL OF THE ISLAND.

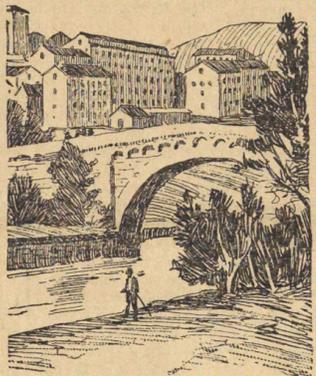

The Place Designated For Captain Dreyfus' Imprisonment Prior to His Pardon—Ancient Citadel Made Famous by Paoli.

[Special Correspondence.] CORTE, Corsica, Sept. 15.—This ancient and sleepy city, about which there clings a flavor of romance and poetry, of heroism and brigandage, was awakened from its lethargy by the information from Paris that Captain Dreyfus, who has just been adjudged guilty of treason, was to be imprisoned here, probably in the old citadel which, in the days of Pasquale Paoli, was the seat of the Corsican government during the brief period of its independence.

There is very much to interest and attract one here on this historic island, brought again into prominence by the proposition to send hither Captain Dreyfus for imprisonment. This city, with a population of about 5,000, is in the center of the island, imposingly perched upon an abrupt bluff. The frowning mountains which surround the city, covered at this season of the year with a somber coat of deep brown, and the massive fortress placed on steep and well nigh inaccessible rocks give the city a decidedly rugged appearance. Through the deep and rugged gorges between the mountain sides rush two rivers, the Rostonica and the Tavignano. At the point of their confluence lies Corte.

The citadel, where it is here understood Dreyfus is to be confined, was formerly a prison for captive Arabs. It stands on a precipitous rock overhanging the river Tavignano and in earlier days was regarded as an impregnable fortress. Associated with it is much of the history of the island, going back as far as the sixteenth century, when its foundations were laid by Vincentello d'Istria, who was the viceroy of Corsica, representing King Martin of Aragon.

The city and the citadel of Corte, however, derive their greatest interest from the association with them of Pasquale Paoli, the last and greatest of the Corsican leaders in their wars against the Genoese and the French, and here he held his court during the 14 years of his dictatorship, from 1755 to 1769.

VIEW OF CORTE, CORSICA.

His statue stands in the market place, and his house can be visited. It is now used for a college, but the study and bedroom of Paoli are still kept as they were in his lifetime, the shutters of the windows lined with cork as a protection against firearms. It is a large, old mansion, looking like a fortress.

While brigandage in Corsica is practically at an end, one cannot help recalling the days of the picturesque brigands and the vendetta. The brigands of Corsica were attractive, at least from a romantic point of view. They were not common highwaymen and freebooters, urged by greed and idleness to live upon their fellow men, nor were they refugees from a despotic government.

Like Robin Hood and the Saxon outlaws, their existence was mainly the result of the terrible custom of la vendetta—the private vengeance and hereditary feuds of the island families.

From one generation to another this custom has come down, and the result has been bloodshed and devastation to an incredible degree. No matter how the feud began—it might be by some slighting word, a trifling quarrel—but out would come the too ready weapon, and a murder was the result. This death must be avenged by the nearest relative of the deceased or indeed by any relative. If the murderer had escaped, some member of his family was slain. The connections took up the quarrel. Henceforth, to use the expressive phrase of the country, there was blood between the families.

Many romances have been written founded on this custom, as "The Corsican Brothers" and a tale of great interest by Professor Merimee, called "Colomba," the heroine of which was drawn from life, for even the women felt themselves bound to avenge the husband or son by their own hand or by their urgency or exhortations brought down the longed for retaliation. The dreadful results went beyond even the bounds of romance and were frequently the cause of civil war.

In Corte is still pointed out the house where once lived Charles Bonaparte, the father of Napoleon, whose birth at Ajaccio, some 80 kilometers northwest from here, gives the island of Corsica its greatest fame. EMIL DURANT.

Dental Floss For Children's Teeth.

Children's teeth require special attention. A spool of dental floss should be kept in a convenient place, and a piece of the silk passed between the teeth after eating. If the first teeth are defective or decay quickly, a dentist should be consulted and his advice followed in the hope that the permanent set may be benefited by it.—Ladies' Home Journal.

CHORAL UNION CONCERTS

American Composers Given a Chance.

VERY FINE CONCERTS

Will Be Given By Noted Musicians—The Course One For Lovers of Good Music.

The eleventh season of the Choral Union Series of concerts will be inaugurated November 6th by a symphony concert given by the Pittsburgh Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Victor Herbert. The Pittsburgh Orchestra is one of the more recently organized orchestras, and has been steadily gaining ground in artistic efficiency, until now it is recognized as one of the leading organizations in the country. In a sense it is a part of the educational work of the Carnegie Institute and owes its origin to the awakening of interest in things artistic and educational through the founding of that institution. The organization is composed of the most excellent musicians and Mr. Herbert has shown himself well qualified for leadership. He is a most rigid drill master and a most inspiring leader, a man of very broad artistic sympathy and thorough training. The program will be very interesting and will include three Wagner numbers, the D Major Symphony, Beethoven's Midsummer-night's Dream Overture, Mendelssohn; and other shorter numbers. It is expected that this concert will be a fitting opening to the Series.

Those who heard Mr. Eddy at one of the former festivals, will hail with pleasure the announcement that the second concert of the series will be given by him, November 24th. Mr. Eddy has been identified with all that is best in organ playing for so many years, that it is not necessary to dwell upon his abilities. He drew up the specifications for the Frieze Memorial Organ, and therefore understands its possibilities to the utmost. He will play a number of works written especially for him. This will probably be Mr. Eddy's last appearance as his engagements abroad are so urgent that he has practically become an European musician and does not contemplate returning to America for several seasons.

The third concert of the series will be given December 18th, by the Choral Union, Chicago Festival Orchestra (fifty members). Mme. Liune, Soprano; Heinrich Meyn, Baritone; Holmes Cowder, Tenor. The program for this concert will include orchestral work, solos, and the performance by chorus and orchestra of "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast", by S. Coleridge Taylor. This work has been given with pronounced success in London, and Mr. Taylor is considered one of the most promising of the younger English composers.

The fourth concert, on January 26th, will be a song recital by Mrs. Josephine Jacoby. Mrs. Jacoby's triumph at the May festival last year was so pronounced, that her appearance in recital will be hailed with satisfaction. Mrs. Jacoby is one of the few artists who has been eminently successful in great works of recital.

The fifth concert, on February 23rd, will consist of a miscellaneous program and "A Persian Garden". Mrs. Seabury C. Ford, Soprano; Miss Marguerite Hall, Contralto; Mackenzie Gordon, Tenor; Davis Bispham, Bass. The "Persian Garden" a setting of verses from the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, will be given by this superb artist's quartet and will fill Part II. of the program. It will be remembered that these artists were announced for the opening concert of the season last year, but owing to the repairs on the roof of University Hall, their appearance was necessarily postponed.

The festival will be unique in that it will give as full and fair a representation of American works as has ever been attempted in this country. The fact that American works have won distinction abroad is well known to musicians, but the public, unfortunately, have been educated to the belief that nothing "good can come out of Nazareth." The wonderful successes of American singers abroad have been noted and commented upon, and people are familiar with the fact that many of the leading artists, both on the concert platform and the operatic stage, are Americans. But they have not realized that in the line of creative work America has been steadily gaining ground. As a matter of fact, looking everything into consideration, the progress made during the last twenty years in this direction has been commendable, but it is only in later years that it has been possible for American composers to appear on concert programs by right instead of courtesy. No modern work has been received with greater enthusiasm than McDowell's Second Pianoforte Concerto at Berlin, and Professor H. W. Parkerker's "Hora Novissima" won the most distinguished approbation at the Worcester Festival, England, and is to be sung by several of the leading chorus societies of Great Britain this season. It is hoped that both of these great works will be incorporated in the program for the Festival. To give a Festival composed entirely of American works would be unprofitable and uninteresting. At the coming Festival, therefore, there will be included many important standard works in order that the proper balance of programs may be preserved, and the interest in the Festival maintained. While, of course, no definite arrangements have been made it is safe to assume that every effort will be made to secure artists worthy of the occasion and of the audience. The enormous expense attending the series makes it imperative that a large number of tickets should be sold and it is hoped that the response on the part of the citizens and students will be as generous as in the past.

COMING FROM THE KLONDIKE

H. M. WALLACE THE GOLD FIELD BOOMER.

Is On His Way Back With a Big Golden Paper Weight.—What He Says.

H. M. Wallace, of Klondike fame, is expected back to Ann Arbor any day, the same rosy boomer of the Alaskan gold fields as of old. He wrote a friend in this city from Atlin, B. C., under date of Oct. 10, saying that he expected to leave in a few days for the coast and from Skaguay he expected to go to Seattle, and thence via San Francisco to Ann Arbor. Says Wallace:

"I want to tell you that we have struck it fine this year, and we now own over a score of claims in this district, some of which are among the richest of the country. When walking across a claim the other day, I picked up a yellow pebble worth about $30, and when scraping bed rock on one of our claims last week, one of my men picked up a golden boulder, weighing 4 oz., 4-pwt. and 13 gr. It makes a very unique paperweight, in which capacity it is now serving on my desk of natural undressed wood." Mr. Wallace is booming the U. S. and Dominion Mining Co. But he will be in Ann Arbor in a few days to speak for himself.

SOME SAVAGE WARFARE

A Blow Gun For Discharging Poison Arrows—A Chinese Match Lock and Etc.

Curator Sargeant, of the university museum, has re-arranged the weapon case on the third floor of the building. A good idea of savage implements of warfare and those of the change to the more modern, can here be seen. There are spears and swords. Some of the latter are used by our new countrymen, the Malay pirates in the south Philippine Islands, who are expert workers in war. There is an executioner's knife that looks like an old-fashioned meat chopper, used in chopping meat for hash.

A Chinese match lock is a curiosity. The label on it says: "This gun was primed, as were the flintlocks. A slow burning rope of bark was carried around the wrist of the soldier or hunter. This rope was long enough to burn all day. When the gun was to be discharged, the burning rope was put into the catch above. Pulling the trigger lowered the burning end into the powder." This gun is part of the Beal-Steele collection.

Another weapon is a blow gun with which poisoned arrows were blown. "The gourd contains tree cotton for wrapping about the ends of the arrows before placing them in the blow gun. The piece of fish jaw attached to the quiver is used for partially severing the poison tips of the arrows, in order that they may break off and remain in the wounds which they inflict." This is also a part of the Beal-Steele collection.

An old flint lock has a sad history. "A relic of the plains. In 1850 a party of emigrants were crossing the plains enroute to California. At Lemole Creek, Nevada, a party of Indians attacked them, and a fierce running fight took place for 15 miles along the alley. During the night the Indians ran off all their stock and teams. A corral was made of the wagons, while some of the men stayed with the women and children to guard the property, while the others went for the stock, finding it 50 miles away. On returning five days later, they found the wagons burned and the family killed, not a survivor being found to tell the tale. Dr. J. C. Leonard visited the spot and found the gun."

In contrast to these guns are bows and arrows of Yukutat Indians from Port Mulgrave, Alaska, the gift of Prof. M. Baker.

No matter how long you have had the cough; if it hasn't already developed into consumption, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will cure it.

WOMAN BOSS OVER 15 LABORERS

Landscape Gardening at The Michigan Central.

SHE DIRECTS IT ALL

The Grounds Will Present Quite a Different Appearance.

The Michigan Central is putting in about $1,000 to beautify its Ann Arbor depot grounds.

Fifteen men are now busily engaged in the work, and they are entirely in charge of a woman, who directs where every spade of earth shall be taken out and where every shrub is to be put in.

Landscape gardening and the personal direction of laboring men seems to be a rather strange vocation for a woman, yet Mrs. Frances Copley Seavey, of Chicago, who has charge of the work here, seems to be entirely competent.

One of the laboring men was approached by an Argus reporter and asked how he liked working under the direction of a woman.

"Well, it was kind o' strange at first but I guess it's all right," said he.

"Does she really boss you around?"

"Does she? Well, don't you ever believe but what she does. What she says, goes. Why, when she ordered that fountain taken out from the east side of the depot, there was a big kick. But, what's the use. She said 'take it up, and up it came. Yes, sir, she's the boss of the hull thing.'"

Mrs. Seavey was hunted up by the Argus man. She is a fine and intelligent woman. She is a writer of considerable note on the subject of landscape gardening and contributes largely to magazines. She is thoroughly practical, and not only does the designing but personally superintends the work of seeing that her designs are carried out.

Said she: "The entire aspect of the grounds about the depot will be changed. The Michigan Central asked me to submit a plan and I did so. It was approved last July, and I have been busy collecting the material, shrubs, vines, small trees, etc. We hope to have the work completed by the end of next week. The grounds at the top of the hill will present a frame work of larger trees, and from there down to the depot it will merge into the vinous aspect. It will be my object to give the grounds as nearly the native appearance as possible. Nothing but trees, vines, shrubs and the most hardy herbaceous plants will be used. At the east and west end of the depot it will be more gardenesque. But in time the big slope south of the depot will be so covered that not a single spot of grass will be discernable. Next summer it will bear quite a leafy appearance."

The Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti depot grounds will thus be as different as can be imagined. The Ann Arbor grounds will have only the hardy shrubs, vines and plants. The Ypsilanti grounds will be a model of flower gardening. It will make a striking contrast to greet the eyes of the traveling public.

THE FINALS IN GOLF TOURNAMENT

The finals in the golf tournament will be played at 2 o'clock tomorrow between Prof. Trueblood and Mr. Tallman. The former is handicapped by five strokes.

Output of the Klondike.

No one will ever know exactly how much gold was taken from the Klondike fields the past season. Since the English government imposed a royalty, the miners have adopted all sorts of ruses to evade the law. It is rather difficult to dodge taxes, but it is more difficult to dodge a bad cold and the grip at this time of year. When the system is weakened by such attacks, and the blood becomes thin and impoverished, the best medicine to take is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This remedy builds up the system. Besides regulating digestion, it overcomes constipation. It is good for the kidneys and liver, too, stimulating these organs into the proper performance of their functions. Nothing is so good for malaria.

Why She Blushed Unseen.

"I heard that young man who calls on Sister Rose quoting poetry about her name last night," said the bad boy.

"Hush!" exclaimed Sister Rose.

"What did he say?" asked the bad boy's equally bad brother.

"He said something about many a flower being born to blush unseen," answered the bad boy.

"He must have been kissing her in the dark," suggested the bad boy's brother.—Chicago Post.

AT THE ARGUS OFFICE.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

From Tuesday's Daily Argus.

M. Staebler's coal office is sporting a new sign.

The "Christian" will be produced at the opera house Friday, Nov. 17.

Mrs. Zina P. King of E. V. Liberty ave., who has been ill, is now able to be up, although not able to leave the house.

Louis Rohde, of W. Huron st., who has been ill, is slowly convalescing, being able to sit up for a few hours each day.

There will be a high school athletic party at Granger's Friday, Nov. 10. The admission fee is $1. Good music will be furnished.

J. B. Steere, the grower of flowing well celery, has this year, in addition to his other crops, harvested 700 bushels of splendid white onions.

Organist Boes, of Zion's Lutheran church, will commence the practice, with a chorus, on a cantata that will be given during the winter.

Miss Mary H. Hines died yesterday morning at the home of her mother, Mrs. Emeline E. Hines, No. 912 Mary st. The notice of the funeral will be given later.

The addition to the Fred Buss store on W. Liberty st., recently purchased from the Binder estate, is up to the second story. If the fine weather continues the brick work will be completed in a few days.

There was a small fire on Packard st. Saturday evening in the residence of Mrs. J. C. Schryver. A lamp was overturned in a co-ed's room. The damage done was less than $100. It is covered by insurance placed in the King agency.

Mary Archer was found guilty of the malicious destruction of some raspberry bushes belonging to Aaron Long, and was fined $5 costs. The trouble grows out of a disputed line between their properties, and the chances are good that a jury in the circuit court will have to settle the matter.

There are this year three young Mexicans attending the high school. Two of them, brothers, attended a school in Pennsylvania last year. They are juniors now, and will enter the engineering department of the university year after next.

A farce with a plot; a musical comedy with good music and pretty girls; and a specialty show with the names of six high-salaried vaudeville people in its cast, seem to be all united in "Over the Fence," "the bundle of fun" by Owen Davis, which will be seen at the Athens Theatre on Saturday, Nov. 4.

Through the efforts of Secretary Zimmers, and at a large expense of the Students' Lecture Association, the date of the Max Bendix concert has been changed from Saturday, Nov. 4, to Wednesday evening, Nov. 8. This change was made on account of the Michigan-Virginia football game in Detroit on Saturday.

William Brooks, the man of mixed races, who brought his 6 feet 7 inches of height into the county clerk's office a few months ago, and procured a marriage license, is under arrest at Marshall under a serious charge preferred by a white girl. Deputy Clerk Blum has been subpoenaed in the case to show that Brooks swore he was a resident of Washtenaw county.

A number of young people interested in the welfare of the high school organizations are rehearsing for a play to be given sometime this fall. They are under the direction of Miss Cady, whose entertainments last year proved so successful. The proceeds of the coming entertainment will be divided between the Oratorical and the Athletic Associations. This spring $80 was cleared at one entertainment. Miss Cady and those who help her, deserve much credit or their work.

The Ann Arbor Organ Co. is having a 250-barrel cistern built at its plant, corner of W. Washington and First sts. Mr. Allmendinger, the superintendent, says this cistern will save the company considerable money. In itself the supply will only reach for three days, but as the exhaust steam will be returned into the cistern, much of the water will be saved. It will heat the water so that it will be warm when taken into the boiler. Another advantage will be had in that rain water softens the scale in the boiler. This is quite an item, as the company uses from $50 to $60 worth of boiler compound a year. Superintendent Allmendinger is very practical, and continually studies what he can do to the advantage of his company.

Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c., guaranteed, at Eberbach & Son, Ann Arbor, Geo. J. Haussler, Manchester.

"IT IS SIMPLY RIDICULOUS"

Rares the Law Student Talks of His Case.

WAS NO INTIMIDATION

He Says He Helped Mrs. Fields to a Very Favorable Will.

Alonzo Ranes, the law student against whom such a sensational suit has been started in the circuit court by Mrs. Mary Ann Fields, of Howell, was seen by the Argus in regard to his side of the story, and he told it very clearly.

He does not appear to be a man who would be guilty of so criminal a thing as Mrs. Fields sets up in her bill of complaint. Says he: "It was simply ridiculous."

"It is simply ridiculous," was rooming here at Miss Prescott's house during her last sickness. I knew that she fairly hated Mrs. Fields and had cut her off in her will so that she would not get a cent. Mrs. Fields came on here to care for Miss Prescott, and I did I what would to smooth over the family disagreement. Finally Miss Prescott consented to have another will drawn up, and Mr. Burgess, a law student, prepared the document. Now, you couldn't get Burgess to do anything wrong any more than—why, the best person on earth. Now, the fact is that Miss Prescott was so weak and was in such a condition when she executed the will that I had to hold her hand and pen up when she made the mark. After her death, Mrs. Fields came to me in all gratitude, and said she would not have got a cent but for me. Then she made a proposition. All she wanted, she said, was $1,000 clear out of the property. She told me if I could get it for her she would give me $100. I tried and failed. Then I figured up the debts and found that if she paid all claims against the estate, by giving her $3,260, she would just clear $1,000. She gave me a land contract for it at that amount."

"Was there a former will leaving all to a church?" he was asked.

"Well, I won't say anything about that until the time comes. Mrs. Fields is a very suspicious woman and has been led into this by others, I presume. At least, she never made any demands on me. Any story of fraud or intimidation is simply false. Her whole bill is ridiculous."

HARRIMAN ON OXFORD

An Interesting Description of a Famous Old Oxford and Student Life There.

The first lecture in the Unity Club course given Sunday in the Unitarian church by Judge W. D. Harriman, was a most delightful intellectual treat. His subject was "Oxford and its Colleges." He gave a view of this ancient town in a most pleasing manner. It was a lecture that everyone at all interested in England would enjoy. He said in part: "Oxford is certainly unique among all the cities of the world. Its like has never existed in ancient or modern times. The history of those great continental seats of learning like Bologna and Paris which shone like stars in the night of the middle ages, has a fascinating interest for the student and the scholar; but, if we consider the length of time during which they flourished in their greatest vigor, or the number of great men they sent forth to influence the thought or shape the course of civilization, or if we merely consider the buildings in which they were housed or the historical associations connected with them, they all sink into insignificance when compared to Oxford."

Judge Harriman, in describing the feelings of a man treading the streets of Oxford, said: "He will remember that venerable teachers and ingenious youths were studying astronomy discovered the true order of our solar system. He will remember how Cranmer, Latimer and Ridley heroically died at the stake in those streets for their devotion to the principles of the English reformation and he will remember the great religious movements which have originated there since the days of Wickliffe, and as the memories of the vanished past crowd upon his mind, he will not forget that little band of praying scholars led by Wesley and Whitefield—the butt and ridicule of their fellow students, but who in spite of contumely and disgrace, organized the modest society which in a century and a half has grown to become one of the greatest religious forces of the Christian world."

"Once within the city, the first and strongest impression the visitor receives is of its antiquity and apparent decay. No building material yet discovered can withstand the climate of Oxford. There are statues of kings here whose crowns have disappeared and whose features are no longer distinguishable. There are statues of queens here whose noses and ears are all gone and whose eyeballs have been washed out by rains of centuries. There are statues of angels whose wings have vanished and whose upturned faces are as characterless as vacancy itself. Yet, with all these signs of antiquity and decay, High st., Oxford, is by the common judgment of all travelers, one of the most striking and interesting in the world. Nearly every style of architecture is represented, and the varying tastes of 700 years."

"The 24 colleges which constitute the University of Oxford each own more or less land, surrounded by high walls within which buildings, quadrangles and gardens of the college are situated, completely cut off from the noise of the streets and the conditions of the outside world. Each college has its separate endowment and is governed by the rules and regulations laid down by its founder, except so far as those rules and regulations have been changed by act of parliament. Each college has its own dean or warden, or master or president, as the case may be; elects and pays its own fellows, appoints its own tutors, matriculates its own students, fixes its own standard of admission, and regulates its own lines of study."

"No individual college appoints or maintains any professors (they are chosen by the university as a whole), or grants any degrees. Each college is simply one of a federation of schools which together constitute the university. Formerly any person desiring to study at and obtain any of the privileges of the university was obliged to matriculate in some of the colleges or halls; now, by virtue of an act of parliament, a person may become a member of the university by complying with certain conditions and subjecting himself to its discipline without connecting himself with any college. He thus becomes what is called a non-collegiate. As a non-collegiate, he acquires no right to instruction or the use of the college buildings; he may get that wherever he can, usually from a private tutor, and must pay for it. What he gains is a right to be examined for a degree by the official examiners of the university."

"The real governing body of the university are two—congregation and convocation. The congregation consists of the professors official examiners, resident masters and all the great officers of the university. This body elects a committee of 14, of which the vice chancellor is ex-officio chairman, which meets once a week and is called the Hebdomadal committee, which performs substantially the duties of the weekly faculty meeting of the University of Michigan except that its conclusions do not become law until approved by convocation. Convocation is a body which consists of all the masters of arts of the university, the vice chancellor presiding; this body of graduates, resident and non-resident, elect the chancellor and vice chancellor and two members of parliament to represent the university of Westminster."

"For centuries there has been antagonism between the students and townspeople, often resulting in riot, bloodshed and death. The university authority overshadows and belittles the authority of the town, although parliament very lately has increased the town's powers, until a few years ago the mayor of the city, before he could assume the duties of his office, was compelled to take the humiliating oath that he would interfere in no manner, while in office, with the sacred rights and privileges."

"As we have said, the colleges of Oxford were designed by their respective founders for the accommodation and support of a select few fellows or instructors and students who were expected to devote their lives to study or to the services of the church, and the opening of their doors since the reformation to the general public, has caused the student population to exceed the number which the college buildings are able to accommodate and to overflow into the city, and Oxford has become like Ann Arbor—a city of lodging houses. You can see everywhere, in the windows and upon the walls of dwellings, the sign, 'Rooms to Let,' and the soul-inspiring legend, 'Cheap Board Here.' Oxford's students' rooms have a wonderfully familiar look. Their walls are decorated with pipes, cider mugs, beer signs and the apparatus of football, golf and cricket."

"The Oxford student, a serious taste, for pictures, portraits, serious and comic, of tutors and chums and of famous and infamous men and women hang upon the walls everywhere. There may be seen portraits of the solemn Jewett and the serious Gladstone, and suspended between them a picture of Fannie Essler, a famous dancer of 60 years ago, dressed in clothing, unsuitable except in the very warmest of climates. The average Oxford students' view of reverence is small."

"So we see that the student at Oxford is very like the student in Ann Arbor. Few of them injure their eyes by study. Few of them injure their health at college, except by such indiscretions and imprudences as are equally liable to occur in any sphere of life. The professor at Oxford is not a greater man than the professor here. As a general thing he receives just about as much worship from the student population there as here."

"Studying in Europe has become a fashion or fad in this country; which really educates nobody abroad and which no longer fools anybody at home. At any rate, whatever tremendous advantages there may be for 'studying' in Germany, there is no single branch of study that can be pursued at Oxford to greater advantage than at Ann Arbor except, possibly, philology and early English, for which the Bodleian library furnishes special advantages. For the study of the practical sciences, they have at Oxford in no case better, and in some cases poorer, facilities than we have in Ann Arbor. The study of medicine cannot be pursued there as efficiently as here. Of course, they have no law school comparable to ours."

The only advantage Judge Harriman could see of Oxford over Ann Arbor was, possibly, the inspiration from the antiquity of the former place. The judge gave a beautiful description of historic points and ancient customs. This lecture would well bear repeating."

LOOTING SOLDIERS IN MANILA

Jacob Trautwein has received a letter from his son, John J. Trautwein, Co. D, 16th U. S. Infantry, dated at Manila, Sept. 2. He says in the letter: "I am well and strong. We are having a good time. By the talk over here, they say the war is about over, but you cannot depend upon what you hear, as they report so many lies. We are guarding the railroad and are stationed at a town called Meyeatayan. We have good quarters, and have a good supply to eat. Sometimes our supply of provisions run short and we have to eat what we can get. We had three men in our company who stole out with their guns and went through the town about 12 o'clock at night and robbed the people. One fellow was shot and killed, and the other two were in the guard-house awaiting trial. I suppose they will get about 10 years in a military prison. They managed to get about $250, but they returned it to our captain, who returned it to the people from whom it was taken. The weather here is pretty warm. About all you do is to sweat all the time, but I never felt better in all my life than I do over here. We have received 12 new men. It is fun to watch them in drill. They use their guns as if they were trying to pitch hay with a pitchfork, but they will make good soldiers. Tell my friends in Dexter and Ann Arbor that I send my best regards to all of them."

AGAINST A LAW STUDENT

Howell Woman Makes Some Sensational Charges.

CLAIMS GROSS FRAUDS

About Getting a Land Contract From Her With Intimidations.

Mrs. Mary Ann Fields, of Howell, has filed a bill of complaint in the Washtenaw Circuit court against Alonzo H. Ranes, a law student from Taylorville, Ill., and Henry A. Weaver another student, who is a brother-in-law of Ranes, and Henry E. Burgess, who is also a law student.

Waever and Burgess seem to be brought into the case merely as a matter of form, but the most sensational charges are made against Ranes. In fact, it is so very sensational, the charges are of such a serious character, that the public is advised to withhold any opinion until the answer is filed and the trial of the cause is made.

In the bill of complaint, Mrs. Fields sets forth that she is the sister of Sarah Prescott, deceased, of the city of Ann Arbor, and by the latter's death she was entitled to property on State st. valued at between $6,000 and $10,000. After paying all debts and for a $500 family monument, the rest was to go to Mrs. Fields. She says that Ranes and Burgess were appointed appraisers with a purpose to defraud, and that they set the value of the estate at $3,500 subject to a $1,200 mortgage.

She then alleges that Ranes, who was rooming in the house, fraudulently pretended that the decedent had made another will leaving all her property to the church and cutting her off, and that he read her a paper, which he claimed constituted the will and informed her that she was in his power and unless she made a conveyance, he would hand over the will to the church. That her last will would be set aside, as the deceased was incompetent and all depended on his testimony. She says she consented, and he asked her to burn the will. She complied.

As a further intimidation, Ranes represented to her, she says, that the people of Ann Arbor believed that she had occasioned the death of her sister by administering too much medicine and if he should add his testimony to this, the public would have her arrested for murder.

Next she alleges that he wrote to her that a Chicago man had presented two $500 notes for collection which Miss Prescott had given for the woman's building at the world's fair. She says that she came here and Ranes told her that he would get himself appointed agent, and if she would sell him the real estate for $3,260 he "would burn up the notes and the smoke would tell no tales."

On July 15 she signed the land contract, the amount to be paid on March 1, 1901.

There is also a charge in the bill that Ranes tried to beat her on the lease of the property and for the cost of the monument.

She asks that all the papers be set aside.

ALL OVER THE CITY

New Overhead Fixtures Being Constructed.

The D. Y. & A. A. are re-equipping the street car lines in this city with new overhead fixtures. Some 6,000 pounds of copper wire is on the ground ready to be put up as trolley wires. As copper has more than doubled in price, it will be seen that the stringing of a new trolley wire in this city is quite an expensive undertaking. But it is necessary because the old wire is constantly breaking, which is not only dangerous in itself but disarranges the whole system. After this is completed, it is the intention of the company to fix up the road bed, which in places is becoming out of condition.

The heavy expenditures thus entailed are what stand in the way of new street cars for city use. The need of the new cars is admitted, a railroad official putting the case much stronger than any private citizen has yet done, and in good time the new cars will follow, but not this year. In this connection it may be well to state that not only has the price of copper doubled but the price of steel rails has gone way up, and the cost of cars has materially increased. So great has been the advance in steel rails that it is said that the Santa Fe road, which made a contract for rails three years ago, is now relaying its tracks with new rails, getting enough out of the sale of the old rails to pay for the new ones and also to pay for the cost of putting them in.

While the road is thus paying attention to the city line, the company makes the claim that the Ann Arbor city lines are not even paying expenses.

BARTON WAS RELEASED

ON PROMISING TO LEAVE MICHIGAN.

An Echo Of a Famous Arson Case—
Troubles of The Fuller Family in Chelsea.

Chelsea, Oct. 27.—Joseph Buff, a workman helping to put stained glass in the windows of the new M. E. church, fell yesterday and broke his ankle. He was taken to his home in Detroit.

Culyer J. Barton, who was sentenced in the Washtenaw circuit by Judge Kinne to five years in Jackson for burning the barn of S. O. Hadley, in Lyndon, was released last week on the expiration of his sentence, but was immediately re-arrested on the charge of attempting to burn the house of Mrs. Myra May in Unadilla. He was taken to Howell, but was released on agreeing to leave Michigan. He came to Chelsea and arranged to leave today for California.

During the past week a little excitement was created by the troubles of the Fuller family. Mrs. W. J. Fuller is visiting her brother, Frank Pierce, here, and on Tuesday her husband came here from Lansing, where they live. He has long been insanely jealous of her. She took out a warrant Wednesday in Justice Parker's office charging him with threatening to kill her. The case was adjourned until next Wednesday. In the meantime it was agreed they should separate and she should take her household belongings, an officer to accompany her to Lansing at Fuller's expense.

HE FORGOT CLEVELAND'S NAME

When the presidential circus swung around to Jackson last week, ex-Congressman Jim O'Donnell took a grapevine twist on the arm of McKinley, and Jim and Bill marched to the speaker's stand together. This action of prompt Jimmie so discomfited the mayor that he referred to Mack as "president of the home of the free and the land of the brave," thus transposing the line. The mayor's confusion equalled that of an Ann Arbor man who was presented to ex-President Cleveland when the latter addressed the students of the university. The Ann Arborite got purple in the face, hesitated and stammered, and for the life of him couldn't think of the great hulk's name. Finally, in desperation, he blurted out, as beads of perspiration rose on his brow, "How do you do—Grover?"—Adrian Press.

ALL SORTS OF SCHEMES

To Gain Free Entrance to Fair Grounds Discussed at Meeting of Fair
Managers.

The regular meeting of the board of managers of the Washtenaw Fair, held Friday afternoon in the council chamber in the court house, was more than of usual interest. The treasurer's report showed that the society had a most successful year and the guarantee fund will no be touched. The election of officers and directors was declared. The abuses of the pass system were discussed. When the roll was called, President Dean, Vice-President Kelly, Secretary Mills and Managers Kappler, Chapin, Sperry and Schumacher were present. Treasurer Belser and Managers Graves and Schmid came later.

Secretary Mills called attention to the fact that there was no provision in the by-laws requiring the standing committees to report to the board of managers. This should be done. He reported verbally as chairman of the printing committee. He was followed by President Dean, chairman of the guarantee fund, and Manager Schumacher, chairman of the school exhibits. The latter made the suggestion that this exhibition was quite an attraction, but that it should be worked up this winter and not left until next fall after the school had their vacation.

The three protests filed were taken up. The first protest read was from Henry C. Waldron, who protested that Charles Arnold, of Superior, had entered two horses as best pair of draught horses and also best matched farm horses for Muehlig & Schmid's special prize, when Mr. Arnold did not up to Oct. 5, at 10 o'clock a. m., own one of the horses. He said further that the team was a grand good one, but that he made the protest only because the society demanded honest fair exhibits. He asked that the testimony of Francis Augustus and mother of Ypsilanti be taken.

Manager Schumacher asked for the opinion of Manager John Kappler, superintendent of this department. Mr. Kappler stated that Mr. Arnold said the horse had been in his care for three months and he thought he would own him.

On motion of Manager Schumacher, the action of the judges was sustained and the protest overruled.

The other two protests were in reference to indoor and outdoor views by amateur photographers. One protest was signed by E. M. Wurster, C. C. Lutz and Harry Cole against Mr. Van Horn, because of his pictures not being mounted on a large piece of cardboard, and that they suspected Mr. Van Horn was not an amateur. Katie and Fannie Cady protested against both Messrs. Van Horn and Wurster for the same reasons.

Secretary Mills explained that last year there had been only one exhibit in this department. Messrs. Wurster and Lutz wanted to withdraw their protest. It was simply a technicality. The boys had been talked into the protest by a member of the board.

President Dean said he had looked over the pictures and thought it was only a matter of the size of the cardboard.

On motion of Manager Schumacher, the award of the judges was sustained.

Secretary Mills read his report. His receipts had been $372.25, and he had given orders on the treasurer for $2,903.80, being printing, $121; note at Farmers and Mechanics Bank, $123; postage and express, $47.80; labor, $504.90; rates, $218.48; allowed by auditing committee, $656.63; premiums awarded, $947.05.

President Deansaid he understood there were some disputed premiums.

Secretary Mills said he knew what President Dean referred to. President Dean had gone out on the street and asked the business men to close up on Friday afternoon. At 1 o'clock on that day he had seen a herd of horses going up Wells street. He had gone to the gate, and heard people say the fair was breaking up; it was no use to go in. Henry Waldron had turned his horses loose, causing much annoyance to the people, and contrary to the by-law that provided, if any exhibitor removed his exhibit before 4 o'clock of the last day without permission, he would forfeit his premium. It was an outrage on the business places that had closed up for the afternoon.

President Dean said the matter was perfectly plain. They had a by-law which, if they allowed it to be violated, would end in people not coming to the fair.

Vice-President Kelly said he had been at the gate. He had tried to have Henry Waldron hold his horses until 4 o'clock, calling his attention to the by-law; but Mr. Waldron said there were not men enough on the grounds to hold his horses, and that he did not care anything about the premiums. Mr. Kelly did his best to keep the peace between Mr. Waldron and the gatekeepers.

President Dean said he did not see any reason why Mr. Waldron should raise a disturbance. If they let everybody run their fair, they would not have anybody to attend it. He thought it was an advantage to the fair to have Mr. Waldron exhibit his horses. Mr. Waldron had a big sale, which was all right; but Mr. Waldron was the last man who should take the law into his own hands.

Manager Schmid said he understood Mr. Waldron had received a part of his premium.

Secretary Mills said he had got pay to the amount of $26.65. His premiums amounted to $69.50, leaving a balance of $42.85.

had not been permitted to do so.

Manager Chapin moved that the premiums awarded Mr. Waldron be declared forfeited for a violation of the by-laws.

Secretary Mills stated that every request made by Mr. Waldron as to changes in stalls, etc., had been complied with.

Thereupon the motion passed unanimously.

President Dean stated that although he had not voted, he wanted it understood that he thought the motion a just one.

Treasurer Belser reported that his total receipts up to the night previous had been for the year $3,065.50, and disbursements $1,677.79. There was a balance on hand of $1,387.71.

On motion of Manager Schumacher, an order of $100 was allowed the secretary for his services.

On the suggestion of President Dean the secretary was directed to notify the subscribers to the guarantee fund, that the society was happy to announce that they would not be called upon.

Treasurer Belser suggested that before the next fair the gates of the fair should be rearranged with turn-stiles. There should be some check on the people who pass through.

On motion of Manager Schumacher, the secretary was directed to call the attention of the board at the next meeting to the subject of gates.

Secretary Mills called attention to the many abuses of passes. The life-membership tickets were abused. The worst trouble came from the managers who asked for passes for people to go down town. Men who should work for the interests of the fair got passes and then turned them over to people who should pay. He had placed his sou at the gate, and people had come up and offered 15 cents to get in and stated the gate-keeper had let them in on this. Some had gone so far as to go over to the car barn and telephone for this keeper, saying he had promised to let them in. He had seen business men of the city climbing over the fence. He told of a number of other schemes to avoid paying entrance money still more astonishing.

President Dean said he had once seen a man on the grand stand drop his ticket five times to others to use.

Manager Schumacher told of hearing parties brag of how they had cut off their fair buttons and given them to others. He favored a turn-stile that would register every one.

The matter of how to regulate the abuse of passes was generally discussed and, on motion of Secretary Mills, a committee of five was appointed to draft a plan and report the same at the January meeting. The committee appointed was Secretary Mills, Treasurer Belser and Managers Schumacher, Schmid and Kelly.

THE FALLING METEORS

the Old Settlers.

REPETITION EXPECTED

The Meteoric Showers of Next Month are Expected to be the Greatest Since 1833.

The approaching shower of shooting stars, which is expected to occur Nov. 14, is causing considerable interest. Many of the older people are talking of their experiences in 1833, when the greatest shower of the century occurred. John Koch, of the Second ward, says: "I came to this country in 1831. On November 1, 1833, I was working for the late John Geddes, in his saw-mill at Geddes. We were in the habit of getting up in the morning at 3:30 or 4 o'clock. I recollect that morning very well. We did not know what to make of the phenomena. I thought the end of the world had come. It was a wonderful sight."

James D. Allison, of Pittsfield, came to the country with his parents in 1831. He was a boy seven years old at the time of the star shower in 1833. He recollects the night very well. A neighbor who was drawing a load of wheat to Detroit, when passing their house, awakened the family. He got up with his parents to see the great sight. The heavens were filled with luminous stars. They seemed to be shooting in a slanting direction without striking the earth. No one seemed to know what to make of it.

The general impression seems to indicate that the shower this year will be greater than in 1866. It will be watched with great curiosity.

Puzzling.
"That man Oom Paul always was terribly hard to get along with," remarked the European diplomat.

"He seems to be simplicity itself."

"Yes, but he doesn't conform to the ordinary rules of diplomacy. Whenever he says anything, he means every word of it."—Washington Star.

Uncertain.

"I can't quite make that young fellow out," said the lively stable man.

"What puzzles you about him?"

"Why, he wants a very gentle horse, and I can't tell whether he's afraid or is going to take his best girl driving."—Chicago Post.

OUR COTTON FOR ASIA

CHINA AND JAPAN OFFER A MARKET
FOR OUR RAW MATERIALS.

Shrewd Observations of A. H. Butler
Regarding the Future of Manufacturing in the Orient—Story of a Japanese Watch Factory.

[Special Correspondence.]

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 6.—A. H. Butler, the president of the new steamship line between this city and the orient, is one of the best posted commercial men on the coast. He is largely interested in the cotton business and has been to China and Japan more than a dozen times. He established a watch and clock factory in a nearby town, and later a Japanese company purchased the entire plant and exported the machinery and supplies to the land of the mikado. Speaking of manufacturing in the far east, Mr. Butler told of the success of the watch industry in Japan.

A. H. BUTLER.

"When our American watch factory was moved to Japan," said he, "we took 12 workmen. One was a superintendent, seven were foremen and the remaining four were skilled workmen. In less than a year all of these men had returned to the United States. Their services were no longer needed, as the Japanese workmen had learned the trade so thoroughly that they were able to run the factory without any outside assistance. This single case shows the ability of this imitative race to learn in a short time what it has taken us years to acquire.

"The product turned out by this factory is equal in nearly every way to our ordinary grade of watches, and the Japs have not as yet attempted to make any of the superior lines of watches for which our nation is famous.

"As a shipper of cotton to China and Japan I am much interested in the progress of the textile industries in those countries. It seems to me that these eastern markets offer the only relief in sight for our impoverished cotton growers. When cotton sells as low as it has for the past few years, it is a great problem how the planters of the south can subsist. Now, if the awakened peoples of China and Japan can be induced to draw on us for their increasingly large demand for raw cotton, it seems to me that for a time at least our country cannot but be very materially benefited.

"Both China and Japan are now manufacturing cotton cloth. In 1894 Japan had about 500,000 spindles. Then the war broke out with China, and a great manufacturing impulse followed its termination. Since that year the number of spindles has increased so that now they have 1,500,000. While there has been an overproduction of cotton mills the industry is on a stable basis. Some of these mills merely produce cotton yarn, which is exported to China, where it is woven by cheap labor into the lower grades of cloth.

"China is somewhat behind her Japanese neighbor and appears to make slower progress. Yet China has between 450,000 and 500,000 spindles. She, too, makes only the lower grades of cloth. In 1894 China had 14 cotton factories, and has augmented that number to 20. The merchants of this country I have always found honorable and progressive.

"There is a fierce war going on between the sugar magnates of the Pacific coast. On the one side are the Spreckels interests, with their immense estates on the Hawaiian Islands. On the other side are the Brandensteins. They import their sugar from China. Their raw sugar is grown on the island of Java and in the Philippine group. This product is shipped to China, where in Hongkong there are two refineries. The refined sugar is then exported to the United States, and after coming that long distance is able to compete with the Hawaiian product. This is mentioned to show what cheap Asiatic labor can accomplish.

"Living as I do in this part of the country, I am much interested in the welfare, progress and future of the Pacific coast states. We are bound to increase our manufacturing.

"In regard to the competition of China and Japan against civilized countries, I do not entertain any fears for the present. They will for many years to come be a good market for our raw materials. The opening of the Nicaragua canal will be a good thing for the whole country. But for such cities as New Orleans and Houston the completion of this great enterprise will be a godsend. It will enable cotton bales to be shipped from gulf ports direct to China and Japan. The ships carrying these cargoes will have to stop at San Diego and San Francisco on their way across the sea. Thus we will all be the gainers."

WILLIAM R. BRITTON.

Oct. 2, 1841.

The 2d of October, 1841, dawned on a wintry scene. There was about half a foot of snow, and it interfered with the vote at the "town meetings" in Connecticut, for that date in 1841 also fell on a Monday. "The first Monday in October," the annual day for "town meeting." The trees in that long ago snowstorm were still green and in full leaf, and the weight of the snow broke down hundreds of them. They blocked the roads to such an extent that in many instances wagons and teams had to turn out and go through the fields.

The winter that followed that autumn of 1841 proved to be an "open winter." A little stern wheel steamboat that used to ply between Hartford and Springfield made its trips all winter.—Hartford Times.

The Octopus as Food.

The octopus now finds a place on the fish stalls in Jersey, where it is eaten either dried or fresh. The local estimate of it is that it makes very good eating, but the local taste also inclines to other things which do not find favor with alien palates. Octopus fishing parties have been very popular in the Channel islands of late, not, however, because the uncouth creature is desired for food, but on account of the destruction it works among the lobsters.—London Globe.

He Swallowed It.

A Topeka man lost a small opal out of his ring and went to the jeweler to have it replaced. Returning home, he found the old one and, putting it in his mouth for safe keeping, hurried back to the jeweler's to have that set used instead of the new opal. Rushing into the store, he said, "Say, I've found the old set, so don't use that new one." He attempted to remove the stone from his mouth, gave a gulp, looked sheepish and said, "I guess you'll have to use the new stone."

Got the Better of Him.

"May the best boat win!" exclaimed Mr. Bloomfield. "Don't you say so?" "No, I don't," replied Mr. Bellefield. "Why not?" "I say, 'May the better boat win.'"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR.

The young man was either an optimist or the possessor of a Harveyized steel armor plated nerve. Perhaps he was a little of both.

A short time ago he came to the conclusion that he would like to insure his life. With this object in view he made application to a prominent company. After filling up the necessary form he received an invitation to call upon the medical officer of the company and undergo the usual medical examination. In due course he presented himself at the office of the examining physician.

Requesting the young man to remove his coat and vest, the doctor produced a stethoscope and began his examination. All at once he stopped and regarded the candidate with an expression of alarm.

"Young man," he said, "do you think you can bear a shock?"

"Oh, I think so!" was the cheerful response. "Fire away and let me hear the worst."

"You have only one lung!" announced the doctor solemnly.

"Well, what of that?" retorted the candidate, with the utmost composure. "I never told you I had any more, did I?"

"And yet," said the doctor, "you apply to a respectable company for a policy of life insurance. Do you expect to get it?"

"I certainly do—not only that, but I think I ought to get it at a substantial reduction in the premium."

"Upon what ground, may I ask?"

"Upon the ground that, having only one lung, I am 50 per cent less liable to contract consumption than if I had two lungs."—New York Journal.

The Charm of Liberia.

"I see dey aggeratin dat question ergin 'bout de cullud folks gwine ter Liberia," said the old woman at the washtub.

"Yes, dey at it ergin."

"Is dey got dese yer street railroad frankie dar?"

"Don't ax me!"

"Is dey got electic lights?"

"I don't r'ink so, but de preacher say dey ain't got no control wagon dar."—Atlanta Constitution.

Imbued With His Calling.

Baggage Master (giving chase to a dog which is to be sent by next train)—Hi, stop that parcel!—Judy.

Not All Wool.

"You seem to be proud of your long, pointed spines," remarked the rabbit to the porcupine. "But they don't keep you warm. See how you shiver when a cold wind blows! You ought to have a warm fur coat like mine."

"You're not all wool by any means," retorted the porcupine. "Your tail is notoriously a cotton affair."—Chicago Tribune.

A Valuable Letter.

"Why don't you drop that letter in a street box, instead of carrying it to the postoffice yourself?"

"I am afraid to trust a valuable letter in a street box."

"What is valuable about the letter?"

"It's a proposal to Miss Dolyers."—Detroit Free Press.

Only One Fault.

"There's only one fault to be found with your comedy work, old man," said the dramatic critic.

"What's that?" asked the aspiring young actor.

"It's tragic."—Chicago Post.

A Strong Recommendation.

"But, sir, what has your candidate ever done to deserve the support of the people?"

"Well, for one thing, this is the first time he has ever run for office."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Doubly Dangerous.

"That yachting course would be doubly dangerous for bicycles, wouldn't it?"

"Why so?"

"Because of the split tacks."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Cheerful Lover.

I love the gentle breeze that sways
The branches overhead;

I love to stroll in woodland ways
Ere summer days have fled;

I love to sit beside the stream
That sings down to the sea
And hear the saucy catbird scream
Anathemas at me.

I love the blue up in the sky,
The flock upon the hill;

I love the billowy field of rye
Behind the silent hill;

I love the distant bell that sends
Its message on the air;

The birds and beasts I hail as friends,
And all the world is fair.

I love a little maiden who Looks at me roughly;

The books that I have gathered, too,
Are very dear to me.

I love the earth, the sea, the sky,
The glad wind from the west;

I love the brooklet singing by,
But I love to loaf the best.

Brazil's gold mines show an increasing yield.

Immense coalfields have been discovered in Zululand.

A comparatively new business is the making of artificial palms.

Nervous people and those with weak hearts should abstain from coffee.

There must be a good reason why the coffee lovers of America buy millions of pounds of ARBUCKLES' COFFEE in preference to any other kind. The reason is found in its rich drinking qualities; in its permanent goodness. The quality never changes. Whether you buy it of a big coffee dealer or at a little grocery store around the corner, you get the same coffee, the same goodness, the same value for your money. You can't be deceived if you buy

ARBUCKLES'

Roasted Coffee

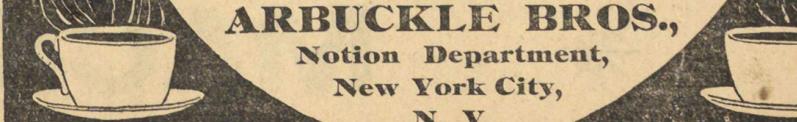

It is prepared by an individual firm who value their reputation too highly to endanger it by lowering the standard of their coffee. It is hermetically sealed and put up in packages by people of many years experience and utmost reliability. It is not ground because ground coffee loses two-thirds of its flavor before reaching the consumer. It is not sold in bulk because of the possibilities of adulteration. It is not sold at a high price because it is better to sell millions of pounds of coffee at a small profit than hundreds of pounds at a large profit.

Every package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee contains information about many valuable articles that the consumer is entitled to receive.

Ask your grocer for Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee.

FINE FURNISHINGS FOR WELL DRESSED PEOPLE.

We have used great care in selecting our goods for this department knowing full well that it would be useless to bring out anything but the very best lines. By inspecting our goods you will find they are better made and have a finish which is not usually found in Men's Furnishing houses. As we are in close touch with manufacturers, we are in a position to bring out the new styles as soon as placed on the market, and it is a common saying that our neck wear is sold 25 and 50 per cent. cheaper than the same goods can be bought in Detroit. Our line for this sale will save you money and we take pleasure in quoting a few prices.
