

MYSTERIOUS
DISAPPEARANCE

Dr. Adler of Rochester, N. Y.
Leaves His Hotel.

CARRYING A REVOLVER

He Leaves His Goods Behind Him
in Ann Arbor and has not Since Been Heard of.

One of those unaccountable things hard to be explained, happened at an Ann Arbor hotel last week.

A well-dressed man appeared at the hotel, registering as "Dr. Adler, Rochester, N. Y." He stated that he was a specialist physician, and wanted a room; that he expected to remain all winter. He had with him a trunk and two grips. For two nights he slept in the hotel but took no meals there. He was then seen, by a fellow-guest, to go to his room and, after taking a revolver from his trunk, leave the hotel, since which nothing has been seen of him.
While around the city he was reticent and had little to say to any one, so that nothing of his past history is known.
He was seen so little about the hotel
so little that the clerk and waiters hardly know how he looks and beyond the fact that he appeared to be about 50 years of age, but little description can be given of him. He was evidently not on the beat as his trunk and grips, which have been examined, are filled with good clothes, such as befit
a man of his profession, will many times pay for his stay at hotel. One theory is that he was trying to escape the vengeance of some one; that he saw his pursuer in the city, got his revolver to defend himself and left town immediately to escape. Further developments are looked for.

NEVER DRUNK
IN HIS LIFE

SO SAYS RUSS GODFREY IN HIS
DIVORCE CASE.

A Couple who have been Married for 30 Years, in the Divorce Court.

Laura B. Godfrey has commenced suit against her husband, Russell L.
Godfrey, asking for a divorce on the grounds of drunkenness and cruelty.

Mr. Godfrey lives out on the motor line and is well known here in the city. The parties have been married for 30 years.

Mrs. Godfrey charges that her father gave her a deed to their present farm and that she made out a deed to her husband, with the understanding that it was not to be put on record until after her death. She says that he did put it on record, however,
and now she wants the deed set aside.

Mr. Godfrey files an answer, in which he says that he was never drunk and that he is only a moderate drinker. He sets forth how the present title to the property came about.
The matter of alimony will cut quite a figure in the case.

JUMPED HIS BOARD BILL

YOUNG MAN TRIED TO BEAT THE
COOK HOUSE.

Aut Clerk Starkweather got on His Track and He was Nipped
In Detroit.

A. Harris is the name of a dapper young man who registered at the Cook house last Thursday. Sunday he disappeared without having displayed
the color of money for value received.

By chance yesterday a traveling man engaged Clerk Starkweather in a conversation and in the midst of their talk the drummer remarked that the students were on a vacation. Mr.
Starkweather said he was mistaken.
The drummer said it was queer, but he rode into Detroit with a young fellow who said he was attending college here and that he was now going to enjoy a two weeks' Thanksgiving vacation. He described his companion, and the clerk of the Cook house immediately sized the fellow up as being this same man Harris.

"Did he say where he was going?"
inquired Mr. Starkweather.

"Yes, he told me he was going to put up at the Russell house."

The clerk telephoned down to Detroit, and Harris was nipped.

It has not yet been decided just what will be done with him, but he will be exposed so that hotel beats can't run away with the idea that the Cook house, Ann Arbor, is an easy mark.

ASSIGNMENT
AGRICULTURAL CO.

The Ann Arbor Agricultural Company
this afternoon made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors, to Junius E.
Beal, as the company is unable to meet its obligations as they became due, and it is desirous of making a fair distribution of its property.

All the land, property and accounts of whatever description are assigned to Mr.
Beal. He is to take immediate possession and convert the property and accounts into money with reasonable diligence and despatch.

The Ann Arbor Agricultural Company
is one of the oldest manufacturing companies in the country. It was established in 1867 by Lewis M. Moore in its present location, making its existence thirty-two years.

Said one of its best informed directors
this afternoon: "The present embarrassment can date back for its origin to sixteen years ago. Up to that time it was a paying investment. The company was dealing largely with a Mr. Cribb, of Milwaukee. He was one of its best patrons. He died owing the Ann Arbor Agricultural Company between $13,000 and $14,000. Immediately after, the Milwaukee concern failed, and strange as it may seem, our company has never recovered from that small loss. It has not paid a dividend to the stockholders in sixteen years. There will be no loss to anybody except the stockholders. The debts of the concern are about $35,000.
The real estate is worth $25,000, and we have enough material made up and accounts due us that will pay every cent,
I am sure."

Said another prominent director:
"From the start of that Milwaukee failure we were obliged to borrow money from the bank to carry on the business, and it is no exaggeration to say that we have paid over $100,000 in interest alone.
That sounds big, but we have the books to show for it. Is it any wonder that we eventually had to make an assignment after paying that amount in interest?"

Said Superintendent Moore, who has spent his life in the business: "We have employed as high as eighty men at a time in the concern. Sometimes it would run as low as twelve, but I would say that its average would range from 20 to 50 men, depending upon our orders."

Last summer there was a short-lived strike in the shops on account of the not getting their pay regularly, but every employee had been paid in full and those who were inclined to be disgruntled quickly returned to work.

The present officers of the company are Evert H. Scott, President; John Finnegan, Sec. and Treas.; Eli W. Moore,
Supt.; Pusey W. Moore, bookkeeper.
Its stockholders and directors comprise some of Ann Arbor's wealthiest and most public spirited citizens but they feel that they cannot longer shoulder a responsibility that has demonstrated its incapacity of furnishing a dividend on money invested.

HOLD UP WAS A STUDENT JOKE

BUT A WATCH WAS LOST IN THE MELEE.

Pretty Rough Joke Practiced to Test
a Student's Courage—Lost a Lock of Hair.

The "hold-up" of Sunday night is now explained as a student's practical joke, which had all the indications of being real, and the reason no complaint was made to the officers can thus be well understood. There is a student here from the west who has been telling his companions of adventures with footpads until they believed he was a modern Munchausen. They proposed putting his mettle to the test and in some way induced a girl to make an appointment with him at the Ann Arbor depot. When he arrived there they fell upon him, and he proved that he was of good fighting stock and had not been talking through his hat, but gave them a battle royal. One of the attacking party had a pair of clippers which he used on the student's hair. In the melee the students watch was lost.
When his companions heard of this they went back and found the watch and returned it anonymously the next day.
All around it was a very practical joke of a nature that might land some one in states prison. George Pulpicher the Ann Arbor engineer who was reported to have chased the would-be footpads, is understood to deny that he did so, but looks at it in the light of a row among the boys which did not amount to much.

J. F. Schuh is in Chicago this week to contract for a carload of sewing machines. You may look for big bargains in sewing machines next week.

EMERY AND WORDEN MAIL

Will No Longer be Carried from the Ann Arbor Postoffice Delaying Mail from Here.

A change has been made this week in mail delivery in this county by which one star route is split into two and a poor delivery will undoubtedly result to the offices concerned. It is another case going to show that good as our present postal system is, it is not perfect. The offices affected are Emery and Worden. At the time the Ann Arbor road shortened its route through Northfield, Emery and Worden were placed on a star route supplied from Ann Arbor. This worked satisfactorily for some time, but last summer the star routes in this county were re-let. A southern contractor by bidding very low got the contract. It proved a money loser. The first man he found who would carry the mail
so that the contractor might come off whole got in the way of a Wabash train near Britton and was killed just before the time came for him to assume his duties. Various shifts were made, but the contractor could not get the mail carried for the contract price.
He would have to go down in his pocket for a bonus. It is said that he next set to work to get out of the contract, and as a result the star route from Ann Arbor was abolished Nov.
26. This let out the contractor. Emery is now supplied from the Northfield station on the Ann Arbor road and Worden from South Lyon. The trouble with this is that these postoffices, being in Washtenaw county, receive the bulk of their mail from Ann Arbor, the county seat. Now it is extremely difficult to get mail to Worden from Ann Arbor via South Lyon and get an answer in any kind of season. County seat papers will often not reach Worden till the following Monday and two men are now employed to carry the mail where one was employed before.

This transaction seems to an outsider to be on a par with that of compelling the Ann Arbor carriers to carry lanterns in making their afternoon delivery.

SOME INTERESTING
SNAP SHOTS

Judge Person, of Ingham, is not only considerable of a jurist, but a musical composer as well. His latest composition is a march entitled "The Sky Olds Guards."

When the grand jury gets to the McLeod bill it must not forget that the governor had a few strings on that bill himself.

The number and character of local statesmen who were jostling each other to press the hem of Heinrich Christian Schmidt's garment at the Cook house Saturday evening was suggestive of that familiar old melody (or discord) "The Ann Arbor Postoffice Bye and Bye."

By this time next year he will be referred to as Mr. Judson, late of Washtenaw, now director of the Michigan Sanitarium at Jackson, for disabled financiers, locksmiths and others who have temporarily withdrawn from public life.

Unsophisticated people should not deceive themselves with the notion that Washtenaw's Rough Riders were mustered out when Peace Commissioner Knowlton's protocol was signed.
The present unwonted quiet is due to a brief furlough which Col. Judson's regiment is taking while assimilating
the spoils of victory up to date.

And now Premier Norris refers to a co-ordinate branch of the city government as the "Bored" of Public Works.

Looking backward with a 60-day retrospect, it would seem that Prof.
Knowlton's contract is unilateral in some of its conditions. The Rough Riders had the plum crop already harvested; the anti secured by the agreement an unlimited opportunity to shut up and look pleasant.

One who knows "Hank" Smith and his erstwhile haughty exterior cannot but remark the true Christian spirit of meekness and humility with which he has taken up a congressman's burden.
Perhaps it is his enforced association with the plain and humble German editor that has accomplished this remarkable change.

I will be at the county treasurer's office, Wednesday, Dec. 13, for the purpose of collecting the taxes of the township of Scio and also on each Wednesday in December thereafter.
DAVID E. WAITE, Treasurer.

BOUND OVER TO CIRCUIT COURT

Charles Thompson, who was arrested
Monday night on a charge of assault with intent to murder, was bound over to the circuit court by Justice Doty today. Only one witness, the complaining one, Alex. Craig, was sworn. He testified that he was standing by a pool-table in Polhemus', last Saturday night, when Thompson, who had been having some trouble with other men, came up to him, saying, "I'll kill you,"
and struck him with a knife. Craig ran. Thompson was bound over to the circuit court in default of $300 bail.

POISONED BY MEDICAL STUDENT

ELMER SHREVES WHO WORKED
AT DELHI MILLS.

The Medical Student Attended a Detroit College—Drug Store Found Which Sold the Poison.

The mystery surrounding the death of Elmer U. Shreves, the Delhi Mills man who died of poisoning a few weeks ago at Nick Miller's saloon in Detroit, may be near a solution. That the man was foully dealt with, there is no longer any doubt. Detectives Brooks and Monahan of the Detroit police force have learned that poison was procured in a drug store near the saloon, and that Shreves was not the first man who had been doped at that joint. Physicians in the Miner building have been called frequently to attend to some of Nick's customers, who suffered from the effects of poisoning. Suspicion points to a Detroit medical student, who is known to have purchased the drugs and to have made the Cadillac square saloon his headquarters. It is significant that since Shreves' death this student has disappeared. If this suspicion be well founded, the murder was rather the deed of a maniac, who, perhaps, desired to study the effects of poison by actual experiments.

The detectives know this student's name and identity, and are looking toward his arrest.

WILLIAM CUSIC
STRUCK BY TRAIN

INSTANTLY KILLED ON CENTRAL TRACKS NEAR DEXTER.

He Was Walking on the Track When
East-Bound N. Y. and Boston
Special Struck Him.

William Cusic, of Brighton, aged about 20, was struck by the east-bound New York and Boston Special, which passes through Ann Arbor at 4:58, on Wednesday evening and instantly killed. The accident occurred about a mile west of Dexter. At this point the road has a double track, and Cusic was walking on the track. It is supposed that he thought the train was on the other track from the one he was walking on. The body was taken to Dexter and a coroner's inquest is being held,
the jury having adjourned until today.
Cusic's body was badly mangled, but his face was untouched. His father, brother and a sister live in Green Oak,
and another sister lives in Webster.
The train was an hour late passing through Ann Arbor.

Tuomey Against Harmon
Holmes.

The following is the bill of particulars in the case of John J. Tuomey, of Detroit, vs. Harmon S. Holmes, of Chelsea, as was filed by the plaintiff:

1. To money had and received from the plaintiff under an express agreement to repay the same to the plaintiff, when recovered from a certain mortgage, upon which the defendant loaned the same to Clara M. Ismon, mortgagee—$7,800.

2. To interest on the same at the rate of 6 per cent per annum from
Nov. 4, 1893, to date—$2,800.80

3. To services as manager of the defendants' store at Jackson from July 15, 1891, to Nov. 30, 1894,—$13-166.65. Total, $23,775.45.

It is said that Mr. Holmes claims to hold a receipt in full.

REED'S RULES LIKELY TO GO.

Another session of Congress is near at hand and a speaker of the house is to be elected. But there will be no contest, as it has long been settled that David B. Henderson, of Iowa, will succeed Czar Reed in the speakership. There is much interest, however, in the question as to the rules which the house will adopt. It is pretty safe to predict a decided change from the arbitrary procedure under Speaker Reed. Reed is one of the ablest of the many able men who have occupied the speaker's chair, but he was arbitrary and despotic in his rule. He brought about one important reform: he made it possible for the majority of the house to do business. He believed the members were there for that purpose, and that no fiction of being constructively absent while actually present should be allowed to block the progress of business. He was not the author of the idea of counting a quorum, but he was the first to apply the principle in the national house of representatives. But instead of stopping with a reasonable and just curtailment of the rights claimed by a refractory minority, he reduced that minority to a nonentity and exercised like control over the majority. The house almost ceased to be a deliberative body, and only such matters as were in accord with the speaker's own ideas were allowed to come before that body.

But Reed's methods worked his own undoing. Members of his own party became restive under his arbitrary methods, and, as time passed, he found himself so far out of touch with his fellow-partisans that he decided to quit congress. Now that he is gone, his despotic methods will scarcely be brooked any longer. The republican majority in the present house is quite small, and the house will probably make its own rules. It is not probable that the house will re-adopt the Reed rules, but will establish in their stead a more liberal parliamentary code. Gen. Henderson is a more politic man than Reed and lacks his powerful intellectuality. He is not lacking in firmness, but is more careful, and under his speakership the house will experience a new dispensation.

At last the newspapers provoked Admiral Dewey into talking. It was the first time and, as was to be expected, a mistake.

Gen. Lord Kitchener has killed 400 more dervishes in the Soudan. Great is Gen. Kitchener. Let him be called home and honored, and let the British public subscribe for another college for blacks in that region.

The British army, which is advancing to relieve Kimberley, surprised the Boers at Belmont and won a victory. It appears that the British numbered 7,000, while there were only 5,000 Boers engaged. More than 220 British were lost, and, while Gen. Methuen reports heavier losses on the side of the Boers, he says they carried off many of their dead, and so he does not know just what their loss was. That they inflicted such heavy losses on the British, and yet were able to escape, carrying away their dead, shows that they were not routed, notwithstanding their greatly inferior numbers. The route of the relieving column is now open to the Modder river, where they will be obliged to meet the Boers again before Kimberley can be relieved. The British forces are, however, in sufficient numbers now to begin to push the Boers back to their own territory. But the battle of Belmont shows at what fearful cost the work will be accomplished.

"I am Hale and Hearty Now," writes C. B. Hill, of Marshall, Mich., "a living proof of the efficacy of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I have suffered 20 years from heart trouble, and became so bad I could not lie down to sleep. Physicians failed to help me, and I was advised to try Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, which benefited me from the first. I continued using it and now am in perfect health."

The democratic executive committee of the national democratic committee decided at a meeting in Chicago, Tuesday, that the Chicago platform of 1896 must be reaffirmed with additional planks against trusts and imperialism. But just what the permanent issue will be cannot yet be predicted.

South Americans cannot, it seems, be made to believe that Uncle Sam has no designs upon the peace and territory of the Spanish-American republics. That he has no such designs or intentions is well understood by our citizens, but it is not surprising that they should think so. Some of our recent doings to an outsider must give color to the idea that the great republic has become a nation of conquest. We are not so sure that we should not hold similar views under like conditions about any other nation.

It is said that fourth-class postmasters and contractors propose to prevent appropriations for the extension of free rural mail delivery at the coming session of Congress, if possible. But it has become so popular among the farmers that it is hardly possible to do this, it would seem. Certainly the wishes of those who receive their mail in this way should be heeded, rather than the few fourth-class postmasters, who may thereby lose their jobs. Free delivery has come to stay, and it should and, no doubt, will be extended and improved.

The Ingham grand jury has brought in no indictments yet; but, it is safe to say, there are some mighty anxious patriots on the front seats just the same. They would like to know whether their thanksgiving dinner is to be turkey or crow. Without doubt, the grand jury is on the track of people who would have steady employment, if they had their earnings; but it is a mighty difficult thing to convict them. Nevertheless, these people do not know just how much of their doings the grand jury may have knowledge of, and hence they are naturally perturbed.

And now it is said the push has selected D. M. Ferry to be the republican candidate for governor next year. This is probably correct, for that is the way gubernatorial candidates are usually selected by the republicans. The push decide on a man and then the common herd throw up hats and declare he is just the man wanted. Mr. Ferry is about as near the people as the east is to the west; but that cuts no ice, if he has the support of the push. And, if he is nominated, he will pretty certainly be elected. One unacquainted with the conditions might think such a notorious administration as Pingree has given the state would lead to a reaction, but it requires vastly more to influence Michigan to vote against party nominees.

Now it is reported ex-Senator Arthur P. Gorman, of Maryland, will commence a campaign to side-track Bryan for the democratic nomination next year.

Thursday at Boston the Knights of Labor took strong ground against the foreign policy of the administration. The resolution passed is as follows:

Resolved, That the general assembly of the Knights of Labor condemns the foreign policy of the national administration in its effort to subjugate the Filipinos by conquest, and opposes the extension of our territory or government beyond the limits of this continent, as contrary to American principles, the American people's interests and the interests of the great mass of working people.

It would seem that the Filipino insurrection cannot hold out much longer. The organized forces of Aguinaldo have been decimated and scattered, and with the American armies occupying the positions they do, it is difficult to see how they can be gotten together again. However, it will not be safe to conclude that the end is at hand until Aguinaldo is captured. There will be no settlement of matters there until he is eliminated from the problem.

Within a few days Congress will be in session again with an unusually full calendar. Some of the questions pressing for settlement are as important as any the government has ever been called upon to face. There will be a government to be made for Hawaii, another for Porto Rico, some sort of a settlement for the island of Cuba, and likewise the determination of a Philippine policy. Then there remains the necessity for financial legislation, which was the paramount issue of the last presidential campaign and which remains as an unredeemed obligation of the party in power. Today the country is moving along in prosperous lines, but it should not be forgotten the same cancer remains in the currency that brought on the greatest panic the country ever experienced. The endless chain is still in just as good working order as ever and only needs some flurry to start it into motion again. To settle these great questions aright will tax the ability of congress and make the coming session a memorable one either for accomplishment or failure.

Reports from Lansing indicate that important evidence was discovered, Thursday, going to establish the truth of Agent Pratt's story relative to the law library deal. Documentary evidence is said to have been brought forth by Pratt to corroborate his story. Evidence of the existence of the drafts and the contract is said to have been produced. Pratt's stenographer was able to produce certain stenographic notes on various letters, and also a letter from the publishing house represented by Pratt bearing upon the case. An office boy was found also, who was able to give considerable evidence about the alleged destruction of the letter and drafts last week. The nature of the evidence is said to be startling and to round out the evidence against certain suspected persons to completeness. Prosecutor Tuttle is quoted as saying, he will not only indict, but will convict. Everybody hopes the matter will be thoroughly probed and the guilty ferreted out and punished. That corruption stalks boldly in our legislature is believed by most people. But it is extremely difficult to bring the corruptionists to punishment. The public conscience is low relative to frauds committed against the public. The public by many is considered a proper subject for plunder, and the influence and vote of the public official too often depend upon what there is in the matter being considered for the official. Thus the interests of the public are sold out by the officials sworn to protect those interests. Ability to evade punishment for these crimes makes the criminals more bold. If Prosecutor Tuttle can succeed in bringing some of these rascals to justice, he will deserve well at the hands of the people.

HEADACHE cured in 20 minutes by Dr. Miles' PAIN PILLS. "One cent a dose." At druggists.

Bantista, president of the Filipino congress, has surrendered to Gen. MacArthur and renounced all further connection with the Filipino government. In fact, there has ceased to be any such government. It has disintegrated into its component parts, and each man appears to have gone his own way. The elusive Aguinaldo is still at large, but his government is out of commission and his army scattered into small bands, which are expending all their energy in keeping out of the way of the Americans. The American people are anxious for the finish and want it to come quickly.

A MOST WONDERFUL CURE

Eminent Physicians Pronounced it Consumption.

Dr. C. D. Warner, Coldwater, Mich. Dear Sir:—I have received great benefit from your White Wine of Tar Syrup. I had a cough and the doctors gave up all hopes of my recovery and pronounced it consumption; I thought that it was death for me. I tried everything that we could hear of. Finally one of my friends prevailed upon me to use your White Wine of Tar Syrup. I took 14 bottles and am cured entirely. Such medicine I can recommend to those who are afflicted as I was.

Difficult Operation at the University Hospital.

The university doctors are called upon to perform most every kind of an operation during the course of a year but yesterday, at the University hospital, there was one of the most unusual upon which the surgeon is ever asked to contribute his skill.

A little girl was brought here suffering from spine abscess. In other words, there was an opening or breach in the bone of the spinal column from which the membrane to the spinal cord protruded. This caused a leakage of the spinal fluid which would eventually result in death.

The surgeons cut open the back of the child, and practically put a patch over the membrane by dissecting back the skin and then sewing it up so as to strengthen the membrane.

The operation was successful in every way.

THE CROWN OF LOVE. What does love mean and how much happiness does it bring to the average woman? To be a sweet-heart, a wife, a mother—this is called the crown of womanhood; yet there are crowns which bring only misery and pain to the wearers.

Can any woman who suffers with constant dragging, wearying, life-sapping ailments be happy? Does not her crown of womanhood become a symbol of martyrdom rather than of happiness? If ailing women realized how surely Dr. Pierce's wonderful "Favorite Prescription" would restore them to complete health and the perfection of queenliness, there would be more coronets of joy set upon brows now crowned with misery.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 828 East College St., Jacksonville, Ill. "For three years I suffered continually. Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none, until induced by kind friends to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. After taking 'Favorite Prescription' I was built up until now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before."

"I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains in the lower part of my bowels, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman. Thank you to your medicine. I never forget to recommend it to all suffering women. I consider myself a living testimonial of the benefits of your 'Favorite Prescription.'"

Any woman may write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., with the utmost confidence. He will give her case careful consideration and send her a letter of common-sense, professional advice free of charge.

If your head aches, the trouble is pretty sure to be constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will cure you.

TWO ELOQUENT SERMONS BY TWO CATHOLIC DIGNITARIES

Archbishop Ireland Preached
in the Morning.

TRUTH OF RELIGION

Showing that all Men by their Consciousness Acknowledge
Some Religion.

"But answered and said it is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. (Math. 4:4.)

Archbishop John Ireland, D.D., of St. Paul, gave a most thoughtful, logical, eloquent and practical sermon on Matthew 4:4: "But he answered and said, it is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." He said the dedication of a temple of religion was an affirmation of the words of the Saviour. Temples of religion have always existed and always will exist in some form, from the rudest huts to the pagodas of India. From cathedrals to village chapels. Temples of religion would always exist because of the inward feeling of man. Religion primarily means the uniting of one person with another. It means the uniting of man with God. The universality of religion provides an argument that cannot be evaded. In the words of Herbert Spencer, religion was everywhere. Plutarch said: "You may find cities without walls or writing, but a people without religion cannot be found." Cicero said people could be found that knew not what God to worship, but none that did not worship some God.

There were no tribes of people, no matter how degraded, but had some form of religion. If religion was merely a passing fashion, a groundless hope, its universality could not be explained. As man receded from the practices of religion, he receded from human nature. Religion had the approval of reason. History had shown that religion had not been without errors in the past, and superstition had crept in, but religion was what man needed. Its chief elements were worship, submission and hope.

Worship is the effusion of the soul toward a superior being. It comprises adoration, the act of gratitude for favors received and supplication for those needed.

Worship is nothing else but the God consciousness put in us by Him who made us. There never was an effect without an original cause. There must have been an original cause for everything and that first cause we call God. They say science does away with the need of a God, but science tells us nothing of the causes of the laws of science, and this only goes to show the grandeur of the very cause of those laws. That we cannot reproduce God in our picture painting, we confess; but that we do not know enough about God to establish relations with him, we deny.

God is, indeed, mysterious, but He is not unknowable. If God is our creator, we owe Him worship. If we belong to Him, why should we not ask favors of Him? If He is our benefactor, why should we not thank Him? Secondly, submission. It is the instinct to human nature. It is consciousness. There is above man a careful guardian of the law who will reward or smite according as the moral laws have been obeyed or violated. Consciousness is not merely a feeling of righteousness, but it is a feeling that there is a guardian of righteousness. This is the essential characteristic of human nature that differentiates it from a mere animal. The fact that we have consciousness is a confession that there is a God. The fact that man exists makes relations between himself and his creator necessary, and moral laws follow these relations. There ever will be morality. There can be no humanity without morality. And there can be no morality without religion. If there were no God we would invent one for the sake of humanity. Third, hope. It will ever live in the souls of man. It is the happiness of the soul. The realism of hopes must be found somewhere, but not upon earth. Its condition must be in the immortality of the soul. Often iniquity is triumphant on earth. Why is it, if there is a just God? It is because the place of judgment is not upon earth, but beyond. Religion ennobles life. Man is lifted up to the presence of God, his soul communes with the maker, and then returns to earth strengthened against temptation.

The archbishop then closed with a tribute to the pastor and people, who had erected the fine church.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR DECEMBER TERM

The criminal calendar for the December term of the circuit court will not be a very exciting or extended one. Prosecuting Attorney Kirk gives the following as the list:

People vs. Oliver Alfred, adultery.

People vs. Erastus Brooks, exposing person.

People vs. Frank Hill et al., assault and battery.

People vs. Herman Knapp, entering a dwelling house.

People vs. E. E. Jones, violation of liquor law.

People vs. William Canady and Etta England, adultery.

People vs. Frank Diamond, larceny.

Monseigneur Conaty Preached
in the Evening.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH

To Show that Its Religion was the only Religion Pleasing to God Himself.

"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." (1 Cor. 2:11.)

Mgr. Conaty, as if by some prearrangement with Archbishop Ireland, took up the thread of logical argument and presented a fine sequel to the latter's sermon at St. Thomas' church yesterday morning. Most Reverend Archbishop Ireland had shown that there was an absolute necessity of a religion and that all men, by their own consciousness, acknowledged that there was a religion, whatever the form. There he stopped, and right there is where Mgr. Conaty took it up and proceeded to show that some religion being of necessity, the Catholic religion was the only true one, the only commissioned one, the only one acceptable to God.

Said he in substance: Reason tells us that religion is the tie that binds us to God, He demanding religion from us. He must, therefore, have shown us how we can offer to Him religion that would be acceptable to Him. It has never been demonstrated in history that God allowed men to choose for themselves their forms of religion. Consequently we must look to God as to what is true religion. There can be but one great truth, and therefore there can be but one great religion, and there can only be one great religion that is acceptable to God.

We immediately strike against the assertion that positive religion is a thing of the past—that it matters not what we believe. But if we read right, we will find that religion always bore the marks of positiveness. It is but an expression of what God demands. God would not be the God of Truth if He did not affirm the positive laws which would be pleasing to Him. We hear much against dogmatic religion. They go as far as to say that the dogma is beneath the dignity of religion. Yet, in their assertion, they are the most dogmatic of men, for they assume an infallibility when saying that dogma is not needed in religion.

What is dogma? It is nothing more or less than the affirmation of principles underlying truth. They say that it is enough for a man to be good. What is goodness? What is right? What is wrong? Underneath right and wrong are principles that dogmatic elements make into dogma, pure and simple. A dogma is the elucidation of truth that underlies all thinking.

God has the character of a teacher or one who sends His servants with His message. He established how man should worship Him. Read your Old Testament. You will find in it a religion with a dogma. Was there any freedom of choice? No, it was to believe and to act according to that belief. All is subservient to a great positive teacher, a great dogma of religion.

They say that with Christ came a freedom from the old ceremonialists. Yes, but with Christ came more dogma. The old ceremonial prepared for His coming. He came to perfect the religion of the old law. He came with a positive doctrine to believe—and with a positive action to follow that belief. Believe and practice. Worship with submission. Look at His malediction on the Scribes and Pharisees. That was dogmatic. He did appeal to one thing, however. It was to His resurrection. He pointed to His tomb and said: "The third day I will rise again." The resurrection day followed. The tomb opened and Christ stood among His followers. The truth was asserted. He had redeemed mankind from their sins. His doctrine was the only doctrine. His salvation was the only salvation. Read those chapters of Christ's life, believing them to be the word of God, and how can you hesitate to concede that Christ was the leader of a positive religion? The apostles came with a message, and to teach that message—not to argue. The authority under which they taught it was Christ Himself. They bade men confess their sins and they gave absolution. When others said that none could give pardon but God, they replied that they had heard the commission. They preached the one gospel as it had been received from Christ. They established the Church of Christ upon the foundation built by Christ that it might stand till the end of time.

What, then, can we think of a religion without a dogma. Sift it down and there is still a dogma. When they say that true religion is a religion without a creed they assert an absurdity. A creedless Christianity is a Christless Christianity. Religion is not dependent. We are only one part in religion. God is the other, and religion only becomes ours when we make the objective part a portion of our actions and life. If anything stands out in religion, it is positiveness. To believe is to do.

Men ask why we today blessed these walls, why the smoking incense is rising from the altar. Is it sentiment? No, it is simply following the apostolic teachings. This pulpit is to be the place of teaching a positive religion. What authority has this church to stand in the community as a Chris-

DON'T LEAVE THE CITY.

Plenty of Proof Right Here in Ann Arbor.

Claim is one thing, proof another. Columbus claimed the world was round. Did people believe it? Not until he proved it. Unproven claims have made the people skeptics. Every claim made for the "Little Conqueror" is proven. Proven in Ann Arbor by local experience. Here is one case from the many we have.

Mr. F. Wolter, of 1103 Forest ave., carpenter, says: "In spite of all I could do to check it, I had a weakness of the kidneys and a loss of control over the secretions. At times, when my work necessitated my looking up or working over my head, I was taken with spells of dizziness. When a friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box at Eberbach & Son's drug store and began to use them. I felt better from the start, and they did me more good than all the other medicine I ever took."

tan church and assert that it alone has the true religion? Look at its commission. Dig down to its foundation and examine its principles. Look at the pontiff and read his right, traced through twenty centuries of succession to dedicate it in the manner in which he did. You will find the warrant for the commission of the Catholic church in its teachings.

There is one unchangeable truth—the same as was taught by Peter in Judea, the same that we have been preaching for twenty centuries of changing time, and our church remains always the same. Truth is God; it is eternal; it is unchangeable. This church is not a church of today, but its growth is of today. There is not a discordant note in its teachings. Its traditions are not of today, but are of that old Catholic church founded by Christ. There is a dearness in the instincts of Catholicity. She stands demanding no excuse for remaining. Her truth comes from Christ. Heed not men who tell you that the Catholic church is the church of emotions—that it is for the common people alone. The church is based upon an intellectual truth. It is for everybody. Tell the cultured mind to study its history, its doctrine, its commission, and see if the Teacher has become silent. Education falsely leads men to think that they can do away with God, but, thanks, the pendulum is swinging back, and the cultured mind is yearning for a great positive religion.

Mgr. Conaty closed with a most eloquent passage of fealty to Catholicism and America; to the mother church, which was the only truth and which had become all the more beautiful because of its persecutions, and to America because it has taught all mankind to leave it unpersecuted.

"You, mother church, and America, are the sweetest things in life. May you both rule everything according to your own missions," said he.

TWO STUDENTS WERE HELD UP

By 8 Men Last Night at the Ann Arbor Depot.

TOOK TICKETS AND CASH

Engineer Pulcifer and His Fireman Chased the Gang
the Hill.

Last evening about 8 o'clock two students residing in the Second ward were held up on S. Ashley st. on the sidewalk at the baggage room just south of the Ann Arbor depot, and relieved of their money and watches. As they were going home eight hoodlums or tramps jumped out from behind the baggage room and knocked down the students and went through their clothes. One of the young men was almost choked into insensibility. During the melee Engineer George Pulcifer came up with his engine. He saw the trouble, stopped his engine and jumped off with his fireman, both being armed with wrenches, and chased the hoodlums up the hill. The names of the two students could not be ascertained. This hold up is another evidence that both the city and the Ann Arbor road should light up the street and depot. It took place an hour before the excursion train left for Toledo. Efforts should be made to break up the hold-up fashion prevailing in the city at present.

The matter has not been reported officially to either Marshal Gerstner, Sheriff Gillen or the deputies.

The Appetite of a Goat Is envied by all poor dyspeptics whose stomach and liver are out of order. All such should know that Dr. King's New Life Pills the wonderful stomach and liver remedy, gives a splendid appetite, sound digestion and a regular bodily habit that insures perfect health and great energy. Only 25 cents a box at Eberbach & Son, Schumacher & Miller, of Ann Arbor, and G. J. Haussier, of Manchester, drug store.

AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

Concerning the Dedication of
New Catholic Church

MANY DIGNITARIES

Were Present Including the Representatives of Three Catholic Universities.

St. Thomas' church was appropriately and solemnly dedicated yesterday. It was the most imposing religious ceremony that has ever been witnessed in Ann Arbor.

Present were the Most Reverend John Ireland, D.D., archbishop of St. Paul, whose broad Catholicity, true Americanism and rugged personality has made him one of the best loved ecclesiastics in the country; Bishop Foley, of Detroit; Bishop Richter, of Grand Rapids; Bishop Maes, of Covington, Ky.; Bishop McGolick, Duluth; Bishop Eis, Marquette; Right Reverend Mgr. Conaty, rector of the Catholic University of Washington; Right Reverend Mgr. Joos, of Monroe, and 33 priests, including many men of note.

No ordinary occasion could have drawn all these men together. The great work that St. Thomas' church has been doing in this city was fittingly recognized, as was the fact that its work includes the caring for the numerous Roman Catholic students in the state university. Present, as recognizing this fact, were representatives from the Catholic University in Washington, D.C., Notre Dame University, Detroit College, and Assumption College.

The church was crowded, large seating capacity that it has, and there were present members of all the churches in the city. At 10:30 o'clock the ceremony of dedication began. The bishops and clergy proceeded to the grand central portal of the church, and after the prayer and the chanting of the Fiftieth Psalm they proceeded around the exterior of the church, the archbishop sprinkling the walls with holy water. Returning to the front portal, after prayer by the bishop, the solemn procession entered the church building, and the interior of the sacred edifice was dedicated. After this the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass was offered for the first time within the new church with the following officers of the Mass: Celebrant, Right Reverend John S. Foley, of Detroit; archdeacon, Very Reverend President Morrissey, of Notre Dame; deacons of honor, Very Rev. President Foley, of Detroit; Rev. D. A. Tighe, of Chicago; deacon, Rev. D. P. Coyle, of Detroit; subdeacon, Rev. S. Hally, of Wyandotte; chanters, Rev. Vice President, Dumochil, of Assumption College; Rev. T. F. O'Rourke, of Monroe; acolytes, Rev. J. P. Ryan, of Dexter; Rev. Frank Kennedy, of Ypsilanti; book bearer, Rev. T. F. Delanty, of Big Rapids; candle bearer, Rev. L. P. Goldrick, of Northfield; thurifer Vincent Murphy; gremallo, David Dillon; crosser bearer, Joseph Sharpe; mitre bearer, Henry Schroder; masters of ceremony, Very Rev. F. A. O'Brien, Rev. Henry Norton, Rev. Joseph McCabe.

Haydn's Imperial Mass was sung by the choir under the direction of Prof. L. Renwick, the sweet-toned, new pipe organ being used for the first time for public services.

Glorious News

Comes from Dr. D. B. Cargile, of Washita, I. T. He writes: "Four bottles of Electric Bitters have cured Mrs. Brewer of scrofula, which had caused her great sufferings for years. Terrible sores would break out on her head and face, and the best doctors could give no help; but her cure is complete and her health is excellent." This shows what thousands have proved—that Electric Bitters is the best blood purifier known. It's the supreme remedy for eczema, tetter, salt rheum, ulcers, boils and running sores. It stimulates liver, kidneys and bowels, expels poisons, helps digestion, builds up the strength. Only fifty cents. Sold by Eberbach & Son, Schumacher & Miller, Ann Arbor, and G. J. Haussier, Manchester, druggists. Guaranteed.

WAS BONDED FOR $100,000

But Ann Arbor Burned the Bonds
Before Delivery.

CHAPTER OF HISTORY

Indicating How Ann Arbor Escaped Paying $100,000 for a Road Never Built.

There is a page in the history of Ann Arbor that is particularly interesting in that the city narrowly escaped being saddled with a big bonded indebtedness. The city had deposited $100,000 bonds with the state treasurer for the benefit of the then Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern Railroad Co., now known as the Ann Arbor road. The then city attorney, Zina P. King, became alarmed lest the bonds might get into the hands of innocent purchasers outside of the state and the city would have to pay the bonds and yet have no road, and as it afterwards turned out, this road was never built. The matter was first brought up in the city council by a petition signed by Sedgwick Dean and others. Then on March 4, 1872, on motion of Ald. Leland, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, That Emanuel Mann be and is hereby appointed to receive from the state treasurer of this state the bonds of this city of Ann Arbor, voted in aid of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern Railroad and deposited with said state treasurer in trust for said railroad, and the said treasurer is hereby requested to cancel and deliver said bonds to said Emanuel Mann and such delivery shall be a delivery to said city."

This was followed on March 9, 1872, as the official record shows: "Ald. Mann, having as directed by the council, obtained the bonds voted by the city in aid of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern railroad from the state treasurer, delivered the same to the council."

"On motion of Ald. Leland, the recorder was directed to count and report the denominations and amount of the council."

"The recorder reported one hundred $500 bonds, one hundred $200 bonds and three hundred $100 bonds, amounting to $100,000."

"On motion, the report was accepted and adopted."

"On motion of Ald. Gott, the recorder was directed to burn the bonds in the presence of the council, which was done by the recorder as directed."

Mr. King was asked about this episode, and said that the matter originated wholly with him. He saw that although the bonds were void in the hands of citizens of this state under the decision of what was known as the Salem railroad case having been issued by a municipal corporation in aid of a private company, nevertheless there were great fears that such bonds might be held good in the hands of bona fide citizens of other states. He therefore thought it best to inquire in what manner and under what conditions the bonds would be surrendered by the state treasurer, with whom they had been deposited, to the city of Ann Arbor, for such disposition as the council might determine. He thereupon, on his own responsibility, addressed a letter to the state treasurer inquiring of him upon what terms he would surrender the bonds to the city. He replied upon the written order and request of the president and secretary of the railroad company. Mr. King replied asking the state treasurer to draft such a request as would be acceptable to him and he, Mr. King, would endeavor to secure the officers' signatures. The state treasurer sent the form and Mr. King at once interviewed Dr. Silas H. Douglas, president of the road, and after some hesitation on his part, obtained his signature. He then went to Elijah W. Morgan, the secretary of the railroad company for his signature. Mr. Morgan at once made the statement that, as a matter of law, he believed the bonds would be good in the hands of bona fide parties outside of the state. Mr. King told him that was the very thing he was trying to prevent, and after some hesitation Mr. Morgan also signed the request. Having procured the request of the president and secretary of the railroad company, Mr. King deemed it best to get the matter before the council for official action, and therefore drafted a petition and induced Sedgwick Dean and others to sign it, requesting the council to take action for the return of the bonds. The action taken by the council upon the petition is shown by the records and stated above. A certified copy of the resolution and the request of the president and secretary of the railroad company were sent to the Hon. Emanuel Mann, then state senator at Lansing, with the additional request that Mr. Mann go to the state treasurer's office and secure the bonds and send them by express to the city recorder, Leonard Gruner. As soon as Mr. Gruner received the bonds he informed Mr. King, who immediately informed the mayor, who called a meeting for that evening, when they were destroyed as stated above. The company were entitled to delivery of these bonds upon the fulfillment of certain conditions which the city thinks were nearly complied with. His haste and anxiety was to get the officers of the company to deliver the bonds from the state treasurer. The company had practically failed at this time but had not yet gone into bankruptcy. His desire was to save the city from the fate of the sister city of Ypsilanti, whose railroad bonds went into the hands of non-residents, and the United States court held them good. The face value of the bonds was $100,000, and as they were given for a long term, at a high rate of interest, the entire indebtedness before maturity would have amounted to something over $150,000.

The council room at that time was in the second story of a small two-story brick building situated where the engine house now stands. In the center of the council chamber there was an enormous box stove. The mayor presided at the meetings on a little raised platform at the end of the room. Between the mayor and the stove there was an oval table about the size of a large dining room table, around which sat the aldermen, putting their hats, canes, umbrellas and pipes in the center of the table. The mayor directed the recorder to put the bonds into the stove to burn. The heat of the burning was so great that the aldermen were compelled to get up and move the table. Everybody in the council chamber seemed pleased and relieved to know the bonds were in ashes.

The course taken by Dr. Douglas and Mr. Morgan in signing the request for the return of the bonds, entitled them to the thanks of this community, because their conversation with Mr. King showed they clearly saw how they might be pecuniarily benefited by the bonds passing into the hands of parties outside of the state. They were willing to sacrifice this personal interest for the public good and are entitled to the lasting gratitude of this city for that unselfish act.

A MOUNTAIN OF GOLD QUARTZ

H. M. WALLACE HAS FOUND ONE IN ALASKA.

Will Get Machinery and Return There
next Spring—Mr. Hunt
Also Here.

H. M. Wallace, the Klondiker, has returned from the gold fields of Alaska, brim full of confidence. Mr. Hunt, of State st., who went with him, also returned in order to get some machinery for running the quartz. Mr. Wallace says that they have lately discovered a mountain of gold quartz with about $150,000 worth of the ore lying around on the ground. Mrs. Hunt, who accompanied the party, will remain in Skagway during the winter. She says she prefers that country to the states. Mr. Wallace will organize another party and will return to Alaska in the spring.

WILL KEEP MEN AT WORK

The assignment of the Ann Arbor Agricultural Co. is not believed will work any injury to the 26 men employed. It is believed that Assignee Beal will keep the plant in operation. Eli W. Moore, the superintendent, says the prospects for spring trade are very good. He will not commence soliciting orders until the beginning of December. He thinks affairs will probably move along the same as in 1884, when the company made an assignment. They will work along until matters are adjusted. The general feeling in the city is that of sympathy for the hard struggle made to keep the company on its feet, especially that of some of the members of the board of directors. It is believed however, that the assets will more than cover all indebtedness, and even with Assignee Beal's careful management the stockholders may be secured.

GOOD SEND OFF GIVEN THE TEAM

The largest crowd ever leaving this town for the annual Chicago game, left this morning on two special trains. The first left at 9:30 and the second at 10:30. On each train was reserved a coach for the ladies and faculty members. Nearly a thousand people occupied the two trains, and a crowd of several thousand was at the depot to give the excursionists a good send-off.

When the team came to a depot the students lined up in two rows facing each other, and the team ran the gauntlet from the depot to the last coach, which was reserved for the players. As the "Backwoodsmen" passed through they were cheered by six different sections of the line, as soon as one section left off, the other taking it up.

The team arrived in Chicago this afternoon and went immediately to the Victoria Hotel, where a half hour was devoted to light practice.

The game begins tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock, and reports will be received at the opera house.

Cards are out announcing the wedding of Pauline, the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David F. Allmendinger, of W. Washington st., and Charles Dalke, of this city. The ceremony will take place Thanksgiving eve at 6 o'clock.

It took the jury but a very short time this afternoon to convict Frank Hill and Fred Schumacher of the larceny of a bicycle. Schumacher went on the stand in his own defense, but Hill did not. Justice Duffy sentenced them to pay a fine of $25 or 90 days in the house of correction.

The employees of the trolley road are preparing to give a grand ball in Wayne Friday evening, Dec. 8. The boys intend having a good time and making it very pleasant for their guests. The bill for the ball will be 50 cents a couple. Additional ladies 25 cents. A special car will be run to Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti.

Miss Mildred H. Warner and David J. Rolason, of Hamburg, were united in marriage at high noon on Wednesday last at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law, Edwin C. Inslee, of Hamburg, where she has lived nearly all her life. The bride's dress was of dark blue cloth with white satin brocade guipure, rhinestone buckles and loops of blue ribbon for decoration. She was attended by two little nieces, Zetta and Ralpa Waits, who were attired in white and carried pink flowers, the bride's flowers being white chrysanthemums. Mrs. W. E. Groat, of this place, played the wedding march and after the ceremony the guests, some 60 in number, filed out into the long dining room and soon disposed of a very dainty repast. There were a number of guests from Detroit, Port Huron, Howell and Fowlerville. The bride is a graceful, accomplished young lady and very popular in the circle in which she moves. The gifts were numerous and of value, one of them being a $20 gold ring from her parents and another of the same value from Mr. and Mrs. Inslee. The groom is one of the substantial farmers of Hamburg and a very respected young man.

William Butler, an ordinary vag, was sentenced to 10 days in jail by Justice Duffy this morning.

Samuel H. Van Horn, '00 law, of Three Rivers, president of the U. of M. Masonic club, had his shoulder pulled out of joint while alighting from a trolley car in Ypsilanti this morning. A brother law student set his shoulder.

Emily Benton Hill, wife of Comstock F. Hill, died at her residence, 439 E. University ave., this morning at 10 o'clock. The funeral services will be held at the family residence at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, Nov. 27. Detroit papers please copy.

Robert Armbruster and Miss Pauline Steeb, of Lodi, were married Thursday noon at the bride's home, Rev. A. L. Nicklas, of Zion's Lutheran church, officiating. Mr. John Armbruster and Miss Emma Steeb attended the groom and bride. After the ceremony the guests, to the number of 50, sat down to a sumptuous wedding dinner.

James Nidehorf is the name of an ugly tramp who, when refused something to eat at a house on Monroe st. yesterday, commenced abusing the lady to whom he applied. He was sentenced to five days in jail. The tramp nuisance has commenced.

William F. Briggs, of Milan, has just returned from the Philippines, where he has been fighting for Uncle Sam. He stopped off at Glen Falls, Montana, to see Frank Anspach, who now has a position in the smelting works of that place at a salary of $3.50 per day. Mr. Briggs called upon Mrs. Anspach yesterday and told her that Frank sent word he would be home during the holidays.

A supply of timbers for the floor of the sub-cellar of the Homeopathic hospital were expected to arrive today. This will allow the stone work to go on until the timbers from the south arrive. Koch Bros. are doing splendid stone work. It is admired by all who have examined the walls. It may not be generally known that Ann Arbor masons have a reputation throughout the state for doing finer work with the field boulders than at any place. If the necessary timber arrives with this kind of weather the walls can be raised to the top of the first story. If this can be done, the brick work will be continued all winter. Cold, freezing weather will stop the stone work, but not the brick. As the walls rise, the good judgment of the homeopaths in selecting the Smith property is shown. The view from the building, when completed, will be magnificent. From the roof the Huron valley will be seen in all its beauty.

From Monday's Daily.

On next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Elks will hold their memorial Exercises in the Athens Theatre. A fine program has been arranged and the public will be invited to attend.

State Senator Ward has accepted an invitation to be present at the National Anti-Trust conference to be held in Chicago in January and has been placed on the Executive Committee.

Judge Kinne today entered an order dismissing the case of Warren H. Woodbury vs. William McPherson for alleged alienation of his wife's affections on account of the plaintiff not having filed security for costs.

At the temperance exercises in the Methodist Sunday school yesterday, Mrs. Jennie Voorheis gave an interesting address, and Master Harrison Van Valkenburg sang "Bring the Wanderer In," by Mendelssohn, in a charming manner.

The Northside Sunday school are planning to hold their Christmas exercises this year at Newberry hall, as the new church is not yet completed and as the Sunday school has become too large to hold their exercises in the Sunday school rooms.

Since college opened the Presbyterian C. E. society has taken in 102 new members. This society is now the largest Endeavor society in Washtenaw county. The president of the C. E. county union visited the society last evening.

The marriage of Miss Emma Bradt, formerly of this city, and George Aller will take place in Detroit on Wednesday. Among those who will be in attendance from this city are Mrs. V. M. Spalding, Miss Ruth Spalding, Clarence Spalding and Mrs. George Clark.

A woman's edition of the U. of M. Daily will come out shortly after Thanksgiving. Many prominent Ann Arbor people are contributors and the number promises to be a very interesting one. It will be sold at ten cents a copy and the proceeds will be divided equally between Barbour gymnasium and the Alumni Association.

Chauncey Thompson, the expert tar walk builder, says this year he has had the biggest season's work in his experience. He has laid 42,500 square feet of tar walk, which he thinks is a pretty good record.

This evening, in the Unitarian church, Prof. James A. Craig, head of the department of semitics in the university, will give the third lecture in the Unity Club series, on the subject, "Babylonian and Assyrian Art." This lecture will be thoroughly illustrated, as Prof. Craig has prepared a large number of very interesting slides, and the evening promises to be unusually attractive. Prof. Craig is well known as an entertaining lecturer and should have a large audience.

The delay in receiving the lumber for the Homeopathic hospital is proving very annoying. On Thursday the timbers for floors of the sub-cellar were shipped from Detroit, but up to Saturday night, Luick Bros. had not received nor could they find out where the cars were. Messrs. Luick are doing everything in their power to hurry up the lumber, but with the scarcity of cars it is very hard to say when the balance will arrive. It would be a pity to have the stone work delayed during the present weather.

Output of the Klondike.

No one will ever know exactly how much gold was taken from the Klondike fields the past season. Since the English government imposed a royalty the miners have adopted all sorts of ruses to evade the law. It is more difficult to dodge a bad cold and the grip at this time of year. When the system is weakened by such attacks, and the blood becomes thin and impoverished, the best medicine is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This remedy builds up the system. Besides regulating digestion, it overcomes constipation. It is good for the kidneys and liver, too, stimulating these organs into the proper performance of their functions. Nothing is so good for malaria.

ANN ARBOR IN MANILA

Frank Perrine's Impressions of the Philippines.

MULES DISSAPPEARED

A Filipino Lad Robs Frank of $45—How Butchering is Inspected.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Perrine, of N. Main st., have received two letters and a number of papers from their son Frank in Manila. The following extracts will be of interest. Sept. 26 he writes: "The gallant ship Ohio is scheduled to leave Manila, so I will endeavor to let you know that I am still surviving the oriental changes and pegging away as usual at the C. H. Ladana, as they call it here. The ink with which I started to write this letter is more like dirty water than anything else I know of, so I discarded it for some of Li Hung Chang's best, which will be the same in a few days. Ink seems to have a faculty for losing its color in this country."

"Tonight is something awful as to heat. Here I am, gaily bedecked in a pair of Chinese Pjamas of a doubtful hue, and the little rivulets of perspiration chasing each other gaily down my back, and to make things doubly comfortable the mosquitos are as thick as hair on a dog. You see my troubles are numerous for one so young."

"Our great and good friend Aginaldo has promised to give up our American prisoners, but up to date we have seen nothing of them. Personally I am not losing any sleep over any of his promises, but headquarters seem to place a great deal of confidence in him and his oft-times vain promises, so possibly we may have the pleasure of seeing them yet."

On Oct. 7 he writes: "There is considerable fighting going on at present on both the north and south lines. Aginaldo released 14 American prisoners with a promise of liberty for the rest at an early date. Those who are released are looking fine, and speak well of their treatment while confined. The others will probably be brought in as soon as they can be concentrated at some point near the American lines. At present they are scattered all about the island. The Spanish prisoners are also being mobilized preparatory to their early release. The Spaniards here in Manila have sent them out a lot of provisions by a commission of Senors. Uncle Samuel furnished a pack train of 80 mules to the commission to transport their provisions. That was the last seen or heard of the commission, provisions or mules. I wonder if Aginaldo decided he was in need of a few good, gentle, kind-hearted mules to facilitate the movement of his flying 'capitol.'"

"Well, I have a hard luck story to tell you this time. The 'muchacho' (native boy) we had cooking for us, gently touched me up for $45 several days ago. We paid him his month's salary the night before, and I left $60 in paper money in my trunk when I left in the morning and, what's worse, I left the key in the trunk lock. When I returned to lunch I noticed the key, and examined my 'wad' and, lo and behold, I found $15 remaining. I thanked the muchacho for the $15 he had left, and sent him to the 'mill' (jail) to think about lending me enough to cover the shortage. When he was searched at the station he had a little more money than the law allows to boys who work for $3.50 per month. He had $69.20."

The two papers, Freedom and the Manila Times, are both interesting in their way. To study their pages is very instructive, as they give a very good view of the change going on. What would the old regime have thought of this, taken from the Freedom: "Yi Wa got a fine of $20 for using a false measure and attempting to bribe the inspector at the Santa Cruz court." How it must have astonished the old rascal to discover that it is not safe, unless he knew his man very well, to attempt to bribe an American. From the many police court items, it is evident that the natives are fast learning that evading the common rule of civilized life will be punished. In the Manila Times, which is really a modern newspaper, is an interesting account of Manila's meat supply and butchering. The reporter gives a good description of the butchering the cattle, etc., which is done in the night: "A visit was paid to the slaughter house. Fifty-three cattle had been killed and dressed as well as 128 hogs and four sheep. Three hogs were condemned and also 22 livers and 17 lungs. These were ordered by Dr. Santos to be cremated. A big parcel of dried buffalo meat, which is prohibited from being exposed for sale, was found in a market near the slaughter house. It was taken along, with the 'Chink' who had it for sale, to the slaughter house, where the 'Chink' was locked up. His case came up in Binondo court Thursday morning."

"Dr. Santos was very much in evidence. With his assistant he walked up and down through long lanes of slaughtered hogs, examining each one. 'Verily, Manila is having an excellent supervision of all meats to be used by her citizens.'"

The pages of the Times indicate the American spirit of enterprise by the many advertisements. The modern real estate agent is beginning to get in his work on the islands. A health resort is advertised. In looking over the names, many Americans appear. They are probably American soldiers who have gone into business. They probably are not in sympathy with the anti-imperialists.

A Life and Death Fight.

Mr. W. A. Hines, of Manchester, Iowa, writing of his almost miraculous escape from death, says: "Exposure after measles induced serious lung trouble, which ended in Consumption. I had frequent hemorrhages; coughed night and day. All my doctors said I must soon die. Then I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me. I would not be without it, even if it cost $5.00 a bottle. Hundreds have used it on my recommendation, and all say it never fails to cure Throat, Chest and Lung troubles. Regular size, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Eberbach & Son, Schumacher & Miller, Ann Arbor, and G. J. Haussler, Manchester, drug store."

ANOTHER ONE APPEARS

Check Frauds Seem to be Numerous.

It is a good rule for merchants to observe that a well known banker laid down this morning: Take checks from no stranger unless endorsed by responsible parties whose signature you know.

On Wednesday afternoon a check for $45 was deposited by an Ann Arbor merchant at one of the city banks. It was drawn on a Detroit bank, signed by a party unknown to the merchant and endorsed by the stranger who presented it. On the strength of it the stranger got goods and money to the amount of $45.

Yesterday the check came back from the Detroit bank protested. The merchant is out his money and goods and cannot even give a good description of the stranger who presented the check.

As an echo of Davis, the check fraud, who operated here a few weeks ago, a dispatch was received here, last night, from Chattanooga, inquiring if a check signed by the Ann Arbor real estate agent, who rented Davis a house, for $86 was good. The real estate agent says he has no check in Chattanooga. Davis has probably been making that city.

FINEST ORGAN IN AMERICA

Clarence Eddy, the organist, who gave the recital in University hall, during his stay in the city was a guest at the American house. He was very much pleased with the Frieze Memorial organ. He says it is in better condition than at the Chicago exposition. The tone is smoother and more mellow. The echo organ was particularly good. This will put at rest any fears that many have been entertained that the exposure which the instrument underwent last year while the hall was being renovated had injured it. Mr. Eddy claims that, without exception, it is the finest organ in America. He thinks the people of Ann Arbor should appreciate the privilege they enjoy of possessing such a grand instrument.

CREDIT IS DUE REV. FR. KELLY

For the Handsome New St. Thomas Church.

$45,000 BEEN RAISED

Which Leavss but a Debt now on the Edifice of $17,500.

The credit for the building of the new St. Thomas' church is due to Rev. E. D. Kelly, the scholarly, magnetic, fervid pastor of the church, whose untiring efforts have made possible the erection of such a handsome church in a parish which has not an over abundance of well-to-do members. Rev. E. D. Kelly has been in Ann Arbor less than nine years. In that time he has built St. Thomas' music hall, which has been used as a church while the new edifice was being planned and built. He has founded the St. Thomas Conservatory of Music, which now has 85 pupils. He has so broadened and strengthened the Catholic parochial school system that its high school diploma admits to the university, and now he has just seen completed this handsome $75,000 church building, a stupendous amount of work, when it is considered that in all this time Fr. Kelly has had upon his hands the care of a large congregation, now numbering 1,500, including 250 students in the university.

The campaign for the erection of the new church was commenced in 1896, and the corner stone was laid in 1897. In the three years Fr. Kelly had raised $45,000, besides securing gifts of windows, altars, railing etc., and yesterday morning he found the church completed, excepting the frescoing and the altars, which have been donated and will soon be here, and a debt of only $17,500, which no one who is acquainted with Fr. Kelly's energy believes will long be left to remain on the church.

Fr. Kelly was born in Van Buren county, Michigan, Dec. 30, 1861. At the early age of 15 he entered St. Mary's college, Cincinnati, O., where he spent three years. From there he went to St. Charles college, Baltimore, Md., and finished his ecclesiastical training at St. Joseph's Parochial seminary at Troy, N. Y., in 1886. He was a priest at Battle Creek for two years, and then accepted the call to the professorship of English literature in Monroe college. Upon the death of Fr. Leary he was given charge temporarily. After assuming the duties over the Dexter church for a short time he was brought to Ann Arbor, commencing his priesthood here in June, 1891.

RAISE THE RAILROAD TRACKS

WHY SECOND AND THIRD WARDERS SHOULD PETITION.

The Good Work Can be Accomplished if it is Only Tried in Earnest.

The question of the opening of W. Ann st. will be solved when the Ann Arbor railroad tracks are raised. At the present time the road is naturally unfavorable to this project on account of the risk of accident on a grade crossing. This fact should spur on the real estate owners of the Third ward to circulate petitions that the railroad be made to raise its tracks. No one thing would cause such a rise in values in the Second and Third wards as the raising of the tracks. Then all danger of grade crossings would be obviated. It is not an unreasonable request to make to the railroad because it means the certainty of missing a large number of damage suits which must come in time. The Michigan Central appreciates the overhead bridge on Detroit st. for this reason. The city paid for that and will have more to pay. The raising of the Ann Arbor tracks will have to be paid for by the company.

He Fooled the Surgeons.

All doctors told Renick Hamilton, of West Jefferson, O., after suffering 18 months from Rectal Fistula, he would die unless a costly operation was performed; but he cured himself with five boxes of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, the surest cure on earth, and the best salve in the world. 25 cents a box. The Simpsonian Rite.

Simpson's restaurant in Bird-in-hand court, Cheapside, London, which recently announced that all French wines were off its list because of the Dreyfus case, was established in 1823 and is known as the Olde Fishie Shoppe. It has a daily ritual as famous as the pudding at the Cheshire Cheese at the Table of the Fathers at Carr's. The Simpsonian rite is the guessing of the cheese. Daily a new Cheddar is put on the table, and to each diner is given paper, on which he writes his guess of its height, weight and girth. Then, with reverent ceremony, the president weighs and measures the cheese.

WOMEN'S HATS.

Fetiching Creations For Fall and Winter Wear.

[Special Correspondence.] New York, Oct. 9.—Let us talk about hats a little, for they are in such strong evidence these days that one cannot quite ignore them. The big Josephine hat, with its rakish poise upon the head and its turbanlike drapery and topping plumes is entirely too much to leave its beauties unhonored and unsung. This peculiar style of hat demands more or less of the empire in other articles of dress, and so we see the short waisted gown with a very thin guimpe and the quaint short Spencer jackets, besides the ugly long coats as they used to be.

There are shapes of every description and material, and it is safe to say that no two hats or bonnets are exactly alike, for every shape is capable of being twisted or bent into a dozen new forms, so that each face may be fittingly framed. The old, old silk beaver, with its soft lights and shades, is one of the most uncompromising of them all, and yet it is possible to obtain some new effects from that by bending the brim this or that way or deliberately tying the sides downward with strong ribbon strings not less than two inches wide. This changes the front into a poke form. Pink velvet roses or other flowers are generally set along under the brim, and buckles and plumes are posed upon the crown. Feathers of the ostrich are the only suitable ones for these hats, and to be in keeping they should be of the finest quality, with long, lustrous flues. These poke shapes are very becoming to youthful faces. They are even worn by very young slips of girls. Once in awhile some misguided old woman will see one on a young person and go and buy one for herself. "It were better for her that she had never been born."

Chenille braided closely into wide strands and these sewed together is the foundation of many of the prettiest and richest of the dressy hats. The brim and crown are both made of the braided chenille, and generally there are two large loops of the same at one side. The addition of a velvet rosette of very narrow width and perhaps two or three rich black ostrich tips make of this an elegant and dressy hat. Turban shape is oftenest seen. In some cases the brim is made of chenille loops so thick that they look like feathers closely curled. The crown is of velvet and the trimming anything you want. Round bolero turbans with black velvet brims and light felt crowns with velvet bands are quite well liked. These have pompons of velvet ribbon or ostrich flues. There are other shapes, more than I can mention. A favorite, because it can be brought under such easy subjection, is a flatish brim, rather wider in front than the back and with a bell shaped crown, this also made out of proportion. This takes any style of trimming. It is as often seen trimmed with stiff taffeta bows for a growing girl as with the expensive garnishing of older people's requirements.

Grebe breasts, gull feathers and pheasant breasts are all among the most desirable of the fashionable trimmings. These breasts of birds, being very close, are used almost exclusively on the turban shapes. The grebe is a silvery white shading to gray and almost black in certain lights. The crowns of such turbans are usually of white, either velvet or some one of the thin white stuffs shirred and gathered into a close mass. One very pretty toque had the foundation of black velvet with a narrow piping of very pale blue satin around the edge. It had a soft, wrinkled crown. In front were two rosettes made of black silk mull, dotted with black spangles and edged with very narrow black velvet ribbon. There were four softened quills of drab shaded off to black, all lying easily toward the back and all dotted with black spangles.

There was in one place a capote for a young lady of silk beaver in dark blue. The whole arrangement was in a poke shape. The brim was faced with black velvet. The trimming consisted of a scarf of black silk mull with silver spangles and a white scarf also spotted with the same spangles. These two scarfs were trimmed together and bunched up into pretty drapery at the left side and in the back. From there one string came down on the right side, tying under the chin. This was odd, but pretty. In front were three pale blue plumes curled closely.

For evening the bonnets are as small as one likes. Some are mere wreaths of flowers, with perhaps a little gauze or something light and thin for a crown. Some have no crown at all, the hair showing through the center. Aisatian bows fastened to some sort of a rouleau are also seen. These bows are often quite covered with spangles. Black lace or velvet, mingled with white, is among the most fashionable color combinations. Rich ribbed silk cut on the bias is made into large, stiff bows and frequently spangles, and around these fine black lace is twined.

CYCLING IN POLITICS.

Wheelmen May Some Day Furnish a National Issue.

THE GOOD ROADS MOVEMENT.

Consistently Fought For and Upheld For Twenty Years—The L. A. W. Ever in the Lead For Their Improvement.

It is just possible that the wheelmen of this country may at some future time, probably not very remote, furnish the subject of one of the national political issues. Several of the leading officials of the League of American Wheelmen believe this to be true. The issue they expect to be made in on the betterment of the public highways.

If the good roads movement which is now gaining favor so rapidly ever reaches the dignity of a national issue, the wheelmen, and the L. A. W. particularly, must be credited with it, for it was that organization which first started it and which has consistently maintained it for the last 20 years.

DIXIE HINES.

[Member L. A. W. committee on highway improvement.]

The wheelmen maintain that, though they were at first actuated by selfish motives in directing the movement from which they expected to get better roads for cycling purposes, in time they discovered one of the greatest economic questions with which the country has to contend. In talking good roads and looking for all the strong points available the league early made a thorough investigation of the cost of hauling farm products over the country roads as they now exist, and they were not slow in discovering that the roads were in such condition as to make the cost of transportation several times greater than would have been the case if there were good stone highways. They carried their investigations into Europe, where in most of the larger countries there are first class roads everywhere, and there they found the proof of their theory, for the products of Europe are marketed at an expense that seems absurdly small compared to the figures of this country.

In addition to the saving of time, they have found that there is a decrease in the number of animals needed, an increase in the loads, a decrease in repairs and an all around saving. When they had ascertained this, they investigated the cost of good roads, and when the figures were presented they knew that the annual loss due to bad roads in all parts of the country would more than offset the cost of stone highways.

Armed with these facts, the league commenced a systematic campaign of education on the different points among the farmers, with what success is best shown by the continued accession of farmers to the ranks of the wheelmen and the fact of their asking various state legislatures to give them better roads and in the many conventions which they are holding for the purpose of considering the question.

The good roads situation as it now lies shows the farmers and wheelmen standing almost solid in asking for what they want where in the early days of the movement they were arrayed against each other in the strongest antagonism. Though the movement has grown so rapidly, legislators have not kept pace with it, as is shown by a tendency on their part in some of the states to discourage good roads legislation as much as possible. In such states as have received appropriations for the improvement of the highways there is no question of the propriety of making appropriations. In fact, to oppose such appropriations in some cases would be a guarantee of defeat at the polls.

Now that the subject is becoming better understood and the farmers are working in harmony with them the wheelmen would not be at all astonished to see the good roads plank in the party platforms among the most important in those documents. To insure its becoming of such importance it will only be necessary for the politicians of the great parties to understand what a tremendous backing it has. There are now nearly 3,000,000 wheelmen in this country, and the farmers furnish several millions more, so that with a united front they must command attention. A little more education on the subject among the farmers and then a campaign against the legislatures, and the good roads movement will have reached the importance that it warrants.

It is claimed that $500,000,000 is wasted every year because of the wretched condition of our highways, and if even a fraction of this sum is so wasted it will not be long until we shall see good roads as a political issue.

There must be a good reason why the coffee lovers of America buy millions of pounds of ARBUCKLES' COFFEE in preference to any other kind. The reason is found in its rich drinking qualities; in its permanent goodness. The quality never changes. Whether you buy it of a big coffee dealer or at a little grocery store around the corner, you get the same coffee, the same goodness, the same value for your money. You can't be deceived if you buy

ARBUCKLES' Roasted Coffee

It is prepared by an individual firm who value their reputation too highly to endanger it by lowering the standard of their coffee. It is hermetically sealed and put up in packages by people of many years experience and utmost reliability. It is not ground because ground coffee loses two-thirds of its flavor before reaching the consumer. It is not sold in bulk because of the possibilities of adulteration. It is not sold at a high price because it is better to sell millions of pounds of coffee at a small profit than hundreds of pounds at a large profit.

Every package of Arbuckles' Roasted Coffee contains information about many valuable articles that the consumer is entitled to receive.

Mortgage Sale.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in payment of the money secured by a mortgage dated the 6th day of May, A. D. 1889, Executed by Grace Telford, of Dansville, Lehigh County, Michigan, to said J. H. H. of Dansville, Lehigh County, Michigan, which said mortgage was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Washtenaw, in Liber 13 of mortgages, on page 207, on the 8th day of May, A. D. 1889, at 8 o'clock A. M.

And whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice is the sum of fourteen hundred and forty-five dollars and fifty cents, $1445.50, of principal and interest, and the further sum of twenty-five dollars ($25.00), as an attorney fee stipulated for in said mortgage and which is the whole amount claimed to be unpaid on said mortgage and no suit or proceeding having been instituted at law, to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative.

Now therefore notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the said power of sale, and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the premises, therein described, at public auction to the highest bidder, at the South Front Door of the Court House in the City of Ann Arbor, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court, in said County of Washtenaw, on the 27th day of January, A. D. 1900 next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, which said premises are described in said mortgage as follows, to-wit:

The northwest fractional quarter of fractional section two (2), containing fifty-seven and six-tenths one hundredths 57 and 6/10 acres according to the original government survey be the same more or less and the east half of the northeast fractional quarter of fractional section number three (3), containing twenty-eight and seven-tenths one hundredths 28 and 7/10 acres of land according to the original government survey be the same more or less, all in township number one (1) south, of range number four (4) east, Township of Dexter, Washtenaw County, Michigan.

An Impromptu Thanksgiving.

BY PETER MCARTHUR.

Copyright, 1899, by Peter McArthur.

In the mixed multitude that followed John Galt, the novelist, when he established the Canada company in 1825, there were representatives of every walk in life. But on the shore of Lake Huron a stern equality was maintained. The weaver turned farmer was the equal of the adventurous son of the laird, and, taking these things into consideration, Magistrate Phelan had no cause to wonder at the tumult created in the settlement when he banquered the chief men on turkey in his dining room and fed the ordinary people on boiled pork in his barn.

Chief among the stall fed guests was Gideon McPherson, a man who was in no sense of the word "ordinar." On the previous year he had been overlooked by Tom McNulty and had broken the spell of the evil eyes by blacking them. In consequence he considered himself the equal of all men and the superior of most and resented savagely the slight that had been put upon him. To all his friends he told the story of his wrongs in guttural Gaelic or broken English and swore a great oath to be revenged on his enemy.

A couple of weeks after this irritating occurrence Tiger Dunlop, that glorious literary rowdy who had been punchmaker for Christopher North and the heroes of the "Noctes Ambrosianae," arrived in the neighborhood and heard of the trouble. He immediately visited Gideon and learned the story from his own lips.

"STOP, MON," CRIED THE TIGER TO GIDEON, "OR YE'LL BURST!"

"An fa vas Maisther Phalan?" Gideon roared in his strange dialect, for he had learned English from his lowland Scotch neighbors. "Fan he kem ze bush he stood in a tub to shop, he so feared of nicking his shanks," he laughed at the absurd picture painted up by his wild exaggeration. "It was oor dochter Betsy that learned him to swing his ax. Put we'll be revenged on ze scoondrel some day."

"Ah approve of yer speerit, mon," said Dunlop, who could never miss a chance to play a practical joke. "But ty div ye no get yer weesh of him by fasting?"

Gideon pricked up his ears, and Dunlop explained in Scotch that the man who fasts for three days can get his wish on his enemy. It was a plan well known in Scotland, where the general poverty made it easier to practice than any other kind of revenge. Of course the scheme appealed to the superstitious and thrifty Gideon, and he resolved to act on it at once. After the whole matter was settled Dr. Dunlop's parting injunction was:

"Ye must sit i' the hoose an no taste a bite for three days, or ye wull lose yer weesh."

Betsy followed the doctor to where the horse was tied and when she was out of her father's hearing exclaimed angrily:

"I tak' shame of ye, Dr. Dunlop, that ye sud fill the auld mon's heid wi' sic trash."

"Tut, Betsy!" he replied, with a good natured laugh and paying her the compliment of speaking in plain English. "You do not understand your father as I do. If he went on hating Phelan as he has started, he would soon be so weak he would be sick on your hands. This is my prescription for him, and I guarantee that within three days he will not want to hate any one again. He will be revenged on them, and you will help the good work by cooking the best dishes your house can afford, so as to whet his appetite."

Betsy laughed when she understood the doctor's drift and promised to do as he said. Then she inquired seriously:

"Div yeh know fat day will be set apart for Thanksgiving? Oor fayther will be wantin to know."

The doctor was on the point of replying that Gideon was in no condition to offer thanks, but an idea occurred to him, and with a characteristic chuckle he said instead:

"I will find out when I am in Galt if the governor has made his proclamation, and I will send you word."

Gideon's fast began from the moment he resolved to act on the Tiger's suggestion, but as he had eaten a hearty supper nothing worth recording happened until the next day. On the following morning he awakened with the birds, but he immediately thought of his enemy and did not get up. Instead he lay where he was and meditated on the wish he would make against Phelan. His appetite was sharp, and he thought it would be a sweet revenge to see his insulter at his door begging for a bite to eat. While he was revolving this delightful prospect in his mind his daughters were preparing the breakfast. He heard Betsy raking the ashes for live coals. Then he heard her blowing on them while the fire crackled in the kindling, and presently a delightful odor began to penetrate the rickety partition that separated his bedroom from the kitchen.

They were having fried ham for breakfast, with buckwheat pancakes and gravy!

Gideon clasped his hands over his complaining stomach and with Scotch stubbornness suppressed a groan. His wild nostrils drew in the delicious odor with every breath and drove him frantic. It was impossible to lie in bed and endure it, so he jumped up and began to dress so as to have something to occupy his mind. After a time he appeared in the kitchen, where Betsy was cleaning the breakfast dishes.

Betsy bade him good morning, and before the fire the smell of them made him pace up and down the room like a madman. Betsy and her sisters were truly sorry for him, but he was bringing it all on himself, and their sympathies were not as deep as they might have been. They ate their potato cakes and cold ham without undue ostentation, however, for they really feared their father's temper. When they had finished their supper, they stole away to bed, and Gideon did the same.

It was in vain that he tried to take his mind from the gnawing in his stomach, and his sleep was broken by wild dreams, for a starving man will see visions, be he fool or a mahatma. At first he dreamed over the wild voyage of 40 days that brought him from Scotland to the wilderness. The waves were tossing about him wearily, and then came the terrible news that cholera had broken out among the passengers. Horror piled upon horror until at last a huge ship bore down upon them, cut their schooner in two and impaled Gideon through the stomach with its bowsprit. He awakened with a scream that brought his daughters to his side, but he sternly bade them return to bed. After this he slept from sheer exhaustion and did not awaken again until the ham was being fried for breakfast. The savory odor of it was a hundredfold more maddening than on the previous morning. He stuffed the coverlet in his mouth to keep himself from groaning aloud and meditated on his wish against Phelan. By this time he was beginning to doubt his ability to think of anything savage enough to do the wretch justice.

In the early morning Tiger Dunlop's servant appeared with a huge basket.

"My master sent me," he said, "to tell you that he has just learned that today is the day appointed for Thanksgiving by the governor and that he is coming to dinner and will bring a few friends to see Mr. McPherson, and he wants you to have this cooked for him."

So saying he laid on the table a dressed sucking pig, with a loaf of dry bread, a bundle of onions, a bunch of sage, a little roll of fresh butter and a peck of apples.

What a sucking pig it was! Its little back was so broad you could have poured a cup of water in the hollow of it without spilling a drop, but it was by no means all fat. When Betsy had admired the peerless suckling and her father had dilated on the honor that was being done to them by the Tiger and his friends in coming to have their Thanksgiving dinner with him, the other two girls were called from the field to help prepare for the visitors. The compliment implied by the dinner diverted Gideon's mind from his relentless hunger and kept him from noticing too painfully the hurried lunch that was taken by his daughters.

But his peace was short lived. Betsy crumbled the loaf of dry bread, peeled and chopped the onions, powdered the sage leaves, and then with the fresh butter mixed the dressing. When the little cherub was filled to his utmost capacity, they hung him before a great fire in the open fireplace over the dripping pan.

"Come," said Betsy to her father. "Won't you help us by keeping the pig turning?"

It was cruel, but Gideon could not resist. The crackling was already beginning to give its smell aright, and, though he would fain fly, he was attracted toward the chimney. Presently the onions penetrated the broiling sides and added their powerful odor to the torture. Then the daughters, as cruel as those of old Lear, hung a pot of apples on the crane to make apple sauce and put a great loaf of bread into the Dutch oven.

What a revel of odors now filled the old house! The appetite of an anchorite would have been tempted, so what must it have been to the starving Gideon, who was at all times a hearty feeder? He had to put forth a great effort of will to keep his under jaw snapped up and to avoid drooling. Then his wretched daughters capped the climax by putting a score or two of fine potatoes to bake in the coals. By this time Phelan and the wish were forgotten. Gideon could think of nothing but the crackling pig, the potatoes and the hot bread, and he was almost wandering in his mind. The table was loaded with a feast that was plentiful even for those lavish days. Everything was done to a turn, he had an appetite sharpened by two days' hunger, and at last he jumped from his stool with a cry like a famished wild animal.

"Bring me the butcher knife," he shouted, "and the big horn spoon!"

With one slash and a savage twist he wrenched a ham from the suckling and with another stroke disemboweled it of its rich dressing.

It was in vain that his daughters told him that the Tiger was coming up the lane with his friends, Colonel Van Egmond, Captain Dunlop, Colonel Prince, Sheriff Hyndman and half a dozen others of equal note in the province. He was deaf to everything except the Macedonian cry of his stomach, and when they arrived they were convulsed with laughter, for the Tiger had induced them to come by telling of his trick, and they were ready for a Thanksgiving dinner, even though the authenticity of the proclamation was open to grave doubts.

"Stop, mon," cried the Tiger to Gideon, "or ye'll burst! Here, take some fuskey to tone yer staminach."

After dinner the refreshed Gideon told them of his prowess in overcoming the spell of the evil eye, and before they left he was so proud of having entertained such notable guests and being complimented by them that his heart was full of thankfulness, and he had nothing but good wishes for all men, and particularly for such inferior people as Phelan and his aristocrats. As the news of the real Thanksgiving day never reached him when it was proclaimed, he never had cause to doubt the sincerity of his humorous friend, the Tiger.

OPENING OF HOLIDAY SEASON.

The Christmas Season this year will be unlike any similar event in our business life, in that The Store will present attractions to buyers not ever approached in past years. With the greater part of our purchases received, it is indeed a treasurer house, in which every want that suggests itself to man, woman or child may be satisfied. To Convey a proper Conception of the immensity of our showing, would indeed be difficult on paper. You will need to pay us a personal visit to have any Just Appreciation of what The Store really contains. See its 4 floors, each 45 feet wide by 125 feet long, with every shelf, counter and rock—every nook and corner uncomfortably filled with Seasonable Wantable Merchandise.
