The state democratic convention, yesterday, nominated George H. Durand, of Flint, for governor, on the fourth ballot, after one of the most spirited contests that has taken place in a democratic convention in years. They finished their work by nominating the balance of the ticket, as given above, by acclamation.

The ticket nominated is one of the strongest ever placed in the field by the party and can not but be satisfactory to every democrat and to all who have the interests of the state and its proper government at heart. It will receive the unqualified endorsement of the voters at the polls in November and will be elected.

Detroit, Mich., July 30.—The Washtenaw delegation is practically a unit against any dictation by leaders of the nomination. The majority of the delegation favor Durand. Some of them are for Helme. They did considerable talking around the corridors of the hotels and seemed to be recognized rather as leaders in the Durand movement. They were handicapped by his declination, but more so by the fact that the Campaign-Whiting crowd were opposed to him. Two-thirds of the delegates acknowledged that if Durand would accept he would prove the strongest candidate.

Detroit, July 31.—Convent Hall, 12:05 p. m.—(Special.)—After last night's late session the delegates were slow in assembling. The convention was called to order at 10:30, when the chairman of the committee on resolutions read the platform denouncing republican election methods, demanding repeal of ripper legislation, election of U. S. senator by direct vote, also demand referendum and equal taxation, denouncing extravagance of present administration and the increased taxation; favoring municipal ownership subject to referendum. The platform was adopted with great enthusiasm.

Nominating speeches for candidates for governor now begun. Hon Timothy Tarsney, in a fierce speech presented the name of Geo. H. Durand, followed by wild cheering. Chairman Campau declared Tarsney's action unauthorized by Detroit delegation. Campau and Tarsney bitterly arraigning each other.

Campau takes platform, claiming the first district has no candidate.

Willard Stearns, of Adrian, placed Helme in nomination for the second district; Stuart, of Kalamazoo, in behalf of the third district, in a brilliant speech, endorsed Durand, creating wild applause. Abbott, of Battle Creek, followed, repudiating Stuart's speech, as unauthorized by the third district, and stating that the district had no candidate.

Detroit, Mich., July 31, 12:30 p. m.—(Special.)—Amid wild cheers the fifth district was called and Maurice M. Houseman, of Grand Rapids, took the platform to name Chas. R. Sligh. Cummings, of Lansing, made a speech begging the convention to respect Durand's wishes and not nominate him, and closed by urging the nomination of Jim Hammel. Well received.

St. Clair county presented a divided delegation, one faction endorsing Durand and the other naming Wilbur F. Davidson, of Port Huron, as first dark horse. The tenth district demanded the nomination of Durand. The Helme men then made an attempt to adjourn for dinner, but failed. The Wayne delegation is badly split. The convention is now in bad temper and the cry for Durand will not down. Formal ballot for governor ordered.

Detroit, Mich., July 31.—A cannonade of heated criticism for the present administration and harmony skirmishes among the delegates injected some life into the official routine of the state Democratic convention, which met yesterday afternoon in the Light Guard armory.

At 4 o'clock p. m. nearly 1,000 delegates were in their places when the chair called for order. Rev. S. W. Frisbie invoked a blessing upon the assembly before commencing its deliberations.

Alfred H. Lucking, temporary chairman, was the whole thing at the afternoon meeting. The following is in part his spirited address: "We are met together to devise ways and means to redeem the state of Michigan from misrule and to prevent a great contemplated raid on her treasury. These things the Democrats of Michigan cannot do alone! We are a great and powerful minority, representing over 1,000,000 people, and we are unafraid, ready and eager on all proper occasions to do battle for the great principles of Jeffersonian Democracy, on which the life of this republic depends. But we recognize we are a minority in Michigan. We recognize, as citizens of Michigan, anxious for her welfare, that without wise, considerate and tolerant action on our part, no hope exists for a redemption of ourselves and our fellow citizens, the Republican masses, from the impending evils which all foresee.

"What, then, do we charge against the administration of Governor Bliss, and why do we demand a change?"

"We arraign Governor Bliss and the last Republican legislature for willfully trampling upon the great principles of home rule, for the purpose of building up a corrupt political machine.

"We charge that the Republican platform promises upon the subject of primary elections are made to be broken, as they have been in the past. Upon Republican authority and testimony, we charge upon the part of Governor Bliss a truckling subservency to the Michigan Central railroad and its interests at this critical time, when a firm and active opposition is demanded.

"We charge upon Republican authority that the cause of equal taxation has been deliberately thwarted and nullified by the appointment of tax officials at the direction of and in interest of the railroads.

"We charge the Republican administration with gross extravagance and waste of the people's money.

"We charge that instead of being free moral agents, acting for the best good of the people who elected them, they were and are but the humble slaves of a political oligarchy, headed by a United States senator and backed by large corporate interests.

"We are against government by telephone, no matter who is at the other end of the line.

"We believe that Michigan should be an independent state, and that her governor should be free. "We object to our state being owned, body and soul, by a United States senator and a railroad. It is humiliating to feel that Michigan is nothing but a 'rotten pocket borough' of a United States senator. The honorable senator is a man of great executive ability, but no man alone is big enough to rule Michigan and to make and unmake her public men and laws."

Chairman Lucking's appeal for "no fight for harmony," his avoidance of national issues and the general vigor of his criticisms completely won the audience.

At 8:30 p. m. Chairman Lucking again called the convention to order. By the unanimous adoption of a portion of the report of the committee on order of business and permanent organization, Alfred H. Lucking was made permanent chairman of the convention. Delegate Joslyn of Bay county was named secretary, John V. Jackson of Wayne, assistant secretary, and John Zimmer of Ingham and Harry Stearns of Lenawee were made tellers.

A fight came on the portion of the report which provided that the new state chairman should be appointed after the nominations for candidates for state offices were made. A. L. Chandler of Shilawassee moved that this order be reversed.

Finally the convention adopted the report of the committee, and the Campaign-Whiting forces won. Delegate Black of Lansing nominated Whiting for re-election as state chairman, and no voice dissented in the vote which followed.

Prosecutor John Duffy, of Ann Arbor, has not been given a great deal of time for tennis, golf, football, baseball or ping pong during the past month. During that period he has prosecuted 564 cases, in 429 of which he secured convictions for drunkenness. We are not prepared to admit that Washtenaw can "point with pride" to this record, though in this respect we presume we are again at variance with Truth, the official organ of the Michigan liquor dealers.—Adrian Press.

A GALA DAY IN SALINE

The Town Outdoing Itself to Entertain

WASHTENAW MACCABEES

Lodges From All Parts of the County Are Present—Ann Arbor Well Represented

Yesterday was a big one with the Maccabees of Washtenaw county. Saline was in gala attire in honor of the big celebration which was held there. The Arbor Tent drill team left on the 7:45 car yesterday, accompanied by as many more Knights and Ladies as could crowd into the car. The next car, at 8:45, was also well filled with members, who went over to see the fun and to have a share in it. The drill team of the L. O. T. M. went by way of Pittsfield via the Ann Arbor road on the 7:20 train.

The plans were to have the parade start on its line of march at 10 o'clock, but were delayed owing to the inability of the lodges from Manchester to reach Saline until nearly 11 o'clock.

The drill teams of both the ladies' and gentlemen's lodges have reached such a degree of military perfection that an easy victory in the prize drills which are one of the features of the day is predicted.

The drill team of Arbor Tent is composed of the following men: W. H. Krapf, captain, W. A. Wenger, banner bearer, Arthur Perkins, George Richards, Fred East, Ernest Mast, J. T. Shaw, Wm. Wiegand, Adam Neff, Harlow Gross, George Lutz, August Darrow, Emil Hoppe, Alvin St. Clair, Jas. B. Saunders, Jr., and Chas. Swarthout, with M. H. Mills as substitute and Fred Bross as property man.

Saline, July 31.—(Special.)—This is a gala day for the village, the town being full to overflowing with members of the various county tents and hives of the Maccabees and their friends. The facilities for entertaining a crowd are taxed to their utmost, but the citizens are responding nobly and their reputation for hospitality will be further enhanced by the welcome extended to their visitors today.

The parade this morning was a large one and was viewed by a large concourse who loudly applauded the various bodies as they moved past. Manchester tent seemed to be the favorite of the crowd and proved to be that of the judges as they carried off the palm for being the best appearing tent in the line of march.

At the business meeting of the County association it was decided to hold the next meeting at Ann Arbor and a mid-winter meeting at Chelsea.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, F. E. Jones, Ann Arbor; vice president, John Forsythe, Ypsilanti; secretary, Emmett Shaw, Saline; treasurer, Mary Blake, Ann Arbor; executive committee, Mrs. Johanna Schmidt, Manchester, John Forsythe, Ypsilanti, and F. J. Toozee, Saline.

Sanford Casler Brings Suit for Damages—John Shadford Also Sues D. Y. A. A. & J. Road

Sanford Casler has brought suit against the D. Y. A. A. & J. electric railroad company for $500 damages, alleged to have accrued to him because of losing two horses of the value of $500 through the falling of a high tension wire, owned by the company, upon them on March 28 last.

John Shadford, through his attorneys, A. J. Sawyer & Son, also brings suit against the road to enforce them to pay a judgment of $8,260, which was rendered by the circuit court. Shadford was an employe who was paralyzed by falling from a derrick of the company while engaged in constructing the line on Packard street. This case has been in the courts for some time, the judgment having been given some time ago. The D. Y. A. A. & J. people, it is claimed, have tried to get out of paying on the ground that when Shadford was hurt he was not working for the people who now own the road, although they afterwards bought it.

ANN ARBOR GIRL GETS APPOINTMENT

Miss Myrta A. Vogel, of this city, returned Saturday from Bloomington, Ill., where she had been in conference with the principal of the Bloomington high school and board of education of that city relative to a position as head of the shorthand department just established in that school. Miss Vogel was one of twenty-three applicants for the position, which pays $60 per month to begin with, a substantial increase to be made each of the two following years. Miss Vogel had no difficulty in securing the appointment over all her competitors as soon as the authorities of the school understood that she had taken the thorough course of training, designed especially for teachers of shorthand, given by Mr. Moran at his School of Shorthand in this city. Miss Vogel will begin her work in Bloomington on September 8.

MILLING CO. SUED FOR $20,000

Owners of Agricultural Company Plant Claim

THEY ARE DAMAGED

By Excessive Use of Water Power by Defendants—Injunction Asked For

S. W. Clarkson and C. E. Hiscock yesterday brought suit for damages against the Milling Co. for $20,000. They also filed petition for an injunction restraining the Milling Co. from interfering with the water rights claimed by them.

The claimants declare themselves to be the owners of property known as the Ann Arbor Agricultural Works, and claim to be equal tenants in common with the Milling Co. of the dam at the head of the mill race and all land overflowed by means of the dam. They claim to have had these water rights since 1838. They concede the right of the Milling Co. to use sufficient water to run six sets of stones or nine horse power and claim that for a long time past the Milling Co. have been using 300 horse power and have wrongfully been depriving the complainants of their just water rights.

It is alleged that the Milling Co. have opened the flush gates at the dam and have allowed the water to go to waste, thus damaging greatly the business of the Agricultural Works.

PLANS FOR THE NEW CHURCH

The Seventh Day Adventist conference of Michigan have purchased a lot on the Miller addition on Prospect avenue and have begun the excavating preparatory to building a new $3,500 church edifice. The one which they occupy at present was sold some time ago to Dr. Klingman.

The new church will be a frame structure with a seating capacity of 300. The church will be divided into two rooms, one to be used for preaching services and the other for Sunday school. Large folding doors will separate the two rooms and in case the entire space is needed the doors may be opened, making a fine auditorium.

The Rev. Mr. Howell, who has been the pastor of the church for some time, left recently and went to Tennessee, where he took up the work in his new field. This left the church without a pastor, so in the absence of a leader Dr. Marsh has acted in that capacity.

A new pastor will be appointed for the church here at the state conference which will be held in Alma in the latter part of August.

The congregation in the Seventh Day Adventist church was, a few years ago, a comparatively good sized one, composed chiefly of students, but the members at present number only about thirty-five. This diminution is caused by the establishment of colleges of their sect and which are almost without exception attended by the members of this church in preference to other universities, thus decreasing the members of this congregation, which depends so largely upon the students.

What this church lacks in numbers it makes up in enthusiasm. The probability is that this church, though it will never be large in members, will have a powerful influence for good in the city.

MAKE SWEEPING CHARGES.

Last spring at a meeting of the anti-imperialists held in New York city, a committee was appointed to investigate army conditions in the Philippines. That committee has since been making an investigation and now through Charles Francis Adams, chairman, Carl Schurz, Edwin Burritt Smith, Moorfield Storey and Herbert Welsh, makes its report. This report is in the nature of a reply to President Roosevelt's review of the case of General Jacob H. Smith, who was court-martialed for his part in the famous "burn and kill" order. The report commends the president's review in so far as the committee feels that the facts warrant. But these men hold that Smith, Waller and others who have been court-martialed are scapegoats rather than the only ones who deserve punishment. The above named gentlemen commend the president for going as far as he has, but hold that he has not gone far enough and offer to furnish proof of their assertions.

Writing with reference to the "kill and burn" order of General Smith the committee says:

"As the not unnatural result of military operations so inspired, an official report indicates that, out of a total population in a single district of 300,000, not less than 100,000 perished."

The committee in its communication to the president then goes on to speak of the administration of the water cure and continuing says:

"Finally every severity known to the state of war practices which have excited the special reprobation of the American people when reported as features of the hostilities in Cuba, under the Spanish regime, or in South Africa, during the Boer war have been of undisputed and frequent occurrence in the Philippines. From the early beginning of operations there, it has been the general practice, if not actually the order to kill those wounded in conflict.

"In like manner as respects concentration camps. Those, as a feature in recent Spanish and South African operations, excited in us as a people the deepest indignation, combined with the most profound sympathy for those thus unmercifully dealt with. When resorted to by our officials in the Philippines, these camps are represented as a species of recreation grounds into which the inhabitants of large districts rejoiced to be drawn and from which they departed with sorrow. Reports to which we can, on the other hand, refer give of them accounts not essentially different from the accounts received of similar camps established elsewhere."

The committee in closing take direct issue with the president when he says that "almost universally the higher officers have so borne themselves as to supply the necessary check over acts of an improper character by their subordinates." They hold that these acts of demoralization are far more general than the president thinks and they say they are ready to furnish proof to that effect. The charges these gentlemen make are serious and indicate that the investigation has not gone to the bottom of the matter yet. The fact is, there is too much politics mixed up in the investigation on both sides—that is the investigation that has been made in the senate. It has been the purpose of one side to paint the situation ever worse than it really is probably, and of the other side to hide much of the actual facts of the situation.

Under American impetus education in Porto Rico seems to be making rapid headway. During the four hundred years of Spanish control there, it is said that the government never established a single school. But under the American military rule 612 schools were opened and 23,000 pupils enrolled. Since the establishment of civil government, or during the first year of civil government, 800 schools were opened with an enrollment of 36,000 pupils and $400,000 was set aside for the maintenance of these schools, for nine months of the year. During the second year under the civil government, $501,000 was appropriated for education by the local legislature. One thousand schools were maintained and 50,000 pupils were enrolled. Evidently the Porto Ricans are eager for education. It is said if teachers could be had, 150,000 children would enter the schools at once. In this particular, and it is a mighty important one, it is evident that American influence there has brought about a great onward movement. When the people become educated, republican government will mean and will be much more to them than at present. Education will constitute a saving factor in the maintenance of government by the people. It is extremely doubtful if the republican institutions of the United States could have continued to the present day without the powerful support they have constantly received from the public schools. The public schools are the most democratic agencies on earth. The influence of these schools in developing the impressionable minds of the young the democratic idea is beyond all estimate. No distinction of birth, social position or wealth gives to a child any advantage in the public schools. There is a nearer approach to a dead level of equality here than anywhere else under the American flag. And if ever the theory of the equality of all men under the law becomes a practical realization, it will be brought about through the influence of the public school more than through all other agencies.

William J. Bryan in his recent speech before the New England Democratic league, gave signs of returning sanity. That speech indicates that something has at least partially convinced him that there are other issues than 16 to 1 and that there is such a thing as timeliness. Bryan may have been right on the money question, but so long as the people will have none of his theory it is foolish to at this time subordinate other more pressing issues to the one which every thoroughly sane man knows cannot be enacted into legislation. There may be other issues upon which the democracy may be able to accomplish something for the benefit of the people. If the money question is not settled right, it is not permanently settled and the time may well come when the issue will be reopened and something accomplished. But the opportune time is not now. Just now there are other evils from which the people are suffering far more acutely than from any trouble with their money. These are the questions which should be pushed to the front, therefore, and Mr. Bryan's recent speech indicates that he is getting into position to be consistent in a sensible and sane way. He may yet have a great future and do the democratic party much good, but he cannot make the most of himself and benefit his party by refusing to progress with the progress of the times.

In view of the very important litigation growing out of the repeal of the Michigan Central charter and the settlement of the damages to be paid the company by the state in the courts, the position of attorney general is one of the most important offices to be filled this year in Michigan. One of the best lawyers in Michigan is Fred A. Baker, of Detroit. He is known as the greatest constitutional lawyer in Detroit. He is on record as saying that he does not believe the Michigan Central entitled to anything for the repeal of its charter. If any lawyer in Michigan can save the state from paying a large sum of money from the state treasury to the Michigan Central Fred Baker is that man. Why would it not be the wisest thing for the democratic party at its convention next week to place the name of Fred A. Baker, of Detroit, on its ticket for attorney general. The people would then be assured of having their interests carefully guarded. The Baker's name this year ought to add great strength to the ticket.

In the death of Charles Kendall Adams the educational world loses one of its bright and shining lights. For more than thirty-five years he has held prominent educational positions and thousands of young men and women can testify to the influence his teaching has had in the makeup of their lives. He graduated from the Michigan University and spent twenty years within its halls as a teacher of history. In 1855 he was called to the presidency of Cornell University and in 1892 he became the head of the Wisconsin State University and has remained in active duty until the last few months. As teacher, executive and author, he attained high rank. His life work has been of that kind that it will surely live after him in the highest and best sense. The monument that a great teacher erects for himself is more enduring than marble. His teachings remain a living influence long after the marble crumbles.

FRANK ANDREWS' METHOD OF BANKING.

It is most surprising that with all the safeguards thrown around banking institutions, authorized to receive and handle the people's money, that it is possible for one member of a banking company to so intimidate, or hood-wink, the other members as to render it possible for him to go on extracting the money intrusted to the bank until his stealings mount up not only to hundreds of thousands, but millions of dollars, without the other officers and directors knowing the situation. It is surprising, too, that an official can so far dominate the cashier and other inside officials of a bank as to induce them to aid and abet him in his crooked work and doctor the books so as to hide his thieving when they fully understand and realize that they are almost certainly bringing ruin and disgrace upon themselves by so doing. It almost leads one to think that the ordinary standards of morality are in a state of decay, and that the courage to resist the most shameless dishonesty and crookedness in a superior officer is lacking in many employees. They prefer to take chances of ruin and disgrace rather than perform their plain duty, when a superior officer is the crook. In the case of the City Savings bank of Detroit, the vice president seems to have controlled the entire inside machinery of the bank in the interest of his crooked transactions and the books appear to have been stuffed and falsified for months to cover up Frank Andrews' Napoleon methods of financing. Every falsification of the books appears to be in the interest of Frank Andrews. Stock gambling and greed for immediate riches is responsible for much of such crookedness and thieving. Men believe they can take the money intrusted to their care and use it in some stock gambling operation, make a fortune and return the money surreptitiously taken and no one will be the wiser. If they make they are applauded as great financiers and no questions are asked as to their methods. A stronger moral fibre seems to be the only preventive. How shall it be created?

GOVERNMENT BY INJUNCTION.

Judge Jackson, of the United States court at Parkersburg, West Virginia, has undoubtedly carried the matter of "government by injunction" farther than any other judge. In finding certain defendants guilty of contempt of court for, as he alleges, disobeying his very sweeping injunction, the judge says:

"It is a mistaken idea to suppose that the courts of this country abuse this writ. In my long experience on the bench I cannot recall a single occasion when any court, either federal or state, ever abused it in what is known as strike questions. It is true that our courts have been criticised severely by persons who are inimical to the use of it and have denounced the courts for government by injunction. But this criterion is so obviously unjust to the courts that it is unnecessary to enter into a defense of them."

This is a pretty near approach to the idea always held by believers in absolute power. The person exercising it seldom ever believes he is exercising it in any wrongful way. But the world knows different. It has been learned by long and painful experience that such authority in the hands of any person is a dangerous thing. It has been claimed in this country that a man charged with crime shall have the right to trial by jury. But the writ of injunction, as used by Judge Jackson, deprives citizens of this right and compels the submission of the case to the arbitrary decision of a judge who is the aggrieved party because his writ of injunction has been disobeyed. In his person is, practically, combined the complainant, the jury and the judge. Certainly this is a dangerous proceeding. Within certain limits the injunction is undoubtedly a very proper and very effective means of accomplishing right and just things and that right quickly, but there should be limitations upon its use by the courts. For even though a man be invested with judicial power, it does not follow that he can safely be trusted with unlimited power in any instance, much less in matters in which he may assume his dignity to have suffered an affront.

Ann Arbor attorneys continue to make light of City Attorney Sawyer's opinion relative to the use of the bridge, culvert and crosswalk fund. His opinion and statement that the streets in the flood district should be boarded up are pronounced childish by other attorneys.

FORCE MEASURES WILL NOT DO

People Can Not Be Made to Vote Extra Appropriation

CULVERT REPAIR FUNDS

Have Been Available and Can Readily Be Used—Legal Phase of the Case

The Argus has been requested by a taxpayer to throw a little more light upon the astounding proposition of the city attorney that the council cannot repair the damage to the streets by the recent flood, but must appeal to the people first and should board up the streets until such time as the people vote an extra appropriation sufficient to defray the expenses.

The city attorney may possibly have some excuse for making such an astonishing statement. He was evidently of the opinion Monday night that people must be made to conform to his views, at least the people must be made to vote a larger tax levy and the supervisors must be made to pay the county's just share of the paving on Ann street.

It was currently reported that the estimate of $25,000 for repairing the damage caused by the flood was the city attorney's own estimate. The people sat down upon it with great vehemence. Undoubtedly it was galling, but nevertheless this furnished no excuse for an attempt to make the taxpayers vote as they did not see fit to vote. It certainly must be evident to anyone who keeps an ear to the ground as to the drift of public opinion, that that opinion, if force measures are attempted by the city attorney, will be more emphatically rendered than before.

There are two funds which can be used to repair the damage done by the floods, both of which are immediately available, the city attorney's august opinion notwithstanding. These two funds are the Bridge, Culvert and Crosswalk fund, for which $18,000 is being raised, and the Street fund, for which $17,000 is being raised. Thus funds amounting to $35,000 can be drawn upon to pay for the much needed repairs.

It is true that the $17,000 in the street fund is much needed for work outside of Allen's creek. It is also true that the $18,000 in the Bridge, Culvert and Crosswalk fund was wanted for other purposes. But the Argus states it is a matter of law, without fear of contradiction by competent lawyers, that the council has no legal right to use the Bridge, Culvert and Crosswalk fund for the purposes the mayor and city attorney had in view when they procured its levy, and that the council can be enjoined from so using it. In other words the council has no legal right to transfer money from this particular fund to any other fund.

To make this contention plainer it may be stated that section 171 of the charter provides that the aggregate amount of tax the council may raise shall not exceed one-half of one per cent. Section 172 provides that the general tax thus levied shall be divided into the following funds: Contingent, Fire Department, Street, Water, Police, Poor, Cemetery and such other funds as the council may provide. It should be remembered that the tax levy for the funds above mentioned was up to the limit allowed by law. It must also be remembered that the Bridge, Culvert and Crosswalk fund is not included in these general city funds, but is raised, not under the charter provisions, but under a state law passed to enable cities, villages or townships to provide for just such emergencies as the floods in this city. And the amount of tax levied for this fund is in excess of the one-half of one per cent the council is allowed by the charter to raise.

Section 172, which enumerates the city funds, and which does not include this special state law Bridge, Culvert and Crosswalk fund, contains the only charter provision which enables the council to transfer money from one fund to another, and the only funds from which transfers are authorized to be made are the enumerated funds. In fact the provision contains the words "the above funds," and the Bridge, Culvert and Crosswalk fund is not one of them.

The argument may be carried still farther. The Bridge, Culvert and Crosswalk fund was created under a special law to provide a way in which damages caused by the sweeping away of bridges, culverts and crosswalks could be repaired by a tax levy in excess of that allowed to be made by charter. The law provides for what this money shall be spent. There is no lawful right anywhere to expend the money thus raised for police, fire, cemetery or other city purpose. It is raised for one purpose and must be spent for that alone. If this were not true then the charter provision limiting the amount of tax that might be raised has no virtue whatever for the council could raise what further amount it wants in this fund and transfer it to the other funds.

If the city attorney will think a little about this and will put aside personal pique, he will see that the people were right in saying, use this $18,000 in building bridges or culverts, the only lawful way in which it can be expended. If other funds are short, ask for the money needed in those funds for the purpose for which it is wanted.

When the people of Ann Arbor have been appealed to in a frank, straightforward way and told why money was needed, they have almost without exception voted it. But they cannot be made to vote an extra appropriation when there is money immediately available for the purpose wanted, simply because some one wishes to use that money to reinforce other funds.

We hope we have thrown the added light on this subject that our taxpayer friend desires.

"LOVELIEST PLACE TO GET MARRIED"

ANN ARBOR IS SAYS MISS FLORINE DUVAL

She is an Actress Whom Showman W. C. Gaskill Got a License to Wed Last Week

William Carlisle Gaskill, who says that this is his twenty-second summer in the battle of life and who gives his occupation as a showman, hid himself into town Thursday afternoon and in a bold hand registered himself at the Cook house, also Miss Florine Duval. The lady not putting in an appearance when Mr. Gaskill indited his autograph on the hotel register, the obliging clerk asked in his suavest tones: "Where is the lady?" "Oh, she'll be here later," replied Mr. Gaskill, and with this information he hid himself off to look up the Michigan Central railroad time table. Later Miss Florine, a bewitching little ditsel, arrived on the scene. In company with Mr. Gaskill she went to the county clerk's office, where she blushing confessed that she had passed the sweet sixteen milestone by three years and said she was from Boston and was an actress by profession.

County Clerk Blum, in his most affable manner, gave Mr. Gaskill the document which entitled him to make Miss Florine his better half. Then the pair departed, Florine remarking as she went that Ann Arbor was "just the loveliest place in all the world to get married."

It is understood that the couple were married by the Rev. Father Kelly, they having left for St. Thomas' rectory after getting the license. Father Kelly was out of the city Friday, hence the supposition that he performed the marriage ceremony could not be verified.

GETTING READY FOR ENGAGEMENT

Camp Bliss at Manistee is beginning to look like the true soldier's camp. About twenty-five men are at work preparing the grounds, erecting tents, etc. Governor's row has been erected and is better located than last year, being nearer to the car line. The First regiment will be located at the extreme southern end of the grounds while the Second regiment and the independent battalion will be at the extreme north. There is about three-quarters of a mile between the First and Second regiments. The Third is located about the same as last year except it is farther east. Brigade headquarters are to be at the same place as last year. Hay will be used for filling beds instead of straw. Water from Lake Michigan will be used again this year. Gen. Kidd and Col. Avery are superintending the work.—Adrian Times.

A Quart Baby.

Now and again there is an item in the newspapers concerning the birth of a puny baby so small that a quart cup holds it comfortably. If the article told all the facts it would probably tell also of a mother who in weakness and misery had looked forward to the baby's advent with shrinking and fear.

To have fine, healthy children the mother must be healthy, and it is the common testimony of mothers that the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription not only promotes the mother's health but also gives her strength to give her child.

"Favorite Prescription" accomplishes these results by tranquilizing the nerves, promoting a healthy appetite, and giving refreshing sleep. It increases physical vigor and gives great muscular elasticity, so that the baby's advent is practically painless. It is the best of tonics for nursing mothers.

"I gladly recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. J. W. G. Stephens, of Mills, Northumberland County, Va. "Before my third little boy was born I took six bottles. He is the finest child and has been from birth, and I suffered very much less than I ever did before. I unhesitatingly advise expectant mothers to use the 'Favorite Prescription.'"

The dealer who offers a substitute for "Favorite Prescription" does so to gain the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines.

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, containing 1008 pages, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 31 one-cent stamps for the cloth-bound volume, or only 21 stamps for the book in paper covers. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MANY TEACHERS IN ATTENDANCE

Large Number Taking Courses at Summer School

GRADUATES OF COLLEGES

Here From All Over the Country Perfecting Themselves in Special Branches

The summer session of the University of Michigan is growing more and more popular each year, as it becomes more widely known among students all over the country.

Not only are teachers who are desirous of doing some special work attracted by the school, but also large numbers of persons who wish to review their preparatory studies before entering upon their regular university work. Courses are given in several branches which entirely cover the ground required for admission to the University and by the state board of education for a teacher's certificate.

There are also advanced courses, credit for which count toward an advanced degree, which is the ambition of many a student.

The greatest percentage of students in the summer school are teachers coming to perfect themselves in some certain branch. The pedagogical side is specially emphasized in the summer work. Lectures are given which bear on the work of the teaching of Latin, English, etc.

Many teachers are taking up advanced work this summer with the intention of returning to the University at some later time to finish their course.

One hundred and twenty-four of the students are graduates from various universities and colleges and a number of them are teachers in the smaller colleges throughout the country.

Nearly every state university has one or more representatives here. Michigan University has by far the largest number of graduates in attendance. The Ypsilanti State Normal ranks next and the M. A. C. is close in rank.

The number is about equally divided as to sex. A large number of talented women are taking work and prove themselves to be very brilliant scholars in many cases.

The students range in age from the beardless youth to the grey haired man. The oldest student is a man 52 years of age, with half a lifetime's experience in teaching, who is taking work to brush up his knowledge in some of his favorite subjects. The youngest student is a girl, eighteen years of age, who is a sophomore in college and who is taking heavy work intending to shorten her course by one semester, which she will do in the summer sessions.

The courses which seem to be the more largely attended are those in French, German, botany, physics and chemistry. Every course offered has some students pursuing studies in that particular work.

A large number of students are doing a good deal of work in the libraries taking advantage of the unsurpassed opportunities which is afforded by the large collection of reference books.

The members of the faculty of the University who teach in the summer session are among the ablest in America. In addition to those from this University are the following from other schools: Prof. Wm. H. Munson, B. S., professor of history in Indiana State University; Wm. H. Sherzer, Ph. D., Ypsilanti Normal, geology; Clayton Teetzel, L. L. D., instructor in State Normal, physical training; D. W. Springer, Ann Arbor high school, science of accounts.

The courses will end Aug. 8, after a most successful session with the largest enrollment since the summer school has been instituted.

COST OF LIVING IS MUCH INCREASED

NECESSARIES OF LIFE ARE DEARER THAN LAST YEAR

Products Selling at Figures that Would Have Seemed Fabulous Twelve Months Ago

It costs just about a third more to live now than it did a year ago. Large as this fraction may seem, the statement is borne out by a comparison of prices of commodities of the two seasons. The great staples which are regarded as the necessities of life are all higher. Cattle, hogs and sheep and their products are now selling at figures that would have seemed fabulous a year ago.

Wheat, corn, oats and hay are generally away ahead of their quotations at that time. Fruits and vegetables, though recently they have declined somewhat, have maintained a uniform level of high prices that have been regarded as little short of phenomenal. Potatoes have sold for half a year at $1 or more a bushel; bread has advanced or bakers have depreciated the size and quantity of their loaves.

In canned fruits the market in one line after another has been cornered and prices boosted. In Chicago lately canned tomatoes have been advanced 10 cents; peaches that were overabundant and a drug on the market last fall are now selling in canned form at the same prices they did when the crop was almost a total failure.

More than any other necessity, however, meat has advanced until it is almost beyond the reach of any save the wealthy or extravagant.

The only thing that has not advanced in proportion to the cost of living is the price of labor. In some lines an advance of 10 to 15 per cent has been allowed, but in most lines the rate of wages remain the same as a year ago.—Exchange.

CAR WHEELS MADE OF MONEY.

Every year our government destroys nearly half a billion dollars' worth of soiled or torn bank notes, and after they have been reduced to pulp are used for making railroad car wheels. From a bank note to a car wheel is about as radical a transformation as the one brought about in the case of all weak, nervous and sickly people who will use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the favorite American remedy for stomach, liver and bowel complaints. A wineglassful before meals will put the stomach in good condition to digest the food and prevent the bowels from becoming constipated. Every one should keep it in the house to prevent belching, flatulency, insomnia and nervousness, also to cure indigestion, dyspepsia and liver and kidney troubles.

JACKSON PEOPLE HERE

Power Plant May Be Transferred to Geddes—Meeting of Board of Directors

It has been learned from an authoritative source that negotiations have been pending for the last three weeks for the purchase of the Ann Arbor Thompson-Houston Electric Light Co.'s plant by Jackson people who are interested in the Washtenaw Electric Co., whose plant is at Geddes.

There have been several gentlemen from Jackson looking over the plant here. These gentlemen are interested in the Geddes property. It is the purpose, it is said, if the deal goes through, to close up the electric light plant here and remove the machinery to Geddes. The plant at the latter place is now supplying Ypsilanti with electric light and it is understood if the sale of the plant here is made that Ann Arbor will be lighted from Geddes.

There will be a meeting of the board of directors of the Ann Arbor company the first week in August and it is understood that the matter of the sale will be determined on at that time.

GAME OF CARDS RESULTS IN FIGHT

RUDOLPH GRAFF ASKS FOR HIS PARTNER'S ARREST

Couldn't Get Security for Costs and Justice Doty Wouldn't Issue Warrant

Rudolph Graff, a plasterer employed by John Koch, the contractor, and who appeared about town Friday morning wearing a beautifully decorated eye, applied to Justice Doty for a warrant for the arrest of Gottlieb Schneider, whom he accused of being responsible for the discolored condition of his orb. As Graff was not able to give security for costs, Justice Doty postponed the issuing of the warrant until such a time as Graf could make good.

According to Graf's story, he was wooing the fickle goddess of fortune at a game of cards in a Washington street saloon last night, a game in which Mr. Schneider is also said to have been deeply interested. Trouble arose, it appears, over the dealing of the pasteboards, when Schneider, it is alleged, took the law into his own hands and handed Graf a terrific blow. At this juncture the game ended, at least for Graf, for when he was next seen it was in Justice Doty's court today.

HAS PASSED TO THE UNKNOWN

The Death of Dr. Charles Kendall Adams

AFTER LINGERING ILLNESS

He Succumbed to Bright's Disease at Redlands, Cal., on Sunday

Charles Kendall Adams, aged 67 years, former president of the University of Wisconsin, and former professor of history and Latin in the University of Michigan, died Sunday from Bright's disease, after a lingering illness, at Redlands, Cal.

Dr. Adams had been ailing for several years. While president of the University of Wisconsin he was granted a long leave of absence, going to Europe, where he seemed to recuperate. Shortly after returning to his work at the University of Wisconsin, about a year ago, the disease which affected him soon told upon his system, and at the end of a few months he resigned and went to California. The end came painlessly and was the result of a relapse similar to many which had occurred during the past week, each one of which took away a little more strength than it was possible for the pain-racked body to restore. For the greater part of several days before his death, Dr. Adams was in a semi-conscious condition.

Dr. Charles Kendall Adams was at one time one of Michigan's foremost educators, and was widely known in the world of letters. He was president of the University of Wisconsin until a year of the time of his death, and was for seven years at the head of the faculty of Cornell University, in addition to his long service on the faculty of the University of Michigan.

Dr. Adams was born at Derby, Vt., January 24, 1835. Later he removed to Michigan and graduated from the University of Michigan with the degrees of A. M. and LL. D. After completing his college course he visited Europe and spent many months of study in Germany, France and Italy, preparing to teach Latin and history. On his return to Michigan in 1863, he went to the University of Michigan as assistant professor in history and Latin, in which position he served for four years. He was then called to the chair of history and Latin, where he served till 1885. His work here was such as to remodel the entire course of instruction in the branches which he taught, and his services to the university were invaluable.

Accordingly it was with great regret that the University of Michigan was forced to give Dr. Adams up to Cornell college at Ithaca, N. Y., when he was called there to accept the presidency of that institution. He occupied this chair until 1892, when he became president of the University of Wisconsin.

As an author he gained marked recognition with his "Democracy and Monarchy in France," "Manual of Historical Literature," "British Orations," "Christopher Columbus: His Life and Work," together with many papers in the various educational and literary reviews and magazines of the country.

His latest service of importance to the educational world, outside of his college work, was as editor-in-chief of Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia, now known as the Universal Cyclopedia. The supervision and compiling of this great work covered a period of three years from 1892 to 1895.

HAD A VERY QUIET WEDDING

Miss Florence Jones, of New York, and John Fox were quietly married in Detroit last Wednesday and have gone on a wedding journey to Ludington, Mr. Fox's old home.

This announcement will be a surprise to the friends of the couple in this city as neither of them signified any such intention before leaving the city a week ago.

Miss Jones has been in this city during the past year, treating for hay fever and met Mr. Fox during her stay here.

Mr. Fox carries on a very prosperous art store on William street. Mr. and Mrs. Fox are expected to return to this city in a few days, when their friends will undoubtedly give them a hearty welcome.

SCIENTISTS TO STUDY EFFECT OF PRESERVATIVES ON HUMAN SUBJECTS.

When Dr. W. H. Wiley, chief of the bureau of animal industry, gets back to the United States from Europe, whether he sailed the other day, the United States government will establish a free table for people who are willing to have their stomachs experimented with.

The purpose is to conduct experiments to determine whether the foreign substances added to food products are detrimental to the health of man. While Dr. Wiley is in Europe the civil service commission will hold examinations and prepare an eligible list of expert physiological chemists to aid him in the work. Congress appropriated $10,000 for it. After that healthy young men who are willing to eat free food that may or may not have deleterious ingredients will be in demand.

If Dr. Wiley can get permission to experiment on college students, they will be his preference. He wants to get some college to let him set up a "training table." Each student who eats at this table is to give his word of honor not to eat anything except what he gets at the government restaurant. The first ten days or so will then be devoted to feeding the subjects a good healthy quantity of the ordinary foods with no object in view but to get them in a perfectly normal condition.

Then the effect of a certain chemical—borax, for instance—will be tried. After the effect of this has been noted, another preservative chemical in common use will be taken up; then a coloring substance, etc., until the gamut of color and preservative has been run and the bureau has obtained data enough on which to base correct conclusions.

A system similar to this is to be tried in the United States army, when new rations will be tested.

LATEST ARMY UNIFORMS.

Details of the Changes to Go Into Effect After Jan. 1.

While Secretary Root was at Oyster Bay, N. Y., the president considered the approved report of the army uniform board, says a Washington dispatch. The order of the new uniform will go into effect on Jan. 1.

Among the changes are the following: The full dress coat is about the same as at present, save the buttons are more spreading, with ornamentations on the sleeve and with the rank designated on the sleeve instead of the shoulder knot.

A new dress uniform is provided, consisting of a sack coat of woolen or cotton material of an olive drab color, with trousers to match. It is intended to provide suits which can be worn in cold weather that are almost a duplicate of the present khaki uniforms. The new overcoat will be a double breasted ulster of olive drab woolen material, and is to replace the old dark blue overcoat now worn.

General and staff officers are to have full dress trousers with gold lace as a stripe, officers of the line wearing the present stripe to designate the service. The chapeau is retained for general officers and officers of the staff department, to be worn with full dress uniform. A new full dress cap is provided, differing considerably from the present cap in design and trimmings. A new pattern of sash has been adopted for all officers in place of the sword now in use. A full dress coat for officers for evening wear has been provided, cut swallowtail. The old dress coat for enlisted men has been abandoned and the dress blouse substituted.

HAY'S COSTLY TON OF COAL

Secretary of State Paid $8 For It and $10 For Express Charges.

Secretary Hay's latest coal bill is $18 for one ton, $10 of which is express charges. The Hay family is at the Falls, his summer place at Lake Sunapee, N. H., and Mrs. Hay, feeling chilly recently, wanted the steam heater started, says the New York Evening Journal. The secretary was in Washington, but by persistent use of the telephone it was ascertained that a man in Windsor, Vt., thirty miles away, had some coal. He was promptly instructed to send a ton at once "by express."

The agent apologized for not having a safe big enough to hold a ton of coal, but said he thought it would be all right if it were properly sealed in bags. It was put on the train in this shape and at Claremont Junction was transferred to a passenger car after being weighed to be sure that none had got away.

The agent at Lake Sunapee also weighed the coal, if not his words, and finally delivered it, collecting $10 charges. Two days later another ton was ordered, and an inquiry as to whether it was to be sent by express elicited this reply: "Not on your life; by freight."

TRAINING HORSES TO LIKE AUTOS.

Albert R. Shattuck and Courtland Field Bishop have undertaken the task of instructing the horses in Lenox in the way they should behave when they encounter an automobile, says the New York Press. Mr. Shattuck and Mr. Bishop are devoting several hours every morning to these outdoor classes in equine etiquette.

ON THE FACE OF THE WATERS.

Upon the ark's deck Noah stood
And cast his eagle eye
Around, above, beneath, aside,
And saw but sea and sky.

The wide, wide waste of watery wet
Was as a monarch's throne;
No other ship was on that sea
Which Noah did not own.

"By gum!" he cried in thunder tones,
"There's none so great as me!
In matters maritime I am
The Morgan of the sea!"
—W. J. Lampton in New York Herald.

WAITING ON

"BILL" JUDSON

Last week the engineer at Luick's planing mill, at Ann Arbor, thought his time was up on earth, and like all Ann Arborites, he was unfit to die, because of lack of that previous preparation so necessary to secure fire insurance for the next life. It was by reason of a severe thunder storm and lightning display. The thunder hurt no one, though it made a great deal of noise, same as a republican congressman ranting about protective tariff. But the lightning was around, and like Santa Claus, came down the chimney, intending to blow up the boiler, no doubt, but instead took a swish at the ash box and fire pit, and the engineer, as the ashes, smoke and flames came out into the room, could only fall flat on his bread basket and exclaim, "Oh, Lord, I believe," and then faint away. But he believed the boiler was going to explode, and will defer joining the church until lightning or Bill Judson again causes more trouble.—Adrian Press.

ROBBED HOUSES IN OPEN DAY

Burglars Made Big Haul in City Friday

ENTERED FOUR HOMES

Made Attempts to Get Into Three Others—Took Jewelry Valued at $400

Burglars swooped down upon this city Friday and between the hours of 2:30 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon got away with between $300 and $400 worth of property. The goods taken were almost altogether made up of jewelry and only of the gold variety, showing that the burglars were professionals.

The men were arrested in Detroit Saturday while trying to dispose of part of the stolen property. Detroit detectives took them into custody and immediately notified the sheriff's office here of the arrests. Sheriff John Gillen and Deputy Sheriff Fred Gillen hurriedly left for Detroit to bring the prisoners to this city.

The houses robbed by the burglars were those of Mayor Copeland, the Misses Emma and Coral Alexander, 609 Lawrence street; J. A. Brown, 223 E. Washington street, and John Finnigan, 50 E. Kingsley street. Attempts were made by the burglars to enter the house of Miss Amelia Breed, 317 E. Ann street, that of James F. Quinlan, 425 N. Main, and an unoccupied house on E. Ann street, but at these places the fellows were frightened away before they could get in their work.

Probably J. A. Brown, the grocer, was more heavily robbed than the other persons whose houses were entered. His loss is estimated at between $75 and $100. The property stolen was all jewelry belonging to the female members with the exception of a banjo, which the burglars also carried away. At the Alexander house the robbers took a gold watch belonging to Miss Emma Alexander, a teacher in the Jones school and some small pieces of jewelry. At the home of Mr. Finnigan they made free with his dress suit case and took some other small valuables which they probably concluded could be readily turned into money.

When Mayor Copeland's house was reached, the criminals rifled Mrs. Copeland's jewelry case, but fortunately she had taken much of her jewelry with her when she left for her summer outing a few weeks ago. The few trinkets, however, that she had left in the case, the burglars appropriated. They even carried off the Mayor's fraternity pin, one of his most cherished possessions. The pin, however, was recovered later, the burglars having dropped it on the street, near the mayor's house, in their flight.

When one of the burglars reached the house of Miss Amelia Breed, he went to the rear door and rapped heavily. In a moment or two the sound of breaking glass attracted the attention of a lady who was in her yard near by.

"What are you doing there?" she asked the fellow.

"Oh," he replied, "I wished to see the lady of the house. I have broken the window in rapping on it, but I will pay for the damage."

The woman addressed left to telephone for the police. When she returned the fellow had skipped.

As soon as the sheriff's office and police department were notified that burglars were at work Deputy Sheriffs Fred Gillen and Orton Kelsey and several patrolmen went in search of the men. The city was scoured from one end to the other, but no trace of the fellows could be found. They had taken a hasty exit.

The next move on the part of Deputy Sheriffs Gillen and Kelsey was to get a description of some of the stolen jewelry. This, for the purpose of sending it to near by cities and towns, so that the fellows might be caught when trying to dispose of their swag outside of Ann Arbor.

The description of Mr. Brown's property that had been stolen was accurately taken and immediately sent to the police departments at Detroit, Toledo and other cities. The result was the arrest of the burglars in Detroit Saturday.

The burglaries are the boldest ever attempted in this city, considering that the criminals went about their work in open day light and in the very heart of the city.

SUDDEN DEPARTURE OF MRS. F. WEINMAN

SHE LEFT HER HOME ON LAST FRIDAY EVENING

Mrs. Fredricka Weinman disappeared from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Oliver Albro, on Lincoln avenue, on Friday evening and has not been seen since. It is supposed that she started to visit a daughter, who lives in Waterford, near Pontiac.

She was restless during the early part of the night and unable to sleep. She got up and dressed herself at about three o'clock in the morning and started on her journey. She has been traced as far as the Whiting farm on the Ypsilanti road, where she stopped for breakfast.

She told the people at this place that she was going to Pontiac on the electric car. She took the first car which passed and that is the last trace that has been found of her.

Mrs. Weinman is seventy years old and is quite lame, not being able to walk except with great difficulty. She is unable to speak English and her daughter is fearful that she was not able to make herself understood in making inquiries when changing cars in Detroit, and has been carried to some other point than the one which she desired to reach.

Mr. Albro has telephoned to all points where Mrs. Weinman is likely to have stopped without being able to locate her so far.

PAINFULLY HURT IN A RUNAWAY

A serious runaway occurred Monday afternoon in which William Coulter, an employe of Mack's dry goods house, was quite painfully injured.

Coulter was in the rear end of one of Mack's large furniture wagons, which was driven by William Seltz. The horses became frightened at some object in the street and made a mad dash down Main street. Young Seltz bravely held on to the reins and tried to curb the frightened team, but it was to no purpose. At the corner of Kingsley and N. Main streets, Coulter fell out of the wagon, badly hurting one of his shoulders and receiving a gash in his head. A fire department wagon took him to his home. Young Seltz jumped from the wagon near Summit street and was not injured. The animals were stopped shortly after passing Summit street.

BURGLARS WERE FRIGHTENED AWAY

Attempted to Enter Attorney Wedemeyer's Home

FLED IN THE DARKNESS

Police Are Notified But There is No Clue to Who the Men Are

An ineffectual attempt was made by two men, probably burglars, to enter the residence of Attorney W. W. Wedemeyer, at 511 E. Kingsley street, about 1:30 o'clock Tuesday morning.

About that hour Mrs. Wedemeyer, who has been ill for several weeks, and who has been using a downstairs room in the house, so that she might not be fatigued by having to go upstairs, was suddenly startled by hearing noises at the back door of the house. She called her nurse, who was sleeping in an adjoining room. When the nurse responded the noises had died away, and it was thought by Mrs. Wedemeyer that they were not of a character to indicate that anyone was attempting to enter the house. Mrs. Wedemeyer was considerably frightened, however, and the nurse remained with her.

Soon the noises were heard again and from their sound it was apparent that someone was trying to break into the house. Mr. Wedemeyer was summoned by the nurse. He dressed hurriedly and came downstairs. As he opened the kitchen door he heard the hurrying footsteps of two men who were going in the direction of the street. After some investigation he found that the cellar door had been tampered with and that an effort had been made by the men to get into the house through the kitchen window.

The attempted burglary was reported to the police Tuesday, but as no description of the men can be given by Mr. Wedemeyer it will probably be difficult to locate them.

Lately Ann Arbor seems to be a stamping ground for notorious thieves, who, coming here from outside cities, get in their work and disappear before the police have any knowledge that they are in town.

HENNING PROPERTY CASE WAS HEARD

Aldermen in Favor of Condemning the Ground

Attorney Cavanaugh Present Representing Henning But He Kept a Mysterious Silence

The council held a meeting Monday afternoon to consider the question of condemning land for parks, including the Henning property, opposite the M. C. depot and the "Cat Hole."

L. D. Carr appeared for M. M. Wheelock and asked $1,000 for his property. H. G. Prettyman estimated that the property wanted at this point could be secured for $3,800. He appeared as owning the "Cat Hole" proper and asked $1,300 for his interest. The McLaughlin heirs who claim the same property, it is understood were represented by M. J. Cavanaugh, who also is attorney for the Hennings. Mr. Cavanaugh was present but had nothing to say although all eyes were turned toward him. Ald. Hamilton asked Mr. Prettyman if he had any objections to a special assessment district of those benefited and Mr. Prettyman responded, "Not a particle."

The council awaited the expiration of the hour and then passed the formal resolutions, reciting the action in the premises to date, and reciting the fact that the council had determined to lay out and establish two parks.

The resolutions passed by a unanimous vote of the 11 aldermen present and Ald. Hamilton, Jeany, and Grose were appointed a committee to obtain the terms and conditions of release of title and all damages accruing from the proposed parks. The committee expect to report at the next meeting of the council when formal condemnation proceedings will probably be commenced.

Miss Ellen Stone, of China, a sister of Dr. Mary Stone, who was graduated from the medical department of the University several years ago, gave a very interesting talk on "Woman's Life in China." She is a bright little woman and quite won the hearts of all the ladies who heard her.

Dainty refreshments were served after the close of the program.

WILL BUILD MASONIC TEMPLE

Committee Decide Upon Their Report

A FINE BUILDING

To be Erected at Once and will be an Ornament to the City

The Masonic lodges of this city have for some time been talking of erecting a new Masonic temple. A committee, appointed some time ago by the joint Masonic bodies, met Wednesday evening to formulate their report and decided to recommend that the building be built for Masonic purposes only.

It was intended at one time to purchase a site for the new building on Main street and to devote the first floor to stores and have the upper floors fitted up for lodge rooms, but since the committee have deemed it more advisable to erect a building exclusively for Masonic purposes. A site will undoubtedly be purchased outside of the business district and options on several pieces of property are being considered.

The building will be one of the most complete and beautiful Masonic temples anywhere in the state. It will be fitted up with club rooms, gymnasium, bowling alley, fine parlors, and the lodge and drill rooms will be of the finest. The building will be begun within the year, undoubtedly, and when finished will add greatly to the attractive appearance of the city.

MALARIA IS DUE NEXT MONTH ON ACCOUNT OF ALL THE RAIN

An epidemic of malaria seems likely to be traced to the list of ills which may be added directly or indirectly to the long-continued rains. Physicians have every summer more or less trouble with the disease, and while this summer, so far, has not been out of the ordinary, it seems to be the generally accepted opinion that the disease will be widespread when the season is a little more advanced.

"This extremely wet weather will very naturally lead up to malarial troubles," said a well known physician. "If we have much hot weather with the ground as wet and soaked as it is, there is no doubt that the air will soon be full of disease germs. In many of the cases I have treated this summer I have had to combat malaria. I don't know that there is any way in which one can avoid malaria altogether, except by the use of Lansfield's Blood, Liver and Kidney Cure, a medicine that will clear the blood, keep the liver and kidneys in proper working order, and build up the system. I know of no medicine that will keep one's system free from malaria as Lansfield's will do, because it is made of roots, barks and buds. It is manufactured by a reliable and trustworthy firm, the Harry R. Lansfield Medical Co., 128 Lafayette avenue, Detroit.

"It is caused chiefly by inhaling infected air; but we must breathe. It is probable that strong, vigorous persons will not be affected at all, while others whose systems are in a poor condition will show malarial poisoning.

"Malarial poisoning is not always shown by chills and fever. It often appears in other indications."

WILL BE ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

GRAND LODGE D. O. H. TO MEET HERE NEXT WEEK

Will be Attended by Forty Delegates—Local Lodge Will Make Things Pleasant for Them

The local lodge of the Deutschen Ordnung Harugari will entertain delegates of the lodges all over the state on August 5.

At that time the state convention of the society will be held in this city. Forty delegates are expected to be in attendance and they will be royally entertained at the American house at the expense of the society in this city.

After the business meeting, which will occupy the entire day, the visiting delegates will be entertained at Germania hall in the evening. A dance will be given with music furnished by Otto's Knights Templar band. A general entertainment has been arranged by the committee in charge, to make the evening a pleasant one for those who do not trip the light fantastic. There will be speeches by prominent members of the society, music and every other pleasant feature possible to obtain.

The Harugari lodge in this city was organized in 1883 and has grown until it now has a membership of 180. J. R. Trojanowski, of this city, is commander of the grand lodge of the state, and Eugene Oesterlin, sr., is financier of the state lodge.

One of the most admirable features of the society is the sick benefit connected with it, which pays its members $4 a week for six months during sickness and in case of death pays $500 to the family of the deceased. These philanthropic plans are most admirable and have in many cases proven to be of invaluable assistance to bereaved families.

It is an honor of which Ann Arbor is justly proud to have the D. O. H. select this city as the place for holding their convention this year.

During the long summer days, reading matter to the tired patients of the hospitals is a gift that is most gratefully accepted. In University hall in the northwest corner is a receptacle for such matter, which will be conveyed to the patients. Some of the Jackson people are querying as to whether Candidate Charles E. They objected to 2-inch tile being used to carry off the surface water of a whole block.

If there is nothing else of interest at the great Washtenaw Fair, the German village will furnish enough enjoyment and amusement for all. Part of it be under a big circus tent, while the best of it will be under real shade trees beside the tent. This grove will be made with 100 25-foot saplings and will be the finest and coolest floor on the grounds. Here you can eat your lunches and quench your thirst and listen to a fine orchestra which will play all afternoon.

The campus, this year, presents a more attractive and pleasing appearance than for some time, the freshness being no doubt due to the many rains. Perhaps no prettier spot can be seen there than on the west side extending all along State street. The vineclad main hall and imposing law building form an effective background for the finely kept lawn and walks and the four large flower beds of foliage plants and geraniums make the effect a most delightful one.

THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

Prof. McLaughlin Spoke of It Last Thursday Evening

LARGE AUDIENCE PRESENT

Told Graphically of the Causes which Led Up to Our Separation from John Bull

The lecture given by Prof. McLaughlin in Sarah Caswell Angell hall Thursday of last week was largely attended, in spite of the threatening weather. Prof. McLaughlin is a fine history student and told most interestingly of the causes of the American revolution.

He spoke of the corrupt conditions of politics in England at the time of the trouble with her colonies in this country. George III was a perfectly reckless monarch and his sole ambition was to raise himself to a most exalted position, but his designs were rendered futile by a colony who defied him.

The parliament at this time was composed of dissolute men, entirely void of any sense of honor and were open to bribes of any sort. It is reported that a department was actually opened where these bribes were paid. Seats in parliament were offered for sale shamelessly and bargained for openly.

The government was based on hypocrisy and was in no position to confront the problems which faced the English people. The mother country made laws which the colonists considered to be against their rights and resented them accordingly and finally disregarded them entirely.

England forbade her colonists to trade with the French West Indies. This law was entirely disregarded by the colonists who depended greatly on the sugar from these islands, also on the rum which was a great commodity of monetary value in trade with the Indians.

England tried in every way to keep down manufacturing interests in the colonies for this spirit of progress was a menace to the manufacturers of England in that they were unable longer to place their goods in America.

The obnoxious sugar act was re-enacted in 1774 and roused the ire of the entire colony. The levying of the stamp act was the last straw.

The act which was passed thoughtlessly by a sleepy parliament in England was met in the colonies by wide awake Americans. It met its first opposition from the Virginia colony and then Massachusetts took decisive steps by calling a congress of the colonists, who declared their rights as Englishmen most strenuously. They declared that since they had no representation in parliament, no taxes could be levied except by their own legislature. England, with true British obstinacy, refused to take back any of its unjust acts and thus the war was precipitated.

The lecture was teeming with interesting anecdotes and facts which were new to many of those in the audience.

CANDIDATES FOR COUNTY OFFICES

THEY'RE GETTING NUMEROUS IN THE DEMOCRATIC RANKS

Fight in Democratic Convention will Probably Occur Over the Office of Sheriff

The candidates for county nominations are getting rather numerous in the democratic ranks, and some pretty good timber are out for nominations. Of course County Clerk Blum, Register of Deeds C. R. Houston and Prosecuting Attorney John L. Duffy will be re-nominated by acclamation. They have made good officials and will be accorded second terms.

The fight in the democratic convention will probably be over the office of sheriff. For this office the candidates at this date who are known to the Argus as declared candidates are, in alphabetical order: Alderman William Clancy of the third ward of Ann Arbor, Joseph Gauntlett, of Milan; Deputy Sheriff Orton F. Kelsey, William Lehman, of Chelsea, and Lester H. Yost, of Ypsilanti. There may be others but they have not definitely declared themselves.

Sylvan has already elected a Lehman delegation, weeks in advance of the convention. It was reported that Mr. Gauntlett had withdrawn from the race, but the York delegation to the convention yesterday vigorously denied this and Mr. Gauntlett himself told the Argus last evening that he was a candidate.

For county treasurer the only name so far heard is that of Supervisor Charles Braun, of Ann Arbor town, and his name has been favorably received.

PRESENT CONDITION OF AGRICULTURE

SHOWN BY THE RECENT BULLETIN OF THE CENSUS BUREAU

The Value of Farms in Michigan Estimated at Over Six Hundred Million Dollars

The census bureau at Washington has issued a bulletin giving the condition of agriculture in the United States for the year 1900. It shows that there were at that time 5,739,657 farms in the entire country, which were valued at $16,674,694,247. Of this amount $3,560,198,191 or over 21 per cent represented the value of buildings and $13,114,496,056, or over 78 per cent represented the value of lands and improvements other than buildings. The value of farm implements was $761,261,550, and of live stock $3,078,050,041. These values added to the values of the farms gives a total value of farm property amounting to $20,514,001,838. The total value of farm products for the year 1899 is given at $4,739,118,752, of which amount $1,718,990,221 was for animal products, including live stock, poultry and bee products. The bulletin places the average size of farms in the United States at 146 acres, and it is stated that 49 per cent of the farm land is improved. The total acreage for the entire country was $41,201,546.

The number of farms in the United States has increased in every decade for the last 50 years, and so rapidly that in 1900 there were nearly four times as many farms as in 1850, and 25 per cent more than in 1890. The live stock farm lands of the country are put down at a value of $7,505,284,273, or more than 36 per cent of the whole. The hay and grain lands at $6,379,548,543, or 31 per cent of the whole; dairy produce over 8 per cent. Michigan has 203,261 farms, valued at $690,355,734.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by druggists, 75c. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

JOHNSON DID NOT APPEAR MONDAY

HE FILES A DEMURRER TO PETITION INSTEAD

Was Asked to Give an Account of How He Transacted Business But Has Failed to Respond

Monday was the day set for the hearing of the petition of the American Type Founders company and the American Electrotype company, for an accounting from Receiver Johnson of the Ann Arbor Printing Co., but Mr. Johnson did not put in an appearance. Instead he filed a demurrer to the petition, through Attorneys A. J. Sawyer & Son, claiming among other things that:

"Said petition does not show that said petitioner, or the persons or corporations he pretends to represent, are entitled to be paid out of the assets of said Ann Arbor Printing company, now or at any other time in the hands of said receiver.

"That said petition does not show or charge that said receiver owed a duty to make any report or file any statement showing how much money he had received and paid out, or how much the receipts of said business had been, or how much the expenses of conducting and carrying on the same had been at the time of filing said petition.

"That the said petition is not properly entitled.

"Neither the law nor the order of the court requires the receiver to sell the plan, as prayed for in said petition."

Hollis Cooley, son of Prof. Mortimer Cooley, has been nominated alternate for the appointment to cadetship at Annapolis by Senator McMillan. Owen Bartlett, of Grosse Isle, has been nominated as candidate for the honors and five alternates, among whom is Hollis Cooley, were also appointed.

Hollis Cooley is a very bright young man and there is no doubt but that he will successfully pass his examination and it is to be hoped that he will receive the appointment. He is a member of the '05 engineering class of the U. of M.

COLORED WORKMAN SUES EMPLOYER

JUDGE KINNE DENIES SHAFER MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL

Case of Viola Dale—She is Released From Jail and Ordered Out of Town

Jacob Beck, jr., a colored workman, by his attorney, A. J. Sawyer, has sued John Wessinger for the balance claimed for putting in some street coping. The defendant claims he has already paid all the work is worth, and that the plaintiff is trying to exact from him several times as much as other workmen would charge. The case comes up for hearing on August 4. Murray & Storm appear for Wessinger.

Viola Dale, the colored girl arrested last week on the charge of being a common street walker, was released Saturday on payment of the cists in the case and on the condition that she leave the city. Justice Gibson gave the girl a severe reprimand, telling her that if she appeared in the city again and was arrested it would go hard with her. Her brother in Jackson has agreed to provide for her there.

Judge Kinne has denied the motion of John Schafer, the Saline saloon keeper, for a new trial. This is the case where Mrs. James, of Saline, sued Schafer for damages, claiming that her husband had been seriously injured through the fact of becoming intoxicated at the Schafer place. The circuit court jury awarded her $600.

Judge Watkins listened Friday to the contest on the will of Cloe E. Waters. Every indication was that it would be a long drawn out contest. Harriman & Thompson appeared for the will, and Paul Voorbies and Murray & Storm for the contestants.

The contestants claimed incompetency and undue influence on the part of the husband. David Waters was on the witness stand all morning and until the middle of the afternoon, and rigidly examined by Attorney Storm. All the parties suddenly inclined to a settlement and a peaceable arrangement was finally agreed upon.

LIGHTNING WORKS MUCH HAVOC

Lightning struck the house of Wm. Looker, 1941 Geddes avenue, Friday at about noon. The bolt struck the northeast corner of the roof, tearing off the shingles and throwing them a distance of four or five rods, scattering them over the lawn in all directions. The roof boards were ripped off by some distance and the clap boards were loosened. Other than this no damage was done.

The family were seated in the room directly under the spot struck, but no one felt any shock. It was a fortunate escape from harm for the family, who feel very thankful that they escaped without more serious damage than that done to the roof.

A... STUDY of JOY and PAIN By Everett Holbrook Copyright, 1901, by Charles R. Etherington

THE night city editor had told me that if I would go to Viani's I might see somebody married and somebody killed, and he had been called away for consultation with the chief before he could explain this statement. So I strolled up to the restaurant near to the hearts of Bohemians without having any definite idea about what was likely to occur there.

Viani's hospitable door is in the front of a house so small that one would not expect to find space within for ten people to sit down to dinner, but the shanty proves to be only the vestibule to a series of rooms scattered through the jumble of buildings in the middle of the block. These had been taken in to the establishment in the years of Viani's advancing prosperity. The different levels of the floors were the steps by which he had risen and by which he had long known he must go down, though only within a few months had any suspicion of his financial embarrassment been whispered through the quarter.

In the little bar by the door I observed an inconspicuous person dressed in dark clothes whom I had often met at police headquarters. He got by the name of Charley White, though he is a son of Italy. I knew him for an amiable fellow and an able detective, and I at once perceived a connection between his presence and the tragic suggestion of the night city editor.

In response to a question from me White admitted that his presence was official rather than social.

"I'm looking for young Viani," said he.

"Nephew of our friend," said I, indicating the proprietor of the establishment, who appeared at that moment at the door of the large dining room in the rear.

"Nicola claims some sort of relation ship with old Viani," replied White.

"But I doubt if there really is any. He has lived here off and on for some years. He's always been in love with Marta, Viani's daughter, but he never had a chance there. She was willing to be a cousin to him, but no more. He's about blooded, half crazy. He passes for the chap, and I've handsome man in heard that he the quarter."

"Why, what's the matter with him?" I inquired. "It isn't Marta that's married today."

"No," said White. "The bride is Nina Carusi; but this fellow Romano—the bridegroom—used to be engaged to Marta. Romano is no good except to look at, and a man in my business can't even say that much for him, but he passes for the handsomest man in the quarter, and many's the girl that has gone foolish about him. Marta Viani was one of them, and when Romano broke the engagement last summer she nearly died.

"You see, Romano, like a good many others, thought that Viani was rich, and it has always been his theory that he was too handsome to work. He wanted to live at Viani's for nothing the rest of his days, but when it suddenly developed that Viani was ruined and might not be able to live here himself Romano shifted his affections to Nina Carusi, who has a bit of money in her own name.

"Nicola Viani, the young fellow, has been out of town for awhile and has just got back. He has taken it into his head that Marta is dying of a broken heart and that Romano is responsible. Therefore Nicola has declared a vendetta, and Romano is scared—as he has a right to be, I don't mind telling you."

"But why did they come here for their wedding spread?" I asked.

"The arrangements were made before Nicola turned up. This is the swell restaurant, you know, and besides, Nina Carusi wouldn't lose the chance of making Marta feel sore. There's likely to be trouble, my friend, for Nicola means business. And the worst of it is that I can't find out what's become of him.

He wasn't at the church. He must be lying around here somewhere.

"So the wedding has already taken place?" said I. And White replied that it had and that the bridal party was due to arrive at any moment.

I asked him why he had not kept Romano in view, and he answered that he was sure that Nicola was hanging around the restaurant and that the trouble, if there should be any, would be there.

"I think I hear the carriages," he said. "I'll take a look outside."

During this conversation we had stepped into a little room on the right of the bar. No one else had been present, but as White passed out and I stood looking after him a door opened behind me. I turned and saw Marta Viani.

Marta was a pretty girl whom I remembered for her big, dark eyes and plump red cheeks. I had not been at Viani's in some months, though formerly an habitue, and so had not seen Marta. The poor child was shockingly changed.

I think she must have lost twenty pounds in weight, and the color had quite gone out of her cheeks.

As I looked at her I felt a strong desire to take Nicola's business out of his hands, though my method of administering justice would have been more crude than his and without the touch of sympathy. It is singular how deeply we sympathize with a girl in such circumstances when she really ought to be congratulated.

Marta leaned against the wall of the room at the point which would be least conspicuous from without. Evidently she wished to see the bridal procession pass into the banquet hall and not herself be seen. There was the voiceless pain of a dumb animal in her eyes, the suffering that always moves me quickest to anger. So long as an afflicted creature can talk and does talk I can keep cool; but poor Marta was beyond speech.

Suddenly I saw at the back of the room, where the door through which Marta had come stood ajar, the face of her cousin, Nicola. He looked wicked if ever a man did. Marta seemed unaware of his presence. She was looking beyond me, waiting for a sight of the rascal, Romano.

I pretended not to notice Nicola and glanced out into the bar, hoping to see White, but he must have been on the sidewalk, whence came the noise of the arrival of the bridal party. A dozen young men and women came boisterously into the bar and ranged themselves along the sides of the room, with their faces turned toward the door. Around the entrance to the large dining room quite a crowd had gathered. The double doors were open, and by craning my neck I could see the long table spread for the feast.

My position was far from comfortable. I had a very definite idea that Nicola Viani intended to attack Romano at the moment when that happy man should pass the door by which I was standing. In that event I should have to stop him, and, though he was not physically formidable, I knew what he would have in his hand.

I had not the moral courage to ask help of any one, so I stood there like a dummy, trying to look behind and before at the same time. In came the bridal couple, Romano in a frock coat, with a colored shirt under it; a red tie glaring fiercely under his chin, and a noisier red of another rose ornamenting his buttonhole. He had a tall hat in his left hand, and the bride hung upon his right arm. I observed that his hair and mustache were curled in the best style of the tonsorial art. Withal, he was a handsome creature, and I could hardly wonder that the girls adored him.

As to the bride, I regretted to observe that she was in all details of dress as different from her race as possible. Her face was rather pretty, and she had a natural grace, but she had spoiled all by making of herself a bad copy of an American.

So they passed by amid cheers, and Nicola remained quiet by the door. Apparently his desire for vengeance had exhausted itself in conversation. I began to despise him, for he had before his eyes the sight of Marta, who would have fallen but for the wall behind her and whose hands were clasped upon her breast as if there were a knife in her heart.

I went out to the street to tell White about Nicola, but failed to find him after considerable search. On my return I met Viani, who told me that I should find a seat reserved for me in the banquet hall.

When I entered, I observed immediately and with surprise that Romano was not there. The chair by the bride's had been occupied. It was to most of them only a noise in the ears, but they had been accustomed to it. The Mount Holly would not have been itself without music, and by the same token some of the habitues would have been uneasy if the din of conversation had been less or the waiters had ceased to rattle the plates. I saw indeed a few of the guests who were really enjoying the music, but they were not doing it in a way that a musician could understand.

Finally Heinrich caught my eye, and I could perceive at once that he was both surprised and pleased. Surely he played at me during the remainder of the piece, and I fancied that his execution sensibly improved.

I had not told my companions about Heinrich, but when the music ceased I proceeded to do so. It is only fair to say that the others at my table had been as inattentive as the generality of the Mount Holly's guests, but we all listened when Heinrich rose again to lead his little band. This time it was not with him the customary forlorn hope. He showed the evidences of an uplifted heart.

They played a serenade of Titi's which has long been dear to me, and I am bound to say that I have seldom heard it so well rendered. Our party had planned to applaud, but we were all so thoroughly pleased that the act had the full flavor of spontaneity. Dozens of people around us joined in the hand clapping, and as most of them had not consciously heard a note they forced a repetition of the piece out of mere curiosity. The manager of the Mount Holly looked out to see what was the matter, and I had a glimpse of him standing in the doorway round eyed with astonishment.

As for Heinrich, he was serenely ecstatic. His eyes shone, he gained two inches in stature, and when he turned after the second rendition of the serenade to thank his subordinates for their aid in winning this triumph I saw him wiping away tears with the handkerchief that had been folded against the end of his fiddle.

"This is very nice to see," said the lady who sat at my right, "but I suspect that it will be the ruin of your friend. He will want this always and will never have it again."

When the next piece was finished, we were getting ready to go and forgot to applaud. I thought of it too late and looked at Heinrich. To my surprise, he seemed even better pleased than before.

It must have been about two weeks later that I met him one forenoon upon the steps of the doctor's house. He was obviously much improved in health. At sight of me he started and then flushed with pleasure as I greeted him by name and thanked him for the Titi serenade.

"You gave us the first applause we had had," he said. "I was almost despairing, though I told no one. The doctor even goes so far as to say that it was affecting my health, and indeed the artist needs some little encouragement. Is it not so?"

As I was trying to frame a reply he continued: "But if he does not get it that is his fault. It is because he does not attain the proper standard. I was beginning to lose sight of that truth. I said to myself, 'The conditions are not favorable—the noise and all that.' It is ruinous to get that idea. One can always succeed if he will deserve it."

"I think it was your attentive attitude that inspired us. We played the serenade well. We won applause. We have had none since, but we are perfectly satisfied. When we merit it, we shall get it, and if it takes us ten years we shall work on contentedly."

"Do you know, I was almost afraid on that evening that you were going to applaud the second piece, which we murdered. It had been insufficiently rehearsed. We do it better now. If you had applauded, it would have spoiled all. But, no, you were too good a musician, for of course it was you who led the audience. There is always some critical spirit to do that. I am not always fortunate enough to catch his eye, but he is there. I shall never doubt that."

"Goodby," he added cheerily. "I hope you will soon come to the Mount Holly again."

I lied, saying that I would. But I shall not dare. I might applaud in the wrong place and kill the artistic faith which it was my great good luck to revive in Heinrich's breast.

WHOLLY OBSTINATE AND UNMANAGEBLE

EDITOR HELBER RESISTS EFFORTS TO SUPPORT MACHINE

Tells Republican Ticket to go to a Climate Much Hotter Than Here

This the way an episode in local politics is told by the Monroe Democrat:

Editor Eugene Helber, of the German Post of Ann Arbor, continues an object of solicitude on the part of candidate for congress, Townsend and his friends. He remains wholly unmanageable and obstinate, and resists all overtures to turn in and support the republican ticket. When Congressman Smith, who does not deny that he promised Mr. Helber the Ann Arbor postoffice, used him as long as he thought he needed him and then turned him down, it was reasoned that smarting under the perfidy and outrage of his betrayal, he would promptly ally himself with the interests of some other candidate, and having beaten Smith with him, he would joyously and with alacrity hoist the standard of the winner in his influential and widely circulated paper and work for his election till the ides of November. But the unexpected happened, for when the first issue of the Post appeared after Mr. Townsend's nomination, and was eagerly scanned for a "double headed yell of triumph" from the hurricane deck with the name of Hon. Charles Townsend waving from the mast-head, Mr. Townsend and his people were astounded at the emphatic manner in which they were not there. Instead, there rested over the columns of the Post that awful, ominous, brooding silence, that portended no good to the republican candidate; a silence which thickened and suffocated the air preceding the eruption of Mt. Pelee, and Mr. Townsend was dismayed. It was believed to be best to approach the influential German editor and discover if possible, the cause of his detaching silence. Accordingly trusted commissioners, skilled in diplomacy and provided with the ambergis of good will and the frankincense and myrrh of fraternal affection, visited Ann Arbor and found "Achilles" in his tent, busily employed in the rare occupation of miffing his own business. The German chieftain received the ambassadors with courtesy, invited them to seats, and when they had crossed their legs and sat hesitating under the embarrassment of great responsibility, they were closely interrogated touching the cause of so distinguished a visit. Ambergis of good will and the frankincense and myrrh of fraternal affection were thereupon produced and the Achillean tent grew redolent with the odor. These, the ambassadors stated, were in expression of amiability; they greeted the chieftain in the name of their master, and had come to inquire why in his paper there was not one little whoop for Townsend, and why his name flew not at the mast head of the Post. Then Bro. Helber broke loose. The silence was relieved, and that, at least, was some consolation. Mr. Helber did not scent the violet nor paint the rainbow. He told the ambassadors respectfully but firmly in effect that Mr. Townsend and the republican party might this year go to that winterless climate represented by the gentleman with hoofs and horns; that he was not in the whooping business this summer; that the republican candidate for congress could not obtain his influence, and that republican politics, especially in Washtenaw, had become so corrupt it was a disgrace to be a Washtenaw republican. He bade them tell their master so, and signified that the end of the conference had been reached.

A FAIR DAUGHTER OF ANN ARBOR

The Detroit Free Press says: "It may interest Detroiters to know that Miss Emma Daisy Burke, of Pittsburg, Pa., whose singing was one of the pleasant features of the banquet given in honor of Judge Byron S. Waite, was born and reared in Ann Arbor. Miss Burke is a graduate of the University School of Music at Ann Arbor and later studied three years with Prof. Mehan while located in Detroit and later in Pittsburg. She is the soprano soloist in the Point Breeze Presbyterian church of Pittsburg, and first soprano of the Pittsburg Ariel quartet.

"The press notices in the Pittsburg papers of Miss Burke's singing are most flattering and enthusiastic. Her voice is powerful, full of feeling, and her tone production is excellent, and to this are added youth, beauty and a fine stage presence.

"The Concert Goer, of New York city, says: 'Miss Burke is a vocalist of marked ability, possessing a voice of power and beauty. Her singing of dramatic passages was positively thrilling, and her work during the evening was enthusiastically received.'

"As is her custom Miss Burke is now spending her vacation at different resorts in Michigan. Her many friends and admirers in this locality take a just pride in her accomplishments as a professional artiste and will watch with much interest her future career."

AN EVENING WITH THE GREEK

Prof. D'Ooge Tells of His Travels in Foreign Country

STEREOPTICON VIEWS

Illustrated the Lecture Which was One of the Best of the Series

The last lecture in the series of the summer school lectures was given Monday evening in the Woman's Building. This series has been more largely attended than ever before and the lectures have been without exception intensely interesting.

The lecture last evening was given by Prof. D'Ooge on "Incidents and Scenes of Travel in Greece." Prof. D'Ooge is well versed in Greek traditions and classical history. He has traveled extensively in Greece and made personal investigations of the ancient ruins with which this country abounds. He said in part:

"I invite you tonight to take an informal trip with me, through the little country across the sea which is the mother of arts, to visit the ancient land, rich in historical scenes, to walk with me the streets of Athens, once trodden by Plato and Socrates, to stand on Mars hill, where the apostle of the Gentiles preached his memorable sermon, to look at the heights of the classical Parthenon. It is the ambition of every classical student to visit these scenes. One is impressed on his first visit to Greece with the small area it covers, smaller than one-third of our state of Michigan, the famous Attica covers an area about the size of two of our modern counties. It certainly proves the saying that 'bigness is not greatness.'"

"Greece has a coast line longer than Spain and Portugal together. One can get no farther, than twenty miles from the sea and ten miles from the hills in any direction.

"There is the greatest variety of climate and consequently a great variety of products. The greatest products are olives, olive oil and zenturians. The proximity of the mountain and sea causes a fine climate with a small rainfall. Many times, during the past three weeks, have I wished myself back in Attica, where the average rainfall is only about three inches per year. In Greece the sky is ever clear and luminous and one is able to see for many miles, so clear is the atmosphere. I stood one day on the mountain back of Corinth and saw the ruins of the Parthenon, sixty-two miles away.

"The methods of travel have been very primitive until recently, but now the railroad whistle sounds through the hills, strangely out of tune with the antiquity seen everywhere. The favorite means of travel is still the donkey. The ancient breed of Greek horse whose fame is heard in old Greek song and story, has not been perpetuated and the horses of the present day are not a credit to their ancestors.

"The travelers in this peculiar country stop at the inns, the word in Greek means 'a receptacle for strangers,' a very good definition for certainly Greek hospitality is extended to all kinds and conditions of strangers.

"A letter of introduction is a great letter of credit to a traveler in Greece. I had a letter to a man, a most hospitable fellow, a bachelor, whose house was in charge of his venerable mother. When introduced to the lady and she found that my companion and myself were Americans, she extended her hands to us most cordially and said that she never before had the opportunity of entertaining Americans and that she was glad to have the pleasure now. Twenty years before she had fought in the trenches with her husband for Greek freedom and had been greatly cheered by the comforts sent by people in Boston and she wanted to show her appreciation of the sympathy of the American people at that troublesome time. I also had a letter of introduction to a prominent citizen in Corinth, but on my presenting it I found him to be in jail."

The lecture was profusely illustrated by stereopticon views, which were described graphically by Prof. D'Ooge. One view showed a picture of hangman's island. To this island all criminals condemned to death are taken and are hanged and their bodies disappear. The two hangmen are criminals who serve out a ten-year sentence by putting to death fellow criminals. At the end of their term they in turn disappear.

Several interesting views of the excavations which are being made around about Delphi, which have revealed some wonderfully preserved antiquities, among them being a beautiful marble theatre with a large circle in the centre, which was used for the ballet and orchestra, were seen. Other views too numerous to mention were shown. The lecture was teeming with humorous stories and held the attention of the audience until the end.

WAYNE COUNTY WANTS THE NOMINEE

What They Say They will do for a Wayne Nominee

For Congress on Democratic Ticket This Fall--An Interview With Committeeman McInerney

The Wayne county democratic view of the congressional situation in this district, evidently inspired by John McInerney, the Wayne member of the congressional committee is given in the Detroit Free Press as follows:

While that portion of Wayne county, which is in the second district, is normally republican by a large majority, this year the democrats say there will be a change. Heretofore every Republican who has received the election has done so through the republican votes of Wayne county, they say, and they figure that they certainly ought to be entitled to some consideration at the hands of the party. They are arguing that the failure of the republican party to nominate Mark Bacon was a throw-down for Wayne county, and the action of Townsend in selecting his member of the congressional committee from Northville was another. This has disgruntled many who voted the republican ticket before, and many threats are being made to the effect that this year the ticket will be booted.

In discussing the matter yesterday Secretary McInerney stated that in the opinion of many people in Wyandotte the time is now ripe for the election of a democratic congressman from the second district.

"Without doubt there will be many republicans voting our ticket this fall," said Mr. McInerney, "and if a Wayne county man receives the nomination I am sure Townsend will be defeated. In our portion of the district he is exceedingly unpopular, and it seems good sense to say that with the proper man the democrats could swing enough votes in Wayne county alone to carry the day. I am sure that Wyandotte will contribute 500 votes to the cause."

Ann Arbor Locals.

George L. Sweet, the former efficient manager of the Postal Telegraph Company in this city, has returned from Detroit, where he has been taking a course of treatment for neuritis at the Clark mineral baths. He is now much improved and the probabilities are that he will shortly be in harness again. He has an offer of several fine positions in Detroit but has not yet decided whether he will accept a position in Detroit or not. He prefers to remain in Ann Arbor for the present.

Grand Rapids dispatches chronicle the arrest in that city of Max B. Leavitt, a prominent young man, on a charge of forgery. It is charged that he secured $6,000 from a real estate dealer on notes signed by D. M. Amberg and wife and Dr. Louis Barth. Leavitt is a graduate of the literary department, U. of M., class of '97, and while here was prominent in college and social circles. Until last January he was engaged in teaching in the Grand Rapids school, but was discharged at that time.

The funeral of the Rev. Joel Kennedy was held at his late residence on S. Fifth avenue at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, and was conducted by Rev. J. M. Gelston, who spoke feelingly of Mr. Kennedy's worth and work in the ministry for 52 years. Rev. Edward S. Ninde, of the M. E. church, and Rev. W. L. Tedrow, of the Trinity Lutheran church also paid touching tributes to Mr. Kennedy's character and his broad catholicity. The remains were taken last evening to Mr. Kennedy's birth place in St. Ann's, Canada.

The fire department was called out shortly after 10 o'clock Friday night by a fire over Neff's bakery shop. The fire originated in a back closet in some unknown manner and was first noticed by Miss Lena Eisele. When her attention was first called to it the flames were raging and spreading over the roof. When the fire department arrived, the flames had eaten through a large space of the outer wall. Except for the damage made by water, the other rooms were not damaged. The bakery shop underneath was not affected by the fire.

William E. Pickard, who was arrested a short time ago for resisting Officer Ball, was remanded to jail yesterday by Justice Doty in default of $500 bonds. The petition of his bondsmen, James Wilcott and Richard Kearns, to be released from the bonds was granted by the court, before whom they appeared. Pickard has been drinking more or less lately and had stated to one of his bondsmen, Mr. Wilcott, that he would skip out. Acting on this his bondsmen refused to be responsible for him. In case Pickard goes without bail now he will have a home in the county jail until next October.

CANDIDATES FOR CONGRESS

Seems to be a Dearth of Material

WASHTENAW CANDIDATES

They Have Not Yet Developed --Wayne County May Choose Man

The question is often heard on the streets, "Who are the democrats going to nominate for Congress." As a matter of fact nobody knows. There has all along been a dearth of candidates. This must not however be taken as a bad sign. The delegates to the convention can thus exercise their judgement in picking a man who possesses merit and vote-getting qualities.

To date there is only one really announced candidate, the Hon. John Strong, of Monroe, who was lieutenant governor under the Winans administration. The Monroe county convention passed a resolution requesting its delegates, who are already selected, to urge his name as representative in congress. Mr. Strong was chairman of the convention and acknowledged the endorsement of his candidacy in the following well timed speech:

"I most heartily thank you for the honor of being your chairman and for naming me for the honor of representing you in Congress. The occasion is one more than I can really realize. Think of your district; one of the most populous and wealthy districts in the United States. If I should be the choice of the convention I would gladly accept the nomination. When you go into that convention I want you to select the man that can control the most votes. I don't care who he is. I want to elect our man. If you can find a man that can control more votes than I can, name him. I thank you. I will do the best that I can to be elected. I will say this: 'I never have been defeated.'"

It is not at all likely, however, that Mr. Strong will be the only candidate. Lon O'Mealy, a bright Adrian lawyer is said to be in the hands of his friends. Willard Stearns, editor of the Adrian Press and known throughout the district as a campaigner, is said to be in a frame of mind where he is more than willing to accept the nomination. Orrin Pierce, of Hudson, who made the run four years ago, and who is believed to be stronger now than then, while not in any sense a candidate, would not decline a nomination, his friends say, if offered to him.

City Attorney John Miner, of Jackson, a bright lawyer and good speaker, is reported to be in a receptive mood.

There has been considerable talk among democratic politicians of going to Wayne county for a candidate, a section of the district that has always been terribly snubbed by congressional conventions, although it furnishes the republican majorities. Ex-Mayor Henry Roehrig, of Wyandotte, is spoken of as a candidate who would have a good prospect of winning. He is a fine man, young and active, and has always rolled up heavy majorities in the republican stronghold.

Washtenaw candidates have not developed and none of the above names, with the possible exception of Mr. Strong, can really be said to be seeking the nomination. But evidently the democratic congressional convention will have a number of names from which to select a good candidate.

The democratic congressional convention will be held in Ann Arbor, August 27.

Three other candidates from Wayne county have been mentioned, Dr. James Cahalan, of Wyandotte and Alfred Bailey, of Trenton, the postmaster at that place under Cleveland, and Marx, the Wyandotte brewer.

BURGLARS' PLUNDER IS RECOVERED

SHERIFF GILLEN GETS BACK STOLEN PROPERTY

One of the Men Who Robbed Houses Here on Friday May be Brought Back

Much of the plunder secured by the thieves who operated in this city on last Friday has been recovered by Sheriff Gillen, he having went to Detroit on last Saturday and gotten most of the property which had been stolen from one of the burglars, whose name is O'Connor, but who has many aliases. The property taken from Mayor Cope land's house was all recovered. It is probable that all of the valuables which the burglars got away with will finally be returned to their owners.

The Detroit police department refused to allow O'Connor to be brought here, they having several previous charges against him. One of the burglars implicated with O'Connor may be probably handed over to Sheriff Gillen who went to Detroit Monday for the purpose of bringing him here.
