

THREE PRETTY WEDDINGS IN ANN ARBOR WEDNESDAY

SCHWARZ-ROHDE.

Another pretty June wedding occurred Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rohde, 600 W. Huron street, at which were united in marriage Miss Julia Schwarz and Dr. G. C. Rohde.

The bridal party entered the parlor at promptly 7 o'clock, as Miss Charlotte Rohde, sister of the groom, played the beautiful Lohengrin wedding march, and took their places before an arch of feathery asparagus and white peonies. Rev. John Neumann performed the beautiful Lutheran wedding ceremony, the service being entirely in German. Miss Pauline Rohde, sister of the groom, and Otto Andres attended the bride and groom.

The bride looked very sweet in her wedding gown of soft white silk over taffeta. It was elaborately shirred and trimmed with embroidered chiffon. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore a beautiful gown of light blue silk mull, trimmed in lace, and carried white carnations.

After congratulations were given the newly wedded pair and guests were seated at a long table in the dining room, where a delicious wedding supper was served. The table was beautifully spread with dainty china and glass and on either end a tall vase filled with pink carnations was arranged. Pink roses were scattered over the cloth.

Mr. and Mrs. Rohde left on a late train for an eastern trip. On their return they will be at home to their friends at 101 N. Ashley street.

The bride is a very popular young woman here, having spent a good deal of time here visiting friends during the past two years.

Dr. Rohde is a graduate of the Chicago Veterinary college and is most successful in his work.

A large number of presents were received by the bride and consisted of glass, silver, furniture and other useful articles.

DANFORTH-KINGINGER.

One of the prettiest of June weddings was that which was solemnized at the Christian Memorial church on S. University avenue Wednesday evening, when Miss Beatrice E. Danforth, daughter of Mrs. Frances E. Danforth, became the wife of Walter W. Kinginger, of Newaygo.

The church presented a pretty sight when, at half past seven the bridal party entered to the beautiful strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, which was played by Miss Marva Clark. The pulpit was beautifully decorated with pink and white. White bunting was festooned gracefully with roses and dainty green. Palms, ferns and great bunches of white peonies and roses were massed about the edge of the pulpit.

The bridal party took their places in a semi-circle before the pulpit, where Prof. Coler performed the simple but impressive ceremony which united the lives of these young couple.

After the ceremony Miss Etolia Ferris sang a beautiful wedding hymn, "He Loveth," after which the bridal party left the church, the triumphant tones of Mendelssohn's Nuptial March sounding as the party walked down the aisle.

The bride was richly gowned in white crepe de chene over taffeta, elaborately shirred and trimmed in silk applique. She carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses. Little Fanita Ferris, gowned in a pretty fluffy white lawn, acted as ring bearer. Miss Sue Tribble acted as maid of honor and wore a beautiful gown of white Swiss mull over silk and carried pink roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Fannie Rule of Detroit, wore white organdie over pink and carried pink roses. John Tribble and Henry Danforth acted as attendants to the groom and Mr. Clifton Frazier and James Bentley as ushers.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding supper was served to the wedding party and the relatives at the bride's home, 1314 S. University avenue. The table was prettily decorated in the same colors as the church, pink and white carnations and roses carrying out the color scheme.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinginger left last evening on the 9:30 train for an eastern trip. A reception will be given for them on their arrival at Nazareth, Pa., by the parents of the groom. They will be at home to their friends after July 15 at Newaygo, Mich.

The bride is one of the most charming of Ann Arbor girls. She, with her mother, removed from Grand Rapids about five years ago and during her residence here, has been a student at the School of Music.

Mr. Kinginger is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and has an excellent position as expert chemist of the Cement Co. at Newaygo.

A host of friends extend their heartiest congratulations to this newly wedded couple.

ALLMENDINGER-WOOLSEY.

A quiet wedding was celebrated Wednesday at the residence of the bride on Packard street, Mrs. Eva M. Allmendinger of this city being the bride and Mr. Robert Woolsey of Ypsilanti the groom. Only the immediate families of the couple were present at the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. J. M. Gelston, with the beautiful ring service. They were the recipients of many useful and elegant presents, among which was a beautiful rose sofa pillow from the sister of the bride, Miss Mollie Seybold, and an equally beautiful oil painting of roses, done by her nephew, Myron H. Greaves of Grand Rapids. Mr. Woolsey is well known in Ypsilanti, where he has held a trusty position with Cornwell Bros. for upwards of thirty years. The bride is also known in Ann Arbor, where she has spent most of her life. On Sunday last she entertained her brothers and sisters with their wives and husbands at a dinner given in honor of Mr. Woolsey. Mr. and Mrs. Woolsey left for a short trip in the west, after which they will be at home to their friends, August 1, at 307 River street Ypsilanti.

JUDGE DURAND DIED MONDAY

The Flint Jurist Who Was Close to the People

HIS DEATH WAS SUDDEN

Had it Not Been for His Illness Last Fall He Would Undoubtedly Have Been Governor

Flint, Mich., June 9.—Judge George H. Durand died at his farm, just north of the city limits, about 10 o'clock Monday morning, apoplexy being the immediate cause of death. None of the members of his family were with him at the time, his death being practically instantaneous.

This news came with a startling suddenness upon the people of Flint, for ever since his serious illness last fall, which compelled his retirement from the head of the Democratic state ticket, was there a less reason to expect a summons from the Reaper.

George Harmon Durand was born Feb. 1, 1838, on a farm near Cobleskill, Schoharie county, New York, and was educated in the seminary at Lima, in the same state. He came to Michigan in 1856, and after a short time spent in Detroit began teaching school at Oxford, Oakland county. His residence in Flint dates from 1857, when he commenced the study of his profession the law, under the direction of Colonel William M. Fenton. He was admitted to the bar in 1858 by Judge Josiah Turner, and at once began active practice.

During his first year in the practice of his profession he was chosen city attorney of Flint. For ten years he was a member of the school board, and he also served many terms in the city council. He was twice elected mayor of Flint. In 1874, by a personal campaign, he was elected to congress. During his term in Washington he served on the committee on commerce much of the time acting as its chairman, a compliment for a first term.

In the fall of 1893 he was elected elector-at-large for president and vice-president for the eastern district of Michigan. Judge Durand was appointed to the supreme bench of the state by Governor Winans, to succeed Justice Morse, who resigned when nominated to succeed the latter.

Nominated as the standard bearer of the Democracy last fall, his election seemed in a fair way of realization when he was first stricken with apoplexy. Illness compelled his retirement, and the chance which was apparently offered was lost.

Deceased was married in August, 1858, to Miss Sarah A. Benson at Mindon, N. Y., who, with two children, Charles A. and Elizabeth A., survive him.

The funeral of Judge Durand will be held Thursday under the auspices of the grand lodge F. and A. M.

OBITUARY SKETCH OF JOHN ROOST

John Roost, of Delhi Mills, Mich., was laid at rest June 3, 1903, in the family lot in the German cemetery on Jackson avenue. Mr. Roost was one of a large family of brothers and sisters, and in 1866 he, alone, came to this country where he settled in Delhi.

For some time he worked on the Boyden farm, then later in the flouring mill at Delhi. By his industry and frugality he accumulated a comfortable home consisting of a farm and a dwelling. He was a kind father, a good neighbor, and was held in high esteem by all who knew him. For some time past Mr. Roost had been a patient sufferer until death relieved him.

The funeral services were held from his late home. Rev. W. F. Morrison, of Webster, preached a very thoughtful and impressive sermon. A large number of friends assembled to pay their last respects to one of their honored citizens. Very appropriate music was rendered by Misses Georgia and Florence Lomas and Messrs. Almendinger and Morrison.

78 HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS GRADUATE

There will be 78 graduates of the Ann Arbor high school this year if none fall by the wayside on the final examinations. Two of these completed their work some time ago.

The total number enrolled in the schools of the city the past year has been 2465, an increase of 25 over last year. The entire increase has been in the high school which enrolled 25 more pupils than last year.

RE-BUILDING MILLING CO.'S DAM

The Michigan Milling Co. have begun the work of rebuilding their dam, which went out two weeks ago, and are busy driving the piles for the false work. The company intend that the rebuilt dam shall be as strong as possible to make it. It will be constructed of concrete and portland cement and every care taken to have it so that a repetition of the recent disaster will be impossible.

The Milling Co. are still trying to figure out how the recent mishap could have occurred. A thorough examination has been made of the sub-structure of the damaged dam and in every way it appears to be perfectly sound and judging from appearances it should have stood for years. The only tenable theory is that the destruction was due to something else than the weight of the water held by it, and the company will use every endeavor to discover if it had been tampered with in any way.

ALUM BAKING POWDERS.

There are so many alum baking powders about, most of which are represented to be made of cream of tartar, that the following list of powders in which chemists have found alum will be of value:

The housekeeper should bear in mind that alum makes a cheap baking powder. It costs but two cents a pound, while cream of tartar costs thirty. The quality of the powder, is, therefore, usually indicated by the price.

HENNING PROPERTY NOT CONDEMNED

The Case Was Not Properly
Commenced

THE FAILURE NOT DUE

To Any Acts of the Present
City Administration But Were Technical Failures of Last One

Another city case has been thrown out of court. The Henning property was not condemned Wednesday, because of failure to take the proper steps in beginning the suit. This failure occurred during the administration of the previous city attorney.

All the testimony in the case was taken, when the defendant's attorneys, Messrs. Cavanaugh of this city and Graves of Detroit, made the points that no notice of proposed condemnation had been served on the defendant or his agents, that the return of posting notices did not state when the notices had been posted and other technical points of like nature. These defects were fatal and the court took the case away from the jury.

If the property is condemned the case will have to be commenced over again, the city having been put to the costs of the present suit without avail.

MANCHESTER IS NEAR THE GOAL

Only $350 Short of Raising the Bonus

To Secure a Big Cement Plant in the Village of Manchester

The people of Manchester have raised all but $350 to secure the big cement plant which is to locate there. The people to secure the plant to locate in that village instead of in Bridge-water were to take $25,000 in stock, to give a location for the plant and to secure the right of way for a railroad from the marl beds to the plant. The location and right of way foots up $3,450 and $3,100 has already been subscribed.

Besides the $25,000 stock required to be subscribed, Manchester citizens have taken $5,000 additional stock. The $25,000 stock is payable in installments only as the work proceeds.

It is not many villages of the size of Manchester which can handle so big a proposition as this one has been.

GEORGE H. DURAND.

In the death of Judge George H. Durand the state has lost one of its ideal citizens and the people a genuine friend. His death comes almost as a personal grief to all who have enjoyed his personal acquaintance. Judge Durand possessed the rare faculty of making all who came into his personal presence feel that he was their friend and interested in them. This was due not to any design on his part, but the genuine friendliness of his character and the broad, liberal spirit of the man. This accounted for the hosts of friends which he had everywhere among people who knew anything of the man. To these traits was due the fact that he many times, although never an office seeker, had office thrust upon him by his admiring fellow citizens. He was never ambitious for office or for riches, when he served in any public capacity it was because his fellow citizens demanded the sacrifice at his hands. He did not live for the purpose of paramount, in dollars, but he had large possessions in those traits of character which attacked other men to him. He was the kind of a man who always makes a community better for his having lived within it.

INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM NEEDED.

The present would be one occasion, no doubt, when, if the people could turn to the right of initiative and referendum in this state, a demand would be laid upon the legislature to pass a primary election law. Something of the kind seems to be absolutely essential when a legislative body becomes so irresponsible to public demands as is the Michigan legislature. There is practically no doubt but that if this issue could be submitted to the people, they would vote it with an overwhelming majority. Both parties have declared for it in convention and the dominant party has twice incorporated it in state platforms, but a few men in the state senate have repudiated the demand of their party and in some instances their own personal pledges to their constituents. But with the right to initiate legislation there is little doubt but that the legislature would be forced to take the question up. It is reported that the republican clubs of the state are preparing to open up a vigorous campaign at once on the adjournment of the legislature in support of the demand to be made on the governor for a special session to enact this legislation, that is, a primary election law. All citizens who favor this reform should lend this movement their support. There is an opportunity in a special session to "put the cusses on record" which does not exist in a regular session. If the governor can be induced to call a special session something may possibly be accomplished. The republican clubs of the state number in their ranks many of the younger and more progressive members of the party and they are strongly committed to this reform. Their united voices ought to have some weight.

The Windy city is indeed having a hard time. Owing to the big strike of the laundrymen, the people are obliged to go without clean linen. Now their troubles have been added to by a strike of the table waiters at the big restaurants. Thursday with thousands at the tables partially served the waiters walked out and the meal was brought to an abrupt end, while other thousands were waiting to get to the tables. Verily the lot of the Chicagoan is hard. Dirty linen and nothing to eat is a hard combination to endure.

THE SCANDAL DEEPENS AND BROADENS.

With each passing day the postoffice scandal deepens. Revelations are coming now thick and fast. Ex-Superintendent of Rural Delivery Machen has been very promptly indicted by a grand jury and it is said that his crookedness in office will necessitate a radical overhauling of the rural delivery routes of the country. He is charged with laying out routes any where where a congressman asked for one regardless of conditions. Routes are said to have been established on which the receipts were not more than three or four dollars a month. Many such will have to be taken up.

It appears that congressmen were parties to this thing and urged the establishment of routes in sections where there was no demand whatever for the expense. Their pull with Machen was sufficient to induce him to wholly neglect his proper obligations to the public it would appear.

Machen seems also to have had a good understanding with the manufacturers of mail boxes and it is said received a graft from these.

In fact the ramifications of the scandal are so various that it seems that it must have been known to those higher up in the government service long ago. The scandal has been brung for some time but Postmaster General Payne refused to believe that anything was wrong. There appears good reason for the belief that Payne only entered upon the investigation after Senator Lodge had nosed out various matters and brought them to the attention of the president. In other words that the postmaster general entered very reluctantly upon the investigation.

Machen seems to have been peculiarly close to Hanna, Perry Heath, Elkins and Payne and they appear not to have taken kindly to the interference of Senator Lodge. But the matter has gone so far now that it will probably be quite impossible to whitewash the whole gang.

It is not beyond belief that the closeness of Senator Hanna to Machen, Tyner, Perry Heath, Neely and Rathbone, et al., may have had something to do with his submission in Ohio. He may have seen the coming storm and sensed the danger to himself in appearing in any degree in opposition to the president. He may have felt that his closeness to the rascals now being brought to book might cause his name to be brought into unpleasant notoriety. Be this as it may the lightning appears to be striking most in those states where the anti-Roosevelt sentiment has been supposed to be greatest.

There seems to be a remarkable delay in the prosecution of the Tyner case. Papers were abstracted from the safe in Mr. Tyner's office without warrant of law, taken to the Tyner residence and some or all of them ultimately returned, but no one seems to know what papers were taken and whether they were all returned or not. Certain it is that the papers were taken without right or warrant and yet no one is in process of being dealt with as the offense demands. All these things lend probability to the suspicion that there may be bigger game involved. The scandal is one which deeply interests the public.

CHICAGO STRIKE LESSONS.

The two big strikes among the laundrymen and the waiters of Chicago are about over and the men have accepted the terms which their employers offered them before they went out. The fact is there never was any valid reason for either of these strikes. This became more and more apparent as the strike progressed. An important lesson of these strikes is, therefore, that that method of settling differences between employers and employed should not be resorted to until all other means have been exhausted. It is estimated that the laundry strike cost both sides at least $800,000 besides the permanent loss of business which is sure to result and then the men accepted in substance the terms offered by the employers before the men walked out. The chief point in the laundry dispute was the right of the employer to enjoy freedom of contract. The waiters' strike is practically over also and they have accepted what they flatly refused to consider at the time of the walk out. The hotel and restaurant keepers' union offered to arbitrate the differences, but the waiters refused this. That is they refused to recognize the employers' organization, thus assuming a position wholly untenable. The right of employers to freedom of contract and to organize are as fundamental as the right to work or not to work.

There is one thing to be observed in this connection, however, which is encouraging, viz., that the older union men, the safer and more conservative leaders, have not been with the hot heads at any time in their refusal to recognize these principles. This is probably the cause of the termination of the strike at this time. But how much better it would have been to have followed their advice before either strike was inaugurated.

There seem to be a possibility, if not a probability, of another strike in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania. When the strike commission appointed by President Roosevelt made its report it advised a conciliation board to be composed of representatives of the operators and of the miners. Recently the miners designated the three district presidents for their representatives on this conciliation board. The representatives of the operators refused to recognize these men as representatives of the miners and hence the trouble which may result in another strike. The representatives of the operators refuse to recognize the representatives of the district labor organizations because of the manner of their appointment. It seem that the operators hold that these representatives should be appointed by the miners without reference to the district organizations. In other words the trouble seems to be over the old question of recognition of the unions. The manner of appointing these representatives provided by the strike commission seems to have been followed out by the district labor organizations. A strike may result, if the operators persist in refusing recognition of the miners representatives as the refusal is looked upon by the miners as a deliberate attempt on the part of the operators not to abide by the recommendations of the strike commission. It is to be sincerely hoped that means may be found to prevent a reopening of the strike. Such a result of these differences would be deplorable.

In many sections of the west the people have been passing through some terrible experiences within the past few days. Terrific storms have deluged whole sections, destroyed millions of property and at least a hundred lives. Cities have been inundated and when the waters subside, the worst may not be over unless the most prompt and vigorous attention be given to work of sanitation. It is difficult for people living in sections where such floods do not occur to appreciate what these severe storms mean in some sections of the country. With our knowledge of storms of rain in this section, it scarcely seems necessary that lives should be lost thereby, but how little our experience teaches us in this particular is shown by the fact that a hundred lives at least were wiped out by these storms and the consequent floods. While rain storms are not as dangerous as the terrible wind storms, still they are bad enough and there seems to be little chance of protection against either. We know little as to their cause, or when to expect them, and consequently can make no adequate provision for safety. The best that can be done is to stand ready to render all possible and needful help when such emergencies come and to alleviate the consequences as much as it is possible to do.

It is said that Senator Moriarty has cast a serious reflection upon those unfortunate citizens who are doing time in the Jackson state prison. He claims that there are men in that institution just as innocent as any member of the present state senate. What is the use of striking at men when they are down in that way? If the convicts were at liberty and could hurl back the aspersion with proper spirit, it would be a different matter. But to make such invidious comparisons when it is known that the convicts can make no reply is little short of infamous. What standing can convicts whose term is about to expire hope to regain in any community in which Senator Moriarty's statement may be regarded as having foundation in fact? They might hope to live down their prison records and reputations gained through the crimes committed for which they were sent to prison, but the implication that they are on the level of the members of the present senate places them without th pale of hope. The only chance for convicts with terms less than life lies in the probability that an outraged public will not believe that these convicts are of the same level as members of the senate.

The republican postoffice stew is getting thicker by the addition of new ingredients almost every day. It is now reported that a United States senator is mixed up in a charge of boodling in the interest of one of the get-rich-quick concerns, for which he used his influence with the department. Evidently this is what the republicans call "running the government and the country on a business basis."

The Postmaster General "regrets to report" that one of the assistant attorneys in his department has been arrested for boodling. It is also sad to relate that the prisoner charged with the crime is a good republican and was vouched for by that good and great man, Senator Fairbanks. The good state of Indiana seems to be furnishing more than her share of these patriots for pelf discovered in the post-office scandals.

The governor has signed the bill for a new normal school and now the strenuous life will be on with those cities and towns which hope to get it located within their confines. It will no doubt depend on the bonus offered as to what location is accepted. Not that everything will depend on this, but other things being equal, the state will in all probability regard favorably a good gift from the city which gets the location. The Argus has not believed that another normal school was needed at this time, but as the bill has passed the legislature and received the approval of the governor, it is sure to come and consequently it is to be hoped that it will be located where it will serve all interests best.

The republican program for the incoming congress is said to be to avoid any political legislation and adjourn in May. There is to be no tariff or trust legislation, but a financial bill is to be passed. This certainly is not a strenuous program. Perhaps this doing-nothing policy will prevail and then again perhaps it won't. So long as trust prices and starvation wages are the order of the day the democrats are not going to let up in their endeavors to get at the trust-controlled schedules in the Dingley bill. The republican majority in the next congress will be about thirty, and if sixteen recalcitrant republicans join with the democrats some of the trust-sheltering schedules will go glimmering so far as the house is concerned and when the bill strikes the senate there will be tariff music in the air to which the republicans will be compelled to dance far into the summer. The democrats will have some leadership in the next congress, and there will be something doing from the very minute the extra session meets in November.

A VERY DOUBTFUL "COMPLIMENT."

Of all the puerile and silly comments on the Chamberlain proposal to revive the infamous corn laws and starve the masses for the benefit of a few landlords and decaying industries the silliest is that which represents it as a tribute to the United States and a "vindication" of "our" protective policy. It hardly needs saying that intelligent protectionists are not guilty of any such childish twaddle. It is well known that stanch American protectionists have fully recognized the economic impossibility of a protective system under the material, climatic, industrial and commercial conditions prevailing in the United Kingdom.

Postmaster General Payne, Senator Depew and other republican statesmen are reported by Mr. Wellman as saying that a country dependent upon another or several other countries for the very staff of life is in no position to make commercial war or to force concessions by means of duties and preferential tariffs. Great Britain, they point out, imports 85 per cent of her breadstuffs and meats. She cannot do without these things, and if she taxes them the consumers must pay the taxes. They cannot pay them, being overtaxed already, unless the workmen secure higher wages and the small traders and business men command higher profits. Can a government raise the rate of wages by restricting the markets of the manufacturers?

Great Britain is and must remain an exporter and trader, and her very existence depends upon freer and freer access to the markets of the world. Where are her best markets? In the colonies? Not at all. Ignorant jingoes and demagogues may humbug themselves and a few selfish interests by wild talk about colonial trade and the wonderful gains to be made in that direction. The cold facts and figures show beyond contradiction that the United States, Germany, France, Russia, Belgium—in a word, the richest, most populous and advanced countries in the world are England's best customers. By slamming the door in their faces Chamberlain hopes—or says he hopes, a very different thing in an unscrupulous and audacious politician—to compel them to purchase more and more of Britain's surplus of manufactured commodities!

Every honest and reasonable man in England will soon perceive the fatal stupidity, if not the essential dishonesty, of the Chamberlain scheme. No wonder the moderate Spectator, a nationalist organ and a supporter of the Balfour government, warns the ministry that if the empire-mad colonial secretary is reckless enough to force his proposals to an issue he will shatter his party as completely as Gladstone did the liberal party with home rule. No wonder the younger and brighter Tories are eager and anxious to repudiate Chamberlain's folly and to dissociate themselves from the reactionary and suicidal movement. The cable informs us that the conservative organs express grave doubt whether the colonies will ever be able to supply Great Britain's footstuff requirements, and that the standard "confessors" that to forego any considerable part of British trade with foreign countries would be too serious a drawback to face for the privilege of greater success to the colonial markets." What an opportunity the new issue creates for the Liberals!

Reverting to the ridiculous conceit that the senseless scheme is a compliment or tribute to the United States one may ask the simple-minded who entertain it whether the United States has a monopoly of protection. Are not Russia, France, Germany, China, Japan protectionist countries? Is the United States the inventor of protection? We are again impressed with the force of the Scandinavian observation that it takes precious little wisdom to govern the world. The fallacies and the absurdities of our "statesmen" would disgrace schoolboys in a decently educated community.—Chicago Post.

VALUE OF COLLEGE TRAINING UNDER TRUST CONDITIONS.

In the course of the commencement address at the University of Minnesota last week on the "Outlook for the College Graduate in America," James B. Dill, the well-known corporation lawyer of New York, declared that the trust movement, instead of restricting the field for educated men and women, opened for them new opportunities for usefulness. Mr. Dill spoke most hopefully regarding the present outlook for educated women, illustrating his points with anecdotes drawn from Wall street experience.

Mr. Dill asserted that "A college training is a contributing element to business success. Direction of great enterprises calls for the services of educated men and highly trained intelligence is required to cope with the difficulties of meeting competition, solving new problems and resisting attacks of rivals.

"A man must be a good generalist to become a good specialist, and for this the best preparation is a well-spent college course.

"The corporation movement instead of crowding men out has opened for them new fields of usefulness and has increased the financial returns for intelligent, concentrated effort. It has to a large extent eliminated the prestige of rich men's sons and ended the career of the 'Miss Nancy' type. Wide-awake corporation managers know the evils of having too many sons too many sons-in-law in their employ. For that reason they discriminate against official relatives, in favor of men without means, unencumbered by influence who have their own way to make. From motives of self-interest alone, no corporation can recognize the 'pull basis' of making appointments."

Speaking of success he said: "Nothing so severely tests a man's character as success. Preliminary success is often fatal. It is a disastrous misfortune for a $1,000 man to secure a $10,000 position. There is no short cut to success without hard work and to the extent to which your University course has tended to develop a character will your training result in success or failure.

"When the trust movement shall have eradicated wrong tendencies and strengthened those elements which are right, then of the men in charge of great combinations will be required not alone an intimate knowledge of the business itself, but the training to be derived from a University course.

Mr. Dill's reference to the field for educated women was a feature of the address:

"Women's efforts in the direction of business enterprises will be valued wherever loyalty, faithfulness and intellectual alertness are appreciated. Women are not crowding out men; they are only making them hustle a little to hold their places. The struggle will be productive of far-reaching results. It is severe, interesting and suggestive, but the man who fails under it should not complain. If he respects his mother's memory he will take off his hat and thank God for the pluck of American womanhood.

"Much of twentieth century history will be a recital of woman's achievements. The period will mark the development of the educated woman's opportunity. It will offer her new chances, extend her usefulness and proclaim her distinction in the professions, as in every sphere of life, where ability to see quickly and think deeply brings success.

"The man who contends that a woman cannot keep a secret displays ignorance of Wall street history. Many of the greatest financial and commercial secrets of the day are entrusted to women, who act as private secretaries for well-known men, and the confidence is not misplaced.

"The American woman is none the less a lady because she adorns a profession, or becomes interested in commercial affairs. I honor her all the more for the splendid example she sets her sister in other lands, and for the grace, dignity, purity and faithfulness she contributes to the daily routine.

"Will it not be to the enduring credit of the American people that they have given the educated woman her best opportunity for extending her field of usefulness, regardless of the restrictions of hidebound tradition?"

STARTLING EVIDENCE.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequalled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland, Bentonsville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by A. E. Mummy and H. F. Miller, druggists. Regular sizes 50c and $1.00.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC ORCHESTRA

The University School of Music orchestra has recently begun an advance movement which, carried out, will make that department of the School of Music more interesting and important than it has been heretofore. By various causes the work of the orchestra was so interrupted this year that not a great deal has been accomplished. Much interest, however, has been revived and the orchestra is now regularly organized and established on a permanent basis. Under the direction of Mr. Hofmann, head of the violin department of the School of Music, several concerts will be given next year and several out of town trips will be made. Concert work will necessitate the pitch of the orchestra to be changed from high to low. The number of instruments will be greatly increased and several instruments added which have not as yet been present in the orchestra.

Attention is called to the fact that membership is open to persons not in the School of Music, and applications will be gladly received from any who play orchestral instruments. Detailed information may be had from August Schmidt, secretary of the orchestra, 303 E. Ann street, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night.

The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When Home of Swamp-Root, writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

A BABY'S NARROW ESCAPE

The residents of North Ashley street were treated to a sensation a few days ago that, but for the gentleness of a horse and the quick-wittedness of his owner, might have resulted in a serious, if not fatal, accident.

A teamster has been in the habit of taking his horses to a lot near the corner of Ashley street and Miller avenue, to allow them to graze, always accompanying them, however, to see that no harm was done.

After the accident it was difficult to discover who had suffered the most fright, the owner of the horse, the little girl or the neighbors who witnessed the narrow escape.

PRETTY WEDDING IN DEXTER TOWN

MISS EMMA HELBER AND JACOB WURSTER ARE WED

They Will go to Housekeeping on South Main Street in Ann Arbor

A very pretty home wedding was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Helber in Dexter town, Thursday, June 4, when their daughter, Miss Emma became the bride of Jacob Wurster.

After the ceremony the guests were bidden to an elaborate wedding supper. The tables were prettily decorated in smilax and pink roses.

A large number of guests were present and all joined in hearty congratulations. The wedding presents were numerous and beautiful.

Mr. and Mrs. Wurster left on the late train for Grand Rapids, where they will spend a few days. On their return they will go to housekeeping at 913 S. Main street, in a home which has been furnished for them.

THE KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Held a Successful Initiation Sunday.

SEVENTY-EIGHT MEMBERS

Taken Into the Local Council - Many Visitors Present - Banquet in Evening

The local council of Knights of Columbus had a banner day Sunday, when seventy-eight initiates, comprising candidates from Mt. Pleasant, Owosso, Durand, Howell, Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor, went through the service which made them members of the order.

The ceremonies of initiation were held in Elks' hall, the work being divided between three councils, Battle Creek, Toledo and Jackson, each council working a degree.

After the initiation the local Knights and their guests were invited to a banquet at the Armory, provided by the Altar society and the Young Ladies' Sodality of St. Thomas church.

After the banquet Fr. Kelly took the floor as toastmaster and excellent addresses upon the aims and benefits of the order were made by John F. Hennehan of Jackson, deputy state grand knight, Rev. Fr. Hayes of Durand, Rev. Fr. Kennedy of Ypsilanti, J. P. McCarty of Toledo, Mr. Hendrick of Missouri and M. J. Cavanaugh of this city.

CHAPEL FUND FAIR A SUCCESS

GIVEN IN NEW BAPTIST GUILD HALL FOR THIRD WARD S. S.

All Departments of the Fair Well Patronized—Will be Continued Tuesday Afternoon and Evening

The fair and entertainment given for the benefit of the chapel fund of the Third Ward Sunday school last week was very successful in its presentation. The new Baptist Guild hall, opposite the church, in which it was held is a "grand old house" as one visitor expressed it, and a walk through its stately rooms with their handsome carpets and beautiful chandeliers brings forth many exclamations of admiration.

The linen department with its fine display of Irish embroidered damask table centers, handsome bedspreads and a variety of pieces in Japanese drawn work and the exquisite handmade imported lace dollies and trap cloths proved very attractive to all who delight in fine art work.

The floral department showed a large and choice selection of beautiful plants and flowers.

The needlework department displayed many necessary articles such as dresses, aprons, dusting caps and baby clothes, besides numerous fancy pieces.

The grocery and bakery offered a variety of staple goods and many of the delicacies that tempt the inner man.

The entertainment in the evening was given to well filled rooms and the audience was much pleased.

In Electric Line From Toledo to Ann Arbor

ARTICLES ARE FILED

Ann Arbor Will Soon Have Two Lines to Detroit, Two to Jackson and One to Toledo - The Adrian Line

The articles of incorporation of the Ohio & Michigan Traction company, which is to build an electric line from Toledo to Ann Arbor, has been filed in these columns, were filed in the county clerk's office at Monroe on Saturday afternoon.

Work on the new road is to commence within a short time.

The Boland line also looks promising now and it is said work on it will commence within a couple of weeks.

Ann Arbor, when these lines are completed, will be connected by electric line with Chelsea, Dexter, Milan, Ypsilanti, Saline and Plymouth. It will have two electric lines to Detroit, two to Jackson and one to Toledo.

The Hatch line to Adrian has made no move lately. The franchise at Adrian has been renewed and Mr. Hatch, who resides in Ypsilanti, says the project is alive.

Large Gathering and an Interesting Meeting - Girls' Glee Club Make a Hit

The Colonial Dames of Michigan held their last meeting for the summer Saturday at the home of Mrs. Jas. B. Angell on S. University avenue.

About thirty members of the society arrived on the trains and interurban cars, during the morning, the members coming chiefly from St. Clair, Grosse Pointe and Detroit.

After the luncheon the ladies held a short business meeting and listened to a most interesting paper which was read by Prof. A. Cross of the University. It was a most able paper, full of interesting historical points.

At 4 o'clock the University Girls' Glee club arrived on the scene and sang two numbers, Rubinstein's "Spring Song" and Brahms' "Cradle Song," to the delight of the visiting dames, who applauded generously the songs of the club.

During the evening music was furnished by Root's orchestra of this city.

Beset by Wolves

Novel Russian Scheme to Exterminate Fierce Brutes.

From a Cage the Hunters Shoot In Safety—Attack Repulsed With Boiling Water.

Captain Alexander Petrova, a Russian officer of artillery noted for his skill in hunting big game, while in New York a few days ago described a singular wolf hunt in Russia in which he took part last winter.

"I had been invited by an uncle, Baron Imhoff, to spend a fortnight with him at his country house in northwestern Russia, about a hundred miles from Volinsk.

"I reached the place one afternoon late in February, and next morning, after a hearty breakfast, our party, warmly wrapped in furs, took seats in a big sleigh drawn by a splendid team of the best horses in my uncle's stables.

"After a fast run of about two hours our sleigh drew up at a little cabin situated on the edge of a thick forest. An immense plain spread out before us for many miles, and not far away was a herd of perhaps fifty horses in an inclosed field watched over by two armed men.

"The two carpenters who had come along in the sleigh which carried the planks and the stove immediately set to work unloading that material and clearing away a little bit of ground in front of the cabin.

"In the center of this cage the stove was set up and a fire built in it. Enough wood was gathered, to keep a hot blaze going all night long. The carcass of the dead horse was placed near the cage.

"As soon as night fell we entered the cage, and soon the wolves began to gather, attracted by the promise of a feast.

"Soon they became sufficiently bold to attack the horse, and then the sport began.

"Detachments of the animals came up from all sides and fairly rushed upon the cage. This boldness enabled us to shoot them with great certainty. The ground about the cage was soon literally covered with dead wolves, but still they came on. Whenever it seemed that we had finished them a fresh contingent appeared.

"It now became necessary to economize our ammunition. My uncle gave the order to throw boiling water on the wolves by means of the hose and the pump plunged into the kettle. The effect was fearful. Horribly burned, the wolves that we hit gave out cries of distress and rolled in the snow. As fast as the kettle was emptied we threw into it more ice.

"A general retreat now took place, and the wolves that were able to run or drag themselves away dispersed, and some bands even that we noticed coming from afar turned on their tracks when they met their fellows in distress.

"We killed with blows of clubs the wounded wolves that lay in our neighborhood and then counted the dead. Sixty-eight of the brutes lay on the ground. The number of fugitives was at least a hundred, of which a quarter must have been grievously wounded or burned."

A PROSPEROUS LOCAL INDUSTRY

REORGANIZATION OF THE CRESCENT CLASP WORKS

New Departments Have Been Created and the Business Has Been Largely Increasing

The Crescent Clasp Works, mentioned in the re-organization of which has been made have elected the following board of directors: C. K. McGee, Chas. W. Wagner, J. C. Henderson, Jas. H. Prentiss, and Earle B. Stewart.

The new company is capitalized at $80,000, of which is preferred stock. All the stock has been subscribed by Ann Arbor parties.

The Crescent Clasp Works were started in 1891 on the top floor of the Courier block. Their goods were sold entirely through agents. Their business increased to such an extent that they had to seek more commodious quarters and when the new Pratt block was built, they rented the entire two upper stories.

Definite plans for the future have not yet been given out but there will probably be better facilities created for taking care of the Ann Arbor made to order trade, which will probably be made a feature.

The company has been very successful financially and is now as it has been, in competent hands and has a rosy future before it.

Mrs. Jane Cook, Sylvan, May 19, age 65, residence 64.

James H. Stevens, Lodi, May 21, age 88, residence 71.

Clark Cornwell, Ypsilanti, May 24, age 59, residence 59.

Total deaths reported 131; 70 men, 61 women. Last year 147; 85 men, 62 women.

By months the deaths were as follows: June 8; July 7; August 3; September 16; October 15; November 10; December 16; January 19; February 11; March 7; April 7; May 12.

By localities—Salem 5; Northfield 4; Webster 3; Dexter 2; Lyndon 3; Sylvan 10; Lima 3; Scio 12; Ann Arbor town 3; Ann Arbor city 27; Superior 1; Ypsilanti town 11; Ypsilanti city 18; Pittsfield 2; Lodi 3; Freedom 2; Sharon 2; Manchester 7; Bridgewater 2; York 2; Augusta 4; Saline 5. Every locality is more or less completely reported.

The ages by decades were as follows: 90 and over 12-5 men, 7 women. Last year 8. The oldest woman was Mrs. Ann Gates, Ypsilanti, 96 years and 11 months; the oldest man was John McGee, Ypsilanti, 116 years.

80 to 90-36; 70 to 80-41; 60 to 70-21; under 60-14. Exact age wanting in 7 cases.

In years resident 11 had lived in the county 70 or more years; the oldest being Mrs. Jane Kingsley, Manchester, 76 years, having come to this country in 1826.

This report would have been much less complete but for the aid of a number of friends in the country who have kindly sent me reports from their several localities and thus enabled me to cover more nearly the entire field than I could have otherwise done.

Mr. Isaac Terry reports Webster complete as he has done for years. Mr. Chas. H. Lemmon, of Dexter, again reports Scio, and Mr. A. J. English "Cedarcroft" Manchester, gives again a report for that section of country.

Mr. Thos. Mingay of the Chelsea Herald has again sent his paper to me and thus I have been kept in touch with that part of the county. To these friends the society's thanks are due for their thoughtfulness in aiding to make this report complete. They will please accept my own hearty thanks and this public acknowledgment of my indebtedness to them.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. H. LAY, Necrologist.

AMENDING CHARTER OF ANN ARBOR

THE BILL AGAIN PASSED THE SENATE AND HOUSE

After It Had Been Put in Shape—What the Amendments Are

The bill amending the charter of Ann Arbor, was recalled to the senate June 1, after passing both houses, owing to a flaw in it. On June 2 it was received in the senate and went through the following red tape.

Senator Glazier moved that Rule 36 be suspended. Carried by a two-thirds vote. This is the rule limiting the time within which a motion to reconsider can be made.

Senator Glazier then moved to reconsider the vote, putting the bill into immediate effect. This carried and the motion for immediate effect was lost.

Senator Glazier then moved to reconsider the vote by which the senate passed the bill. This carried and the senator then moved that the bill be referred to the committee on cities and villages.

On Thursday, June 4, the committee reported the bill out with amendments and recommended its passage. This carried by a vote of 29 to 0, and the bill was then given immediate effect and sent back to the house.

The amendments to the charter are four in number.

1. To prohibit saloons east of Division street.

2. To require a majority of foot frontage of owners to a paving petition.

3. To shorten the time within which actions for damages against the city must be commenced.

4. To permit the council to increase the assessor's salary to $1,500.

The charter amendments passed the house Monday evening. Representative Kirk secured their passage in the absence of Rep. Whitaker, who is still ill.

HOMEOPATHIC HOSPITAL GUILD

The Homeopathic hospital guild held the second of its series of "coffees" at the pleasant home of Mrs. John Cutting on Madison street Tuesday afternoon.

The hostess was assisted in receiving the large number of guests by twelve of the ladies of the guild.

The house was beautifully decorated with a profusion of roses in pink and white.

Coffee and cake were served in the dining room, the various members of the Guild presiding at the table during the reception hours.

About $25 was realized from the dime contributions and this will be used in the good work of the society.

GREATLY IMPROVED THE STAIRCASE

A very decided improvement has been made in the F. & M. bank building by the tearing out of the old stairs and the erection of new ones. The old stairs were the cause of more breaking of commandments than any one cause in the city, for they were so narrow and short that a man wearing a No. 10 shoe found, on coming down stairs, that he was unable to place more than his heel upon the step. Evidently the architect had in mind a maiden's dainty foot when he planned them.

These stairs have been replaced by steps which are broad and comfortable and the people who have occasion to use them frequently are duly thankful for the change.

THE WASHTENAW PIONEERS

He'd Their Annual Meeting Wednesday

SOME GOOD ADDRESSES

A Tribute Paid to Judge Babbitt—How Sharon Was Named—Next Meeting at Saline

The Washtenaw Pioneer society held its annual meeting at Ypsilanti Wednesday. Old settlers from all parts of the county were present and participated in the exercises. In spite of the fact that this class is rapidly growing smaller, the meeting was an exceptionally large one.

The meeting was opened in the morning by a prayer and scripture reading by Rev. R. K. Wharton, which was followed by a few remarks by Pres. Fred. A. Graves. The secretary's report was read by Robert Campbell of Ann Arbor and the treasurer's report by Oren Burkhardt, and both reports showed the society to be in a flourishing condition. The report of the necrologist followed this and the selection of the nominating committee closed the meeting.

The music at the morning session was excellent, the playing of Mrs. C. P. Kelley receiving much applause.

At noon an elaborate dinner was served in the church dining room, at which two hundred sat down.

Rev. William Gardam opened the afternoon session with a prayer, which was followed with a solo by Mr. Sage. Mr. Sage is 82 years young, and was formerly a music teacher in Ypsilanti. In spite of his great age he possesses a remarkably rich voice. He sang "The Old Oaken Bucket" and "The Star Spangled Banner."

At the election of officers the following were elected: President, E. W. Hunt, Saline; secretary, Robt. Campbell, Ann Arbor; treasurer, O. C. Burkhardt, Chelsea; necrologist, W. H. Lay, Ypsilanti. The vice presidents were as follows: Ypsilanti city, William Campbell; Ypsilanti town, Hon. H. Stunnenhiser; Ann Arbor city, J. Q. A. Sessions; Ann Arbor town, L. J. Godfrey; Bridgewater, G. S. Rawson; Dexter, W. H. Gleason; Pittsfield, N. C. Carpenter; Northfield, Nathan Sutton; Salem, J. B. Walker; Saline, J. M. Young; Superior, J. A. McDougall; Lyndon, Thomas Howlett; Sharon, W. L. Raymond; Webster, Isaac Terry; Lima, E. W. Nordman; York, W. H. Davenport. The executive committee is as follows: W. H. Davenport, Saline; H. W. Bassett, Saline; J. M. Young, Saline; Jerome Lasher, Saline; G. H. Hoyt, Saline, and A. A. Wood, Lodi.

Dr. T. C. Allen then gave a very interesting talk on "The Early Days of Sharon." He spoke of some length on the character of the country and then told of the naming of the township. The place was settled by people from Massachusetts and New York. The Yorkers wanted to name the place Seneca, while the people from Massachusetts wanted Sharon. The fight lasted for some time, but the latter finally won out.

Dr. Daniel Putnam gave a short address telling of the early days in New England and education among the pioneers in Michigan.

Judge W. D. Harriman gave a short talk on the late Judge Babbitt. He spoke of his ancestry and their environments in Vermont. How he came west and at the opening of the war tried to enlist but was unable on account of his eyes. Later, however, he got a position as clerk and served through the war.

Remarks were made by Chas. Fleming, York, Andrew Campbell, Pittsfield, S. P. Ballard, Willis, George McDougall, Superior, E. A. Nordman, Lima, Mr. Clark, Saline, and Jessup Wood, Ann Arbor.

The society will meet at Saline next year.

MAD DOG SCARE IN SECOND WARD

A mad dog scare in the second ward Monday afternoon kept the children in the Philip Bach school after they were ready to go home. The dog was finally shot by Marshal Kelsey.

The dog was a cross between a shepherd dog and a fox terrier, and was first seen making for the janitor of the school house. The women of the household ran into the house, fastening the screen door. The dog bit at the door, covering it with froth, and destroyed four or five plants on the porch and a pillow.

The officers were sent for, but when they arrived it had gone. It was finally discovered on Moseley street by Marshal Kelsey and Patrolman Ball and Collins. The marshal shot it with a shot-gun. While it was struggling on the ground, Patrolman Ball put it out of its misery with a revolver shot at close quarters.

The dog was taken to the Pasteur Institute, that it might be determined whether or not it had rabies. The officers believe it exhibited all the symptoms. It is not known that it bit anything, but if any dog was bitten it should be most closely watched.

PROPOSALS WANTED.

HANS-SNYDER WEDDING

Took Place in Chelsea Tuesday Evening

A WELL KNOWN EDITOR

Marries Miss Clara Vee Snyder—A Notable Society Event in Chelsea

[From Tuesday's Daily Argus.]

An event of more than passing interest in Chelsea social circles will be the marriage of Miss Clara Vee Snyder to Mr. Otto Henry Hans of this city. The wedding is set to take place at 6 o'clock this evening at the home of the bride. Miss Snyder is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney A. Snyder, of Chelsea, and the bridegroom-elect is the well known newspaper man and manager of the Daily Times of Ann Arbor. Rev. E. E. Caster, of the Methodist church of Chelsea, will officiate. The wedding occurs on the bride's 21st birthday and is to be a pink and white affair. Miss Snyder will be dressed in white satin, trimmed in duchess lace, and will wear pearls. The bridesmaid will be Miss Edith Keegan of Grand Rapids and will wear pink crepe de chene. Mr. Hans will be attended by Mr. Raymond Harny, '02 dent, of Grand Rapids. Prof. Renwick of the University School of Music will play the wedding march. The ribbon girls will be Miss Vesta Welch and Miss Margery Freeman of Chelsea.

The happy couple will take a wedding trip to New York, Washington and other eastern points. On their return they will take up their residence in this city, where both are well and favorably known. Miss Snyder was a piano and pipe organ pupil in the University School of Music for some years, is the organist in the Methodist church at Chelsea and a great favorite in musical circles. Mr. Hans is a graduate of South Bend, Ind., where he graduated from the high school. He is also a graduate from the literary and law departments of the University. He was for several years business manager of the U. of M. Daily, and since severing his connection with that paper has been manager of the Daily Times. He is a business hustler.

GATES-CUTLER WEDDING

AT RESIDENCE OF MR. AND MRS. GEO. BLAICH

Mr. and Mrs. Cutler Will Reside in Boise City, Idaho—The Wedding a Pretty One

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Blaich, on Forest avenue, was the scene of a very pretty home wedding Tuesday evening when their sister, Miss Grace Gates, became the bride of Vernon Cutler, of Boise City, Idaho.

The wedding was a quiet affair, there being only about thirty-five guests present. The ceremony was performed in the front parlor by Rev. T. W. Young, the bridal party standing before a bank of ferns, palms and syringas. Miss Florence Egler, of Wayne, played the beautiful Lohengrin wedding march as the bride and groom entered the room. The bride looked very sweet in a charming gown of simple white and carrying an arm bouquet of white roses.

After the ceremony the guests were served with a wedding supper in the dining room which was prettily decorated in white peonies and syringas.

The newly wedded pair left on the late train for Grand Rapids where they will be the guests of the groom's parents, who will give a reception in their honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Cutler will be at home after July 1 at Boise City, where Mr. Cutler has a very fine position as cashier of the Mutual Life Insurance Co.

The bride is a graduate of the Ypsilanti Normal Conservatory of Music and has been studying for the past year at Grand Rapids and Chicago. She has a large number of friends here and is very popular in musical circles.

Sixteen Years in Michigan, 57 Visits to Ann Arbor.

"Your practice would not have kept up these 16 years in Michigan if you had been doing no good," is the remark a new caller made to Dr. Fruth, the specialist, on his last visit here. That is just it, that is just the plain fact of the matter. Dr. Fruth fitted himself for special practice and knowing that there were many who could or would not go to the city to see him, he went to them. Every large city has its specialists, good ones, too, but the sick cannot get there without annoyance and expense, hence the advisability of seeing Dr. Fruth at the Cook House, Friday, June 12, 8 a. m. to 2 p. m., one day only. His practice is well established and his success well known. He comes regularly each four weeks, treats all honorably, skillfully and can be depended upon. His consultation is always free.

THE WIFE KEEPS THE PROPERTY

Judge Kinne Declines to Set Aside Deed of

ALL WAND TO HIS WIFE

The Proceeds of Sale of Property will not be a Large Sum to Assist Wife and Children

Judge Kinne has rendered his decision in the case of Frank J. Allmand against his former wife, May Anna Allmand, brought to set aside a deed of their home made to Mrs. Allmand before the divorce. The judge decided in favor of Mrs. Allmand as follows:

If the complainant is right in his contention in this case he is meeting with injustice at the hands of the defendant and his children.

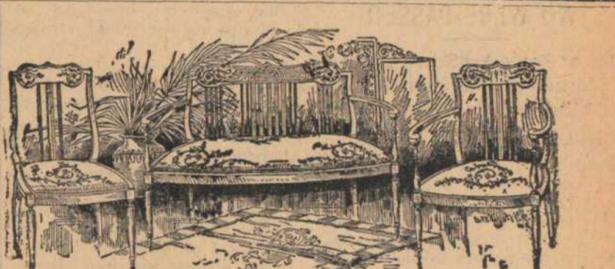

In April 1898 he made an unconditional deed of his home to his wife. This may have been a mistake on his part but I think under the evidence in this case he is remediless.

If of this case then the complainant has no reason to complain. The case must be decided upon the proofs submitted with this deed. I think the clear preponderance of evidence is with the defendant and that complainant has failed to sustain the allegations of the bill. There now is probably less than $900 left of the proceeds of this home. It certainly is not a large sum to assist the wife and these two children to another home. I think the bill should be dismissed.

FUNERAL OF RICHARD CLEVES

The funeral of Richard Cleves, who Tuesday after a long illness, was held Wednesday at 8:30 a. m. from Martin's this morning at 8:30 from Martin's undertaking rooms, where short and simple services were held. The Knights of Pythias, of which order the deceased was a member, attended in a body and escorted the remains to the 9:30 train on which they were sent to Bideford, Me. The floral tributes which were sent by the numerous friends of the deceased were of great beauty and profusion. They were sent to the patients of the University hospital by Dr. Cleves after the funeral.

AGED MAN TOOK MORPHINE AND FOUGHT IN ORDER TO DIE

Ward committed suicide Friday by taking morphine. He was an old man, 75 years of age, and had probably had the rash act under contemplation for some time.

He lived at 711 N. Fourth avenue, Mrs. Alsa Knisley, a relative of the Guthries, and Ward had lived in the Guthrie house for some years before Guthrie's death. Mrs. Blythman lived in the same house. About 1:30 a. m. Friday the two women heard the sound of a fall in Ward's room, off the sitting room, and found Ward partially unconscious on the floor. They tried to revive him and finally at 5 o'clock sent for Dr. Elliott Herdman, the city physician, who worked over Ward for a little over two hours. When Ward would partially revive he fought off the efforts of the physician, spitting out the black coffee it was sought to give him. Finally he was taken to the hospital, but efforts to save him were unavailing and he died about 9 o'clock.

On the floor where Ward fell was a package labeled morphine from Eberbach & Son's and there was also a case knife, beside him. At Eberbach's it was found that Ward had purchased 20 grains of morphine last Tuesday, saying that he knew how to use it. Ward's wife has been dead for some years. He has one son, Charles Ward, of 511 W. Wells street, Detroit.

For some years Ward had been a city charge. As he needed medical treatment City Physician Herdman got him into a free bed at the hospital. He was there for four days when the authorities refused to keep him longer on the ground of the vast amount of trouble he made. He was then taken to the county house. He escaped from there and came back to the city, complaining bitterly of the board and of the lack of medical treatment and care. They came after him and returned with him to the county house last week. When night came he escaped the second time and walked a mile and a half to the motor line where he fell into a mudpuddle and was so exhausted that he lay there a couple of hours until found and brought to the city. Ward had since been attended by Dr. Herdman and had been assured that he did not have to go back to the county house.

Coroner Watts made an investigation and concluded that an inquest was not necessary.

Time seems most untimely when he brings a woman to the turn of life. Life is or should be at its ripest and best for her, and she approaches this change with a dread of its effect born of her knowledge of the sufferings of other women at this season.

There is not the slightest cause for fear or anxiety at this period if Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is used. It gives health of body and cheerfulness of mind, and by its aid the pains and pangs of this critical period are prevented or cured.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is woman's medicine with a wonderful record of cures of womanly diseases. Diseases that all other medicines had failed to cure, have been perfectly and permanently cured by the use of "Favorite Prescription."

"I feel it my duty to write you as I have received so much benefit from the use of your medicine," says Mrs. Lizzie A. Bowman, of New Matamoras, Washington Co., Ohio. "I have taken four bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' for female weakness and change of life. Before I began taking it I could not do anything. I had such pains in my head and in the back of my neck that I thought I would lose my mind. Now I can work every day. I recommend 'Favorite Prescription' to all females suffering in the period of change of life. It is the best medicine I have found."

"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

Keep the bowels healthy by the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

HORRORS OF KISHINEFF

First Refugee in America Describes Massacre of Jews.

SAYS RICH RUSSIANS JOINED IN.

Jacob Friedman, Covered With Wounds, Saw His Grandfather Slain and Little Children Torn to Pieces by the Ragging Mob—How He Escaped From Scene of Atrocities.

Jacob Friedman, the first refugee from Kishineff, the city of the recent Jewish massacre in Russia, who landed in New York recently, brought with him bruises from Russian knouts and clubs, and it was only through the help of a Christian friend that he escaped at all. The slaughter of his people in Kishineff is so impressed on Friedman's mind that he cannot believe he is safe.

Details of the first two days of the massacre were given to a reporter for the New York World by Friedman through an interpreter.

"It was the most awful butchery that men ever saw," said Friedman. "The rich Russians of the town joined in and with gloves on their hands helped to tear the Jewish children limb from limb. At first it was the lowest people of the town, then the better class became enraged at the sight of blood. I saw men dressed in fine clothing mixed in with the dirty ruffians of the town."

"I am a Polack and went to Kishineff three years ago to visit my grandfather, Solomon Friedman. I liked the town, and as I had 600 rubles (about $300) saved up, I moved my family there from Warsaw. With my grandfather I started in the glassware business at 4 Alexandroffsky street. We were doing well and saving money."

"On Sunday, the last day of the Passover, while we were eating dinner about 1 o'clock in the afternoon, I heard shrieks of women and children. We ran out to see what was the matter. I saw a wild mob coming, beating down women in the streets and breaking the windows and bursting open the doors. They were yelling and shouting in all sorts of languages. There were Wallachians, Roumanians and other people besides the Russians, so it seemed."

"Come, grandfather, let us run away or we'll be killed!" I called out. "Oh, it's nothing," my grandfather answered. "Don't fear; it's only a holiday among the gentiles, and they feel somewhat gay."

"I saw that it was a bloodthirsty mob and tried to convince my grandfather, but the old man said he had lived in Kishineff all his life and that there was never anything there but peace. The mob came nearer, and we saw that they were beating people to death. I saw fifteen persons killed before they got to our door. I could hear cries from all over the city. I called out to my grandfather to run, but he said he would close up the shop and stay in the house. As he was closing the doors the mob rushed up and began beating us with clubs."

"I was struck on the arm and knocked down. I tried to help my grandfather, but the mob was so large I could not get to him, so I ran away to save my life. I saw them beating him with clubs. They broke his arms and beat him so that he died as soon as he was carried to the hospital."

"I ran to the house of Ivan Flodroff, a Christian, who had bought glass from me. He was a good man, and he hid me in his cellar. I lay there all night, expecting every moment to be hunted out and killed. I was crazy with the thought that my two little girls had been butchered and worse by the mob and that my two boys were killed. I had seen the wretches tear little children in two and throw their arms and legs into the gutter, and I thought that was the way they must have treated my own children. Monday morning I slipped out of Ivan's cellar and went by side streets and through alleys into Alexandroffsky street."

"My feet slipped in the blood muddied way. Bodies lay across the roadway and I stumbled across them. There were the bodies of men mutilated in ways I dare not tell. There were the bodies of women ripped open as a butcher cuts a beef."

"From the house of a carpenter came the groans of the dying man whose hands had been cut off with his own saw by a great brute who laughed at the fitness of the jest and who was applauded by the other brutes who clustered around laughing at the sight. There was not a house in that quarter that did not have its dead and dying within its walls."

"The whole street was filled with feathers and blood. The Russians had torn open every pillow and bed and had thrown the feathers in the air. They were scattered everywhere. My wife was peeping out of a hole and saw me. She ran out with the children, and together we escaped into the country. We went to a village, but there was no security there. We expected every minute that the Russians would come and kill us. After a few hours I slipped out and went back into Kishineff. The streets were a terrible sight, with mutilated bodies here and there. I don't know how I got up courage enough to go into the city, but I did slip in and reached the home of Ivan Flodroff."

"He took me in, though it was dangerous for him. I begged him to give my family protection and get us out of the neighborhood. At first he hesitated, but finally he said he would see us out of the city. He went with me and escorted my family by a devious way into the quarter of the city where lies the Kishineff railroad station. He

CHINA'S AWAKENING.

Aims of Reform Association Discussed by Its Leader.

RETHRONGING EMPEROR THE CHIEF

Leong Kai Cheu Says Without His Aid Nothing Can Be Accomplished. Progressive Ideas of the Occident Spreading Throughout the Empire Despite the Empress Dowager's Opposition.

Professor Leong Kai Cheu, founder and vice president of the Chinese Empire Reform association, ex-teacher in the palace of the emperor of China and second to Kang Yu Wei, the leader of the Chinese national reform movement, which despite the unrelenting opposition of the empress dowager is spreading all over the empire, arrived in New York the other evening, having come from Japan by way of Canada, says the New York Times.

This is the first visit to America of Leong Kai Cheu, who is regarded as the most powerful man in Chinese education and politics today. He founded the Chinese Empire Reform association in 1897, and now its membership far exceeds 3,000,000, with branches covering every part of the world where Chinamen reside. There are only two parties in China, that of the empress dowager and the Reform association. The former is still the stronger, but its power is on the wane, while the reform association is growing every day.

Professor Leong's visit to the United States is for the purpose of stirring up enthusiasm among the various branch organizations of the association which exist in almost every large city in the country. The head of this movement is only thirty years old and has a boyish face. He dresses like an American and looks like an Americanized Chinaman, although he does not speak English.

Professor Leong was perfectly frank in discussing the aims of his reform organization.

"While I have not been in China officially in some years," said he, "I have been there a good many times under assumed names and in disguise and am thoroughly alive to the events as they shape themselves in the empire. All the world is by this time acquainted with the aims of the Chinese reformers. Of course our principal aim is the rethronement of the emperor, for without his aid we can accomplish nothing in the way of reform."

"The empress dowager is hopelessly set against any movement whatsoever that will tend in the slightest degree to get away from the customs of ancient China. All her protestations and all her promises are absolutely insincere, and we who know her best have not the least idea of accomplishing anything through her."

"The emperor, while he is a Manchoo and a man of no very conspicuous ability, nevertheless is imbued with the idea that the empire to progress must get in line with the other nations of the earth and abandon many useless and handicapping customs. He has got all of his ideas of western civilization from Japanese, English and American sources, and it is these three peoples that he would take for his models in fashioning a new regime."

"The party of the dowager empress, or, rather, the following of the empress dowager, is still all powerful in the empire, but its strength is rapidly waning, and even before her death the overthrow of her power may be brought about. Her death, however, is sure to see the beginning of the new era in China, for we are ready to make ourselves felt in the government. It would surprise you to know the number of men who are connected directly with the Peking government who are members of the reform party. Our next aim is the framing of a constitution and the establishment of a house of parliament similar in general respects to that of England, where our sons may take a hand in the government. The third aim is a thorough reform in the matter of education. China to keep pace with the other nations of the earth must establish a system of education on modern lines."

"The Chinese reformers do not wish the empire to break away from all of its old traditions. No country can give up all of its traditions and gain by it. What we want is simply the addition of certain essential principles of western civilization into our national life. The emperor realizes this, and these schemes, begun already and interrupted, will be resumed, and that very soon. I might add here that the nations to feel the first effects of beneficial reform in China will be the United States, England and Japan. The Chinese have obtained their first and only impressions of foreign civilizations from these three countries and will mold their new national life from a composite idea gained from the three."

"As to the Boxers and the Boxer movement, the Boxer organizations still exist, but their influence is reactionary and will never make itself seriously felt again, for the whole country is rapidly becoming imbued with the idea of reform."

As to China's attitude toward Russia and the latter's occupation of Manchuria, Professor Leong said that there was little doubt in China that Russia intended under the very first pretext to seize the territory for permanent occupation. The idea held in some quarters that a secret understanding between China and Russia exists was absolutely erroneous.

FRUIT AND VINEGAR COMPANY WON CASE AGAINST RAILROAD

Judge Kinne decided the case of the Ann Arbor Fruit and Vinegar company against the Ann Arbor Railroad Friday morning immediately at the close of the arguments, in favor of the complainants. The decision is practically that the Fruit and Vinegar company have a right of way over the railroad tracks which the railroad has no right to take without compensation. Judge Kinne, therefore, declined to remove the injunction. Alex Smith, the railroad's attorney then asked that the court incorporate in the decree time for the railroad company to acquire the right of way by condemnation proceedings. Judge Kinne granted this request.

PASSED RAISED TEN DOLLARS

Dollar and Two Dollar Bills Made Into Tens

TWO WERE PASSED

One at Fox's Art Store and the other at Schoenfeld's Second Hand Store

Two bills raised to ten dollars were passed in this city Friday. The first was passed on a lady clerk in Fox's art store on State street Friday afternoon, who was asked by a stranger to break a ten-dollar bill. The stranger got two five-dollar bills. The "ten" he gave was a very clumsily raised one-dollar bill. The corners which were decorated with the figure 1 were erased and a cipher drawn after the one in the body of the bill. The "one dollar" inscriptions on the back of the bill were carefully erased and in the center was drawn in green ink the words "Ten Dollars."

At about 7 o'clock in the evening a stranger of the same build but differently dressed called at St. Clair's second hand store for some tools he had laid aside a day or two before and tendered a ten dollar bill in payment. Miss St. Clair pronounced it a bad one and the stranger said he knew where he got it. He went from there over to the second hand store of Morris Schoenfeld, on Detroit street, where he bought a three-dollar suit of clothes and received seven dollars in change. M. J. Martin, who was in the store at the time, took the bill up to the bank, where it was pronounced a two-dollar bill raised to ten. While this bill was clumsy enough, yet it was a better piece of work than the first one.

The stranger could not be found, although diligent search was made for him last night. He had been in town for several days, as he had attempted to pass a raised ten-dollar bill at Goetz's store on Wednesday last.

OPENING BAPTIST GUILD HALL

The new Baptist Guild house was opened Friday afternoon and the house was thronged during the entire afternoon and evening with visitors.

The articles displayed for sale were an exception to those usually shown at church fairs, inasmuch as embroidered slippers and similar useless articles were conspicuous by their absence.

In the parlor down stairs was a magnificent display of linen and hand made laces, embroidered counterpanes, etc., which probably proved the most fascinating room in the house and lured many a dollar from the husbands' pockets. The linens were of all qualities and values from the practical huck towel to the damask, as soft and fine as satin.

In the dining room a long table faintly spread displayed an appetizing collection of home baked goods, cakes, cookies, bread, etc.

Across the hall the two spacious rooms were used as an auditorium where as many as could be accommodated listened to the mirth provoking entertainment given there.

"The Princess," a cantata was given by the church choir and was a clever burlesque on grand opera. "Topsy Turvey," an amusing farce, was given by Misses Daley and Whitman and Messrs. Fred Daley and R. Howell.

In the rooms on the second floor fancy articles, such as bags, aprons, dusting caps, etc., were sold and proved a profitable as well as a pleasing display.

A beautiful floral exhibit was made in another room and here the flower lovers revelled in the choice specimens offered for sale.

In another room a candy booth did a thriving business and the room where ice cream, strawberries and cake were served was well patronized. The beautiful rooms all over the house were brightly illuminated and many valuable old pieces of furniture are still in the house and were admired generally.

The opportunity to go over this beautiful house drew a large number of people out and the treasury of the fair was increased accordingly.

PNEUMONIA MORE FATAL THAN CONSUMPTION.

It is not generally known that more people die from pneumonia than consumption. This is because every one young or old is susceptible to its attacks after exposure. J. W. Bryan of Lowder, Ill., writes: "My little boy was very low with pneumonia. Unknown to the doctor we gave him Foley's Honey and Tar. The result was magical and puzzled the doctor as it immediately stopped the racking cough and he quickly recovered." Refuse substitutes. Sold by Arthur E. Mummery.

MILITARY COMPANY'S PLEASANT SMOKER

Company I, M. N. G., gave a smoker Friday evening which was a most enjoyable affair. Quite an elaborate banquet was served, after which pipes and cigars were called into requisition. Col. H. S. Dean acted as toastmaster and J. E. Beal, S. W. Benkes, Maj. Harrison Soule, Capt. Petrie and Lieut. Wilson responded to the call of the toastmaster, who also did his full share with reminiscences to make up the evening's enjoyment. Music was furnished by Fischer's Mandolin club and by Herman Meyer with the zither.

The company is a fine body of young men, and exceedingly well behaved. The armory has been well kept and never looked in better shape than at present. Quite a little of the paraphernalia of a gymnasium is on hand in it. Just at present the membership of the company is small, but if the families of the young men just growing up in Ann Arbor knew how much good military training does, the ranks of the company would be rapidly filled with a desirable class of new men.

PONDERO E'R THIS YE BRIDES TO BE

The following ancient rhymes have been handed us as apropos at this time when so many weddings are being considered:

Married in January hoar and rime, Widowed you'll be before your prime.

Married in February's sleety weather, Life in tune you'll tread together.

Married when March winds shriek and roar, Your home will lie on a foreign shore.

Married 'neath April's changeful skies, A chequered path before you lies.

Married when bees o'er May blooms flit, Strangers round your board will sit.

Married in the month of roses—June, Life will be one long honeymoon.

Married in July with flowers ablaze, Bitter and sweet memories in after days.

Married in August's heat and drowse, Love and friend in your chosen spouse.

Married in golden September's glow, Smooth and serene your life will flow, Married when leaves in October thin, Toil and hardship for you begin.

Married in veils of November mist, Dame Fortune your wedding ring has kissed.

Married in days of December's cheer, Love's star burns brighter from year to year.

Murieta The Bandit

Scourge of the California Argonauts In the Early Fifties.

How the King of Cutthroats Was Run to Earth and Killed. A Battle on Horseback.

Chief of the California banditti who harassed the argonauts of 1849 was Joaquin Murieta, "king among California cutthroats," as he was known. "The Fra Diavolo of El Dorado" was the more euphonious title won by this young Mexican, who came up from Sonora, Mexico, to Los Angeles in 1849, when he was scarcely seventeen. Beginning in 1850, his brilliant career of crime occupied less than three years, and he was killed before he was twenty-one.

In 1850 a brother-in-law of Murieta was arrested at Los Angeles for com-licity in the murder of General Bean, an officer of the United States army. In the confession that followed he told of Murieta's participation, with himself and others, in a horse stealing raid the year before. Until that time the young Mexican had excited no particular attention, being set down as a vivacious but law abiding boy popular with the girls. One of these, Rosita Felix, a pretty senorita of sixteen, was so deeply infatuated that she fled north with him when the civil authorities were preparing to investigate his brother-in-law's story of the horse stealing.

With Rosita, Murieta fled to a placer mining camp on the Stanislaus river, where he located a claim and began to develop it. But the feeling in the mines against the Mexicans was strong because of recent murders, the outgrowth of racial hatred, and one evening Murieta was visited by a deputation of Americans, who peremptorily ordered him out of the camp.

Murieta protested that he should not be molested, declaring that he had complied with the legal requirements in locating his claim and that it was a valuable one. One of the party, rendered abusive and reckless by whisky, referred to young Joaquin and to the frightened Rosita in insulting language. The quick tempered Spaniard rushed at the American with a knife, but Rosita seized him and begged him not to make trouble. Taking advantage of the girl's interference, another of the party knocked Murieta to the floor.

At last indignities soured whatever good nature survived in the man. Murieta cut loose from all of his friends, abandoned Rosita and deliberately set himself the task of killing every man who had participated in either of the assaults upon him. Later he talked bravely of heading a California revolution when his band had grown to include more than eighty members, with half a dozen capable lieutenants, all under strict discipline.

Late in 1851 Murieta appeared with a number of companions at Marysville, and on the following day five white men were found with riatas about their necks, having been dragged to death. Then, one by one, the men who had driven him from the Stanislaus mines and from Murphy's were murdered, the work being so swiftly and quietly done that it was impossible to trace the murderers. But there was no doubt in the minds of those who were familiar with the young Mexican's history that Murieta was making good his threat to kill every man who had injured him.

The leader himself was not naturally over cruel or bloodthirsty, and it is probable that he would have become a more or less staid citizen after his private score was paid except for the presence in his band of two or three seasoned villains who delighted in crime. The worst of these and by far the most sinister figure in California outlaw history was a terrible Mexican, Manuel Garcia, or "Three Fingers Jack." A veritable giant in size, lacking a finger which he had lost in a Mexican revolution and with an aspect ferocious enough to suit the part, Garcia butchered and robbed with savage abandon.

The outrages became so numerous that finally the California legislature took up the question of suppressing Murieta's band. A joint resolution was introduced authorizing the payment of a reward of $5,000 for the capture of the bandit dead or alive. It was especially provided that every assistance should be given by the California militia to one Harry Love, a picturesque scout, a former Texas ranger and a pan hunter of reputation on the Pacific coast.

Though the mountaineer was a man of action and fearless, he was diplomatic. He had no intention of starting on a chance directed chase of Murieta and with no knowledge of his friends and enemies.

Working through Pancho Daniel, a member of Joaquin's band, the girl Antonia la Molinera was induced to desert her lover and, with Pancho, play traitor. When Murieta found that his companion had stolen Antonia away, instead of following the pair himself and carrying out his threat to kill them both he sent another bandit named Veraga to do the work. But Veraga came under Harry Love's influence and was induced to desert his leader. Meanwhile the girl, alarmed by the activity of Murieta, had divulged to the officers all the knowledge she had of Joaquin's hiding places.

Murieta's power over his followers began to wane, and a number of others deserted him. He had trouble over another woman whom he installed in Antonia's place, and Harry Love was gaining the knowledge necessary to a successful pursuit. With eight men whom he could trust and who were promised a share of the reward Love set out to follow Joaquin until he came upon him.

From the mines of Calaveras county, down through Stockton and the San Joaquin valley, farther south along the trail the outlaw knew so well, Love traced the little band that Murieta led in person. On to Los Angeles they went. Then the bandit, with six companions, started south again. Love learned of the move, feared that he was striking for Mexico and followed hard upon his trail. And, because Murieta had grown careless in the three years he had plundered, Love and his men rode straight into the camp in the Tejon pass at daybreak as the seven outlaws squatted about a little fire where coffee was boiling.

Murieta was some distance from the fire, with a can of water in his hands, cleaning his horse's back, and did not at first recognize Love's men as officers. He approached to join the conversation between the groups when one of the pursuing party who was known to Joaquin stepped forward to demand the surrender of the seven. Murieta recognized his enemy, ran to mount his horse as it stood without saddle or bridle and, calling to his men, urged his horse into the brush where the mountain dropped steeply down.

But Love, who had selected Murieta for his own quarry, was as good a horseman as the bandit. He followed the wild chase, shooting to cripple Joaquin's horse. As the animal fell Murieta abandoned it and plunged on afoot. A second bullet from Love's gun brought him to earth. Then a fight ensued, with both men protected by rocks and trees. Another of Love's bullets found a mark on Murieta, and before the fight was over, in which all of the leader's companions were either killed or taken, the desperate young Mexican was dead. "Three Fingers Jack" fought the posse until he, too, was killed.

Love carried north as ghastly relics of his work and proof to the California legislature that he had earned the $5,000 reward the head of Joaquin Murieta and the maimed hand of the fierce Garcia. Public excitement waxed high as the news of the killing got abroad. It was a debated question whether Love was a general benefactor or an arrant villain and licensed murderer. Indeed it was more than hinted by the sympathizers of Joaquin that Love had killed the wrong man and that Murieta had escaped to Mexico. But he was beyond question killed at Tejon pass.

SUING FOR HIS HOME

Husband Asks to Have Deed Set Aside

ALSO DIVORCE ANNUED

Case of Allmand vs. Allmand Discloses Some Family History Now on Trial in Circuit Court

[From Monday's Daily Argus.]

The circuit court is engaged with the case of Allmand vs. Allmand, a suit brought to set aside a divorce and a deed. The suit is brought by Frank J. Allmand against his former wife, Anna Mary Allmand. It seems that the couple were divorced some time ago, but the divorce case was not contested. Mrs. Allmand secured a divorce upon the ground that her husband was and had been for some time a common drunkard. Allmand claims he knew nothing of the divorce. Some time previous to the divorce proceedings, the home had been deeded to Mrs. Allmand. She claims this was done to save it as it was mortgaged and the mortgage was about to be foreclosed. She undertook to pay the interest and save the property. Allmand claims the property was deeded to his wife with the understanding that it was to be retained as a home for both. Therefore when she sought to sell the property he wished to enjoin the sale and commenced the present suit to set aside the deed and likewise the divorce.

The property originally cost $700, it is said, and Allmand made some improvements on it. It is now mortgaged for $1,200. Mrs. Allmand was trying to sell it for $2,000. The property is situated on Packard street.

A SKETCH OF HENRY WADE ROGERS

The Chicago Chronicle publishes the following sketch of Henry Wade Rogers, the new dean of the Yale law school:

"Prof. Rogers came to Yale as professor of equity, corporations and insurance two years ago, resigning the presidency of the Northwestern university. As a member of the standing committee of the American bar on legal education Professor Rogers has been a prominent figure. He will assume the management of the Yale law school at the close of the present school year.

"Professor Rogers Wesleyan university in 1890. He is very popular with the students of the Yale law school department and his classes are the largest in that department of the university. Since his connection with Yale he has taken the liveliest interest in the advancement and growth of the law school.

"Dr. Henry Wade Rogers was born in Trenton Falls, N. Y., in 1853, as Henry Rogers Wade. His father died when he was quite young and he was adopted by his uncle and took his name, Henry Wade Rogers. He spent his youth in Buffalo, N. Y. His uncle, in whose office Grover Cleveland began the study of law, moved to Ann Arbor in 1871, and there the young man entered the University of Michigan in 1872.

"He was admitted to the bar in 1877. In 1890 he was appointed Tappan professor of law in the University of Michigan and a few years later was chosen dean. He built up the school from one of the smallest to one of the largest law schools in the country. When Josiah Cummins, president of Northwestern university, died in 1890, he was elected to his place, which position he held for ten years. He parted company with the Methodist institution because of the objection of the trustees to his pronounced anti-imperialistic convictions and utterances."

PRIZE WINNERS IN THE SCHOOLS

PRIZES OFFERED BY D. A. R. FOR HISTORICAL ESSAYS

The prizes offered by the Daughters of the American Revolution for the best essays in the schools of the city on historical subjects have been awarded and the prize winners in the various schools are as follows:

High School—1st, Virgil Lutherie, 2nd, Sallie Clarkson. W. S. Perry—1st, Iola, Tedrow; 2nd, Ruth Mayhew. Philip Bach—1st, John Dieterle; 2nd, Clara Graf.

Christian Mack—1st, Charles Shannon; 2nd, Clifford Shetterly. Elisha Jones—1st, Wanda Hawkes; 2nd, Fred McMahon.

Tappan—1st, Frank Limpert; 2nd, Mary Campbell.

The prizes offered by the D. A. R. were $2 in the High School for the best essay written on any one of the following subjects: History of the American Flag; 2nd, Miles Standish, 3rd, Social Life in the Colonies; 4th, The Dutch in New York; and a prize of $1 in the 6th grade of the Ward schools for the best essay on any one of the following subjects:

- 1. Discoverers of America. 2. Benjamin Franklin. 3. First Settlements in America. 4. Child Life in the Colonies.

Owing to the excellence of the essays written the committee found it very difficult to make the award, and a second prize was kindly offered by Mrs. J. L. Babcock for the one who stood second in the High school. In the ward schools the task was equally difficult to decide and Mrs. H. M. Slauison presented a book on U. S. history to all those who were second on the list. The prizes were presented in the High school by Mrs. Hutchins and Mrs. Babcock, and in the ward schools by Mrs. Hutchins and Mrs. Slauison, who visited each school.

WORST OF ALL EXPERIENCES.

Can anything be worse than to feel that every minute will be your last? Such was the experience of Mrs. S. H. Newson, Decatur, Ala. "For three years" she writes, "I endured insufferable pain from indigestion, stomach and bowel trouble. Death seemed inevitable when doctors and all remedies failed. At length I was induced to try Electric Bitters and the result was miraculous. I improved at once and now I'm completely recovered." For Liver, Kidney, Stomach and Bowel troubles Electric Bitters is the only medicine. Only 50c. It's guaranteed by A. E. Mummy and H. F. Miller, druggists.

RARE SAVING POSSIBILITIES OF OUR GREAT JUNE SALES!

DURING THESE SALES it is known to all in Washtenaw Co. that the lowest price limit prevails. This is a time when we place quick-selling prices on all lines of goods to reduce our various departments to the very lowest possible amount. Certain lines of goods must be closed out entirely, and the sacrifices we make on these are simply appalling. Other lines that are always staple are radically discounted in order that as little as possible may appear on our invoice books. Thus it is that goods you want for immediate use or continual service may now be had here at a saving of very considerable amounts.
