A BIRD STORY.

It's strange how little boys' mothers can find it all out that a thing wicked. The moment you do a thing bad, they know it.

THE TRIBAL CUSTOMS.

On approaching the canon one is greeted at the narrow entrance by the Cacique, or chief, who motions in no unmistakable language to lay aside all the delicate ornaments with which the traveler in this land is usually bedecked.

DEVELOPMENTS.

After the lapse of two hundred years, and with the advent of 1880, the work of excavation and exploration has been resumed. Already many valuable mineral discoveries have been made.

Correspondence of THE COURIER.

FROM NEW MEXICO.

MESILLA, N. M., August 30, 1880.

Among some of the surprising objects of interest that greet the traveler in New Mexico, none perhaps excites a greater degree of wonder and delight than the now famous turquoise mines of Mt. Chalchuid.

TURQUOISE.

The market value of turquoise depends upon its purity of color, the most valuable stones being of a sky blue blended slightly with green.

HISTORICAL.

By the ancient Mexicans, the turquoise was regarded as of far more value than the emerald, as the latter gem has always been more plentiful than the turquoise.

The turquoise mine of which we are writing is embosomed in the largest of the pine-covered hills (Monte Chalchuid) from which the district takes its name.

The wonderful discoveries will soon be made in Mount Chalchuid cannot be doubted. It being the only turquoise mine on the continent, the market cannot, at any great extent, become over-run.

Leaving Mesilla on the right, and passing to a point midway between it and the Donana, a range of abrupt and precipitous bluffs is encountered that extend to the east about seventy-five miles, and which, as a spur of the Rocky Mountains, is known as the Sacramento Peaks.

THURLOW WEED ON INGERSOLL.

Christianity and Infidelity as Understood by the Veteran Journalist.

Men entertaining infidel opinions for the last twenty or more years, and until the appearance of Robert G. Ingersoll, have seldom intruded themselves upon the public.

There is nothing in the manner or matter of modern divines either to provoke or invite antagonism. Clergymen do not, as formerly, dwell and linger upon the dark features of theology.

Col. Ingersoll, whom I do not know, has the reputation of being an infidel, and his personal manner, with a well stored mind and attractive personal manner, who speaks fluently and eloquently.

On the other hand, what has infidelity done for us? Who profits by its teachings? After depriving its followers of their belief in a future life, it compensates them by what does it offer in return for a life of immortality?
