The store of Henry Paul on the west side of Main street, was sold to Henry Binder this week for $8,250.

There are over forty bicycles in town. As they will average $125 a machine, more than $5,000 is thus here invested.

Ground has been broken for the new sixth ward school building. The contract calls for its completion the first of September.

Some thirty Adrians came over Saturday to see their ball nine laid out. It takes skillful players to play on strange grounds.

The planing mill of the late William Noble has been rented by C. Schumacher and J. W. Richardson, who will carry on the business.

The Petoskey summer institute will not be open this year, but another year it is to be managed by the Methodist camp ground association.

The amateur opera company which will produce Iolanthe at the Grand Opera House, May 25th, has been selected to give the opera at Jackson.

Yesterday was Ascension day, and therefore a holiday for a portion of the community. Services were held in the Episcopal, German and Catholic churches.

The brilliant tableaux and picturesque groupings formed by the sprightly fairies, and stately peers in the opera, Iolanthe, will be lit up by variously colored calcium lights.

The confectionery manufactory owned by J. W. Hangsterfer has moved into the store on Huron street, formerly occupied by Henon & Sumner. Candy is retailed there now, as well as made.

The next, and last of Company A's inspections and dances of this season, will take place next Monday evening. The City band Orchestra of nine pieces has been engaged for the evening.

In another column is to be found an able discussion of the township equalization system from the pen of Mr. Wynkup, who, having for a long time been a supervisor, understands whereof he speaks.

Mr. Mann, after being in the drug business for a long time, has decided to retire and to give the business into the hands of his sons, Eugene and Albert, who will run it under the name of Mann Brothers.

Bach & Abel's store had a narrow escape from fire Wednesday morning. It started in some cotton under the counter and had quite a start before being noticed and extinguished. No one knows how it took fire.

Stories of big hen fruit are now in order. We have one. Calvin Bliss has found that one of his hens laid an egg 8 1/2 inches in circumference one way and 8 3/4 inches the other. That is a whopper—the egg; not the story.

A Chicago paper company advertises on its letter heads that it uses the paper of the following mills: Ypsilanti mills, Ann Arbor mills, Jackson mills, Superior mills, and Birkbeck mills. Inasmuch as the most of these paper mills are flouring mills, we can congratulate them on being able to make paper as well as flour. The public is invited to go down and see it made.

A broad new platform extends from the Fireman's Hall to the road, and the building itself stands about completed. The last order of the Common Council by an action for $2,000 to the contractors nearly paid up the $10,000 appropriation.

By a circular recently received from the Life-Saving Service we note that there are twenty-two life-saving stations in this State on the shores of the Great Lakes. Eight are on Lake Huron; four on Lake Superior, and ten on Lake Michigan.

When a railroad had been attempting to cross the Central track Tuesday forenoon just west of the depot, his foot got caught in a frog, and before he could get out it was struck by a locomotive which crushed his foot and leg up to the knee.

Monthly meeting of the Pomological Society next Saturday, at 2 o'clock p. m., in the basement of the court house. Topics: Reports on the codling moth; new varieties of fruits; implements of horticulture. Orchardists are requested to exhibit winter apples.

The Baptists only lack a little of being entirely out of the woods on their organ debt, so they propose to get out by means of a Floral Festival, to be held at their church next Friday night. Plants, seeds, fancy articles and refreshments are to be traded for the ducats.

A nut for the lawyers to crack. A small boy called at the house of the town clerk in a neighboring township with five wooden seals demanding bounty not only for them but for seven unborn ones. Now that clerk is tearing his hair to know what is best to do about it.

A junior in the High School named William J. Barden died Tuesday morning after a short illness occasioned by being hurt in a foot-ball game. The remains were escorted to the depot in the afternoon by his class-mates and were taken by his father to his home in Ridgefield, Illinois.

Sixty-seven residents and tax-payers of the third and fourth wards having signed a petition for a bridge across Allen creek on High street at its junction with Main, the matter was brought before the common council Friday evening and referred to a committee. The committee, we understand, will report against it.

The new school of Telegraphy, recently moved here from Oberlin, O., is rapidly increasing in numbers and already has some thirty students, thirteen states being represented on the rolls. Telegraphing both theoretical and practical, is taught and after the completion of the course a good position is assured to those who do their work well.

The exhibition of Mr. Sheehan's dancing classes in the Opera house, Tuesday night, was attended by a large audience, mostly consisting of ladies. The program as carried out was uniformly good and introduced many very pretty and graceful figures. Throughout their dances and complicated movements the children showed a decision and ease which speak well for the good training of their teacher. The ballet was graceful and the stately Minuet, accompanied as it was by song, was thoroughly enjoyable. By request it is to be repeated at a matinee Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Opera house.

Undoubtedly more lawyers are admitted to the bar of the Washtenaw court than to all of the others in the State combined. This is because nearly all of the law students, immediately before or after graduation, pass an examination and are admitted to practice. They are required to sign their names on the County Clerk's rolls, and this list now has nearly 1,000 names upon it, many of them being judges or occupying prominent positions as advocates. The list has been kept, and County Clerk Robison, in order to preserve it more safely, has been having it nicely bound, together with blank pages for the enrollment of those to come. The book will always be very convenient and useful for reference.

Women's Foreign Missionary Society.

The Secretary of the semi-annual meeting of the above-named Society of the M. E. church, held at Morenci last week, has forwarded to us a report of the exercises. From it we glean the following points:

The meeting was conspicuous in its new departures. Pre-eminent among them, was a session set apart to the young ladies representing the six auxiliaries now in active service. It was brought about without any revulsion of feeling, because the propriety and usefulness of Young Ladies' Societies was already felt.

On account of the hungering for more knowledge of our representatives, the District Secretary, Franc Baker, satisfied the demand by "Sketches of our Michigan Methodist Missionary Women," illustrating with stereotyped views of themselves, the countries whither they have been sent, and some of the results of missionary labor in those far away lands.

The several papers showed unusual ability, and Mrs. Mary J. Johnson's response to the beautiful address of welcome by Mrs. L. V. Wilson, was a model in spirit, form and comeliness.

Mrs. Hendrickson read a timely paper on "How to Interest Children in Missionary Work," scattering seed thoughts which may yield a bountiful harvest.

The President, Mrs. Benson, also had a practical topic, on "Needs of the District," showing a wise supervision over this extended field. There are 5,000 full members in this District. It is estimated that two-thirds of the membership in the M. E. church are women, which gives 3,400 women in the church in the Adrian District. Six or seven hundred are members of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, giving about one-fifth of the women in this work. The next meeting is to be held in Ann Arbor.

Entertainments.

Ann Arbor is to be visited on Monday evening by Duprez & Benedict's minstrels. The Daily Republican, of Hudson, N. Y., says of them: "There was a large audience present at the opera house Saturday evening last, the attraction being the Duprez & Benedict's minstrel troupe. The entertainment throughout was good and well received, as was evidenced by the frequent bursts of applause."

It is a large company and will undoubtedly draw a large crowd.

DIED.

GAISS—Robert, son of Fred Gauss, of the Second ward, died Thursday, April 26, of scarlet fever, aged 17 months. HICKS—Edith, wife of Charles Hendrick, of the Sixth ward, died May 1, at the age of 23 years, of inflammation of the bowels. Funeral Thursday, at 3 o'clock. HANDY—Helen E., wife of Isaac Handy, of the First ward, died May 2, at 2:30, at the house.

PERSONALS.

Wills Boughton went down to Cincinnati Friday on a short trip of a few days. Henry C. Waldron, who is in the office of the Secretary of State at Lansing has moved there with his family.

Deputy U. S. Marshall Fred Schlaner, of Ann Arbor, formerly of Dexter, was in town Tuesday.—Dexter Leader.

O. F. Hunt, who has been in Sawyer & Knowlton's office, goes into Detroit next week to take a place in the office of John Atkinson.

J. F. McClure, the enterprising managing editor of "The Wheelman" of Boston was in town Saturday" visiting his bicycle friends.

Harrison Ball, the new Post-master of Dexter was in the city yesterday. Saturday night he will move the post-office from the drug store to his own store across the street.

Edward Duffy returned Saturday night from the meeting of the Land League at Philadelphia and reports it a grand assemblage of representative men from all over the country.

C. A. Towne, '81, is in Washington, endeavoring to obtain the clerkship of the Civil Service Commission. He has a good show of success if the committee practice what they preach.

UNIVERSITY ITEMS.

Rugby is being played on the Campus to some extent.

Rev. Henry Hudson, the Shakespearian scholar, was the guest of Prof. Demmon. The prizes for Field Day will be on exhibition at Goodyear's drug store next Monday.

The peal of bells which were presented to the library building have come and are now in the western tower.

Prof. Winchell has been selected to give the address at the memorial service to Dr. Cocker. The date has not yet been fixed. The University appropriation bill was passed by the senate Tuesday and all the items were passed upon as asked for, except the Dental college, which was cut down from $5,000 to $4,000 per annum.

As was shown by the game of base ball last Saturday the University nine is a good one, so an interesting game may be looked for this afternoon when they are to play the Detroit League club on the Fair grounds at 3:30.

Messrs. McLennan, Poote and Gibbs went to Hillsdale yesterday to represent Alpha Nu at the convention of the college literary societies. This evening at the public exercises Mr. McLennan gives an oration on "Macbeth."

Two of the students have built a cabin by the river and are going on the camping-out plan. Not long since they were absent from their residence for four or five days, and when they returned they found their dog inside, which they had gone off and forgotten. It is unnecessary to say the dog had been fasting in their absence.

Saturday was a cold day, especially for the Adrians boys who came here to show the Universities how to play base-ball. In fact it was cold enough for muffs, a good many of which were seen during the afternoon. The strangers were surprised to see the ball curve so much and it rather rattled them. The score stood:

Table with 6 columns: Name, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, Total. Rows for Adrians and Ann Arbor.

Next week Saturday is Field day, and if it does not rain a program will be carried out which includes a 10 mile walk; catch-as-catch-can wrestling; hop, skip and jump; Rugby; base ball throw; boxing, heavy and light weight; standing broad jump; sledge throwing; drop kick; Indian clubs; hour, go-as-you-please; horizontal bar; lawn tennis; 3 legged race; tug-of-war, 85 and 80; fencing and single stick exercise; 100 yards dash; collar and elbow wrestling; chasing greased pig; wheel-barrow race; 5 mile bicycle race; 3/4 mile run; 3 mile walk; clay pigeon shooting; bicycle exhibition; fancy exhibition; potato race and hurdle race.

ANS ARBOR, April 30, 1883. EDITOR COURIER: Dear Sir—Please say in your next issue that "Somebody has blundered." I have not been offered the Presidency of Nebraska University, and consequently have not declined it. All of this grew out of a very innocent letter from a member of the Nebraska Legislature asking me if I would consider the matter should it be proposed. I regret that I have been the occasion of advertising the University as offering her chairs, and having them refused.

Yours truly, EDW. OLNEY. P. S.—Will other papers that have copied the personal above referred to, please give this equal publicity. E. O.

COUNTY ITEMS.

CHELESA. From the Herald.

Mr. C. Steinbach informs us that although he will superintend the manufacture of his plant in Ann Arbor, his business here will not suffer, and he will continue to supply his customers with work in his line.

The $5,000 fund to improve the mineral spring at Chelesia is slowly increasing. Commercially, we are glad you finally own it, that that water should be improved.—Herald. We always thought there was something wrong with it, there was so much gas about it.

DEXTER. From the Leader.

There is to be a hotel at Portage Lake, Mr. V. Burgess, of Milan, has purchased the Duff property, on the Pinckney road, and expects to have a hotel open in a few weeks.

The Germans have purchased the Hollis property, at the point of Ann Arbor and the Fourth streets, on which to build their church. They are drawing the foundation stones.

MANCHESTER. From the Enterprise.

J. C. Gardiner, who has for many years been known as the village blacksmith, left here on Monday for the north in search of a new home.

S. W. Dorr shipped a car load of apples to Cleveland last week, and on Tuesday he shipped another car load. They were all Baldwins and bring from $4 to $5 per barrel. These apples cost him all told $2.45 a barrel last fall. He has kept them in his cooling house, and on repacking finds there has been a shrinkage of only five barrels to the 100. He expects to ship another car load in a few days, and hopes to sell his full stock before the middle of May.

SALINE. From the Observer.

E. W. Peat shipped 140 sheep to Colorado Monday morning from this station.

We understand Anson Harmon has purchased or leased the Lake Ridge hotel on Lyman Day's property, to which a hotel he will remove in a few days.

We learn Wm. Pease has moved on his farm, situated about three miles north-east of here on the gravel road. He has been living in Ann Arbor for a few years past.

YPSILANTI. From the Commercial.

Aaron Palmer, 76 years of age, who has been drying in the city the past quarter of a century, and of late mail carrier, retired May 1st. John Wint takes his place.

The first and second Congregational churches of Detroit have contributed $500 to the building fund of the Congregational church of this place. The Young People's Society are selecting carpet and pulpit furniture this week. Their fund has reached $211 and is still growing. The building will probably be dedicated sometime in June.

Ypsilanti. From the Ypsilanti.

Yesterday forenoon the house occupied by Wm. Bell, between here and Rawsonville, was totally destroyed by fire, with most of its contents. We have not been able to obtain further particulars.

But little has been done this week towards raising the money for the sanitary project, and the committee is uncertain about being able to reach the full $3,000. The members are fast becoming disgusted with the too general desire to enjoy the benefit procured by some one else's money, and feel quite bitter against some who ought to come down liberally, and who are not doing so. The men, those who will be benefited the least have been most willing to subscribe.

Ground was broken Monday morning for God's new block, opposite the Sentinel office, the building which occupied a portion, having been removed last week.

A German-speaking Pole, with a family, recently arrived at Ann Arbor, having performed the journey from Detroit to here. Somewhere, after leaving New York, he had been robbed of money and papers, except his ticket, that was good to Detroit, and was thus left helpless and a waif in the mercy of the world. He was endeavoring to reach a brother in Chicago, but had lost even his address. He was helped forward by kind people in Ann Arbor, but his final destination is uncertain.

Silas Card was married the other day, and on his wedding notice were the words: "No cards." But he doesn't know what might happen.

Soldiers, Attention! Milo B. Stevens & Co., the well known War Claim Attorneys, will be represented at Ann Arbor Wednesday and Thursday May 23rd and 24th next, at the Soldiers' and Sailors' and other interested in claims for pensions, increase of pension, arrears of pay and bounty, of those charged with desertion, or other claims, it is hoped will give him a call. His whereabouts may be ascertained at the office of the County Clerk. 1141-1143

Whoever wants good Peach Trees at low prices let them call on J. D. Baldwin. You will notice in to-day's paper that Kock & Haller still offer parlor goods at reduced prices.

We have a full stock of Gingham, comprising, French, German, English, Italian and Yankee. It would please us quite well to have you examine them.

SWEET HOME.
Payne's "Home, Sweet Home," as it now stands was changed by the author two or three times after it was written. As originally written the song was as follows:
Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever humble, there's no place like home.
A charm from the skies seems to hallow us here,
Like the love of a mother,
Which, surpassing all other,
Which, through the world, is never met,
With sweet home,
There's a spell in the shade,
Where our infancy played its gambols,
Even stronger than time, and more deep than despair,
An exile from home, splendor dazzles in vain;
Oh! give me my lowly thatched cottage again,
The birds singing gaily, that come at my call,
Give me them, with the peace of mind dearer than all.
Home! home! sweet, sweet home!
There's no place like home! there's no place like home!

THROUGH THE TUNNEL.
It was a bright, clear, cold morning in early December. When Kathie entered the car there was scarcely a vacant seat to be seen. To be sure, there was one stout, old gentleman sitting alone, but he was next to the aisle, and seemed so deeply absorbed in thought that Kathie disliked to disturb him. Then there was a middle-aged woman, but she had no umbrellas, parcels and wraps in the seat beside her, and she apparently took her all in was so forlornly, that Kathie passed her by. There was but one seat unoccupied. It was beside a gentleman who sat close to the window reading a paper.
"Is this seat engaged?" asked Kathie, with timid hesitancy.
"It is not," was the answer, in a pleasant tone; "but," springing up as he spoke, "would you prefer the seat by the window?"
"Oh! no! Thank you! Not at all!" murmured Kathie, and sat down beside him.
The gentleman turned his attention again to his paper, and Kathie immediately felt wishing that she had taken the seat by the window. For the gentleman sat at her right hand and her purse was in her cloak pocket, and had not her Aunt Kate warned her over and over again to be on her guard against pick-pockets, and had declared that they were quite as likely to be young, agreeable and polite as the reverse? And was not this person all three? Kathie stole a shy glance at him. His dark eyes were intent on his newspaper. He was fine looking and well dressed, and to all intents, quite oblivious of her existence. Kathie wondered demurely what sort of an expression his face would wear if he knew that any one thought that he might perhaps be a pick-pocket.
She might take her purse and hold it in her hand, but that would seem ostentatious and tiresome; moreover there would be ample time for the gentleman to take her all in was so forlornly, that Kathie passed her by. There was but one seat unoccupied. It was beside a gentleman who sat close to the window reading a paper.

An Extract from a Novel.
On a black day in November, 1741, more than one hundred and forty years ago, a Russian ship which had been driven through icy seas to a small harbor on an unknown and rock-bound coast.
On board the ship was the Arctic explorer Behring, who on a previous voyage had discovered the strait which separates Asia from America, and which bears his name. Many of the men who were with Captain Behring were sick and dying, and any harbor was welcome. Although not a tree or shrub of any kind could be seen on the desolate shore, the barren rocks and sand heaps were better than the stormy sea.
After anchoring the vessel those of the crew who were strongest went on shore. They found a stream of fresh water which was not yet frozen over, although the sides of the mountains were covered with snow. Along the banks of this stream, the men found a region of sand which they roved over with sails brought from the ship, and to these rude shelters they removed their sick companions.
The cold grew more bitter every day, and more the sick died from want of food and proper care. On the 8th of December the party had the misfortune to lose the commander, Captain Behring. He died after great suffering, and was buried in the desolate shore.
Not long after his death a great storm arose, and the vessel, the only means of escape of these poor sailors, was wrecked upon the rocky coast. There was but a small portion of the ship's provisions remaining, and few of the men were left with any hope of escape for months to come.
The situation was dreadful, but the men faced it like true heroes. Instead of setting on the cliffs and watching for a sailing ship, those far from home might never appear, and at once set to work to see what they could do to help themselves. The first thing to do was to secure all the beams and timbers of the wrecked vessel before another storm could sweep them away.
Happily the carpenter's tools had all been brought on shore, and although three of the Russian carpenters had died, there was a Cossack among the crew who had once worked in a shipyard, and who was able to direct the building of a new vessel. It was decided to build the new ship as soon as the snow melted so the men could work, and meanwhile they must discover where they had been cast ashore, and if the land contained anything to support life.
About ten miles from the coast was a high hill, and on climbing to the top the men found that they were on a large island. This island, now known as Behring Island, in honor of the discoverer who lies buried in its sands, is the most westerly of the Aleutian group, and at the time these poor Russian navigators were cast away on it was uninhabited, except by foxes and other wild animals.
The creature that was to play the most important part in saving the lives and health of these shipwrecked men was a sea-cow. To their great delight they found large herds of these creatures lying in the bays and inlets of the rocky island. In honor of the discoverer who lies buried in its sands, is the most westerly of the Aleutian group, and at the time these poor Russian navigators were cast away on it was uninhabited, except by foxes and other wild animals.

In honor of the discoverer who lies buried in its sands, is the most westerly of the Aleutian group, and at the time these poor Russian navigators were cast away on it was uninhabited, except by foxes and other wild animals.

THE GENTLEMAN WHO SAT CLOSE TO THE WINDOW READING A PAPER.
"Is this seat engaged?" asked Kathie, with timid hesitancy.
"It is not," was the answer, in a pleasant tone; "but," springing up as he spoke, "would you prefer the seat by the window?"
"Oh! no! Thank you! Not at all!" murmured Kathie, and sat down beside him.
The gentleman turned his attention again to his paper, and Kathie immediately felt wishing that she had taken the seat by the window. For the gentleman sat at her right hand and her purse was in her cloak pocket, and had not her Aunt Kate warned her over and over again to be on her guard against pick-pockets, and had declared that they were quite as likely to be young, agreeable and polite as the reverse? And was not this person all three? Kathie stole a shy glance at him. His dark eyes were intent on his newspaper. He was fine looking and well dressed, and to all intents, quite oblivious of her existence. Kathie wondered demurely what sort of an expression his face would wear if he knew that any one thought that he might perhaps be a pick-pocket.
She might take her purse and hold it in her hand, but that would seem ostentatious and tiresome; moreover there would be ample time for the gentleman to take her all in was so forlornly, that Kathie passed her by. There was but one seat unoccupied. It was beside a gentleman who sat close to the window reading a paper.
"Is this seat engaged?" asked Kathie, with timid hesitancy.
"It is not," was the answer, in a pleasant tone; "but," springing up as he spoke, "would you prefer the seat by the window?"
"Oh! no! Thank you! Not at all!" murmured Kathie, and sat down beside him.

him no opportunity, and not another word was spoken until they reached the station, where he left her with a courteous bow and "Good morning."
"Hateful thing!" said Kathie to herself, "I hope I shall never see eyes on him again. I then she watched him while he was admiring her, and she distinguished his fine form in the hurrying crowd.
Her purse, it is scarcely necessary to say, was safe in her pocket, and she soon set about directing her contents. She fastened the umbrellas by the beginning of her trip, her day proved quite successful and satisfactory. Her own errands and Aunt Kate's commissions were all executed, and there was still a hour to spare for a walk to town. Will's office and when the time drew near for her train to leave, he escorted her to the station. The train was in readiness when they arrived, and as they walked along to reach the right car, a form approached them from a by-entrance at which some of the men thrilled through Kathie's veins, and the hot blood to her cheeks and brow.
"Ah! here's Harry Thorn going on your train, Kathie," said her cousin. "He was the aggressive company for you, and will give you a ride to your home before Kathie was at all prepared for it, came the inevitable introduction.
Kathie could hardly force herself to meet the glance of the mischievous dark eyes bent upon her, or "touch the gentleman's hand. It was utterly impossible for her to speak a word, but the gentleman talked on till Will left them at the entrance to the car.
"You will take the seat by the window this time," said Mr. Thorn, and Kathie silently took it.
After he had arranged her parcels in the rack and seated himself, Kathie said with a frank smile, "I really hoped that I should never see you again."
"Did you not think I had an eternal banishment?" he asked lightly.
"Oh, no! It was rather I who merited it," said Kathie. "So long as you did not know me it did not matter what you thought of me, but now,"—ah, where were Kathie's words leading her? "if you should tell Cousin Will," she continued quizzically, "I should never hear the last of it."
"I assure you, was the earnest answer, "I will never mention the mistake to which you refer to Will or to anyone else. No one besides ourselves need ever know aught of it." And then he skillfully turned the conversation, and Kathie was soon quite at her ease, and they were conversing like old friends.
That memorable ride through the tunnel occurred some years ago, and Kathie's relations with Mr. Thorn have changed so greatly that now, instead of "Did you not think I had an eternal banishment?" she appropriates with great coolness funds from his pocket-book for the shopping.
Mr. Thorn sometimes laughingly declares that instead of his wife waiting for him to offer his hand, as ladies usually do, she took possession of it the first time that she ever saw him; but his most intimate friends ask in vain for an explanation of his jest.

RHEUMATIC SYRUP.
The Greatest Blood Purifier Known!
A positive cure for Rheumatism, in all its various forms, viz: Chronic, Acute, Inflammatory, Sciatic, and Muscular Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Gout.
It restores the diseased Liver and Kidneys to healthy action, and dissolves and expels from the blood all the solid Poisons or "urate Lime" contained therein, which is the cause of all Rheumatic and Neuralgic Pains. Manufactured by RHEUMATIC SYRUP CO., Rochester, N. Y. For sale everywhere. Send for circular.
Rheumatic Syrup Co., BUTLER, N. Y., March 10, 1882.
Gents--I take this opportunity to express my gratitude for what your Rheumatic Syrup has done for me. After suffering over one year with the rheumatism in my shoulders, so I could hardly get my coat on without help, a friend induced me to try one bottle of Rheumatic Syrup. After taking it I could see such a decided change that I continued its use a short time, and it cured me. DANIEL ROE.
