SOLDIERS' FRIENDS.

Our esteemed contemporary, the Argus, takes up the defense of its party in regard to our article in last week's issue about the old soldier becoming unfashionable. Of course it was not a pleasant thing to face, and something had to be said excusing it, just as northern members of that party since the war have been kept busy excusing or denying or defending Kluxkluks, tissue balloons and shot-gun elections. It is always, however, stuck in the throats of honest northern democrats to countenance the murders and violence of their southern brothers, and we are sure they never would have done it if those votes had not been necessary to party success.

But to come back to our mutter, it is not a bold thing for the democracy to dispute the claim of the republicans of being the soldiers' friends? And is it not much more an exhibition of gall when they try to make any sane person believe they have put the Union soldiers into office, as they should have done?

In the seventeen sections of the solid south we dare say there are not ten ex-Union soldiers in an office of any account save those put there by the republican party, and these few remnants are now being rapidly displaced by those who fought to destroy the Union.

On the other hand, quite a different state of affairs obtains in the North, where for instance, in New York state at the last election, nearly all the candidates on the republican ticket were former defenders of their country. And that very fact seems to anger the democracy, for they turned in with extra zeal to defeat such a ticket, and to put in its place one headed by Hill, the former partner of Tweed. Here in our own state, the present Governor was a brave Union general. The republicans, moreover, are continually putting up for Congress men like Col. Atkinson and Capt. Allen, only, it seems, to be bitterly fought by soldiers (?) to the soldier as the democracy.

JUNKETING.

At a special meeting of the common council Monday, the aldermen voted to give five of their number a trip down to Hendrick's funeral at the expense of the city.

Now, as no such mark of honor had been paid to Gen. Grant or to Gen. Garfield,—men to whom the country owed more than could be paid for their gallant defense of it,—or to Hon. Z. Chandler, to whom the state owed much—therefore it strikes the ordinary citizen of both parties alike that this was a neat little scheme to get a holiday at some one else's expense, i. e. at the taxpayers. For why should more respect be paid to deceased vice-president than was paid by the city to Grant and Garfield, both distinguished presidents and generals?

The people do not look with favor upon junketing tours and they believe that public officials should not catch upon too many perquisites or emoluments at the public expense. This is especially true when no good can come to the city thereby.

NEXT VICE-PRESIDENT.

The death of the vice-president gives the filling of the vacancy to the Senate, hence discussion is arising as to the one upon whom this unexpected honor will be conferred. The Senate has a republican majority and should of course have one to preside, who should be in accord with that majority. Now, inasmuch as Gen. Logan made so gallant a fight for it last fall would it not be right by due to him now. The bitterness of a personal campaign found no spot on him and more than half of the voters of this country wished him in that position, which he lost through no fault of his own.

Yes, the price is being paid. It may have been a small price, but the bargain is being carried out, just the same. Northville has a prohibition postmaster.

CANON FARRAR.

The unprecedented sale of reserved seats previous to the last Wednesday evening's lecture by Archdeacon Farrar showed that the hall was to be filled with a large audience. Many came from a considerable distance to see and hear the eminent dean of Westminster, and they were treated to one of the most scholarly discourses ever heard even in University Hall. It was not written as a popular lecture to gain applause, but rather to instruct and to impart an increased regard for higher literature. In fact, all of his lectures are intensely didactic. He might have chosen a subject better suited to a large and mixed assemblage, but we are glad that he did not. For what good is attained, after all, when being told what we already know, even though the orator be golden-tongued who tells it to us?

For nearly two hours he read of Dante's poems, and although his voice is monotone and his range of gesture confined to the style known as "pump-handle," yet he held the close attention of all by his polished an classic periods.

In appearance he is young-looking for a man of 53 years—all in figure, kind and intellectual in expression, large in nose, mouth and hands, and with a man of easy dignity and, evident strength of character.

THE RECEPTION.

After the lecture a reception was given him at the home of Prof. Morris under the auspices of Hobart Guild. The fortunate guests were introduced to him, but could not, to their great regret, long enjoy his company, inasmuch as he had to take the N. Y. express to Detroit, where he lectured the next evening. He did this in order to devote the day to work in his closing New York lecture, in which he is to give his impressions of this country.

The reception was a delightful one nevertheless.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Congress convenes next Monday.

The Ypsilanti still feels bad about the blowing up of the monument to Major Andre, the British spy. The editor of that paper needs vaccinating with American patriotism.

The newspapers claim that President Cleveland will recommend in his message the purchasing of the Sandwich Islands by the United States for $14,000,000. This country is too unyielding now, for its own good. What would the U. S. do with these islands should it conclude to purchase them? But then, it would make a few more offices to be doled out.

The Ovid Union is somewhat mixed on a name, but hits the mark just the same: "The Ypsilanti Commercial, whose editor is the Rev. Mr. Patterson, says that Michigan's present license law is the brat of the republican party, and it hugs its brat as a dear little darling." Yes, and this same Patterson has paved the earth in defense of the republican party, when looking at it and its work with unprejudiced eyes.

Among the books for the young which the Sunday News recommends is the Arabian Nights, Robinson Crusoe, and Don Quixote. The last two are not so very bad (or so very good) but if the News will condescend to mention one redeeming quality possessed by the Arabian Nights it will do more than the average reader ever imagined possible. The book is not only a lot of slush strung together, but much of it is unfit to put in the hands of the young.

The Three Rivers Tribune propounds a conundrum: "One of our exchanges offered a premium of 5 cts. a bushel on all produce paid on subscription, another one proposes to go five better and give his subscribers an advance of 10 cts. per bushel and return the produce to the first delinquent who shall respond. We should like to know what kind of cusses these papers carry on their subscription list, anyhow. He must be a mighty mean fellow who has to be bribed to pay his honest debts in produce."

The republican papers in various sections of the state are trotting out gentlemen whom they think would make good candidates for governor. Branch County papers insist that it should be a dear de Luce, as it were; up in Grand Traverse they want to know what is the matter with Hannah? In the upper peninsula they would be pleased to ship Chandler; the Saginaw would like to have Benton Ha(n)ch-ett; and with what Joy Detroit would send a Livingstone into the chair or Palm-er off Gov. McMillan to the people. In the meantime Fitt is poking around with a Long pole in mighty close proximity to the persons.

ALL COWARDS.

The old veteran journalist, Geo. F. Lewis, of the Saginawian (who by the way, would make a tip top democratic candidate for governor, eh?) has this sensible utterance on quite another, but much graver question: "Every county in Michigan, old and young, great and small, has statesmen, veterans in the service, and those just out of the shell, who are an aid upon questions of finance, tariff, civil service, labor and capital, but not one in all the category two dares to grapple with this question nearest to the interests of all the people, the question of permanent and enduring wagon roads."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

(This column is open to the people to express their opinion on matters of interest to the public, and correspondents upon all subjects of interest. All we ask of correspondents is to keep out of personalities, and use argument instead of abuse. Be concise, don't use more words than necessary to express ideas. The publisher of the Courier does not hold himself responsible for opinions expressed.)

?????

MR. EDITOR COURIER:—Will you ask me, as a citizen of this city, yet as questions through your paper?

1st. Has the "gentleman burglar" found his way into the common council?

2d. Will the council defray the expenses of Ald. Biggs to England and return?

Enquiringly Yours,

A CONSTITUENT.

POOR LIGHTS.

ED. COURIER:—I wish to join with your other correspondents and growl about the lights upon the streets of this beautiful city. I do not believe Ann Arbor has ever been so poorly lighted as now. What's the reason? The street lights are often not lit at all on nights that are pitch dark, and at other times a person would have to take a lantern along to find the lights after they are lit.

Where does the fault lie Mr. Editor?

Yours for light,

A CITIZEN.

WHICH?

EDITOR COURIER:—In a recent issue of the Courier, I notice that you give Sir Edward Bulwer Lytton's Lucille credit for the couplet:

"Thou hast to have loved and lost
Than never to have loved."

Isn't it slightly mistaken? Was it not Alfred Tennyson, poet laureate (what ever that may mean to the queen, who wrote that familiar quotation)?

But you are not the only one who makes mistakes. I heard a prominent clergyman of this city a few Sundays since credit Mark Twain with some of Artemus Ward's sayings—but it didn't make much difference I suppose.

INQUISITIVE.

[Well, if you are so particular about trifles have it as you will, but we thought all love-sick truck came from Lucille, so gave that work credit, with no desire to rob Alfred of any laurels—or laureates. Thanks for the few words of consolation with which you close your criticism.]—J. E. D.

PRACTICAL TEMPERANCE WORK.

If the north had to rise up in its might to crush out slavery, and teach the south a lesson in respect to human bondage, it now looks as if the south was about to teach the north a lesson in respect to practical temperance, of no less importance.

In the city of Atlanta, Ga., recently, a local prohibition law was submitted to the people and after a spirited contest, said to have been one of the most exciting in the history of that city, prohibition was carried by upwards of 250 majority.

The question was not advocated by the republicans or the democrats, but was taken out of politics entirely, and placed before the people on its merits, as it should have been. And hereafter, the great city of Atlanta, one of the most noted in the southern states will be strictly a temperance city, and the influence of its action will be very great on other and lesser communities.

"But will prohibition be enforced there?" asks a doubter at our elbow. Certainly it will, if it can be enforced anywhere. The people will elect officers for the very purpose of enforcing it, and these officers know that the people are back of them; they know they are dependent upon the temperance people for their offices, and unless they enforce the laws they were chosen to enforce, off goes their official heads. They have the support and backing of a majority of the people on whom they are dependent; that will be the secret of their motives and actions.

Here in the north the leaders are not content to commence at the bottom of the temperance ladder and work up. On the contrary, they seem determined to commence at the top and work the other way. They get a great state to adopt prohibition, and leave its enforcement to officers who are dependent upon the votes of anti-temperance men for their positions, expecting them to enforce laws that are filled with creep-out holes even as in a sieve. A man who enforces the law in this country wants to feel that he has the people or a majority of them, upholding him, or he will not undertake it.

A Michigan temperance folks will find a temperance man upon a ticket, and by making a special effort, perhaps elect him, and after doing so turn around and kick him because he doesn't accomplish a revolution in the way laws are enforced or in the sentiment of a community never realizing the fact that he is powerless as they.

Here they form clubs and societies and then attempt to dictate to the old parties what they shall or shall not do; here they attempt to form a new party entirely, with the one for action alone, and prohibition alone to build upon; here they also boast that they will place a whole-sale liquor dealer in the governor's chair of Michigan; here they are impracticable, unreasonable, and bound to rule or ruin, and they have been successful thus far in ruining.

Ex-Gov. St. John, the prohibition apostle, says that the south is far in advance of the north in temperance, and yet scarcely a prohibition vote is ever cast in southern states. But on this subject they are practical and sensible. They allow each community to decide for itself whether it will have temperance or whisky.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease, caused by secretions taint in the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla, being a constitutional remedy, purifies the blood, builds up the whole system, and permanently cures. The thousands of people who suffered severely with this disagreeable disease, testify with pleasure that catarrh can be cured by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Alfred Cunningham, Fallon Avenue, Providence, R. I., says: "I have suffered with catarrh in my head for years, and paid out hundreds of dollars for medicines, but have heretofore received only temporary relief. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now my catarrh is nearly cured, the weakness of my body is all gone, my appetite is good—in fact, I feel like another person. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine I have ever taken, and the only one which did me permanent good. I cordially recommend it." A gentleman in Worcester, Mass., who was cured of catarrh by Hood's Sarsaparilla, says: "I would not take any moneyed consideration for the good one bottle did me." If you are a sufferer, do not put off taking a simple remedy till your bronchial tubes or lungs are affected, and consumption has gained a hold upon you. Be wise in time! That first noise, ringing noise in the ears, pain in the head, inflammation of the throat, cough, and nervous prostration will be cured if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

VICE-PRESIDENT HENDRICKS.

Wednesday evening last, Nov. 25th, a dispatch was received in Ann Arbor announcing the sudden death of Hon. Thos. A. Hendricks, Vice-President of the United States, at his house, in Indianapolis, of paralysis of the brain, and the news flew with electric speed among the people, causing expressions of regret and sorrow from every class.

Although Mr. Hendricks had been a bitter partisan during his life time, yet as vice-president of the United States he was held in esteem and honor by every citizen, and his death deplored. As a statesman he was one of the foremost in his party, and as a private citizen he leaves a record unstained, a name unsullied in any way, a fact of which should rejoice not only his immediate relatives but the entire nation as well, for it is the proudest thing that can be written of a man: he was pure, upright, honest.

Thomas Andrews Hendricks was born in Zanesville, Muskingum County, Ohio, September 7, 1819. His father settled in Shelby County, Indiana. Young Hendricks graduated at Shelby University College in 1841, studied law at Chambersburg, Pa., was admitted to the bar in 1843 and returned to Indiana. In 1846 he was elected a member of the state legislature; in 1850, a delegate to the state constitutional convention; in 1851 to 1855 he represented the Indianapolis district in congress; from 1855 to 1859 was commissioner of general land office; and from 1859 to 1879 was democratic leader in the United States Senate. He was elected to the national convention in New York, in 1876, he had one vote for his nomination to the presidency. He was candidate for the governorship of Indiana in 1880 and 1882, and was defeated, but was elected governor in 1872 for the term ending Jan. 1, 1877. In 1879 he was nominated candidate for vice-president with Samuel J. Tilden for president. In 1877, resulted in the retirement of both to private life. July 18, 1881, Mr. Hendricks became a state public notary at the democratic national convention in Chicago, nominating Joseph E. McDonald for the presidency. Next day he himself was nominated vice-president by the delegates. He left Cleveland, began again his public career, which has suddenly ended.

The funeral took place in Indianapolis, Tuesday, December 1, his body being placed in a casket and sent to his home in Crown Hill Cemetery, north of the city.

How often do we hear of the sudden fatal termination of a case of croup, when the young life might have been saved by the prompt use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral! Be wise in time, and keep a bottle of it on hand, ready for instant use.

Ice Cream Candles, Taffies, Caramels Italian Creams, at 28 E. Huron street. Try them.

All druggists must register under the new law by Dec. 15th.

Purge out the lurking distemper that undermines health, and the constitutional vigor will return. Those who suffer from an enfeebled and disordered state of the system should take Ayer's Sarsaparilla to cleanse the blood, and restore vitality.

Have used Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure in my family as a general cough medicine. One of my children was quickly relieved of a severe attack of croup by it. I cheerfully recommend it. H. L. Covell, Grand Rapids, Mich.

A WORD OF INTEREST TO EVERY BODY.

The COURIER office has received within the past few days a large invoice of new type and printing material for its job department. Upwards of $500 worth of new job type alone has been added, making it one of the finest equipped offices in the State.

We are prepared to print in a neat and tasty manner anything in the line of commercial work. Our merchants will here find a large line of letter and note heads, bill heads, envelopes, business cards, individual cards, circulars and stationery of every description for their use, and at prices that will compete with any to be obtained in either Detroit or Chicago. Everything neat and tasty, and warranted to give satisfaction.

We make a specialty of fine work, and have a beautiful line of wedding stationery. Party and dance invitations, programs for suppers and entertainments gotten up in the neatest style of the printer's art.

In coarser work, such as dodgers, posters, house programs, auction bills, etc., etc., the COURIER office can please if any one can. Having presses especially adapted for this class of printing, and excellent facilities for rapid turning out of work, we can give better prices than others not so provided.

Our book and pamphlet department was never in better condition than at present. With new type, and every convenience for publishing books and pamphlets, we are prepared to make estimates on any sort of a job, from a two-page circular to a three-text-book.

OUR BOOK BINDERY.

WE ARE NOW DAILY RECEIVING NEW AND ELEGANT GOODS FOR THE FALL TRADE, And shall continue to do so until after THE HOLIDAYS!

We did not purchase very largely during the Summer months, so as to be able to show our customers a nice fresh stock for this Season's trade. If you want to see an Elegant Line of Clocks, Watches, Jewelry, Silver-ware, Opera Glasses, Etc., take a look at our stock. As for prices, it would astonish you to see how cheap we are selling—from 25 to 30 per cent. less than last year. No need to tell you we are HEAD-QUARTERS FOR SPECTACLES, as you all know that and would come to see us anyway. Repairing of Watches, Clocks and Jewelry Neatly and Promptly Done.
