COMMODORE THEODORE DELAVAN WILSON, U. S. N.

The chief naval constructor and architect of the new navy, Commodore T. D. Wilson, is the subject of our to-day's sketch. He was born at Brooklyn, N. Y. May 11th, 1840. He served an apprenticeship as a shipwright at the Brooklyn Navy Yard and at the beginning of the civil war was a non-commissioned officer of the Thirteenth New York Militia regiment for three months. After returning, he was appointed a carpenter in the navy, on August 3d., 1861. He served on the steamer 'Cambridge', of the North Atlantic blockading squadron in 1861-64, and with Rear Admiral Gregory as inspector of vessels in the private establishments near New York City. After passing the required examination he was commissioned as an assistant naval constructor. He served at the Pensacola Navy Yard in 1866-67, and at Philadelphia during the following two years. In 1869-73 he was instructor in naval architecture and in ship-building at the United States Academy. On July 1st, 1873 he was commissioned as naval constructor and served at the Portsmouth Navy Yard until 1882. He was the first American to be elected to the membership of the Institute of Naval Architects of England. Then he was called to the positions of Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repairs, March 3d, 1882, and four years later was re-appointed for a second term of four years. In 1870 he received a patent for "air ports," which have been adopted in the naval service of merchant-ships; and in 1880 he patented a bolt extractor, which is in general use. While Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repairs, he has designed several of the modern ships that have been recently built and are now being constructed. He designed the Chicago, Boston and Atlanta, to meet the requirements of the Advisory Board, and the cruisers Newark, San Fransisco, Concord, Yorktown, Bennington, Petral and Maine. Mr. Wilson is the author of "Ship-building, Thoretical and Practical," which is used as a text book at the Naval Academy and by the profession generally.

The Patron of Industry agent has finally struck Sharon. There is no question but he has finally struck a bonanza. His fee of ten dollars is a dead sure thing if he only appoints a meeting in any country district for the purpose of organizing a lodge. He will always find ten members over 16 years of age at one dollar apiece to take the bait; that is he will make enough of the farmers believe that they are the most oppressed people on earth and that they can get rich by trading at the P. of I. store, even if it is in a distant city. He is a first rate good hand to stir up discontent, but touches lightly on the bright features of farm life. That wouldn't work you know. He doesn't tell the farmers that they have more leisure hours during the year than people of other occupation. He doesn't say there is as many failures in other business as in farming, nor does he tell them that competition has brought the prices of all purchasable articles down to an equitable level with farm productions. I have heard, Mr. Editor, that all things pertain to some good and I hope the experience learned in the P. of I. lodge by the many thousand members thereof will tend to a better and more hopeful and contented feeling among farmers than now prevails.—Sharon cor. Ypsilantian.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is a sure cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor Enquirer, McArthur, Ohio.

Scratched 28 Years.
Body covered with scales. Itching terrible. Suffering endless. No relief. Doctors and medicines fail. Speedily cured by Cuticura at a cost of $5.
Cured by Cuticura.
If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ....and....Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I went to two or three doctors, and no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them were three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

THE ADVANTAGES OF MACADAM.

Interesting Points Advanced by Samuel R. Downing.

At a recent meeting of the Pennsylvania State grange at Harrisburg, Worthy Past Lecturer S. R. Downing delivered an address of interest to all who care for the improvement and preservation of highways. In the course of his remarks Mr. Downing said:

A not very ready musician knows how tiresome it may be to compass a new tune and how easy to lapse into the old airs. And so with new ideas, policies or economies. The old idea is cherished, fondled and embraced until there is jealousy of the new.

SAMUEL R. DOWNING.

Thus, when an essayist points out that a macadam road is not a pike, that a macadam can be built for less than pikes have cost, that a macadam costs less for repair, and that it is the most economic road, some very good people will not so much as wrestle with the new saying, but, clinging to the old ideal, will argue that inasmuch as pikes are rough, macadams must be rough; inasmuch as pikes are built below frost, macadams must be so built; that inasmuch as the hand hammered pike has cost as much as $5,000 per mile, and, because of its coarse construction, $100 per mile annually for repair, that consequently a machine crusher, roller made macadam structure must cost the same ($5,000 per mile) for the making and the same ($100 per mile) for annual repair.

It is becoming usual to call pikes macadamized roads. A macadam road is not a pike, in that the macadam is infinitely better and less expensive than roads heretofore called pikes.

The imperfections of a pike are:

First—In that it is composed of loose stone in its making and repairing. Thus the pressure a pike receives from passing wheels deepens into ruts. A rut once made, although filled and refilled, will reappear.

Second—Pikes have been constructed of hammered stone. Hammered stone is too coarse for the best superstructure of roads. The originator of the macadam principle stated before a committee of the house of commons that a stone road was a saving of repair in ratio with the fineness of the stone used. Thus a bed of one inch stone would cost in repair of such bed but one-half of that of a bed of two inch stone.

Again, a pike composed of hand-broken stone may have cost $5,000 per mile for building, and $100 per mile annually for repair—$5,000 per mile for building, because the stone was hand-broken, at $1 per perch, and $100 annually for repair, because the superstructure was coarse and loose. Thus ruts are started and are expensive to erase. The experience of macadam builders teaches that a rut will follow a rut, that is if a stone bed is laid upon a rutted clay base ruts will appear in the stone bed directly over those of the clay foundation. Thus one rut in a pike is the predecessor of an endless series of ruts and an endless bill of costs.

On the other hand, a macadam structure avoids these imperfections of a pike in that (first) its superstructure is composed of small stone and stone siftings or chips, and (second) while wheels press the unknitted, loose surface of a pike, and reach solidity within one track at two inches below the general surface, thus forming ruts, the roller used in macadam structure does exactly what wheels do, but further, it presses the entire surface of the bed, so far as wheels can penetrate, in ruts, and thus makes the entire bed as solid as the base of a rut. Thus, again, a macadam is so uniformly resistant of wheel pressure that ruts cannot be produced in some macadam within a period probably of ten years.

A crusher turning out 80 perches of stone per day will earn in a day, at 15 cents per perch, $12, which will easily pay for the cost of running a crusher per day. The difference between $1 per perch for hand broken stone and 15 cents for crushed stone is 85 cents. In the realization of this gain of 85 cents by the use of a crusher we can reasonably conclude that a macadam ought to be built for less than half the cost of hammered pikes.

Then again, as to the economy of a macadam over that of a pike. A macadam being virtually rut and water proof, and continuing so for ten years, what will it cost to repair a macadam per mile annually during ten years? I think you will reply, really nothing.

But will a macadam resist wheel pressure for, say, ten years? In answer we are furnished proof in an eight-year-old macadam leading from the Pennsylvania railroad freight and passenger station at Devon, Chester county. Mr. Charles Paiste, superintendent for the Devon Land company, tells me that this macadam has endured all the traffic from the railroad, being equal at times to two tons at a draft, and yet this macadam has not cost a cent for repair for eight years, and, as I saw for myself, has not as yet a rut. The question then arises, This macadam being as good as it was eight years ago, will it not endure eight years more without a cent for repair?

Prizes for Writers on Roads.

There are fewer subjects of greater importance before the people today than to make easier communication with markets. To aid in the discussion of this matter papers by competent writers are being called for and written. For instance, the University of Pennsylvania has offered prizes of $400, $200 and $100 for the best papers on the engineering, economic and legislative features of the construction, reconstruction and maintenance of roads. Other prizes have been offered by The Engineering and Building Record, of New York, of $150 for essays on the methods of construction and maintenance of good roads.—Exchange.

If the city of Ypsilanti has such need of revenue that it is thought advisable to license such disreputable exhibitions as that opened on Huron street yesterday, we hope the hat may be passed and two dollars raised for her. That is the amount that went into the treasury, and vile-minded young men, and those more disgusting objects, vile-minded old men, were regaled with an "anatomical" display that had to advertise itself as unfit to be seen by women and youth. We protest against the licensing of any such exhibition here.—Ypsilantian.

Dr. R. R. Boyle, Third and Oxford sts., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "For two years I have prescribed Ayer's Sarsaparilla in numerous instances, and I find it highly efficacious in the treatment of all disorders of the blood."

L. M. Robinson, Pharmacist, Sabina, O., certifies: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has always been a great seller. My customers think there is no blood-purifier equal to it."

"For many years I was afflicted with scrofulous running sores, which, at last became so bad the doctors advised amputating one of my legs to save my life. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla and soon saw an improvement. After using about two dozen bottles the sores were healed. I continue to take a few bottles of this medicine each year, for my blood, and am no longer troubled with sores. I have tried other reputed blood-purifiers, but none does so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—D. A. Robinson, Neal, Kansas.

IS IT, THOUGH?

The party of progress and true patriotism is the democratic party.—Detroit Free Press.

History not only tells us, but many of our citizens—and not very old citizens either—can remember very clearly some of the schemes of patriotism(?) and progress(?) championed by this great party.

Commencing with the fugitive slave law for instance, allowing southern slave owners and slave drivers to hunt colored people through the northern states with blood hounds! That was one of the foundation rocks of that great "progressive party!" Is it not a pleasing one to turn to, my democratic friend? Yet that law was but one step of the many black and disgraceful ones taken by that party to perpetuate slavery.

Coming down to 1860 what political name did the men wear who attempted to prevent Abraham Lincoln from passthrough Baltimore and taking his seat as president of the United States? They were called "plug uglies," but every man of them voted the democratic ticket.

What party did the men belong to who passed the acts of secession in the various southern legislatures in 1861? Was there a republican among them?

Did any republians help man the guns that first fired on Maj. Anderson's men in Fort Sumpter?

Was there one republican among the gray clad soldiers standing guard over the poor, half starved boys in blue at Andersonville, Libby, Saulsbury, or any of the southern prisons where our boys were penned up like swine?

To what party did the members of the Ku-Kluk-Klan belong? To what party to-day do the "Rankin Rangers," "Leflore Tigers," "Warren Warriors," "Raymond Rifles." "Terry Terribles,"etc., etc., the organizations that are "always there" when an election is to be held in Mississippi, belong? Are there any republicans among them?

Will the Free Press please show us one progressive measure advocated by the democratic party?

Will it show us one patriotic measure advocated by the democratic party?

There is a splendid opportunity for it to show its ingenuity.

The Detroit Tribune of this morning states that Eugene E. Beal has been confirmed as postmaster at Ann Arbor.

Wonder how some of the democratic subscribers of the Ypsilanti Commercial like the "Reminiscences" written up by Ex-Editor Pattison? They must be gall and wormwood to the truly unterrified.

The democratic party has fought every measure of progress and patriotism championed by the republican party for the past quarter of a century. It now fights the doctrine of protection to home industries, which is on a par with its record on everything.

On Monday while in Kalamazoo the editor of the COURIER visited the Ladies' Library Association, one of the strongest and best conducted organizations of its kind in the country. They own a handsome building, well stocked with books, and have made a good start on an art collection by the purchase of paintings. One of its features is a club meeting on Mondays where the ladies gather to hear essays, recitations, or papers on literary, historical and social subjects. They are largely attended by the ladies of Kalamazoo and vicinity who find themselves greatly benefited by the exercises.

THE INDUSTRIAL AND ECONOMIC SITUATION REVIEWED.

PLAIN TALK FOR FARMERS.

A Reioinder by Judge Ramsdell to Judge Chipman's Recent Letter to the Grangers of Michigan—The Insincerity and Inconstancy of the Democracy Exposed—Why Every Farmer Should be a Protectionist—The Markets of the World Fallacy—Our Disastrous Experiences With Free Trade and Revenue Tariffs.

Hon. J. Logan Chipman, Member of Congress for the First District of Michigan:

MY DEAR SIR.—Your letter to the grangers of Michigan, addressed to Secretary Cobb and published in the Detroit Free Press of March 5, has just been handed me, and as chairman of the executive committee of the state grange, which committee has in charge the business interests of the grange when the grange itself is not in session, I consider it my duty to review your letter in a manner as public as you have made your charges against us.

We are glad to know that you, a democrat, approve our financial policy and our policy regarding the public lands; and that you, a democrat, are not in favor of free trade. So far we applaud your course, and sincerely hope that no party caucus will drive you from that position. And we hope that whenever a bill is brought before congress for action, embodying substantially the reforms we ask, you will be found in your place in the house of representatives, and will be its staunch supporter; and that, when the Farwell bill or any other bill inimical to the relief we ask, comes before the huose, you will not only be found in your seat, but that you will register your vote against it, and not play "peek-a-boo" behind the quorum curtain.

You tell us that we have been laggards in our financial views, but that we are substantially right now (thanks); and so far as we go, are in accord with "ancient democratic doctrine." If it is "democratic doctrine" it must be ancient—so ancient that political history has failed to record it. Modern democratic doctrine it cannot be. Mr. Cleveland, who was not only the official head of the democratic party for four years, but who is still regarded as the oracle of the party, in his first annual message, planted himself and his party squarely on the "gold bug" platform, and occupied two and one-half columns in the Congressional Record in arguing against the coinage of silver. In his second annual message he says: "I have seen no reason to change the views expressed in my last annual message on the subject of this compulsory silver coinage, and I again urge its suspension on all the grounds contained in my former recommendation."

Secretary Manning in his annual report for 1886, opposed the free coinage of silver, and also opposed the purchase of silver bullion and its coinage under the Bland law. He says: "The treasury silver purchase is defended by nobody and approved by nobody;" and "to stop the purchase of silver is our only choice, our duty and our interest." Ten pages of his annual report are devoted to an argument against silver coinage and silver purchase by the government. These views were fully endorsed by the president and by the entire democratic party when they renominated him for a second term.

The grange has seen no official utterances, either from Mr. Cleveland or from the democratic party, on this subject, differing from those expressed in his messages and Secretary Manning's report. Many of our order abandoned their party affiliations and supported Mr. Cleveland and the democratic party in 1884, sincerely believing that he and his party were in full accord with them in their financial views. When they found that the president and his cabinet followed the line that Hayes and Arthur had blazed upon these financial questions, they were sorely disappointed; and when they learned from Mr, Cleveland's message in 1887, and the St. Louis platform in 1888, that the "ancient democratic doctrine" of protection to American industry, as it was expounded by Jefferson, Madison, Van Buren, Jackson and Silas Wright, had also been abandoned by the democratic party, they lost all confidence in modern democracy, and said as Achilles said to Agamemnon:

> Once deceived, the fault was thine,
> But twice betrayed the blame is mine,

and, like Achilles, withdrew their support.

It is useless to hold up to the grangers of Michigan the ancient history of either the democratic or republican party. We have buried the "dead past;" it is the "living present" that confronts us. It is not what those parties or either of them, have been or done in the past that concerns us at present; but what they propose to do now. So we are gratified to see by the public press that the finance committee of the present republican senate has reported a bill to that body which so far complies with our requests as to provide for the unlimited purchase of the products of our gold mines and the purchase of $4,500,000 per month of the product of our silver mines, and the issuance thereon of treasury coin certificates at their bullion value. The $54,000,000 of silver bullion value thus provided for, and the $8,000,000, coin value, used in the arts, will take the entire present output of our mines. So far, then, we are pleased with the present attitude of the republican party, and now, since you inform us in your letter that you agree with us in our views on finance, and that those views are in accord with "ancient democratic doctrine," we shall not only expect to see you marching shoulder to shoulder with the republicans in this forward movement, but taking a step in advance and insisting that certificates shall be issued to the full extent of the coin value of the bullion thus purchased, and that those certificates shall be made a full legal tender for all demands, public and private. And we hope that you will be able to bring the balance of your party back to those "ancient democratic doctrines." If you will do so you will not only deserve, but you will receive, the plaudits of the grange. You tell us you are not a free trader and that the democratic party does not teach free trade. With this we are highly gratified, and hope you are not mistaken. But when we read the democratic press of Michigan from the highest to the lowest—that is, from the Detroit Free Press to the Traverse Bay Eagle—we find free trade and only free trade advocated as the doctrine of the democartic party. We have been taught to believe that the party press was a correct exponent of party doctrines, and if this be correct, you are certainly mistaken as to the teachings of the democratic party of Michigan. So far, you are touching elbows with the state grange of Michigan, and we can march in line still further.

That the present tariff laws need a thorough revision we all agree. We recognize the fact that no tariff or other revenue law can be framed by even the wisest statesmanship, that can forsee and adjust itself to all the economic changes which the rapid progress in invention and applied science to production creates; and that, no matter how wise its provisions or how equal its benefits or its burdens when adopted, changes in economic conditions may require a change in its provisions at every session of congress.

But here we must part company. You assume that it is the protective tariff that has caused the decline in farm values and the price of farm products, and that the farmers themselves are to blame. While we differ from you in this respect, and will give our reasons further on, even were it so, and the farmers were to blame, it was an error of judgment induced by promises of reform made to them by both the great political parties.

In 1874 the farmers, not satisfied with the tariff revision of the republican party, made in 1871-72, placed the democratic party in charge of the house of representatives, where bills of this nature must originate. They got no relief. Still in hope, in faith, and in charity, they kept that party in charge of the house of representatives for eight long years, and nothing was done. Losing faith in the ante election promises of the democrats, they reinstated the republicans in 1882. The republicans proceeded at once to revise the tariff laws; but in that revision they lowered the duty on wool, a product sold by a million farmers, and retained the high and burdensome duty on sugar, a product consumed by all. The farmers, not satisfied with this revision, turned again to the democratic party and reinstated them in the house in 1884, and reinforced them with the president of their choice. Another session passed, and no revision of the tariff laws. Still the patience of the farmers was not exhausted. They retained the democrats in charge another term, and then that monstrosity the Mills bill was brought forth. That bill, while levying high protective duties on southern products, aimed a deadly blow at northern industries. Rice, grown by less than 3,000 planters in the south, was protected by a duty of 100 per cent.; and sugar, a product of universal consumption, grown in this country and controlled by less than 300 planters, was protected by a duty of 68 per cent., while wool, grown by a million farmers at the north, was made duty free. The whole character of the bill was so intensely partisan and sectional that the farmers of the north, and especially of Michigan, were disgusted with the democratic policy and voted for a change. Can you blame them?

When you assume that the farmers of Michigan, and especially that portion of them that belong to the grange, are ignorant of the true causes that depress agriculture in this and other states, you make a great error; and when you tell us that the tariff, imperfect as it is, is the cause of the depression, you make an unpardonable blunder for one of your intelligence and position.

Practical political economy is taught in our halls and discussed in our gatherings, and we learn from this that the law of supply and demand governs prices; that a perfect economic condition of society would be where the supply of everything to be used or consumed would be just equal to the demand: that the price produce would then bring would be in proportion to the amount of money in the country compared with the amount of products to be exchanged—high if money was plenty and low if money was scarce. If the quantity of money was kept at a fixed ratio to the amount exchanged, then the price would be the same so long as the supply and demand were equal: but if, as was demonstrated by Gregory King and Thomos Took, the supply was increased above the demand one-tenth, the price would fall three-tenths; and if increased two-tenths above the demand, the price would fall eight-tenths. Applying this economic law to present conditions, we find—

1. That there has been too great a contraction of the currency as compared with the volume of business, and you agree with us. We ask to have the equilibrium restored, and you say our request should be granted.

2. In examining the economic history of the world for the past twenty years, we find that in all those farm products the price of which is fixed by the world's supply and the world's demand such as wheat, flour, corn, cotton, meat and wool—the export supply of the world has vastly increased, while the import demand has remained nearly stationary. In studying these conditions we find that the foreign demand for grain, meat and other farm products grown and raised in the northern states is confined to the united kingdom of Great Britain and the smaller states of western Europe. All other states are self-supplied in this respect, and most of them have a surplus for exportation. We find that the population of these importing countries is nearly stationary by reason of the emigration of their people to the newer exporting countries, thus still further increasing the surplus productions of those countries for export. The annual demand remaining about the same, and the annual supply constantly increasing, the price in foreign markets must necessarily fall and continue to fall, so long as peace prevails and the relative proportion of supply to demand increases.

3. While these importing countries were wholly supplied by eastern Europe, northern Africa and North America, the demand and supply were fairly balanced, in comparison with the demand and supply of other products of industry, and the profits of farm capital and farm labor were fairly proportioned to the profits of capital and labor in other industries. But when the Suez canal was opened to commerce in 1870, and the compound steam engine was applied to ocean navigation, and steel rails to railroad transportation, conditions were changed. Lines of ocean steamers, each carrying thousands of tons in a cargo, now connect by cheap and rapid freight transportation, every exporting country of the world with western Europe, and all are competing for its market. Railroads in India, Australia, the United States, and Canada, have within the past twenty years opened vast areas to agriculture, and a much greater area to grazing. In the United States and Canada over 200,000,000 bushels of wheat are now annually grown, and millions of cattle and sheep are raised where twenty years ago the Indian and buffalo reigned supreme. India, which before the opening of the Suez canal exported but little wheat, poured 44,000,000 bushels through that thoroughfare into western Europe in 1887—one-sixth of the entire imports of those countries. Wheat is transported for 11½ cents per bushel from Bombay to London. Three hundred million bushels of wheat, and a proportionate amount of other breadstuffs and provisions comprise the entire annual demand of these countries, for which the whole agricultural world is competing. You sneer at our home markets, which now take more than 90 per cent. of all our products, and ask us to ignore it and depend upon the insufficient demand of western Europe for our market.

4. When you sneer at the home market, I fear you forget your early reading in political economy, when Smith's "Wealth of Nations" was our text-book; and I would recall to your recollection the following, which you will find on pages 65 and 66, vol. 3, London edition of 1811:

"Whatever, besides, tends to diminish in any country the number of artificers and manufacturers, tends to diminish the home market—the most important of all markets for the rude produce of land—and thereby still further to discourage agriculture." We are anxious to preserve this "most important of all markets for the rude produce of land." But you would deprive us of this as worthless, and send us "rainbow chasing" to western Europe for a market for the produce of our farms, where 8 per cent. of the crops of the northern states, added to the export production of other countries, has been sufficient to glut the market and yield no profit to the American farmer. You would have the artificer and the manufacturer located in a foreign land, where we would have to compete with the cheap labor of the Hungarian and Russian peasantry—with the ryat of India, whom a yard of cotton will clothe for a year, a pound of rice will feed for a day, and one rupee will pay for the labor of a week; and you would have us compete with the cheap lands of South Africa, South America and Australia, in furnishing the table supples and the raw material for his craft. We would have the artificer and the manufacturer in our own country, where we could furinsh them, free from this world-wide competition of cheap labor and cheap lands, not only their bread and meat and the raw material for their craft, but with all their table supplies that our farms will produce, including fruit and vegetables, and all other non-exportable products which we cannot supply to a foreign market. You ask us to aid the democratic party in removing all protection from American manufacturers, and let foreign goods in free. We are afraid to do this, lest the inflow of foreign merchandise shall so flood our markets as to close our iron mines and our factories, and turn the millions of people now employed in them from being the consumers of our products into our rivals in their production. And then—when our mines are abandoned, our furnaces banked, our factories closed, and our streams, unvexed by a turning wheel, run idly to the sea, and the 5,000,000 employed in those productive industries, with their families, are driven to the soil for support, to become our competitors in production, or driven to the alms-houses as paupers, or to the road as tramps, for the farmer to support—we greatly fear that the importers, having broken down all home competition, will make our necessities determine the price of their goods.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name at home,"—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly.

The present city council will have to wrestle with a large number of street opening cases and with one or two street widening cases. All of which betokens a healthy growth of the city. Not a street has been opened by the council for the past half dozen years but it has well paid for the expense in improvements and new houses. It pays to be liberal in this direction. Any permanent improvement adds to the value of every piece of property in the municipality.

An exchange says: No one expects to buy a postage stamp on credit. If he has not the money to pay for one he cannot mail a letter. No one expects to buy a railway ticket on credit. If he has no money to pay his fare in advance he must remain at home. The like is true in regard to riding in street cars. Tickets to places of amusement are not sold on time, but for spot cash. No trouble occurs on account of these arrangements, and none would occur if every retail store conducted business like a postoffice, railroad or theatre.

We learn that the barn on the farm of George Sutton, of Northfield, was burned last evening, and report says that four horses and considerable of the contents were also burned. The flames were so bright here in the city that the fire department was called out, and took a run down in the fifth ward. Later we learn that besides the barn and horses there were 80 sheep, two cows, 300 bushels of oats, ten tons of hay, and a lot of farming implements, harness, etc., all burned up. One span of horses was valued at $400. Insured in the Washtenaw Mutual for $1,000. The fire was the work of an incendiary.

The Northampton (Mass.) Daily Herald, of April 15th contains a handsome picture of the First National Bank building of that place with a long description of the institution itself. Among the directors is the name of Lyman D. James, well known here, with the following paragraph: "There are eight directors beside the president. L. D. James, of Williamsburg, merchant, is one of the trustees of the Northampton lunatic hospital, a very busy man of affairs. Engrossed in the demands of his own business, he still takes the requisite time to meet the appointments which his public trusts require. He has a broad experience of property values and knowledge of credits."

Jacob Ganzhorn of this city writes for the April Crop Report sent out by the State department as follows: "In this locality nothing in the fruit line injured. Peach buds in prime condition. I mention this fruit in particular because the buds started a trifle early in the winter. Although the apple has not been injured a full crop cannot be expected as the trees bore a heavy crop last year and a full crop the year before; under such circumstances not over a moderate crop can be looked for this year. It is a critical time for fruits when in blossom. The weather then must be favorable for the setting of the fruit. By June this period will have been passed, and not till then can a proper estimate of the fruit crops be made."

Ever since the T., & A. A. R. R. was completed from Leland's Station through Hamburg and Howell, the branch of the road running to South Lyon has been merely a side track. But under the law the railroad company is obliged to run one train a day over it. To comply with that law an engine has been kept at this place that has taken a combination car and run to South Lyon and back in the morning. Of course the train was of little or no service to the public. Along the line of this road are many subscribers who gave liberally to have it built, that they might have the advantages of a railroad, and as a consequence they have been feeling pretty blue over the outcome. Recently a large petition, signed by almost every farmer and business man at South Lyon, Ann Arbor and the intervening territory asking that the road be put in good repair, and that better train service be given, was forwarded to the authorities of the road. Now comes President Ashley and files a petition in the circuit court asking that the railroad company be allowed to abandon this branch of their line, and take up their ties, tracks and buildings. The reason given is that the road is of no value, but a serious expense. What the outcome will be remains to be seen. The Grand Trunk ought to buy that branch and build a line through to Toledo, or somewhere.

"Why doesn't he take Hood's Sarsaparilla?" is the general inquiry of friends when a person suffers from any disease of the blood.

W. C. McDonald, of Montreal, proposes to donate $150,000 to the law department of the McGill University of that city, and give $50,000 for the endowment of a chair of experimental physics; besides erecting two buildings costing $150,000 each, making a half million gift in all.

The corporation of Harvard University has authorized the publication of two monographs which it is hoped may form the beginning of a series. The first number, ready this month, will be "A History of the United States," by Edward Campbell Mason, A. B., instructor in political economy.

The law lecture room was well filled on Saturday evening to listen to the musicale of the Adelphi literary society. The piece rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Lew H. Clement was excellently received. The solo by Miss Ball, was very fine indeed, as was also the Amphion quartette, and the D. B. T. quartette. Miss Minnie Davis in her usual happy way brought out the qualities of the new piano in an admirable manner. The flute duette by Fred. Mac Omber and Mr. Acterian was roundly encored, and the tin whistle brought down the house. The take off on the jubilee singers was a happy hit also.

Next week Friday, May 2d, the University Dramatic Club is to present to the public its yearly entertainment at the opera house. Two plays will be presented, one entitled "Six Months Ago;" and the "Merry Widow." The members have been giving considerable time to the preparation of these plays, and they will bring out nearly the entire force of the club thirteen members in all. Prof. de Pont, under whose tutelage the club has been for the year, says that the plays to be produced will be well worthy of the public's patronage. The following is the cast of characters:

THE GLEE CLUB TOUR.

From the Minneapolis Journal of April 15th, we take the following notice:

The University of Michigan and her thousands of Ann Arbor men scattered broadcast over the land have every reason to be proud of the young men who are filling the air in the various cities they visit on their vacation tour with music, cheers for the yellow and blue and the 'varsity "yell." The young men appeared on the stage of the Grand last night, and for two hours entertained a large audience with a peep into the musical side of college life. The organization includes a glee club of 15 voices and a banjo club with eight players. The students are travelling about in their own private car, giving concerts for the glory of U. of M., and incidently of themselves, gathering ducats for their proposed gymnasium and having a royal good time.

The first selections last night gave one the impression that it was a very studious, solemn set of youths that sang and thrummed so precisely and beautifully. Before this impression had an opportunity to become a settled one, however, the boys perpetrated some audacious and unexpected bit of fun which set everyone in a roar of laughter, and which tickled the "old boys" immensely. Perhaps the number of this sort that pleased most was the hat drill under J. E. Ball's leadership, and the traversty on it that was given as an encore. The voices are young, fresh and exquisitely blended, the more musical numbers being particularly fine. The woeful tale of Romeo and Juliet, the latter role by a basso of small stature and deep voice, was new to Minneapolis people and pleased wonderfully. Mr. Alexander's topical tale of the rather warm experiences of Dives in "sheolium," his failure to get "brandy and sodium" and his offer to be satisfied with "seltzer and lemonadium" was very laughable, while Mr. Ballard's obligato recital of the trials Socrates and Xantippe was equally well received.

The banjo club was accorded a scarcely less enthusiastic reception. Its music was very cleverly done and evoked repeated encores. The thrummers gave an unusual sort of music pleases as much by its melody. The guitar quartette was a feature of the program.

After the concert the clubs, the alumni, their sweethearts and wives, the members of the Michigan Association proceeded to the West hotel where a delightful informal reception lasting until midnight was held.

ANN ARBOR COLLEGE BOYS.

The following is from the Chicago Sunday Herald of April 20:

Of all the entertainments that have recently been given here by college boys, the one given at Central Music Hall last evening by the students from the University of Michigan was by far the most enjoyable. The songs were fresher, more tuneful, and better sung, and the banjo and guitar club was decidedly the best that has been heard here this season. The program was tastefully arranged and of such variety that each number was even more interesting than the one which preceded it. The most enjoyable numbers in which the full strength of the Glee Club was employed were "Yellow and Blue," and an ode to the university entitled "Ann Arbor." The soloists, Messrs. Hawley, Jameson, Joy, Ballard and Ball, were all excellent, Mr. Hawley, who has an uncommon sweet voice, making the hit of the evening with his character songs. Mr. Ball's "Hot Drill" was very amusing and admirably executed. In fact, the entertainment from beginning to end was so excellent that the boys from Ann Arbor can depend upon a warm welcome when they again come to Chicago. The audience was very large and enthusiastic, the entire assembly joining in three rousing cheers for Ann Arbor at the close of the performance.

Montana, Oregon and Washington.

A correct map of the northwest will show that the Northern Pacific Railroad traverses the central portion of Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana and Washington for a distance of nearly 2,000 miles; it is the only railroad reaching Jamestown, Bismarck, Miles City, Billings, Livingston, Bozeman, Missoula, Cheney, Davenport, Palouse City, Sprague, Ritzville, Yakima, Ellensburg, Tacoma, Seattle and in fact nine-tenths of the north west cities, towns, and points of interest.

The Northern Pacific is the shortest trans-continental route from St. Paul and Chicago to Helena, Butte, Anaconda, Deer Lodge, Spokane Falls, Walla Walla, Dayton and Portland, and the only one whose through trains reach any portion of the new state of Washington. Land seekers purchasing Pacific Coast second class tickets via St. Paul and the Northern Pacific have choice from that point of free Colonist Sleeping Cars or Pullman's Tourist Furnished Sleepers at charges as low as the lowest.

For the benefit of settlers the Northern Pacific also gives a ten day stop over privilege on second class North Pacific Coast tickets at Spokane Falls and each and every point west, including over 125 stations in Washington, thus enabling persons seeking a home to examine this vast territory without incurring an expense of from $5 to $25 in traveling on local tickets from point to point.

Insure for yourself comfort and safety by having the best accommodations afforded, thereby avoiding change of cars, re-checking of baggage, transfers and lay overs en route. Money can be saved by purchasing tickets via St. Paul or Minneapolis and the Northern Pacific.

For Maps, Pamphlets, Rates and Tickets enquire of your nearest Ticket Agent, any District Passenger Agent of the Northern Pacific Railroad, or CHAS. S. FEE, General Passenger and Ticket Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Nature in Convulsion

Is terrific. Volcanic eruptions, cyclones, earthquakes are awfully and tremendously picturesque, but scarcely desirable to emulate in action and effect by the administration of remedies which produce convulsion and agony in the abnormal portion of the human frame. Such is the effect of the old fashioned violent purgatives happily falling more and more into disuse, and of which Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the wholesome, pleasant and far more effective succedaneum. They weakened the intestines—the Bitters invigorates them. They left the bowels inactive, because incapacitated by ensuing feebleness. The Bitters, on the contrary, and because it enables, not forces, them to act—a vast and fortunate difference—perpetuates their activity and regularity. The liver is beneficially stimulated, as the kidneys also are, by this medicine, which easily conquers, also, malaria, nervousness and rheumatism.

The same firm which 31 years ago completely revolutionized the Threshing Machine trade by inventing a new Threshing Machine,—so much better than any machine before known, that all the builders of the old style Threshing Machines stopped making them and copied the new machine as closely as they dared—have now made another advance, and in their New Vibrator present a Threshing Machine containing entirely new features in separation and cleaning, which place it as far ahead of any other as the old Vibrator was ahead of the "Endless Apron" machines. Literary Notes.

Mary E. Wilkins, whose name is usually associated with fiction, will contribute a poem to Harper's Magazine for May.

"Chickens for Use and Beauty" is the title of a profusely illustrated article by H. S. Babcock, in the forthcoming May Century.

In the Editor's Easy Chair of Harper's Magazine for May George William Curtis will insist upon the humorous side of the late World's Fair campaign.

In the May Century Joseph Jefferson will tell about his trip to Australia in the year 1861. He describes, among other things, a "Skeleton Dance" of the natives, a curious "Australian Tragedy," and a "Terrible Audience," of ticket-of-leave-men, which he encountered when he played "The Ticket-of-Leave-Man" for the first time in Hobart Town.

Charles Dudley Warner's essay, in the "Editor's Drawer" of Harper's Magazine for May, will be devoted to a discussion of man's position in the new social order.

The April number [No. 46] of the Riverside Literature Series, (published quarterly during each school year, at 15 cents a single number, by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston) contains old Testament Stories in Scripture Language, from the Dispersion at Babel to the Conquest of Canaan. These stories have been selected (without alteration except by the omission of irrelevant matter) from the King James version of the Old Testament. Their grandeur, their simplicity, their purity of diction and transcendent interest and the hold which they have on the classic literature of the world, especially adapt them for reading in schools. And the fact that the stories are here told connectedly, while in the Bible they are scattered through many chapters, renders the form in which they are now offered particularly acceptable.

The greatest literary sensation of the winter in Paris was Camille Flammarion's astronomical romance, "Uranie," of which the Cassell Publishing Company are the American publishers. Up to the present time M. Flammarion has been known as the foremost astronomer in France, but now he has become at a bound one of her most popular romancers. There is no escaping from the fascinations of this book. It is such a story as one might imagine that Jules Verne and Richard A. Proctor could have written had one put his imagination and the other his science into the same pot and got R. L. Stevenson to stir them up. There is just enough science to hold the attention of the student and enough plot and love story to interest the general reader. Mrs. Mary J. Serrano, translator of "Marie Bashkirtseff: The Journal of a Young Artist," has put M. Flammarion's delightful French into charming English. A portrait of M. Flammarion accompanied "Uranie" and shows him to be a most picturesque-looking man with the hair of a poet and the eyes of a philosopher.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefitted from first dose. She continued its use and after taking ten bottles, found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at Eberbach & Son's Drug Store, large bottles 50c and $1.00.

Boston society is seriously contemplating copies of the "Angelus" to Congo to aid in missionary efforts. The native negro will be more apt to see by the picture that conversation leads to digging potatoes than to receive any sanctifying influence.—Fort Worth Gazette.

All cases of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, will find relief by wearing one of Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents. Try them.
