Union services will be held at the M. E. church to-morrow, Thanksgiving day at 11 o'clock a. m. Sermon by Rev. A. S. Carman, of the Baptist church.

The fire alarm which sounded Monday evening was caused by the burning out of a chimney at the residence of Mr. Markle, at 74 South Division.

On account of the reluctance of several witnesses in the Denison inquest to tell all they knew there is considerable talk of calling a grand jury to investigate the case.

C. E. Weaver and Mr. Richards, of the Lake Shore Road, were in town Saturday making arrangements with the A. A. & Y. S. railway company for their crossing.

The Women's Relief Corps held a preliminary meeting last evening at which 16 ladies signed the roll as charter members. They will elect officers at the next meeting.

D. F. Allmendinger recently put down a drive well on his premises on W. Washington street, and it is considerable of a well, for a vein of water was struck that flows 100 barrels in 24 hours.

A stormy conference was held Monday afternoon between the street and ordinance committees of the common council on one side, and those citizens who wish an entry for the Ypsilanti road into our city on the other. No conclusion was reached.

Sheriff Dwyer last night arrested John Bryant at Jackson and brought him to this city. Bryant committed a criminal assault upon the house keeper of George Renwick of Salem nearly a year ago and it was not known until yesterday anything as to his whereabouts.

Mrs. P. W. Moore met with a bad accident on N. University ave Saturday afternoon. The horse which she was driving became frightened at a passing street car and started to run away but was stopped by colliding with a tree. Mrs. Moore was thrown out, her arm being broken by the fall.

Dr. Charles Gatehell successfully repeated all of the wonderful parlor tricks of Johnstone, the mind reader, at the Psi U house Monday evening. Dr. Gatehell claims that he can also repeat the celebrated "driving through the streets while blindfolded" performance of Johnstone.

John Adam Bohnet has filed an injunction against the Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti street railway company claiming that much damage would be done him if it were permitted to be constructed. He asks $4,000 to compensate him and as this is rather higher than the company will pay a legal fight will be on that subject somewhat delay the completion of the road.

UNIVERSITY.

The Beta Thetas held a banquet at Hangsterfer's last night.

The freshmen failed to elect any officers last Saturday afternoon.

The Pennsylvania Club held a reception at Granger's to-morrow night.

At Williams College the library is open from 2 until 5 o'clock p. m. Saturdays.

The Iowa students have organized with H. W. Wefel, president, and Miss Ankeron, secretary.

The next concert in the Choral Union Series will be given at University hall on the evening of Dec. 10.

Friday evening last a fine party was given by about 50 ladies of the University and city at Nichol's hall.

The young ladies of the University are invited to call upon the faculty ladies during the Thanksgiving recess.

The Cornell folks say that Duffy's long kick in the recent game at Detroit was never surpassed on the football field.

The Pennsylvania Club will give a Thanksgiving banquet to-morrow evening, to which all Pa. students are invited.

The next entertainment before the Students Lecture Association will be by the Hill Park Concert Company, on the evening of Dec. 13.

There is a lull in everything now for a few days. College closing last evening for a week's rest during Thanksgiving.

Many of the students have gone to their homes.

There were many instances last Saturday evening where duplicate checks were given for seats in the University hall.

Such things make it very unpleasant for both parties.

A friend at our elbow suggests that the students in the law department be invited into chapel, and so brought more under the influence of Dr. Angell and his excellent teachings.

The Woman's League—the Co-ed organization of the University—held its first reception at the chapel last Saturday afternoon. About 250 were present including the wives of many of the faculty.

The sale of tickets for the Boston Symphony Orchestra was $2,000 greater than last year at Washington, D. C., and $3,000 greater in Philadelphia. The organization is deemed about perfect now.

A club has been formed by the professors and instructors in the University, and rooms secured for their use in Miss Syger's new block on State street. The object will be social intercourse and improvement.

There is hardly a college in the country but has its gymnasium, the great U. of M. alone being too poor to pay any attention to the health and development of the physical body of its students. But the determined effort of the students will yet bring it about.

The senior laws held a spirited election last Saturday, Norman D. Phillips being chosen as president; A. M. Cross, 1st vice president; U. E. Lindsay, 2nd vice president; S. E. Low, valedictorian; H. D. Jewell, historian; and R. Sutherland, marshal. The offices of poet and orator are to be filled by competition.

The Student's Christian Association building, known as Newberry Hall, needs $3,000 or $4,000 yet to complete it. It is to be regretted that this elegant structure remains incomplete and of no service to any one. There ought to be in this country some noble Christian gentlemen or lady rich enough and liberal enough to complete this much needed building.

Mr. Cheever, treasurer of the Students' Lecture Association, tells us that ladies holding season tickets for the course, are shown the courtesy of being allowed to reserve their seats whenever they come, regardless of the number in line, and such courtesy will be extended to them with pleasure so long as they reserve seats upon their own tickets only. This will be welcome news to many ladies who have not so far succeeded in securing desirable seats.

The following sensible article is from the Chronicle-Argonaut: "While not wishing to cast the blame upon the student body for recent occurrences, still the exhibition of mobish and unruly tendencies on the part of the students is to be severely condemned. If we were in a narrow conservative institution, and closely hemmed in on all sides by rules and regulations, the case would be different. But as students of the great University of Michigan, the broadest and most liberal institution in the land, there is absolutely no excuse whatever, for such disturbances. Every student is given the greatest possible latitude and freedom and, in return, should consider himself bound in honor, to act like a gentleman."

The complete series of concerts to be given by the Choral Union represents an expenditure of $4,000, (including two concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.) This expense being so great necessitates the selling of more tickets than have as yet been sold, and more than have ever before been sold for the season. The series of five concerts promised by the management have already been secured, but it is desired that while the Boston Symphony Orchestra is here that it shall give two entertainments. Not only the students but the citizens of Ann Arbor ought to come to the support of the Choral Union in their great undertaking, and help them out. Every body should buy all the tickets they can possibly afford to.

The lecture of Frederick V. Ivers at University hall last Saturday evening was greatly disappointing to the immense audience assembled to hear the noted war correspondent of the London Graphic. The lecturer had a poor voice, an accent peculiarly English, you know, and was unable to make himself understood to at least three-fourths of the people present. He either did not appreciate the size of his audience or did not care. He stood a greater portion of the time with his hands in his breeches pockets, or tucked behind him in a way that made the tails of his swallow-tail coat appear as if a huge bustle were underneath them, and in delivering his lecture almost continually turned to the right and addressed the people in the south end of the hall, so that the people in the north end could never catch more than here and there a sentence. As might be expected this made them very restless, for unless there is something to monopolize one's attention and thoughts, the seats in the hall do become very hard, and quite a number had the rudeness to get up and leave before the lecture was through with. It is but justice to say, however, that those who were fortunate enough to hear what was said were very much interested. It is not possible, however, for all to be so fortunate. The lecture platform, and as this is the first failure to thoroughly please in upwards of two years, our lec-

An Offer to Mr. Paul Alexander Johnston. Having exposed in Chicago the methods by which Mr. Johnston performs the tricks which he pretends to accomplish by means of "mind-reading," and since he has given no satisfactory reason for declining to accept my offer made to him in Chicago, and yet continues to use my name in connection with his performances, I will make him the following additional offer: I will donate $500 to the Gymnasium Fund of the University of Michigan, or I will forfeit the same to Mr. Johnston himself, as he may choose, if he will read a single word in the mind of another person under simple test conditions, he to use as his subject any prominent citizen of Ann Arbor.

Ann Arbor & Ypsilanti Street Railway May Have to Resort to the same.

From the Detroit Free Press. It is probable that before the robins nest again in the existing street railways in Detroit will have active opposition in the shape of several lines of carriages traversing the principal thoroughfares. The enterprise will be managed by Mr. J. Hunter, manager of the Six-Deen Carriage Company.

"I have ordered twenty carriages from the manufacturers in Chicago," said Mr. Hunter to a representative of the Free Press last evening, "and they will be put in operation as soon as they arrive, which I hope will be in a few days, though the factories are behind in filling orders, and this may occasion some delay." backed by a stock company with ample capital and a determination to make the business a success.

"Our first cars will be put on Cass avenue and we will aim to keep our streets paved with asphalt as much as possible. Cars will run from the north end of Cass avenue to the City Hall and all the depots, and the fare will be the same as that charged by the street railway companies. Passengers will be taken board at the depots and transferred at the City Hall to other carriages for any part of the city. We will build stables and give employment to many hostlers, drivers and conductors. As soon as a site can be secured a plant will be established for the construction of our own carriages. It is our intention to have the line fully equipped at the start, so that the service cannot fail to be satisfactory. Jefferson avenue will be the second thoroughfare provided with a carriage service. We will be able to make much better time than street cars, and will stop for passengers whenever required.

Vehicles similar to the ones which Mr. Hunter has ordered are now in successful operation in New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities."
