A Divorce Denied and a Forcible Opinion Thereon Filed.

The statute in such case made and provided has so tied the hands of our circuit judges that it is seldom in their power to deny a divorce. There are few cases where the application is contested, and in all such instances the court is powerless, but is obliged to obey the law and grant the decree asked for.

In view of that fact the following opinion of Judge Kinne, denying a divorce in the case of Krause vs. Krause, on trial in this circuit last week, is of more than ordinary interest, and the language of the document such that it will attract widespread attention.

Can it be possible that the legislature ever contemplated the existence of such a record as is here presented? That husband and wife may marry, quarrel, separate and remain at their mere caprice, and receive the assistance and approval of courts? Is it expected that courts are to expend their labors in such investigations?

I am not aware of any precedent to guide me in this case. I have no hesitation to create one, that shall be good within this court until reversed by the appellate tribunal. I shall assume that a couple possesses the power to maintain its self respect, to protect itself from ridicule and disgrace, and that it has the inherent right to preserve its own integrity.

It is the intention of this decree to instruct the complainant that the marital bond is something more than a mere brute conjugation of the parties, that it should be assumed with the utmost consideration and solemnity, and that when once established, under all ordinary circumstances it remains indissoluble.

She is further instructed that she has more than once sought the interposition of this court, and in the exercise of its equitable powers, she has been released from her marital obligations, that with a full knowledge of all the responsibilities of the future, she has again deliberately taken upon herself these same ties and responsibilities, that she has exhausted her remedies in this court and that she will not now be heard to complain of the burdens of a contract of marriage, which she assumed at her peril.

In their moral and legal aspect, these proceedings are contemptuous to the dignity of this court. The relief sought will be denied, and this court expresses its deep regret at its inability to commit these parties to a reformatory during their natural lives.

E. D. KINNE,
 Circuit Judge.

U. of M. Base Ball.

The base ball management has perfected a schedule of games, and the club will make its trip in the latter part of May and first of June. The games to be played abroad are as follows:

- Cornell at Detroit, May 9.
- Hamilton College, at Utica, N. Y., May 23.
- University of Vermont, at Burlington, May 25.
- Yale University, at New Haven, May 27.
- Columbia College at New York, May 30.
- Brown University, at Providence, R. I., May 31.

The games to be played in this city are not definitely settled yet, but so far as is known are to be as follows:

- Oberlin College, May 25.
  - Northwestern University, May 6.
- The most exciting contest will probably be with Cornell at Detroit. These two colleges appear to have a feeling of strife between them in an athletic way that gives zest to their contests.

THE COLLAPSED BRANCH.
An Interview with Charles S. Ashley in Reference to the coup de etat of Last Sunday.

Charles S. Ashley, former attorney of the T. A. A. & N. M. R. R., being in the city Tuesday, was interviewed by a COURIER reporter, and the following information was by him given in respect to the tearing up of the track of the South Lyon branch last Saturday and Sunday. In substance Mr. Ashley said:

"I see some people are claiming that the Ann Arbor road has taken up the rails from the South Lyons and Northern. Now as a matter of fact the management of the Ann Arbor road had very little knowledge of the matter, beyond that they might infer from the fact that an unusual number of cars were ordered from Leland last week. Not a single employe of the Ann Arbor road was present at the work, and those who came over its line paid their fare. Mr. J. C. Carland has not been employed in the service of the T. A. A. for more than a year.

"The South Lyons and Northern people had a project which failed to weather the financial storm of last year. It was to purchase the Pontiac, Oxford & Port Austin road, by leasing running rights over the T. A. A., to make a line from Saginaw Bay to Toledo. They offered $40,000, as I am informed for the P. O. & P. A., but were unable to get it. Thereafter the S. Lyons and Northern was N. G.

"I heard some people are kicking over an alleged bonus given for the construction of this piece of road. We know nothing about it. For several years we have been trying to find out who gave any bonus, but without success. If anything beyond a little right of way was given I fear it never got beyond the pockets of the patriotic committee who were active in the matter. I hope this will be investigated.

"Mr. Whitman is reported in this morning's Free Press to be meditating some proceeding against the Ann Arbor road, on a sort of conspiracy theory. I hope he will not be so abused. The sale of that line as duly made by authority of the laws of Michigan to a duly incorporated railroad company, whether it extended the road to the North Pole or Chicago, or tore it up was their own lookout.

"If the railroad company gives back its right of way to the farmers no one will have reason to complain, for there are too many roads in this part of the state and this was not needed. I don't know what will be done in this regard. Perhaps a receiver will be appointed to dispose of the lands.

The law against the abandonment of railroads is not thought to apply to this case, because the road was built before the law was passed, and the act, if valid at all, may be said to take away a vested right.

"Some of the rails taken up are being shipped to Cleveland and other points and some are given the T. A. A., in satisfaction of our claims against the S. L. & N.

These nominations are all good, and the people of Ann Arbor town would make no mistake should a majority conclude they wanted them for the offices mentioned.

There is one nominee of whom we desire to especially speak. That of George Green, for township treasurer. Mr. Green has been unfortunate and by falling from a load some two years since broke a leg so that it had to be amputated. He has struggled manfully along against hard fate, and is deserving of the suffrages of his fellow townsmen, not only out of sympathy for his misfortunes but because of his indomitable pluck and energy.

Mr. Green ought to be the next treasurer of Ann Arbor town without opposition.

CHAPTER X. WHAT CONSEQUENCES ENDED.

The door was suddenly opened and in came young Mr. Edwardes.

A day or two afterward the architect of the new opera house, discovering that nothing in the way of business required his immediate attention in New York, came to the conclusion that he would do well to go away from it for a while. Since he began to practice his profession he had never had a deliberate vacation. But a man who had just designed and built a new opera house—the best in the world—could afford to take a rest, even were there no other ground for doing so. Bellingham, at all events, packed his trunk and took passage on the Arizona bound for the Old World, and betook himself to an ancient, abandoned, lovely little town on the southern coast of Ireland.

It was one of the loveliest, least known and most secluded retreats in Europe. The gray and ruinous houses were overgrown with soft green moss, the steep and narrow streets were made beautiful with tender rims of grass. The warm breezes brought thither by the Gulf stream gave to December and January the gentle geniality of an English spring. The sparse inhabitants were a far descended race of fishermen, still bearing in their dark complexions and vigorous forms the traces of their handsome Spanish ancestry.

At the inn, in addition to a most engaging landlady and a couple of extremely pretty daughters, Bellingham encountered to his agreeable surprise an American artist, Helwise by name, whom he had known years ago in New York. This lonely man of genius was, it appeared, in the habit of spending the winter months here, transferring to canvas the matchless wealth of color and character which met him at every turn. He was of a grave, kindly, meditative nature, but brimming over in certain moods with wit and philosophy and the fruits of years of penetrating and amused observation of human character and life. Bellingham and he suited each other well and were soon conversing with the frankness and cordiality of a friendship long in abeyance but never forgotten. Bellingham inquired whether there were any other countrymen of theirs in the town.

"It is like the region Irving tells of in 'The Adalantado of the Seven Cities,'" Helwise replied; "it has been lost for ages, and nobody knows where it is except myself. That is, such was the case until about three weeks ago. But last month two mysterious strangers made their appearance, and have betrayed some symptoms of intending to stay. I should have had them expelled, for I consider this place to be my peculiar and inalienable property, had I not found them entertaining as a study, and admirably disposed to keep themselves to themselves. I have never spoken to the lady at all."

"Oh! Husband and wife, are they?" "Apparently that is just what they are not. No, I don't mean to insinuate—and I don't believe—that they ought to be. I should suppose they might be brother and sister, only they are of different nationalities. The man is evidently an American, and the lady, though she speaks English perfectly well, evidently is not. She is probably four or five years older than he, and has a certain air of experience. She is decidedly handsome, and has what they call distinguished manners; that is, she makes you perceive that they are manners, though very good ones. She has rented that large house on the top of the hill."

"She or they?" "She. He has his room here, and turns up every night at 10 o'clock. They spend the day together; he is undoubtedly in love with her, and she seems to be anything but indifferent to him. You see it isn't an ordinary affair. Here they are, buried from the world beyond discovery, and they might live as they liked; and yet they—or she at any rate—prefer to conduct themselves in this anomalous fashion. There is some mystery in it, my dear Geoffrey—some deep, dark, inscrutable mystery! They are known respectively as Mr. Edwardes and Mrs. Peters, but I have an idea they call each other something else. One theory of mine about them was that she was a younger sister of his mother; his father, you know, might have married a foreign woman. In that case she would be his aunt and the mystery would be solved; but, as I said before, they are plainly in love, and nephews and aunts neither fall in love nor marry, so far as my experience goes. Come, you are fresh from the States; can you guess?"

"I guess not," said Bellingham; and the conversation took another turn.

Suddenly Helwise, who had been looking toward the southern approach to the terrace on which they were standing, said in a low voice: "There come the mysteries. Now you can judge for yourself."

Bellingham turned his eyes in the direction indicated and saw a man and woman approaching slowly, side by side. They seemed to be conversing intermittently, and as they walked her shoulder occasionally brushed his arm and their glances constantly met. The man seemed to be under 25 years of age; he was tall and active and of rather slender build, and as he approached Bellingham noticed that his features were of a bold and striking cast, with bright and somewhat intolerant eyes. His expression at the present moment was troubled and gloomy. He frequently looked on the ground and struck the pebbles from his path with a stick. He would speak a few sentences at a time, energetically and rapidly; then relapse into a moody silence, responding by a shake of the head or other brief gesture to the discourse of his companion.

The latter was a woman whose aspect (if the distinction be permissible) was younger than her looks. Her face and figure were youthful, but her bearing and gestures were mature. Her features were of a clear paleness, regular in outline and of remarkable beauty. Something in her aspect enchained Bellingham's regard; she did not resemble any woman he had seen, and yet she reminded him in some intangible, elusive way of a woman whom he wished to forget. She was different—different at every point; and yet if he turned away and glanced at her from the corner of his eye there was an indescribable likeness. Was it the way she had of slowly lifting her chin? Was it the slope of her shoulders? Was it in the way the soft hair grew on the nape of her white neck? Was it in the smile that lighted her eyes before it touched her lips? It was all of these things—it was none of them! After a minute Bellingham forcibly dismissed the question from his mind. Of what earthly consequence was it?

Here were a good looking woman and an enamored young man, a common sight enough. They seemed to be in love with each other, as Helwise had said; but while the gentleman had evidently lost his head the lady was entirely self-possessed. She seemed to be amused superficially at some extravagance or perversity in her companion, but there was an underlying sadness or anxiety perceptible when her face was at rest. She had the air of trying to make him take some step or comprehend something which he refused to do or understand. As they passed the young man glanced for a moment toward Helwise and nodded recognition. The lady did not turn, nor evince consciousness of the presence of any third party. They slowly traversed the length of the terrace and disappeared through the gateway at the farther end.

"She knows how to dress," remarked Bellingham.

"And how to walk," added Helwise.

"She must have learned that on the stage."

"An actress, then, you think?"

"Yes; or an opera singer, perhaps. Well, what do you think is the matter?"

"He hasn't money enough, maybe," said Bellingham; "or perhaps she likes him too well to marry him. A woman like that knows that an ounce of imagination is worth a pound of reality—both to her and to him!"

"You have studied women since I knew you last," remarked Helwise with a smile.

"If I have," replied Geoffrey, "they have only taught me to disbelieve the little I ever thought I knew. Come, let us be moving."

That night Bellingham dreamt vividly of Mlle. Marana, and his dream awakened him before dawn in great distress of mind. He imagined that he was walking across the Brooklyn bridge, which on this occasion extended from the roof of the opera house in New York to the parapet of the terrace where he had sat with Helwise that afternoon. The bridge was unfinished, and he was obliged to make the transit on a series of precarious planks irregularly disposed. When midway across the Atlantic, whose angry roar reached his ears from the immeasurable depth beneath, he saw walking before him the figure of a woman, in whom he at once recognized Mlle. Marana. He hastened to overtake her, for she seemed in imminent danger of falling.

Just as he was on the point of reaching her, however, the plank on which he stood gave way, and at the same moment she whom he had meant to save tottered and fell. He closed his eyes for an instant; then he felt his arm seized by some one from behind, and, looking round, he found himself standing on the stage of the opera house, with Marana herself before him in the costume of Marguerite, with a bunch of daisies in her girdle. He heard the applause of the audience, like the roar of the sea, and perceived that the performance was going forward, and that he, instead of being properly attired, was in his every day dress. It came across his mind also that the figure he had mistaken for Marana was Mephistopheles, disguised to mislead him. He looked at Marguerite; her face was deathly pale. She said below her breath, "You did not believe in me; do you know who?" Her voice died away, the lights were suddenly extinguished, and in the silence and darkness Bellingham awoke.

Too much disturbed to sleep again—for the dream, grotesquely extravagant though it was, had seemed absolutely real to him—he got up, lit a pipe, and sat smoking at his window watching the dawn slowly illuminate the eastern sky.

He took an early breakfast and went for a solitary walk along the coast, and from the summit of a lofty headland saw a great ocean steamer pass westward through the gray sea. She was bound for New York. As he watched her diminish and vanish in the distance, till only a faint plume of smoke remained on the far horizon, for the first time since his journey began he was conscious of an urgent longing to return—to return at once. The unfinished question in his dream kept ringing in his ears; it assumed a momentous importance; he must know what it meant. He laughed at his own absurdity, but the longing remained. At last he returned to the inn.

He found Helwise painting in the room he used as a studio; he was in his shirt sleeves, slippers down at the heel were on his feet, and he wore an old straw hat to shade his eyes from the light. He was whistling softly to himself, and would turn his head on one side after putting a touch on the canvas. "Did you hear any noise last night?" he asked after they had chatted for a while.

"I had a bad dream. What was it?" "That young fellow who calls himself Edwardes. His room is next to mine. He came in a little later than usual last night, and by and by I fancied I heard him crying. I was debating whether I ought to go in and see what was the matter, when he knocked at my door. He looked badly cut up. I made him sit down and gave him some whisky and a cigarette. He seems to be in a scrape."

"Did he explain the mystery?" "Well, he talked somewhat. He fell in love with this woman in Moscow. From what he said I judge she is an actress or a singer, as we were saying yesterday. She is a public character of some kind, and has had adventures before this. She took a great fancy to him, so he says, and I believe him. But it seems to have been somewhat as you suggested; she liked him too well to let him have his way. She wouldn't risk a disillusionment; perhaps her heart had never been touched before. She would not marry him, either; for that matter, I suppose the one thing is about the same to her as the other. But she did an odd thing—she offered to suspend her career, whatever it is, and be with him as long as he wished. And she appears to have given up some important pecuniary advantage to do so. He accepted her offer, thinking no doubt that she would capitulate in due time, in the meanwhile taking care that she should lose nothing in the way of money. He represented himself to her as inexhaustibly wealthy, and she took him at his word. But the fact is, after he had spent a hundred thousand or so, and ruined his father and sister, as he tells me, there was no more left. He was ashamed to confess this to her, and it is only within the last few days, when he had got down to his last fifty pound note, that she found it out."

"And now she means to shake him—is that it?" said Bellingham.

"Well, apparently not. She seems to have plenty of money herself, and she has made him a proposition which does her credit. She has proposed to marry him and pay back the money that he has spent on her. I have begun to fall in love with her myself! And I may do it if she'll have me; for Mr. Edwardes' pride, as he calls it, would not allow him to accept her proposal, and hence his misery, which at one time last night assumed quite a suicidal complexion, but I remonstrated with him, and he felt a little better this morning."

While they were sitting there the door was suddenly opened, and in came young Mr. Edwardes himself in a state of great excitement. He had a newspaper in his hand.

"Did you know what was in this paper?" demanded he, striding up to Helwise.

"What one generally finds in a New York Sunday paper two weeks old," returned Helwise, tipping back his hat and looking up at him. "This is Mr. Bellingham, Mr. Edwardes."

The latter looked at the architect, and seemed to hesitate whether or not to proceed, but the emotion by which he was possessed was too much for him; he went on.

"It says here," he exclaimed, holding the paper toward Helwise, with his finger on the paragraph, "that—here, read it yourself!"

Helwise took the paper and read: "Mlle. Marana, the great Russian prima donna, who has endeared herself to all New Yorkers during the past season by her charming behavior as well as by her unrivaled musical powers, will next month bring to a close the most successful engagement ever known in this city. Mlle. Marana has lately been in delicate health. To those of thousands of her friends and admirers we add our own cordial hopes that she may return to us next spring with renewed strength and energy. Meanwhile we shall not look upon her like again."

"Is that the paragraph you mean?" asked Helwise, looking up. "What's the trouble with it?"

"Only that there's no such person as Mlle. Marana in New York, nor ever was—that's all!" cried out the young gentleman in a violent tone.

"You're mistaken, sir," put in Bellingham. "I'm personally acquainted with Mlle. Marana, and have heard her sing in New York this season a score of times."

"You heard an impostor, then!" returned the other angrily. "I know what I'm talking about. Good God! don't I know who the Marana is?"

"Keep your coat on, young man," said Helwise with a quiet laugh. "Possibly you are mistaken instead of Mr. Bellingham."

"Well, I beg your pardon, gentlemen," said Edwardes, putting a restraint on himself and speaking in an agitated voice. "If you only knew you would pardon me. But look here, sir—Mr.

Bellingham—I'll tell you. I met Mlle. Marana in Moscow last summer. She—well, the truth is, she's the lady who is here with me now. She had an engagement with a fellow named Inigo to sing this season in New York for four thousand dollars a night, and—she gave it up because I asked her. I guess there isn't more than one Marana in this world! There's only one woman alive who could sing anywhere near her, and that's my own sister—whom I ruined and disgraced, by George!" Here, in spite of his struggles to prevent them, tears forced themselves into the young gentleman's eyes, and he sat down and hid his face in his hands. "And now, to think," he cried out, starting up again and walking to and fro in the room, "to think, after all she's done for me, that scoundrel Inigo should trump up an impostor to take her place! By George, I'll bring him to book if I live another fortnight!"

"You are making a singular accusation, Mr. Edwardes," said Bellingham sternly. "Will you vouch for its accuracy?"

"Yes, I will vouch for it, Mr. Bellingham," returned the other, facing him; "and my name is not Edwardes. I've had enough of this humbug. There's my card, sir."

Bellingham took the card. "Edward Randolph," he read and paused. He looked at the young man curiously.

"May I ask your father's name?" he said at length.

"Alexander Randolph," Edward replied.

"A tall man, about fifty-five, with gray mustache and imperial?"

"That's the man. Do you know him?"

"I have met him. You had better go home and look after him," said Bellingham gravely, "and get your Mlle. Marana to go with you."

Bellingham left for Liverpool the same evening, and took passage for New York two days later. Edward Randolph and Mlle. Marana sailed the same day on another steamer, and they all arrived at their destination within ten days afterward.

ANOTHER VICTIM OF THE TERRIBLE ITALIAN MAFIA.

A Wealthy Merchant in the Tyrol Slain as He Was About to Enter a Railroad Car.

VIENNA, March 30.—A dispatch from Kufstein, a fortified town of the Tyrol on the Inn and near the Bavarian frontier, brings news of a murder by a Mafia conspirator.

From the few details received from a well-known merchant of Kufstein, who was on the point of entering a railroad car at that place, was suddenly confronted by an Italian, who plunged a stiletto into the merchant's breast, killing him almost instantly.

The Italian, who turns out to be a workman employed in the neighborhood, was promptly arrested, and from the investigation subsequently made by the police authorities it was learned that he was a member of the hideous Mafia society and that he had killed the merchant in mistake for a compatriot whom he had been detailed to kill for some real or fancied wrong done to the Mafia society, and for which the prisoner's compatriot had been condemned to death by one of the Mafia's secret tribunals.

The murder of the merchant of Kufstein has caused considerable excitement, and there is a feeling of dangerous indignation growing against the Italian secret society.

ENGLAND ANTICIPATES WAR.

She Is Negotiating with Belgium for Neutrality.

LONDON, March 30.—Lord Salisbury, just before starting for San Remo, held a long conference with Lord Knutsford and Mr. Curry, the permanent secretary of the foreign office. A work of supreme difficulty requiring the most delicate handling was confided to Curry relating to engagements with England to protect Belgium. King Leopold during his recent visit pressed for an answer as to what co-operation England would give under the existing treaty for the defense of Belgium neutrality in the event of war.

Lord Salisbury, according to a report credited in the foreign office, promised English aid by feet and contingent troops if demanded to defend Antwerp, leaving the Belgian army free for defensive operations in the forts of Meuse.

Something occurring behind the scenes of European diplomacy shapes apprehension that the final move in the long game pending war will not be long delayed.

Apart from the removal of the concentration of troops on the Russian-Austrian frontiers and the Car's demonstrative friendship for President Carnot it is reported that an agreement has been reached between the French and Russian governments in regard to the simultaneous mobilization of troops and other movements in the event of war.

FIRE IN A COURT HOUSE.

Flames Stop the Trial of a Celebrated Case in Cork.

CORK, March 30.—While the Judge was summing up in the court house here in the case of the Government against Mr. Michael O'Brien Dalton and others charged with assaulting the police and with rioting at Tipperary at the time of the trial of Messrs. William O'Brien and John Dillon the court house was suddenly set on fire and a scene of alarm and confusion followed.

All the occupants of the building managed to make their way safely into the street. The police are investigating the affair. The court house, including the municipal chamber and the city and county offices, were totally destroyed. During the height of the fire the roof of the court house suddenly fell in with a crash and the walls collapsed to the imminent peril of a large number of bystanders who had ventured dangerously near the burning building.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR HENDRIX.

End of the Murder Trial at Goshen, Ind.—The Prisoner Indifferent.

GOSHEN, Ind., March 30.—The Hendrix murder trial, which has been before the circuit court for the past week, came to an end by Hendrix being found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. The jury was out twelve hours. During the entire trial the prisoner has shown the greatest indifference to his fate and received the verdict very coolly. A motion was made for a new trial, and if not granted the case will be carried to the Supreme court. The evidence at the trial goes to show that a third person was a party to the crime, and it is possible that another arrest will result.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., March 30.—George W. Shepard, who owns the ground on which the tomb of Mary Washington, mother of George Washington, is situated, gave to Colbert & Keittly, real estate brokers, an option on the property. The brokers at once advertised the tomb for sale at public auction in Washington. This aroused indignation, and Mr. Shepard notified the brokers that he could not give a clear title to the ground. Thereupon they withdrew the advertisement and instituted suit for $20,000 damages. The decision today was in favor of Shepard.

Ended by a Single Blow.

PERU, Ind., March 30.—William Pitts knocked Thomas Dixon completely out at his very first blow in a contest to settle the state colored championship. DR. HOWARD CROSBY DEAD.

The Distinguished Divine Passes Peacefully Away. New York, March 31.—The Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby died at 5:30 yesterday at his residence. His end was peaceful. He asked for sign for paper and wrote a few lines to his loved ones, to the absent son and daughter in Egypt and the three members of his family at home.

The first words of this, his last writing were, "I know I have to go." Dr. Howard Crosby was born in New York in 1826, being the second son of William Bedlow Crosby, a well-known New York philanthropist. At the age of 14 he entered the University of the City of New York, graduating in 1844.

In 1851 he was professor of Greek in that college and in 1859 at Rutgers. Two years later he became a Presbyterian minister. In 1863 he was appointed to the pastorate of the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian church in this city, an office which he has held ever since.

Immediately after his appointment he began the crusade against vice and intemperance which made him famous. He had not at first much success in inducing either the clergy or the laity to join in his crusade, but in 1877 he organized the Society for the Prevention of Crime. Its object was to put down illicit drink traffic, to suppress concert saloons, low theaters and to purify criminal courts. He was continually in collision with excise commissioners and police captains. His attack on Police Captain Williams in 1887 was one of the most important of these encounters.

Dr. Crosby was decidedly a moderate man. He declared that total abstinence was not called for by the gospel and he did not urge it in practice. A few years ago he had a serious disagreement with a number of Presbyterian ministers on account of his expressed opinion that the law should give workmen a chance to buy beer Sundays. He was also moderate as a theologian, and at the Hartford congress of churches said he aimed at bringing together the different Christian sects.

The Canadian Pacific will come down from Brookville over the new bridge which is to be built at that point by way of the Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg to Utica. After the main points of the agreement had been reached Mr. Van Horne declared the war at an end, and returned to Montreal on the night train.

Dowd was told to throw up his hands, while his companion was informed that if she screamed she would be shot. The highwaymen then took from Dowd and the woman all their jewelry. Dowd lost his watch and his money, while the woman was robbed of all her jewelry.

MORTAR-SPOTTED SKIN.

Covered with Scales. Awful Spectacle. Cured in Five Weeks by the Cuticura Remedies. About the first of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to look like spots of mortar spotted on, and which came off in layers accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw; then the next night the scales being formed meanwhile were scratched off again. In vain did I consult all the doctors in the county, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and purchased them from my druggist and obtained almost immediate relief. I began to notice that the scales eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared one by one, until I had been fully cured. I had the disease thirteen months before I began taking the REMEDIES, and in four or five weeks I was entirely cured. My disease was eczema and psoriasis. I know of a great many who have taken the REMEDIES, and thank me for the knowledge of them, especially mothers who have babies with scaly eruptions on their heads and bodies. I cannot express my thanks to you. My body was covered with scales, and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is as clear as a baby's.

VIGOROUS PERSUASION

Is generally required to sell life insurance; and yet it can hardly be out of season to urge a man to take such precautions as the best business custom of the day approves, viz: to protect his family and his estate. The defenseless wife and children need protection; necessities should go before luxuries. Too many men treat life insurance as the Arkansas fiddler did the roof of his house—when it rained he couldn't fix it, and when the weather was fair there was no need of fixing it.

If your health is good take an insurance policy while you can. Combine Protection and Investment; you can do this if you secure an Accumulative Bond, issued only by THE MICHIGAN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., of Detroit, Mich. Organized, 1807. Assets, $3,007,553.13. Surplus, $439,556.95. This bond affords the strongest possible combination of advantages. For example:

For twenty-five years the experience of millions of sufferers, old and young, male and female, have gratefully endorsed the marvellous virtues of this Pharmaceutical Paradox of the Age.

A vitalizing stimulant without alcohol. A nerve sedative without narcotics. A blood purifier without poisons. A liver cleanser. A purely vegetable tissue-maker, promoting digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion and respiration. A life-giving tonic, pure and simple, without the disastrous reactions of the deadly compounds of rum and alcohol usually sold as bitters.

Was never known before in the World. Its discovery among the medicinal fruits, roots and herbs of California. WAS A MIRACLE, and their combination into a phenomenal life-giving tonic. A TRIUMPH OF THE CHEMICAL ART.

The only change made in the formula during twenty-five years has been to present it in two combinations. The old original remain unchanged, but being stronger, more laxative and better. A new form more agreeable to the taste and better adapted to delicate women and children, but comprising the same tonic properties, is now made and the essence of the world is challenged to produce the equal of this.

TRULY & ONLY TEMPERANCE BITTERS KNOWN or to produce a purely vegetable bitters or medicine of any kind, whose action is at once so safe, so certain and comprehensive as the CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS, or any compound which from its varied action upon the vital functions is equal to the CURE OF SO MANY DISEASES.

Their name is legion—Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Catarrh, Jaundice, Kidney Disease, Scrofula, Skin Diseases and Bells, Consumption, Piles and all disorders arising from indigestion, impure blood, nervous prostration, and dilapidated constitution from any cause give way to it like mist before the sun, while its singular power over THE DEADLY MICROBE AND OMNIPRESENT BACTERIA indicates its superiority in all diseases of malarial origin, and renders it the BEST VERMIFUGE KNOWN.

No family can afford to do without a bottle of OLD AND NEW STYLE VINEGAR BITTERS in the house, as expressed by thousands of testimonials. Send for beautiful book. Address, B. H. McDONALD DRUG CO., New York.

MICHIGAN'S CENSUS.

The latest census bulletin issued at Washington gives Michigan's population by counties showing the gains and losses. The state has grown from 1,636,937 in 1880 to 2,093,889 in 1890. Of the 85 counties 15 show a decrease, Hillsdale having the largest at 2,063 and Van Buren the smallest at 266. The balance of the counties have gained, Wayne and Kent being the largest because of the growth of Detroit and Grand Rapids. The counties of this district stand as follows: Hillsdale lost 2,063 and Monroe 1,287, while Lenawee gained 105 and Washtenaw 362, a net loss of 2,883. Washtenaw with its 42,210 inhabitants stands ninth in point of population in the state.

WHICH IS ALRIGHT.

The always democratic New York Sun has this to say of the operation of that bill which other journals of less ancient membership in the democratic church call "the infamous McKinley bill":

There are now beginning to appear in the cutlery stores many knives and other articles on each of which is stamped the word "Germany." The McKinley bill requires this. In the custom house and at sea on the way back to Germany are hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of such goods which are not stamped "Germany." A large dealer in cutlery, in discussing this effect of the bill, said recently that the market had been flooded with knives and cutlery of all sorts stamped "Providence Cutlery Company" or "New Bedford Cutlery Company," but nevertheless of German make and of such inferior material that men who bought them vowed they would never again buy an American knife or tool. Our American cutting tools are the best in the world, and hereafter they will not suffer from unfair competition.

To which we would add that if every yard of cloth, silk, cotton goods, or velvet imported to the United States were stamped with the place of its make two things would follow. Many a fraud would be avoided, for it is very doubtful if more than a fourth part of the articles of wearing apparel now sold as imported is imported, and National pride would be promoted, for it would be seen that there are few things which Europe can make better than America makes them.

It is a noticeable fact, and quite noticeable, that no cleaner or purer administration ever held the reins of government at Washington than that of President Harrison. Even the very funny papers have quit picturing "little Benny with grandpa's big hat on." Harrison has commanded the respect of this penny a line detractors even.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The tariff on sugar was the democratic doctrine of tariff for revenue only, which doctrine is always a tax.

Vote for a pure and good man for Justice of the Supreme Court, the Hon. Robert Montgomery.

The nominees for regent on the republican ticket are thorough, going businessmen, and just the kind the people want in those positions.

The republican papers are exultant over the fact that under the operation of the McKinley bill, we are to have cheap sugar. Restrain your glee, your editorial "gillies." "I hate cheap things; cheap means nasty." Don't cheer things—Adrian Press.

What a delicate way the Press has of passing judgment upon its own effusions.

By next Wednesday we hope to announce to the public that the State of Michigan has been redeemed, and that political thievery has been rebuked. Go to the polls next Monday and help do the work.

Gov. Pattison, of Pennsylvania, wanting a criminal who had escaped to Connecticut, addressed a requisition to Gov. Bulkeley, of that state. What a mistake. He should have addressed Gov. George, but who assumes to govern New York, Connecticut, the U. S. Senate, and a few other things.

Every farmer or any other person who will read is being supplied by the democracy of this city and county, with Henry George's work on free trade. A beautiful theory is spun by George, but by George it is nothing but a theory. The prices the McKinley bill is now giving farmers, talks louder than all fine spun theories.

The editor of the Ypsilanti Sentinel is kicking because as it says: "With rare exceptions the old office holders and employes sit as quietly and apparently as safely as if they had taken root in the positions." Which proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that Bro. Woodruff has not been up to Lansing. If he should go he would find his brother democrats all there, including Fridlender, and in power.

The New Orleans papers uphold murder, law lotteries, and every other conceivable sin on earth, almost so it is not to be wondered at that they condemn Secretary Blaine's timely, proper and manly letter to Gov. Nichols, asking information on the subject of the recent mob murders. That city, which is yet the hotbed of everything corrupt, will have to be subjected to a lesson of humiliation that will be lasting.

As a sample of what a real democratic legislature will do, take one day's proceedings of the Arkansas legislature. Last week they passed a bill in both houses to pension rebel soldiers; they took down Washington's portrait from above the speaker's desk and put up one of that arch-traitor, Jeff Davis, and to show still further how little they care for advancement, they defeated the bill to have the state represented at the Columbian World's Fair. We can predict one thing, that Arkansas will not be troubled with new ideas or men to develop her resources as long as she manifests such an unpatriotic spirit. Furthermore, we are of the idea that even our own democratic legislature would do the same as the Arkansas, if they dared to do so. People of Michigan, how do you like to have such a party in power?

One of the leaders of the New Orleans mob that murdered eleven defenseless men was John C. Wickliffe, editor of the New Orleans Delta, known to local fame as "the Grand Parish Bazoo." Several years ago he stood all day at the polls in a New Orleans precinct with a Winchester rifle in his hands and said: "I defy the whole of the United States government," and he did defy it. Not a colored man voted at that precinct on that day, and the U. S. government allowed him to go Scott free when he ought to have been put in prison and kept there. W. Parkerson, another leader of the mob, at the same election armed a crowd that took possession of the polling places, and any one who voted had to have straight hair and a white skin. These are the men the U. S. government ought to bring to justice, cost what it may.

Because 20 lbs. of granulated sugar can be bought for $1 now, under the provisions of the McKinley bill, while during March only 15 lbs. could be bought for $1, the tariff being taken off on April 1st, the Adrian Press trots out its poll parrot and it mechanically squeaks "a tariff is a tax." No one ever denied that a tariff for revenue only is a tax. The democratic idea of putting a tariff on things we do not raise or manufacture is a tax, and the consumer has to pay it; but the republican idea of a tariff on things we do produce, a protective tariff, is not a tax. The tariff on sugar the last democratic house fought for and refused to take off, but were determined to take the tariff off of wool, wheat and all farmer's products, thus reducing the farmer's income and swelling his expenses. It remained for a republican house to cheapen the necessities of life the farmer has to buy, and at the same time help the market of all his products.

The committee that were appointed by the petitioners for a citizen's ticket, met last week and adjourned until Saturday night to await the action of the party conventions.

For Regent of the University, Major Peter N. Cook, of the 10th Michigan Cavalry.

ATTENTION! Comrades to the Front! At the coming spring election one soldier's name will be presented to the citizens of Michigan as a candidate for one of the Regents of the State University, of which institution he is a graduate. He is a man of marked financial and executive ability; his competency to fill the position we have never heard questioned, and we believe him to be at least the equal of either of the candidates on any of the other tickets. It is not a partisan office and should never be made one.

Therefore, we, his old soldier comrades of the Tenth Michigan Cavalry, whose sword we have followed on many battle fields in the dark days of the sixties, with whom he went out at its organization, and with whom he served at the front, until the close of the war, present him to the citizen soldiers of Michigan, and ask for him your support as the soldiers' candidate for that office, he being the only soldier before the people on either ticket.

Having a soldier who is the equal in all other respects, and in addition a brother comrade, we ask and expect all old soldiers who are now citizens of Michigan, from whatever state they served, will make our cause their own—will join with us now as we have joined with them for a like purpose when asked to before, and we will again carry the soldier to the front, and prove that one class of citizens have not forgotten the past, and still believe the interests and institutions of the country are as safe in the hands of the men who received their baptism on the battle field, and whose political faith is country first and above all else, even life, as it could be elsewhere; and that a soldier's faith in his comrades, now as it was at the front, is the one thing he will never find misplaced. Then comrades to the front! Bring every vote you can muster, and when they are counted it will be known the old soldiers were once more in line.

Ord. Sergt. JOHN L. BANKS, Pres. Co. Organization. Q. M. Sergt. DAVID F. TYLER, Sec'y.

It begins to look as though even the "stuffed prophet" Cleveland will not have a great walk over getting the next presidential nomination. Senator Harris of Tennessee has come out with the declaration that since Cleveland's silver letter he cannot become the candidate of the democratic party. Blackburn of Kentucky says the same, and now comes Voorhees of Indiana, who has always supported Grover, and says:

"Such an expression from Senator Harris means a great deal, for his long experience as a politician and his great influence throughout the south will have much weight with the democrats. The next democratic convention will certainly insert a free coinage plank in the platform and permit of no doubtful or uncertain declarations on that subject. The democratic party will then nominate a man who will stand upon the platform. The party cannot afford to warp its platform of principles to suit the personal qualifications of the nominee. No, sir; no man or party can be elected who opposes free coinage of silver."

Thus his followers are deserting him, and his day seems to have come and gone.

After 35 years of anxious travail the democracy of Michigan labored, and then brought forth our present legislature.

Peculiar

Many peculiar points make Hood's Sarsaparilla superior to all other medicines. Peculiar in combination, proportion, and preparation of ingredients. Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses the full curative value of the best known remedies of the vegetable kingdom. Peculiar in its strength and economy—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "One Hundred Doses One Dollar." Medicines in larger and smaller bottles require larger doses, and do not produce as good results as Hood's. Peculiar in its medicinal merits. Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures hitherto unknown, and has won for itself the title of "The greatest blood purifier ever discovered." Peculiar in its "good name" at home,—there is now more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold in Lowell, where it is made, than of all other blood purifiers. Peculiar in its phenomenal record of sales abroad, no other preparation has ever attained such popularity in so short a time, and retained its popularity and confidence among all classes of people so steadfastly. Do not be induced to buy other preparations, but be sure to get the Peculiar Medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. 100 Doses One Dollar

Five marriage licenses was the record at the county clerk's office for March 31. You see March went out like a lamb.

The fire department was called out last Sunday evening by a chimney burning out in Jerry Collins' house on N. Main St.

The Easter service by the Sunday school children of the M. E. church Sunday evening was very entertaining, and the large audience present was delighted.

A movement will be put on foot to secure an extension of the Grand Trunk R. R. from South Lyon via Ann Arbor and Adrian, to Indianapolis. The G. T. would find such a route a great feeder for its heating system.

The hearing of the student H. M. Booth, who is charged with shooting the motor-man Stoll, was commenced before Justice Pond last Thursday and adjourned until to-morrow. The evidence so far corroborates the version of the affair given by Stoll, and published last week.

An understanding has been reached between the managers of the Washtenaw Co. Ag. and Hort. Society, and the officers of the Ann Arbor Driving Club, by which the latter will have the use of the fair grounds for driving and exercising purposes. This probably means a good track.

A new hook and ladder truck has been ordered constructed by the board of fire commissioners. The ladders will be wider than the usual make, allowing two persons to pass each other upon them if necessary. It will take three months to finish the truck, and it will cost $1,000. Seagraves & Co. of Detroit will make it.

W. E. Walker, alderman of the 3rd ward, having been appointed adjutant of the soldiers' home, by Commandant Manly, has resigned his aldermanic position, and the 3rd ward will have two city fathers to elect instead of one. The appointment of Mr. Walker is one generally commended and he is to be congratulated upon his good fortune.

The charter amendments have passed the legislature, been signed by the governor, and Ann Arbor is 400 acres larger than she was and probably 200 inhabitants more numerous. The amendments relative to salaries of aldermen, et al, were knocked out on what is practically the same thing, referred to a vote of the people. The new Ann Arbor citizens will spring election.

Easter Sunday was as perfect a day as spring ever brought.

Ed. Hangster has one of the neatest little candy parlors in the state.

The ladies of St. Andrew's society will give a tea social on Thursday evening at Harris Hall.

Easter pants among the boys were much more prevalent Sunday than Easter bonnets with the girls.

At the M. E. church last Sunday a large number of lilies, direct from the island of Bermuda, added beauty to the place.

President Geo. F. Hunting, D. D., of Alma College, will address the Tappan Training Course next Sunday evening at the Presbyterian Church. Subject: "Pilgrims' Progress."

A regular meeting of the Board of Managers of the Washtenaw County Fair will be held in the supervisors' room at the court house, Thursday, April 9th, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Dundee Reporter: "Wm. Haskins and family will remove to Ann Arbor next week, to become residents of that city. As an active stock buyer and most agreeable citizen he will be greatly missed by this community."

The probate court has assigned to Louis Liesemer and his daughter Lulu the estate of the late Emma M. Liesemer. John Burg claimed a part of the estate, but failed to carry the point of his contention before the court.

A very pleasant ceremony occurred at the home of Hiram Kittredge, on N. Main st., last Thursday, by which Miss Mary Kittredge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Kittredge, and Samuel McLaren were united in marriage. The couple have many warm friends in the city.

The annual after Easter social of the Knights Templar occurred at Masonic Temple Monday evening and was attended by upwards of one hundred couple. It was one of the happiest events of the year, and Manager Sir Knight Miner was in his usual happy mood. He never takes hold of anything but he makes a success of it.

Chris. Donnelly got to wrestling with a burning chimney at his residence on E. Ann St., last Friday p. m., and after using a bucket-full of salt, and several other extinguishers with apparently no effect, he called out the fire department. The boys rushed up there, looked at the blaze for a second or two and it subsided, without costs to either party.

E. Ann St., from Division to State, is one of the most traveled streets in the city. It is the only street leading to the new hospital, and as a consequence the heavily loaded wagons have cut it up fearfully and put in the shape of any street in the corporation. Being a narrow street travel wears it more than the ordinary streets, and it should be cared for.

Every resident of Ann Arbor will commend the enterprise and energy of the Ann Arbor Water Co., in sinking wells for the city water supply. The new wells are flowing ones and at present give forth about 800,000 gallons daily. This, with the regular supply, will give to our citizens a continual supply of good spring water the year around and Ypsilanti can crow over us no longer in this respect.

The democrats, with 200 or more majority at their back in this city, have, with their usual timidity, called their caucuses after the republican caucuses and convention, on Thursday and Friday evenings. It seems as if they ought to have pluck enough by this time to nominate a ticket regardless of the republicans. From the present outlook the democratic ticket will be:

Mayor—Louis Liesemer or M. E. Cooley. Clerk—Jas. R. Bach or Will Miller. President of the council—Fred A. Howlett or W. G. Doty. Assessor—P. O'Hearn. Justice—E. B. Pond or Chas. H. Kline.

In the various wards the nominations are still in a chaotic state. There will be no lack of aspirants.

N. B. Covert is in a precarious condition as far as his rights of franchise are concerned. The new city line passes directly through his house, dividing his bedroom in about the center, and as his bed stands directly on the line, the foot is in Ann Arbor town and the head in Ann Arbor city. We understand that he would be justified in voting in both precincts and then allow the supreme court to decide which part of his body is legally entitled to vote; whether it would be legal for his lower limbs, which are residents of the township to carry his head and shoulders to the city polling places or not, or vice versa. A friend suggests that he could compromise the matter by voting a split ticket. Of course this suggestion comes from a democrat who seeks to gain an advantage thereby, but we do not think he will. This is probably one of the most intricate questions relating to the right of suffrage that has ever been known.

John Egan, of Elizabeth st., aged 72 years, died on Saturday of heart failure.

John Jacob Schaeffer, residing on W. Huron St., died last Friday evening, aged 93 years.

The Lenten savings of St. Andrew's Sunday school amounted to $35.58. The collection Sunday morning was $115.

Louis Lutz, who used to be with J. T. Jacobs & Co., was elected a trustee at the recent municipal election at Byron.

At the Easter service last Sunday at St. Andrew's church many people were obliged to go away unable to be accommodated.

A number of fine pictures have been added to the adornment of the halls of the club house of the Ann Arbor Sporting Club at Zukey Lake.

All of the churches of the city were handsomely decorated with flowers on Easter Sunday, the German churches, perhaps, bearing off the palm.

Albert Sorg has moved into the building north of the Duffy block, on N. Main st., and established headquarters for his painting and decorating business.

Mrs. West, a step-sister of Chauncey G. Orcutt, of Ann Arbor town, died in Detroit Saturday, and her remains were brought to this city for interment in Forest Hill cemetery.

There was a class of 67 confirmed at St. Andrew's Episcopal church last Saturday evening. This is the largest class ever confirmed in the church, and contained not only a number of young gentlemen and ladies, but a large number of married people.

Mrs. Williams, relict of the late Prof. George P. Williams, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Duane Doty, in Chicago last Saturday, and her remains were brought to this city Saturday, the funeral services being held Sunday from St. Andrew's Episcopal church, of which she was a member for many years. Mrs. Williams was one of the leading ladies of Ann Arbor society thirty or more years ago, and many a student of the University of the earlier days, will remember her hospitality with feelings of pleasure and gratitude.

On Saturday night and Sunday last the authorities of the S. Lyons & Northern R. R., sent a gang of upwards of 100 men to tear up the track of the South Lyon branch of the road from Leland's to South Lyon. They commenced in about the center and worked both ways, and by Monday morning had the road stripped of its iron with the exception of about two miles. The balance will probably be taken up some Sunday when no injunction can be served. The farmers along the line who gave their good money to build the road are very indignant and promise the company trouble. Probably the end is not yet.

The annual parish meeting of St. Andrew's church was held yesterday a. m., at the church. C. H. Richmond and John M. Wheeler were selected wardens, and E. Treadwell, C. S. Kinne, James Clements, B. M. Thompson and C. B. Nancrede, vestrymen. The treasurer, E. Treadwell, reported all expenses of the parish for the year paid, and a balance of $200 on hand. Rev. Henry Tatlock, chairman of the committee on church improvements reported the sum of $1,586 subscribed and paid in by 125 different individuals. The amount received for pew rentals the past year has been larger than ever before.

An evening entertainment "Among the Monuments," will be given next Friday evening under the auspices of the Young People's Society of the Baptist church. Every liberty-loving nation possesses its historic grounds, its monuments and its ruins, marking various epochs in its national growth. Though America is a young nation it possesses many of each of these. In a single evening it is impossible to review all, and therefore the hour will be devoted to the consideration of historic Gettysburg. The work of the Battle-field Memorial Association, the size of the field, the plan of the battle, the location of Gettysburg with its converging roads, the composition with the two armies etc., illustrated with views, will be considered. Many of the handsome monuments now erected upon this field as well as Petersburg and other places, will be shown by lantern views. Good music is provided and an enjoyable time is expected. Come.

"If 'twere down, when 'tis down, it were well 'twere down quickly!" is what a person thinks when he is contemplating taking a dose of old-fashioned pills. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are tiny, sugar-coated granules, scarcely larger than mustard seeds. As a remedy for all derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels, they are unequalled.

Dundee is to have three or four telephones put in connecting business houses with the depot.

John Schleh recently sold to Mike O'Hara 127 fat sheep that averaged 123 lbs. each, and brought him $850. They were shipped at Saline.

Ypsilanti township electors will vote again upon the proposition to build a town hall which they voted down last spring. It is getting to be a necessity.

The Enterprise says that the price of that paper has not been raised because of the McKinley bill, but is not, as some of its subscribers appear to think, on the free list.

A horse thief being confined in the Monroe Co. jail over night took a stick, propped off his cell door and dug out through the side of the building. They want a new jail in that county.

If you see the advertisement of a fellow who lives by his wits—that is, by fraud—announcing that for the trifling sum of thirty cents he will send 100 articles of household use, keep your thirty cents. You can get the 100 articles at the grocery for a nickel. It's half a paper of pins.—Ex.

W. H. Whitmarsh's new brick block is now assured. The new structure will take up the space now occupied by his grocery, Holcomb's feed store and Shurtz's meat market, and will be three stories high. Work will be commenced the latter part of April or the first part of May.—Milan Leader.

Miss Eunice Lambie has purchased the Barton House lot, and will build thereon, two handsome new residences. The remains of the Barton House, and the purchaser is to move them away by April 15th. One by one the unsightly corners of Ypsilanti are improved.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

George Van Blarncum is on deck for congratulations. Married? No. Got a pension? No. But he has got what he has been fishing for ever since he was defeated for constable a year ago, and that's doing better than many a longer headed politician does. He has just been appointed deputy sheriff, and there isn't a rail fence in the township that he can't jump over. George is again solid with the York democracy as in days of yore.—Milan Leader.

In what manner, we ask in all candor, can a community be more afflicted than by the dead-beat? They are the worst maws-to-day with which the business world has to contend. Many and many an honest man has been driven to the wall and ruined by their deception and trickery. There are two kinds of dead-beats, the society beat and sneak dead-beat. The society beat is the fellow who is prowling around with some new "dodge" and he usually comes under the head of "for the benefit of sound-so, all expenses paid and the ladies sell tickets." The sneak beat is the fellow who "will pay you next week," and never pays at all.—Ex.

WHAT IS THE REASON?

(From the Ladies Home Journal.) I told Heskiah to tell Widow Gray to tell Mother Brown, next door, to tell Dicky Dwight, who goes that way, to tell Deacon Barnes, at the store, to tell the old stage driver, Timothy Bean, to come for me sure, and in season; But I've waited all day and no stage have I seen; Now what do you think is the reason? —EMMA C. DOWD.

AN INFAMOUS PROGRAM.

If anything were needed to convince the voters of Michigan of the shameless demagoguery of the democratic party in this state, it is furnished by the proceedings of a democratic caucus held in Lansing last night and fully reported in the Tribune this morning. The caucus revealed the rascally democratic purposes with sufficient distinctness, and in ample numbers to arouse the republicans of Michigan to a sense of the imperative duty devolving upon every loyal member of the party, and to awaken the whole state to realization of the outrageous legislation which is contemplated by the democracy and will be enacted if senators enough can be cajoled or bribed to make that possible.

Upon this latter point Senator Crocker, an unscrupulous partisan as ever occupied a position of trust in Michigan, assured the caucus that by sundown today arrangements would be made to secure the 17 votes necessary for the passage of all of the partisan measures which might be dictated by the caucus or the state central committee. Later on it was developed that among these measures are the gerrymandering bills affecting the congressional and legislative districts, and the outrageous Miner bill providing for the election of presidential electors by congressional districts.

This brings the republicans of Michigan face to face with a question of vital significance to the republican party. Will they permit these democratic purposes, plainly set forth in the words of the participants in last night's caucus and clearly subversive of popular government in Michigan and of overwhelming effect upon the future of Michigan republicanism, to go unrebuked at the polls? Will they stand by and see the ground swept from under them without protest, or will they rally to the polls one week from Monday next in the full power and might of the great organization that has governed Michigan for a generation and administer such a rebuke to partisan rascality as shall disconcert and paralyze it? Will they permit the election to the supreme bench of a democratic candidate who has already prejudged the case of the people of Michigan versus the whole pack of democratic thieves, or will they elect by a rousing majority a justice pledged only to give a fair and impartial hearing to every particle of evidence that may be produced before the supreme court affecting the legality of measures enacted by the Michigan legislature subsequent to the 24th of February, 1891?

Can women enjoy the sports of the field, and can they acquire themselves creditably in them? "An American Rosalind," in April Outing, comes as a pleasant surprise with her affirmative answer.

Literary Notes.

Sarah Pratt McLean Greene contributes to the April Wide Awake a rollicking April Fool's Day story, with the enticing title of "Chollemysies Johnsing's Afflicted Holiday."

Professor William T. Hornaday, of the Smithsonian Institution, will contribute to Harper's Young People for March 31st the first of a series of practical articles on taxidermy.

The next number of Harper's Bazar will contain the opening chapters of a brilliant extravaganza by Howard Pyle, entitled "A Modern Aladdin, or the Wonderful Adventures of Oliver Munier," with characteristic illustrations by the author.

The Problem Solved—An Unrivalled Blood Purifier.

Found at last in Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup—a remedy which expels all poisonous matter and taints of disease from the blood. A well known citizen of West Lebanon, Ind., testifies to its value:

GENTLEMEN: It affords me pleasure to state that my wife has received greater benefit from Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup than from any medicine she has ever taken. We have used six bottles and find it to be the best family remedy and the greatest blood purifier that we have ever used. It is truly all it is claimed to be by its founder. You cannot recommend it too highly.

CARDINAL LAVIEGERIE.

Charles Martial Allemand Laviegerie, Cardinal Archbishop of Carthage and Algiers, has perhaps done just as much as Stanley towards civilizing and opening Africa. He has devoted his whole life to a crusade against the Arabic slave hunters, that devastate the fairest parts of Africa. He has visited every country in Europe, preaching everywhere a new crusade; the Pope has become interested in his projects, the Protestant Evangelical Alliance, and the Catholic Congress at Friburg, have both adopted resolutions aiming to create a public sentiment in his favor. Of course it is impossible to even approximate the number of slaves that are annually carried into bondage, but it is estimated that at least 2,000,000 slaves are captured every year, of which only 20 per cent. reach the market alive. Of the sufferings on the long marches to the markets the African travellers often report tales of terror and horror. They all agree in this, however, that for every man and woman brought to the journey's end alive, no less than four perish on the way. The man who is trying to stop this dreadful trade deserves well of every Christian. Cardinal Laviegerie is now 63 years old, and has been Archbishop in Algiers since 1867. In this French colony he became familiar with Islamism, its habits and customs and although slavery had long been abolished in this colony, the prelate must have been struck with the moral disturbances such an institution had left there, and he soon made up his mind to devote the rest of his life to the abolition of this nefarious trade.

TALK OF THE DAY.

The young man who courted an investigation says that courting a girl is much better fun. It is one of the easiest things in the world to economically lay out the money you never will have.

You can't tell how valuable a girl's affections are until you are sued for blighting a set of them. Honeyed words.—She—"I am sorry you must be going." He—"It doesn't matter. When one meets you he is already gone."

A man never fully realizes the wealth of information he doesn't possess till his first child begins to ask questions. He—"The Posticians are a brave people; they never say die." She—"Don't they?" He—"No, they say 'decease.'"

The negro minstrel is like a bottle of champagne; his phiz does not amount to anything unless he is well corked. A live wire created great consternation in Philadelphia the other day, as any live thing usually does in the Quaker City.

A philosopher is a man who can feel as easy over his own troubles as he does over his neighbor's. There are no philosophers. Dobson—"I feel certain that Jenkins is in financial distress." Nobilit—"Why?" Dobson—"He is beginning to live very extravagantly."

Some women wear their lives out trying to look young, but they do not tire themselves half as much as they tire other people. No matter how bright a citizen's importance may be, he feels when he gets into a street car filled with ladies that he is a man of standing.

"A yacht manned entirely by women" is promised as a novelty for the next Newport season. The boys will be handled entirely by girls, of course. If people worked as hard after marriage to keep each other as they did before the engagement to win each other, marriage would be more of a success.

"Mrs. Small, this coffee won't settle," complained McWatty to his boarding-house keeper. "Then it is in good company, Mr. McWatty," replied Mrs. Small, frigidly.

Mrs. Bond—"Did you tell Mrs. Jay-smith that I was out, Norah?" Norah—"I did, mum." Mrs. Bond—"Did she say anything?" Norah—"She said 'Thank goodness, mum.'"

"Going a fishing?" inquired his wife. "Yes; catch about a dozen or so." "Why so few? Fish are so cheap you might as well catch a couple of dozen while about it?"

Mrs. Bellows (to daughter Cora)—"Why did you throw kisses at Mr. Jimpson across the aisle at church today?" Cora (complacently)—"I wasn't near enough to reach him."

Bad Effects of Tight Collars. A chapter might be written on the deleterious effects of tight collars, and especially that variety which projects stiffly beneath the neck to the manifest discomfort of the wearer and the amusement of the beholders. By compressing the veins they of course interfere with the return of blood from the head and thereby promote red noses and pimpled faces, against which all the cosmetic lotions in the world are of no avail so long as the mechanical cause is allowed to remain. Tight collars are even accused—and with some show of reason—of causing serious defects of the visual apparatus, due to heightened blood pressure, arising from the artificial impediment to the blood flow at the root of the neck. We should not be surprised to find that these execrable contrivances were also responsible for watery eyes, pendent lips and the general vacuousness of expression which usually characterizes the physiognomy of their wearers.

A Rich Woman's Will.

Lady Rosebery's will represents only a fraction of her fortune. She inherited from her father, Baron Meyer Rothschild, £2,500,000 a year. It was remarkable that this great wealth was left absolutely at her own disposal, entirely unfettered by trusts, conditions or settlements. On her marriage Lady Rosebery, in exercise of this discretionary power, made an elaborate settlement of her property in favor of her husband and children. Mentmore, with its splendid contents, is settled on the second son. The money in settlement of course does not appear in the will, which deals only with what the testatrix retained in her own control.

How an Electric Car is Moved.

The dynamo which generates the current does so by the revolution of a coil of wire near the poles of a magnet, the force which revolves the coil being derived from the engine. The current then passes over the wires, down the trolley which surmounts each car, to a small motor. This motor has an armature consisting of coils of wire, traversed by an electrical current, which is attracted in succession to the poles of the stationary coils called the field magnets, through which the current also flows, flies around and transmits its motion, by means of cogwheels, to the axle of the car.—Philadelphia Record.

GEMS IN VERSE.

Jalous. If I should lean across the jasper wall, With heaven's own lilies on my bosom now, And, white and radiant, let my kisses fall Through voiceful calms upon thine earthly brow;

Or, if before you I should stand today Where ceraphims are standing fair and sweet, And with my breath upon your eyelids say: "The way was long and lonely for my feet What time I walked without you!" would you read The secret of my secret soul aright— As he has read, who gladly giveth heed Of tenderest love to lives of little light?

I dare believe! To my wounded heart I take this consolation; when at last The tidal waves that drifted us apart For eye on earthly seas have kindly cast Us safe on heaven's own shoreland, you will know How much you wronged the soul that keepeth white And clean its raiment for thy sake! And so, Until that clear day dawneth, sweet, "Good night." —Hester A. Benedict.

Small Beginnings. A traveler on a dusty road strewed acorns on the lee, And one took root and sprouted up, and grew into a tree. Love sought its shade at evening time, to breathe its early vows, And age was pleased in heats of noon to bask beneath its boughs;

The mouse loved its dangling twigs, the birds sweet music bore; It stood a glory in its place, a blessing evermore. A little spring had lost its way amid the grass and fern, A passing stranger scooped a well where weary men might turn; He walled it in, and hung with care a ladle at the brink; He thought not of the deed he did, but judged that toil might drink.

He passed again, and lo! the well, by summers never dried, Had cooled ten thousand parching tongues, and saved a life beside. A dreamer dropped a random thought: 'twas old, and yet 'twas new; A simple fancy of the brain, but strong in being true. It abode upon a genial mind, and lo! its light became

A lamp of life, a beacon ray, a monitor flame. The thought was small, its issue great, a watch-fire on the hill; It sheds its radiance far a-down, and cheers the valley still! A nameless man, amid a crowd that thronged the daily mart, Let fall a word of Hope and Love, unstudied, from the heart; A whisper on the tumult thrown—a transitory breath— It raised a tremor from the dust, it saved a soul from death; O germ! O fount! O word of love! O thought that ran in random cast!

Ye were but little at the first, but mighty at the last. —Charles Mackay.

Empty Arms. God's blessing on the stalwart arms That hold their labor duty, And bear the burdens of the hour With cheerfulness and beauty. All honor to the willing arms That lift the poor and lowly, And teach us by their kindness A lesson pure and holy.

And raptures for the glowing arms That clasp with loving sweetness A world of joy and tenderness In beautiful completeness. And rest unto the weary arms That after pining sadness Twine round our dear returning ones, And thrill again with gladness!

But sorrow for the longing arms Where hopes, like birds, have nested; God's pity for the empty arms Where darling ones have rested! —George Cooper.

The Woman of Today. Let others sing the praises of the Woman of the Past, Or canonize the Woman of the Future coming fast. Istring my lyre for neither. No, I lift my little lay, And sing my song to celebrate the Woman of Today.

The Woman of the Past was good, and better still may be The Woman of the Future; but, oh, good enough for me The girl who thro' the mazes of the Present works her way, And stands, in her integrity, the Woman of Today.

Upon the world's great stage she plays roles many and diverse; But 'so' she may in politics her pretty head immerse, Or seek the pulpit or the bar, still shines the sacred ray Of love around the heartstone of the Woman of Today.

No pent up Utica confines her powers. The' prejudice Still prevails about her path, no work that's worthy comes amiss; She may not vote, but ballots fall obedient to her sway; The conscience of the country's in the Woman of Today.

She has her faults. Spots big and black the sun's bright face do blur; But who could live without its light, or with it lacking her? Against her follies and her fads let other folks inveigh, I celebrate the virtues of the Woman of Today. —Boston Globe.

Despair. Deeper than all we inherit, More real than far truer lives, Is the wall of the dissolute spirit That vainly struggles and strives; That prays for death, and it comes not, That hates its life and still stays, That yearns to succumb, but succumbeth not; The slave of the lingering days. —B. G. Hosmer.

Could We but know. Could we but know The land that ends our dark, uncertain travel, Where lies those happier hills and meadows low, Ah, if beyond the spirit's inmost cavil, Aught of that country could we surely know, Who would not go?

Might we but hear The hovering angels' high imagined chorus, Or catch sometimes, with wakeful eyes and clear, One radiant vista of the realm before us, With one rapt moment given to see and hear, Ah, who would fear?

Were we quite sure To find the peerless friend who left us lonely, Or gaze, by some celestial stream as pure, To see in eyes that here were loveliest only, This weary mortal coil, were we quite sure, Who would we endure? —Edmund C. Stedman.

Grief. Grief should be Like joy—majestic, equable, sedate. Contriving, cleansing, raising, making free. Strong to consume small troubles, to command Great thoughts, grave thoughts, thoughts lasting to the end.

A regular old bear the grizzly.

UNIVERSITY.

The University Athletic Association is forging ahead, and there is a great deal ahead of it to forge for.

All the editors at any time connected with the U. of M. Daily will partake of a banquet in Ypsilanti Saturday next.

Prof. Andrew McLaughlin was called to Muskegon last Sunday by the death of his father. Mrs. McLaughlin accompanied him.

The Regents postponed acting on the petition of the Athletic Association for $5,500 to be expended upon the new athletic grounds.

Friday night and Saturday the railroads leading from Ann Arbor will have their capacity tested. The students will then be going home for the spring vacation.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, of Chicago, has appointed Mrs. President Angell, of this city, as a member of the executive committee of the World's Columbian exhibition. An honor to the University and to the state.

At Heidelberg, Germany, university recently a dozen or more students engaged in a duel for past-time, and several were wounded, but of course no one was killed. They never strike to kill, but simply for gory glory.

The Jeffersonian and Webster societies of the law department have arranged for three joint debates. The first will occur on the evening of April 10th, and the question of capital punishment will be discussed and settled.

The first annual indoor meeting of the U. of M. A. A., took place at the Rink Friday evening last. About 150 were present. The events were well contested, and the meeting such a success that people will be quite apt to interest themselves to a greater degree hereafter.

At the Regents' meeting last Wednesday, Mr. George Lathrop, of Detroit, was appointed lecturer on patents, and Judge Brown, of the U. S. Supreme Court, lecturer on admiralty law. This University is quite fortunate in having one of its faculty chosen for the high position Judge Brown occupies.

Isabella M. Andrews, lit. '89, of Osoda, takes up the cause of the lady students in University journalism in the Chronicle-Argonaut, and appeals for their recognition therein. She thinks the girls would be glad to take editorships upon the college publications were the same tendered to them in a cordial way.

The Junior Hop occurs Friday evening, and the prospect for a brilliant affair was never more bright. The action of this class in postponing the event until after Lent has evidently been wise. The rink will be turned into a bower of beauty and such decorations adorn its walls and rafters as were never before seen here. Guests from out of the city will be more numerous than from within.

Prof. M. E. Cooley has mapped out three trips for his class in mechanical engineering to be taken during the spring vacation, commencing April 10th, any one of which can be taken at an estimated cost of not less than $35. First includes Massillon and Canton, Ohio, and Pittsburg, Pa., and vicinity. The second Chicago, Pullman, Joliet, Milwaukee, Grand Haven and Grand Rapids. The third Toledo, Columbus, Dayton Hamilton and Cincinnati.

The Regents, at their meeting last Wednesday, did a very commendable act in electing Dr. J. N. Martin to the chair of "Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children." Since the death of Dr. Dunster he has been filling that chair in a most acceptable manner, and it is but justice that he should be chosen to the position. Dr. Martin is a pleasant gentleman, an untiring student, and a man with the happy faculty of imparting his knowledge to others. Congratulations are in order. The students of the medical department employed a band and serenaded Dr. Martin the evening of his election. The choice gives great satisfaction among all concerned.

A niche in University life that has long been vacant will be supplied this week by the initial issue of a quarterly publication to be known as the University Record. It is edited by the faculty two of whom are appointed to superintend each issue, the first one being in charge of Professors Thomas and Hinsdale. This number contains 24 pages, royal octavo, the printed matter covering 9x6 inches of each page—two columns, with handsome margin. The contents give information upon the course required in various branches, papers descriptive of original research and investigations, etc. The best thought of the best writers and thinkers in the University will thus be given to the public, and in an entertaining manner.

The Castalian, the annual issued by the independents of the University, is nearing completion, and will be one of the largest and most elaborate publications of the kind ever issued at any college. The illustrations are not only excellent in quality, but are wonderfully numerous, and no expense has been spared to make the publication the most attractive of any preceding it in kind. Besides the cuts illustrating the subject matter, grinds, etc., there will be sixteen photogravure full page insets. There will be twenty pages of illustrated grinds. The literary contributions are excellent in quality, and good sketches of all University organizations will be found. The "private correspondence of P. B. Herring" will be entertaining to many. Portraits of the late Dr. Alex. Winchell, and Prof. Wm. P. Wells, also of Profs. Adams, Knowlton, and Dewey, with sketches by President Angell, and Profs. Knowlton, Thomas, McLaughlin and Scott. It will be a souvenir that every student and everyone connected or familiar with student life will want. The book will be placed on sale one week from to-day, and the reasonable price of 75 cents ought to make it a favorite and a winner. Its board of editors have been industrious and untiring, especially as this true of M. B. Hammond, H. D. Shoemaker, R. P. Lamont, and J. Lowenhaupt.

PERSONAL.

Hon. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, was in the city Monday.

Thos. J. Keech is trying his best to recover from the grippe.

Miss Elsie Hadley, of Illinois, lit. '89, is in the city visiting friends.

A number of her young friends were entertained by Miss Nina Fall at her home on N. Ashley ave., Friday evening last.

Dr. P. B. Rose returned from Florida last Friday, looking as if the country down there was in a prosperous condition.

Mrs. Arthur Brown, who has been confined at home for several weeks with an aggravated attack of the grippe, is recovering slowly.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Will R. Payne in this city will congratulate the couple upon the arrival of a boy heir on Monday, March 23d, at Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Harry Seymour and bride remained over Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Davison, on W. Huron st., and leave Monday evening for their home in Silver Creek, N. Y.

A Golden Wedding.

A very interesting event occurred on Forest ave. last Saturday, it being the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. George Keal. Mr. Keal is 74 years of age and his wife 70. Mr. K. was born in Lincolnshire, England, and Mrs. K. in Marcellus, N. S. He has lived in Ann Arbor 54 years, seeing it advance from a little colony, where the deer and wild turkeys rambled over the pleasant campus up to its great and marvelous prosperity. The couple have 27 grand-children, 19 of whom were present at this gathering, and a brighter, more intelligent group of young people have rarely ever met at a golden wedding. Two sons, John and Linus, with eight grand-children, living in the far west, were not present. The company numbered 43, nearly all being relatives of the family, including Mr. Stead, wife and two daughters, of Detroit. Mr. S. is a brother-in-law of Mr. Keal, is 83 and has lived in Detroit 70 years, the present city a small village when he first came there. Mrs. Sabine of Detroit, a sister of Mr. K., W. I. Keal, a nephew wife and daughter, Dexter; Mrs. Abbie Wines, and seven children of Howell; David Page, wife and five children of South Lyon; Edward Reed, wife and five children of Detroit; Wm. Whiteman, wife and two children of Ann Arbor; Charles Kimball, of Ionia; Claude and Gertrude Price of Ann Arbor; and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Clark, Ann Arbor.

The presents were numerous and elegant, among which were two pairs of gold-bowed glasses, two gold-headed silk umbrellas, one silver tea-pot, one set of silver knives and forks, a beautiful silver fruit spoon and pie knife, an elegant banquet lamp, a useful rocking chair, and one splendid oil painting, the artistic production of Miss Nellie Keal, of Dexter.

A superb banquet was greatly enjoyed by the guests, after which the entire company was photographed in a group by Randall. M. C.

Kate Barthel has been granted a decree of divorce from Matthew Barthel. The registration in the various precincts yesterday amounted to 125, divided as follows: 1st ward 21, 2d ward, 25, 3d ward 20, 4th ward 29, 5th ward, 12, 6th ward 18.

The Boards of Registration meet in the council chamber to-day to compare and correct their lists. If you have not already registered you can do so by going there and make your application.

The program at the Unity Club next Monday evening, April 6th, 1891, will consist of the following: Paper by Prof. Geo. Hempel on "Getting Settled in Berlin;" Paper by Judge W. D. Harriman on "Socrates;" Old college songs in charge of Mr. W. P. Moore.

Daniel O'Keefe, who made such an excellent run for city clerk on the republican ticket two years ago, is a candidate for the republican nomination this year. "Dannie," as he is familiarly known, is a deserving young man, and could be chosen to this position, it would be a great help to him. He is thoroughly competent, a graduate of our high school, and peculiarly fitted to perform the duties of the office.

DON'T GIVE UP

The use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. One bottle may not cure "right off" a complaint of years, but a cure is effected. As a general rule, improvement follows shortly after beginning the use of this medicine. With many people, the effect is immediately noticeable; but some constitutions are less susceptible to medicinal influences than others, and the curative process may, therefore, in such cases, be less prompt. Perseverance in using this remedy is sure of its reward at last. Sooner or later, the most stubborn blood diseases yield to

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For several years, in the spring months, I used to be troubled with a drowsy, tired feeling, and a dull pain in the small of my back, so bad, at times, as to prevent my being able to walk, the least sudden motion causing me severe distress. Frequently, boils and rashes would break out on various parts of the body. By the advice of friends and my family physician, I began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla and continued it till the poison in my blood was thoroughly eradicated."—L. W. English, Montgomery City, Mo. "My system was all run down; my skin rough and of yellowish hue. I tried various remedies, and while some of them gave me temporary relief, none of them did any permanent good. At last I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, continuing it exclusively for a considerable time, and am pleased to say that it completely

Cured Me.

I presume my liver was very much out of order, and the blood impure in consequence. I feel that I cannot too highly recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla to any one afflicted as I was.—Mrs. N. A. Smith, Glover, Vt. "For years I suffered from scrofula and blood diseases. The doctors' prescriptions and several so-called blood-purifiers being of no avail, I was at last advised by a friend to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I did so, and now feel like a new man, being fully restored to health."—C. N. Friuk, Decorah, Iowa.

For Longer Professional Training.

It is easy to see that if ten of the leading universities of the country should now issue edicts that on and after 1895 no students would be received in the schools of law and medicine that should not have completed the sophomore year in some reputable college, the first step toward a great reform would have been taken. The second step in this direction should be the announcement of a rule that no student can receive the professional degree in less than four years from the time of admission to the professional course of study. It is not difficult to find indications that the country is ready for a change of this kind. I believe it to be a great mistake to suppose that all or even a majority, of our students, are precipitate hastes to enter upon professional life. In Detroit, Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, and Buffalo, are to be found medical schools in which the degree of doctor of medicine is granted at the end of two terms of from four to eight months each. And yet in the small city of Ann Arbor, which is favored with no such clinical advantages as are afforded in a metropolis, there are at the present time, nearly 400 students pursuing a medical course of four years. So it probably would be elsewhere. President C. K. Adams in the February Forum.

If your cough keeps you awake and restless by night, take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and obtain immediate relief. This remedy allays inflammation, heals the pulmonary organs, induces sleep, and restores health. The sooner you begin the better.
