THE EAGLE SCREAMS.

I am the American Eagle,
And my wings flap together.
Likewise, I roost high,
And I eat bananas raw.
Rome may sit on her
Seven hills and howl,
But she can not
Sit on me!
Will she please put that
In her organ and grind it?
I am mostly a bird of peace,
And I was born without teeth,
But I've got talons.
That reach from the storm-
beaten coasts of the Atlantic
To the golden shores of the Pacific.
And I use the Rocky Mountains
As whetstones to sharpen them on.
I never cockle till I
Lay an egg.
And I point with pride
To the eggs I've laid
In the last hundred years or so.
I'm game from
The point of my beak
To the star-spangled tip
Of my tall feathers,
And when I begin
To scratch gravel,
Mind your eyes!
I'm the Cock of the Walk,
And the Henbird of the coddles of Liberty.
The only gallinaceous
E pluribus unum
On record.
I'm an Eagle from Eagleville.
With a scream on me that makes
Thunder sound like
Dropping cotton
On a still morning,
And my present address is Columbia,
U. S. A.!!
See?

Official Returns.

The following tables give the official returns from this county of the vote given for justice of the supreme court and regents. The first mentioned candidate is republican, the next democratic, the next prohibition, and for justice Atkinson is the labor candidate. The amendment to the constitution relative to the salary of attorney general fared well in the cities, but when it came to the rural precincts it received a black eye in most instances.

THOSE FEES.

Dr. Angell Tells Senator Doran About Them.

The following letter written by President Angell to Senator Doran, contains considerable information about the University that should be thoroughly circulated among the people:

ANN ARBOR, April 4, 1891.

My Dear Senator:—I must guess at the points on which your colleagues may need information.

1. One point on which I found some were uninformed is that the United States gave to Michigan in 1804 one township of land and in 1826 another for the endowment of a university. These lands the state sold (many of them at a ruinous sacrifice) and put the money into its treasury and pledged itself in perpetuity to pay 7 per cent on the proceeds. So that the United States fund, yielding about $38,500 annually, is really our only endowment. This forms an equitable claim for fair and generous treatment of students from all parts of the Union.

2. I found that some do know that at present there is a large discrimination in fees in favor of Michigan students and against non-residents. The fees are as follows:

IN LITERARY DEPARTMENT.
First year, Michigan students..... $30
(Being $10 matriculation, $20 annual.)
Each subsequent year..... 20
First year, non-resident..... 55
Each subsequent year..... 30
($25 matriculation, $30 annual.)

IN PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.
First year, Michigan students..... 35
($10 matriculation, $25 annual.)
Each subsequent year..... 25
First year, non-resident students..... 60
Each subsequent year..... 35

3. The total fees from non-residents, who constitute 52 per cent of all (1,258 out of 2,420), are about $60,000—twice as much as those from Michigan residents, which are about $30,000.

Now, if all the non-resident students were excluded and we taught only the Michigan students, we could not diminish the annual expenses by more than $15,000. Therefore, in this way the non-residents profit us $45,000.

The reason of this is that in the professional schools, when the proportion of non-residents is greatest, the instruction is given mainly by lecture, and it costs no more to lecture to 300 than 100. And in the literary department, where the expense is most increased by the increase of members, the additional teachers required are mainly in the lower classes, which are largely taught by instructors whose salaries are small. In every department but the law the expenses are greater than the fees. But in the law, where the expenses for salaries are about $12,000, the fees amount to about $25,000. The fees of the non-resident students alone in that department amount to $20,000, or $8,500 more than the salaries.

4. We have twice raised the fees in the last 15 years. In 1881 we did so, and as is shown in the report for 1887 (which I send you) pp. 15-19, it took us three years to get as much money from non-resident students as we had received before, and it took us six years to regain the attendance. While it may be judicious in view of the feeling in the matter to try raising them again, I am confident that for a time we should lose both students and income.

5. It should be remembered that the education of the Michigan students is worth much more by reason of the presence of students from all parts of the country. The mingling with them is itself an education in many respects more valuable than the instruction in the classroom.

6. Many of the most valuable men in the state (Judge Grant for instance) have been brought here as students by the cheap rates for education, and have remained to bless the state.

7. The utmost economy—unknown to other great universities—is practiced here. Our current expenses are about $200,000. Harvard, with fewer students, spends from $600,000 to $700,000. Cornell with about half our number spends half as much again. Yale spends considerably more than we.

8. If Bastone's theory that the University should be self-supporting were carried out, we could not have a college nor public school in the land. All cost more than the fee.

Yours truly,
JAS. B. ANGELL.

CHAPTER XII

"TO BE HONEST, AS THIS WORLD GOES."

"There's nothing in it that you may not see, will you read it?"

Mr. Wallie Dinsmore had been indulging in a good deal of casuistry of late, owing to a desire to reconcile his theory that human beings ought to help one another with his temperamental aversion to being mixed up in other people's affairs.

One morning while thus occupied he heard a carriage stop at the door and a card was brought up to him. Contrary to his usual custom in such cases, he jumped up, tossed his cigar into the fire, gave a pull to his collar and a jerk to his coat, and bade the servant conduct Mlle. Marana upstairs.

By the time she appeared he had recovered his genial serenity. He shook hands with her with the quiet cordiality of a man constantly in the habit of receiving famous prime donne in his private sitting room, and at the same time gave the servant a look which intimated that he would be not at home while this visit or remained.

"You come in good season," said he; "the owl and I have just been talking about you."

"I did not ask for Mrs. Dinsmore," began the prima donna.

"Well, I know," interposed Wallie. "I have often tried to persuade her that the morning is the proper time to receive calls, but she is still wedded to her superstitions. You must try to put up with me. I believe I should make a pretty good aunt."

The lady felt the kindness with which he endeavored to put her in her ease, and a faint color dawned in her cheeks. He went on:

"I see by the papers that you are soon to leave us. It must be pleasant to you to feel how much respect and regard, as well as renown, you have won since you came here. I hope it may soon bring you back to us?"

"Do you respect me, Mr. Dinsmore?" demanded she, fixing her eyes on him.

"I would rather you found fault with me than made it easy for me," said she with a tremor in her voice. "There is no one else I can go to."

"I don't think you need a scolding," returned Wallie, with his kindly smile. "The past is done with. I can imagine you have had an uphill time of it in many ways. But you have gone far to rehabilitate completely Mlle. Marana's character, and I should fancy she would be very reluctant to have it known that she cannot claim the merit of the vindication. Another season you would probably be free from vulgar annoyance, even were you to continue your present disguise, but in your own name and with the outside protection which it would enable you to command you would be perfectly secure. However, I shall not pretend to advise you, Mademoiselle—Miss Randolph. In the first place I am an interested party—I want you to go on singing for my own benefit; and, furthermore, I cannot tell how far the pleasures of the profession may seem to you to outweigh the drawbacks—or vice versa."

"It's the only thing I'm good for—that's all," said she, looking up at him. "I wonder what Geoffrey would say to that?" thought Wallie. "By Jove! it's outrageous what fools these boys and girls will be. They will—they seem to like it! Well, then, they deserve to have their little miseries, don't they? Of course they do! I wish I were—he checked himself and dropped his eyes, which had dwelt too long upon her loveliness. "Come, come," he said to himself severely, "this will never do. Attend to your business, old two-and-forty, and pay proper reverence to your daughter!"

He got up and said aloud: "Miss Randolph, I'm going to ask you a great favor. I'm an old man, as I needn't tell you, and I am an slave to my habits. Would you permit me to smoke a cigarette? What small wits I have got hopelessly wool-gathering if I don't keep them together with a little tobacco."

Miss Randolph smiled. "My father always smoked," said she. "It would make me feel at home."

"Dear me!" thought Wallie ruefully. "she might have let me off as an elder brother! But she takes me at my own valuation—bless her heart! Now let us see what can be done."

He lit his cigarette, and sent the smoke curling through his nose. "Art is certainly a great resource," he observed, "and a noble one. It has been said, and it may be true, that it admits of no rivals. If one's affections are unoccupied—one's human affections, I mean—are likely to remain so, I dare say one could not do better than to devote one's self wholly to art. You feel, you say, that there is nothing else you could possibly prefer to it; that you were made for music and for nothing else?"

"Nothing else," she repeated in a husky voice, feeling as if, with those words, she had surrendered her last secret of hope of happiness.

"This will come out all right," thought Wallie to himself cheerfully; "if that ass Geoffrey were only here it might be settled on the spot." Aloud he said: "That being the case, I don't see how you could be more fortunately situated. With you circumstances, expediency and inclination all pull together. It was not so with a young friend of mine once who showed remarkable talent for the stage. She had got so far as to make her debut, with every prospect of success, when she was unlucky enough to fall in love with—and be fallen in love with by—a young gentleman of good family here, a lawyer. You will hardly believe it, Miss Randolph, you are so differently constituted in every way from her," continued Wallie, gravely; "but when she discovered that he would feel pained if she remained on the stage she actually gave up her whole career! And they were married, and she has never been heard of in a public way since. And she seems very happy too! But she could never have had the same single hearted devotion to art that you have."

"I can—understand her being happy, though," said Miss Randolph, almost in a whisper. Then Wallie's heart smote him that he had played upon her. After all, what did he know about what had occurred between her and Geoffrey? There may have been a veritable tragedy instead of an ordinary lover's misunderstanding. As a matter of fact he had no suspicion of the tragic-comic mistake which was the immediate cause of their separation. He thought it probable that she had revealed her true name to him, and supposed that they had differed on the "public career" question, which he had just illustrated in his fable.

In order to give himself and her time for reflection he took up the conversation at another point. "In the event of your accepting another engagement," he said, "I suppose Inigo would be the fortunate man?"

"Nothing has been decided about that," she replied, falling with a sense of relief into the business tone. "I have been told—that is, it seems that there may be a difficulty I had not thought of—a legal trouble. This was thought of—has been receiving," she went on, after a pause, "has been paid, of course, to Mlle. Marana. The agreement according to which it is paid is signed by her—that is, not by me. So it seems that legally I am only her representative—her deputy, as it were, and she can, if she chooses, demand that I make over all the money to her. But of course all the money, or most of it, you see has been paid away for—to my father, so you see there would be trouble."

a punch of his mustache between his thumb and forefinger. He meditated for a while, staring at the owl, which silently returned his gaze. "Who is your lawyer?" he inquired at length. "I haven't any."

"Was it Inigo who?" "No—he I don't know whether it had occurred to him." The truth was that Hamilton Jocelyn, in requital of the injury to his feelings, had written the prima donna a letter, in which he had advanced the above suggestion; and he had further announced that it was his purpose immediately to acquaint the real Marana with the position of affairs, and to offer her his services in the event of a prosecution. It is doubtful whether he really contemplated any action of the kind, but it would not have softened the unloveliness of his present sensations could he have known that Beatrix was not in the least surprised or shocked at the position he had taken. It seemed to her quite in keeping with his character.

"She might give you some annoyance," Wallie admitted, after further consultation with the owl, "but I'm by no means sure she could obtain a verdict. I imagine she must have written to Inigo, definitely withdrawing from the engagement, and hence his substitution of you. Was that the way of it?"

"Yes; and I believe she paid the forfeit."

"Then I don't think you need worry. There can at any rate be no doubt that you have done the singing, and as singing is paid nowadays, four thousand dollars a night is none too much for it."

"It was three thousand the first month, and thirty-three hundred afterward," put in the prima donna.

"Inigo certainly told me when he returned from Europe last June that he got Marana for four thousand a night," Wallie affirmed. "But probably he took advantage of your being a debutante to cut it down."

"Mr. Jocelyn—that is, I think not; I was told that I received the same that she was to have had."

"Hamilton Jocelyn? Is he mixed up in this affair?" inquired Wallie, with an air of dissatisfaction.

She had intended not to bring Jocelyn's name into the conversation, but as it had slipped out she now thought it best to say, "It was he who introduced me to Gen. Inigo, and he has been acting as my agent—paying me the money. And he said," she added, wishing to do her enemy justice, "that it was by his exertions that Gen. Inigo was persuaded to raise my salary after the first month."

Wallie threw away his cigarette and rubbed his nose. "Well," he said, presently, "I dare say Jocelyn knew what he was about. I should like to hear what he has to say in Inigo's presence. Impresarios and agents are human, and need looking after occasionally."

"What I thought was," she resumed, "that if it should turn out I had no legal right to the money, I should really have to make some more, whether I liked it or not. It would have to be made in some way, you know, and papa—and there seems to be no other way but for me to go on singing, if I can get an engagement."

"As to that," said Wallie smiling, "if I wanted to make a fortune I would turn impresario and make you my single investment. Let us assume, for argument's sake, that from the pecuniary standpoint you are perfectly free either to go on or not. Now, of course there are ways in which you might cultivate music without keeping in opera. You could sing at a church, or when you felt in the mood, at a private or public concert. But there is something else in the profession besides the singing—there is the audience. Do you know what I mean?"

some than usual to have nothing to do now that I know what it is to do something."

"Speaking in a general way, however, don't you think it would be unwise to seek consolation as such until one is quite certain, beyond the possibility of a doubt, that consolation was the thing one needed?"

"Oh, of course there can be no doubt!" she answered. But there was in her tone, and in the sudden, inquiring expansion of her eyes, a feeling less of conviction than of misgiving and suspense, as if the earnest emphasis with which he had spoken had led her to suspect that he might know something of great moment to her. He had no such knowledge, but he had a strong persuasion that she was the victim of a misfortune that might be set right; and he perceived that the time was now come when he might speak to her openly on the subject which had all along been in both their minds. But as he opened his mouth to do so there came a knock at the door, and the servant came in with a letter.

"The messenger boy's waiting, sir," he said, "and wants to know if there's an answer."

"Tell him," said Wallie sternly, "to go to—Hestopped. The handwriting on the envelope had caught his eye. "If you will excuse me?" he said, glancing at his visitor, while he tore the letter open. He took in its contents with a look. "No answer—I'll answer it in person," he said to the servant, who withdrew.

"Miss Randolph," said Wallie, standing in front of her with the letter in his hand, and a peculiar smile on his face, "this is from a friend of mine whom you know. There's nothing in it that you may not see; will you read it?"

She took the letter, saw the signature, let her hand fall to her lap for a moment, then lifted it again and read as follows:

DEAR WALLIE—I returned this morning. In Ireland I met a young fellow named Randolph, with a lady who turned out to be Mlle. Marana. I didn't know what to think, but came on at once in order to warn her namesake here. At the hotel I found Randolph and his father. It appears that the former and Marana had arrived a few hours before me on another steamer. Our Marana went out this morning, no one knows where. From something I happened to hear old Randolph say to his son I begin to suspect I have made an astonishingly wicked blunder. I will explain when I see you, which must be at once. The two ladies must not meet at present, if we can help it. If you get this in time must me here at 1 o'clock. G. BELLINGHAM.

"Shall we go to the hotel together?" "Wallie, when she had read the letter."

"No, I cannot see him. Oh, my brother!" she pressed her hands over her face, and bent her head down on the arm of the chair.

"What a debt of gratitude the world owes to such men as Drs. Ayer and Jenner—the latter for the great discovery of vaccination, and the former for his Extract of Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers! Who can estimate how much these discoveries have benefited the race!"

Bound to have its "turn" some day—the worm.

"How are the acoustics of that theater?" "The what?" "Acoustic properties." "Oh, ah, yes. The acoustic properties. Why, it struck me they were rather gaudy."—Harper's Bazar.

A DOG'S WONDERFUL FIDELITY.

His Master Was Killed But the Dog Still Guarded His Coat and Pail. "A touching incident happened in my town the other day," said a resident of Piqua, O., to a reporter of the St. Louis Star-Sayings, "and one which demonstrates the instinct and fidelity of a dog. "A neighbor of mine was the owner of a handsome Newfoundland, which he had reared from a puppy, and to which he was much attached. The dog returned his owner's affection, and was extremely fond of following him to his day's work. The master did not encourage this, but sometimes the Newfoundland would creep along stealthily in the rear until he was too far from home to be sent back, and then would come to the front with every sign of delight in his own cleverness. One morning about three weeks ago he had followed his way to a house where his master was at work upon the roof. To keep the dog from straying away the man put down his coat and dinner pail and said: "There, old fellow, you followed me without leave and now you may stay and watch my things." The dog lay down as he was directed and the master went to his work. In the course of the forenoon the man fell from a scaffold and was killed. His body was carried to his home, where his wife was lying ill, but no one could induce the dog to leave his post beside the coat and dinner pail. For two days he remained and refused to eat and gnashed his teeth whenever an attempt was made to remove the things of which he had been left in charge. At the end of that time the wife of the dead man, too ill to leave her bed, suggested that the dog would obey her little son, a boy of two and one-half years, just old enough to talk plainly. The boy was taken to the place, and, moved by the loss of his father and the excitement of the moment, ran to the dog, put his arms around his shaggy neck, and burst into tears. The dog seemed to understand that this was no ordinary fit of weeping. He licked the child's hair soothingly, and when the boy took up his father's coat and pail the faithful creature followed submissively at his heels as if he recognized the little one now as his master."

ALLIGATOR AND SHARK.

They Begin a Desperate Fight. A surveying corps at the mouth of the St. Sebastian river related to a gentleman, a few days ago, at Titusville, and he to a reporter of the Palatka Herald, the particulars of a most desperate encounter between an alligator and a shark at the first mentioned place. The engineers had pitched their tents near the river, and just above its mouth, and were eating their dinner under a small clump of palms. All at once their attention was attracted to a violent commotion in the water near the shore. At first the bodies were so active and made the spray, intermingled with blood, so heavy that they could not make out what the two objects were. Finally, after about half an hour of such work, the monsters seemed to be growing weak and weary. It was then discovered to be a fight to the death between a large alligator and a man-eating shark. The former seemed to be trying to go to shallow water, while the shark was equally as determined not to go. The fight was still going on, although growing less vigorous all the time, when one of the parties got his Winchester and shot him both. On pulling them ashore the alligator was found minus a foreleg, bit off as smooth as if cut off with a surgeon's knife. The shark had numerous ugly gashes on his body which would probably have killed him soon. The party skinned the alligator and saved some of the teeth of the shark as mementoes of this singular and sanguinary encounter.

BOTTLES BY MACHINERY.

The First Successful Attempt to Thus Make Them in This Country. During the last six weeks the American Bottle Company, whose works are located at Woodbury, N. J., have succeeded in making bottles by machinery, being the first successful attempt to do so in this country, says the New York Sun. The machinery used is an English invention, which has been used in that country for two years. The glass is gathered in the usual way and allowed to run from the rod into an iron cup, which measures the quantity needed for making the bottle. From below a hollow iron plunger is pushed up through the bottom of the cup and through the mass, and the cup is reversed, leaving the glass suspended from the hollow plunger. The cup, which is hinged, is then removed, and the movement of a lever admits a small quantity of air through the plunger, after which the bulb is flattened at the bottom and dropped into the mold, which is then closed and the air applied. This completes the bottle, which is taken while hot to the annealing oven. By the old process the ring at the top of the bottle's neck was made by a second operation. By the machine the bottle comes from the mold complete. Men totally inexperienced in the handling of glass are able, it is said, after six weeks' practice, to turn out as much as an experienced blower with a blow-pipe.

Private Art Collections in Rome.

The Italian government having abolished the law of succession, by virtue of which the great private art collections in Rome descended to the eldest son of each family with the bulk of the parental fortune, these famous collections are now in danger of being scattered, as the parental fortunes are divided among the children, and the expense of maintaining the galleries for the public benefit falls heavily upon the head of the family. Several owners having sold some of their finest works to defray these expenses, the government is alarmed at the prospect of the national masterpieces leaving the country and is considering measures to prevent it and keep the galleries open to the public.

GEMS IN VERSE.

Only Once. It was a pitiful mistake, An error sad and grim; I waited for the railway train; The light was low and dim. It came at last, and from the car There stepped a dainty dame, And looking up and down the place She straight unto me came. "Oh, Jack!" she cried, "Oh, dear old Jack!" And kissed me as she spake; Then looked again, and frightened cried, "Oh, what a bad mistake!" I said, "Forgive me, maiden fair, That I am not your Jack, And as regards the kiss you gave, 'Til straightway give it back."

There Is No Death.

There is no death! The stars go down To rise upon some fairer shore; And bright in Heaven's jeweled crown They shine for evermore. There is no death! The dust we tread Shall change beneath the summer showers To golden grain or mellowed fruit, Or rainbow tinted flowers. The granite rocks disorganize, And feed the hungry moss they bear; The forest leaves drink daily life From out the vernal air. There is no death! The leaves may fall, And flowers may fade and pass away; They only wait through wintry hours The coming of the May. There is no death! An angel form Walks o'er the earth with silent tread; He bears our best loved things away: And then we call them "dead."

He leaves our hearts all desolate;

He plucks our fairest, sweetest flowers; Transplanted into bliss, they now Adorn immortal bowers. The birdlike voice, whose joyous tones Made glad these evening's song and strife, Sings now an everlasting strain Around the tree of life. Where'er he sees a smile too bright, Or heart too pure for faint and vice, He bears it to that world of light, To dwell in Paradise. Born unto that brighter life, They leave us but to come again; With joy we welcome them the same— Except their sin and pain. And ever near us, though unseen, The dear immortal spirits tread; For all the boundless universe Is life—there are no dead.

What Might Be Done.

What might be done if men were wise— What glorious deeds, my suffering brother, Would they unite, In love and right, And cease their scorn of one another. Oppression's heart might be imbued With kindling drops of loving kindness, And knowledge pour, From shore to shore, Light on the eyes of mental blindness. All slavery, warfare, lies and wrongs; All vice and crime might die together; And wine and corn, To each man born, Be free as warmth in summer weather. The meanest wretch that ever trod, The deapest sunk in guilt and sorrow, Might stand erect, In self respect, And share the teeming world tomorrow. What might be done? This might be done: And more than this, my suffering brother— More than the tongue E'er said or sang, If men were wise and loved each other. —Charles Mackay.

Memory Is Possession.

They are poor Who have lost nothing; they are poorer far Who, losing, have forgotten; they most poor Of all who lose and wish they might forget. For life is one, and in its warp and woof There runs a thread of gold that glitters fair, And sometimes in the pattern shows most Where there are somber colors. It is true That we have better. But oh! this thread of gold We would not have it tarnish; let us turn Oft and look back upon the wondrous web, And when it shineth sometimes we shall know That memory is possession. —Jean Ingelow.

A Song.

A song for the girl I love— God love her! A song for the eyes of tender smile, And the fragrant mouth that melts on mine, That shimmering tresses uncontrolled That clasp her neck with tendrils gold; The blossom mouth and the dainty chin, And the little dimples out and in— The girl I love— God love her! A song for the girl I loved— God love her! A song for the eyes of faded light, And the cheek whose red roses waned to white; The quiet brow with its shadow and gleam, And the dark hair drooped in a long, deep dream; The small hands crossed for their churchyard rest, And the lilies dead on her sweet dead breast. The girl I loved— God love her! —Friedrick Langbridge.

"Has Been."

That melancholy phrase, "It might have been," However sad, doth its heart enfold A hidden germ of romance; for I hold Whatever might have been shall be. Though in Some other realm and life the soul must win The goal that erst was possible. But cold And cruel as the sound of frozen mold Dropped on a coffin are the words "has been." "She has been beautiful," "He has been great," "Rome has been powerful," "We sigh and say, 'It is the pitying crust we toss decay. The dirge we breathe o'er some degenerate state. An epitaph for Fame's unburied dead. God pity those who live to hear it said!" —Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Youth.

We would not turn back the dial, Nor live over the past again; We would not the path re-travel, Nor barter the "now" for the "then." Yet, oh, for the bounding pulses, And the strength to do and dare, When life was one grand endeavor, And work clasped hands with prayer! —Julia C. R. Dorr.

Sin.

Those lives far nobler that contend and win The close, hard fight with beautiful, fierce Sin, Than those who go untempted to their graves, Deeming the ignorance that haply saves Their souls, some splendid wisdom of their own. —Constance Fenimore Woolson.

Desolation.

By the weed strewn, brown, desolate reaches, Lonely and half broken hearted, We met and we parted, By the weed strewn, brown, desolate reaches. —William W. Martin.

A "coming out" party.—The hedgehog.

Some big guns—Canons of the Church.

An Advertising Speculation.

Among the many incidents characteristic of human nature is one which recently came under the observation of a young man connected with a prominent publishing house, one of the oldest in the country, and which has for three generations been conducted by the descendants of the original founder. With other publications there was issued a neat little treatise on household economy, showing how, on a small income, it was possible to live comfortably. The author was a woman, and gave her book the title, "How She Did It." The book had a fairly good sale, but presently there appeared to be a sudden and unaccountable demand for the volume, and every fortnight the house was puzzled by orders for more. It ran through a fourth edition before the young superintendent learned the cause. The orders had invariably come from the same source, and it was then discovered that the persistent buyer advertised the book extensively in sporting and other journals. His method was simplicity itself. The title given, he would insert, "Mailed secure for fifty cents, sealed."—Truth.

About Printers' Ink.

This is the day of printers' ink, and the prizes are for those who use it. Your traditions and prejudices may be to the contrary, but the world doesn't care a fig for them. The man who sits and waits for his trade in these days gets left. Don't advertise, don't quote your price lists, don't see that your city or your business is represented in your patronizing territory, and don't stand up manfully alongside of those who are fighting for your rights and interests, and there can be but one result—shriveling up. Good salesmen, first class articles, gilt edged credit are not enough. They are excellent, necessary—but not long run. Uncle Sam's mails go every day, carrying their freight of special offers, new crops, long credits, cash discounts, job lots and lovers' tales from everywhere. And in the end your trade is seduced. It's the world-old story of the honeyed tongue and the open ear. In the fierce competition of these days old habits and associations simply cannot stand the pressure. The trade is for the man who uses printers' ink.—Grocery World.

Development in Advertising.

In no department of the modern newspaper has there been greater and more marked improvements shown than in the field of advertising. There is a greater display of taste and literary style in the composition, and an evident effort is made to appeal to the intelligence and refinement of the reader. This is seen not only in the advertisements of the large mercantile establishments, where trained skill is employed, but as well in the three line advertisement which is written by the advertiser himself, and which, in terseness and directness of style, can lay claim to great literary merit. The development of advertising may yet lead to the establishment of special courses of training in business colleges. Already nearly $25,000,000 are spent annually in the United States in newspaper advertising, every dollar of which, if used judiciously, has returned a large interest to the investor.—Philadelphia Press.

You Must Have the Stuff.

Advertising alone—no matter how excellent—cannot build up a big trade or make a house great; yet vital importance hinges upon advertising, for very few concerns have ever reached colossal proportions without liberal and intelligent advertising. I have in my mind four words that mean much: Variety, Style, Quality, Price! The store that has these, and in its advertisements tells its story in a plain, fair, square way that's attractive and readable, is bound to prosper.—Henry Curtin in Clothing Gazette.

Don't Be Afraid.

Too little advertising is like sowing too little seed. A farmer in planting corn puts a number of grains into each hill, and is satisfied if one good healthy stalk comes from each planting. It's the constant advertiser that is bound to attract attention. It's the succession of bright, catchy advertisements that refuse to be ignored. That the proper time must be allowed for the fruit to grow, ripen and be gathered is as true as that wheat cannot be reaped the day after it is sown.—Printer's Ink.

Mix Your Ink with Sense.

Of course there's money in printers' ink, but the man who makes the most intelligent use of it gets the most money out of it. It does not pay to advertise something you have not got, or anything you cannot do, and do well. The man who advertises a fraud must have a "good" fraud, and he who advertises bargains in goods must be prepared to satisfy his customers. Any advertiser should undertake to present some sort of a claim for patronage.

Not a Charity.

In any just view of a quarter of a century of journalistic work the most prominent feature, and one giving great satisfaction to respectable publishers, is that printing a newspaper has become recognized as a business and not a charity.—Owen Scott.

MORTAR-SPOTTED SKIN.

Covered with Scales. Awful Spectacle. Cured in Five Weeks by the Cuticura Remedies.

About the first of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later on, when it began to look like spots of mortar spotted on, and which came off in layers accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw, then the next night the scales being formed meanwhile were scratched off again. In vain did I consult all the doctors in the county, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and purchased them from my druggist and tried almost immediately relief. I began to notice that the scaly eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared one by one, until I had been fully cured. I had the disease thirteen months before I began taking the REMEDIES, and in four or five weeks I was entirely cured. My disease was eczema and psoriasis. I know of a great many who have taken the REMEDIES, and thank me for the knowledge of them, especially mothers who have babes with scaly eruptions on their heads and bodies. I cannot express my thanks to you. My body was covered with scales, and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is as clear as a baby's. GEO. COTNEY, Merrill, Wis.

VINEGAR BITTERS

PURELY VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL. CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. For twenty-five years the experience of millions of sufferers, old and young, male and female, have gratefully endorsed the miraculous virtues of this Pharmaceutical Paradox of the Age. A vitalizing stimulant without alcohol. A nerve sedative without narcotics. A blood purifier without poisons. A liver cleanser. A purely vegetable tissue-maker, promoting digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion and respiration. A life-giving tonic, pure and simple, without the disastrous reactions of the deadly compounds of rum and alcohol usually sold as bitters.

Was never known before in the World.

Its discovery among the medicinal fruits, roots and herbs of California.

WAS A MIRACLE.

and their combination into a phenomenal life-giving tonic.

A TRIUMPH of the CHEMICAL ART.

The only change made in the formula during twenty-five years has been to present it in two combinations.

The old original remains unchanged, but being stronger, more laxative and better. A new form more agreeable to the taste and better adapted to delicate women and children, but comprising the same tonic properties, is now made and the essence of the world is challenged to produce the equal of this.

TRULY & ONLY TEMPERANCE BITTERS KNOWN or to produce a purely vegetable bitter or medicine of any kind, whose action is at once so safe, so certain and so comprehensive as this.

CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS, or any compound which from its varied action upon the vital functions is equal to the CURE OF SO MANY DISEASES.

Their name is legion—Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Catarrh, Jaundice, Bilious Diseases, Sciatica, Skin Diseases and Bolls, Consumption, Piles and all disorders arising from indigestion, impure blood, nervous prostration, and dilapidated constitution. From any cause give way to it like mist before the sun, while its singular power over THE DEADLY MICROBE AND OMINIPRESENT BACTERIA indicates its superiority in ALL diseases of malarial origin, and renders it the BEST VERMIFUGE KNOWN.

The eleventh birthday of Clara Jacobs was observed by the gathering of about thirty young misses at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Jacobs, on Terrace Hill, Friday evening last. James H. Morris, who had been a resident of this city some forty years or over, was found dead last Friday, April 10th, in a barn, near Chelsea, into which he had to seek shelter from the storm. Frederick Schmid, of the firm of Mack & Schmid, has been appointed a member of the Board of Commissioners having in their keeping the affairs of the Eastern Asylum for the Insane at Pontiac. The people of the 4th ward will be all torn up over an election of an alderman, on the 27th inst., to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of William Miller, to take the city clerkship. A man named Simon Nantonick, known sometimes as Sam Schubert, was found dead in the barn of Mrs. Anton Eisele, on E. Catharine st., Monday evening, at about half-past six o'clock. He was a single man, and had been given a home for the past few years through the charity of Mrs. Eisele.

Perhaps our democratic friends will remember the case of Morrow vs. Horton in the present legislature. We believe that Morrow was seated on the ground that although he had resigned the office of postmaster before election, the resignation was not accepted until after election. That is a democratic precedent, though it probably doesn't count in a case where the same principle reverses the parties. How will our democratic friends jump over that decision in the case of city clerk, here at home, where the identical circumstances occur?

Jas. Beemis, of Ypsilanti town, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Beemis says he has two brothers living in Canada who have been engaged for many years in the hay business, marketing their goods in Buffalo. Now that the McKinley bill has gone into operation they have to pay $2 on every ton they deliver. The market has not advanced in Buffalo, but they are obliged to shell out their little $2 for every ton they sell there. They are terribly down on the McKinley bill, and it would be impossible to convince them that our protective tariff was not a tax on the foreign seller. It is a mystery to them, however, that anyone should claim that tariff a tax upon our own citizens.

The common council met as a returning board last Thursday evening, and canvassed the returns for city officers. When the office of mayor was reached Mr. Allmendinger by counsel asked the board for a recount of the vote by which Mr. Doty was returned as being elected mayor by two pluralities. The request, although made in a perfectly legal and gentlemanly manner, would have received no consideration at the hands of that body had not President Howlett stated that it was no more than fair that Mr. Sawyer should be heard in the matter. The whip had been so vigorously applied, however, during the day that no one dared to act except as a partisan. If there was no doubt of Mr. Doty's election, why should the democrats fear a recount? It would simply have been a matter of justice. It could have harmed no one. The strict integrity and Spartan honor of Mr. Doty is such that not a person in Ann Arbor believes that he would hold an office not obtained by the fairest of means. He believes and no doubt a large majority of the people believe, that he had more votes than his republican opponent, but a recount would have established the fact beyond dispute, if it were a fact, and his political enemies as well as his friends been perfectly satisfied. That the majority should rule everybody desires, or should desire.

A Wonder Worker. Mr. Frank Huffman, a young man of Burlington, Ohio, states that he has been under the care of two prominent physicians, and used their treatment until he was not able to get around. They pronounced his case to be Consumption and incurable. He was persuaded to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds and at that time was not able to walk across the street without resting. He found, before he had used half of a dollar bottle that he was much better; he continued to use it and is to-day enjoying good health. If you have any Throat, Lung or Chest trouble try it. We guarantee satisfaction. Trial bottle free at Eberbach & Son's Drug Store.

A bill introduced by Representative Richardson to tax railroads according to their earnings, will, it is thought, put about $15,000 into the treasury of this county. If the rumors are true that this county is in debt some $50,000, owing to the failure of the Board of Supervisors to levy the taxes they should have levied last fall, this county needs that tax very much. Tax-payers will doubtless feel their pocket-books tingle next December, in a way that will be unpleasant.

Several farmers about the country report very bad luck with lambs this spring, but certainly Mr. Jesse Hewens who lives a few miles south of the city, has no reason to complain. He has 52 very high grade Shropshire breeding ewes, and 49 of them have had lambs. These 49 are raising 64 lambs. This is over 130 per cent, and if anyone can beat it we shall be glad to publish the report. Two ewes are raising triplets, and every ewe that had a lamb is raising at least one.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

I wonder if that young man that was swearing on the street the other evening knows that it was not the mark of a gentleman. "Take not the name of the Lord thy God in vain for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain." If you would gain the respect of Christian people, business men, professional men and of all good society, don't swear. A large and well known firm once advertised for a number of men to sell goods for them. They stated that no one that used profane language, or drank, or used tobacco need apply. Young man are you a slave to any of the vices of sin? If so, break away at once, do not drink, don't swear. Be sure your sins will find you out.—Augusta cor. Ypsilanti Commercial.

Milan Leader: President Harrison evidently made a great mistake when he stuck to partisan rules and appointed Mr. Blaine of Maine to the exalted position of Secretary of State instead of casting aside party precedent and appointing the statesman representing the Detroit district of Monroe county. The Detroit Evening News of the 6th inst. says: "A big individual, with a fierce mustache of sanguinary hue, presented himself before a board of registration in Lansing, and expressed a desire to be registered. 'What is your name?' asked one of the members of the board. 'Charles D. Dodge,' was the reply. 'How long have you resided in Lansing?' was the next query. 'About three months,' said Mr. Dodge, 'and I live at the Livingston hotel.' The answers of the stranger being entirely satisfactory his name was added to the list. When one of the members ventured to ask the applicant's occupation. 'Why, I am a member of the legislature,' innocently replied Mr. Dodge. Upon being informed that by voting in Lansing he would forfeit his present residence and thereby lose his seat in the legislature, the profound statesman drew himself up to his full height and cited that section of the constitution which provides that a person shall not be deemed to have either gained or lost a residence by being employed in the service of the state. It was a good deal of a task but Rep. Dodge was finally convinced that the provision did not entitle a servant of the state to vote wherever he pleased and still retain his original residence, and yet Mr. Dodge hails from the county of Monroe, which has long been known as the breeding place of statesmen."

WASHTENAW HORTICULTURE.

Prof. Winchell a Benefactor, Fruit Trees, Care for Tomatoes, Our Roads, Best Early Potatoes, Strawberries, Young Men Welcome, A Successful Meeting.

President J. Austin Scott conducted the April meeting of the society with his usual promptness and executive ability. The corresponding secretary read the resolutions in memoriam of Prof. Alexander Winchell, published by the Ann Arbor Courier on the 18th of March. Mr. Ganzhorn spoke of the good work the professor accomplished by an article on the "Michigan Fruit Belt," published in Harper's Monthly in 1866. President Scott alluded to the noble character of Prof. Winchell with whom he was personally acquainted and thanked Emil Baur for the resolutions of condolence and the notes on the publications of the professor, by which the advantages the State of Michigan offers to agriculture and horticulture became known, not only in this country but all over Europe. He hoped that this legislature would recognize these services which the late professor gave to the state, paying for these publications out of his own pocket. This State owes a debt to the memory of Mr. Winchell which was denied him by the legislature of 1871, and ever since.

The committee on collections for the expense of distributing fruit at Detroit, sent by the Ann Arbor fruit car, reported eleven shippers that had not paid their dues. The corresponding secretary was requested to address these parties asking them to settle their accounts at once with Mr. L. Gruner, and he prays for grace to address these parties without murmur.

Mr. Ganzhorn spoke of the care of fruit trees after planting. So many trees die for want of cultivation during the hot season and the nursery man gets the blame for it. Many fitting remarks were made by others on this topic.

The president gave a list of apples for general use, based on the best results of his own experience. Sorry we lost it with the rest of our papers after the meeting. We write from memory.

The paper on the profitability of the tomatoe by S. D. Lennon was highly appreciated and many questions were answered by this intelligent horticulturist. "It takes knowledge and experience and a good market to succeed. With a canning factory in our midst the growing of tomatoes at 20c per bushel would be profitable. A neighboring city has three factories in successful operation, making it pay for the grower. Formerly this vegetable was grown for ornament now there is scarcely a family that does not use one to five bushels in a single season. Of late years the growing of tomatoes in the South for our Northern markets has become a mine of wealth. In some localities they are shipped not simply by the car, but by the whole train at once, with big pay to growers, shippers and sellers.

The remarks of our roads by Emil Baur were short. The roads are bad this spring. The damage to man, beast, and wheel is great. It would pay to have a better system of road-making. We have not everywhere coarse gravel handy. The roadbed as shown by Prof. Davis, must be kept dry. A stone crusher is a necessity for city and country roads. Will this legislature give us a uniform system for the construction of county roads as proposed by the petition of this society? The city of Ann Arbor can boast of many things save its wretched roads. Our boarders in the jail seem to be either diminishing or slow in turning out stone. A stone crusher that makes away with 65 tons in ten hours would be an "educator," of which even the U. of M. would be proud of.

H. C. Markham's discourse, with specimens of the earliest and best potatoes, presented to the meeting, was highly appreciated. The following varieties were shown in their succession. Tonhocks very early, Sunlit, Everitt Summit, Finches' Perfection, E. Pearl, Rose's 74. Those who wish to get perfect seed potatoes and learn all about their culture should consult Mr. Markham.

John Allmand gave his experience on strawberry growing. He was the first grower here and made some money at 55c per quart, until they came down to 2c, when he lost money. The outlook for a good crop appears favorable now. Very likely some have to ship their berries to a distant market. Hayward, Michel, Bubach and other varieties were recommended.

Committee appointed on the feasibility of selling our fruit through one party—B. J. Conrad, J. Ganzhorn, O. R. L. Crozier.

Committee on diseases of peach trees—A. A. Crozier, J. Ganzhorn, J. J. Parshall. Both committees to report in writing to the May meeting.

This meeting was well attended, full of enthusiasm and work. A member of the U. of M. seemed to take a great interest taking notes of the proceedings. Students of the University are very welcome and will profit by the proceedings. Other young men should avail themselves of this opportunity. The progress of our civilization depends on fruit consumption.

Exhibit—M. S. White, fine specimens of the Ben Davis apple. E. Baur, Cutbert raspberry syrup.

FRUIT NOTES.

List of apples for home use and the market, presented at the April meeting of the Washtenaw Horticultural Society by J. Austin Scott:

Table with columns for Summer and Winter varieties of apples.

Emil Baur has received the first shipment of fruit trees the last week in March, from a nursery that has the reputation of half a century. L. Gruner has already planted 350 of these trees, mostly peaches and plums. It pays to order trees early through resident fruitmen. The farmers of Washtenaw county have ordered $18,000 worth of trees through non-resident parties, in which case the freight excepted, not a cent of the sum remains in the county. They will learn what the difference is between a non-resident party, who takes in another county next year, and a resident experienced fruit-grower. Perhaps next year they will find, what the trees, grown on low lands, will do for the highlands of Washtenaw.

Fruit prospects so far are splendid and 100,000 bushels of peaches belong to the vortabilities. E. BAUR.

Literary Notes.

Helen Gardner, the author of "Is This Your Son, My Lord?" corrects the impression that would naturally follow the reading of her frank story, that it had been prompted by Tolstoy's "Kreutzer Sonata." The manuscript of her story, it would seem, was in the hands of the Arena Publishing Company long before the first English version of the Russian book appeared, and was first intended as a serial story for "The Arena Magazine." "Is This Your Son, My Lord?" is enjoying a phenomenal sale. Although less than four months have elapsed since it was brought out by the Arena Publishing Company, four editions of five thousand copies each have been issued.

In the April number of The Forum, Representative R. Q. Mills, of Texas, will make a critical analysis of the census, to show that it is so seriously defective as to be useless. In the same number of The Forum, Senator Hoar of Massachusetts, who was the champion of the Election Bill in the Senate, constructs an argument to prove that the republican party was untrue to its precedents and to its principles, because the late congress adjourned without enacting the Election Bill. He argues that the series of great historical achievements of the republican party suffered so serious a breach by this inactivity, that the party must find new vigor to make its future in any way worthy of its past.

Whether treated, each one as an individual production or generally as a class, Harper's Periodicals represent the highest type of American literary and illustrative work. When on the part of many whose profession it is to cater to the reading public there is a tendency to meet more than half way a taste which is by no means healthy, and coarse matter is provided, garnished with bad pictures, the blunting of the artistic sense is of small moment when compared with the abasement of the moral one. Never have the publishers of the Magazine, the Weekly or Bazaar or Young People lowered that high standard, which was essential in their first numbers. Modifications and improvements have, of course, followed, and to-day it is difficult to conceive how they could be bettered. Look at the literary side alone, the best-known writers at home and abroad contribute to these publications. For the proper presentation of subject, pictorially, leading artists furnish their designs to be translated by wood cuts, or process, whichever method shows better the illustrative idea. A column eulogistic of these publications might be written and would barely suffice to specify their many singular merits. It must be at least satisfactory to the publishers to know that wherever English is the language in use there a Magazine, a Weekly, a Bazaar, or a Young People, bearing the imprint of Harper's & Bros., is read. There are other triumphs than "the drum beats" which circle the world.—N. Y. Times.

You Were Once Beautiful, Madam, but your glass tells you that you are no longer. Why is this? It is because you are suffering from functional derangement. You may "paint an inch thick," as Hamlet says, but you cannot conceal the ravages of disease. No wonder you are low-spirited. But why suffer any longer? Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will restore the bloom to your cheek, the sparkle to the eyes, the old-time lightness to your step. It will make a happy woman of you again. It cures all those weaknesses, backache, bearing-down pains peculiar to your sex. The only medicine guaranteed by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case or money refunded. See guarantee on bottle wrapper.

Protection for the Farmer.

There seems to be no limit to the efforts of free trade attorneys to prejudice farmer voters against the policy of Protection for home industries. A commonly employed means to this end is urging the farmer to believe that our tariff legislation is framed with the view to discriminate in favor of manufactured products and against the products of agriculture. As there is not a single clause in the law susceptible of such a construction, none but the unwary will be misled by the charge of discrimination against the farmer's interests.

Some idea of the extent to which farm products are directly protected can be gained by a glance at statistics within reach of all who care to inspect them. And the honest student of these figures is likely to be quite forcibly impressed by the necessity for maintaining adequate barriers against foreign competition so long as the home market of our farmers is menaced by products of foreign rivals.

During the last fiscal year foreigners sold in the United States over $42,000,000 worth of farm products, without taking into the account more than $16,000,000 worth of wool imported.

Here are the items: Animals (other than breeding) $ 3,355,632; Breadstuffs 5,726,000; Flax 2,883,754; Flax and hemp fibers 30,189,474; Hay 1,448,867; Hops 1,659,696; Meats and dairy products 1,998,009; Leaf tobacco 12,579,813; Vegetables 3,794,462.

There is not a single item here that could not just as well have been grown by our citizens, and because of this fact our tariff required foreigners to pay for the privilege of selling here. They were accordingly charged the snug sum of four million and a half million dollars, and the rate they were forced to lighten the taxes that otherwise would have been paid by citizens of the United States.

And it is this arrangement free trade attorneys denounce as an outrage, and join with foreigners to have repealed. The farmers gave their answer in 1888. Let that decision be affirmed as often as the question is presented.

Governor Hill's One Good Act.

Whether Governor Hill resigns or retains the Governorship, there is one act of his administration which will be regarded with favor by good citizens of all parties. It is his recommendation that the State of New York take action to secure roads worthy of her greatness and prosperity. No public works enhance the reputation, and consequently the prosperity, of a neighborhood so promptly and so largely as good roads. They are the first necessity of civilization, and the surest signs of its advance. Good roads, good schools and good government are closely related, and the proof of having public spirit in any community is its willingness to make its local communication as convenient and as easy as possible. There is no surer sign of intelligence in such a community than the resolution that its local taxes, which are largely devoted to road-making, shall be spent only by men who understand that good roads are not made by ignorance and carelessness, but by intelligence and experience.—Harper's Weekly.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is a sure cure for dandruff."—J. W. Bowen, Editor Enquirer, McArthur, Ohio.

Why is a tin pan tied to dog's tail like death?—It's bound to occur. From what country did English cockneys' horses come?—Austria.

A Choice List of Summer Resorts.

In the Lake regions of Wisconsin, Northern Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa and the two Dakotas, there are hundreds of charming localities pre-eminently fitted for summer homes. Among the following selected list are names familiar to many of our readers as the perfection of Northern summer resorts. Nearly all of the Wisconsin points of interest are within a short distance from Chicago or Milwaukee, and none of them are so far away from the "busy marts of civilization" that they cannot be reached in a few hours of travel, by frequent trains, over the finest roads in the northwest—the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, and Milwaukee & Northern Railroad.

CARL SCHURZ.

The most prominent German-American is undoubtedly Carl Schurz, ex-United States senator from Missouri, and secretary of the interior in the Hayes administration. Mr. Schurz has had a stormy career. He took part in the great German revolutionary movement in 1848, fought in several battles, was sentenced to be shot, was lucky enough to escape and after a year's exile in Paris and London came to our shores. He made Wisconsin his home where he soon became a political factor, speaking and writing for the republican party in its first campaign—that of 1856. His services were rewarded by Lincoln, who in 1860 made him our minister to Spain. He was then 32 years old and had only been over here nine years. He resigned at the outbreak of the Civil War and was at once made a brigadier general. He fought at Bull Run and was promoted to be a major-general. After the war he started the "Western Post" in St. Louis. In 1868 he was elected U. S. senator from Missouri. He became conspicuous in that body for his broad and statesmanlike views, fighting all abuses, an implacable foe of the lobby and a great reformer in every way. It was only a just tribute to his uprightness that Hayes made him his secretary of the interior, this being the last and highest political place he has held. After the expiration of Hayes's term he came to New York where he has since been living, chiefly devoted to his business interests. He is now managing director in New York of the great "Hamburg-American Packet Company." General Schurz has become completely reconciled to Germany and the man who was once condemned to be shot has become a great friend of Prince Bismarck, whom he visits every time he is in Europe and who values his friendship greatly. Among his German countrymen in America Schurz is very popular and is by them considered to be the leading German-American.

The Mainspring of Our Progress is High Wages.

Extract from address by Wendell Phillips. Putting aside all theories, every lover of progress must see with profound regret the introduction here of any element which will lessen wages. The mainspring of our progress is high wages—wages at such a level that the workman can spare his wife to preside over a home, can command leisure, go to lectures, take a newspaper and lift himself from the deadening level of mere toil. That dollar left after all the bills are paid on Saturday night means education, independence, self-respect, manhood; it increases the value of every acre near by, fills the town with dwellings, opens public libraries and crowds them, dots the continent with cities, and cobwebs it with railways. The one remaining dollar insures progress and guarantees millions to its owner, better than a score of statutes. It is worth more than a thousand colleges and makes armies and police superfluous.

The Sewers of Paris.

are one of the modern wonders of the world. That marvelous network of underground streams, over which the tourist can travel by rail and in boats, constitutes the bowels of the gay capital. This labyrinth of streams is kept with scrupulous care; for any obstruction in the flow of the sewage would be attended with serious results to the health of the inhabitants of the city above. The sewers of the human system are the liver and bowels, and in order to keep disease out of the wonderful city of which they are a part, they must be kept always free and unobstructed. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets are the best laxative and cathartic known for the purpose. Tiny sugar-coated granules, in vials, always fresh.

At what time of the day was Adam created?—Just before Eve. What bird is a lady fond of wearing around her neck?—The ruff.
