WILLIAM E. SIMONDS.

W. E. Simonds, commissioner of patents, was born at Collinsville, Canton county, Connecticut, November 24th, 1842. He received a first-class education in Connecticut schools, and at the Yale Law School. He has practiced law at Hartford and was lecturer at Yale on patent law. He is also the author of several books treating on patent law. He enlisted in the 25th Connecticut Regiment during the war, and was present at the battle of Irish Bend, La. Mr. Simonds was a member of the state assembly, of which body he was speaker in 1885. He was elected to Congress as a republican in 1890, and was serving as congressman when President Harrison appointed him to his patent office.

We Can't Talk,

Without showing the condition of our teeth. Every laugh exposes them. In order not to be ashamed of them, let us use that standard dentifrice, SOZODONT, which is sure to keep them white and spotless. No tartar can encrust them, no canker affect the dental bone, if SOZODONT is regularly used. It is a botanical preparation, and its beneficial effects on the teeth and gums are marvelous as it removes all discolorations, and renders the gums hard and rosy.

President Keech Resigns.

Thomas J. Keech, who for the past three years or more has held the responsible position of president of the Board of Public Works, placed his resignation in the hands of Mayor Doty last week Thursday.

This is to be regretted. Since occupying the position Mr. Keech has made one of the most competent and able officials the city has ever had.

A man can not be expected to give a considerable portion of his time to public business, without compensation, especially when his own business demands every minute of it. This he has done, willingly and gladly. But the time has come when he feels that he can do it no longer, and so he resigns the position.

This is a loss to the city. The position is a thankless one, without reward of any kind except a clear conscience and a happy feeling that every man must have who benefits his fellow man by his work.

Mr. Keech has been a prompt, clear-headed, able member of that important board, and it is a matter of regret that he feels obliged to relinquish the position.

The city of Ann Arbor is indebted to Mr. Keech for much of its tidy and neat appearance. He has pushed forward every improvement possible with the limited means at hand to do with, and nothing that was for the public good has ever lacked his assistance.

After all, it is not always a money consideration that is most appreciated. Sometimes it is the gratitude of a public that is appreciative of one's work. In this respect Mr. Keech certainly retires with laurels. He has been a faithful and untiring public servant, and the entire community sincerely regret the loss of his services.

She Had Seen Him Before.

A few days since, a young gentleman was canvassing the third ward for children to attend the new Sunday school being formed in that ward for Sunday afternoons. Seeing a number of children on the street, he accosted a little girl somewhat after this fashion:

"My little dear, wouldn't you like to attend a Sunday school?"
"I don't know," was the reply.
"Don't you think it would be nice to go to a school every Sunday afternoon, where you would learn to sing, hear entertaining stories, and be taught how to be good?"

"Oh, yes thir," said the little one, "but I couldn't go alone."
"Haven't you any older sisters or brothers to go with you?"
"Yes thir, I've got two big sisters, but they rather go out walking with Mr. ———, on Sunday afternoon."

The questioner just then called to mind having seen the roughish eyes of the little girl before, and suddenly ceased asking questions.

He is said to have blushed, cleared his throat, and passed on, resolved to hereafter pay a little more attention to the younger members of the family where he calls.

This story is just as it was told our reporter. He doesn't vouch for the authenticity of it, however.

Joseph Murphy, Friday Evening.

The ever popular Joseph Murphy will be at the Grand Opera House Friday evening next. "Every time I see Mr. Murphy I think better of the Irish," a young English lady said to her escort as she was leaving the Globe Theatre, Boston, the other night, while some of the laughter caused by the Kerry Gow still remained to brighten her face. And she was not the only one unacquainted with the Irish character who might have uttered like sentiment. The prejudice against the race has been heightened by the presentation on the stage of the most ridiculous and brutal pictures of Irish life. Its almost total obliteration has been effected, in no small measure, through the same medium, the stage. It needed only that Irish men and women should be represented before the public faithfully that they should be appreciated, and the need was met by such men as Joseph Murphy, and by none more than him. He deserves from his countrymen for his work, everlasting praise, and the Irish can hardly perform a more religious act than praying that his voice may long be preserved to him.

Prompt relief to sick headache, dizziness, nausea, constipation, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose. Small size, small pill. Small dose.

Republicans "not in it" in this County.

In this county the democrats have carried everything as usual. Their national and state ticket gets about 1,200; Gorman, for congress, 900; Clark for senator about 600; both democratic representatives are elected; Snekey, for county treasurer, gets under 500; Brenner for sheriff, about 900; Hughes for register, 1,000; and so on.

In this city the Cleveland elector at large received 1,190 votes against 1,065 for the Harrison; Smith district elector, 1,157, Hiscock 1,060. Morse carried the city against Rich by 104 plurality. Hamilton, republican, for senator had 188 plurality; and Braun, republican, for representative, 22 plurality.

It is impossible to give the accurate vote of the county at so early a date, next week we shall give the official figures.

The result is not very encouraging or pleasing for the republicans, but it is possible that the time may come when the people will desire a change.

Arrested for Illegal Voting.

A student by the name of L. D. Carr was arrested Tuesday, on a charge of illegal voting, at the instance of Jas. B. Bach, chairman of the democratic committee. Mr. Carr is the janitor of the Congregational church, a man who has no other home, and who, if not allowed to vote here, would be disfranchised. A great many of our citizens claim that the law does not intend to disfranchise any one; that every man is entitled to a vote somewhere; and that a young man working his way through the university, who has no other home, is entitled to a vote here. Also that a married man, having his family here and keeping house, is entitled to citizenship here. These questions come up every year, and our registration boards and election boards quarrel over them. If a decision could be had forever settling this vexed question, it would be a good thing.

Robert Downing at the Grand.

The coming of so distinguished a stage artist as Robert Downing, the American tragedian, next Tuesday, Nov. 15, cannot be regarded as other than an event of genuine importance, but when it is added that he will present here Sheridan Knowles' great play, "Virginius," it will be seen at once that Mr. Downing's appearance will be the theatrical happening of the season. Mr. Downing has been before the public for about 15 years, and for the last half decade, has starred in the legitimate drama. Mr. Downing's treatment of the two characters of The Gladiator and Virginius have lifted the actor into a tremendous and well merited popularity. Mr. Downing's stage impersonations are said to be powerful, life like, warmly humane and to bear the subtle mark of a master mind. His grasp of character is keenly artistic, and his interpretations therefore tinged with a political magnetism which makes his work stand out distinctive and unique. It is scarcely to be wondered at therefore, that writers in the Metropolitan Journals have declared Mr. Downing a positive genius. The supporting company, which by the way, is said to be one of the very best organizations now before the public, is headed by Miss Eugenie Blair, one of the most beautiful and talented of American actresses. For years she has played the legitimate heroine and her development in art has been continuous, and she now holds an enviable position before the public. She brings to the interpretation of the Roman maidens an unusual sweetness of manner and delicacy of feeling added to which is a grace of personality at once admirable and full of personal charm.

Dr. De Lewis, the eminent Boston physician, in a magazine article says: "A radical error underlies nearly all medical treatment of catarrh. It is not a disease of the man's nose; it is a disease of the man, showing itself in the nose—a local exhibition of a Constitutional trouble." Therefore, he argues, the use of snuff and other local applications is wrong, and while they seem to give temporary relief, they really do more harm than good. Other leading authorities agree with Dr. Lewis. Hence, the only proper method of cure for catarrh is by taking a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, reaching every part of the body through the blood, does eliminate all impurities and make the whole man healthier. It removes the cause of the trouble and restores the diseased membrane to proper condition. That this is the practical result is proven by thousands of people who have been cured of catarrh by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

From the news obtained up to the four of going to press, it looks as though the democrats had been successful, and that Grover Cleveland would again be the next president of the United States. This by virtue of a fraudulent solid south, and an organization in New York City, known as Tammany, fumed the world over for its extreme purity, piety and lovable qualities. The votes of the people have had but little to do in settling the contest.

And yet the result is not certain. Four years ago the democrats claimed the election for three days, and then found themselves in error. Such may be the case yet. The returns are meagre.

In this state that the republican ticket has been successful there is little doubt, and the state officers will hereafter be in the hands of republicans. The legislature is also republican, insuring a republican United States senator.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT.

Rome remained a republic four hundred years. The United States has but recently passed her first century. Will the life of this republic reach that of Rome, even?

When it is possible for thieves, thugs and bums, congregated in our great cities to carry the fate of the nation in their hands, as is now the case in New York city, will they let the citizens of this republic pause and ask: "Whither are we drifting?"

It is an impossibility to hold a fair election in New York City. The so-called election inspectors, appointed by Tammany, do the bidding of that organization, even if it be murder.

A respectable man going to the polls to vote in many of the precincts of New York, takes his life in his hands when he goes there, and if he escapes without being killed or maimed for life he is fortunate.

A man who votes against Tammany in three-fourths of the voting precincts of New York City is a marked man, and he is treated as is the man, white or black who dares vote against the democratic party in Georgia.

The shotgun policy of the south has its counterpart in the thug policy of the slums of New York, Chicago, and many more of our large cities.

If this republic stands as a republic another hundred years, some different method will have to be adopted for choosing rulers.

The large cities will have to be disfranchised the same as Washington, D. C. is. When a city becomes so corrupt that properly appointed officials of both the great political parties will not be allowed in the booths at the voting precincts, to see that a free ballot and fair count exists, then it is time to take steps to bar that community out of the privilege of helping to choose the rulers of the nation.

And unless something of the kind is done, there will not be a nation any great length of time to choose rulers for.

Force, fraud, intimidation, murder, are rocks on which the glorious ship of state will soon founder.

Talk about the oppression of Russia! Look at the license under the name of freedom, here in America!

The great question, the one most interesting to our nation, and the one most discussed just now will be settled next Tuesday.—Saline Observer.

The observations of the Observer are most always correct, but the above is an error. The great question now before the people is, shall we continue to paddle and wade through the mud, or shall we take the bull by the horns, go to work and build decent highways? That's the great question of the day, and it isn't settled yet, by a long shot.

To drop right down, sudden-like, from column upon column of political notes, to nary a word, is rather a hard drop for the writer who must fill up so many columns of space. It tries his wits in a serious manner.

The voter did it with his little ballot.

Don't vote—no don't vote again—until next spring.

The country is safe! Thought perhaps you had not heard of this fact.

No bad roads; no mud domination! That ought to be the cry of every good citizen from now to the time when the legislature meets.

Now that the election is a thing of the past, and will not absorb the time and attention of the public prints and public men, can not the question of good roads and bad roads be made a red hot one? Give us less mud and less laziness and more good, hard, common sense work.

A good way to make tramps mend their ways is to make them mend the public highways. If every tramp were compelled to earn a meal before he got it, by preparing enough macadam to fix even one bad rut, there would be fewer bad roads on the road or fewer tramps on it.—Dexter News.

That's the idea, exactly. It is a false sentiment that prevents the enactment of laws compelling tramps and mendicants from being obliged to work for the food and lodgings they receive at our county jails. The News is on the right track.

At a recent prayer-meeting in New Jersey, a democratic brother prayed that God would cause the democratic party to hang together, whereupon a republican brother present shouted: "Amen, amen." This led the democratic brother to make the emendation in his prayer: "Not, O Lord, in the sense our republican brother means, but in the spirit of accord and concord." "Any cord will do," interjected the republican. The pastor immediately made a rule that hereafter politics should be kept out of the prayer-meeting.

Autumn sings its tune for winter's desolation. The farmer can take a six month's recreation from last summer's toil and sigh for cider and the forbidden fruit—the apple.—Ex.

Talking about beans, Harvey Seney takes the lead. Last Saturday he hauled to town on one load with one team, a few pounds over 105 bushels, receiving $169.90 for the same.—Chelsea Herald.

Rev. Dr. Chas. Reilly opens a fair for St. Mary's church, Chelsea, to-night, and will tell the people about his trip "From the Hills of Lyndon to the Hills of Rome." The fair lasts two nights.

The male population of Dexter was increased by three last week. The three came naked and to stay. Further particulars can be obtained by interviewing C. E. Coy, Mr. Winegar and J. O. Thompson.—Dexter Leader.

Some of the bicyclists of Michigan are being "done up" by a couple of sharpers. One of them strikes a town with a very fair wheel which he sells at a very reasonable price on account of straightened circumstances. The second man appears upon the scene shortly after and readily recognizes his wheel. Of course, he can prove his ownership and the purchaser is so, to the amount of $20 or $30.—So. Lyon Picket.

No paper published in this state is more careful to give proper credit for its items taken from other papers than the Courier. If anything has been taken from the Northville Record and credited to another paper, it has been the result of accident.

Ypsilanti's new industry, "The Harrison & Miller Coal Mining Machine Co.," will smuggle up to the pump factory and keep house in the same building, while the Coffee Roasting Co. stands by to keep things warm for them.

While Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Ives were absent from home recently, some one entered their residence and ransacked everything from cellar to garret.—Chelsea Standard. As long as they didn't wool-sack them and carry them away, Mr. Ives probably feels grateful.

A. E. Lettis has stalken this season, from one colony of bees, 98 full sections of honey, or over 100 pounds. This is the most sweetness we have heard reported from one hive this season.—So. Lyon Excelsior. Those bees make bread for Mr. Lettis. Can it be called bee-bread?

The C. E. are planning a series of monthly missionary meetings to be given in place of the Sunday evening service. Father Endeavor Clark is taking a trip around the world and his experience and observations will furnish the backbone of these meetings.—Chelsea Standard.

We called at the gun factory on Monday and found everything booming. Mr. Stanley has been obliged to employ more men to keep up with his orders, and by the way, they are manufacturing a very nice looking gun down there.—Northville cor. Plymouth Mail. Great guns!

Asa Darling, a farmer living six miles south of Ypsilanti, reports that the bones of a mastodon have been discovered on his farm. Among the finds reported, is a tooth weighing three pounds, and a tusk eight and one-half feet long. Mr. Darling is reported to be a truthful man.

We will undoubtedly have an exceedingly cold winter unless all signs fail. Corn husks are extra thick, muskrat houses are three times their usual size, coal is $7 a ton, and editors' pocket books are woefully empty. If there are any other signs will some kind hearted reader please notify us?—Brooklyn Exponent.

D. Vredenburg showed us two enormous beetles last Monday. They weighed 8 1/2 and 9 pounds respectively. The beetles are of the blood variety and the seed was brought from Illinois nineteen years ago. If there are any more beetles in this vicinity that can beat these beetles, we should like to gaze on them.—So. Lyon Picket.

It is a caution the way new guns have been pouring into this burg of late, whether it is a fact that gun dealers have been striving to work up a big trade, or whether the sportsmen have become enthusiastic over the idea of new tools, we are unable to say. However some fine selections have been made and the gun club boys will no longer take a back seat.—Saline Observer.

Hon. E. P. Allen was here Saturday evening, but owing to delayed trains, did not arrive until late. Hon. J. D. Shall filled in the time before Mr. Allen's arrival, with a short talk, and E. G. Hanford sang a song, which were both well taken. Mr. Allen is always welcomed at Clinton, and his speech was one of the very best given here this fall. He had to come one hundred and fifty miles to fill the appointment.—Clinton Local.

Milan Leader: "Albert Humphrey was in Ann Arbor one day last week. He says that last Friday night during the big wind storm, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Davis, formerly of this place, held a 2x4 scantly against the door nearly all night to keep the house right side up, and that they were so busy at it that they did not hear the roof of the stable next door when it blew off with a terrific crash."

This item is going the grand rounds: "Lands in Michigan," says a well posted traveler, "will advance from 25 to 35 per cent. in the next two years, and I'll wager my head on it. The boom in the northwest has exploded, and the farmers who do not seek further costly ventures in the south are flocking back to the well settled states. Michigan will get her full share. An advance in real estate is inevitable."

A Jackson young lady suggested to her betrothed the other night that they begin practicing economy by both occupying the same chair. This is economy with a vengeance, for of course the poor fellow had to bear the burden.—Grass Lake News. The editor of the News must be a crusty old benedict to speak of her as a "burden." If she is one, we should not be afraid to wager a fair sized pumpkin that he would bear such a burden and squeeze it to his heart in an ecstasy of delight, and sigh for more.

If any town or city can make a better showing than Manchester in the organization of a lecture course, we want to hear from them. The high school committee, under the leadership of Prof. Essery, in one week's time sold 250 season tickets for the course, secured, billed and sold single tickets for the Kolophons who gave the first entertainment on Thursday night, and after paying all expenses put in the bank $250. The first entertainment was a decided success and our people have full faith in the succeeding ones being likewise.—Manchester Enterprise.

The Leslie Local has found an old named Facey who has lived for some time on 75 cents a week. He is 77 years of age, is quite feeble, and Several of the faculty and quite a number of the students attended the lecture given by Ingersoll at Ann Arbor last Monday evening. All were charmed by the great orator's eloquence.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

They must have been easily charmed, for the eloquence that Ingersoll displayed that night was all on paper.

On Sunday evening next, at the M. E. church, Rev. Wm. Dawe, D. D., will deliver a lecture before the Wesleyan Guild, upon "The Drama of the Reformation." This lecture has been twice delivered at Thousand Island Park. The St. Lawrence Daily says: "One of the most eloquent orators that I have met in my rambles is Dr. Dawe. His lecture on the Reformation was a masterly effort. He traced the web of history backward and pictured many touching scenes, and so eloquent was the appeal when he asked, 'What shall we do with the Bible?' that the audience shouted a response."

A Sunday school has been started in the 3d ward, the school house being used for a meeting place, the hour being 3 o'clock p. m. It is under the auspices of the Christian Association, and last Sunday had an attendance of 167. The idea is an excellent one. May it continue to prosper. Hon. J. T. Jacobs is the superintendent.

The latest venture in the high school is that the students inform each other of the daily news. Each morning one class is expected to talk to the students upon the principal news items of the day. This is an excellent plan of learning the students the great importance of reading the daily newspapers.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

Those students have found the true road to knowledge.

The Powlerville Observer of Nov. 27, was a double edition. It contained a handsome write up of that pushing village, and many illustrations of its streets, business houses, schools, churches and prominent people. It also has a picture of the place after the great fire of March, 1891. The Observer has a right to feel very proud of its "Trade edition." It is a hummer.

On Wednesday evening last, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Walz, of W. Liberty st., occurred the marriage of Miss Amanda Walz and Mr. Jonas Otto, of this city. Rev. Max Helm performing the ceremony. The guests were about 100 in number, and all relatives of the bride or groom. Many handsome presents were received by the couple, who went directly to their home, No. 64 west Liberty st.

It is asserted by all who were present at the Rink last Friday evening, that Mrs. Hazlett's address was the best one delivered this year. She made her points clear and plain, and there was no mistaking her arguments. On account of the rain the audience was not as large as it ought to have been. One enthusiastic auditor next day said: "I tell you she was grand. I actually believe that she would have converted a mugwump had there been one present. She was the best political speaker I ever heard, without exception." From every side came these good words for Mrs. Hazlett.

The revised programme for the Choral Union series of concerts, to be given at University hall, is as follows: Theodore Thomas Orchestra Nov. 21. Handel's "Messiah," Dec. 21. THE HAMILTON MIRACLE,
THE CASE INVESTIGATED BY A GLOBE REPORTER.
THE FACTS FULLY VERIFIED.
One of the Most Remarkable Cases on Record.

A Man Pronounced by Eminent Physicians Permanently Disabled Fully Recovered—Fac-simile of the Check for $1,000 Paid by Royal Templars of Temperance for Total Disability—Hundreds of Visitors.

Toronto Daily Globe, July 25.—This is an age of doubt; especially in regard to cures by patent medicines, and without reason, for too often have the sick and their near and dear loved ones been deceived by highly recommended nostrums that were swallowed to be of less avail than much water. The old, old fable of the boy and the wolf applies too frequently to many of the specific concoctions for curing the ills that flesh is heir to, and when a real cure is effected by a genuine remedy those who might be benefited fight shy of it, saying, "it was 'cure, cure,' so often before that I won't try it." When such a state of affairs exists it is advisable that assurance should be doubly sure.

A few weeks ago a marvelous and almost miraculous cure was made known to Canadians through the medium of the Hamilton newspapers. It was stated that Mr. John Marshall, a well-known resident of Hamilton, by the aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, had been snatched from the very jaws of death, and placed upon his feet and with more than even health and strength and even brighter spirits than he had experienced for years before. This remarkable statement naturally excited the wonder of almost a continent. Some believed, some doubted, although the facts were placed so clearly as to ward off the slightest suspicion of fraud. To investigate the very extraordinary cure and place before the people of Canada and the United States verification or otherwise of it was the special mission of a Globe reporter a few days ago.

A close inquiry into the circumstances first showed that Mr. John Marshall, whose residence is 25 Little William street, in the northeast portion of the city, while employed as foreman for the Canadian Oil Company, five years ago, fell upon the verge of an oil vat and hurt his back. Thinking little of the affair, Mr. Marshall continued to work on, but after a few months he became ill, gradually got worse, and in August, four years ago, became stricken with the dread disease, locomotor ataxia—a disease attacking the nerves and rendering that portion of the system attacked, perfectly helpless, proclaimed by the physicians to be incurable—while left him from the waist downwards without feeling and utterly unable to move his lower limbs. All he was able to do was to raise himself by the aid of sticks and crutches and drag himself around the house and occasionally to the corner of the street on fine days. His legs were without feeling, pins and even knives were stuck into them without the sick man extending any inconvenience. He could take a walking stick and beat his legs until the blows resounded through the house and yet he felt nothing. During all these years of torture Mr. Marshall consulted every doctor of ability in the city; tried every form of treatment and took almost every kind of patent medicine, but without receiving one little relief. The agony was frequently so intense that he was obliged to take morphia pills in order to receive a reasonable amount of sleep.

As the months and years passed by, although the doctors continued to treat him in various ways, they plainly told the suffering man that he could get no better, the disease was set down in the works of specialists as incurable. The doomed man was a member of the United Empire Council, No. 190, Royal Templars of Temperance, and under the discouraging circumstances he thought it available to apply for the payment of the total disability claim of $1,000 allowed by the order on its insurance policy. Application was accordingly made, but before the claim was granted the patient had to offer conclusive proof of his total disability to the chief examiner, and Mr. Marshall was sent to Toronto for a special electrical treatment. It proved no more successful than the others that had preceded it, and a number of city doctors and the chief medical examiner of the order signed the medical certificate of total disability and Mr. Marshall received from the Dominion Council of the Royal Templars, a check for $1,000 last November. One day last February came Mr. Marshall's salvation although he did not accept it at first. A little pamphlet telling of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the diseases they cured, was thrown into the house, but it was placed aside and no notice was taken of it for weeks. One day the sick man re-read the circular and concluded to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, although Mrs. Marshall tried hard to dissuade him, saying they would be as ineffectual as all the others; but on April 14—memorable day to him—Mr. Marshall began to take the pills, one after each meal for a start. In a few days a change was noticed and as he continued to take the pills he gradually improved and in a little over a month he was able to take the train for Toronto and visit an astonished brother-in-law. Now he can walk four or five miles with any of his friends.

The Globe representative paid a visit to the home of the man thus rescued from a living death. When the reporter's mission was explained, Mr. Marshall's face lighted up with a smile, which caused a responsive one to rise upon the features of his wife, and he expressed his perfect willingness to tell all that was asked of him.

"Why, I feel a better man now than I did ten years ago," said he, cheerfully. "It's four years next August since I did a day's work, but I can soon make it a fortnight again. About my illness? It was all caused through my falling and hurting my back. I kept getting worse until I couldn't get off a chair without a stick or crutches. The lower part of my body was useless. I tried every doctor and every kind of patent medicine, spending hundreds of dollars. Everything that was likely to help me I got, but I might as well have thrown it in the bay. I suppose my wife has shown you the apparatus I used at one time or another. A dozen city doctors gave me up. I got enough electric shocks for half a dozen men, but they did me no good. I lost control of my bowels and water, and couldn't sleep without morphia. During the day my legs were cold and I had to sit by the stove wrapped in a blanket, suffering intense agony from nervous pains in the legs, neck and head. Yes, I received from the Royal Templars a $1,000 check, being totally unable to follow my employments. One day in April I took a notion to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, carefully following the directions accompanying each box. I recovered my appetite and regained control of my bowels and water, and went on getting better and stronger and now you see me stronger and more healthy than I was for years before I was taken ill. I tell you I am feeling first-class," and Mr. Marshall gave the lower part of his back a good thumping, afterwards going up and down the room at a lively gait.

"I weigh 160 pounds to-day," he continued, "and I've gained 30 pounds since I first took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I haven't such a thing as a pain or ache about me, and another thing, I can walk as easily in the dark as in the light."

Mr. Marshall offered to make an affidavit to the truth of the above story, but the reporter considered that wholly unnecessary. He carried conviction to the inquirer's mind by the way in which he told the story, and no gainsaying the fact that the cure was one of the most marvelous in the nineteenth century. All the neighbors bore testimony to the genuineness of the cure. Some of them even expected to see Mr. Marshall on his feet again and regarded his restoration to health as nothing short of marvelous.

The headquarters of the Royal Templars of Temperance for Canada are in Hamilton. At the publishing house of the order Mr. W. W. Buchanan, general manager and one of the most prominent temperance advocates of the Dominion, was found in response to the reporter's question he said: "Oh, yes, I am well acquainted with Mr. John Marshall. He has been a member of one of the councils of this city for about seven years. He is a well known citizen and a reliable temperance man. About four years ago he was first taken seriously ill and his case was brought before the order. The provisions under which the total disability claim is paid in our organization are very strict. The weekly sick benefit is payable to any person under the doctor's care, who is unable to follow his usual avocation, but the total disability is a comparatively large sum, only paid a member who is disabled for life, and declared by medical men to be entirely past all hope of recovery. In Mr. Marshall's case there was some difficulty. It is true; he was examined upon a number of occasions, covering a period of upward of two years. The medical men who examined him all agreed that there was little hope of recovery, but they would not give the definite declaration that our law demands—that the claimant was permanently and totally disabled—until last November. When the declaration by two regular physicians was made and our Dominion Medical referee, we paid Mr. Marshall the total disability benefit of one thousand dollars. He was paid by a check on the Bank of Montreal. There is no doubt whatever about the remarkable character of Mr. Marshall's cure. A large number of our members in this city were intimately acquainted with Mr. Marshall and called upon him frequently. He was unanimous in the belief that he was past all hope of recovery. His cure is looked upon as next to a miracle. I have conversed with him a number of times about it, and he gives the whole credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and the application of cold water which is recommended as a subsidiary treatment by the proprietors of the medicine. He drops into my office every day or two and is apparently enjoying good health now."

The general offices of the order are in the old Bank of Upper Canada building, just opposite the publishing house. Mr. J. H. Land, the Dominion Secretary, was easily found and in response to the questions asked simply corroborated all that the general manager had said. Mr. Land is a neighbor of Mr. Marshall, living within a block of him in the northeast part of the city. He was well acquainted with him for years before he was taken sick, and pronounced his recovery as one of the most remarkable things in all his experience.

"I have not much faith in patent nostrums," said Mr. Land. "Mr. Marshall's case proves beyond a doubt that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a wonderful medicine. He seems to have exhausted all other means and methods of treatment during his illness and all without any benefit, but his recovery was rapid and wonderful immediately after he commenced using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Inquiries among the city druggists disclosed the fact that an extraordinary demand had arisen for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and that the claims made for them by the proprietors are borne out by numerous cures.

John A. Barr, a well-known and popular dispenser of drugs here, told the reporter that he knew of no patent medicine that had such a demand upon it, or one that had done all that was promised for it. He told of several cases of great relief and cure that had come under his notice. Mr. Wm. Webster, after suffering from ataxia for years, from the first had found certain relief from taking the pills, and he is now a new man. Mr. George Lees, after years of illness of a similar nature, had taken the pills, and was able to walk out greatly improved in health. Another case Mr. Barr vouched for was a city patient, who had been cured by the pills of the effects of a grippé, after having been given up by the doctors. Many others had spoken highly of the Pink Pills as a fine remedy for nervous and blood disorders. Other druggists told the same story.

A further investigation revealed the fact that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not a patent medicine in the sense in which that term is usually understood, but are a scientific preparation successfully used in general practice for many years before being offered to the public generally. They contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of a grippé, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases depending upon vitiated humors in the blood, such as eczema, chronic cystitis, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities, and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In the case of men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature.

On further inquiry the writer found that these pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Brockville, Ontario, and are sold in boxes (never in loose form) by the dozen or hundred at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, from either address. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment comparatively inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

Literary Notes.

The New England Magazine gives a warmer welcome to the younger American poets than any of its older competitors, and the November issue is as interesting in this regard as any of the preceding numbers. It contains poems by Richard Hovey, the author of "Lancelot and Guinevere," so well received by the critics upon its recent publication; J. Torrey Conner, Allen Eastman Cross, Mary Clark Huntington, William P. Andrews and others.

Harper's Young People for November 1st, beginning the fourteenth volume of that unrivalled publication, will be a double number of 32 pages, and will contain an unusually rich variety of attractions. Noteworthy among its contents will be the opening chapters of a new serial by Kirk Munroe, entitled "Raftsmen," a story of the Mississippi River, appropriately illustrated. Boys who have read Mr. Munroe's earlier stories of adventure will need no introduction to this take, which is the latest of the famous "Mate" series.

The Arena has been termed the "Review which dares, in counter-distinction to the many reviews which cater to popular tastes, to be a leader of thought and a defender of the oppressed." In 1893 the Arena will present the best thought of the ablest and progressive thinkers of the age. For example, the December Arena, which commences a new volume, will contain papers by Napoleon Nay (grandson of the great French Marshal), Dr. A. Nicolson, D. D., one of England's greatest Shakespearean scholars; Dr. Lyman Abbot, D. D.; Bishop J. L. Spalding, Helen Campbell, Professor Swing, T. V. Powderly and others.

Messrs. D. Appleton & Co. will publish immediately a striking volume by W. H. Davenport-Adams, entitled "Warriors of the Crescent." This story of Oriental magnificence, of glittering campaigns, fatalistic heroism, and the pillage of the marvelous riches of India, by the Sultans of Ghazni and their followers, comes to the reader like new tales of the Arabian Nights. Here we may read the exploits of Mahmud, Timur the Tartar, and the Great Moguls. It is a splendid and little known chapter of history, and Mr. Adams' graphic, vivid style clothes history with the garb of romance. Many who read the dazzling records of Shah Jahan, the True Star of the Faith, or Aurangzib, the Conqueror of the Universe, will find a new world opened to them in these pictures of magnificent Oriental despotism. This volume will be uniform with Pictures from Roman Life and Story (illustrated), by Prof. A. J. Church, who has added a book of remarkable interest and permanent merit to his sketches of Roman civilization.

Dairy Notes.

A cross of Jersey and good feed makes a good cow.

A regular time for feeding is of the utmost importance.

Shade in summer is as grateful for stock as it is for man.

Milk-giving quality is as important in the sow as in the cow.

Ascertain the merits and demerits of a cow before buying her.

Two pounds of butter per day each for 3,000 cows is the report.

Improved stock is now so plenty that none need to breed scrubs.

It would seem that 87 per cent. of water in milk is enough without adding to it.

Making milk gives a cow a good appetite. See that she has means to gratify it.

Exercise and air are necessary to the cow, though it may reduce the flow of milk.

If you feed the pasture too close, you deprive it of the power to absorb sufficient air.

Every dairyman should have a portable creamery, to be independent and in case of emergencies.

When cows are in an advanced stage of lactation, shallow setting of their milk is better than deep.

Two things are requisite in making good butter—a good butter cow and a good butter maker.

The dairy sire to be prepotent should be descended from a long line of dairy cows of great natural capacity.

It takes more food to build up an animal than can be saved to let it run down, besides loss of thrift and time.

Milk producing food should be fed to dairy cows, not fattening foods. A variety should be provided when possible.

The fat test is the one the creamery-man wants. "It puts the whole matter of measurements entirely within his own hands."

It isn't a question of thoroughbreds; all fairly good cows will make good butter when the care and conditions are right.

The man who feeds the best cows in the best way and sells the best goods in the best market rarely complains of hard times.

High feeding in the sense of developing to its fullest extent the natural capacity, does not injure the constitution, but rather, strengthens it.

If the cow is not free from disease, care of utensils will not prevent the germs of death from entering the body through the milk which we use.

Out of every hundred farmers and dairymen, ninety-nine injure their live stock by under-feeding where one impairs their constitutions by over-feeding.

A cow over-fed will not digest all her food, thus injuring her milk and the butter made from it. Good digestion, and assimilation are imperative necessities.

Denmark is talking of adopting a legal national mark for her butter, complaints having been made that that butter from other countries is bought as Danish.

In feeding dairy cows supply all the proper food that can be digested and turned into milk. The profit consists in getting the largest possible product from a given number of cows.

No man can taste or smell perfectly who take shis toddy, chews, smokes, or has the smell of the barn upon his clothes, and it takes a perfect taster and a perfect smeller to make first-class butter.

Patiently study the likes and dislikes of each member of your herd of dairy cows, as well as their capacity to digest and assimilate food. Dairy cows are easily overfed and thereby injured for an entire season.

One advantage of good ensilage is that it adds practically a new kind of food to the list available in the winter. The addition of ensilage counts in milk production and it is cheaper than any other food.

The successful dairyman of the future will be a specialist, either a butter maker, a cheese factory patron, or a city milk seller. The cow does not exist that can be profitably used for all three of these demands.—John Gould.

Do not use soap and water to wash dairy utensils; rinse first with cold water, then wash with hot water, in which a handful of sal soda has been thrown, then scour with salt, finishing by rinsing with boiling-hot water.

Every cow has an individuality, and should be fed accordingly. Some cows give milk that will make fine flavored butter, others do not, therefore select, if you can, the former; for good butter cannot be made from poor milk.

The cow inherits the habit of producing well at the pail, or she inherits the habit of producing fat on her ribs and back. The former is what we are after if we are keeping her for dairy work. She may also acquire habits.

Whenever whey or buttermilk, or any other substance to which salt has been added, is to be tested, the sulphuric acid must be added with great care in small portions at a time, shaking the contents of the bottle at each addition.—Dr. Babcock.

The Minnesota experiment station tried the experiment of dehorning a herd of dairy cows, and the conclusion is that while there is a temporary loss in the flow of milk and butter fat, the normal flow is soon recovered and no permanent injury is done.

Water from a stagnant pool, or a well which gets the soakage from decay and filth, may have lurking within it a poison that, conveyed to the milk, finds its victims in the human family. It is through this source that typhoid fever has been known to have its origin.

A writer in the Northwestern Agriculturalist says: "A heifer that is fed for large production enlarges her productive capacity and grows more and more profitable every year, while scant food scurms the milking tendency, even in the well-bred cow of great natural possibilities.

The creamery man covers his packages as fast as filled, usually sealing them with wet salt and fine cloth. Too many women do not think this important, but leave the butter exposed to the air until carried to the store, and turned over to the merchant to pack—when he gets time.—Agriculturist.

Feed regularly and milk just as regularly. The days of milking at one hour to-day and another hour to-morrow, watering three to-day and once to-morrow, have gone by, except with the old-fashioned dairy-man, who must either reform his methods or fail in the dairy business.—Northwestern Agriculturalist.

The more milk a young cow can be made to give the more she is capable of giving and the capacity may be increased up to her natural limit.

Professor Hunter Nicholson concludes that whatever articles of food enter into the ration of a dairy cow they need to be mixed with discretion, at the rate of, say, fifty per cent. discretion.

An Iowa butter dealer gives this direction for distinguishing butter from oleomargarine. Cut a piece of the questioned butter in halves. If ever it saw the inside of a churn there will be watery exudations right in the track of the knife, but if it is a combination of prepared and disguised fat, there will be a smooth, greasy surface only.

Six pounds of corn meal and two pounds of bran are taken as the standard winter ration in feeding for butter at the experiment stations. Substituting gluten meal for corn meal increases the milk, but reduces the butter. Linseed meal in place of corn meal decreases the milk but increases the butter. Linseed meal made soft butter; gluten meal made poor butter; oats made the yellowest butter and the driest. Bran butter was white, soft and poorly flavored. A combination of corn meal, cotton-seed meal and linseed meal is recommended.

How Tammany Works.

Election is passed, and the battle is over, but that the people may know something about what it costs to be a republican in what is supposed to be civilized New York, we quote the following from the Detroit Tribune of Monday. If every person who can read, would read this in an unprejudiced manner, it does seem as though it would have an influence:

"One thing is manifested here which is lamentable in the extreme. In conversation with democrats who have been betting on Cleveland carrying this state, each and every one of them expresses the belief that Tammany can 'produce' a majority in this city and in Brooklyn which will neutralize the honest votes of the republicans north of Harlem. In other words, in all their betting they are gambling upon the hope of fraud and treason—they are hoping for a riot and they will undoubtedly undertake to cause riots and shooting affrays at the polling places early in the morning of election day. One of them, who is a newspaper correspondent, says:

"As soon as a gun is fired, the respectable people, all of them republicans, will leave the polls and go to their houses and places of business. Then the Tammany workers will handle the ballot boxes to suit themselves. We want to kill a few federal supervisors, and the rest will be easy enough."

"That is the way these democrats talk unreservedly among personal friends and acquaintances. They think no more of taking the lives of white republicans here, than they do of killing negroes in the south.

"They know that New York state is certain for Harrison on a fair ballot and honest count, but they unbendingly announce that Harrison shall be cheated out of this state, even if murderers are necessary to accomplish that infamous result. But they are reckoning upon cowardice on the part of the republicans. There is their fatal error. If blood is shed here on the streets of New York, Tuesday next, some of it will be democrat blood.

The federal supervisors and deputy United States marshals are good men who will attend to their duties and perform their parts in any sort of a matinee which Tammany may start.

"To give you an insight into the hopes of democrat gambling men, I quote a professional gambler, who says: 'In the tenderloin district, between 14th and 40th streets, there are over 18,000 professional thieves and criminals of every sort. They are all democrats. They can doctor up as many thousand Tammany votes for Cleveland as Tammany may call for when the polls close. I know the gang and I know what they can do. Hence I am betting on Cleveland. Why, the life of a deputy United States marshal is no earthly good in that district if he interferes in the slightest particular. A knife from behind will settle anyone of them, and nobody could prove who did it.'

"These things seem to you most horrible and terrifying. Let me tell you that I have given you only two interviews of this sort out of about fifty, which I have had with desperate democrats in the past three days. There is not a respectable law-abiding man in the states of the north, who would vote the democrat ticket on Tuesday if he could realize the full force of the awful truth concerning the democrat party in this city."

BAD ECZEMA ON BABY

Head one Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad case of eczema, when he was four months old. He tried three doctors, but they did not help him. He then used your three CUTICURA Remedies, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months his head was entirely well. When he began using it his head was a solid sore from the crown and sides of his head, and he was also all over his ears, most of his face, and small pieces on different parts of his body. There were sixteen weeks that we had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up; and had to keep him tied on his hands to keep his fingers out of the sores, as he would scratch if his hands in any way got his hands loose. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

BUY YOUR OWN CHERRIES.

It was about three o'clock one hot Saturday afternoon in July when John Lewis, the carpenter, laid down his hammer, put his hand in his pocket, and drew out just the price of a pint, as he said to himself; so he resolved to go across to the Golden Eagle. Just as he opened the bar door, what should he see on the counter but a plate or ripe cherries, the sight of which so made John's mouth water that he put out his hand to take a few.

"You touch them if you dare, sir!" cried the landlady.

John was startled; but before he could reply she added: "The idea of taking such liberties! I should like to know what you are thinking about!"

"Well, missus, I was only going to take one or two to wet my whistle."

"You had better not try it on," she replied.

"Why not? You won't mind my having a few, will you?" said John, thinking she was joking.

"No, sir, not one. I have just bought 'em as a treat for my children; besides, they are very dear."

"Well, just let me try one?"

"No, not one; go and buy your own cherries."

"Well, I was going to buy a pint of your best," replied John; "but I will take your advice, and buy some cherries," and he walked out of the shop.

The landlady in a moment saw her mistake, and called John to come back.

"Well, I've done it now," she said, taking up the plate of cherries; "what a stupid I was not to let him have just a few! He is too good a customer to lose; I must look out for him, when he comes to pay his score, and coax him over again."

While she was planning, he was far down the street, looking out where fruit was sold. As soon as he saw some cherries, he called out—

"Here, master, let me have three-penn'orth of those cherries, will you?"

When he put one of the cherries in his mouth, its sweetness brought back the sour words of the landlady. As he swallowed the juicy fruit, each seemed to repeat the landlady's words—"Buy your own cherries."

"Yes, that I will," said John to himself, "if that is the way you serve a fellow; after spending a paltry cherry."

All the rest of that afternoon the words haunted him.

"Ah, yes," said he, "I've bought them too long for her and her children; I'll take care of number one for the future. I shall then not only be able to buy my own cherries, but many other sweet things besides."

At length the bell rang for leaving off work. John went to receive his wages, and went back to his bench and stood with the money in his hand, hesitating.

"Well, what shall I do?" at length he said to himself. "If I knew how much I owed, I would send it; but never mind, I'll go and pay her off and have done with her."

When he entered the public house, the moment she caught sight of him she put on her best smiles, and said in the most pleasant way she could: "I am glad to see you, John. We have just tapped a barrel of our best." Drawing a glass, she added, "I wish your opinion of it."

"No, thank you, I don't want any," said John; "I've come to pay my score. How much is it?"

"What's your hurry? Come, take a glass."

"No, not a drop," said John; "I want to be off."

"Well, will you take a glass of something short?"

"Not long either. Will you let me know how much I owe you?" said John, getting impatient, "or I'll go without settling."

"Ah! I see now that I've offended you," said the landlady; "come, do let us be friends once more."

"Not a dram will I take here or anywhere else, if I know it."

"But," said the landlady, "I don't like to quarrel, especially with you; and as for the cherries, why, I was only joking, for I've kept them out of the parlor; 'See, here they are.'"

"No, thank you," said John, with a smile; "I took your advice and went and bought some."

"I don't like," said the landlady, as she took up the money, "to change this without you tasting something. What will you try?"

"Nothing, I say again," said John. Taking up his change, he walked out.

"Well, I have made a nice mess of it this time," thought the landlady. "If I ever get caught again losing my temper, it shall not be over such a good customer. If it had been one of those noisy fellows I shouldn't have cared a bit; but a nice, quiet fellow like John, who takes his glasses regular, and pays up so well every week! But I'll look out, and lay my traps to catch him before long."

He then hurried home, and reached it, much to his wife's surprise, long before his usual time.

John took his seat almost in silence, which was so unusual that Mary was on the point of asking him what was the matter, when, taking out some money, he threw it in her lap, saying, "I suppose you'll be going to market, so, Mary?"

"Yes," said Mary; and she would have added, "and I shall be glad to go soon," but she had learned that she must not say too much on Saturday night; so she went to put on her bonnet and shawl. On looking at the money she was surprised to find three or four shillings more than usual.

Being a thrifty body, who knew how to lay out money well, she quickly visited the shops and bought the things they would want during the week, adding a few comforts which the extra shillings enabled her to buy.

Mary thought John quiet and dull, and once ventured to ask him kindly whether he was well.

As he said he was all right, she did not venture to question him any more about it, thinking it best to wait. John, not liking to return home sooner than usual on Monday night, went to a temperance meeting. When another meeting was announced the next evening, he decided to go; and from what the speakers said, he signed the pledge.

On the next Saturday, when John got his wages, he felt a thrill of joy run through him. Looking at the sovereign and a half, he said: "It's many a long day since I could say both belonged to me, and I'll take good care I don't part with you unless I get plenty out of you."

Again he started home. Mary felt once or twice on the point of saying how pleased she was, but she checked herself, lest he might, when giving her the money, stop for what she thought last week's mistake.

When he had nearly finished his tea, he said, "Well, Mary, you'll be wanting to go a-marketing directly, I suppose—there's your money," throwing it in her lap.

She felt as if her heart was ready to sink as she took the money in her hand. "Ah!" she thought, "he has soon stopped the over-plus of last week; it's but thinking by the light of the fire it looked rather yellow, she went to the window. 'Can it be possible?' she thought; 'a sovereign and a half!' as she asked, 'Is all this for me, John?'"

"Yes," said John, "and I hope you will try and spend it well."

"I hope you haven't done anything wrong to get it, John," said Mary, with tears in her eyes.

"No, my lass," said John, "I have done wrong long enough, and I am now going to try to do right."

"But"—said Mary.

"Never mind any more questions now," said John; get your bonnet and shawl and let us both go to market."

Mary did not need telling the second time to get ready. Bidding Sally and Tommy take care of the children, to be sure and mind the house, they went out together to market.

On the road, John told her all, and asked her to forgive him for the past, and help him to do better. Mary listened with trembling yet joyful interest.

The butcher, when he saw them, ceased crying "What will you buy?" "for," thought he, "they won't want much. A small joint that everybody else leaves." So he turned his back toward them.

He was soon roused by hearing John's voice say: "I say, what's this leg of mutton a pound?"

"The idea of your asking such a question," thought the butcher. But quick as thought he said, "Eightpence to you."

"Take it down and see what it weighs."

"Yes," said the butcher, thinking to himself, "I'll weigh it, and that'll settle you, I know."

"It weighs just eight pounds, and comes to five shillings and fourpence. Now are you done?" thought the butcher.

"I'll have it," said John. "Here Mary, give him the money," seeing the butcher looked rather doubtful at them both.

Mary laid the sovereign on the block as carefully as if she was afraid of rubbing the gold off.

The butcher thought all this care was a part of the plan to deceive him, and that the money was bad. He bounced it upon the block to test it. But by its ring he knew it was right; but his face changed its expression and his voice its tone, as he asked, with great politeness:

"Can I send it home for you, sir? Is there any other article?" while the change rested between his fingers.

"No," said John, feeling rather vexed, "nothing else to-night."

"Thank you, sir. Let me see, you live at No. 20 Broad street."

"Yes," said John, as they went out of the shop.

Each shopkeeper was surprised and pleased to receive larger orders and more money, and of course, showed an extra amount of civility.

While they were going from shop to shop, the children at home were talking about the matter.

"How funny," said Tommy, "to see father and mother go out to market together."

"Yes," said Sally, "isn't it?"

"I wonder," said Tommy, "whether her youth behind her. But there is no reason why a woman should be faded and passe at 35, or even at 45. The chief cause of the early fading of American women is found in the fact that many of them suffer from some form of female weakness or disease which robs the face of its bloom, brings dark circles about the eyes, brings early wrinkles and sallowness, and stamps the face and figure with signs of ill-health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all these troubles, will bring back the lost bloom and remove the pains and ailments which make women grow old before their time. "Oh, I'm sure you're wrong," said Sally; "we never have such things come to our house."

"But I tell you it's all right," said the boy, "for you've paid for."

"Well, if it's paid for, I'll take it in, but I'm sure you'll have come and fetch it back again," replied Sally.

"Oh, it'll be all right," said the boy. "My word! it's said, Tommy, 'isn't it a whopper? Only fancy if it was our'n, wouldn't we have a tuck-in at dinner?'"

Another knock was heard at the door.

"Here he comes," said Tommy; "shall I bring the leg of mutton?"

But on opening the door, it was a baker's boy, with three large loaves.

"Does Mr. Lewis live here?" asked the boy.

"Well," replied Sally, thinking it strange, "my father's called Jack Lewis, if that's him."

"All right! here's three loaves for him."

"Are they paid for?" asked Sally.

"Yes," said the boy. "Come, make haste."

"Well, I'll take 'em in, seeing as how they're paid for; but we never have such big loaves as them come to our house, and you'll have to fetch 'em back again; there's some mistake, I'm sure."

"There, that's all fudge!" said the boy, and off he went.

"My word! ain't them busters?" said Tommy. "Only fancy if they were ours," in the midst of which another rap was heard at the door.

"Here they are," Tommy said; "I'll bring 'em to the door."

But upon the door being opened, there was a lad with parcels of tea, sugar, coffee, etc. Again the same question was asked. But Sally decided to take in all that was paid for, telling each they mustn't be surprised if they had to fetch 'em back.

Other articles from different shops arrived until the table began to be full.

"I do wish father and mother would come home," said Sally. "Suppose a policeman was to come, what should we do?"

"I wonder," asked Tommy, "whether our father and mother's going to keep a shop?"

"Don't be silly; you would be still if we were sent to prison."

While they were talking, they heard the voices of their father and mother, and were told that the things on the table were for the coming week.

When on the Sunday afternoon, they were seated around the table, and mother brought out a plate of nice rosy cherries, was it any wonder that Mary's heart was full of emotion? Indeed, she could not help drawing close to John, while the children were making earrings of the cherries, and putting her arms around his neck, she kissed him, while tears of real joy trickled down her cheeks as she softly said, "John, if you will only continue to buy your own cherries, we may be happy yet."

And so it was, for in a short time, John found he could buy clothes for his children, then for himself and his wife. Then he moved into a better house. The master, finding him attentive to his work, made him foreman, and John began to say that he found it more pleasant to receive two pounds and ten shillings a week for looking after men to do the work than thirty shillings for doing it.

Step by step he rose, until he became a master himself. Instead of working, he could pay other men to look after it and do it for him. He sent his son Tommy to a first-rate school; and in due time he was apprenticed to a doctor, and became a physician. The rest of the children were well educated. He built a nice row of houses, from which he received sufficient to keep him without work; and in a handsome villa, which he also built, and fitted up with everything to make it comfortable he might often be seen reclining in an easy chair, viewing a cherry-tree, which he planted with his own hands, and on which he had been able to grow his own cherries. He and his wife added to his profitable unto all things. They also continued hearty supporters of the Grand Alliance and the temperance cause.

Working men, it is not how much money a week you earn, but what you do with it when you get it.

How many a home comfort, such as carpets, sofas, chairs and books are lost by spending the money in the wrong way! Learn from this tale of real life that the outside of a public house is the best side, and if you wish to have a home, sweet home, "Buy your own cherries."

A Hard Corner.
The age of 30 is a hard corner for women to turn, and 35 is still harder. She feels that she is fast leaving her youth behind her. But there is no reason why a woman should be faded and passe at 35, or even at 45. The chief cause of the early fading of American women is found in the fact that many of them suffer from some form of female weakness or disease which robs the face of its bloom, brings dark circles about the eyes, brings early wrinkles and sallowness, and stamps the face and figure with signs of ill-health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all these troubles, will bring back the lost bloom and remove the pains and ailments which make women grow old before their time. UNIVERSITY.

The '95 lites will have a class cane. Harvard kicked Cornell out Saturday 20 to 12. There are 446 students in the New York Law School. There are 107 students in the University School of Music. There are said to be 640 students at Leland Stanford University. The High School eleven defeated the '94 laws, 16 to 0, Saturday. Over $500,000 has been expended at Yale in new buildings this year. A. Bailey, '94 Dent., represents that department on the U. of M. Daily now. There have been 10,458 graduates from the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania. A proposition is being considered to reorganize the Mock Congress. Carried on as it should be, it would greatly benefit the members thereof. Prof. Hinsdale has an article in the last issue of the Hiram College Advance, on "The Latest Steps in Higher Education in the United States." Chas. E. Spencer '92 law, was married Oct. 27, to Miss Maggie R. Wilson, High School '91, of Alma, Ill. They are to reside in Chicago, at No. 332 Franklin st. John Cumiskey, who was the republican candidate for prosecuting attorney of Livingston county at the recent election, is a graduate of the law department, class of '91, and is rapidly coming to the front in his profession. The class rooms have been quite thin since Friday, so many of the students having gone home to vote. A Mr. Murphy, of Detroit, at one time secretary of the famous squaw-buck senate, was in the city last Friday and Saturday, with dead loads of money, paying the way home of every democratic student who would go home to vote. There has been no lack of funds on the democratic side this year. It is understood that a new system has been adopted by the S. L. A. in reference to reserving seats. Those who come to reserve seats will draw a ticket on which will be a number to indicate the holders' position in the line. This may be an improvement over the old method, but there are grave doubts in the minds of many who will have to be convinced by a practical test before being converted to the scheme. Just how it will obviate the disagreeable task of standing in line isn't plain, as long as the ticket drawn only indicates the place in the line the lucky or unlucky ticket holder shall occupy. Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, who is to lecture before the Unity Club on next Saturday evening, is one of the ablest and most eminent preachers of Chicago. The subject on which he speaks is "Jean Francois Millet, the Peasant Painter of France," one of the greatest geniuses of the modern world, whose career was at once an idyll and a tragedy, whom the world would let starve while painting pictures, which, as soon as he was dead, kings strove to obtain; pictures which have brought higher prices than any others ever painted. One of his pictures, the Angelus, was exhibited in all our largest American cities a few years ago, after having been exhibited in the great cities of Europe, and tens of thousands of people were drawn to see it. Mr. Jones' lecture will be very nicely illustrated, with views of some 60 of Millet's pictures. Let no lover of art or admirer of genius fail to attend. Admission 25 cents. Pronounced Hopeless, Yet Saved. From a letter written by Mrs. Ada E. Hurd, of Grooton, S. D., we quote: "Was taken with a bad cold, which settled on my Lungs, cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in all, eight bottles; it has cured me, and I thank God I am now a well and hearty woman." Trial bottles free at Eberbach & Son, and Geo. T. Haussler, of Manchester. Regular size, 50c. and $1.00. The Greek Church and Mode of Life Among Bulgarians. Mr. V. D. Bozorsky, of Philippopolis, Bulgaria, now in the medical department of the University, will deliver a lecture in native costume, on the above subject, in the Presbyterian church next Friday evening, Nov. 11, at 8 o'clock. Peculiar customs and engagement and marriage ceremonies will be described and interesting pictures shown. All are invited. Admission 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children.

Mrs. Alice Haven, daughter Grace, and a lady friend, were out driving last Wednesday p. m., on Hill st., when the horse became frightened and tipped them out. No one was seriously injured. Dr. and Mrs. Carrow entertained a company of their friends Friday evening with a musical which was one of the best programmes ever given here. The selections were rendered by J. B. Schmaal, Frederick Mills, J. P. Antisdal, of Bay City, J. W. Fitch and Silas R. Mills. Good Looks. Good looks are more than skin deep, depending upon a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the Liver be inactive, you have a Bilious Look, if your stomach be disordered, you have a Dyspeptic Look, and if your Kidneys be affected, you have a Pinched Look. Secure good health and you will have good looks. Electric Bitters is the great alternative and Tonic acts directly on these vital organs. Cures Pimples, Blisters, Boils and gives a good complexion. Sold at Eberbach & Son, and Geo. T. Haussler, of Manchester. Price 50c. per bottle. Woodcock—The weather vane.

Proceedings of the County Horticultural Society.

The November meeting, O. R. L. Crozier in the chair, was a very small one. E. Baur read the minutes of the October meeting, which were approved. W. F. Bird considered one of the most important lessons of the year, the early attendance to spraying. His own experience in this respect is not satisfactory. He learned a lesson on Bass Island, where he met a gentleman, who for 12 years attended to spraying thoroughly. He began early in the season. The whole vineyard was sprayed. He uses a horsepower sprayer. While his neighbors, who made fun of his seed, had blighted Delawares and Catawbas, which varieties are mostly grown on said island, this ardent sprayer had the most perfect foliage and clusters of these varieties. We have to spray our potatoes and tomatoes, are in fact most everything we grow. The fungus and insect enemies become more numerous every year. The corresponding secretary reported his miseries in transportation of berries to Detroit. The publication of the opposition of the chairman of the committee on transportation, B. J. Conrad, to a special agent at Detroit, hired by some of the fruit growers from a special commission house at Detroit, to see to this distribution of the fruit, in his opinion caused the bad treatment of his crates at the other end, in as much as he sustained the opinion of Mr. Conrad in this respect. He thinks there should be more system in the sale of fruit. By the present system, where everyone manages the sale for himself, some commission houses and even some markets are overstocked and consequently low prices are obtained. It is easier to grow a large crop of fruit than to dispose of it. A Fruit Exchange selected by a fruit growing community like that in Washtenaw county, would be very desirable. All fruit growers in this state have discussed this question. There are only a few among the fruit growers who have the gift of finding markets and sale for fruit. He finds great cause for gratitude toward our kind Heavenly Father for the health the fruit growers and their families enjoyed. He is opposed to all extravagant reports of profits in fruit growing. The truth is that fruit growers and their families have to work intelligently and hard in order to make ends meet. Luther Palmer's experience of the year: Strawberries were so cheap that they were far from a paying crop. His Cuthbert raspberries were a failure, although planted on high ground. Schaefer's Colossal did remarkably well, prefer it to the Outhbert. They are more productive and fine for evaporation. In the strawberry line, Jesse does well with me. I think more of Gandy than any other variety. Have also planted Michel's Early and Dayton. Now is the time to plant strawberries. Do not wait until spring. The chairman reported a splendid time he had during the latter part of September, visiting Northern Michigan. In Kent county he saw peaches that excelled anything he saw in Washtenaw. In Newaygo he found fine apples and peaches. From Newaygo north to Petoskey, plenty of fruit. At the Three-County Fair, held at Petoskey, the exhibit of peaches, apples, especially Greenings, made me think of my boyhood days in Western New York. On my journey, I had the great pleasure of meeting with Mr. John D. Alger, one of the most intelligent pomologists. Mr. John C. Schenk, a member of the committee on transportation, who most faithfully attended to the fruit car shipments to Detroit, submitted the following report: Num. of cars of berries - 13 Num. of bushels of berries - 1,467. Num. of cars of peaches - 16 Num. of bushels of peaches - 2,186 This does not include fruit shipped to Saginaw and northern points, nor the fruit sent by the Express Co. The next meeting, on Dec. 3d, is the annual meeting of the society. All fruit growers should unite in joining the society and in helping to fill the vacancy of the chair, which was so ably filled by presidents J. D. Baldwin and J. Austin Scott. EMIL BAUR, Cor. Sec'y.

Colorless, Emaciated, Helpless

A Complete Cure by HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA.

This is from Mr. D. M. Jordan, a retired farmer, and one of the most respected citizens of Otsego Co., N. Y.

"Fourteen years ago I had an attack of the gravel, and have since been troubled with my Liver and Kidneys gradually growing worse. Three years ago I got down so low that I could scarcely walk. I looked more like a corpse than a living being. I had no appetite and for five weeks I ate nothing but gruel. I was badly emaciated and had no more color than a marble statue. Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and I thought I would try it. Before I had finished the first bottle I noticed that I felt better, suffered less, the inflammation of the bladder had subsided, the color began to return to my face, and I began to feel hungry. After I had taken three bottles I could eat anything without hurting me. Why, I got so hungry that I had to eat 5 times a day. I have now fully recovered, thanks to

Hood's Sarsaparilla

I feel well and am well. All who know me marvel to see me so well." D. M. JORDAN.

Faded, faded, tired, overworked women—weak, nervous, delicate and suffering ones. These are the women who are helped to health and strength by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a legitimate medicine, that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nerve that soothes and strengthens. And if it doesn't do what its makers claim for it, they don't want your money. For all the functional derangements, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses that afflict womanhood, the "Prescription" is a safe and certain remedy—a guaranteed one. In "female complaints" of every nature, peptic pains, internal inflammation and ulceration, leucorrhoea, and all kindred ailments—if it fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. No other medicine for women is sold on such trying terms. If any could be, you may be sure that it would be. Is something else which pays the dealer better, likely to be "just as good"?

Hutzel's Water Back!

A very important invention which will be hailed with delight by every body using a stove or range for hot water circulation. After years of experience we have succeeded in producing a simple and perfect WATER BACK.

It overcomes all the present troubles of extracting lime and other sediments which accumulate in water backs, often making them useless and in great many instances becoming dangerous.

The outlay of dollars is reduced to dimes. No household using a range can afford to be without it.

No more trouble by using city water for hot water circulation. Can be used in any stove. Ask your stove dealer for Hutzel's Water Back.

Mason & Davis Co's. ranges for sale at C. Eberbach are provided with our improvement.

Everybody call and examine this useful invention.
