IN ITS NEW HOME.

The Ann Arbor Savings Bank's Elegant Quarters.

For several weeks the Ann Arbor Savings Bank has been engaged in making over its old home into a new one, and last Monday morning it opened up in its new quarters, having moved thereto from its temporary place of business, in the Gibson gallery.

For many years the Savings Bank has occupied the corner lower floor of the Masonic block, at the corner of Main and Huron sts. Here it has grown prosperous and rich. Last summer the bank bought a half interest in this block of Lyman D. James, of Massachusetts, and several weeks since commenced building a large double vault, and eventually enlarging, decorating and completely refurbishing the bank room proper. There is probably no bank in the state that has more elegant quarters than the Ann Arbor Savings Bank now has.

The wood work of the interior is all in oak, handsomely carved in many places, beautifully polished, and having an appearance of massiveness.

The walls are decorated in relief work, and are delicate and dainty, the frieze that encircles the room being one of the most exquisite works of art of this kind, that can be found anywhere in the state.

The first window as you enter the bank from the front entrance, is for the "Commercial Department," where the general business of the bank is carried on. M. J. Fritz will always be found in this place, which is in fact a cage, the sides and overhead being "fenced in" with grille work of oxidized copper. A precaution that the most expert bank robber would find very troublesome. He could shoot through it, but he could not get through it.

The second window is that of the bookkeeper and Wm. L. Wanser is to be found here ready to answer all questions pertaining to accounts.

Then comes the savings department, which is also caged in as is the commercial department. The two other windows being the one for "Collections," and for the "Safety Deposit vaults." In the safety deposit vaults are a large number, some two or three hundred metal boxes, with a peculiar lock. This lock has two keys, one held by the bank and the other by the person who rents the box, and it is impossible to unlock it without both keys, thus making it absolutely safe.

In their ear end of the bank are several stalls for the use of people renting the safety deposit boxes, into which they can retire, look over their papers and valuables, and be entirely free from interruptions. There is also a room set apart for this purpose for the especial use of ladies.

The gents waiting room is elegantly upholstered, has a grate and mantel over which is a fine French mirror, making a very inviting and cozy place.

Next to this room is the Director's room, with a large oak table in the center, and a fine oak chair for each director.

Everything is thoroughly in harmony, and the Toledo firms that did the work are artists as well as good workmen.

The safes and vaults were constructed and put in by the Diebold Safe and Lock Co. of Cleveland, Ohio, and more minute description of them will be in this connection.

In this interest, the banker of our day must rely greatly on the security of his burglar proof vault. A vault of this character is a room in itself, and this room whilst retaining its character as such, is simply a big burglar proof safe built on a mammoth scale. You will notice on entering the bank, right in front of you, two of these vaults, the one on the right for the funds of the bank, and one on the left for the safety deposit department. They are thought by their makers to be the most secure Bank vaults in the state of Michigan, and from their looks most every

A GRAND TRIUMPH.

The Wagner Concert by the Choral Union a Great Success.

The greatest musical event that has ever taken place in the state of Michigan, occurred last Wednesday evening, at University Hall.

It was the production of selections from Wagner's music, and consisted of the overture Rienzi, by the orchestra; the second act of the "Flying Dutchman," and the first three acts of "Lohengrin," by the Detroit Orchestra of 60 pieces, together with the Choral Union Chorus, of this city, consisting of 260 voices. The orchestra being under the leadership of Prof. Wm. Yunck.

This concert was a great triumph for Prof. A. A. Stanley, the director, whose smile of approval, as part after part was successfully completed, indelibly impressed itself on the minds of the vast audience present upon the occasion.

There were fully 2,500 people in University Hall that evening to witness the success of this great undertaking. No one but a person with Prof. Stanley's enthusiasm, energy and pluck could have accomplished such a magnificent triumph.

There are people who do not enjoy Wagner's productions as much as those of some other composers. That is a matter of taste. Throwing aside all such considerations the concert was superior to anything ever produced in this western country. The difficult music was rendered with apparent ease, and the rapid modulations of tone from the soft and delicate ripples of sound, to the heavy waves of melody and down again, as executed by the immense chorus, was certainly wonderful, and worthy of the greatest praise. The chorus did most excellent work.

The orchestra parts were unusually charming to the senses, and although full of surprises were intensely enjoyed. There was little to criticize here.

The soloists were Mrs. Johnstone-Bishop, of Chicago, soprano; Miss Taylor, of Ann Arbor, contralto; Mr. Meyn, of Boston, baritone; Mr. Towne, of New York, tenor; and Mr. Mills, of Ann Arbor, basso.

Mrs. Bishop is the equal of any soprano in the country to-day. She has a clear sweet voice, and sings without apparent effort. She is such a favorite here that the announcement of her name upon a programme, is sufficient to call out an immense audience. In taking the part of Elsa, in Lohengrin, she added to her already great fame, if such a thing were possible.

Miss Taylor, as Ortrud, had little to do, so that one could not fully judge of her powers, though in the chorus her full, rich voice could be distinguished above all the rest.

Mr. Meyn, baritone, taking the part of Frederick, had a difficult task before him, and he performed it well. He is not as easy as some, and gives an impression to the audience that lung capacity is not sufficiently powerful. However, he proved his ability to cope with Wagner's greatest production.

Mr. S. R. Mills, as The King, was perfect. It is doubtful if the part could have been rendered in a superior manner. When Mr. Mills commences to sing, you feel, after the first note, that he is master of the situation. Not only has he an excellent voice, highly cultivated, and under complete control, but he is easy and graceful, and there are no unpleasant facial contortions, with which noted singers are so frequently afflicted.

Mr. Towne, as Lohengrin, sang to a pleased audience. His voice and manner were pleasant, and he impressed his auditors as being thoroughly up to the standard in all that pertains to a tenor soloist of the day.

It is possible that the World's Fair people may have the pleasure of listening to something superior to this grand concert, but we doubt very much if they will have its equal. It was a triumph in musical art that the little city of Ann Arbor may well be proud of. And Prof. Stanley, who has conceived and carried to success these magnificent entertainments, is deserving of the greatest praise. The fact is, the professor has already secured a warm corner in the hearts of all Ann Arbor people.

Next season the series of concerts will be opened by the Seidl orchestra, and the Boston Symphony, the King of all orchestras in America, and the Theodore Thomas orchestra will be heard during the year.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day.—In order to be healthy this is necessary.

one would think that they were about correct in this regard. These vaults are built of Chrome steel which is tempered so as to make each plate absolutely drill proof. There are five plated to each layer, making twenty plates in all. This makes more strength than the new United States war vessel "The City of New York" has, which made such an unparalleled record in her trial trip. In this description we are speaking particularly of the safety deposit vault. You will notice that the inside folding doors are the same thickness. These doors are guarded by Diebold's famous Peerless Bank Lock. This combination is capable, extraordinary as it may seem, of (100,000,000) one hundred million changes. A lock that is absolutely unpickable and the best of its kind. This is further supplemented by Diebold's Anti Dynamite Device, which renders these doors absolutely safe against thieves and robbers who use high explosives.

A vestibule twenty-nine inches deep is in front of these doors, and of the same material and thickness as the body of the work. Then comes the outside door, which is a marvel in its way. Including bolt frame, etc., it is eight inches thick, made out of the same Chrome Drill Proof Steel, and notwithstanding its tons of weight, it is so finely fitted and geared to its carrying apparatus that it moves and opens and closes to its place as if its weight was infinitesimal. It is well worth examining the ingenious mechanism with which the Diebold Safe & Lock Co. have accomplished this object. When you come to look at the fit of these doors, which are as tight and close fitting as a watch case, it seems almost impossible that a door could be made to fit so perfectly. We are not through with this door yet, because its locking apparatus is something unique. There are three time locks on this door, each separate and independent. These three locks each separately and individually and also collectively control and operate at the opening time the wonderful Duplex Automatic Device which opens the massive bolts. This door is solid and has no connection with the outside what-ever and is opened and closed automatically by these Diebold three locks and their automatic device. It would take a page to explain this, and you must see it to understand its simple yet complex mechanism.

The desk of Cashier Hiseock is in an elegant office at the east front, all of his desks and furniture being of solid oak.

The floor is of tile in very pretty pattern, and outside the front entrance is a piece of genuine mosaic work, among the thousands of small squares composing it being a few hundred so arranged as to spell the name of the bank. This triangled entrance or vestibule will be supplied with iron gates on the two street sides, which will be closed and locked when the banking hours are over.

The Savings Bank may well feel proud of its elegant home.

Editors seem to be in it, after all. Mr. Cleveland is continually "subsidizing" and "muzzling" the press by appointing editors to office.

Is it the McKinley bill or Carter Harrison that is to blame for the high prices at the World's Fair? An answer is anxiously awaited.

It is said that the immigration to this country is being more thoroughly watched than ever before. That is good news. It needs to be watched.

As Eli Perkins had no copyright on the mud retort of the Register last week, he can't complain if they do try to palm it off as their own.

Henry M. Stanley announces that he will stand for a seat in the English parliament. Fitting himself for a volume on "Darkest England," probably.

Comptroller Eckels is getting on to the ropes. He has already secured a good paying position for one brother in his department. It is now only a question of how many brothers he has got.

There is a report going the rounds of the press of the United States that West Harrisville, in the state, has a Chinese candidate for postmaster. That is a celestial falsehood; an almond-eyed untruth; a heathen fiction; a rat-eating slander on this great peninsular state, and should be frowned down.

The late democratic legislature of New York appropriated over $18,000,000 and raised the tax rate from 1.98 to 2.58 mills. New York is to have a state election in the fall, and if the people don't rise in their wrath and cast Tammany into the sea they deserve to be taxed to death.—Milwaukee Tribune.

The democrats in the Rhode Island legislature have unseated, kicked out, so to speak, two members of the House, simply because they were republicans. There was no other shadow of an excuse. And that action was taken by the democrats in direct opposition to the decision of the supreme court of that state. It remains to be seen whether they will secure any advantage by such rank dishonesty, or not.

The statistics of the work of the great Brooklyn bridge over the East River, shows how closely that city and its big sister, New York, are united, and is a grand argument in favor of merging of those two corporations into one, as they should be in fact. The Brooklyn bridge is just ten years old, and during that period there have been carried over the bridge in cars 280,000,000 people, without a single accident, and the tolls have amounted to $10,000,000, or more than half the cost of the structure. During the week of October 12, 1892, the cars on the bridge carried 1,099,957 passengers, 223,625 of that number having been carried in a single day. About 4,500,000 pedestrians cross the bridge every year.

Of the entire number of prisoners held in durance vile in the entire western states, only one-sixth know how to read and write. Is not that fact a lesson of itself?

How quickly one evil follows another! The legislature has only just adjourned when startling reports come from Washington, to the effect that a special session of congress is about to be called!

Does this mean that the act providing for the deportation of Chinamen is to be a dead letter? Ny Look, a New York Chinaman, who has lived in America thirty-six years, has had a face to face encounter with the Genry law, and Judge Lacombe discharged him from custody, ordering his deportation as soon as provision for carrying out the law is made by the proper authority.

It may be waving the bloody shirt. It probably is waving the bloody shirt to make these inquiries. Nevertheless there are a large number of people, of loyal people, in these United States, who would like to know—out of mere curiosity of course—how many Union flags were to be found in Richmond, Va., last Memorial Day, upon the occasion of the reinterment of Jeff. Davis's remains? Is it a fact that this country has two flags, one for the North and one for the South? Was the Lost Cause lost, after all?

Whether the Presbyterian general assembly has aided the Presbyterian church or the cause of religion, either one, by its condemnation of Dr. Briggs, of Union College, is a question that only time can decide. The great majority of Christians throughout the world will acquit Dr. Briggs of heresy, and hold opinions opposite to the majority of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church. In fact it will be surprising if the people do not accuse the general assembly of intolerance and make of Dr. Briggs a sort of martyr, which would be unjust to Dr. Briggs, and foolish on the part of the people.

The Ypsilanti Sentinel says: "The Courier assumes that all (immigrants) who come are unwelcome." No, indeed. The immigrants that came to this country and helped settle it for instance, are the kind that are always welcome. Those who came because they wanted to make homes and become citizens of this nation; who earned their own money to come with; who were honest, industrious, freedom-loving people. Those are not the kind we have been receiving lately, as a rule. Many of the emigrants now are paupers, and men who are shipped here because they are not wanted in the old country. The class of immigrants to this country have been rapidly deteriorating in character ever since the big ocean ships have found it profitable to bring them over.

Gov. Rich will receive the commendation of the good citizens all over this state, if he brings the men who engaged in the disgraceful lynching of Sullivan at Corunna recently, to justice.

The Infanta Eulalia, is no infant, as might be surmised by her title.

The general feeling of timidity in regard to the safety of banks about the country appears to have about passed away, and confidence is being restored again.

Carry me Back to Old Virginia.

When Her Royal Highness the Infanta, was at Washington she encountered some marked evidences of the fact that there is more pathos as well as joy in the simpler songs of a people than are sometimes to be found in the more classic writings by composers of classic fame. During her return up the Potomac from her visit to Mount Vernon, the Princess requested that the Marine band play the airs of some of the folk songs of the United States. The band swung into the moving harmony of "My Old Kentucky Home." Mrs. Gresham, who is a Kentucky woman, was moved to tears as the strains came back from the gleaming surface of the river, and the Princess pressed the hand of the ranking lady of the Cabinet in genuine human sympathy. "Carry me Back to Old Virginia," was the theme of the band as the vessel approached a landing on the south bank of the Potomac. A negro on a flatboat tied to the shore, lifted her skirts and executed a pas de seul with an enthusiasm that opened the Princess's eyes. "Dixie," the "Star Spangled Banner," "Yankee Doodle" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," filled the remaining moments of the Infanta's voyage upon an American river amid American music.

One of the Brightest Charms. Of a fair face is a fine set of teeth. The ladies being fully alive to this fact, patronize SOZODONT in preference to any other dentifrice, since they know by experience that it preserves like no other the pristine whiteness and cleanliness of the teeth, and makes a naturally sweet breath additionally fragrant. It is one of the privileges of the beau sex to look lovely and that proportion of it which uses SOZODONT, has learned that the article contributes in no small degree to the end in view. All druggists sell it.

A GREAT FIELD.

Rev. H. Tatlock Presents the University Opportunity to the Diocesan Convention.

Jesus Christ came to this world, to bring the world into harmony with heaven. He came to convert the world into the Kingdom of God.

He came to save the world. He came not to save men after death, in another state of being. He came to save men here, in their present life.

He claimed the world for God. He denied that the devil had any right here; and his mission to the earth was to drive out that usurper and set up God's rule in the world.

Men were God's children. The earth was God's earth. Here God's Kingdom must be established. Men were disobedient children; the world was rebellious. But Christ did not come to condemn the world. He came to call it back to God.

He came to let down upon the earth the light of heaven, to make the world a part of heaven, to drive away from off the face of the earth all wrong and baseness, and fill it with holiness and love.

This was the purpose of Christ's mission to the world, and for the accomplishment of this purpose, he established his church. The agent that was to gather the nations into the divine Kingdom was a society of men and women who had themselves entered the Kingdom.

Christ's direct work consisted in forming that society. He did not expect the world to be converted to God by a book, by philosophy, by abstract truth.

What the world needed was the knowledge of God, was the light of life. Only to living men could that light be given. Only by men who had received that light could that light be shown.

To fulfil Christ's mission, therefore, to carry on the work which he began, to extend it and complete it, there was needed a succession of men who should hand on the light from generation to generation.

If the world was to become the Kingdom of God, the Kingdom must be formed in the world, formed of men, if only of twelve. These should be as the leaven in the lump; their life and light should spread and extend; the Kingdom should grow and expand, till at last all peoples and tongues should be gathered within its embrace.

"Ye are the light of the world." It is generally acknowledged that it is the office of the church to proclaim the Gospel of Salvation. But very often the salvation which is proclaimed is a future salvation, a salvation in another world. The message of peace on earth and good will towards men is interpreted as a declaration of pardon and deliverance and blessedness after death. There is no suggestion of salvation in the world, still less of the salvation of the world. The world is viewed as condemned territory, and the Church as the company of those who are preparing to flee out of it, before heaven's fire shall fall upon it and consume it.

An opposition is established between the world and heaven, as if they were the dominions of two antagonistic powers. Men's time and men's affairs are conceived of as belonging to two realms. What belongs to the things of the world and the present life, is set down as secular; what is thought of as concerning God and the life to come, is termed sacred. As if the world was not God's realm as well as heaven; as if time was not his as truly as eternity; as if the present life and all its affairs did not belong to him as fully as it is possible for the interests and occupations of any life so to belong. On what authority do you hold that certain days are secular and that certain occupations are secular, that is, that they belong to the world and you, and not to God? Whose is the world? And whose are you? Name a moment of time that is not sacred. Specify a work or occupation that any man has a right to engage in, that is not sacred.

And what becomes of your opposition between science and revelation? As if all truth was not God's truth. Did not God make the world as well as inspire his servants to write the Bible? And is not the story of the rocks and the revelation of the stars as truly his message to man, as the book of Genesis? You and I may misread both messages, but if we believe that the world is God's world and that the Bible is God's book, we cannot believe that there is any opposition between them.

The error is that the church does not fully realize that the world is God's world. She is set here to teach men, not how to die, but how to live. Her business is not to prepare men for entrance into God's Kingdom hereafter. For men upon the earth, the only Kingdom of God that they have anything to do with is His Kingdom in the world. It is the business of the church to get men into that Kingdom. It is the business of the Church to make that Kingdom a reality. It is the business of the Church to take the things of the world, its affairs, its occupations and its aims, and bring them under the law of righteousness and love. She must not abandon the world. She must not turn aside from the concerns of the present life; she must not ignore the interests of time, because they are fleeting. She must lay hold of these concerns and interests, and sanctify them. She must convert them into ministers of love and mercy. She must consecrate them to the service of God and man. That is the end for which they exist.

The office of the Church is to transform the world, with all that belongs to it, into the Kingdom of God, to make all the labors and occupations of men, all the concerns and interests of this present life, the servants of righteousness and holiness. Her office is to realize Christ's mission, and bring the world into harmony with heaven.

The Church of Christ is God's Kingdom on earth. It is an organic whole. As it is the duty of each member to set his light on a candlestick, and not under a bushel, so it is the duty of the church in her corporate capacity to be a city set on a hill. It is the duty of the Church to exercise foresight and energy, to seize and hold every strategic point, to take possession of the heights, to set her light on high places.

There are many proofs of wisdom in the administration of the Church in this Diocese. In the laying of the foundation and in the rearing of the superstructure of our city of God, there is abundant evidence of the presence of the spirit of wisdom and understanding. But in recent years, as it seems to me, nothing that the Church in Michigan has done gives fuller proof of the presence of that spirit than the establishing of the Church Hall and Guild in connection with our great University at Ann Arbor; and I consider it my duty, in view of my personal relation to it, to avail myself of this opportunity to bear testimony to the inestimable value and importance of this institution.

In the founding of this instrumentality for bringing to bear the influence of the Church upon the student community at Ann Arbor, we have, perhaps, the most conspicuous illustration of that presence in design and courage in execution for which Bishop Harris was pre-eminently distinguished. It is not too much to say that the opportunity for the Church at the University of Michigan is unsurpassed anywhere in the United States. Here is a University standing in the first rank in respect of every quality which belongs to a great institution of learning; a University which now has within its halls no less than twenty-eight hundred students, gathered to it from forty-four states and territories, and seventeen foreign countries; a University which has sent forth, during the thirty-six years of its existence, eleven thousand and five hundred graduates, and which has given instruction to twenty-three thousand men and women. There is only one other University in the country equal to it in magnitude, while in respect of the extent of the territory from which it draws its students and to which it sends forth its graduates, it stands unequalled in the world.

In this University our Church is nobly represented. In its various faculties there are twenty-five professors and instructors who are attached to the Church, and among its students there are upwards of four hundred who are regular attendants upon the services of the Church in Ann Arbor. This number is equal to the combined number of students in attendance at Trinity, Hobart, Kenyon, and the University of the South, the four largest church colleges in the country.

The importance of the Harris Hall and of the Baldwin and Sloeum lectureships connected with it can hardly be over-estimated; and it would be impossible to speak in too high praise of the men and women through whose generous benefactions this Hall and these Lectureships have been founded. During the past year, as you are all aware, the splendid bequest of $10,000 was made to the endowment fund of the Hall by the late Mrs. Elizabeth Davis; and a few of the friends of the institution, who had before liberally contributed to its establishment and maintenance, raised among themselves the sum of $800 for needed repairs upon the building and the fuller equipment of the gymnasium. It is greatly to be desired that other churchmen and church women should avail themselves of the rare opportunity here offered of rendering the most signal service to the Church by making further gifts or bequests to the permanent endowment of the Hall. The Church in this Diocese owes it to Bishop Harris, owes it to itself, and owes it to the Church in America, to place Harris Hall upon an independent and ample foundation. To this end its general endowment fund needs to be increased by at least $25,000.

In the University of Michigan there is furnished to the Church in this Diocese a field for work and an avenue of influence such as the Diocese itself, with the combined wealth of all its parishes, could not create in a hundred years. This magnificent opportunity is here, ready made, within our borders. The Church has only to embrace it and use it.

It was in thought of Bishop Harris to make larger use of this opportunity than can be made by Harris Hall and the agencies now connected with it. In his vision he saw established at Ann Arbor a school of the prophets. Will the Church fulfil that vision? Already one Christian body has grasped the situation, and will open its theological school in the coming autumn. Shall the Church which was the first to discover this field ripe for the harvest leave others to gather the choicest grain? For myself, I believe that a well-manned and well-equipped theological school at the seat of the great University of Michigan would be an agency which would immeasurably increase the strength and extend the influence of the Church, not only in this state, but throughout the whole north-west.

I have said that it is the office of the church to transform the world into the Kingdom of God. The fact that our University is a state institution, and, therefore, not under the auspices of the Church, is not a reason why the church should stand aloof from it, or refuse to send her children to it. It is the best possible reason why the Church should do precisely the reverse, why she should bring to bear upon the University, constituted as it is, every high and holy influence which she has within her keeping. It is the duty of the Church to put herself into relation with every institution of human society, in order that she may infuse into them her spirit; but it is pre-eminently incumbent upon her to see to it that her light burns strong and clear where the leaders of the coming generations are trained and prepared for their work.

Mrs. Million's Ride.

When Mrs. Million goes to ride, she travels forth in state. Her horses, full of fire and pride, go prancing from the gate; but all the beauties of the day she views with languid eye, her flesh in weakness wastes away, her voice is but a sigh.

For Mrs. Million is in an advanced stage of catarrah, and all the luxuries that wealth can but fail to give her comfort. She envies her rook waiting-maid, and would give all her riches for that young woman's pure breath and blooming health. Now, if some true and disinterested friend would advise Mrs. Million of the wonderful merits of Dr. Sage's Catarrah Remedy, she would learn that her case is not past help. $500 reward is offered by the manufacturers for a case of catarrah in the head which they cannot cure.

It Was the Other Way.

A prominent spreadeagle speaker in the last campaign went down to Lynn to make an address in favor of Cleveland. During the speech he got warmed up, and began to saw the air with dramatic force. Suddenly from the front of the hall came a long infantile wail. The speaker continued speaking, and the baby kept on crying. The mother tried in vain to stop the noise, but to no purpose. Then the speaker looked down upon the mother and child, and gave a grand flourish.

"My dear madam," he said, with his hand upon his breast, "why not let the dear baby cry. He'll soon stop. He isn't annoying me in the least."

The mother gave a glance upward, then looked at the wailing child. "Oh, it isn't that, sir. It's you that's annoying the baby."—Boston Budget.

Literary Notes.

Worthington Co., 747 Broadway, New York, announce the publication in their Fair Library: "The Ironmaster," by Georges Ohnet, author of "Antoinette." With frontispiece. 1 vol. 12mo, paper. "The Ironmaster" is a story of admirably sustained interest, skillfully told in graceful yet forcible language. The strongly marked characters developed themselves naturally, both in their language and their actions. The book, moreover, unlike the general run of French novels, conveys a sound moral. It shows anew how needful it is that husbands and wives alike should study each other's character before marriage, and it enforces in convincing language the oft-repeated lesson that a woman should never trifle with the affections of the man to whom she is mated for life.

Worthington Co., 747 Broadway, New York, announce the publication in their Rose Library: "A Southern Heritage." A novel by Wm. Horace Brown. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $1; paper 50 cents. An attractive story of American Southern society life, which, as regards dramatic spirit, originality of motif, force and life of characters, is most remarkable. The conceptions are strong but simple, the style natural, the conversations exceptionally vivacious, and the people represented are creatures of flesh and blood, even if some are fond of pleasure, high living, dancing, moraine, etc. The descriptions of the great hall, especially, in which the Grand Duke Ake is and Mrs. Kirkwood were dancing partners, are wonderfully realistic, in fact they make one's blood tingle. On many readers it will leave the desire to participate in social pleasures which are here so vividly represented. Of course, there runs also in this bright novel an under-current of dark deeds, finally brought to a happy end by an ideal and appropriate marriage.

Sufferers from the effects of La-Grippe will find "Adironda," Wheeler's Heart and Nerve Cure, a never failing relief and cure if properly taken.

HEAD—SPEAR HEAD possesses more qualities of intrinsic value than any other plug tobacco produced. It is the sweetest, the toughest, the richest. SPEAR HEAD is absolutely, positively and distinctively different in flavor from any other plug tobacco. A trial will convince the most skeptical of this fact. It is the largest seller of any similar shape and style on earth, which proves that it has caught the popular taste and pleases the people. Try it, and participate in the contest for prizes. See that a TIN TAG is on every 1 cent piece of SPEAR HEAD you buy. Send in the tags, no matter how small the quantity. Very sincerely,
THE P. J. SORG COMPANY, MIDDLETOWN, OHIO.

A list of the people obtaining these prizes in this county will be published in this paper immediately after February 1st, 1894.

UNIVERSITY.

Our team will play the U. of Wis. at the Athletic field Saturday.

The second class social and hop of '93, was held Saturday evening.

Dr. C. B. Nancrede will lecture upon "The Physician as a Christian" at Newberry Hall next Sunday a. m.

A large number of the medical professors are attending the American Medical Association in Milwaukee this week.

The U. of M. nine defeated the University of Illinois team at base ball on the Athletic grounds Saturday, by a score of 10 to 3.

The U. of M. Daily is making preparations to establish a Alumni Weekly, to be a four column quarto, columns to be 12 inches long, at $1 per year.

The new humorous paper is to have the euphonious cognomen of "The Wrinkle of the University of Michigan." It is thought no annex to that will be necessary. It is to be issued on the first and third Fridays of each month, at $1.50 for the college year.

Some wealthy man of this state could not only set a good example to his wealthy fellow men, but could perpetuate his name for generations and generations to come by building upon theampus a fine art hall, and presenting it to the University. It is the one great need of the University to-day, and it will be many years before the revenue of the institution will be sufficient to commence its erection. This act would not only perpetuate a man's memory, but would make him popular throughout the country now. Think of all the students going out all over the world, carrying the praise of any worthy person who would do this deed! And of the thousands of alumni, to be found in every nook and corner of the globe, who would bless the man or woman whose noble generosity would prompt such a grand act!

The Athletic Club boys feel very much elated over the outcome of the events in track athletics at the meeting of the Northwestern League at Chicago. The 100 yds dash was won by Chapman, time 10:15; Kenyon second. The 200 yad. dash by the same, time 24 1-5. The 400 yards dash, Mitchell, time 55 2-3; Geary, second. Half-mile run, Grosh second. Mile run, Bray, third. The 120 yds. hurdle, Keep, first; Reed, second. The 2-mile bicycle race, Belden, first, time 6:27 1-2; Seeley, third. Throwing the hammer, Percy, third. Putting the shot, de Pont, second. Pole vault, Austin, second. Running broad jump, Coffin, first 21ft. 1 in., Geary, second, 20 ft. Running high jump, de Pont first, 5 ft. 4 in., Keep, second. Michigan had 8 first places, 10 seconds, 3 thirds, and scored 63 points altogether, against 38 for Wisconsin, and 11 for the Northwestern.

The bedlam was so great at the S. L. A. election last Saturday a. m., at the chapel, that president Griffin resolved to adjourn the contest for two weeks, and did so before any ballots were cast. It was thought that W. W. Weydemeyer, the lit. candidate would have been elected had a vote been taken, but the confusion was so great, and the attendance so enormous—about 1,500—that President Griffin did not believe it possible to secure an honest ballot and a fair count, so the meeting was adjourned. A large number of law students objected to the adjournment, because so many of the professional department students would be going home before that time, and so they withdrew and went over to the law lecture room and held an election of their own. They resolved to demand the books of the officers holding over, and back up the demand with the law if necessary. It was thought at first that there would be a split in the society, but cooler councils will probably prevail and all will end quietly.

Jay Taylor is again in town and has come to stay. He will be pleased to see his old pupils again at 51 S. Main st.

Hon. Chas. S. Gregory, of Dexter, died on Sunday afternoon last, of apoplexy. The deceased was the father of Hon. John V. N. Gregory, and senior member of the banking firm of Gregory & Son, doing business in Dexter. He was a native of New York, was 77 years of age, and one of the first pioneers of the county, having come to Michigan in 1834. He first located on Sec. 20, in Seio, where the family resided many years. Mr. Gregory had been one of the prominent democrats of this section, was twice a member of the legislature, and had held other positions of honor and trust. He was one of the wealthy men of the county.

Rose and Root.

The Rose aloft in the sunny air,
Beloved alike by bird and bee,
Takes for the dark root little care,
That toils below it ceaselessly.

I put my question to the flower:
"Pride of the summer, garden queen,
Why livest thou thy little hour?"
And the rose answered: "I am seen."

I put my question to the Root—
"I mine the earth content," it said,
"A hidden miner underneath,
I know a Rose is overhead."

It's Curious.

From Saturday's Daily Globe.
It's curious kind o' weather when you come to make it out:
One minute wind is blowin' all the blossoms round about,
An' 'suntine's jes' a-streamin' from the blue and bendin' skies,
An' 'dramin'—jes' a-dreamin', like the light in woman's eyes!

But jes' when all is lovely, an' the wind with music floats;
When the birds is makin' merry an' a strain' of their throats;
An' the sunshin's like a picnic in the blossoms, pink an' white,
A cyclone strikes the country an' jes' swallows all in sight!

It's curious kind o' weather—jes' the worst you ever felt;
You don't half git through freezin' fore the order comes to melt!
An' you can't quite say it's winter, an' you ain't half sure it's spring;
So, keep on with the whistlin' an' thank God for everythin'.

A ROSY VIEW. How Glorious Would be the Results of Church Unity.

One of the prominent members of the Methodist Episcopal church, of this city, in conversation with the Courier reporter a few days since, expressed some views in regard to church unity, or the uniting of all the protestant church denominations in one, at the same time allowing each person to hold to any particular form of creed he may desire, which views are worth giving to the public.

He instanced small communities. Take our neighboring villages of this county, like Dexter, Chelsea, Manchester, Milan, Saline. In each of these places there are from four to six different protestant Christian churches, all striving for the same object, only differing in form of worship or creed, and all struggling for existence.

Supposing these different denominations should all unite in one; build a fine church edifice that would hold all the people of the village? That would be desirable would it not?

Then the united Christians, putting all their gifts together, could afford to pay a salary that would tempt a minister to study and present sermons that would be creditable to himself and profitable to his congregation.

Not only that, but they could afford to hire an assistant if necessary to help carry on the work of such a large and prosperous parish. There would be greater interest manifested by all the people; the Sunday School would flourish wonderfully, and instead of a feeling existing between this denomination and that sect, all would unite in working for the elevation of mankind and the glory of the Father.

What preachers we could have! What an influence upon the entire world America with her one great Christian church would exert!

What a grand thing it would be! What glorious results would surely come to every community from such a uniting of forces. These and many more things were said by this gentleman, who is very enthusiastic upon the subject.

Where there are so many different denominations they often spend time in fighting each other which they ought to spend in fighting Satan and the evil of the world. In unity there is strength.

The division of Christians into different denominations is but a device of the evil one to weaken them in their work, and to fritter away valuable time and strength that ought to be expended in teaching of Jesus Christ and his love.

BEGINNING LIFE'S WORK.

An Address by Prof. Levi T. Griffin, A.M., to the Law Class of '93.

YOUNG LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

At the close of the relation which we have so pleasantly, and I think profitably sustained to each other for a year or more past, it is perhaps fitting that I should first thank you for the respect and deference always apparent. And then, that I should congratulate you upon the successful termination of your academic studies; that I should welcome you into the ranks of the profession, and that I should offer you my sincere wish for your advancement and preferment in all that is honorable to be achieved. This is your beginning. This is your commencement. The field is wide and the opportunities are immense. The space is ample, and if you find it a little bit crowded on the pavement "there is plenty of room at the top." I should say, perhaps, that if I am spared only a decade of years I expect to hear from you. It is related of Daniel Webster, that, somewhat chagrined at not receiving the appointment of Valedictorian of his class, at Dartmouth, he tore his diploma into shreds upon the stage, and, turning to the Faculty and Trustees present, remarked, "gentlemen you will hear from me." The Valedictorian has never been heard from. It is more than probable that the ambition of Webster was provoked and stimulated into a fixed and determined resolution to make himself heard in after days. All of us are making all sorts of resolutions from time to time. Resolutions are good things, and I believe in bringing to one's help all the external aids which he can command. Write them down, and if you are not certain that they are practical, give them a short life, but steadfastly and honestly enforce their terms until you change them. They are contracts with yourself, and he who violates a treaty with himself, will very soon be ready to violate a treaty with his neighbor. We are only required to love our neighbors as we love ourselves, yet it is a fact, that most men, in dealing with their neighbors, are more straightforward and honest than when dealing with themselves. Now you are about to go forth to swell the number of the alumni of this renowned University. The class of '93. A year memorable for the greatest and grandest exhibition of the greatest national variety that history has ever recorded; and this is the greatest and grandest of Republics. The class of '93! What a miserable, wretched retrospect it would be, ten years hence, to behold one of the class of '93, who belongs to the top in habits, in character, in energy, in vigor, in professional attainments, in general achievements, groping and groveling amid the shadow and gloom of the lower strata of human existence. Most of you have reason to be thankful that you have been born in some country that encourages and rewards the development of your manhood, encourages this development personally, politically, and professionally; professionally, your own observation and experience have already taught you, that you will have rivals and competitors that will exact from you the most indefatigable labor and study, the most unwearying struggle after attainments. Read carefully therefore, again, at the very outset, the Commentaries of Mr. Justice Blackstone, of Chancellor Kent, and carry with you at the same time, until you have learned them almost by heart, the Commentaries of Mr. Justice Story on the Constitution of the United States.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT.

It would embarrass me to speak at any great length on personal development in these short observations. You are all mature in years; you are familiar with the personal duties and obligations of life, and I cannot imagine the necessity of urging upon you the maintenance of high ideas, lofty purposes; I cannot imagine that you can hope for deserved and lasting success without a high standard of moral excellence, a continued presence of culture and refinement. I beg pardon, however, if you deem it intrusion, if I point you to one guide which will never fail in all political, personal and moral relations. Read the Sermon on the Mount. Many of you are familiar with it, some of you, I fear, have forgotten it. It is the fifth, sixth and seventh chapters of St. Matthew. Read it carefully, read it at morning, read it at night, read it daily. It will enable you to solve every complication of life, whether it be social, domestic, personal, political or professional; and it will, at least, teach you the wide difference between building your house upon a rock and building it upon the sand.

THE LAWYER IN POLITICS.

Now, as to politics. Most of you are citizens of the Republic. I hope I shall not be guilty of any invidious distinctions if I speak chiefly of that citizenship. It is said, that Gen. Lee, in one of the most bloody battles of the war, paused to observe, that if he had an army of men with the bravery and courage of the Southern troops, and the patriotism of the Union army, he could win any battle that was ever fought.

Gen. Lee was only theoretically correct. Any one of the great nations of Europe can bring into the field to-day an army equal to that of the United States. But in any foreign war in which the United States should be engaged it is more than probable, it is almost certain, that she would be efficient, that Gen. Lee's confidence would not be misplaced.

THIS IS A CHRISTIAN COUNTRY.

But, gentlemen, this is a Christian country. You may carefully eliminate from the Constitution of the United States any expression of the recognition of the Deity; it matters not whether you read the bible in the public schools, nor does it concern us what privileges of worship you may extend to the Jews or the Gentiles, to the Atheist, or the Infidel, it is nevertheless true, that the National Sentiment of this country is pervaded and permeated through and through by the Christian spirit, the Christian civilization, and it is better by far to submit all controversies, following the example to-day of two of the greatest nations of the globe—England and America—to the tribunal of Arbitration.

NATIONAL SENTIMENT.

But now as respects National Sentiment, in all your political ambitions, in all your political aspirations, try to keep in touch with the National Sentiment.

It is only a few years ago (we all, you know, have prejudices) that I conceived a horrible prejudice against what is popularly known as Woman's Suffrage. I got the idea with Paul, that women ought not to speak in a meeting. I may say now, that I believe, that the National Sentiment is rapidly drifting in favor of extending to all, to every human being, the political privilege which is accorded to one. There will be no limitation based upon race, sex, color, previous condition of servitude, or nationality. Now it seems to me ridiculous and absurd, that a young woman who has graduated at Harvard or the University of Michigan should be compelled to lock herself up in her domicile and engage all her time in determining the question as to what her husband shall have for dinner or supper; denied all rights of any interest whatever, because even interest is frowned down often times, in national affairs, in this great country of which she forms so important a part and of which she is a citizen, and particularly where she represents property rights and property interests. Look well, therefore, gentlemen, to the drift of National Sentiment.

FOREIGN INFLUX.

So as regards the Chinese. National sentiment in this country will condemn the present method of treating the Chinese. Think of this great Republic, afraid of 30,000 Chinese! Think of it! You gentlemen from the North, who condemn the breach of duty of the Southern people towards the African people of the South, just emerging from slavery, think of it! Eight million in the aggregate and yet you are afraid to cope with the existence of 30,000 Chinese within your borders. The United States as a nation cannot prosper, at least have peaceful and harmonious relations with all the nations of the earth, if it discriminates between nationalities. Let there be, if you please, a limitation upon immigration, but let that limitation be not founded upon nationality, but be uniformly applied to all nationalities alike. Good men of all nationalities we want, bad men we ought to shun and avoid.

CHURCH TAXATION.

Take another question, that of church taxation. Now I may agree with those who favor church taxation, but I express no opinion upon any of these questions. What I say is only intended as a suggestion. Churches are not sources of any revenue. Suppose, now, for the purpose of giving the state revenue, we convert all churches and charitable institutions into places of business. Don't you think the state would be the loser of a million times more than the taxes they would gather? I simply say that it is well to watch National Sentiment. I believe that National Sentiment will condemn to disappointment any aspirant for political honors who succeeds in securing laws which will tax church property, although he may have all the logic on his side. This question of National Sentiment is a question of feeling which cannot be avoided. So with reference to a great many other questions. I may add, in conclusion, that National Sentiment is always patriotic. That means supreme loyalty to the government of the United States.

The great state of Mississippi, which was represented so long and so ably in the National Councils by Jefferson Davis, in an enactment of a Constitution in 1890, puts upon record the first declaration of an organized body, that it shall be unconstitutional for a state to take any action whatever looking towards a withdrawal from the Union. Again I need say to you that National Sentiment is patriotic, it means loyalty, supreme loyalty to the Government of the United States. We have but one flag; it floats at the head of every procession where a flag is floated. The boys use it, when, in their sportive fancy, they represent the miniature soldiers of the United States. The girls use it when they deck and adorn themselves as fragments of a Fourth of July celebration. It embellishes the halls of all political parties no matter how violently arrayed against each other. It is yours. It is mine, it is

"The Star Spangled Banner, Oh! long may it wave, O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave."

ASTONISHING.

Is the Growth and Hold of the Tobacco Habit.

Much has been said of the cure of intemperance, the use of opiates, etc., while another evil, greater because it is more widespread and quiet in its deadly results, has been ignored. We have reference to the tobacco habit, to which the public mind is being slowly aroused. Tobacco in any form is injurious. At first it is used sparingly, but the desire grows until at length a habit has been formed, a demand has been created which cannot be thrown off except by the exercise of the greatest will power. The growth of this habit is one of the alarming developments of the age. Such a large percentage of the men of to-day use tobacco in one form or other that the practice may be said to be almost universal. Out of 10,000 men not over 400 will be found who are free from it, while boys not out of their teens stand around on the streets chewing and smoking with as much gusto as an adult.

The evils which follow the use of tobacco are many and very serious. Few habits will confess the truth when their system is broken down and completely wrecked, they are unable to make further concealment. The nerves become shattered, sleepless nights, impaired eyesight, disordered stomach, vertigo, palpitation of the heart, throat trouble, facial neuralgia, catarrh and paralysis are almost certain to follow the excessive use of the weed. It is not uncommon to hear men acknowledge their inability to reform and thus they drift along towards an early grave. Dr. Hill, a man of great penetration, soon discovered this evil and after years of patient, continuous research and experiments, gave to the world his celebrated Chloride of Gold Tablets, one of the greatest blessings known to modern therapeutics. These Tablets are endorsed by the medical fraternity and prescribed by physicians in their regular practice. They are a sure cure for the tobacco habit in any form and are pleasant and harmless in their composition. The patient is not required to exercise his will power, but continues his old habits until he rejoices in the discovery that his appetite is gone and he has been reduced from his perilous position. Write to the Ohio Chemical Co., Lima, O., sole manufacturers of Hill's Tablets, or call upon your leading druggists.

Very Pat Lines.

The following appropriate lines were never written by anyone but one who had had experience. If you have a home, "you know how 'tis yourself."
"Father, dear father, come home with me now, for ma has some carpets to beat; she's got all the furniture out in the yard from the front porch clear down to the street. The stoves must come down and be put in the shed, and the yard must be cleaned of the grass, for it's time to clean house and the devil's to pay, and the front windows need some new glass. Father, dear father, come home with me now, and bring some bologna and cheese; it's most twelve o'clock and there is nothing to eat—I'm so hungry I'm weak in the knees. All the dinner we'll have will be cold scraps and such, and we'll have to eat standing up, too, for the tables and chairs are all out in the yard—oh, I wish spring and house cleaning were through! Father, dear father, come home with me now, for ma is as mad as a Turk; she says that you are a lazy old thing and she proposes to put you to work. There's painting to do and paper to hang, and windows and casings to scrub, for it's house cleaning time and you've got to come home and revel in suds and cold grub."

The poets sing, in dainty rhymes,
Of summer days and sunny climes,
Of beauteous maidens, passing fair,
With witching eyes and waving hair
