to many people just now is the selection of a good place for a summer vacation. With a great many it is customary to get away from home as soon as hot weather comes, and spend the summer at some place near the water. Harbor Springs, Bay View, Petoskey, Charlevoix, Traverse City, and the various resorts on Grand Traverse Bay, offer many advantages to the seeker after rest and coolness. They are so well known that description of their charms is not necessary in this limited space. We want to say that the new resort in this limited space, the Chicago and West Michigan Ry., is a favorite one and will be used by a great many people this year, who appreciate its splendid service and the beautiful scenery along its line.

For over forty miles north of Traverse City the road skirts the shores of lakes, bays, and rivers, which with the forest surrounding them form pictures which must be seen to be appreciated. Commencing June 25th, the service will consist of three through trains per day from Chicago, to Bay View, the "West Michigan," and two from Detroit via the Detroit, Lansing and Northern R. R. to Grand Rapids, there connecting with the C. & W. M.

Morning trains will have elegant parlor cars, and night trains Wagner sleeping cars through from Chicago and Detroit to Bay View, through Traverse City, Charlevoix, and Petoskey. All agents sell tickets via the "West Michigan." We want you to try it this year.

LOST—VIOLIN

Taken from the store of the Ann Arbor Organ Company, Tuesday forenoon, May 23, an Amati Violin with label on inside (Repaired by Aug. Gendemer, N. Y.). Has light orange color back, darker face and black under bridge and strings, two repaired cracks on face, ivory keys, patent Albert Hard Rubber tail piece; sides of head (scroll) has been repaired. Violin is old and shows hard use. A liberal reward for information regarding it or its return to

Prof. Schaeberle's Trip to Chili.

The following article relative to Prof. J. M. Schaeberle, who is so well known here, and of whom Ann Arbor and the University is proud, is taken from the Chicago Inter Ocean:

Professor J. M. Schaeberle, of the Lick Observatory, stepped from the deck of the steamer City of Paris this afternoon (June 24) with an elastic stride and a contented look on his face. He had every reason to feel satisfied with himself. The reason was that he had just returned from a trip, which if taken in one direction would extend half way around the earth, for the sake of proving a theory, which he had about the cause of the corona of the sun as it appears during a total eclipse, and he had the satisfaction of knowing that his former belief had been substantiated. Further than this, he has taken the largest photographs which have ever been taken of an eclipse of the sun. To do this he was compelled to take a journey of nearly 12,000 miles in a country where all kinds of fevers prevailed. Professor Schaeberle was extremely anxious to get some good photographs of the appearance of the sun while behind the moon on April 16 last. He started from San Francisco on Jan. 25. In talking on the subject to-day the professor said:

"Yes, my mechanical theory of the solar corona has been proven by the un-sentimental photographic plate. I am perfectly satisfied with the results of my voyage. Everything went well from beginning to end, and I could not have had better weather, if I had had it made to order. My first stopping place was Carrizal Baho, in Chili. There I was met by Mr. King, the British consul, who gave me valuable assistance all the time I was in South America. From there I went to Yeroa Bueno and found that that place was twenty-five miles one side of the die of the totality of the eclipse. The next day I took a train for Merceditas and I found that this town was yet five miles from the line of totality.

PHOTOGRAPHS THE CORONA.

"I learned that there was a copper mine in the mountains about fifteen miles away, at a point about 4,000 feet higher than any other point in the vicinity. I decided to make a trial of this place, and I found it suited my requirements exactly. It was 7,000 feet above the sea level, and the presence of the mining people made my task much easier one than it would have been if I had been obliged to depend upon the natives for assistance. I found that this spot was very nearly within the line of totality. I started to work immediately. The big forty-foot telescope with a five-inch lens was placed in exactly the position that it was to occupy at the moment of the eclipse, and could not be moved at the critical time. The plates used in the big telescope were eighteen by twenty-two inches. Besides the big instrument, I had a Clark equatorial, with a six-inch lens and a six-foot focus, a six-inch Dallmeyer lens, with a three-foot focus, and two small cameras. In all I made about fifty negatives of the corona. I made eight negatives with the big telescope which are larger than any which have ever before been taken by anybody of an eclipse. I made a number of observations every night to discover the absorption of the atmosphere. I also photographed a number of the important southern clusters of stars and bodies which cannot be seen in the Northern sky. I was there four weeks, and there was only one day in that time on which if the eclipse had taken place it could not have been seen. On the big plates the corona shows the full length of the plates, and the details are brought out with great precision. The photographs taken with the smaller instruments are also valuable. They do not show the corona so far away from the sun, naturally, but the inner corona is brought out well. The theory which I had before making these observations is proved, I think, without a doubt."

HONORED IN CHILI.

Professor Schaeberle's theory, which he went to South America to prove, was that the beautiful corona, which appears every time there is a total eclipse of the sun, was caused by the fact that the sun was covered with immense volcanoes, which continually belched forth great masses of molten material, which the sun drew back to it with a speed which could not be realized. The corona is the ring of light which appears about the moon every time it gets between the earth and the sun and causes a total eclipse. Many theories have been put forward concerning the cause of the phenomenon. He believes that he has settled the question, and, if so, he has done a good deal for science. On his way back the Professor stopped at Santiago, Chili, and was requested by the members of the Scientific Society of Chili to show some photographs which he had secured. He complied with the request, and the society made him an honorary member, a distinction which has never been conferred upon a foreigner by that society before. The professor will go to Ann Arbor, Mich., where he was a professor in the Michigan university. After a short time there he will return to resume his duties at the Lick Observatory. The result of his labors will be developed and printed in the publications of the Pacific Astronomical Society.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

Two Firemen Maimed for Life, and Two Others Seriously Injured.

One of the most serious accidents that has occurred in our city for some time happened at Fireman's Hall Monday night. The boys at the engine house had a small cannon, made of a cast-iron shaft that had been bored out, weighing altogether about 90 pounds. This they had been firing during the night, to help along the enthusiasm that usually ushers in the nation's birthday. At a little before midnight they resolved to load the cannon once more and then quit. It was while loading it that the accident occurred. They had put in the powder and Frank Kapp was ramming down a wad with an iron ram-rod, while Chas. Carroll held the gun in position. While engaged in that work the powder was prematurely discharged, bursting the gun, taking off both hands of Carroll, destroying the right leg of Kapp above the knee, and bruising Henry McLaren and Will Rettich in a serious manner.

As soon as the accident occurred Chas. Edwards called to the boys in the building and they rushed to the aid of the injured ones with towels and bandages. It was probably the knowledge they had of caring for the wounded that saved the lives of Carroll and Kapp, as both lost considerable blood before they could be cared for, this being especially true of Carroll. Drs. Smith, Breakey and other physicians were summoned and responded immediately, and all was done that possibly could be for the sufferers. Amputations were made of Carroll's hands, Kapp's leg, and the injuries of McLaren and Rettich dressed.

The accident caused universal regret in the city and cast a damper over the festivities of the day.

The accident to young Carroll is especially unfortunate. His older brother Will, was one of the first members of the present fire department, and a most excellent fireman, but was obliged to resign because of ill health, and went west and died within a few months with quick consumption. Charles took his place, and has made an excellent record, also. He has been prompt, always ready and never absent from his post of duty. In fact the same may be said of Kapp and the other injured boys.

World's Fair Balance Sheet.

Franklin H. Head has an article in the July Forum in regard to "The World's Fair Balance Sheet," that contains a great deal of information relative to the great show. He figures out that the great exposition, while it may be a losing investment to the people of Chicago, that to the people of the nation it will be a magnificent benefaction. We quote: "Never upon the earth has there been witnessed such a superb aggregation of the works of all nations at their very best. It is the bright consummate flower of human civilization, and its results in the education of our people in the direction of industrial and artistic achievements will be lasting and immeasurable."

Then Mr. Head proceeds to flay the slow-going people of the east, who draw their purse-strings so tightly in this way:

"Chicago is a young city; its wealth is to-day largely in the possession of those by whom it has been accumulated, and these people recognize the fact that this wealth is the result, not alone of their individual exertions and business foresight and sagacity, but far more than this, of the phenomenal growth and development of the city itself, and the country tributary to it, through the agency of modern systems of transportation, and of the business methods rendered possible by the new mechanical and scientific agencies of the last half century. So lavish an expenditure, based upon an anomalous civic pride, would be forever impossible in a city of inherited wealth, the possessors of which recognize, as a rule, in but scanty measure, their obligations to the community."

This writer figures the receipts at $15,000,000 and the disbursement $11,500,000, leaving a balance of $3,500,000 with which to pay back the city of Chicago who subscribed $10,000,000 to this mammoth enterprise. In this article the gate receipts are estimated at $10,000,000, a figure that is undoubtedly too low, as the estimates now place them at least $12,000,000. So it looks now as if the enterprising Chicago people would receive back about 50 cents on the dollar of their subscriptions. They ought to receive dollar for dollar.

Prevent Decay of the Teeth

With their surest preservative, aromatic SOZODONT. Whiteness of the dental row, a healthful rosinness and hardness of the gums, a sweet breath, an agreeable taste in the mouth—all these are conferred by SOZODONT. Does not such an invaluable toilet article, one so pure as well as effective deserve the popularity it enjoys? Most assuredly. It has no rival worthy of the name. The ordinary powders and pastes are nothing to it, and since its appearance have rapidly lost ground. Sold by all druggists.

NOTHING LIKE IT.

Lions on Horseback—Trained Pigs and Tigers on Velocipedes, Etc.

"Nothing like it has ever been seen in this country." That is the opinion of every visitor to HAGENCK'S ZOOLOGICAL ARENA on Midway Plaisance, World's Fair grounds. Every day, from morning till late in the evening, thousands of Lions' Fair visitors crowd this wonderful show, to witness the performance of the lions on velocipedes, tigers on velocipedes, trained pigs, the rare monkeys and parrots, and thousands of other wonderful curiosities. Don't fail to see the greatest of all animal shows when visiting the World's Fair grounds. A restaurant with popular prices is in the building.

The character of love is the same, summer and winter. It does not change with circumstance or climate. The dearest spot on earth, just now, is Chicago.

Gov. Atgild—the heathen—believes in "turning the rascals out."

One of President Cleveland's great jokes: The appointment of Hoke Smith secretary of the interior.

It is asserted that pensions of Union veterans are being canceled at the rate of fifty per day. Hoke is a hummer.

Tammany has suffered some embarrassment through the fact that the position of Fourth of July orator doesn't carry any patronage with it.

President Cleveland has called an extra session of Congress to convene Aug. 7. He desires to have the financial situation viewed or reviewed by that body. A dangerous proceeding.

The citizens of Detroit, irrespective of party, will tender Wm. E. Quinby a public reception at the Cadillac to-night. Mr. Quinby will sail within a few days for the Hague, to assume the duties of minister for this government.

The farm laborers of Kansas, encouraged by their populist employers, are about to organize and make a demand for higher wages. This will doubtless lead to further demands upon the government for financial assistance by the farmers.

According to a Maryland paper, one county in that state has found a profit in strawberry raising. 600,000 quarts were shipped from Caroline County, netting the growers $30,000 above all expenses. It evidently is the early berry that catches the money.

President Cleveland's man Blount, at Hawaii not only refused to attend a meeting of Americans to arrange for a 4th of July celebration at Honolulu, but declined to be present at the celebration. That's the sort of a hairpin Blount is. He doesn't think much of the United States anyway. His love of country died at Appamattox.

Philadelphia Times: "It is a blistering reproach upon the nation to issue a sixty-cent dollar, stamp it as a dollar, declare it a legal tender for the payment of debts and emblazon on it the impious lie, 'In God we trust.' It has done more to undermine American credit throughout the world than any other one cause, and we are now face to face with the issue of returning to honest money or suffering grievously in both public and private credit."

If a republican congress had been elected in 1890 the present Silver law would not now be in force. A majority of republicans in the House voted last winter to repeal the law. The democratic majority of 145 stood in the way. Again, if a republican Congress had been elected in 1892 the distress and anxiety in the business world would have been avoided, because there could have been no doubt about the attitude of a republican majority toward silver. It is distrust which is at the bottom of the present troubles.

Never was a graver mistake made than in the pardon of the three Chicago anarchists. The supreme court heard their case with grave deliberation. That was not a packed court. Gov. Altgeld has made a big blunder.—Adrian Press.

A "blunder" is altogether too mild. It was a deliberate outrage upon the people of this entire nation. Some of those "effigies" of Gov. Altgeld that are being hung in Illinois contain the governor himself.

Why Silver Declines in Price.

The following table will show why silver cannot keep up in the race with its yellow companion in intrinsic value:

Year.	Gold.	Silver.
1874	$1,000,000	$1,000,000
1875	$1,000,000	$1,000,000
1876	$1,000,000	$1,000,000
1877	$1,000,000	$1,000,000

1893	$1,000,000	$1,000,000

The Philadelphia Press remarks: "We have a Vice-President who was known as a copperhead, and a Minister to Denmark who is charged with buying arms to aid a treasonable organization in making war on the government he represents, and now it is shown that the Minister to Turkey sang the praises of the assassin of the Martyr President."

It is perhaps not generally known that Eli Richard, a young physician of Rochelle, France, made the first machine after which our modern bicycle is patterned. He was a medical student in Paris in 1866, and became one of the great physicians of France. He died at the age of 61, at Rochelle, in 1906. There is a street in Rochelle named for him, and there is now a movement to erect a statue to the inventor of the bicycle.

All merchants who prepare a certain product for market protect themselves by a trademark. Not only is this a protection but it is a guarantee of the excellence of the article. It is good for the buyer, too, for if the article is not good the trademark will keep him from buying the same class of goods a second time. Why is not a trademark equally in favor of the farmer? If his products are first class, his trademark will draw the same buyers again and again, as surely as in the case of the merchant, and equally surely it will keep away buyers unless his trademark always accompanies the best goods. Indeed, only those who are reliable can afford to use a trademark, but it will pay them.

The business failures for the past three months in the United States exceeds all previous records, and does not speak well for the present administration. That our readers may judge fully of their extent, we give below a table showing the record for five years:

One of the most vital phases of the question of good roads receives less attention, generally speaking, than it merits. This is the widening of the tires used on vehicles designed to carry heavy loads. The most pressing need of all is the substitution of tires which will roll roads and preserve and smooth them for such as cut the best highways to pieces, swiftly and surely. In France, a country of model roads, not only are the tires of draft wagons wide, but the hind wheels are set wider apart than the front so that the inner edge of the second track just laps the outer line of the forward wheel. Thus a wagon with tires four inches wide rolls down at least seven inches wide on each side, or some fourteen inches altogether. Compared with such use of a roadway the American habit of hauling a heavy load on wheels set in the same line and with tires not more than two inches wide is evidently an abuse which would ruin the best of country roads, and the observant resident of any city knows that it destroys city pavements. It is sheer folly to permit the owners of heavy vehicles to continue to misuse highways maintained at the expense of the whole community, and it is high time that as a first great step toward obtaining good roads Michigan should follow the sensible example of Massachusetts and pass a law strong enough to force the placing of proper tires on all draft wagons.

India's Demonetization of Silver.

The demonetization of silver by India is another long step toward the universal adoption of the gold standard by civilized nations. After its long and brilliant struggle against the inevitable, the cause of bimetalism must at last capitulate. Since England made the first move toward monometallism in 1798 and adopted the gold standard in 1816, the conquests of the single standard have been continuous. To-day Mexico is the only nation with pretensions to civilization that allows the free coinage of silver, and the impossibility of using in a satisfactory manner two standards of value whose relative worth fluctuates from year to year is coming to be generally acknowledged by all thoughtful students of the question who approach the subject without the prepossession of a hobby. In the nature of the case there can be but one standard, and either gold will be supreme and silver be measured by it, or the reverse will happen. Germany in 1871, France in 1873, Belgium in 1861, Holland in 1875, the United States in 1873, and Austria in 1879 had acknowledged this and led the way to the policy now adopted by India. The United States had for years been on what was a de facto gold basis prior to 1873.

Two factors have operated to bring about the advance of the gold standard, its convenience and stability. One measure of value is enough; a second can but be superfluous and confusing. If the choice must be between gold and silver, the former is preferable because it is less bulky and therefore more convenient, and because it fluctuates less than the cheaper metal. For subsidiary coins, silver is valuable and necessary, but its use as a money metal seems likely henceforth to be confined to this. Our present silver purchase law is almost as far short of complete bimetalism as the issue of legal tender notes would be. It has for its central purpose the purchase of silver bullion and the issue of treasury notes against it. The attempt to increase the amount of money in this way, however, has not been successful, because it has created such a lack of confidence that large amounts of gold have been withdrawn from circulation, and the volume of currency has been reduced instead of increased. The demonetization of silver by India must still further weaken the position of our government, and leaves Congress no alternative but the unconditional repeal of the silver bullion law and the unhesitating and open announcement of our adhesion to the gold standard which is already practically in use in this country. India has demonetized silver because of the terrible and disastrous unsettlement of values by the depreciation of the metal. Silver will continue to be coined by the government as the United States coined it under the Bland law, the seigniorage probably going to the Indian government in return for the credit it lends the silver rupee to enable it to circulate at par. This is somewhat similar to the silver legislation in this country, where the credit of the United States keeps the silver dollar in circulation at par, though its bullion value is but a trifle more than 60 cents. By thus preventing the further fall in the value of the rupee, the Indian government has undoubtedly taken a wise course that will greatly relieve the financial distress prevalent there. The gold standard will not preclude the continuance of a silver circulating medium, but give it stability because it is measured by a fixed standard and subsidiary to gold. In other words, India will have a gold standard without a gold currency. The effect can hardly fail to be a further depreciation in the price of the dishonored metal. India has been from time immemorial a great purchaser of silver. The white metal has gone out to her in large amounts to settle the balances of trade that are regularly in her favor, and $1,000,000,000 in silver is estimated to be in circulation there at the present time.

The stopping of free coinage can hardly fail to reduce the quantity thus taken, lessen the market for silver, and increase the demand for gold, and will place our government in a still more disadvantageous position than it occupies at the present time. The fact that India has adopted a policy similar to some of the silver legislation of this country does not justify us in continuing our present course. With her it is probably but a step toward the further dishonoring of silver, and the effects of the present Sherman law in this country are too patent to allow of temporizing. The United States is at the point where a gold standard with legal tender treasury notes would be safer and more satisfactory in all respects than the silver bullion law now in vogue, and if the business interests of the country demand a continued increase in the volume of the currency it should be made in this way rather than in the manner now provided by law.

Last Memorial Day Gov. McKinley spoke in Indianapolis, and this is a paragraph from his speech: "There is a sentiment abroad in this land that that glorious army was gotten together and equipped for the sole purpose of securing pensions. I have no patience with that sentiment. There is no soldier in my audience, there is no reputable member of the Grand Army of the Republic in this broad land who entered the army with the hope of pension or spoils. The volunteer and the man who was placed in command of him are one and indivisible. The private soldier wore no insignia of rank on the outside of his blue coat, but he carried the heart of a hero underneath it. There were a million men in the field at the close of the war, and the highest tribute which can be paid them is that they came back to their homes and settled down in the quiet walk of life."

The College Graduate.

There are 430 universities and colleges of liberal arts in the United States, exclusive of a large number of minor institutions ambitious to thoroughly equip young men for life work; and from those institutions of high rank it is no exaggeration to say that 25,000 graduates will spring this year into the arena of life disposed to do great things.

The one item of advice we would urge on these young men is to learn to do some one thing. The world is brimming over with "all-round" good fellows—"Jacks of all trades," good fellows—refined, good company and what not—who cannot do any one thing well, and who, for that reason, make little headway and often get discouraged and fail. The average collegian, on commencement day, is master of nothing, though graduates of scientific schools are to an extent exceptions. The withering question of the practical employer, as he looks sharply on the applicant, "What can you do?" is usually the first hint the young man receives that his alma mater has not been wholly kind to him. He knows things, but he cannot do things.

A few years' hard, faithful work, however, on any one line will put him in a position of advantage. But it must be concentrated effort. One temptation for the collegian is to linger about the delightful campus and do graduate work with no definite goal in mind. "General culture" is well enough for the young man of wealth, but life is too short and competition too brisk to admit of the poor boy, who would hit something hard, loitering outside his chosen profession or occupation for a single year. Our American collegians get to work late enough as it is. In the first few years out of college the young man can do the disagreeable preliminary drudgery—it may be rolling molasses barrels in the cellar of a wholesale grocery store—which proves irksome and repellant to the last degree later on in life.

The graduate who chooses wisely now his occupation for life, who does not change it, who never lets go, is the man who will succeed.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Baby.

London Tid-Bits offered a prize of two guineas for the best definition of a baby. It was awarded for the answer given below:

"A tiny feather from the wing of love, dropped into the sacred lap of motherhood."

Among the other excellent ones sent, are the following:

The bachelor's horror, the mother's treasure, and the despotic tyrant of the most republican household.

A human flower untouched by the finger of care.

The morning caller, the noonday crawler, midnight brawler.

The magic spell by which the gods transform a house into a home.

A stranger with unspeakable cheek, that enters a house without a stitch to his back, and is received with open arms by every one.

A bursting bud on the tree of life.

The only precious possession that never excites envy.

The latest edition of humanity, of which every couple think they possess the finest copy.

A native of all countries, who speaks the language of none.

The unconscious mediator between father and mother, and the focus of their hearts.

About twenty-two inches of ego and wriggle, writhe and scream, fitted with suction and testing apparatus for milk, and automatic alarm to regulate supply.

A quaint little craft called Innocence, laden with simplicity and love.

A curious bud of uncertain blossom.

A thing we are expected to kiss, and look as if we enjoyed it.

The smartest little craft afloat in home's delightful bay.

A mite of humanity that will cry no harder if a pin is stuck into him than he will if the cat won't let him pull her tail.

A little stranger, with a free pass to the heart's best affections.

The most extensive employer of female labor.

The pulp from which the leaves of life's book are made.

A padlock on the chain of love.

A soft bundle of love and trouble which we cannot do without.

A necessity—in order to keep up the supply of readers for the future.

The sweetest thing God ever made and forgot to give wings to.

A pleasure to two, a nuisance to every other body, and a necessity to the world.

An inhabitant of lapland.

That which makes home happier, love stronger, patience greater, hands busier, nights longer, days shorter, purses lighter, clothes shabbier, the past forgotten, the future brighter.

The Church and the Schoolhouse.

When Gen. Jackson was President and Gen. Cass Secretary of War they visited together a portion of New England. In riding over that highly cultivated region, Gen. Jackson was so much pleased with the appearance of the people that he expressed his satisfaction to his companion. "What fine, manly, intelligent looks these men have," said the President. "How robust and vigorous they seem, and what a spirit of enterprise and perseverance they manifest! Why, with an army of such men I would undertake to face the world." "Do you know the cause of these traits you prize so highly?" asked the veteran secretary. "What is it?" asked the old hero. "Do you see the steeple of that meeting house yonder on the hill?" "Yes," said the President. "And that schoolhouse near it?" "I see them both," said Gen. Jackson. "Well," said Gen. Cass, himself a native of the Granite State, "there, in the church and the school house, there is where New England men are made."

How Chinese Are Educated.

The Chinese school children have instilled into them at an early age habits of hard, steady study.

At the age of 5 a boy begins his schooling. At daylight he rises, and after dressing as quickly as possible, he starts breakfastless to school.

He is given a task and after it is completed he is allowed an hour for breakfast; again, latter he has an hour for luncheon, but he is at his study nearly twelve hours a day, seven days in the week. All this time when he is not reciting his lessons, he is studying aloud at the top of his voice. He is under the eye of his master both in school and on his way to and from school.

The lad is taught rudimentary astronomy, physics, and natural history, but greater stress is put upon writing and his literary studies.

"A Thousand Letters," a poem, is the study that forms the backbone of his literary education.

In it are taught the duties of children to parents and all such matters. Whatever the study may be, history, classics or science, every lesson is learned and repeated word for word.—Inter Ocean.

World's Fair Complete.

The World's Columbian Exposition is one of the most complete and attractive exhibitions ever given since time began. As the warm, balmy days of summer make a visit to this great show a pleasure, hundreds of thousands of people are feasting their eyes on its beauties.

In order to prepare the great mass of humanity to better understand and appreciate the Exposition, the World's Columbian Exposition Illustrated, in its mid-summer or July number, has made a new departure in the character and class of its illustrations. In this issue special attention has been given to illustrations of the exhibits.

Among the leading articles are "Success of the Exposition," "The Opening of World's Congresses," "The Exposition and the Youth," "The Many Attractions of the Exposition," "Realization of Hopes," "Best Time to See the Exposition," and others.

From every standpoint the present number of this excellent magazine is the strongest yet sent out to its thousands of readers and admirers. In its completed form it will make a valuable history of the great Exposition that no one should fail to have. Back numbers always on hand, and all requests for either back or future issues, sent to the publisher personally, will receive prompt attention. Sample copy sent for 25 cents in stamps. Address:

Hutzel's Water Back!

A very important invention which will be hailed with delight by every body using a stove or range for hot water circulation. After years of experience we have succeeded in producing a simple and perfect WATER BACK.

It overcomes all the present troubles of extracting lime and other sediments which accumulate in water backs, often making them useless and in great many instances becoming dangerous.

The outlay of dollars is reduced to dimes. No household using a range can afford to be without it.

No more trouble by using city water for hot water circulation.

Can be used in any stove. Ask your stove dealer for Hutzel's Water Back.

IN A BAD FIX.

The Startling Sight Which Met a Hon Vivant's Gaze Next Morning.

Here is a story which, according to the New York Sun, was a favorite in the repertoire of a famous Cincinnati:

"On one occasion, he was wont to say, 'a friend of mine had been on a terrific spree which had been occupying his nights right along for two weeks or more. He managed somehow to be on deck during business hours, but when night came he was down in the hold and everywhere else. One morning he awoke heavy-headed, half-dressed and lying crosswise of the bed. When he had gone to sleep or how he did not remember. There was the odor of stale beer and wine and tobacco smoke in the room, and bottles and cigar butts were scattered all over. By a great effort he got to his feet, and for an instant his head felt as if it would fall off and burst into a million pieces. He cast his eyes around the room. As they fell upon the foot of the bed they encountered a grim and grinning monkey sitting on the rail. There was no known reason why a monkey should be there, but there it sat and grinned. He watched it intently as he slipped over toward a table where lay a loaded revolver. He was very, very rocky, but he had grip enough to hold the gun, and with a sudden movement he had it trained on the simian. He was a famous shot, but the monkey never wavered. It simply sat there winking and grinning. My friend held the pistol down on it for a second, steadily.

"Now," he said, nervously, 'if you are a real monkey, you are in a bad fix'—then he hesitated a moment—but if you are not,' he went on, 'then I'm in a bad fix.' "He banged away, and it was ten days before he was himself again."

We write it down till everybody sees it.

Till everybody is sick of seeing it. Till everybody knows it without seeing it—that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of chronic catarrh in the head, catarrhal headache, and "cold in the head." In perfect faith, its makers, the World's Dispensary Medical Association of Buffalo, N. Y., offers to pay $500 to any one suffering from chronic catarrh in the head whom they cannot cure.

Now if the conditions were reserved—if they asked you to pay $500 for a positive cure you might hesitate. Here are reputable men, with years of honorable dealing; thousands of dollars and a great name back of them and they say—"We can cure you because we've cured thousands of others like you—if we can't we will pay you $500 for the knowledge that there's one whom we can't cure."

They believe in themselves. Isn't it worth a trial. Isn't any trial preferable to catarrh?

An Extravagant Monarch.

The sultan of Turkey is said to be the most extravagant housekeeper in the world. According to a recent estimate his domestic budget runs thus: Repairs, new furniture, mats, beds, etc., 15,000,000 francs; toilet requisites, including rouge and enamels for the ladies of the harem, and jewelry, 50,000,000 francs; extra extravagances, 65,000,000 francs; clothes and furniture for the sultan personally, 10,000,000 francs; douceurs and wages, 20,000,000 francs; gold and silver plate, 12,500,000 francs; maintenance of five carriages and horses, 2,500,000 francs—a total of 175,000,000 francs, or more than $38,000,000.

Rev. C. W. Welch, Lakeview, Mich., says, "I have used Alderone and have known my neighbors to use it and always with splendid success."

A charming reminder of the dead—"Addison's Walk."

How's Your Complexion?

Most toilet preparations ruin the face. Rozodoro does not. It is guaranteed to remove freckles, tan, sunburn and blotches of all kinds, leaving the face a natural white, and imparting a youthful freshness and softness to the skin. Thousands of ladies have used it for years and it does not leave the skin dry. If there is no agent in your locality, send 10 cents to the Rozodoro Co., South Bend, Ind., for a large bottle sent in plain wrapper. Agents wanted.

GENTLEMEN:—It gives me pleasure to speak of praise for your Tablets. My son was strongly addicted to the use of liquor, and through a friend, I was led to try your Tablets. He was a heavy and constant drinker, but after using your Tablets but three days he quit drinking, and will not touch liquor of any kind. I have waited four months before writing you, in order to know the cure was permanent.

GENTLEMEN:—I have been using your cure for tobacco habit, and found it would do what you claimed for it. I used ten cents worth of the strongest chewing tobacco a day, and from one to five cigars; or I would smoke from ten to forty pipes of tobacco. Have chewed and smoked for twenty-five years, and two packages of your Tablets cured me so I have no desire for it.

Six tramps were arrested Saturday for breaking into a freight car in the M. C. yards. They claimed to be on their way home to Detroit, from the World's Fair. They were taken to Jackson Monday, to answer to the charge for which they were arrested here.

A smash-up on the T., A. & N. M. R. R. yesterday p. m., caused the evening trains on that road to be late, and those who were at Zukey and Whitmore Lake, expecting to return early in the evening did not reach here until 1 o'clock or after. Consequently there were some sleepy ones this morning.

While the Ann Arbor council is trying to wrestle with the saloon control, by ordinance, or other means, we suggest to the city solons the propriety of reading the decision of the supreme court in the case of The People vs. Furman, and learn that municipal corporations have mighty little to say in the matter, for want of jurisprudence.—Adrian Press.

The Beta Theta Pi had a large reunion banquet last Thursday evening with an elegant menu served by Mallory of Detroit. Toasts were responded to by Frank Child, O. F. Hunt, of Detroit; E. B. Chandler, of Chicago; D. C. Smith, Earl Dow, Wm. C. Sprague, of Detroit; W. H. Turnbull, Manistee; E. M. Smith of Detroit, and others. Songs and jokes made a jolly gathering.

The people of Ann Arbor displayed varied tastes in enjoying the Fourth yesterday. The small boy had the most fun, of course. He always does have. The residents who were left in town proceeded to have a quiet time, and succeeded. Many went to Chicago, some to Whitmore, and the various lakes around, while others helped the German society celebrate at the park.

Friday evening last a banquet was given at the Germania hotel by some of Ann Arbor's German citizens, in honor of the two Commissioners of the German government in charge of the educational exhibit of that nation at the World's Fair, Dr. H. Lichtenfeldt of Berlin, and Prof. Finkler, of Bonn. The affair was an exceedingly pleasant one, Paul G. Suekey acted as toastmaster, and Prof. Calvin Thomas, Prof. Finkler, Dr. Vaughan, Dr. Lichenfeldt, and Dr. Rominger responded to sentiments. Prof. Thomas gave a fine idea of the founding and upbuilding of the U. of M. in his remarks.

At the election of the Ann Arbor Turn Verein held Monday night the following officers were elected: President, William Herz; vice-president, Charles Dietz; Turn waerts, first, Charles Rettick; second, Henry Weitbrecht; recording secretary, Christian Gauss; corresponding secretary, Albert W. Sorg; treasurer, William Arnold; cashier, Christian Braun; quartermaster, Fred Gauss; trustees, Christian Funk and George Grunner; color bearer, John Fischer; steward, Conrad Schneider. The finances of the society are in a flourishing condition.

On Saturday, July 1st, at 3 o'clock p. m., Laverne Bassett, of Detroit, was married to Miss Arda M. Clark, at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Clark, of S. Division st., Rev. Mr. Benton, of Clarkston, performing the ceremony. The couple will be at home, No. 88 Park st., Detroit, after this date. Mr. Bassett was formerly with A. J. Sawyer, of this city; is a graduate of the lit. department, class of '88, law '90, and the couple have many friends in this city and county to wish them a happy life's voyage.

The dedication of their new flag by the D. O. H. society yesterday was an enjoyable affair. The procession, which formed at about 11 o'clock, consisted of the Ann Arbor Rifles, and the several German societies of the city to the number of about 200. These were preceded by the mayor and other city officers in carriages, and a large delegation of wheelmen on their steeds of steel. The procession after marching through some of the principal streets of town proceeded to Relief Park where the exercises of dedication were gone through with. An address of welcome was made by Mayor Thompson, an oration delivered by County Treasurer Sneykey, having for his subject Columbus. The flag was presented by Mrs. John Mayer, in a neat little speech, and the maker of the flag Miss Clara Hermanau, being called upon recited in an excellent manner a poem from the German, portraying the patriotism of the German soldiers. The festivities lasted long into the evening, and everybody who attended had a good time.

On Thursday evening last Ann Arbor experienced the biggest fire that she has had for years or more. Three houses on Hamilton Park were destroyed, the loss aggregating fully $12,000. Had it been possible to have secured water the fire would have been confined to one house only, but 2,600 feet of hose had to be laid and an extra trip made to the engine house, which all consumed time which was precious. This property ought to be better protected by fire hydrants. After water was obtained the adjoining houses on either side of the burning ones were saved. The houses burned were three in number, two belonging to A. W. Hamilton and one to Dr. J. L. Rose. Mr. Sheehan's house on the north, and the big society house on the south, which is partially built, were saved. Mr. Hamilton places his loss at $6,500 with $5,500 insurance; Dr. Rose, $2,650 with $1,800 insurance; Mrs. Fisher, $1,200 on household goods, no insurance; Rev. Mr. Farnum, $1,500, no insurance; and Rev. Joel Kennedy $500, no insurance. Mr. Hamilton states that the houses will be rebuilt at once. It is a pity that such good property had to be burned up.

Strength and Health.

If you are not feeling strong and healthy, try Electric Bitters. If "La Grippe" has left you weak and weary, use Electric Bitters. This remedy acts directly on Liver, Stomach and Kidneys, gently aiding those organs to perform their functions. If you are afflicted with Sick Headache, you will find speedy and permanent relief by taking Electric Bitters. One trial will convince you that this is the remedy you need. Checked—the progress of consumption. It's cured, too, if it's taken in time. What is one needing remedy for? Scrofula in all its forms—for one of those forms (Lung scrofula) is Consumption. Purify your blood—that's the first thing. Rid it of the taints and poisons that make it easy for this dreaded disease to fasten its hold. Then if you haven't delayed too long, you can be cured.

From beginning to end, the remedy is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's the most potent blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder known to medical science. Consumption, and every form of Scrofula and blood-taint, all yield to it. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe, lingering Coughs, it's an unequalled remedy—and the only one for the blood and Lungs that's guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

WASHINGTON IRVING.

Synopsis of Charles Dudley Warner's Commencement Address.

This year we commemorate the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the birthday of a man of letters. It is thirty-four years since he dropped his pen, and was laid to rest by that lordly river which his genius has enshrined in the mind of the world with the legendary Rhine and the historic Tiber. For that, also, flows not only through a land of beauty and by famous cities, but through a realm of the imagination—perhaps the most abiding of all our possessions.

Our race is fond of erecting statues to those who have become conspicuous, images raised generally through admiration, sometimes by vanity. America joins in this effort to save personalities from oblivion. The spirit is commendable, if the selection is not always fortunate, nor the execution of these images always faultless. At least, we are getting in our streets and public places a great company of extraordinary figures, which may, at the worst, remind the passing generation that moves among them that it is mortal—if not ugly. Already of some of them Art is asking, What are they? and of other bronze impertinences, which are not yet oxidized, the passers-by are asking, Who are they? After a third of a century, Brooklyn, which commemorates the birthday of our earliest man of letters, has adorned its beautiful park with his effigy; but the city of his birth has no statue of Washington Irving.

This is not because the memory of Irving is not dear, because the man is forgotten, not because his books are not read—can we charitably say it is because he is still felt as a living presence in our short literary life? It is certainly better that multitudes should ask in New York why a man has not a statue, than that multitudes should ask why he has a statue. His fame does not need it. But the city of his birth, to which he gave the distinction that letters alone can confer, compelling respect for the genius of a young country, one of the creators of the literature whose great stream can directly trace one of its sources to his pure and sparkling spring, owes it to itself to remove the reproach of insensibility and ingratitude.

The speaker then gave a description of New York City at the time of Washington Irving. He was born in 1783. It was the father's wish that Washington should go into business, but he showed no inclination for that, and after an imperfect education in private schools he entered a law office. The speaker says, "The boy never acquired enough knowledge of law to change the bent of his mind. He took his education into his own hands. Behind the screen of Coke & Blackstone he heard romances, poetry, and books of travel of adventure."

After giving an account of his works the speaker says: "It is time to turn to the personality of Irving. As we should expect from his writings, he had the nervous artistic temperament; he shrank from personal notoriety; he was sensitive and shy; and he had the manner of a lazy observer of life. A drawing by Vanderlyn, made in Paris in 1805, and a portrait by Jarvis in 1809, present him to us in the fresh bloom of manly beauty. The face has an air of distinction and gentle breeding; the refined lines, the poetic chin, the shapely nose, the sensitive mouth, the large dreamy eyes, the intellectual forehead, and the clustering brown locks, are our ideal of the author of the "Sketch Book" and the pilgrim in Spain. A relative, who saw much of our author in his latter years, writes to me: "He had dark-gray eyes; a handsome, straight nose, which might perhaps be called large; a broad, high, full forehead; and a small mouth. I should call him of medium height—about five feet eight and a half to nine inches—and inclined to be a trifle stout. There was no peculiarity about his voice, but it was pleasant and had a good into nation. His smile was exceedingly genial, lighting up his whole face and rendering it very attractive; while, if he were about to say anything humorous, it would beam forth from his eyes even before the words were spoken. As a young man his face was exceedingly handsome, and his head was well covered with dark hair; but from my earliest recollection of him, he wore neither whiskers nor mustache, but a dark-brown wig, which, although it made him look younger, concealed a beautifully shaped head."

He had not the impressive personality of some men of genius; he did not talk much in mixed company or at a table, but he was a capital raconteur, and exceedingly entertaining, with a flow of reminiscences, among his friends. And he had a great capacity for friendship. He loved the company of refined and cultivated women, and he was everywhere a welcome guest. There is a pleasant picture of him in the family of Louis McLane, then Minister to England, in 1831, to whom he was Secretary of Legation the year before his return from his long sojourn in Europe.

As an example of his playful humor, I will read some unpublished verses which he wrote that year to the eldest daughter of the house, the charming Miss Rebecca McLane. I think I may venture to read the sportive tribute of a man in his fiftieth year to a girl of nineteen, over sixty years after it was written:

"There's a certain young lady,
Who's just in her heyday,
And full of all mischief, I ween;
So teasing! so pleasing!
Capricious! delicious!
And you know very well whom I mean.

"With an eye dark as night,
Yet than noonday more bright,
Was ever a black eye so keen?
It can thrill with a glance,
With a beam can entrance,
And you know very well whom I mean.

"With a stately step—as such
You'd expect in a duchess—
And a brow might distinguish a queen,
With a mighty proud air,
That says 'touch me who dare,'
And you know very well whom I mean.

"With a toss of the head,
That strikes one quite dead,
But smiles to revive one again;
That rose so appealing!
That smile so entrancing!
And you know very well whom I mean.

"Confound her! devil take her!
A cruel heart-breaker—
But hold! see that smile so serene,
God love her! God bless her!
May nothing distress her!
And you know very well whom I mean.

"Heaven help the adorer,
Who happens to bore her,
The lover who wakens her spleen;
But too blest for a sinner
Is he who shall win her,
And you know very well whom I mean."

It is well, periodically, to commemorate the life and work of such a man. He enlarged the horizon of literature, he added lustre to the name of the republic. When I place his achievement against the back ground of his native city in his boyhood, and the literary poverty of our undeveloped country, it assumes very great proportions. When I turn to his books, which were of incalculable value to his own generation, and find how sane and unexaggerated they are, how artistic in form, how reverent of honesty and nobility, how full they are of the genuine humor and pathos of life, I feel that they still belong to the living literature which has power to make the world better. Fashions change, but genius survives all fashions.

As follows: "From The Work of Washington Irving. By Permission of Harper & Brothers."

LIFE'S SUCCESS.

Class-Day Poem by Arthur Harold Holmes, of the Literary Department.

To-day we stand with half reluctant feet
Upon the line where past and future meet.

To-day we pause and cast a backward eye,
Then turn to where the forward prospects lie.

O happy memories of early years!
O laughter days with fleeting clouds of tears!
O pictures set in roses gemmed with dew,
With summons glad we call ye to our view.

Ye days of first rare fellowship with joy
When all the world was but a curious toy,
We greet ye coming from the land of youth
Where all was new and fair, and all was truth.

We look upon that life within a life
Ere false and true had entered into strife;

We see the fond delusions of the child,
And smile, yet pausing, wonder that we smile.

What is that life so quickly passed away?
The brilliant dawn of a less brilliant day,
And yet, perchance, a mirror where we see
Reflections of a life that is to be.

Now comes the days when wondering we learned
Of care, restraint, of toil, of leisure earned,

Of weary tasks that must by us be done,—
An April season with its showers and sun.

O first earned freedom! What a joy was ours
To revel in the haunts of birds and flowers,

With noisy glee unhindered ways to take
In fields and wood, by crystal stream and lake.

Transition years, the group we next behold,
When life began its meaning to unfold.

When vague ambition filled us with unrest,
And throbbing purpose grew within each breast.

And last, the years of which the now and here
Are fitting culminations; still so near
They lack perspective; years must stand afar
Before our eyes can see them as they are.

To-day is harvest; from the fertile soil
We reap a just reward of earnest toil.
Not first fruits,—these o'er which we joy to-day,
For we have gathered much along the way.

The seed of learning sown in fields of mind
Quickly mature and manifold its kind.
Seed time and harvest here together go,
Sowing we reap, and gathering we sow.

What shall we sow? and where? To answer right
Means rich reward, a harvest of delight;
To answer wrong means unrequited pain,
With weeds for harvest, and with care for gain.

'Tis ours to look upon the various way
And with a careful eye the land survey.
What do men there? What wages do they earn?
They are our teachers if we choose to learn.

Great throngs of men, vast multitudes untold
Are wearing out their lives for paltry gold.
Gold is the master,—they the willing slaves;
Gold is the sea that drowns them in its waves.

Make gold your servant, it will serve you well;
Make it your master, you may still compel
The outward forms of favor; yet will know
They are but forms, a hypocrite show.

Go further, serve it best, you can find
A base enthrallment of the nobler mind;
Your heart now great with purpose manifold
Will cease to beat except for gold, gold, gold.

O narrow life! O pitiful sad life!
O days and years of unrewarded strife!
May we, by happier destinies controlled,
Not sell our freedom for the bonds of gold.

Many are there of learning, strength and skill,
Of ceaseless toil, of energetic will,
Deluded ever by hope's fatuous flame,
The winning of a widely landed name.

Do justly what is yours. Out from the ways
May come to you the welcome voice of praise;
Yet guide not life by fame, a star untrue
Misleading many as it leads the few.

Success in life is not to win a hoard
Of useless wealth in useless coffers stored;
'Tis not to win the fickle crowd's acclaim,
Nor gild life's disappointments with a name.

Success in life is life that satisfies.
Who lives to gain that goal is truly wise.
Wisdom and honor come from no estate.
The just, they are the wise and truly great.

Superstitions of Brave People.

If one will take the trouble to go through the names of most of the bravest people in history, he will find that they nearly all suffered from some superstition or other. Napoleon Bonaparte was simply eaten by superstitions, and so was the duke of Marlborough. Literary men have always been notoriously superstitious, from the days of Dr. Johnson, who would go back half a mile if he remembered that he had omitted to touch any one of the lampposts on his daily walk, to Dean Swift, who would never change a garment if he found that he had put it on inside out, and Lord Byron, who would get up and leave a dinner party instantly if anybody split the salt. Statesmen have not been exempt from superstitions either. Lord Beaconsfield would always take especial care to enter the house with his right foot foremost when he was going to make a big speech. Mr. Parnell had a strong prejudice against sitting in a room with three candles. William Pitt would return home at once, however important his business, if he met a cross-eyed man in the street, while Sir Robert Peel would always make the sign against the evil eye with his fingers and thumb under similar circumstances.

Coughing Leads to Consumption.—Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Times Have Changed.

A carriage builder who recently suffered from a strike in his factory, said recently: "In the old days, when I had American mechanics, I used to take an interest in them and do whatever I could for them personally. They felt that I was their friend, and we got along well together. Many a time I've run my place at a loss for several weeks so as to keep them with me. But I'm all through with that, now that the walking delegate is likely to step in and hold me up at any minute. The fellows are thinking more how they can shirk work than do it, and raise their pay than earn it. They struck in a busy time when I could not refuse their demands, but when the dull times arrive, in a few weeks, I shall close my doors and they can get out."—New York Sun.

A Good Dog Story.

A Harlem family on going to Europe left their house in charge of an old man who was to look after it during the absence of the family. They also left behind them a large dog. There was an arm chair in the back room in which the dog frequently took a nap. The old man also found the chair very comfortable, but as he did not feel like taking any risk he resorted to strategy. He would go to the window and new like a cat. The dog would then jump out of the chair and rush to the window to bark at the cat, whereupon the old gentleman would quietly take possession of the chair. One day when the old gentleman was in the chair the dog came into the room. Taking in the situation, he put his four paws on the window sill and barked furiously. The old gentleman, thinking there was somebody in the yard, got out of the chair hurriedly and went to the window to see who was in the yard, whereupon the dog jumped into the chair and kept possession of it, growling ominously whenever the old man came near him. There was nobody at all in the yard.

The Way It Struck Her.

A little ragged orphan girl, who ne'er had had a home, nor known a parent's care, And who, with shoeless feet and hatless head, Newspapers sold to earn her scanty bread, Was taken from the city far away, With others of her kind, one summer day, To look upon the ocean. At the sight Her thin, sharp face was filled with grave delight. And some one said, "I wonder what can be Her thoughts, poor child, about this mighty sea?" She heard the words and quickly turned her head, And in low tones, "It's thinkin', ma'am," she said, "I'm glad I come, because I never see 'Er glad of anything at wunst before."
—Margaret Eyttinge.

Peters Prophecies.

I ain't much of a reader, and I writes a little But in appreciatin things I'm hard to beat, I guess. There ain't a man among us, from Uriah Skeggs to Bill, 'Who'll sit 'n listen to a tale like yours sincerely will. Particularly if the tale has stirrin qualities. 'N isn't slathered through 'n through with writer's theries.

I like a tale with lots o' horse, 'n live stock runnin through, Where pigs 'n dogs get chances just as lords 'n ladies do. Where heroes goes around in shirts like tinned 'n where the girls Ain't singin o'ry all day long, 'n ain't afearin o' curls. 'N when they bring the thunder in, I like it good 'n loud. 'N not that noiseless stuff that goes with all the cultured crowd.

I hate a sneak in life, I do, 'n hence, I hate to see In readin what a college girl I knows calls Give me my blood just pure 'n straight, 'n let the fluid run As long as it's a mind to if you write to give me fun. 'N talk can't be too noble when it's writ to please my taste. 'N when you draw your heroines, don't have 'em pallid faced.

But give 'em lips like rubies, let their cheeks be red as paint. 'N when you touch their morals, keep 'em some ways from a saint. 'N let the heroes have a bit of comfortable vice. 'N for a change once in awhile have villains sort o' nice. Leave out your fads, 'n bind your books in red with lots o' gold. 'N Silas Peters prophesies they won't stay long unsold.
—Harper's Bazar.

Concentration.

The age is too diffusive. Time and force Are frittered out and bring no satisfaction. The way seems lost to straight, determined action. Like shooting stars that zigzag from their bowers, We wander from our orbit's pathway; spoil The role we're fitted for to fail in twenty; Bring empty measures that were shaped for plenty At last as guerdon for a life of toil. There's lack of greatness in this generation. Because no more man centers on one thought; We know this truth, and yet we heed it not: The secret of success is concentration.
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

A Woman's Query.

I saw tonight the man I loved Three little years ago; I did not think so short a time Could change a mortal so. There were none like him in those days— So strong, so true, so wise; He had a lofty marble brow And tender, soulful eyes.

A voice of music; hair by which The raven's wing would seem But pale indeed; a face and form To haunt a sculptor's dream.

But when I looked at him tonight I saw no single trace Of the old glory; only just A very common face.

No marble brow, no soulful orbs; The face was round and sleek, That once to my love haunted eyes Was so intensely Greek.

I know full well he has not changed So very much. Ah, me! But I was blind in those clear days, And now, alas! I see.

'Tis very dreadful to be blind Of course, and yet tonight I should be happier far if I Had not received my sight.

One little thought will bother me— I only wish I knew Whether he still is blind, or if His eyes are open too.
—Carlotta Perry.

The Tone of Voice.

It is not so much what you say, As the manner in which you say it; It is not so much the language you use, As the tones in which you convey it. "Come here!" I sharply said, And the baby covered and wept; "Come here!" I cooed, and he looked and smiled. And straight to my lap he crept.

The words may be mild and fair, And the tones may pierce like a dart; The words may be soft as the summer air, And the tones may break the heart.

For words but come from the mind, And grow by study and art; But the tones leap forth from the inner self And reveal the state of the heart.

Whether you know it or not— Whether you mean or care— Gentleness, kindness, love and hate, Envy and anger are there.

Then would you quarrels avoid And in peace and love rejoice, Keep anger not only out of your words, But keep it out of your voice.
—Youth's Companion.

The Spring in Summer.

A little spring had lost its way along the grass At fern. A passing stranger scooped a well, where weary man might turn; He walked it in and hung with care a ladle at the brink; He thought not of the deed he did, but judged that toll might drink. He passed again, and lo! the well, by summers never dried, Had cooled ten thousand parching tongues and saved a life beside.
—Charles Mackay.

Heterodoxy.

Ah, wherever after death my still faithful soul may dwell, Saints may call it bliss or woe—they may name it heaven or hell, By these only, oh, beloved, will my joy or pain be wrought. I shall find my heaven beside thee, or my hell where thou art not!
—Florence Percy.

Songs.

Songs were born before the singer: like white souls awaiting birth, They abide the chosen bringer of their melody to earth.
—John Boyle O'Reilly.

The Malay was the first man to wear a crease in his trousers.

GEMS IN VERSE.

Grief.

There are despairs which seem to blast and kill. That darken day and rob the stars of light, That make the manliest weep as women might, That bend the valor of the human will— Despairs which burn like hopeless love; and still Love can transfigure while it seems to blight; Strong hearts feed nobly on their grief, despite A world where hearts can ever thrive but ill.

Sweet love and laughter are the dream of youth. And soft contentment is a golden bar Which shuts a life within its commonplace; But the old world grows wiser in the truth That sorrows fashion us to what we are And rouse the invincible genius of our race.
—G. E. Montgomery.

"Sleepy Hollow."

O place of beauty, place of rest! Above thee high the mountains crest! The river rolls Beside the foot of God's broods over thee. Like benediction falls his smile upon Thy face. 'Tis like the gladness of the heart When work is done, like rest that follows toil, Like sleep "he giveth his beloved."

When earth and skies were drear, and autumn winds Moaned shrill, and dark the threatening rill rushed Between its banks all strict and bare, In dull November day a train of mourners, sad And slow, brought one to thee and laid him down In his last sleep. A good, great man was he, Of length of days. Honors he had, and friends, And that mysterious spell which men call fame Was his. A good, great man, whose name will live.

No wonder, then, that men like pilgrims come To thee, seeking his resting place, as to A shrine.

O stars, can you beam the living night? O flowers, can you open in morning light? O sails, can you flick the river white? O sun, can you blaze in sky so bright? O birds, can you sing your midday token When she lies dead and a heart is broken?

O place of beauty, place of rest! The good And great had made his bed with thee. And was Not that enough? To fill thy hungry grave Must cruel death strike her, the young, the brave.

The fair? Oh, she was fair, and she was good As she was fair. And she had hope and love.

O place of beauty, place of rest! Cruel As beautiful thou art. I charge thee keep That which to thee was given that summer day— That early summer day whose sunshine struck Me blind. Keep as a sweet and sacred trust That which to thee was given "until he come."
—Sarah De Witt Gamwell.

Columbus.

Columbus was, they tell us now, A man of flaw and fleck— A man who steered a pirate prow And trod a bloody deck. In narrow, bigot blindness curled, Cruel and vain was he— To such was given to lift a world From out the darkened sea.

Though weak and cruel, vain, untrue, From all earth's high and low God picked this man his work to do, Four hundred years ago.

There in the distance standeth he, Beamed on his mighty quest. This rough old admiral of the sea Still pointing toward the west.

There stands he on his westward prow, A man entirely strong; So great, the bald truth spoken now Can never do him wrong. Though slaver, pirate he might be, He had that gift of fate— That wise and sane insanity That makes the great man great.
—Yankee Blade.

Letting His Soul Loaf.

I don't spend none o' my good time in politicks an sich; I ain't a-makin' folks grow poor, an me a-gettin' rich; I ain't a-puterin' any one—jes' livin' at my ease, A-huntin' when I want to, an fishin' when I please!

Jes' let 'em take the offices an run 'em fur an high. I'd rather have a violet from a girl's hand— Sweet as any flower in the garden— Than run the whole United States! So, brethren, let her roll.

For a streak o' April sunshine is jes' lightnin' up my soul! Give me birds a-singin' in the sweet, salutin' breeze, A-lavin' an a-wavin' all their blossoms in the breeze.

Give me my blue-eyed meadows, jes' a-smilin' to the blue, An the bendin' trees above 'em jes' a-bowlin' "howdy-do!"

An the country girls—God bless 'em, an dress 'em plain as sweets. Jes' like he does the violets that purple at their feet— The girls a-huntin' honey in their bonnets an their curls—

Oh, what is all your money to the red lips of the girls? Sing sweet, O birds o' April! Sing sweet o'er While the wonderin' world is tangled in the sunlight an the rain! We ain't a-puterin' any one—jes' livin' at our ease, A-huntin' when we want to, an fishin' when we please!
—Frank L. Stanton.

Average People.

The genius soars far to the fountain That feeds the snowcap in the sky; But though our wings break in the flying, And though our souls faint in the trying, Our flight cannot follow so high; And the eagle swoops not from the mountain To answer the ground bird's low cry.

The world has a gay guerdon ready To hail the fleet foot in the race; But on the dull highway of duty, Aloof from the pomp and the beauty, The stur and the chance of the chase, Are others, with steps true and steady, Pursuing their wearisome pace.

False prowess and noisy insistence May capture the careless throng, But the "average" father and mother, The home-keeping sister and brother, Grown gentle and patient and strong, Shall learn in the fast nearing distance Wherein life's awards have been wrong.

Then here's to the "average" people, The makers of home and its rest; To them the world turns for a blessing When life's hard burdens are pressing, For stay-at-home hearts are the best; Birds build if they will in the steeple, But safer the caves for a nest.
—May Riley Smith.

The Essence of Life Is Divine.

Space is as nothing to spirit, the deed is out-done by the doing. The heart of the wooer is warm, but warms the heart of the wooing; And up from the pits where these shiver, and up from the heights where those shine, Twin voices and shadows swim starward, And the essence of life divine, Pursuing their wearisome pace.

What of That?

Hard! Well, what of that? Didst fancy life one summer holiday, With lessons none to learn, and naught but Go, get thee to thy task! Conquer or die! It must be learned! Learn it, then, patiently.

A skeptic is a man who doubts the accuracy of his own watch.

JULYS OF THE PAST.

A WONDERFUL MONTH IN THE HISTORY OF NATIONS.

Not Only the Month of Independence, but of Many Other Important Events. Charles Carroll of Carrollton—The Continental Congress.

July is a wonderful month in the history of all nations, and in many of them the leading anniversary falls in that month. Of course this is not the result of mere accident. It has often been remarked that more startling and important events have occurred in one month of midsummer and one of midwinter than in all the rest of the year, and truly man is so far subject to nature that stirring events seem to crowd, as it were, toward that period when vegetation for the most part completes its growth.

CHARLES CARROLL OF CARROLLTON.

It is claimed that more bloody and decisive battles have been fought in July and July than in all the rest of year.

It is a matter of common knowledge that all or very nearly all the great riots have been in the hottest weather, and the reason is obvious. The great riot ever known in London began June 7, 1780, and lasted five days. Thirty-six fires were blazing at once, and in suppressing the outbreak 210 rioters were known to have been killed and 248 wounded. The greatest riot in New York began July 13, 1863, and the total of killed and wounded is roughly estimated at 300. In July, 1877, there was rioting in almost every northern city between the Hudson and the Mississippi, and the total of killed certainly exceeded 300. The loss by fire and otherwise has been estimated all the way from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. July certainly is the fighting month.

It is just the same in France. The month is there so memorable that "Days of July," "Column of July," etc., are familiar to all readers. The 14th is French Independence day, because on that day in 1789 the Parisians captured and sacked the Bastille. On the same date in 1790 Louis XVI took the oath to support the new and liberal constitution. July 5, 1791, the assembly voted to abolish the last remains of kingly power. July 28, 1794, Robespierre and his adherents were guillotined, and the reign of terror ended. Thereafter the discontented in France made it a point to begin their disturbances on one or the other of these dates, but the government, being forewarned, kept them down till July 27, 1830, when the second revolution began. The war with Germany began in July, 1870, and was fought chiefly in the next month.

It is quite in the course of nature that great military movements should culminate in July, but many events of the month in American history seem to have more than a passing significance. To all patriots it will never cease to be matter of deep thought that the two statesmen most prominent in securing the passage of the Declaration of Independence, after having been presidents of the nation they founded, died on the same day just 50 years after their memorable act. Historians of 1826 tell us that as the news traveled slowly over the land that one of them was dead the date was taken as but an accidental coincidence, but when it was followed in a few days by information of the other's death pious men everywhere saw in it the evidence of a supernatural order, as if heaven itself smiled upon their great work and approved it in the most impressive of all methods.

Five years more passed, and ex-President James Monroe died on July 4 in New York city. He served in the field as Adams and Jefferson had served in congress, and it certainly seems something more than a coincidence that the three died on Independence day. Hannibal Hamlin is the only vice president who has died on that date. Not long before his death Jefferson wrote thus to Adams: "I have ever dreaded a dotting age, and my health is so good that I dread it still. The rapid decline of my strength the last winter gives me hope that I see land. . . . They say that Starke [the 'Victor of Bennington'] had recently died at 93 could walk about his room. I am told that you walk well and firmly. I can only reach my garden, and that with sensible fatigue. I ride, however, daily, and reading is my delight. God bless you and give you health, strength, good spirits and as much life as you think worth having."

The death of Adams and Jefferson left but one—Charles Carroll of Carrollton, Md., who for five years was known as the last survivor of the immortal 56. It was his singular fortune to be alone and noted in many things. He was the only Roman Catholic who signed the Declaration of Independence. He was by far the richest man in all the colonies, as rich probably as any other three men. He was the only man in the continental congress sprung from a very old family of unquestionably "noble blood" on both sides. And he lived to the greatest age (95) and outlived all the other "signers." Still more, he had near relatives almost equally celebrated in the same cause and founded a family which in the truly American sense of that word may be called "noble" in Maryland.

Snake Charming.

In India and Africa the charmers pretend the snakes dance to the music, but they do not, for they never hear it. A snake has no external ears, and perhaps gets evidence of sound only through his skin, when sound causes bodies in contact with him to vibrate. They hear also through the nerves of the tongue, but do not at all comprehend sound as we do. But the snake's eyes are very much alive to the motions of the charmer, or to the moving drumsticks of his confederate, and, being alarmed, he prepares to strike. A dancing cobra (and no other snakes dance) is simply a cobra alarmed and in a posture of attack. He is not dancing to the music, but is making ready to strike the charmer.

The Touching and Pathetic Way in Which a Horse Solicits Sympathy.

Many people believe that horses do not weep, but those who have had much to do with these faithful creatures know that on several occasions they will shed tears as well as express sorrow in the most heartbreaking manner. In the west, where the hardness of the ponies causes the riders to almost overlook the necessity of providing for their needs, it is quite common, when the weather is extremely cold, to find two or three hours when the temperature is nearly zero, and while its owner is transacting business or getting drunk. In this case the suffering is evidenced by cries which are almost like sobs, and the unmistakable tears freeze onto the cheeks like icicles. When a horse falls in the street and gets injured the shock generally numbs its senses so much that it does not either cry or groan, but under some conditions an injured horse will solicit sympathy in the most distinct manner. I remember a favorite horse of my own, writes a correspondent of the New York Telegram, which trod on a nail long enough to pierce its foot. The poor thing hobbled up to me on three legs and cried as nearly like a child in trouble as anything I can describe. The sight was a very touching one, as was also the crippled animal's gratitude when the nail was pulled out and the wound dressed.

The Great Blue Ribbon Meeting.

As the time approaches for the 10th annual Blue Ribbon Meeting of the Detroit Driving Club, which occurs July 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, 21st, evidence accumulates that it will be the most successful one ever given by the club. The large amount of the purses hung up and the many new features incorporated into this season's programme, tend to make it the most attractive and brilliant in the club's history. Colt racing has rapidly grown into public favor during the past three or four years. About the fastest and most closely contested races of last year were the colt stakes. When a two-year old can step a mile in a contested race in 2:15 3/4, and a 3-year old in 2:11 1/4, with a field behind them fast enough to drive them out in that time, it is about time to cultivate that kind of racing. The Detroit Driving Club, in addition to their usually attractive programme, concluded this year to add the colt feature, and it would not be at all surprising if another Silcock, Directum or Moquette, should come to the front before the meeting is over. The novelty race for the 2:20 class trotting, is sure to bring together a very fast field. The purse closed with fifteen entries, and from the well known character of the nominators one of the most hotly contested races on record should be the result. The Merchants' and Manufacturers' purse closed with 17 nominations, the largest number in its history. There are at least a dozen applicants for every nomination that may be offered for sale, so that there is sure to be as many starters as there were sure to be in the regular class entries. The regular class entries do not close until July 3, but from advice received from every quarter it is certain that a larger number of entries will be made than ever before. There is no conflicting meeting this year, so that the Eastern contingent will be here in full force, and and as the Western horses are always on hand, large fields and stubborn contests must inevitably follow. Most of the leading stables of the country have signified their intention of taking part in the forthcoming meeting, so that the last days of the old track will be the most glorious in its long and varied career. The year 1892 has passed into history as the most sensational one in the annals of the turf, but all indications point to 1893 being still more so, and the great Blue Ribbon Meeting of the Detroit Driving Club is where the "phenomenals" are sure to meet.

THE BAY VIEW SEASON.

Half Fare on the T. A. & N. M. R. R.

The advent of hot weather sets everybody thinking about the cool breezes and the good times at Bay View. The Summer University opens on July 12th, the Assembly on July 19th, continuing to August 16th, and the Toledo, Ann Arbor & North Michigan R'y. will sell half fare round trip tickets there, covering the full season. Tickets will be sold daily from July 10th to 19th inclusive, with return limit August 17th. Return tickets from Ann Arbor will be only $8.45. The Assembly Programs are said to be the richest and the University advantages the best ever offered there. The University Review gives all the programs and courses of instruction, tells all about Bay View, expenses, etc. The June number is beautifully illustrated and will interest you. Send for it to Mr. J. M. Hall, Bay View, Mich.

In the change of teachers for the coming year, the Dexter schools will lose two whose several years of efficient work have demonstrated their great usefulness. We refer to the Misses Mamie Murdock and Myra Baird. During their connection with the school, the progressive and painstaking manner with which they have discharged their duties has won for them the warm approbation of the school board, teachers, parents and pupils alike, who regret their departure from the school and extend to them hearty good wishes for their future.—Dexter News.

Henry Miller, of Ypsilanti, saw a tarantula fall from a bunch of bananas, and captured him with a glass jar. O, but he was a whopper! The professors of Greek and Latin and long haired naturalists of the Normal were sent for, who, after three hours, found it to be a large crab! Then Henry went out and practiced half a day, climbing back and forth through a knot-hole in a board fence.

The village has a lawsuit on its hands. They tried to have Warren Kimble take the platform he built alongside of the building owned by Jacob Reichert, out of the alley, but he refused and claims that he owns the land. Mrs. Nancy Martin departed this life at the residence of her son in Salem on the 26th ult., aged 98 years. Mrs. Martin had buried her husband and all her children but the son with whom she lived at the time of her death. Being a pioneer in the community where she died, she was well and favorably known by a large circle of friends and acquaintances for her many Christian virtues. Her funeral was held Saturday afternoon at the Congregational church, of which she was a worthy member, and was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Shannon.

It is to be hoped that the parents of our town will get some honest employment for their boys during the long summer vacation; work on the farm or anything else that is respectable, even if the wages are low. If you don't want your boy to be a loafer when he becomes a man grown, don't teach him to be one now by keeping him in idleness. There is no wonder that our best public men and business men in our cities are largely from the farm; farm life for a boy is in many ways decidedly safer than town life. There are better opportunities for education in our towns, but the boy or man who never had but one opportunity come his way and took good solid hold of it, is far ahead of the loafer who sees processions of good opportunities going past him every day.—Chelsea Herald.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. The remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Eberbach & Son, Drugstore, and Geo. T. Hausser, Manchester.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

[OFFICIAL.]

COUNCIL CHAMBER,

ANN ARBOR, July 3rd, 1893.

Regular session.

Called to order by Pres. Watts.

Roll called—Quorum present.

Absent—Ald. Schairer, Wagner, Herz.

—3.

The journal of the last session approved.

Pres. Watts appointed Ald. Kitson chairman of the sidewalk committee.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE MAYOR.

To the Honorable Common Council:

GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to return to you without approval an ordinance passed by the common council on the 19th instant, entitled "An Ordinance relative to closing saloons, bars, restaurants and elsewhere, for the reason that said ordinance permits the places designated to remain open during the months of July, August and September, until half past ten o'clock in the afternoon.

In my judgment all places where intoxicating liquors are sold as a beverage should be closed not later than ten o'clock in the afternoon, which means of course half past ten time. Nearly all the work of the world is performed by men who are in bed at that hour. And it is safe to say that any person who is not willing to leave a saloon at half past ten and go home ought to be, and that the chances are he would be, if he had not already remained there too long.

I regret that there has been a misunderstanding as to my views upon this question. For such misunderstanding I am in a manner responsible. My attention was called to this matter by the chairman of the committee on ordinances in the city attorneys office. At the time this ordinance was being drafted, and I stated then that I thought there was no objection to an extension of the time of closing during July, August and September, and I have not spoken to the chairman upon this subject since. I saw the city attorney, however, soon afterwards and told him that such a measure was not defensible and requested him to notify the committee. I saw him a second time upon the same subject, and supposed that my position would not be left in doubt.

June 22, 1893.

B. M. THOMPSON, Mayor.

The chair stated the question being upon the action of the council regarding passing "An Ordinance Relative to Closing Saloons, Bars in Restaurants and elsewhere," be sustained, the Mayor's veto notwithstanding, the question was lost, two-thirds of the aldermen elect not voting therefore, by yeas and nays as follows:

Yeas—Ald. Martin, Snow, O'Mara, Ferguson, Manly, Prettyman, Kitson, Pres. Watts—8.

Nays—None.

PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS.

To the Common Council:

The Board of Public Works would recommend and ask for the following appropriation of $100,000 to build two cross-walks on the south side of Washington street, at the alley between Rinsey & Seabolt's and Frank Burg's stores, and an alley in the rear of the Hasterberg block. We would ask that your honorable body give this your immediate attention, as such cross-walks are a necessity.

By order of the Board of Public Works.

Received and filed.

To the Honorable Common Council:

Your undersigned petitioner respectfully requests that permission be granted to erect a frame dwelling house on lot 3, block 3, range 4, east, city of Ann Arbor, said lot is located on North Main street, between Catherine street and Kingsley street, and your petitioner will ever pray.

Dated June 28, 1893.

SAMUEL M. BRAUN.

Ald. Manly moved that the petition be granted.

Adopted.

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Ann Arbor:

I, the undersigned, being informed that a natural spring of water exists in close proximity to the property purchased by the city, at the north intersection of Pontiac and Detroit streets—commonly described as a Flat-iron Point, and the same purchased by the city for the purpose of widening and beautifying that section as described.

I would, after being advised by a committee nominated by the city, and being informed that such spring water is perfectly pure and abundant, to erect a handsome and suitable drinking fountain for man and beast at the foot of the aforementioned location. The same to be constructed of stone, artistically designed and inscribed, and not to cost less than $100. The city to make proper connections for feeding and draining the same. Such fountain to be completed and presented by me as a gift to the city of Ann Arbor, within one year following the date of acceptance.

July 3d, 1893.

CLAY GREENE.

Accepted and referred to water committee.

HEADQUARTERS HARBOR.

MAJ. GENERAL.

July 3rd, 1893.

To the President and members of the Common Council of Ann Arbor:

GENTLEMEN—In view of the fact that on July 4th, '93, our society will celebrate the centenary of American independence, and also the dedication of our new flag, you are hereby invited to participate in said festivities. Yours cordially,

JOHN MAYER, President.

Ald. Prettyman moved that the invitation so extended be, and the same is hereby accepted.

Adopted.

A claim against the city from Fred Gauss, of the city of Ann Arbor, to the amount of $12.95 was read and referred to the finance committee.

A claim of $2.00 against the city from Henry Smith, of the city of Ann Arbor, was read and referred to the finance committee.

OFFICE OF THE ANN ARBOR STREET RY. CO.,

July 3rd, 1893.

To the Common Council:

GENTLEMEN—At a meeting of the Ann Arbor Street Railway Company, it was voted to extend the street railway system, for the benefit of the public at large, and was caused to be drafted two ordinances, and we ask your favorable consideration of the same.

Respectfully yours,

ANN ARBOR STREET RAILWAY CO.

The ordinances were received and referred to the ordinance committee.
