QUESTIONS! QUESTIONS!

The Lady Who Rents Rooms Has Many to Answer.

The lady of the house who has rooms on her hands to rent, and there are few in Ann Arbor but what have, has to answer questions innumerable these days. Here are some specimens:

"How much for this suite?"

"Does that include heat and light?"

"Have you a piano?"

"Any bath room that roomers are allowed to use?"

"Have you got a lock on your coal bin?"

"Are there any children in the house?"

"Is this room over a sleeping room?"

If you have rooms en suite then the desire will be for single rooms. If you have single rooms then the questioners will surely want a suite.

"Couldn't you rent this a little cheaper?"

"Can't you board us, also?"

"Have you any young lady roomers?"

"Will there be gentlemen in the house?"

"What is your husband's business?"

"I am anxious that my boy should get in a nice family, you know."

"Do you object to smoking in the rooms?"

"What church do you attend?"

"Are the closets indoors or out?"

"I am just looking around to-day."

"My chum isn't here yet, and so I'll not decide now."

"If I conclude to take it, I'll be in again."

"Do you require pay in advance?"

"Are there any boarding houses near here?"

"Is there running water in the rooms?"

"Do you have roomers who smoke? It is objectionable to me, and I want a room where it is not allowed."

"Have you any rooms on the ground floor?"

"Do you furnish night keys, or is your hall door left unlocked?"

"We want to get our board and washing, too."

"Four dollars a week! Why, madam, I simply wanted to rent one room!"

"If we furnish coal will you build the fires and take care of the stove?"

"Is furnace heat hot like stove heat?"

"I want a room that has the morning sun."

"Which way does this front?"

"Can we wash out our handkerchiefs and small garments, in the kitchen?"

"Is it noisy about here nights?"

"Very pleasant rooms, indeed."

"Will be back to-morrow and take these, I think."

"Have you any place where our trunks can be stored?"

"Do the fumes of the kitchen ever penetrate here?"

"Are you early risers?"

"Will you introduce us into society?"

"I should prefer a room with a stove, because then I could have a place to burn up scraps of paper," etc.

"When it storms would you furnish us with meals, so that we would not have to expose ourselves to the inclement weather?"

"Could we use your parlors for our company?"

"Can we occupy your pew in church?"

"Do the young ladies in the house attend college?"

"Can we use an oil stove in our room?"

"If we have a 'spread' occasionally, would you lend us your servant to wait upon the tables?"

"Have you a large family?"

"Do you object to card playing?"

"My chum and I have boxing gloves and of course expect to use them in our rooms."

At one place an impertinent young man met his match when he asked:

"Have you any bed bugs in the house?"

He was answered: "No, sir, unless you brought them in with you." And so it goes from morning until night. And the great supply of rooms, with a less number of students to occupy them, makes the work all the more difficult and tedious for the often tired out matron.

The Snorer Was Found.

One of the prominent city officials is the owner of a very stylish turn-out which he drives nearly every day, and often takes his friends for a ride, thus adding to his already plentiful supply of popularity. Last Saturday night he had been driving as usual, but did not return until quite a while after dark. While putting out his horse he thought he heard an unusual noise somewhere on the premises, and before he had completed his work, there came to his ears the distinct sound of some one snoring.

Blood curdling scenes of tramps, robbers, murderers, etc., began to dance before his imagination, and he concluded not to put any extra touches on the horse's toilet, but hasten into the house, arm himself and hunt for the intruders. But when he told the story of his discovery, there was a decided veto put upon his going back to that barn. His wife had no desire to become a widow, and so he was obliged, for once in his life, at least, to listen to the counsel of the home ruler.

As good luck would have it, a deputy sheriff lives next door, who is noted for his fearlessness. A happy thought! They would inform him of the proximity of the enemy, and have him "beard the lion in his den," and get killed if necessary.

The thought became a deed. The deputy, with a good sized arsenal conveniently located about his person, handcuffs, dark lantern, and all the paraphernalia pertaining to a man in his position, sallied forth for the fray.

Upon entering the barn the sonorous sounds of air strained through a moustache by vigorous lungs was heard sure enough.

Now it happens that an undertaker occupies a part of the barn with his hearse. The sound was followed, and horror of horrors! It proceeded from the hearse! A ghost was the first thought, but the deputy was too practical a man to be caught with ghosts. So he opened the wagon, and there lay a man dead—drunk.

The laugh was on the city official.

The tired sleeper was carefully laid away in a coffin box, that was handy and allowed to sleep off his debauch. The prominent city official, however, is a little touchy yet on the subject of tramps.

Wild as a Hawk.

One of those fellows who knows it all, or at least thinks he does, writes this sort of truck to the Ypsilanti Commercial:

"I believe Ann Arbor pays its Water Company more money for fire protective service alone than Ypsilanti pays in interest on the whole cost of construction of her water works system, and the fire service of the Ann Arbor system is in no way at all comparable to the Ypsilanti system, and the people of Ypsilanti would rebel if compelled to use such water as the people of Ann Arbor are compelled to accept."

In the first place Ann Arbor pays $5,000 a year for hydrant rental. Is that more than Ypsilanti pays in interest? Hardly. Six per cent. on $150,000 is $9,000.

In the second place the fire service of the Ann Arbor system can not be excelled in any place in the United States, without an exception.

In the third place the water used by Ann Arbor people is just as good as that used in Ypsilanti, and now that a business management is hold of the works, there is plenty of it, also.

The way some people have of asserting things on the dead run without knowing anything about it is astonishing.

Further he says that "Ypsilanti gets her splendid fire service free." Does she? The $9,000 interest doesn't count, then?

Death of John F. Nestell.

It is with feelings of sadness that we have to announce the death of John F. Nestell, Esq., postmaster at Manchester, who passed away Sunday noon last with consumption.

Mr. Nestell was a native of this county, having been born at Manchester 37 years ago. He leaves a wife and one child. He was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nestell, who were pioneers at Manchester; he had three sisters, all of whom died with consumption.

The deceased was a sterling man, and one generally beloved. His popularity may be judged from the fact that he had been elected three times as village clerk and the same number of times as township clerk, although there is about 200 democratic majority in that township.

He was appointed post master by President Harrison in March, 1890, and would have held the position until next March had he lived. He had been master of Manchester lodge F. & A. M. for four years, having previously held all the chairs therein. He was also a prominent Royal Arch Mason, and a member of Adrian Commandery K. T.

The funeral will be conducted by the masonic fraternity, and will be held at Manchester to-day.

The old maxim, "Silence is golden" has never reached as far as the United States senate in its peregrinations.

The World's Columbian Exposition will close October 30th. Only four weeks more to see the greatest show on earth.

Only one state in the Union whose population decreased during the last decade: Nevada, Senator Stewart's commonwealth, got on to the silver scale and declined.

The hanging of public men in effigy is about the silliest of all known methods of making known popular opposition, and sensible men never engage in it.—Mt. Pleasant Enterprise.

The states of Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada and Arizona have less than 2 inhabitants to a square mile; while New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware and Maryland have over 90 to the square mile.

Commissioner Lochren says that owing to the pension policy now being pursued by the department, it is important that the pension boards be made up a little peculiarly. It has that appearance.—Fenton Independent.

President Cleveland's letter to Gov. Northern, of Georgia, on the money question, was in plain and unmistakable language, and pretty sound, also. The governor will find it a little difficult to climb over it, we're a thinking.

The Mt. Clemens Press and the Mt. Clemens Monitor are both building for themselves new brick blocks, adjoining each other. This evidence of a plentiful supply of "quoins" is gladly noted. The two offices will be "side sticks," so to speak, and all combats will be in the "hell box." Each office will have a complete outfit of "shooting sticks," and their "canon" will be supplied with "slugs."

In a recent syndicate article of Frank G. Carpenter's on the whiskers of prominent men in public life. Concerning Michigan's junior senator he says: "There are three men in the United States Senate who cut their whiskers after the style of Louis Napoleon. They are all big men, and they all have the dash of the late emperor of the French. One is a Napoleon of finance, another has been a Napoleon in war, and the third is still a Napoleon in the senate. The first is McMillan, of Michigan, who started life a poor boy, and who is now a great car factor. He has great works in Detroit. He is worth a fortune, and he lives here in fine style in a house which cost him $80,000. His imperial beard is iron gray, and with the thick thatched iron gray hair above it, gives dignity to a handsome face. McMillan is one of the fine-looking men of the senate. He dresses well, looks well, and acts well. He is very popular, and has made a reputation for himself as a good business senator."

There are 15,223 colored people in Michigan, and only 2,444 in Wisconsin.

The states of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina and Mississippi, each have about 25 colored people to the square mile.

How does it interfere with a state's rights for "Uncle Sam" to oversee the election of his officials? A fair vote and an honest count wrongs no one, and that is all the Federal election law asks.—Quincy Herald.

The republican senator or representative who votes with the democrats when they are right, and they are right sometimes, strange as it may sound, deserves praise, instead of the censure administered in some quarters.—Isabella Co. Enterprise.

Mr. Wheeler, representative in congress from Alabama, introduced a bill the other day repealing the law which prohibits Confederate soldiers from receiving pensions. It is but a step toward pensioning Confederate soldiers.

The population in Michigan averages 36.46 to the square mile. This is an increase from 28.50 in 1880, and 13.04 in 1860. Wisconsin, our western rival, has but 30.98 to the square mile, increasing from 14.25 in 1860. This shows how much more rapidly the Wolverine state grows than the Badger.

This is America! Civilized, free America! The greatest nation under the sun! And yet the managers of the railroads throughout this nation are finding it necessary to arm their train hands! Soon it will become necessary for all our women to carry concealed weapons to protect themselves from tramps, both at their homes and on the streets! Verily, these are evil times. The doctrine of the anarchist is at work sure enough.

The ladies of the state are bestirring themselves in a commendable study of civil government. A little more of that article among the rougher sex would be a good thing.—Stockbridge Sun.

You are right, brother. And the people who believe that an educational test should be applied to male voters are growing in numbers every day. But for policy's sake hundreds of politicians would advocate it strongly, who now do not peep because they are afraid of losing popularity with that class of voters.

High public station invests a man's private life with special interest. He has climbed thus high—how did he do it? How does he live, and what does he read, and what sort of a wife has he? Ancestry, and the cut of the garments; height, and church membership; gait and number of children—all are inconspicuously mingled as items of interest. This curiosity does not spring from the bad. It is a sort of crude expression of sympathy and brotherly feeling. Public men must expect annoyance and even subjection to impertinence. Nevertheless an application, on the part of the people, of the golden rule could not do any harm.—Grange Visitor.

The Hon. Mr. Van Allen, of New York, whom President Cleveland recently appointed minister to Italy, is not a man of note. But he did a notable thing once that Grover noted. He subscribed and paid $50,000 toward the democratic campaign fund in 1892! That was a great deed! A deed for which he should receive recognition. Now $50,000 is a great deal of money! Just think how many people there are in this city whose fortunes reach that amount. They could be counted on your finger's ends. And yet this one man gave it! What became of the money? Can anyone tell? For what honorable purpose could such a vast sum of money be used, in a political way? Perhaps the president will issue a proclamation and explain it to the unenlightened multitudes.

"The religion of our day is supported by the worst, by the most dangerous people in society. I do not allude to burglars, or even to the little thieves. I mean those who debauch courts and legislatures and elections—those who make millions by legal fraud."—Col. Robert G. Ingersoll.

Will the able Colonel tell us how he happens to know that much? With all due deference to the great ability of Mr. Ingersoll, we believe he has made a statement which it is impossible for him to prove.

If Mr. Ingersoll had had a little more of the right sort of religion in his composition, he perhaps would not have taken $1,000 for the so-called lecture delivered here last winter by him. He was in no condition to deliver a lecture at that time, as he was suffering from a severe cold. He did not deliver a lecture. He read an essay. Not a very good one at that. He not only disappointed his audience, but he left such an unfavorable impression that many of the patrons of the Student's Lecture Association, under whose auspices he appeared here, censured that organization severely for swindling them in such a manner. Before he accuses others he better look within himself.

A SAD RAY OF HOPE.

The New York Times, that unrelenting mugwump, democratic, Clevelandite gold-bug sheet, remarks: "There is a ray of hope for the tax-payers. Commissioner Lochren calculates that after 1895 the list of pensioners will be a decreasing one."

At least one-half of the old soldiers who survived the war are now dead, and to-day, even, while Hoke Smith and his unpatriotic gang are clamoring against pensions, the remaining brave volunteers are rapidly filling into the cemeteries of the nation, and awakening to the bugle call on the unknown shore beyond the mystic river. The veteran's mournful march to the grave is estimated in the following table, the ratio being taken from the past:

Table with 2 columns: Year and Ratio. 1890 - 1,099,537; 1891 - 1,078,755; 1892 - 1,057,287; 1893 - 1,034,968; 1894 - 1,011,794; 1895 - 987,815; 1900 - 854,461; 1905 - 701,513; 1910 - 535,255; 1915 - 367,180; 1920 - 215,172; 1925 - 99,196; 1930 - 31,645; 1935 - 5,382; 1940 - 293.

This is the "ray of hope" held forth by the soldier-hating gang, headed by the N. Y. Times.

Comment is unnecessary. The great heart of the nation is with the old soldier, and though his enemy is now at the helm of the ship of state, he can rest assured that there will be a change as soon as the appeal to the ballot box again comes around.

NOTORIOUS INDEED!

Burrows and Reed are making themselves notorious by attempting to filibuster and obstruct the work of the majority. It is fortunate that they are not in a position to accomplish more than short but expensive delays.—Coldwater Sun.

They have not rushed up to Speaker Crisp, cursed him, swore at him, and called him "a tyrant!" "a usurper!" "a czar!" a la Bynum, the Hoosier, et al, have they?

They have not kicked down the doors of the Capitol a la Kilgore, the Texan, have they? They have not done anything, except to outwit their opponents in parliamentary tactics, have they? Is that infamous?—if it is all glory be to them.

In fact they have done nothing notorious at all. Simply used all the knowledge and power they possessed to prevent congress from enacting infamous measures, the chiefest of which is the repeal of the only law on the statute books that throws any safeguards around the ballot boxes in our large cities.

It is the hope of the country that they will keep right on being successful in such notoriousness.

LIBERTY'S ENEMIES.

The party that opposes equal rights can be expected to oppose a fair election and an honest count of the ballots cast. The course of the democratic party in attempting to tear from the ballot box its only safeguard, is on a par with its past record.

What is there in the Federal election law that any honest citizen is opposed to?

There is not a single provision that does not have for its object the protection of the ballot, which is the foundation of liberty.

Destroy it, and beware! Stalking behind the hand that seeks its destruction is the hideous form of the anarchist.

When the right of an American citizen to cast his vote without fear or favor is denied him; when that ballot so cast can not be honestly counted, then farewell to liberty. It will be dead.

Beware the man or men who seek its destruction!

The Allgemeine Zeitschrift—für Textil Industrie, published at Leipzig, Germany, under date of Sept. 13, says:

"Mr. Max Jaegerhuber writes us from New York that the introduction of specific duties in place of ad valorem duties, planned by him in conjunction with prominent import firms, has been accepted in principle by the American Government."

That gentleman referred to is connected with the New York Dry Goods Economist, is a great tariff reformer, a warm friend of the importers of New York, and engaged in importing foreign goods to our market, himself. These importers must stand close to the government to dictate its commercial policy, eh?

The Allegan Journal is now the sole property of the veteran editor Don Henderson. Good for Don.

Mr. Cleveland was once a teacher of the blind. Very fortunate for him. In his great feat of leading the blind, which he is now attempting, that knowledge must come in play to good advantage.

Coughing Leads to Consumption.—Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once

Yellow Jack is making it as hot for the Georgians as the Georgians do for the Black Jacks. All things even up you see.

By the way senators and representatives have been roasting President Cleveland of late, he ought to do done to a turn by this time.

On account of the scarcity of flour and the higher price of bread Spain has authorized the importation of 150,000 tons of wheat at a reduced duty.

The editor of the Howard City Record, Mr. B. J. Lowrey, is running a $400, (or about that) serial. It is furnished by a "phat contributor," at Lansing. Several other papers are devouring that pie also, but few have such a large slice.

The states of New York, Illinois, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, each have over 25 foreigners to the square mile, the most of any states in the Union. Michigan has about 15 to the square mile.

A census of the 75,000 hands employed about the carpet, woolen and knitting mills of Philadelphia last fall shows 32,000 now out of employment. This is mainly owing to the uncertainty about the tariff. The democratic party is succeeding beyond its fondest anticipations in making a change.

Here are a few words from Gov. McKinley, of Ohio, which should find an echo in the heart of every true American; "It should be the aim of every one to help bring the country back to the prosperity it so recently lost. Politics should not be permitted to deter us from performing a plain duty. The politics which interfere with the return of good times and the well being of the country should be reformed. No pride of opinion, no theory, no party obligations should stand in the way. Our country first, is the true American sentiment."

Now that the opening of the Cherokee strip is a matter of history, and considering the fact that it is practically the end of the string so far as the old refrain, has any reality to it, the conviction is forced on most everyone who has thought of it, that the giving away of enough of the public domain to form a prosperous state within a few years, was actually very foolish. If the new territory went into the possession of actual settlers, desirous of becoming tillers of the soil and securing homes, it would be less objectionable, but speculators and "sooners" secured much of the best of the new territory, almost without price, and they will now proceed to sell their snatched real estate to the plodding, responsible worker, who should have had a chance to purchase it originally.—Charlotte Republican.

"For Uncle Sam is rich enough. To give us all a farm"

Thoughts for Those Who Think.

SELECTED FROM BEN HUR.

The happiness of love is in action; its test is in what one is willing to do for others.

A SARCASTIC REPLY.

Assignee Bennett Gets Back at the Petitioner in Great Shape.

In the matter of the assignment of the Register Publishing Co., John W. Bennett, the assignee, has filed quite a readable answer to the petition of Selby A. Moran, John Koch and William G. Henne. He says "In answer to the allegations of a conspiracy between A. B. Stevens and N. D. Corbin, in the second paragraph of the said petition set forth, this defendant says that he has no knowledge or information whatever, but this defendant ventures to express his firm belief that the financial stringency of the dms is a thing of the past and exists only in the memory of said petitioners, that the recent legislation accomplished by the Republican party in congress assembled, aided and abetted by a few recalcitrant members of the Democratic wing, has infused new life and vigor into the vitals of the business world, and that the noble ship of state may now be trusted to sail serenely into the harbor of plenty and prosperity. And this defendant deprecates the ill-advised comments upon the evil times, interjected into the ordinary papers of a law suit, as tending to intensify the gloomy feelings of the petitioner. This defendant fears that the references in said petition contained to the "mistrust prevalent in the business world" unless promptly denied may carry dismay into the homes of the humble toilers all over our smiling land.

The defendant denies that he has been retained by the said Corbin and Stevens as the professional adviser or attorney or solicitor or either of them, and he denies that he was ever paid a fee by said Corbin and Stevens for any professional services rendered for them or either of them in any matter wherein the said Register Publishing Co. was in any way involved, or was the confidential professional adviser of the said Stevens and Corbin or either of them or has advised with them except as to the best interests of the said Register Publishing Co., by whom he was retained.

He denies "that the appraisement of the property was made at too low a figure and denies that he instructed the said appraisers to place a low estimate upon the said property and effects and he disputes the charge that the appraisers of said property were so ignorant and silly as to suppose that the pretended instructions were given to them."

The defendant, so far as informed, says that the inventory was made carelessly and conscientiously, "and after its completion no change was made in the same except to add thereto one article of property for their appraisal which had nearly escaped the grasp of the said company, namely, The Ann Arbor Register, a newspaper published and claimed by Selby A. Moran, but which belongs soul, body and breeches to the said Register Publishing Co., as this defendant is informed and believes, and charges the fact to be."

In the fifth paragraph he does not deny that he may have suggested to divers persons that there might be a shadow of a doubt of the validity of the said chattel mortgage given to the petitioners, John Koch and William G. Henne. But he denies that the relation that he sustained towards the said company before the making of the said assignment disqualifies him from acting as the assignee of said company.

"And this defendant respectfully refers the said petitioners to the legislature of the state of Michigan if they desire amendments and alterations made in the laws of this state to defer the sales of property under the provisions of the assignment laws."

As the whole matter has been disposed of except fixing the costs of the assignee, Mr. Bennett, no further action will be taken on this answer.

The fruit inspectors have been abroad to some extent, but are somewhat discouraged by the reception they receive from a few obstinate characters. Those better informed, however, have laid the ax at the root of the infected cherry and plum to lay them low.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

F. J. Swaine returned Wednesday from an extended visit to his old home in England. He reports a rough passage, and various bruises upon his face bear evidence of it. In reply to a question asked the attorney general by Supt. Ernest Bodine, of Augusta, is sorry he married and would have the thing undone by the court, because as he alleges, his wife insists on feeding him tartar emetic as a health diet. Singular thing about Bodine. When he was "hooked up," two years ago, he was 21 years old, and now he is suing for divorce by next friend as a minor. At this rate of retrogression he will soon be in diapers again.—Adrian Press.

Luther Palmer reports this as the busiest season he has seen since he opened his basket factory. At the close of the berry basket season his shipments reached 162,000 of that class alone. He has not yet footed up the totals of the other sizes but they are many thousands in excess of any previous season's work. Notwithstanding his improved facilities for making, he was still unable to supply the demand or the above figures would have been much larger.—Dexter Leader.

A little note book in which to jot down the odd jobs that will need attention the first rainy or leisure day is something no farmer should be without. A scrapbook is another but most useful thing to have. Have several, one devoted to poultry, another fruit, and so on. If you are very busy, train one of the children to enter everything which you may mark for preservation. Then if you have a little time left it might be well to take your own home paper and read it.

The following are the appointments made by the M. E. conference for churches in this section: Ann Arbor, Camden M. Coburn; Chelsea, Lewis N. Moon; Ypsilanti, E. W. Ryan; Dexter, Francis E. Pearce; Dixboro, John L. Newkirk; Dundee, Wm. J. Palmer; Manchester and Sharon, David H. Yokum; Oakville, Eugene Gage; Saline, Thomas G. Potter; Stony Creek, Charles B. Case; Whitmore Lake and Hamburg, Henry F. Shier; Belleville, I. Edwards; Dentons, B. F. Lewis; Plymouth, N. N. Clark; Wayne, Joseph Jackson; Willis, Joseph S. Hill.

The Ypsilantian in "A Word to the Boys at the Curbstone," has this paragraph, that would be a fine thing for some of our Ann Arbor boys to read and ponder over: "Boys, suppose you were to apply to any one of the business men on the street and should tell him you were the young fellows that are in the habit of confronting the church audiences as they retire from the doors, with tobacco smoke and ungentlemanly remarks, do you suppose there is a man on the street that would have you in his store? There is not one of them that would employ you for a minute. He could not afford to do it, for his business would suffer by your presence, and if you have any doubt of this, go and ask him. Customers like to meet gentlemen when they go to trade. One of the first qualifications of an employe, therefore, is that he be a gentleman, and no young man can afford to be other than a gentleman and especially in public places."

Quinces Without Sweet Apples.

Many people think they have no use for quinces unless they have sweet apples to put with them, but there are other ways of preparing this fruit that are quite as desirable.

Nothing can be nicer than the old-time preserve, and as "preserves" are coming into fashion again, the quince should become popular. Equal weights of fruit and sugar must be taken, a little water added at the start and the fruit slowly cooked in the syrup till it has reached the red color and rich flavor so highly prized.

Quinces may be stewed with sour apples for table sauce. Sliced with Canada Snows, a little cold water and plenty of sugar added, and cooked slowly, they are quite as good as when cooked with sweet apples. With a little care in handling, the slices will not stew to pieces, and the flavor of each fruit is improved by the other.

Canned quinces may be made as delicious as canned peaches or pears. Make a syrup of one cup of water and one of sugar, drop the quarters of quince into the syrup, and cook slowly till the fruit is done and the syrup thick. In this way canned quinces are almost as good as quince preserves.

The above hints may serve a good purpose in this year of no apples, and our lady readers would do well to test them.—Ypsilantian.

Things Worth Remembering.

Experiments indicate that it is better to soak corn for pigs than to grind it.

If you have no faith in sheep sell out the first chance to one who has. There is no place for a faithless man, for he is careless, don't succeed, and shows it by kicking out of the traces.

Wash off the plow horse's collar and don't let him become galled by any part of the harness if the days are hot and dusty. Salty water is excellent to harden and refresh tender skin. Tannin in water is also good. Rubbed dry on sores it has great healing power.

How much are you losing in the buttermilk at each churning? Enough to pay for a new churn every month? There is a great difference in the results obtained by various makes of churns. If you have not an economical one it will not pay to use it longer. Butter fats are worth too much to feed to pigs.

It is the man who is always getting left who talks most about his rights.

"Finnigan's Ball."

Laugh, and the world laughs with you; Weep, and you weep alone;

But Murray and Mack Are on the right track

Finest Featured, Foremost, Fantastic Farce Found, Furnished from Funny Folks.—Franklin Farmer.

Funny men in a funny play. The stars and company are excellent.

Murray and Mack were never seen to better advantage.

"Finnigan's Ball" has even more merit than was claimed for it.

Murray and Mack have a play that will crown these brilliant young comedians, Kings of the Laughing World.

It is easy to see the hand of good management all through "Finnigan's Ball." Frank T. Merritt is the manager.

A more pleasing performance than Murray and Mack gave in "Finnigan's Ball" could hardly be imagined.

The play is the thing—"Finnigan's Ball" is the play, and Murray and Mack, assisted by their clever comedians, are able to "Catch the conscience of the King." They will be at the Grand Opera House next Saturday evening.

Mr. Warren, of the Salline Observer, keeps posted on the proposed electric line through that place, and in the last issue of that paper he says: "We have the report that the electric railway project is still alive and working well, that the franchise has been purchased by Philadelphia capitalists, the contract having been signed, sealed and delivered August 29, including the present operating line in Adrian. It is further claimed that the entire right-of-way has been secured and that as soon as a few small matters of adjudication are made satisfactory that the work will commence and be pushed rapidly. The intra-urban cars are to be used. Two cents per mile is to be the fare, using mileage books thus affording one to ride whatever distance desired."

A meeting of the Ann Arbor Art Club was held yesterday in their rooms in the Masonic block and resulted in a reorganization as an art school, to be incorporated as the Ann Arbor Art School. They now offer advantages to all grades of art workers, beginning with charcoal in outline, and leading on through a course in perspective, light and shade, and cast drawing, to work in water colors and oils. They invite all who desire to enter upon such work to consult one of the officers, either Mrs. W. S. Perry, president, or Mrs. Z. P. King, vice president, or Mrs. M. L. Walker, secretary and treasurer. At present instruction will be given on Thursday and Saturday of each week, but the rooms will be open on Friday as well to all members of the club. In this way it is hoped to accommodate teachers and students who are engaged during the week.—Daily Times.

A modest burglar broke into the store of Wadhams, Ryan & Reule last Saturday night, and stole an overcoat. At least that is all that has been missed. It is seldom that a pastor preaches a $10,000 sermon, but the one which Rev. Jeff Davis is a man of many adventures, his last one nearly costing him his life. Not long since he was on the commons on Thayer street, cleaning carpets, when all at once a wild cat or a mad cat, one or the other, came bounding like a panther upon Jeff, landed on his back, clutched its sharp claws in his hat, and commenced to make savage work on his head with its sharp claws. Jeff was almost petrified with fright, but with a desperate effort brought the varmint with his claws fastened in his hat, violently to the ground. The cat died in a few moments and swelled up as large as two cats. Jeff has been nearly insane ever since. Affidavits of the truth of this story furnished by Coroner Clark.

The brusque and fussy impulse of these days of false impression would rate down all as worthless because one is unworthy. As if there were no notes in sunbeams! Or no comets among stars! Or cataracts in peaceful rivers! Because one remedy professes to do what it never was adapted to do, are all remedies worthless? Because one doctor lets his patient die, are all humbugs? It requires a fine eye and a finer brain to discriminate—to draw the differential line.

"They say" that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription have cured thousands.

"They say" for a weak system there's nothing better than the "Discovery," and that the "Favorite Prescription" is the hope of debilitated, feeble women who need a restorative tonic and bracing nerve. And here's the proof—

Try one or both. If they don't help you, tell the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., and you get your money back again.

Ann Arbor's school population has fallen off 37 per cent. the last year. —Dexter Leader.

Wrong again. Ann Arbor had 3,073 school children last year and has 3,036 this year. There is some difference between falling off 37 per cent. and simply falling off 37 in numbers, my friend.

MY GRANDMOTHER'S JAR.

When my grandmother Ryse died, grandmother came to live at our house. She was my mother's mother, and the only grandmother my brothers and sisters and I ever had. Father's mother died long before any of us were born.

We were very glad to have Grandmother Ryse come and live with us. Her husband had died in a distant state, and mother had gone at once to bring grandmother to our house.

I remember with what eagerness we children made ready to meet mother and grandmother on their return.

We lived in the country, and father had said that all of us might go to town with him, as it was in the fall of the year, and there was not much to do at home.

There were six of us, besides father, to climb into the big farm wagon, and ride five miles to the railroad station.

We saw mother come out of the car first, and behind her was a little old lady, dressed in black. In her arms she carried a black stone jar.

Its mouth was covered with a clean white cloth, tied down smooth and tight with many rounds of cord. "What can she have in that jar?" asked my brother Jeff of me, before grandmother had reached us, with her quaint "How do do!" and her kiss on each of our mouths.

"It can't be mince-meat," said Jeff, with a half hopeful look, for Jeff was inordinately fond of mince pies, and mother had often said—

"Wait until grandma comes to see us, and she'll make you some mince pies that are mince pies." But no mince pies ever came out of that jar.

Grandmother had insisted on its being put on the seat beside her, and she kept her eyes on it all the way home.

"Maybe it's full of money," said sister Kate; and for a long time after that, we children were very respectful to the jar, under the impression that Kate's surmise had been correct.

Grandmother had the jar carried up to her room, and put on a high shelf in her closet.

We heard mother say once that grandmother was very poor, and that damaged Kate's theory of the jar being filled with money.

We asked mother one day if she knew what was in the mysterious jar.

"Oh, not much of anything," she said with great indifference. "It is an old family relic, and I suppose grandma wants to keep it. I remember seeing it when I was a little girl."

But this answer did not satisfy six curious boys and girls.

Grandmother Ryse lived at our house two years, and then went to stay a year with my aunt in Colorado, and the jar went with her, packed carefully in the center of her feather tick, for grandmother Ryse had a horror of "new-fangled" things in the way of hair-mattresses, and would sleep on feathers only.

When she came home from Colorado, we children all assembled to meet her at the station, and we saw that jar coming out of the car door almost before we saw grandma herself.

"Them keener Murray boys forgot to pack it in with my feather-bed," she said; "and I had no idea of leaving a good jar like that, so I jest brung it along in the car with me."

Jeff whispered to me and said he would as soon travel with a young pig as with a jar like that.

But we all would have been glad to see our jolly old grandmother, even though she travelled with a whole potter's jar. The Murray boys, who had forgotten to pack grandmother's jar, were our cousins, and a few weeks later one of them wrote this to me:

"What do you suppose grandmother keeps in that old black jar? Brother Sam and I tried to find out, but we couldn't. You know grandmother don't like inquisitive people, and she is so particular about her things. Sam tried to climb up to a high shelf to peep into the jar once, and fell down and nearly broke his head."

"If you and Jeff find out what is in the jar, you let us know."

I wrote that we would, but despaired of ever getting a peep into the jar, for mother had long ago forbidden us to go into grandma's room, unless she invited us there.

Once when she had called us all in, to show us some old pictures of grandfather; she had given us all sweet anise and cardamon seeds, I asked, in my most insinuating tone—

"Grandmother, what is in that funny old black jar up there?"

My brothers and sisters all picked up their ears, but grandma simply gave a merry little laugh, and said—

"Snaps and snalls. And little dog's tails."

Grandmother was fond of traveling, and the next spring she went to New Jersey to spend six months with a son who lived there.

And the jar went with her. It came home with her in the fall, and was restored to its place on the closet shelf in her room.

The next March grandmother went up to Minnesota to spend the summer with her youngest daughter.

"You boys pack that jar carefully, now," she said, as she came slowly down stairs with the clumsy thing in her arms, and set it down carefully on the feather bed. "I wouldn't have that jar broken for a good deal. They don't make such jars nowadays, and this one's full of—"

But at that some one called grandmother, and the sentence was never ended.

Jeff and I tried to get a peep into the jar that time, but there was a stone lid under the white cloth, and we dared not remove the cloth.

My brothers and sisters came out and we all stood around the jar. We "hefted" its weight, we smelled it, we rolled it over, we shook it and thumped its sides.

Jeff had a creative mind, and was always suggesting things that the rest of us never would have thought of. This time he appalled us all by saying—

"You don't suppose grandmother has gone and had granddaddy cremated on the sly, and has him in the jar?"

"Jeff Barker!" cried sister Kate, as she took her nose away from the top of the jar.

"Don't you ever say such awful things again!" cried sister Mary; "it makes me sick to think of it."

"Such things have been done," said Jeff, stoutly, "and I wouldn't be a bit surprised if—"

But Mary and Kate had fled from the room, and Jeff threw himself down on the feather bed and laughed.

One of our cousins in Minnesota wrote to me and asked—

"Do you know what grandmother has in that black jar? Ma says she has no idea what is in it, and the cousins in New Jersey wrote and asked us if grandma had brought the jar here."

Jeff and I and our two older sisters were alone in our teens now, but our interest in that jar did not abate in the least.

"It's just one of grandma's whims," said mother one evening. "You know grandma is old and childish, as most people of her age are apt to be. I am sure I don't care how many old jars she has."

For five years we discussed the probable contents of that jar, which came and went with grandmother in all her journeyings to and fro.

She had eight children, all married, and living in different states, and she visited all her children in those five years, and the jar went with her.

Her box was delayed for two months once on a western railroad line, and she wrote to my mother—

"My box is not here yet, and I am having to sleep on one of them nasty hair-mattresses, which I do despise, and I feel lost without that jar. I do hope nothing will happen to it."

After that we felt more confident than ever that the jar contained hidden treasures, and most of our thirty-five cousins were of this opinion. They had all seen the jar—the outside of it only.

Some of us, great boys and girls in our teens, had lain awake nights wondering what could be in that jar, but I am glad to remember, now that we are all men and women, that we had too much veneration for grandmother, and too much respect for ourselves, to pry into her secret, if secret it was, by opening the can.

Even the Murray cousin who "nearly broke his head" falling from grandma's closet shelf, indignantly denied that he had any idea of opening the jar. He said he simply intended to "shake and smell of it," and felt that his tumble was a just punishment for even this lack of respect to grandmother.

At the end of five years, grandmother was visiting in Kansas.

My brothers and sisters and I were sitting around the fire one evening in November, talking about the jar and wishing it and grandma were both in our home again. We were now all firm in the conviction that the jar contained valuables that might be ours some day if we were good enough to deserve them. Our cousins all shared this belief. We had heard of stranger things, and grandfather and grandmother had both been noted for their eccentricities.

While we were sitting around the fire, father came home from town with a letter for me. It was from my Kansas cousins. The letter was long and "newsy," and added to it was this aggravating and exciting postscript:

"Grandmother's black jar fell down and broke all to pieces to-day. We cousins are all to share its contents equally, just as we thought. I am writing in a big hurry, so good-by."

We were so excited that we could not sleep that night, and we were fairly furious with Cousin Ben for ending his letter so abruptly.

Even father and mother were interested now, and I sat down and wrote to Ben to write "immediately" to once," and tell us what the jar contained.

Jeff and I feared that there was a conspiracy on foot to rob us of our rightful share of the jar's contents, and there were other cousins who lay awake that night thinking the same thing, for Ben had sent postal cards or letters with postscripts to all the other cousins, telling them what he had told us, and no more.

A whole week dragged away, and then Jeff and I wrote a saucy letter to Ben. Jeff thought I had better intimate that it would be impossible to defraud us, and suggested that I say something about "securing legal advice" if Ben did not write at once, and tell us what that jar contained.

Ben wrote. A postal came three days after I had mailed the second letter. Over the post was scrawled in blue ink:

"There wasn't a solitary thing in that jar. It was her old herb jar for her camomile, pennyroyal, everlasting, and such. Poor soul! How do you wish yours sent?"

The stately household legend was ruined. Things are beautiful to memory only by fine association, and so I was compelled to drop the jar out of our poetic family mysteries.—Youth's Companion.

A-World's Fair Incident.

A man from Boston with a black wallet in his hand stopped at a mineral water fountain to sip a drink. This cost him one cent. While he was drinking the water he laid his pocketbook upon the counter of the booth. He did not pick it up as he walked away. Miss Katie Morse, who stood behind the counter, placed the wallet in a drawer. A half hour later a feverish looking man, with a face as gray as old mortar, rushed up to the pavilion and, in a half breathless voice, asked if he had left his pocketbook there.

"I think you did," said the woman. "Is this it?"

The man from Boston opened the leaves and counted $4,000 in greenbacks. "Yes, that's it," he said with a sigh of satisfaction. "I am much obliged to you."

"But won't you take a drink?" the pretty girl asked. "It's only a cent you know."

"Oh, really, I couldn't," this Boston man said. "I have had one glass and that's quite a plenty." Boston is in Massachusetts and quite close to Salem, Lynn and Plymouth.—Chicago Herald.

Abraham Lincoln is assuredly one of the marvels of history. No hand but America has produced his like. This destined chief of a nation in his most perilous hour was the son of a thrifless and wandering settler, bred in the most sordid poverty. He had received only the rudiments of education, and though he afterward read eagerly such works as were within his reach, it is wonderful that he should have attained as a speaker and writer a mastery of language and a pure as well as effective style. He could look back smiling on the day when his long shanks appeared bare below the shrunken leather breeches which were his only leather garments. His frame was gaunt and grotesque, but mighty. He stood 6 feet 4, and was said to have lifted a cask full of beer and to have drunk out of the bung-hole. This made him a hero with the Clary Grove boys. He had a strong and eminently fair understanding, with great powers of patient thought, which he cultivated by the study of Euclid. In all his views there was a simplicity which had its source in the simplicity of his character. His local popularity was due to his humor and the stock of good stories, always pointed, though not always delicate, which through life it was his high delight to collect and repeat. At the same time he was melancholy, touched with the pathos of human life, fond of mournful poetry, religious though not orthodox, with a strong sense of an over-ruling Providence, which, when he was out of spirits, sometimes took the shape of fatalism. His melancholy was probably deepened by his gloomy surroundings and by misadventures in love.—Professor Godwin Smith's New History of the U. S.

The following communication from Mrs. Minnie Miller, who resides at 5 Guthrie st., Fort Wayne, Ind., explains itself:

"For many years I was troubled with indigestion and constipation. Three years ago I became so weak and nervous that I was a complete physical wreck. I had dizzy spells, palpitation of the heart and numbness of my hands and feet.

"These attacks came often and each time worse. My life was a burden to me and a trouble and worry to all my friends. I expected to die. My stomach was in such a condition that I could eat nothing but a very little of the lightest kind of food. Sleep was impossible. Every little noise would startle me and I would feel faint.

"At last I saw Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy advertised and read the testimonials of cure of some of those who had been afflicted as I was, so I thought I would try it. Wonderful to relate the first bottle helped me so much that I had faith in it. I took two more bottles and oh! I feel so much better. I can sleep soundly and the nervous feeling has almost left me. I can eat with a good appetite and have gained seven pounds.

"My friends say that I am looking so much better and I know that I am feeling as they say I look. I tell everybody that the Nervura has done it. I cannot say enough for it and I praise the Lord and thank this wonderful medicine for giving me relief.

"I am only too glad to recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to any one afflicted as I was and I hope this testimonial will be the means of inducing many to use this marvelous remedy."

Mr. Hampton Explains.

Potosky, Mich., Sept. 15, '93. To the Public:

Owing to misunderstanding and difficulty that has already arisen on account of the wording of Act No. 186, of 1889, the following explanation will be of interest:

The act purports to amend Act No. 159 of 1891 so as to forbid fishing "in any of the inland lakes and streams of this state" in any manner except with hook and line. But it only amends section one of the law of 1891, without changing its title, which is "An Act to regulate the taking and catching of fish in the inland lakes of this state," instead of "inland waters", as incorrectly given in the Act of 1893. The old title therefore still remains as the title of the law, and as the provision of the Act of 1893 in regard to streams is not expressed in that title, it is contrary to Art. IV., Sec. 20 of the Constitution of Michigan.

I therefore hold that where there is no local act, fishing in streams is still governed by sections 4 and 5 of the general fish law, Act 111 of 1889, which permits the spearing of certain fish in streams, and also taking them with dip net.

The mistake was evidently due to an attempt in the closing hours of the session to change Senator Mear's bill relative to Clam Lakes into a law governing the whole state.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

[OFFICIAL.] OFFICE OF PUBLIC WORKS, ANN ARBOR, OCT. 2, 1893.

Regular session. Called to order by Pres. Watts. Roll called. Full board present.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE MAYOR. To the Common Council: Gentlemen:—I have the honor to report that I have not approved of the resolution passed at your last meeting adopting the report and recommendations of the Finance Committee.

The Common Council recommended to the Board of Public Works to appoint Prof. Chas. E. Greene, consulting engineer to take charge of the construction of the street sewer. Upon this recommendation the Board appointed Mr. Greene. Having been employed, Mr. Greene cannot be legally discharged without cause. No cause is assigned in this report and there is no intimation that any cause exists so far as Mr. Greene is personally concerned.

Perhaps the foregoing are sufficient reasons for not approving of your report. It is a matter of common fairness that the reasons given by the committee in support of its recommendation should be considered. They are in effect that the salary of the street sewer engineer who has charge of the men at work upon this improvement added to the salary of the engineer and the whole system goes down with Mr. Greene, aggregate $400 per month and will amount for three and one-half months, the estimated time that it will take to construct the main sewer, to $1,200. This is less than five per cent. of the estimated cost of the work and it includes hiring workmen, keeping their accounts and all supervisory work which is not ordinary cost. Five per cent. of the cost usually paid for supervision alone. The committee say that, "we believe it borders on extravagance." But, it is not the only consideration. This main sewer is the foundation of the system of sewerage for the whole city. If that fails the whole system goes down with it. The construction of this sewer therefore, should be in charge of some one whose technical knowledge and experience put his competency for the work beyond question. Prof. Greene is such a man. Perhaps Mr. Key in fact, would be just as efficient. He has acquired an excellent reputation as an engineer, although he is still an undergraduate student. There may be good reason to believe that Mr. Key is qualified to supervise this work, but we do not know that he is, and it cannot be known until he has been tried. Officers representing the public have no right to employ a man to do work for the public that they do not know is competent, when a competent person can be had.

B. M. THOMPSON, Mayor. Sept. 21, 1893. Aid. Manly moved that the communication be received and filed.

Adopted. PETITIONS AND COMMUNICATIONS. To the Common Council: The Board of Public Works beg leave to report progress in laying out the sewer.

The Board of Public Works beg leave to report progress in laying out the sewer. Since September 23d, there has not been any work done in laying pipe, on account of not having the sewer pipe. The company reports, that a large quantity of sewer pipe is caused by two bad kilns. Six cars have been forwarded since the contract was made, and to this date the system goes down with them. They say that during the coming week they can ship all pipe as fast or faster than wanted. There is wanted for the sewer, such as are used for sewer ditching and we have asked for bids on same, and have two bids, the Kalamazoo Foundry and Machine Company and Mr. Goodfrey Brown.

All things considered, we recommend that the bid of the Kalamazoo Foundry and Machine Company be accepted, at $2.25 per inch each sewer (each additional foot add eight cents to price).

By order of the Board of Public Works. WM. J. MILLER, Clerk. Aid. Martin moved that the communication be received and filed.

Adopted. To the Common Council: In obedience to your direction, I hereby submit report on laying out of Huron street, east of Twelfth street.

That on the twenty-first day of November, 1892, a petition in due form was made to the common council, praying for the laying out and construction of a street on a line of east Huron street, projected easterly from Twelfth street to Cass street, sixty feet wide, and was referred to the street committee, and on the fifth day of December, 1892, the street committee made report thereon, recommending that the prayer of the petitioners be granted. At the same meeting a resolution was duly passed laying out such street. These proceedings can be found in printed record. The petition on page 107 of printed record. Resolution laying out street on page 112 of printed record. The report resolution and petition are in due form. The right of way had been acquired before any of these proceedings were taken, and the deed therefor was duly recorded in book 128 of deeds at page 134.

That on the first day of March, 1893, the council fixed the grade for said street by resolution duly passed.

See printed record page 136. I am of the opinion that all of the proceedings had in acquiring title for laying out and fixing the grade of this street have been duly taken and are in all things legal. All of which is respectfully submitted. Dated October 2, 1893. E. B. NORRIS, City Attorney. Aid. Prettyman moved that the communication be received and filed.

Adopted. To the Honorable Common Council: Gentlemen:—The undersigned petitioner respectfully asks permission of your honorable body to build a one-story building, size 15 by 40 feet, on South State street next north of the store now occupied by Mr. Alvin Wiley, said building to be covered with pressed steel brick, a metal covering and to be roofed with metal.

Your petitioner respectfully asks that your honorable body take action on this petition this evening if possible, as your petitioner wishes to begin building at once if said permission is granted. And your petitioner will ever pay. Ann Arbor, Oct. 2, 1893. J. H. NICKLES.

Aid. Prettyman moved that petition be received and referred to the Fire Department Committee, with power to act.

Aid. O'Mara moved to amend by striking out "with power to act." The original motion as amended, prevailed. A petition signed by Chas. A. Muma and two others, residents and property holders of the city of Ann Arbor, asking that a sidewalk be ordered built on the south side of East Huron street, from Ingalls street to the east line of the city's property. Referred to sidewalk committee.

To the City Council of Ann Arbor: Sirs:—In order to avoid continued trouble and to determine the necessity of a line fence between lands of Gustave Walter and those of the estate of Augustino H. Markham on South Seventh Street, I petition that fence viewers be appointed by your honorable body in accordance with the legal requirements. Respectfully yours, HERMAN C. MARKHAM.

Aid. O'Mara moved that the communication be received and filed.

Adopted. The Ann Arbor Savings Bank submitted a bond in the sum of $80,000 for the deposit of the city's moneys.

Referred to bond committee. FINANCE. To the Common Council: Your Committee on Finance respectfully report that they have had the following bills under consideration, and would recommend their allowance at sums stated:

Table with 2 columns: Name and Amount. Includes items like W. J. Miller, salary; H. B. Norris, salary; P. O'Hearn, salary; Mrs. M. G. Stark, salary janitor; Geo. H. The marshal's office to be furnished with furniture now owned by the city and used in the Clerk's office.
