FRIEZE MEMORIAL HALL.

Its Dedication Last Evening—A Fine Program.

The dedicatory services of the Frieze Memorial Hall, which very appropriate name has been given to the new School of Music building, occurred last evening. They were attended by an audience of fully 500, every one of whom felt joy in his heart because of the event.

It had been the dream of the universally beloved Dr. Frieze to see established here in Ann Arbor such an institution as this, but it was not his good fortune to see that dream realized in his lifetime. The work that he did for music in this community, however, paved the way for its reality, and his beautiful and sweet spirit seemed to be present that evening, and prevailed every heart there.

Prof. F. W. Kelsey presided, and in his easy, graceful manner, introduced the speakers. After the invocation which was pronounced by Rev. Henry Tatlock, Mr. A. L. Noble, president of the Building Association, made a neat little speech, although he asserted that it was not in his line. He told about the work that had been done to bring about this result, and paid a high compliment to the energy and activity of Col. H. S. Dean and Moses Seabolt, to whom he attributed a great share in this success.

He said that up to the present time the people had invested about $15,000 in the School. The building had cost $7,578 completed. The organ cost $2,200; the pianos $1,678; the fixtures, chairs for the hall, furniture, etc., $3,144. The association thought that the money had been expended wisely, and believed that they had an abundance to show for it, and the entire audience agreed with him, most assuredly.

Pres. Angell made some appropriate and happy remarks, paying a fine tribute to the services of the late Dr. Frieze, and also to Prof. Cady, the predecessor of Prof. Stanley, whose work, he said, had made this evening possible.

Prof. Perry told about music in the high school, and thought the vexed question of a musical education and a literary one at the same time were being solved in the Ann Arbor High School.

Prof. Pease, of Ypsilanti, said a few words of greeting. He told how the Ypsilantians had been neighborly and assisted in every way possible to push forward this work, and how they also rejoiced at this success.

Prof. de Pont told about the formation of the first musical association in the city, the "Messiah Club," out of which had grown the Choral Union with its 280 voices.

Then came Prof. Stanley himself. For once in his life, at least, he was embarrassed. Not probably because of the audience, or the occasion, but because he felt that every person there attributed to his excellent management and good, practical common sense the success of this undertaking; also because several of the speakers of the evening had told him of it. It was certainly an embarrassing situation, but he acquitted himself well, and promised that the best efforts possible for him to put forth should be given to this work in the future.

Then followed a delightful little programme given by the faculty of the School of Music. We believe every piece was appreciated, and that the applause came from far more sincere hearts than is usual upon such occasions.

After the services the audience enjoyed a stroll over the building, inspecting the admirable arrangements, from the basement to the attic, all of which were thrown open for that purpose.

The hall, and the building throughout, shows an exquisite taste in the way of decorations, and arrangements. This is the work of Mrs. Stanley, who is deserving of much praise therefor. There is nothing expensive about it, but the taste shown in arrangement and selection of colors, gives the entire interior an appearance of elegance.

The next Faculty Concert occurs Dec. 7th. The pupils' recital Dec. 9th. A song recital by Miss Baily, Dec. 14th; a lecture upon "Vocal Physiology" by Dr. W. F. Lombard, Dec. 16; a lecture upon "The Messiah" by Prof. Stanley Dec. 18; and the month's events to close Dec. 19th by that grand production, Handel's "Messiah," by the Choral Union.

A Great Musician.

The next in the course given by the Student's Lecture Association will be a concert by Henri Marteau who is acknowledged by the leading critics of this country to be the greatest violinist that has been heard in America since Wieniawski. (N. B.—there is a standing offer of $5,000 for any one who will straighten the kinks out of that name; a feat supposed to be as impossible as it would be to straighten the kinks out of Paderewski's hair.) Mr. Marteau will be assisted by Mme. Rosa Lade, an American—that's good, providing she sings occasionally in the American tongue—contralto, who is said to have a phenomenal range. The pianist for occasion will be Edwin M. Shonert. The Berlin papers are profuse in their praise of Marteau, and the N. Y. papers speak in the highest possible terms of his ability to produce sweet music, from that sweetest of all musical instruments, the violin. He is said to have a repertoire of 125 pieces, to which he has recently added Wilhelm's Excerpts from Wagner's Parsifal and Siegfried, and a difficult polonaise by Wieniawski, entitled the Drorak Concerto, and Massenet's Symphonie for violin. The most satisfactory method of ascertaining what sort of a musician Mr. Marteau is, is to go and hear him. He will be at University Hall on Friday evening Dec. 8th. The hall will be filled, as there is a generally expressed desire to listen to this great master.

Art Work of Washtenaw County.

This is the title of a book in twelve parts, printed on heavy plate paper, containing a condensed history of Washtenaw county. But the best and most important feature is the large photographs of prominent buildings and views, in and about the cities of Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Saline, Manchester and Chelsea. They are all page plates, 7x9 inches, and are remarkably clear and distinct, 83 in number.

The court house, post office, Masonic block, churches, the University buildings, river and landscape scenes from the court house tower, the boulevard, cemetery, besides many stores and private residences both here and in Ypsilanti. Of the latter city there are the Cleary college, Keeley's Cure, Normal school, and street scenes.

The work is a very valuable and handsome art book, especially interesting to the people of Washtenaw county, and we are glad to note it has had a large sale, as it deserves. Only a limited number were issued and it will increase in value as an art souvenir of elegant workmanship. W. H. Parrish Publishing Co., of Chicago, got up the publication.

The youngsters hereabouts enjoyed a few days' skating last week.

Each of the 18 employes of the post office found a nice, fat turkey on their desks this morning.

If a man offend a harmless, pure and innocent one, the evil shall fall back upon him like dust thrown up against the wind.

All of our exchanges these days are talking turkey in great shape. You can almost hear the gobble as you take one up and tear off the wrapper. Five car loads of wool were shipped to Boston last week by Staebler & Schmid. They hope to have it sold before any more tariff tinkering is done by congress.

This is the season of the year that young ladies search for a preparation to put on their lips to keep the chaps off.—Hudson Post.

That must be a slander on the young ladies of Hudson.

Our Burglar.

A tramp painter named Fred Whitmore, who had been employed by Chas. F. Staebler for a few days, and had been at work on the 2d floor of the Courier building on a room to be used by the Sewing School conducted by Miss Brown and the Mission Sunday School for this ward, was arrested Monday at Ypsilanti by Sheriff Brenner, and brought back to this city for burglary. On Sunday he gained entrance to the Courier building by prying out a window in a door at the west end of the basement. He then took a pickaxe and forced a door open leading to the press room, where he pocketed some tools; then went up into the office and broke open a drawer, taking some lead pencils and a knife; then he broke the lock from the door leading to the hall, went up stairs into the room where he had been working and took therefrom the collection belonging to the Sewing School children, some $2.90. After this he skipped to Ypsilanti, where he was found the next day. He was evidently under the influence of liquor. He had attempted to secure keys to get to the room, of Mr. Davison, and failing in his purpose, went to Mr. Saunders' house for the same purpose. When arrested he had 90 cents in pennies on his person, and several tools taken from the Courier Office, some of which had Mr. Davison's name upon them. Measures have been taken to prevent a recurrence of anything of the kind. It may be out of place, but the thought suggests itself to us that it is a dangerous practice to pick up tramps and send them into people's buildings and houses to work. The class who tramp are often dangerous, and use the knowledge thus gained for just such purposes as this man did.

He had his examination Tuesday, before Justice Pond, and was bound over to the circuit court.

Ann Arbor has bragged all the season about its prosperity—merchants overhead in business—real estate going skyward—even hush houses spawning millionaires—twenty-seven pairs of twins since the first of May, and yet because the board of supervisors has raised the city's assessment $200,000, a threat is made to Guy Fawkes the entire body at the January meeting.—Grass Lake News.

That shows what rot a man can write who doesn't know what he is writing about. The idea is simply to raze them.

We are astonished to note that the Sentinel opposes a paid fire department in Ypsilanti. The people of this city believe that its department more than saves its cost in actual property, every year, aside from the feeling of security which they have from fire, a thing that can not be estimated in dollars and cents. The experience of this city most assuredly is that a paid fire department pays.

The Mills Edition of Gbospel Hymns Nos. 5 & 6 may now be obtained at Wiley's Music Store on State street. Price 65 cents. Also at the Presbyterian, Congregational, Baptist and Methodist churches after the morning service Dec. 3. Let all who will attend the coming revival meetings provide themselves with copies.

Thanksgiving sermon will be delivered on Thursday at 11 o'clock, by Rev. Mr. Young, of the Disciples church, at the Presbyterian church. A large collection is expected for the poor of the city. Let every one give liberally on that day. "He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord."

Make yourself happier when you are eating your own good Thanksgiving dinner by the thought that you have helped some less fortunate one than yourself to a dinner also. That is what the day is for. Be thankful, and in order to be truly thankful one must be generous.

President Cleveland's renegade republican secretary of state bids fair to bring his administration into disgrace.

The tariff policy of President Cleveland appears to be like the jugglers' jargon in the circus: "Now you see it and now you don't."

Tammany made one very awkward mistake. Nominated and elected a man for alderman, and after it was all over found out that he wasn't a Saloon keeper.—Detroit Journal.

Tariff for revenue would put a tariff on tea, coffee, spices of all kinds, sugar and all such luxuries that poor folks sometimes indulge in. Put the tariff on these by all means, my democratic friends. Let the good(?) work go on. Don't falter or hesitate.

Paris is to have a World's Fair and Exposition in 1900, and already the French press are telling how it will eclipse the Chicago Exposition. There is the only place, however, where the eclipse will take place.

The republican party was born in the town meeting; the plantation gave birth to the democratic party. That's why the latter is dominated by bosses, and why the former brooks no interference from bosses, but is governed by the will of the people.

The Hon. Josiah Quincy's management of the Massachusetts democratic campaign will hardly warrant his selection as a candidate for president by his party in 1896. There is only one thing left, evidently, and that is to run Cleveland for a fourth time.

President Cleveland is said to have lost a goodly fortune in the shrinkage of values since his inauguration. He thought the repeal of the Sherman act would bring flush times again and restore his fortune, but it has done neither one. He is now said to be thinking about how not to reform the tariff, and still retain his position as a tariff reformer.

It is possible that the present administration may turn about after a little, because of the tremendous public sentiment against it, and attempt to do what justice and right and honor should have made it do in the first place; but it never can wipe out the stain of an attempt on its part to throttle the efforts of a people seeking liberty, and to place back upon a throne a dethroned and disgraced monarch.

The happiest man in the land to-day is the successful farmer. This statement is so often repeated that it must be very nearly true. He sits contentedly under his own vine and fig tree, undisturbed by the maddening noise of the city. Banks fail, railroads go into the hands of receivers, booming towns collapse and all business stagnates, but the wise farmer can snap his finger at these things. He is monarch of all he surveys on his broad acres, and the honesty of his boys and the purity of his girls are guarded against temptations and in them he is giving the country its best manhood and womanhood. The farmer is to be envied and if he is not contented with his lot he is lacking in wisdom.—Caddis News and Express.

The cost of the World's Fair in construction and maintenance was $25,540,537.85, but the receipts from all sources were $28,151,168.75.

The editor of the Sentinel must have a prodigious memory to quote there from the oaths and obligations of the old society known as the Know-Nothings.

The Michigan Farmer has a long article on how to keep apples. Little care we about that stage of the play. What we want to know about is how to get the apples.—Ypsilantian.

"The tariff is a chestnut" explains the Brooklyn Exponent. Yes, and many a democratic monkey has burned his paws fooling with it. Once again the people have warned them: "Don't monkey with the tariff."

Spain should recall her troops from Morocco and turn them loose on the anarchists. The subjects of Mulani-Hassan are not half so dangerous to the Spanish government as the bomb throwers who are committing weekly outrages in her cities.

It will be very fortunate for democratic candidates next fall if the Hawaiian policy of the democratic administration proves as complete a failure as it now seems bound to become. The desire to do an unpopular thing can be survived more easily than the deed itself.

It is stated that Railroad Commissioner Billings has decided that all railroads in the state must supply coaches with some kind of fire extinguisher. Something like McKinley's majority down in Ohio, for instance. That extinguished the democratic fires pretty effectually.

Two things are said to be settled. Wool and iron are to go on the free list. How about lumber, salt, coal and the bounty on sugar, my dear southern friend? Then too, cotton ties and binding twine, my dear democratic brother, how about binding twine? And tin plate! How about tin plate? Don't forget yourself, please, but give the free list the benefit of all the things you have been howling about.

The Ann Arbor Courier has week ceased hurrahing for that disagreeable McKinley, long enough to note the signs of a mild winter, and finds that onions have thick skins, indicative of a mild winter, while corn husks are very heavy—an unmistakable monitor of a glacial epoch. It admits the contrary of these symptoms but insists that the onions being stronger will win. Then it whoops for McKinley again.—Adrian Press.

You bettersweetlife! If you only knew how much better you would feel over on the Lord's side, hurrahing for the right, you would make haste to leave the old democratic free trade privateer, and join in the general jubilee in the grand old substantial republican ship! Come on! We'll give you a seat way up in front, and perhaps, if you show that you are made of the right sort of stuff, make you chairman of the meeting.

Stop Hungarian Immigration.

The problem of restricting immigration must shortly receive more attention from our national legislators than they have yet devoted to it. While we are proud to regard our country as a haven of refuge for the royalty-ridden oppressed of every nation, we most decidedly object to its becoming a sink into which may be swept the undesirable odds and ends of other countries. Our honest laboring classes have suffered too long and bitterly from the competition which has come in with the flood of beggarly hordes from eastern and southern Europe, whose very presence is offensive to the cleanly, and whose habits of life are hardly above those of the most unclean domestic animal. The only immigrants we can welcome to our shores are those who come to stay, and whose blood and habits render them capable of growing into worthy citizens. We believe it possible to formulate and execute laws that will regulate this matter, and shut out the undesirable classes, without doing violence to the generosity of our institutions. A cheerful sign of the times is the fact that numerous large eastern manufacturing, whose "laborers" have lately been selected from such people as the Poles and Huns, are now excluding all but "Americans"—which, of course, takes in the better class of citizens of foreign birth. This action will tend to discourage the further influx of such classes, and even lead to a considerable exodus—consummations devoutly to be wished. We believe that our national government may legitimately go still further, and absolutely protect our working classes by a means quite as honorable and effective as the protection to manufacturers which has been attained by the tariff. We are sure that we give voice to public sentiment when we demand of congress early and energetic action looking to this end.—Blue and Gray for November.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, indigestion.

The Dairy Test at the World's Fair.

As everybody expected, the result of the dairy test of the Jersey, Guernsey and Shorthorn breeds, fifteen of each breed, at Chicago, has shown the decided superiority of the Jersey breed. But few, however, expected so decided a victory in the final balance sheet of profits as is shown in the figures of this remarkable test. In making up this account each cow was charged with the actual amount of the various feeding stuffs she consumed, and credited with the amount of butter produced and the amount of gain in live weight. Any one who wishes to refer to these figures at length can find them in "The Breeders' Gazette," of October 25, but we have space only for a few of the most interesting items.

In the thirty days' butter test the Jersey herd produced 837 pounds of butter against 724 pounds for Guernseys and 662 pounds for the Shorthorns. This is a good showing, but the difference between the breeds is more sharply marked in the profit account, which shows a net profit of $274 for the Jerseys, $287 for the Guernseys, and $119 for the Shorthorns.

This proves beyond all question, what observing dairymen have long believed, that a breed well suited for the production of beef cannot be expected to excel in the dairy. The beef cow is a hearty feeder, and when feed is high in price and beef too low to yield a profit in feeding for beef, as is often the case in New England, the farmer who feeds such cattle is pretty sure to complain that farming doesn't pay. In this test, however, there was one Shorthorn cow that ranked No. 3 in profit among the whole forty-five, but as a rule they do not compare with Jerseys.

This exception would seem to show what is the undoubted fact, that occasional good dairy cows are to be found in all breeds, and that the thrifty farmer who takes the trouble to find them out, and keep only such, will have no cause for grumbling.

There were twenty-six cows that went through the three tests for milk, butter and cheese, and the net profit for the first fifteen days of each test shows a profit ranging from $31.65 for the best Jerseys, to $12.91 for the poorest Shorthorn. In this list the first six are Jerseys.

The rations fed to these cows consisted of old hay, carrots, cornmeal, grain gluten, middlings, corn hearts, oats, bran, oilmeal, cotton seed, silage and hay. The feeders selected such feed as they chose, and it is noticeable that the Shorthorns were not fed any cornmeal, carrots or old hay, but received a larger allowance of middlings, corn hearts, bran, silage, and cotton seed. The cost of food for the fifteen Jerseys, for thirty days was $111.24, for the Guernseys $96.76, and for the Shorthorns $104.55. The product of butter was valued for the Jerseys at $385.59, for the Guernseys $329.76, for the Shorthorns $303.68.

The Jerseys showed a gain in live weight of 157 pounds, the Guernseys 280 pounds and the Shorthorns 244 pounds.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

Value of New York Bank Shares.

While the Chemical National is undoubtedly the richest of New York banks, to be a stockholder in which is to have financial standing at once, few of the city banks that pay any dividends at all pay so little on the market price of the stock. The book value is $2,540 a share (par $100), but the last sale was at $4,452.12 and even though the bank pays 150 per cent. per annum in bi-monthly dividends, that amounts to only a trifle more than 8 per cent. upon the market value of the stock. The Fifth National, which has the next highest per share among all New York banks pays over 4 per cent. The last sale of stocks was at $540 for $100 shares, and $2,000 is now bid. Upon the investment the Fifth Avenue pays best of all, for the rate is 80 per cent. per annum, the last sale being at 625, with 2,000 now bid, amounting to 12 per cent. on the price. The smallest book value shown for any of the banks was for the National Union, now in liquidation. The new Federal bank has the smallest deposits—$53,000—but 125 is bid for the stock. The Southern and the Tradesmen's National are the only banks whose stock is offered at par. The business done at the New York Clearing House is larger than any other in the world, London and Paris not excepted.

HEAD OF FOUR CHURCHES,

Is it Any Wonder Ministers Break Down?

Bishop Phillips Broke Down as the Result of Overwork.

Rev. Henry Langford, the Eminent Preacher, just Saved from same Fate.

Overwork kills. The great Bishop, Phillips Brooks, was stricken down in the prime of his manhood and usefulness as the direct result of physical and nervous exhaustion brought on by overwork.

Now comes the news that Rev. Henry Langford, the eminent Baptist divine, of Weston, West Va., has just escaped utter nervous and physical prostration.

He is pastor of four churches. Is it any wonder that he broke down in health?

The reverend gentleman gives a very interesting account of himself and his troubles:

"For ten years," he said, "I have been nervous and growing worse all these years. During the last four or five years I became so nervous I could scarcely sign my name so it could be read. I was so nervous that I could not read my own sermon notes after they had been laid aside for a while.

"I was unable to hold my head steady in the pulpit, nor could I hold or handle my books and papers without embarrassment, owing to the trembling and weakness of my hands and arms. It was so nervous that I could scarcely feed myself. In fact my nervous system was wrecked.

"I tried many remedies recommended by physicians, but found no permanent relief.

REV. HENRY LANGFORD.

"One day I was in the store of R. S. Ogden, at Sardis, W. Va., and he said to me: 'You take two bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and if you say it don't help you, you need not pay for it.'

"I took two bottles of this medicine and found so much relief that I bought two more bottles, and now I am wonderfully improved in health and strength. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy did it. I can heartily and truthfully recommend it to the sick. Too much cannot be said in praise of this splendid medicine.

"I say this for the good of other sufferers from nervous and prostrating diseases who can be cured by this remedy. For myself I am thankful to God that I found Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and for what it has done for me."

"You who suffer with nervous and physical weakness and prostration from overwork or other cause have only to follow the example and recommendation of Rev. Mr. Langford in order to insure a return of health and strength. This truly remarkable and harmless vegetable remedy is the discovery of the successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th st., New York. The doctor can be consulted in all cases free of charge, personally or by letter.

An Effective Remedy.

A preacher's righteous soul was sadly vexed by the talking and giggling of some of the junior members of his congregation. Breaking off in the middle of his discourse he looked straight at his tormentors and said:

"Some years ago there happened to sit right in front of the pulpit a young man who was perpetually laughing and talking and making silly faces. I stopped short and took him severely to task. At the close of the service a gentleman stepped up to me and said:

"Sir, you made a great mistake; that young man is an idiot."

"Since that time I have not ventured to reprimand any persons who behave themselves indecorously in church, lest I should repeat the same mistake and inflict censure upon an idiot."

There was exemplary silence during the rest of the service.—Ueber Land und Meer.

GOOD ADVICE.

Every patriotic citizen should give his personal effort and influence to increase the circulation of his home paper which teaches the American policy of Protection. It is his duty to aid in this respect in every way possible. After the home paper is taken care of, why not subscribe for the AMERICAN ECONOMIST, published by the American Protective Tariff League? One of its correspondents says: "No true American can get along without it. I consider it the greatest and truest political teacher in the United States."

NO WASTE.

See How Unconsidered Trifles Are Made Useful.

When Bishop Berkeley wrote his famous treatise on tar water, claiming it as a universal medicine, curing all diseases, he little dreamed that the time would arrive when many medicinal preparations would be made out of it. Important narcotics and febrifuges have forced their way into medicine from this source, and are much valued by physicians, says the North American Review.

The most curious of the useful products of coal tar is saccharin, a substance so sweet that the sensation on the palate is disagreeable from its cloying persistency. A grain or two grains give the sweetness of one or two lumps of sugar, and it can be taken in food without producing the dyspeptic and gouty results that real sugar produces on some persons.

Of all living things rats seem to be among the most repulsive, and when dead what can be their use? But even they are the subjects of production in the industrial arts. The fur is valuable and finds a ready sale. The skins make a superior glove, the gant de rat, and are especially used for the thumbs of kid gloves, because the skin of the rat is strong and elastic. The thigh-bones were formerly valued as tooth-picks for clubs, but are now out of fashion; while the tendons and bones are boiled up to make the gelatin wrappers for bonbons.

Chemistry, like a thrifty housewife, economizes every scrap. The horse-shoe nails dropped in the streets are carefully collected, and reappear as swords and guns. The main ingredient of the ink with which I now write was probably once the broken hoop of an old beer barrel. The chippings of the traveling tinker are mixed with the parings of horses' hoofs and the worst kinds of woolen rags and these are worked up into an exquisite blue dye, which graces the dress of courtly dames.

The dregs of port wine, carefully decanted by the top, are taken in the morning as a seditious powder, to remove the effect of the debauch. The offal of the streets and the wastings of coal gas reappear carefully preserved in the lady's smelling bottle, or used by her to flavor blanc manges for her friends. All this thrift is an imitation of the economy of nature, which allows no waste.

WHAT BECOMES OF SCRAP IRON.

Railroads Gather It Together to Be Sold in Pittsburgh and Elsewhere.

Nothing goes to waste on a big railroad, and every scrap of iron and much second-hand material is valued at a fixed price and carried on the books as so much stock on hand. The system followed by the storekeeper's department of one railroad is a sample of many. The second-hand metals are gathered and placed in piles, regularly assorted. Then they are classified by the foreman and taken into stock by the storekeeper or assistant. There are regular schedules—one of material which can be used again, which is denominated "second-hand," and another of material which has to be melted before it can be used, which is known as "scrap."

The classes are arranged, says the Philadelphia Call, something after the following order: Steel scrap, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6, at prices ranging from $28 a ton down to wrought iron, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4; cast iron, Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4. Even borings are taken into account, brass borings being credited at 8 cents per pound and brass scrap and copper at 12.

This material is shipped to division headquarters when a carload has accumulated. Here it is disposed of by the storekeeper on order of his chief, being shipped in carloads to big dealers in old metals in large cities. Much of it goes to Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and such points. Orders for as high as 500,000 pounds of one kind of material are occasionally received from single firms.

Most of the second-hand material is used over again in the shops, but it is previously taken on the books at a fixed price by the storekeeper and is charged up to the account of the articles for which it is used. All usable No. 1 wrought iron is received and charged up at one and one-quarter cents a pound and cast iron at one cent.

A GROOM'S PREDICAMENT.

He Escaped Because His Wife's Pious Uncle Was Very Deaf.

A bride tells of a difficult moment of her recent wedding trip. A few days of it were spent with an uncle of hers, very deaf and very pious.

When they sat down to dinner on the night of their arrival, with a considerable company of relatives assembled to do them honor, the uncle exploded a bomb shell by asking the groom to say grace.

Much embarrassed, as he was unaccustomed to officiating in this way, he leaned forward, murmuring a request to be excused. Whereupon the uncle, watching him, only waited until his lips stopped moving to utter a sonorous "Amen!" in response.

It is hardly necessary to add that not only did the blessing for that meal go unsaid, but also that the effort of everybody, except the uncle, to keep from laughing quite took away the appetites for the first course.

The Price of Food in Europe.

The price of food varies as greatly in European as in American cities. Prime beef averages in Vienna 16 cents a pound, in Prague 14 cents, in Rome and Buda-Pesth 17 cents, in Paris 24 and 23 cents, in Lille 24 cents. Flour in Buda-Pesth sells for 2½ cents; for 5 cents in Paris, Frankfurt and Florence; for 4 cents in Berlin; for 4½ cents a pound, and in Berlin 4½ cents. Potatoes are under 2 cents a pound in all the cities except Hamburg. Rice ranges from 2½ cents a pound in Brussels to 10 cents elsewhere. In Brussels coffee is had from the Dutch colonies for 25½ cents a pound, while in Berlin it is 32½ cents and in Paris (roasted) 60 cents.

Happiness be to the one who conduces to the happiness of all!

THE CAUSE OF SEASICKNESS.

Beginning in the Three Aural Tubes It Eventually Reaches the Stomach.

Seasickness starts in the ear, says a writer in McClure's Magazine. In its cavity are three small tubes, each bent in a circle, and filled with fluid. The three sit at right angles to each other, like the three sides at the corner of a room or a box. Consequently, in whatever direction the head is moved, the fluid in some one of the tubes is given a circular motion. Hanging out into the tubes, from their sides, are hairs or cilia, which connect with nerve cells and fibers that branch off from the auditory nerve. When the head moves the fluid moves, the hairs move, the cells are "fired off," a nervous current is sent up to the brain and a feeling of the head's peculiar motion is consequent. As for seasickness: This nerve current, on its way to the brain, at one point runs beside the spot or "center" where the nerve governing the stomach has its origin. When the rocking of the head is abnormally violent and prolonged, the stimulus is so great that the current leads over into this adjoining "center" and so excites the nerve running to the stomach as to cause wretchedness and retching.

Deaf mutes, whose ear "canals" are affected, are never seasick. But normally the amount of ear-feeling which we get by reason of moving our head in a particular direction comes in a curious way to be a measure of the direction of sound. The feelings we get from our skin and muscles in turning the head play a similar role. We turn our ear to catch a sound. We do this so frequently for every point that in time we learn to judge the direction of the sound by the way we would have to turn the head in order to hear the sound best. Thereafter we do not have to turn the head to get the direction, for we now remember the proper feeling and know it. This memory of the old feeling is our idea of the present direction. If we never moved our heads we never could have any such notion of the location of sounds as at present—perhaps none whatever.

EVERY MAN A FIGHTER.

The Metabeles, Who Have Risen Against English Colonists in Africa.

About three years ago the warlike and intelligent Metabeles, of Mashonaland, threatened a war upon the English colonists in that country, but, listening to the counsels of their king, the wise Lobengula, the trouble was warded off. But the grumblings of the fighting men continued. They partially believed Lobengula's explanation of the course he was pursuing. He had told them that his ambassadors to England said that for every drop of English blood shed a fresh Englishman would spring into being. The medicine men said: "Let us kill these here and see if what they say will happen," but Lobengula's counsels prevailed. The restive feeling finally grew beyond that of a monarch's control and now the cable brings news that the young men have risen and are marching upon Forts Victoria, Salisbury, Tuli and the others, comprising the foreign military system in that country. If the uprising is not speedily suppressed England has a serious job on hand. The Metabeles are of the same stock as the Zulus. Their military organization is almost perfect. The population of Metabeleland proper is about two hundred thousand. The standing army is said by the Pittsburgh Dispatch to number fifteen thousand, divided into ferals or regiments and commanded by Indunas. What is more, these fellows can fight. They are born soldiers, and as the troops are almost as thoroughly organized as the British they will make quite a struggle. The favorite weapon is the assegai or spear, but many are equipped with good guns and know enough to pick out their men to shoot at when doing battle.

AT VICTORIA'S COURT.

A Long Distance Down from Her Majesty to the Plain Citizen.

The table of precedence at the English court is given by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat as follows: The sovereign, prince of Wales, queen's younger sons, grandsons of the sovereign, archbishop of Canterbury, lord high chancellor, archbishop of York, archbishop of Armagh, archbishop of Dublin (these two during the lives of the present bishops only), lord president of the privy council, lord privy seal, lord great chamberlain, earl marshal, lord steward of her majesty's household, lord chamberlain, dukes of England, Scotland, Great Britain, Ireland, marquises, earls, marquises' elder sons, dukes' younger sons, viscounts, earls' elder sons, marquises' younger sons, bishops of London, Durham and Winchester, all other English bishops according to seniority of creation, bishops of the Irish church before 1809, secretaries of state if barons, speaker of the house of commons, treasurer of her majesty's household, comptroller of her majesty's household, master of the horse, vice chamberlain of the household, secretaries of state not barons, viscounts' eldest sons, earls' younger sons, barons' eldest sons, knights of the garter, privy councilors, chancellor of the exchequer, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, lord chief justice of the queen's bench, master of the rolls, lords justices of appeal, lords of appeal, judges, viscounts' younger sons, barons' younger sons, baronets, knights of the Bath, knights of St. Patrick, knights Grand Cross of the Bath, knights grand commanders of the Star of India, knights Grand Cross of St. Michael and St. George, knights commanders of the Bath, knights commanders of the Star of India, knights commanders of St. Michael and St. George, knights bachelors, judges of county courts, companions of the bath of St. Michael and St. George, eldest sons of the younger sons of peers, baronets' eldest sons, eldest sons of knights, younger sons of the younger sons of peers, baronets' younger sons, younger sons of knights, gentlemen entitled to bear arms, citizens.

THE PARKS OF PARIS.

A FOREST OF TREES AND FLOWERS IN PROFUSION.

An Immense Perspective Unequaled in Any Other City in the World—The Champs Elysees, the Loveliest Thoroughfare in Paris—Wonderful Gardens.

There are not less than 126,000 trees in line within the walls of Paris, without including those which are found in private gardens, so vast and numerous in certain aristocratic quarters, nor those of the public gardens. And note this further fact that outside the public ways there exists in this city, in the form of parks, gardens and public squares, a total service of about 3,000 acres.

Beside trees, there are plants and flowers throughout the town. When it is time for Paris to take off her winter toilet and make her appearance in spring attire, it takes nearly 500,000 flower plants, distributed by hundreds of gardeners and their assistants. The total number of plants often employed for the toilet of this town at one time is about 2,000,000. The nurseries which produce them are situated in various parts of the city. In the Bois de Boulogne, near the race course of Longchamp, are the nursery grounds of trees with caducous leaves. At Auteuil, on the road to the village of Boulogne, in a sandy soil, excellent for their propagation, are placed a collection of resinous trees, plants with persistent leaves and health molder plants. On the banks of the river Marne, at a village called Petit Bui, the plane trees that are planted along the boulevards are cultivated, and finally, out at Vincennes, near the barrier and just beyond the fortifications, a large assignment of land is reserved for ornamental plants.

The central establishment is near La Muette, out at Passy. It is one of the most considerable horticultural laboratories in the world, and has 80 conservatories.

In some of these Paris gardens there are so many diversities of plants that I dare not attempt to enumerate them. Without them, and the hundreds of thousands of others in Paris, many persons would bend over their daily labor and pass their lives without having had any other spectacle before their eyes than that of narrow streets or the sombre courtyard of tenement house, workshop and factory.

I wish my readers could see Paris between the Louvre palace and the western end of the Bois de Boulogne, a distance of about five miles, and full of trees.

They begin with two pretty little garden spots in a narrow open space between two wings of the Louvre that are occupied on one side by the ministry of finances, on the other by the National gallery. Then comes a short, bare space, badly paved with great blocks of stone and called the Place du Carrousel. Beyond its small arch of triumph that Napoleon once topped with booty from the Vatican begin the gardens of the Tuileries.

Here there are orange trees in immense wooded tracts painted green, and there is almost no grass at all. At its beginning is a part of the Jardin des Tuileries, which was only opened to the public in 1889, and it covers the ground where once stood the palace. Thence, seen through trees, through marble statues and statuary of many kinds, an immense perspective slowly rises and gloriously terminates with the Arc de Triomphe. The details are ravishing, the ensemble is of unequalled grace and grandeur; no other city on earth can show its like. West of the Tuileries gardens is the grand open space known as the Place de la Concorde, and after that comes the Champs Elysees, an elysian field where wide belts of varied shrubs are encircled with choicest flowers, where the grass spreads widely out here and there, and where great clumps of rhododendrons and lofty trees shroud buildings that are occupied as cafe-courts, restaurants, dioramas, a circus and the Palais de l'Industrie.

The Champs Elysees was thus laid out in 1809, but the work was so well done that it looks as if they were always thus established. This garden park of street and public garden finishes at the Rond point, a circular open space, where several streets cross, and where there are fountains, beds of flowers and rich mansions. From the Rond point to the Place de l'Etoile, or triumphal march, where all is breadth, dignity and airiness, the avenue of the Champs Elysees is built up with private residences, though here and there a grocery, a carriage store-room or a drugshop have crept in to mar the aristocratic bearing of the loveliest thoroughfare in Paris. On either side of the roadway stretches a row of trees, and these, turning around the arch of triumph, continue their way down the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne, which leads to the park of that name.

It is a thoroughfare that grandly shows to what beauty avenue gardening can be brought. It was made entirely through private land, half the expenses being borne by the state on condition that an iron railing of uniform design was to be constructed along the whole length of the road; that a strip of about 50 feet in breadth be left for the gardens between this railing and the main road, and, further, that no kind of trade or manufacturing should be carried on in any of the buildings adjoining. The total length of the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne is 1,350 yards, and its width is 150. It consists of a central roadway 125 feet wide, of two asphalt sidewalks each 40 feet wide, of a "rotten row" for horseback riders, of two long pieces of garden with grass, shrubs, trees and flowers and of two bordering roads in front of the private residences.

I cannot begin to tell you of all the beauties of trees and shrubs and plants which Paris can boast of, much less can I describe in full those other promenades called the Bois de Vincennes, the garden of the Buttes Chaumont, the Parc de Montsouris, etc. In all, Paris possesses 6 parks, 44 squares and 37 gardens.—Boston Herald.

To the useful and the good, all men are friends and kindred.

THE AVERAGE MAN.

His Size, Weight, Strength and Appearance From an Expert's Calculation.

"The average man" is a phrase frequently employed, but the conception of which it is the symbol is apt to be extremely shadowy. It has remained for Dr. Sargent of Cambridge to endow the conception with concrete form. With extraordinary industry he has applied himself to measuring chests and necks and hips by the thousands, and biceps and calves by the tens of thousands. He has calculated the strength, expressed in foot pounds, of unnumbered forearms and backs. The results of his labors consist of two nude figures modeled in clay.

The first figure is the average, or "composite," of more than 5,000 Harvard men at the age of 21. This type is 5 feet 8 inches in height. He weighs 138 pounds. He has a lung capacity of 240 inches. His breadth of shoulders is 17 inches. His girth of natural chest is 33.8 inches; of inflated chest 36.3. His stretch of arms is 70.03 inches, which is 2.2 inches greater than his height. Thus one idol after another is smashed with the hammer of cold fact, for the rigid law of ancient art was that the stretch of arms should always exactly equal the height. The girth of the type's head is 22.3 inches, of his hips 35.1 inches. The strength of his forearm is 110 pounds, and of his back 308 pounds. Standing squarely, clean limbed, strong necked, he looks rather like a runner than a rower, but there is nothing sordid, nothing warped, nothing to indicate the deterioration of a civilization of too many wheels, the stunting and abnormal, one-sided development due to factory or city life.

In considering the other figure reluctant gallantry must give place to veracity, and it must be admitted that the man is the finer figure of the two. The face of the average college girl, like that of the other figure, is a "composite" one, and the best that can be said of it is that it is depressingly solemn in expression. The type is 5 feet 5 inches tall. She weighs 115 pounds. Her breadth of shoulder is 17 inches. The girth of her natural chest is 30.5 inches. She can expand that about two inches. Her girth of hips is 35.4 inches. Her girth of head is 21.5 inches. Her stretch of arms is 63.5 inches. As the college girl is too sensible to constrict her waist to any considerable degree, so she is wise enough to give her feet plenty of freedom.

The type's foot is 9½ inches long. Her waist is 24 inches in circumference. Her legs are not well developed. Her girth of calf is only 13½ inches. In truth the figure has more fragility than that of her counterpart, without a corresponding gain in grace.

It is when he finishes the results of his observations as to temperament, however, that Dr. Sargent approaches most closely to dangerous ground, for he declares that the typical college girl student is distinctly nervo-bilious. This seems like a maliciously devised scheme on the part of the doctor to forestall criticism from the girls.

The shrewd, scientific expert has doubtless conceived the notion of putting their very criticisms in evidence to prove his sweeping assertion. He will scarcely succeed, however, in propitiating the ladies by the deprecatory remark that his lay figure is not that of an 80 or 90 per cent girl; that it represents merely 50 per cent of their good points, and is halfway from the best to the worst.—Philadelphia Record.

Protecting Vegetables in Winter.

It does not seem to be generally known that light in the winter time is the chief agent in the destruction of vegetables otherwise hardy, and especially light shining brightly on the plant when frozen. A cabbage or turnip that is exposed to the light rots readily, but will keep perfectly sound if but slightly covered with earth. This principle should be remembered when collecting vegetables together in large masses for protection.

It is often customary to cover such sets of vegetables with some light material, such as leaves, hay or straw, the result of which generally is simply to form a harbor for mice, which are much more destructive than the frost itself.

Water has, of course, to be excluded, and if the vegetable plants are set closely together and covered with boards to keep out the rain, it is generally all that is required. Water must be excluded, or else rotting may result. For this purpose it is good practice to invert vegetables. The cabbage especially must receive this attention. They are almost always inverted when placed together under boards or covers for protection, and, in fact, where no covering at all is used, they will keep perfectly well when inverted.—Meehan's Monthly.

"Jim Hill's House."

Every visitor to St. Paul who has seen the big red sandstone pile familiarly known throughout the American continent as "Jim Hill's house"—and statistics are not at hand to show the number of St. Paul's visitors who have not seen it—will be interested in the bit of domestic gossip that 20 servants and one housekeeper are needed to keep each floor of the enormous dwelling in order. There is a magnificent Minneapolis mansion that boasts, it is said, 17 servants and a housekeeper, but this retinue, St. Paul is proud to prove, is for the entire establishment, while Mr. Hill's 21 are the equipment for his every floor. Although of such gigantic proportions, the Hill house is most beautiful as well, and its situation upon that stateliest of sites, St. Anthony's hill, makes it one of the choicest as well as one of the costliest dwellings in this country.—New York Times.

Lord Exmouth's Pension.

Lord Exmouth has commuted his perpetual pension of £2,000 a year for the lump sum of £33,890, representing 28 years' purchase. The original recipient, the famous admiral, won a baronetcy toward the close of the last century by the capture of a French frigate under striking circumstances, obtaining a barony later, and for the bombardment of Algiers and the destruction of its piratical trade a viscounty and the pension in question.—London Letter.

Before Treatment. After Treatment.

Nervous Debility and Catarrh Cured.

Thomas Minchin says: "I was reduced to a nervous wreck—only weighed 118 pounds. The result of early abuse was the cause. I had the following symptoms: Miserable mentally and physically, melancholy, nervousness, weakness, specks before the eyes, dizzy, poor memory, palpitation of the heart, flushing, cold hands and feet, weak back, dreams and losses at night, tired in the morning, pimples on the face, loss of ambition, burning sensation, kidneys weak etc. Doctors could not cure me; but Drs. Kennedy & Kergan by their New Method Treatment, cured me in a few weeks. I weigh now 170 pounds. It is three years since I have taken their treatment."

Blood Disease and Dyspepsia Cured.

Major Simfield says: "I had Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach for many years. To make matters worse I contracted a Constitutional Blood Disease. My bones ached, blotches on the skin looked horrible. I tried sixteen doctors in all. A friend recommended Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. I began their New Method Treatment and in a few weeks was a new man with renewed life and ambition. I cannot say too much for those scientific doctors who have been in Detroit for fourteen years. I conversed with hundreds of patients in their offices who were being cured for different diseases. I recommend them as honest and reliable Physicians."

New Novel by Mark Twain

The most dramatic story ever written by America's greatest humorist. Like several of Mark Twain's stories, it has for its scene a steamboat town on the Mississippi River forty years ago. "Pudd'nhead Wilson," a hard-headed country lawyer, the hero of the story, furnishes much of the fun that one naturally expects to find in a work written by the author of "The Innocents Abroad" but he appears in quite another light in the murder trial which forms the thrilling climax of the story. The plot introduces a novel and ingenious employment of science in the detection of crime, and the characters are well drawn and their every action is interesting. The Century will contain

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

A Correspondent Roasts Them for Extravagance.

In looking over the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors for the year 1893, I find no improvements, it is, as it was, the taxpayer's money, is used as freely, by the members of the Board, for themselves and their friends, as in former years, and some members who would do the fair things are overwhelmed, when the chairman announces the vote is carried by the majority, which is not true. On pages 22 and 23 I find a long report, well written and plain in words and figures, by the chairman of the committee on public buildings, but near the closing of the report appears the bill of

35 days at $3 per day	$105
15 days at $3 per day	45
15 days at $3 per day	45
	$195

All the material and labor for repairing court house and jail amounts to $1,300.93.

By a little examination I find that six bills amount to $990. All other bills, to $304.22.

Materials amount to	$800.00
All labor amounts to	500.93
Total	$1300.93

The committee had not much to do with the materials, so they, or he could not much supervise them, only labor of about $500. The report says, the committee met Feb. 1st, 1893, one day. No other meeting of the committee nor itemized bill is presented. The chairman says he supervised all the work and repairs, and expected pay as above.

How about the other 34, 14, and 14 days charges? The committee could have met 21 times, three times every month, from Feb. 1st, to Sept. 1st, at $9 a meeting, a big charge, which would amount to $189, and $6 for writing the report. Or they could have met, one member, three days per week at $2 per day, for 30 weeks for $180 and $15 for writing the report. Or one member at 94 cents per day, for 207 days, from Feb. 1st to April 1st, amounting to $194.58 and a small amount for reporting. How much does it cost for supervising work, and materials, over $14 per 100, or over $14 on every $100. One hundred and eighty-two dollars and $13 for report, for supervising work, $36 per 100, or over $36 on every $100; $180 and $15 for reporting. It seems all the members of the Board were not satisfied with the charge of the building committee, $195, for on page 45 the resolution offered by Mr. Gill has the right ring in it; itemized bills for work performed, and the cost thereof, to be presented to the board, for examination. The several pay rolls are as in former years, all were present, for full pay, none absent, and if they are marked absent by the clerk when the pay roll is made, those marks are not looked for very liberally, but few if any, would be so liberal with their hired help.

I may be mistaken, but has not the judge of the circuit court a fixed salary by the year? Why make an allowance of $100?

On page 35 I find that Dr. Gibbs, (ought to be named Takki) charges for expert testimony, $500. He is an expert in demanding large pay; and after a good many pros and cons, it was allowed by halves, on page 39 under provided, without a ye and nay vote, why? But so it is all along that Board, from the little officers to the senate chamber and up.

Large pay and very little work, and the productive laborers, much hard work and little pay. Liberty! Equality! It sounds well, but is it true? C. K.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day.—In order to be healthy this is necessary.

The Late Wm. A. Chamberlain.

Wm. A. Chamberlain was born in New York state, March 6th, 1820 and died in Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 3, 1893, aged 73 years and 8 months.

When a boy 12 years old Mr. C's parents moved from New York and settled on a farm near Flat Rock, Mich. This was his home for over 30 years.

August 31st, 1842, he was married to Miss Clarissa Parmely, and shortly after this, his only brother died, which was the means of his conversion. He united with the Methodist church and has been a constant member, until the time of his death. About 16 years ago they moved from the farm to Flat Rock, and after living there some four years, they moved again, to Ann Arbor, where he has since resided. The remains were taken to Flat Rock for burial, a part of his farm being used as a family resting place. Mr. Chamberlain leaves a wife, four children, six grandchildren, and his only sister, to mourn his departure. His death was from an apoplectic stroke.

Mrs. Chamberlain and her daughters wish to express their sincere and heartfelt thanks to the friends who so kindly assisted them in their sad bereavement.

BROTHERHOOD OF ST. ANDREW.

The First Assembly Meeting at Harris Hall.

The first annual convocation of the state assembly of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, convened at Harris Hall, on Wednesday morning last. There were present some sixty delegates from various parts of the state, and it was an enthusiastic body of mostly young men, though there were a few gray haired gentlemen present but they were evidently as young in spirits and thoughts as the younger members.

The convention was called to order by the president, Mr. James S. Rogers, of Detroit, who congratulated the Brotherhood upon the excellent attendance, and the brilliant prospects for the future of the organization.

Continuing, Mr. Rogers said in effect that the object of the association was to gather together the working men of the Brotherhood throughout the state. Heretofore if one brother wanted to find out about any other brother as to his whereabouts or work, he would have to write to the general secretary in New York who would then give the information. Michigan wanted its own headquarters. Each brother wanted to know the other brother. They did not want to use a long distance telephone and then be switched off on another long distance telephone to talk with a brother. They wanted to be more in touch with each other. Those that know the work done by the Detroit local chapters believe that a state assembly will help the state work. The best work is always obtainable where there is a system. In forming the assembly it was intended to spread the brotherhood to places where the seed had been sown, which was ready for the harvest. He believed that the work of the Brotherhood which was now only in its infancy would spread to every corner of the state.

At 12 o'clock, noon, the prayer for the Brotherhood was said by Rev. W. O. Waters, of Detroit.

Rev. Henry Tatlock, of Ann Arbor, then delivered the address of welcome. This part had been assigned to Mayor Thompson, but he was unexpectedly called away, and Rev. Mr. Tatlock filled the vacant place, and he filled it well. If there were any present who did not feel that Ann Arbor welcomed them, after he was through, then it would be difficult to have made them feel that way. He thought it an honor that the first assembly should meet here.

It was needless to assure them that they were all welcome. There were excellent reasons why they should, as residents of Michigan, feel at home here. Ann Arbor is more than any other city made by the state of Michigan, for Ann Arbor is made by the University of Michigan, which receives its life from the state. So they ought not to feel more at home anywhere in the state. Fourteen hundred of the more than 2,800 students of the University are from the homes of Michigan. There are more young men here whom the brotherhood wants to get hold of than anywhere else in this great state of Michigan, not excepting even Detroit.

These young men will in the near future, be leaders, and the Brotherhood wants them. The building in which this assembly is being held, is owned technically by the diocese of Michigan, but belongs to the Hobart Guild of the University of Michigan and has been built by the people of Michigan. The brothers are therefore in their own building. Let this first assembly of the Brotherhood be made to cover every nook and corner of the state. When we go away from here let us be filled with an enthusiasm that shall carry everything before it, and make the work of the brotherhood more productive of good than it ever has been before.

The assembly then proceeded to business and elected the following officers for the meeting:

- President—Geo. H. Pond, Ann Arbor.
- 1st vice president—A. N. Patriarche, Saginaw.
- 2d vice president—Fred W. Blake, Ann Arbor.
- 3d vice president—C. P. Hazleton, Ann Arbor.
- Secretary—D. P. Sullivan, Ypsilanti.
- Ass't Sec'y—H. M. McPherson, Detroit.

Mr. Sidney T. Miller, of Detroit, read a letter, extending the hearty good will and God speed of New England Assembly of the Brotherhood, on that day in session at Portland, Maine, and Hon. Wm. C. Maybury, of Detroit, was appointed to send the greetings of the assembly to them in return.

A committee on nominations for the new council, to be chosen by the assembly, was appointed, consisting of Messrs. Wm. Alkman, Jr., and H. W. Ashlee, of Detroit; S. W. Beakes, of Ann Arbor; H. H. Snowdon, of Pontiac, and M. G. Smurthwaite, of Manistee.

The committee on resolutions, consisting of Messrs. H. J. Brown, of Ann Arbor, John Thompson, of Detroit, and A. G. Drake, of Detroit, reported a resolution recommending the Directors of each Chapter of the Brotherhood in the state to urge upon individual members the desirability of conscientiously keeping the week of self-denial; also that the item of cigars should be added to the denial list; and that the amounts turned in to the treasurer of each chapter be forwarded direct to the general treasurer, with a letter to the state assembly secretary notifying him of how much the chapter and forwarded.

This was adopted. On motion of Mr. Rogers, of Detroit, the treasurer of the state assembly was authorized to levy a tax of 25c per capita on each chapter, to meet the expenses of the state assembly meetings, etc.

The hour of 1 o'clock having arrived, the delegates adjourned to the parlors below and were served with an elegant lunch prepared by the ladies of the parish.

The afternoon was occupied mostly by conferences upon the work of the Brotherhood, after the opening address which was delivered by Rev. Wm. Prall, D. D., Ph. D., of St. John's church, Detroit.

The conference of "The Brotherhood, Its Fundamental Principles, and Basis of Work," was conducted by Wm. Alkman, Jr., of Detroit. "The Chapter and Its Methods of Work," by Sidney T. Miller, of Detroit. "Bible Classes" by President James S. Rogers, of Detroit. Various members of the assembly expressing their views upon the subjects in their different phases.

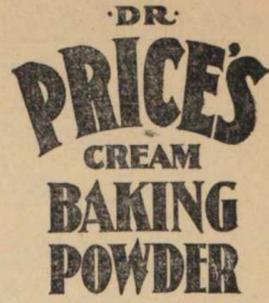

The committee to recommend names to compose the council for the coming year, reported the following names and they were chosen:

- Jas. S. Rogers, Detroit.
- W. M. Alkman, Detroit.
- H. M. McPherson, Detroit.
- John R. Brown, Port Huron.
- Prof. D. E. Smith, Ypsilanti.
- H. H. Snowdon, Pontiac.
- Milton G. Smurthwaite, Manistee.
- H. J. Brown, Ann Arbor.
- Geo. H. Pond, Ann Arbor.

The council met and elected the following officers for the year:

- President—Jas. S. Rogers, Detroit.
- Vice president—Geo. H. Pond, Ann Arbor.
- Sec'y—H. M. McPherson, Detroit.
- Treas.—Prof. D. E. Smith, Ypsilanti.

In the evening the assembly met at St. Andrew's church and listened to an able address by Rev. Thos. W. McLean, of Bay City, upon "The Mission of the Brotherhood to the Clergy," followed by one of the most eloquent and stirring addresses of the entire meeting by Mr. H. S. Parmlee, of Springfield, Ill., upon "The Mission of the Brotherhood to all men." Mr. Parmlee gave many incidents of his life, and told how he was treated by the churches when he first went to New York City, a young, green boy from off the Vermont farm. He was listened to with intense interest, and should he ever return to Ann Arbor, it would need a good sized hall to hold his audience.

The five boys arrested gave bail, and were released, to appear for examination Monday morning, at which time Justice Bennett heard their cases, and they were each fined $5 and costs. Bert Hall, colored, was fined $10 and $5.40 costs, and Leo Kopp, who stood trial was fined $2 and $8.40 costs.

These winter days, as you sit down around the family hearth to while away the evening with pop corn and apples—and if you are extremely well to do, drinking some sweet cider—you will find that the mind needs feeding as well as the body.

If you desire to secure the very best possible food in that respect take the Ann Arbor Courier for home news, and the New York Tribune for general news. Both together will only cost you $1.25!

Prof. T. C. Trueblood, with Prof. R. I. Fulton, has published a text book on the "Practical Elements of Elocution," designed for teachers and students of expression. Its aim is to harmonize and to take the best from the various systems of elocution from Dr. Rush's philosophy to the theory of Delsarte. The work is comprehensive of the subject, illustrated by examples quoted, and thorough in treatment, for private study, high school or college. Although the work was issued in August of this year, the first edition has been exhausted, showing the popularity so soon attained. This work will confirm and greatly increase Prof. Trueblood's growing reputation as a leader as well as authority in his favorite study.

A List of the Those Who Pay Over $80 Taxes Into the Treasury.

Next Friday will be tax time again. The year has rolled around rapidly, more rapidly than most people have desired, but here it is and taxes must be paid. There's no getting out of that fact.

Below will be found a list of taxpayers who are called upon to contribute over $80 each to the support of the city, county, state and public schools. The amount given includes the city tax, consequently those who paid that will be so much ahead.

The city tax amounted to $7.05 on $1,000 assessment. The state, county and school tax amounts to $9.80 on the $1,000. That is, if you paid $7.05 taxes last July you will have $9.80 more to pay now. If you did not pay it then you will have $16.85 to pay now. Almost everyone finds it easier to pay their taxes as divided than to pay the entire amount at one time.

This list was necessarily prepared hastily, so is not absolutely correct, in every instance, but in the main be found to be right:

Table listing names and tax amounts, starting with A. A. Agl. Co. 172 01, A. A. Milling Co. 305 06, A. A. Brewing Co. 210 73, etc.

Table listing names and tax amounts, starting with J. D. Lawrence. 282 61, Lodholz Brothers, et al. 96 38, Luick Brothers 336 12, etc.

CROOKED JOE.

President I. M. Weston, of the Michigan World's Fair commission, has been doing a little figuring on the amount of tribute which this state paid to the Columbian show city during the past summer. The count of the registers in the Michigan building is not yet completed, but it shows that during the first three months of the Fair's continuance the registration was as follows: May 8,290, June 23,584, and July 21,534—a total of 53,408. The books for the last three months have not yet been counted, but are estimated to contain 156,000 names, making a total for the six months of 209,408. Mr. Weston declares that not to exceed one-fourth of the Michigan visitors to the Fair registered their names at state headquarters, so that the total attendance from the state was certainly not less than 800,000. They averaged at least two and one-half days' attendance each, which would make an average daily attendance for the 184 days of 10,870 persons, who spent an average of $5 per day each, or $10,000,000 contributed to Chicago by Michigan visitors during the six months. This state furnished more visitors than any other state, taking the city of Chicago from Illinois, or about 10 per cent of the whole number who visited Jackson Park.

One very interesting and important feature among the various Michigan exhibits at the Fair was the historical exhibit collected and arranged by President Weston. In the wealth of interesting things at the park, this very likely escaped the attention of many visitors, but it represents a work whose value will not cease to be appreciated with the close of the Fair, but will continue to grow in estimation with the progress of years. In this exhibit there was shown the most complete collection of portraits of state officials ever shown by any state in the Union. On searching the records, it was found that there were 225 different persons who had within the past 100 years or so held public positions of sufficient importance in this state to entitle them to a place in a historical picture gallery. Some of those men lived before photographic art had been perfected, and many were of a roving disposition who died far beyond the limits of the state, leaving few relatives. The difficulties in the way of collecting the portraits were very great. Months often elapsed before the descendants of some long-deceased Michigan statesman could be located, and then it was only to learn in some cases that they could afford little clue to the whereabouts of a picture. One letter sent by Mr. Weston in the prosecution of his search followed a family of tourists almost around the world.

The work was, however, prosecuted with such diligence and success that of the 225 officials and ex-officials, all but nine were finally represented in the collection. The reproductions of the portraits were all in fine half-tone engravings. The first frame contained all United States cabinet ministers ever appointed from Michigan. Next were all the territorial and state governors, from Gen. Arthur St. Clair, 1787, to Gov. Rich, excepting Geo. B. Porter, appointed territorial governor in 1831. All United States senators excepting John Norvell, elected in 1835, are shown. Of the 102 men elected to congress from Michigan between 1819 and 1893, all excepting John S. Chipman, elected from St. Joseph county in 1845, are given. The collection of territorial judges is short A. B. Woodward 1805, Frederick Bates, 1805, John Griffin, 1806, and John Hunt 1824. The Michigan World's Fair officials for 1876 and 1893 are also given.

The manner in which John S. Chipman disappeared from Michigan history, after a term in congress, during which he acquired considerable celebrity, is somewhat mysterious. It is known that he and his family started for California in 1849, but since then no trace can be learned of them. The historical collection is to be deposited in the capitol at Lansing, and any person who can communicate information which will assist in supplying the nine missing portraits, are directed to address Mr. Weston. The pictures of Fletcher, Norvell and Woodward are especially desired.

"The Michigan building," said Mr. Weston, who is now at the Russell House, "was open more hours, entertained more guests and had fewer rules than any other state headquarters at the Fair, although some state buildings devoted almost entirely to exhibits probably had more callers. There were checked in this building every day from 500 to 2,500 persons. In September and October the average was over 2,000 daily. Yet only one lunch and one grip were lost during the whole season. The post-office required the constant work of two clerks, one at the general delivery and one to furnish stamps and stationery.

"The front doors of the building were not locked to Nov. 1. From 11 at night until 7 a. m., they were closed, but a watchman stood there all night to admit anyone who had unwelcome visitor—sat curled in a corner of Mr. Crump's office, waiting for his mother to finish her work. He was laboriously spelling out, by the fading light, the words upon a page of an illustrated newspaper, quite oblivious of the ticking, like that of a very jerky and rheumatic clock, which sounded in the room.

Mr. Crump, too had a paper before him, but his ears were alive. Suddenly he sprung to his feet, repeating loud the message which that moment flashed across the wire.

"Engine No. 110 running wild. Clear track."

He rushed to the door shouting the news.

"Not a second to spare! She'll be down in seven minutes!"

The words passed like lightning. In a moment the yard was in a wild commotion. Men flew hither and thither, yard engines steamed wildly away, the switches closing behind them.

The main track was barely clear when 110 came in sight, swaying from side to side, her wheels threatening to leave the track at each revolution. She passed the depot like a meteor, her bell clanging with every leap of her piston, the steam escaping from her whistle with the continuous shriek of a demon, and the occupants of the cab wrapped from view in a cloud of smoke.

Some hundred rods beyond the depot the track took a sharp upward grade, from which it descended again to strike the bridge across a narrow but deep and rocky gorge.

Men looked after the flying locomotive and then at each other with blanched faces.

"They're gone! A miracle can't save 'em," said one, voting the wordless terror of the rest. "If they don't fly the track on the up-grade they'll go down as soon as they strike the trestle."

The crowd began to run along the track, some with a vain instinct of helplessness, some moved by morbid curiosity which seeks to be "in at the death."

But look! Midway the long rise the speed of the runaway engine suddenly slackens.

"What does it mean? She never could 'a' died out in that time!" shouted an old yard man.

Excitement winged their feet. When the foremost runners reached the place, the smoking engine stood still on her track, quivering in every steel-clad nerve, her great wheels still whirling round and round amid a flight of red sparks from beneath.

"What did it? Who stopped her?"

The engineer, staggering from the cab with the pallid face of the fireman behind him, pointed, without speaking, to where a little, pale-faced, crooked-backed boy, had sunk down, panting with exertion, beside the track.

At his feet a huge oil can lay overturned and empty.

The crowd stared, at one another, crooked-backed boy, had sunk down, ed upon them.

"He oiled the track!"

"Bully for Crooked Joe!"

They caught the exhausted child, flinging him from shoulder to shoulder, striving with each other for the honor of bearing him, and so, in irregular, tumultuous, triumphant procession they brought him back to the depot and set him down among them.

"Pass the hat, pard!" cried one. It had been pay day and the saved engineer and fireman dropped in each their month's wages. Not a hand in all the throng that did not dive into a pocket. There was the crisp rustle of bills, the clink of gold and silver coin.

"Out with your handkerchief, Joe! Your hands won't hold it all! Why, young one, what's the matter?"

"For the boy, with scarlet cheeks and burning eyes, had clinched both small hands behind his back—the poor, twisted back laden with its burden of deformity and pain.

"No, no," he cried in a shrill, high voice. "Don't pay me! Can't you see what it's worth to me—just once in my life—to be a little use like—other folks."

The superintendent had come from his office. He laid his hand on the boy's head.

"Joe," he said, "we couldn't pay you if we wished. Money doesn't pay for lives! But you have saved us a great many dollars besides. Won't you let us do something for you?"

"You can't! You can't! Nobody can." The child's voice was almost a shriek. It seemed to read the air with the pent up agony of years.

"There's only one thing in the world I want, and nobody can give me that. Nobody can make me any—"

The superintendent lifted him and held him against his own breast.

"My boy," he said, in his firm yet gentle tones, "you are right. None of us can do that for you. But you can do it yourself. Listen to me! Where is the quick brain God gave you and the brave heart? Not in that bent back of yours—that has nothing to do with them! Let us help you to a chance—only a chance to work and to learn—and it will rest with you, yourself, to say whether in 20 years from now, if you are alive, if you are Crooked Joe or Mr. Joseph Bryan!"

Visiting in C— not long ago, a friend said to me:

The court room was already crowded at our entrance with an unexpected audience. When the brilliant young attorney rose to make his plea, I noticed with a shock of surprise, that this noble head surmounted an undersized and misshapen body. He had spoken but five minutes, however, when I had utterly forgotten the physical defect; in ten minutes, however, when I was eagerly interested, and thereafter, during the two hours' speech, held spell-bound by the marvelous eloquence which is fast raising him to the leadership of his profession in his native city.

"A wonderful man!" said my friend as we walked slowly homeward. Then he told me the story of Crooked Joe.—St. Louis Republic.

Never Heard of the Installment Plan.

"Darling, I lay my heart and life at your feet."

"Oh, George!"

"I love you sincerely, devoutly, ardently, passionately—I love you more than I can tell. Be mine."

"George, I will."

"And will you engage yourself to me?"

"I will."

"Bless you my darling. I am the happiest man in America to-night."

There was a long, delicious pause while the compact was being sealed.

Then the maiden whispered:

"Am I to have an engagement ring, dearest?"

George's face grew pale, his lip quivered as he replied:

"By and by, darling. I cannot give you one for awhile."

"You cannot? Why?"

The paleness of his face was succeeded by a deep flush, his face grew dark and his bosom heaved as he hoarsely answered:

"I'm just from the Fair, and I'm dead broke."—New York Press.

The Track of Progress.

In all the scientific advancement which has been made, there is nothing which has attracted more attention and certainly nothing which is of more vital consequence to all than that which has been made in the treatment of disease. There are thousands of sick persons and invalids all over the country who have until recently been unable to avail themselves of the most scientific medical aid.

Through the thoughtfulness and kindness of that great benefactor of mankind, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th st., New York, all those who are suffering from any form of disease may avail themselves of his great system of treating and curing disease all over the land through letter correspondence. People can consult him by letter absolutely free of charge. Dr. Greene is the most successful specialist in curing all nervous and chronic diseases; he is the discoverer of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. He gives most careful and explicit attention to all letters received by him and writes the patients a full description of the case. The Doctor uses nothing but harmless vegetable remedies and has had wonderful success in curing disease through letter correspondence. Send for one of his symptom blanks and he will write you a full description of your disease and give you advice in regard to its cure, free of charge.

Where Are Our Rich Men?

While we read of bequests of thousands of dollars to Harvard, Yale and other colleges, we do not remember ever reading of a single instance where our great state University, at Ann Arbor, was remembered in the will of any departed citizen of this state. What is the matter, do the rich never die in Michigan, or do they take their treasures with them? Let some of our millionaires lay up some of their treasures in the University. We will guarantee that moth and rust will not corrupt, neither will thieves break through and steal, but they will act as good seed sown in fruitful soil and benefit not only the donors but thousands of others.—Quincy Herald.

YOUR FUTURE

IS IN YOUR OWN HAND.

Palmer's assumes to tell what the lines in your hand indicate. It will amuse you, if nothing more. The above diagram almost explains itself. The length of the LINE OF LIFE indicates probable age to which you will live. Each BRACELET gives you thirty years. Well-marked LINE OF HEAD denotes brain power; clear LINE OF FORTUNE, fame or riches. Both combined mean success in life; but you must keep up with modern ideas to win it. You will find plenty of these in Demorest's Family Magazine, so actively presented that every member of the family is entertained. It is a dozen magazines in one. A CLEAR LINE OF HEART bespeaks tenderness; a slight LINE OF FATE, peaceful life; the reverse if crooked. A well-defined LINE OF HEALTH spurs you to do your best; a large QUADRANGLE, denotes a large TRIANGLE, generosity; long FIRST DIVISION OF THUMB, strong will; LONG SECOND DIVISION, reasonable faculty. THE MOUNT OF JUPITER denotes ambition; that of SATURN, prudence; the SUN, love of splendor; MARS, courage; MOON, imagination; VENUS, love of pleasure; and MERCURY, intelligence. Take our advice as above and you will be sure to possess the last and most valuable quality.

SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE.

Hutzel's Water Back!

A very important invention which will be hailed with delight by every body using a stove or range for hot water circulation.

After years of experience we have succeeded in producing a simple and perfect WATER BACK.

It overcomes all the present troubles of extracting lime and other sediments which accumulate in water backs, often making them useless and in great many instances becoming dangerous.

The outlay of dollars is reduced to dimes. No household using a range can afford to be without it.

No more trouble by using city water for hot water circulation.

Can be used in any stove. Ask your stove dealer for Hutzel's Water Back.

Mason & Davis Co.'s ranges for sale at C. Eberbach are provided with our improvement.

Stores will be closed at Ypsilanti to-morrow.

It takes 10,000 lbs. of milk per week now to run the Milan creamery.

The Dundee Ledger has moved into new quarters over the postoffice.

The Plymouth people are tickled over getting water into their houses.

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Clark, of Clinton, have gone to California for the winter.

A fine programme has been prepared by the Saline high school for Thanksgiving Day.

Milan had a mad dog scare a few days since. Got mad at the weather, probably.

The Presbyterians, of Saline, gave Rev. Mr. Bullock, their pastor a $75 donation last week.

On Saturday, Dec. 9th, the Webster Farmer's Club will meet at the residence of Geo. W. Merrill.

The Plymouth Mail proposes going back to using axle grease for butter. Anyway to grease the cakes.

The pride of Novi's heart is centered in her beautiful cemetery.—Adrian Press. That's a grave assertion.

Mrs. Wm. Barton, aged 78 years, died Nov. 19, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jos. Beach, Chelsea.

The Enterprise reads an important lesson to its fire department, and one that they should pay close attention to.

The people of St. Joseph's parish, Dexter, have a fine programme ready for to-morrow evening, at the opera house, there.

Nov. 22, Rev. L. P. Jocelyn performed the ceremony that united in marriage S. O. Davis and Miss Kate Krause, both of Dexter.

Hog cholera prevails about Dundee and it is hoped will carry off some who continually squeal against public improvement.—Adrian Press.

Perry Watling, the treasurer of Ypsilanti town, will be at the store of A. A. Graves in Ypsilanti City, each Friday and Saturday to receive taxes.

The flock of wild geese that roost and feed near this place, are bothered much by hunters, but so far we have not heard of one being shot.—Pinckney Dispatch.

Reading citizens are excited because a ghost walks the streets at night. We had supposed the local option law prohibited spirits in Hillsdale county.—Hudson Gazette.

Pinckney has elected a good lot of officers for its lecture course and proposes to have a good one, enough tickets having been already pledged to insure its success.

The Lenawee county agricultural society this year paid the usual seven per cent. to its stockholders and also paid $650 on the society's indebtedness, which now amounts to $4,350.

The burning of Dan Holcomb's barn cost the Jackson county Farmer's Mutual Ins. Co. $8,000 in cold cash! Whew! But wouldn't that cause an earthquake in the Washtenaw Mutual?

St. Mary's library, Chelsea, has now 500 volumes, and has been made free to all. A new parish library has been started in St. Mary's church, Pinckney, and has at present 200 volumes.—Chelsea Herald.

Dr. J. E. Childs, of Chicago, and Dr. Josephine Fleming, of Dexter, were married on the 21st, at the home of the bride's parents. The happy couple can exchange titles without the least jealousy.

The Milan agent for the Pacific and American express companies, is Jessie Graham. She is "strictly business" and when a young man expresses admiration for her, he has to do so at regular rates.—Adrian Press.

Two Stockbridge farmers sold $900 worth of apples this fall for first class prices, and say it is all due to the fact that they used a spray upon the trees to kill worms at the proper time.—Ex. Let's spray that more will do the same.

A bold bad man from Milan stepped into Milo Gage's billiard hall the other evening and spurred on by a wild desire for blood attacked one of our citizens. There was enough of the bad man left to make it worth while to carry him home, yet his friends would hardly have recognized him.—Ypsilanti. There seems to be some difficulty in knocking out the average Ypsilanti according to that.

The editor of the Dexter Leader has advertised without response for potatoes on subscription, and it begins to look as though he would have to boil snow balls.—Adrian Press. No, when Chelsea chestnuts are so plenty.

The Saline geology class is studying the cause and effect of earthquakes. In arriving at the philosophy of the subject, the class would be greatly assisted by the late election returns.—Adrian Press. You heard it, then, did you?

It is rumored that suit will be begun against the T. & A. R'y in connection with the Pettysville disaster. The total amount of damage sued for is $60,000.—Pinckney Dispatch. It is sometimes easier to get a judgment than it is to collect it.

Some of our citizens complain at the deluge of cats of all known sizes, shapes and colors with which they claim their rural friends have supplied the town and threaten a return of the compliment before cold weather sets in—Chelsea Standard. Sad catastrophe, surely.

There are thirty-six foreign pupils attending the Chelsea schools this year. County Commissioner Cavanaugh visited this school a short time ago, and now speaks in words of highest praise of the manner in which it is being conducted.—Chelsea Standard.

The Washtenaw County Horticultural Society will hold its annual meeting, at the court house, next Saturday, Dec. 2d. A full attendance is desirable. Officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Mr. A. A. Crozier will review the recent papers on horticultural subjects.

An item in the Saline Observer is as follows: "All Christians, Catholics, Lutherans, Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodists and everybody else, in and around Saline, are invited to the Methodist church Sunday evening Dec. 3rd. To consider the question "What shall we do with our saloons?"

A party of young ladies on the East Side were overheard discussing young men in general. "Is not Mr. — a little too familiar?" was asked of a demure Miss whom the one referred to had escorted home. "Oh, no," was the reply. "He held me at arm's length; waist measure."—Hudson Post.

Warren Babcock Jr. and wife, of Agricultural College, arrived in town last Friday for a short visit with their parents and many friends. They will reside in Ann Arbor during the winter where Mr. (or Prof.) Babcock will brush up in mathematics at the U. of M. Mr. Babcock is an assisting professor of mathematics at Agricultural College.—Milan Leader.

Bro. Thompson, of the Dexter Leader, doesn't propose to be imposed upon any longer. Hear him: "Big fish stories are again on the wing but we herewith make public our final decree. For the past two years, boys, out of the largeness of our heart, we have cheerfully impelled our immortal soul to make your record public and keep you even with the deal. Hereafter we shall expect to see the fish."

Primary teachers should send to Miss Fox, the manager of our primary department, the little plans, devices and methods used successfully by them in their schools. This interchange would serve the purpose of visits to other schools, and costs much less. Don't think your plan or device too simple; send it in. The successful plans fresh from the workshops are far better than imaginary and theoretical ones.—The Moderator.

A deputy game warden from Jackson pounced down upon a party of fishermen from Tecumseh and Franklin, at Wampler's lake, Wednesday night, and seized their spears and jacks, but made no arrests. Under the softening influence of a drink of whisky, however, the officer was prevailed upon to return the jacks.—Adrian Times. That's pretty thin. If we know the aforesaid warden, he is pretty apt to have a bottle of the stuff in his pocket when out on such "official" business.—Manchester Enterprise.

WORLD'S FAIR WIND UP.

Michigan People Spend Over $10,000,000 at Chicago.

A great railroad depot may not be the best school for a boy, yet poor little Joe Bryan has scarcely known any other. He could not remember when the long waiting room, with its tiled floors and dreary rows of stationary settees, the crowds of hurrying people, were not quite as familiar to him and more homelike than his mother's small, bare house, which he knew as little more than a place for eating and sleeping.

At an age when an ordinary baby might have been frightened into convulsions by the shriek of a locomotive, Joe, securely fastened in his cab, would stare for hours through the great window, undisturbed by the incessant rush and roar of arriving and departing trains.

He had been only six months old when the dreadful accident happened which, at one fell stroke, made him fatherless and transformed him from a strong, well-developed infant to a pitiful creature, which even death refused to take.

The old yardmen tell the story even yet—how young Michael Bryan, as straight and manly a fellow as ever left his green, old, native island for the better chances of the new world this side of the sea, came whistling out of the roundhouse that morning and stepped hastily from before an incoming locomotive, neither seeing or hearing another rushing up the parallel track. His mates cried out to him—too late! Nobody who saw it would ever forget the look of agony which distorted his handsome face in that one horrible instant when he recognized his doom, or the perpendicular leap into the air, from which he fell back beneath the crunching wheels.

In the excitement and consternation of the time no messenger had been sent in advance to prepare the poor young wife for her trouble, and she stood in the doorway with her baby crowing in her arms, when the stout bearers paused at her gate with their mangled burden. She uttered a terrible cry and fell fainting—the child's tender back striking the sharp edge of the door step.

"What a pity that it was not killed outright!" said everybody but his mother. She herself always insisted that only her constant watching over the little, flickering life kept her from going mad in the first dreary months of her bereavement.

The officers of the railway company were kind to poor Mary Bryan. They paid the expenses of the burial, and after little Joe had slowly mended, employed her about the depot to scrub the floors and keep the glass and woodwork bright and neat.

When Joe was 7 years old his mother sent him to school. He went patiently, day after day, making no complaint, but she awoke suddenly one night to find him sobbing on the pillow beside her. Only by dint of long coaxing was she able to find out the cause of his grief. Some of the rougher boys—more thoughtful than cruel, let us hope—had called him Humpy, and asked if he carried a bag of meal on his back.

Mary flamed with fierce anger of motherhood. "You shan't go another day," she declared. "The ruffians! I won't have my darlin' put upon by the likes of them!"

So Joe's schooling had come to an untimely end. Yet, meager as was his stock of book learning, the development of his mind far outstripped the growth of his stunted and deformed body. Everybody liked the patient little fellow, tugging manfully at his mother's heavy water buckets and running willingly to every call of the station men. At 12 years old he had picked up no small amount of information, especially on railroad topics. He knew every locomotive on the road, understood the intricacies of sidetracks and switches, and could tell the precise moment when any particular train might be expected with the accuracy of a time table.

Yet the very quickness and ardor of his nature deepened his sense of his infirmity. The glances cast upon him by stranger eyes, some pitiful, some curious, others, alas! expressive only of annoyance or disgust, rankled like so many arrows in his heart; not one missed its mark. How wistfully his eyes followed boys of his own age—straight, handsome, happy—who sprang lightly up and down the steps of the coaches, or threaded their way along the crowded platforms. For one day of such perfect, untrammelled life he would have bartered all the possible years before him. Yet he never put his yearnings into words, even to his mother.

"Crooked Joe's a rum 'un," said one of his rough acquaintances. "He senses his trouble well enough, but he don't let on to nobody."

Mr. Crump, the telegraph operator, was Joe's constant friend. It was he who, at odd moments, had taught the boy to read; and had initiated him into some of the mysteries of the clicking instrument, which to Joe's imaginative mind seemed some strange creature with a hidden life of its own.

It was growing toward dark one November afternoon. Joe—never an business in the building. Articles could be put in the check rooms or taken out at any hour."

Mr. Weston was asked about the disposition of state property remaining at the park at the close of the Fair.

"This state building," he said, "has not yet been sold. At the last meeting of the board, a committee consisting of Gov. Rich, Vice President Beiden, Treasurer Flynn and myself, were authorized to dispose of it. The committee is now receiving bids. The furniture and fixtures in the building are nearly all disposed of. The State Soldiers' Home, state board of auditors, and the Battle Creek Sanitarium were the principal purchasers. About half of the original cost was realized. The fixtures of the honey exhibit go to the State Agricultural society, at Lansing, while the West Michigan society gets the wool exhibit cases. The dairy exhibit fixtures are to be divided between the two societies. The 600 fine glass jars in the horticultural exhibit, go to the Agricultural college and the different horticultural organizations in the state.

"The forestry and agricultural exhibits and fixtures were given to the Agricultural college. The public school exhibit goes to the state library at Lansing. The specimens in the mineral exhibit belonging to the state are being divided among the Mining school, State University, Chicago Columbian Museum, and other institutions. The stone entrance and walls go to the Grand Rapids park board. The Grand Rapids Press club gets the press exhibit and the Y. M. C. A. of the same city the religious and church exhibit.

The board still had $4,000 in the state treasurer's hands and $1,000 with Treasurer Flynn. It is expected that the salvage receipts will pay all outstanding bills and future expenses, except printing the official report without using any of that balance. At the last meeting of the board President Weston was instructed to prepare the board's official report of the state and the president, the governor and Commissioner White were appointed a committee to provide for printing the same. It is hoped to have it ready for publication about Jan. 1, 1894.

"Among the state exhibits Michigan was head and shoulders above any other state in the forestry department. Her splendid collection secured 24 medals, or more than double the number awarded any other state.

"In the agricultural department she made the finest display of wheat, oats and grasses of any state. She beat all others in the variety, extent and quality of grains and grasses. Our mineral exhibit was the finest display of copper and iron ore and products made in Jackson park. We also led in illustrating mining methods. Our display of wool, honey and dairy products were excellent.

"In the way of live stock Michigan beat Vermont and all the other states in fine-wool merino sheep, getting more prizes than any other state, with only two-thirds as many sheep entered as Vermont had. We also led in the Hampshire sheep class. We led the procession on Cleveland Bay coach horses, and came out well on cattle and swine."

Estate of Lucy W. S. Morgan.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Washtenaw, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, the 22d day of November in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Lucy W. S. Morgan, deceased.

Edward D. Kinne, Franklin L. Parker, and Otis C. Johnson executors of the last will and testament of said deceased, come into court and represent that they are now prepared to render their final account as such executors.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Friday, the 22nd day of December next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the examining and allowing such account, and that the devisees, legatees and heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate Office, in the City of Ann Arbor, in said County, on the 22d day of December next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to be held at the examining and allowing such account, and that it is further ordered, that said executors give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said account, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor Courier, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.
