THAT BIG ORGAN.

The Possibility of its Coming Our Way.

The prospect for securing the big $25,000 World's Fair organ for University Hall is excellent.

The makers, Farrand &amp; Votey, make the proposition that the University Musical Society take the instrument and pay $5,000 a year for three years for it. It is a most liberal offer. A better one than will probably ever be made again, for organs of this class and value are not constructed very often.

It cost the makers over $20,000, and is perfect in every particular, and not exceeded in excellence by any instrument in this country, or the world, even.

We understand that the regents have signified their willingness to prepare the ante rooms in the rear of the stage in University Hall for the reception of the great organ, and make any changes or alterations that may be necessary.

Prof. Stanley tells us that there is $3,500 already in sight, and that the feeling is enthusiastic with everyone.

Several Ann Arbor citizens have voluntarily offered to subscribe $100 and some $200 each toward the fund.

It is thought that the Student's Lecture Association will be able to give at least $500 a year for three years, especially if the regents finish the gymnasium so that the athletic association will not need its income.

Then $1,500 at least could be realized from an opening night, for there is hardly a person in Ann Arbor but would be glad to give one dollar in that way to help along the cause.

In order to get any benefit from the sewers this year work should be commenced at once upon the laterals.

One should be constructed on Washington st., one on Huron st., another on Ann st., another on William st., and one on State st., at once, thus giving relief to the most thickly settled portions of the city.

There are many men out of employment needing the work now and it will cost the people no more to build them now than at any other time, nor perhaps as much, while the fact is one beyond dispute that the heart of the city needs the relief these sewers would bring, both for comfort and health. There ought not to be any delay, but the work should be commenced and pushed at once.

One enthusiastic gentleman remarked that the completion of the gymnasium and the purchase of this organ for University Hall would easily bring 100 additional students here next year. That would be worth from $30,000 to $50,000 a year alone. Can Ann Arbor afford to let this opportunity pass?

To be sure the people here have given liberally for these purposes but when we see the colleges all around the country securing everything possible to attract students to their doors and away from the U. of M., then does the fact dawn upon our minds that unless we too, are up and doing, this university will fall behind in the race, for it can not long exist upon its great name alone. Students demand all these advantages now, and they will go where they are to be found.

A picture of the big organ can be seen at Prof. Stanley's rooms in the School of Music Hall, and we have a wood cut picture and description of it at this office that gives some idea of its magnitude and excellence.

	Stops	Pipes
Great organ	15	1189
Swell organ	18	1209
Choir organ (carrillons)	10	593
Solo organ	6	366
Echo organ	4	244
Pedal organ	10	200
Total speaking stops	63
Couplers	13
Mechanical accessories	8
Combination pistons	14
Combination pedals	8
Pedal movements	10
Total	116
Total pipes	3901

Prof. Geo. D. Herron of Iowa College, at Grinnell, who is lecturing in Newberry Hall this week, will lecture on the subject of Sociology to a union meeting in University Hall, next Sunday evening.

NOW FOR LATERALS.

The Main Sewer Should not Remain Idle, but be Utilized at Once.

Now that the two sections of the main sewer are being welded together, so that it will soon be ready for use from Washington st. to its mouth, it seems that the time has arrived for commencing the construction of lateral sewers.

The main sewer is of no good alone by itself. What the people want is the laterals passing their houses so that connection may be made and the outer door closets and cesspools wiped out of existence.

As the Courier understands the law, the council has the power to order a lateral sewer constructed upon any street on which the Board of Public Works deem it necessary.

The cost of the laterals is to be assessed against the property owners at so much per foot frontage. The owner being allowed to pay all the cost at one time if he desires to, but if not, he is allowed to pay it in five equal installments. The city can issue bonds for the construction of these sewers to cover the period, one fifth being retired each year, and the property owner to pay such rate of interest as the city is obliged to pay upon the bonds, which in all probability will not exceed 5 per cent.

By this excellent plan the city does not really encumber itself with a debt but simply loans its credit to its citizens, who will be thus enabled to pay for this necessary improvement in small installments that will not be burdensome to them.

In order to get any benefit from the sewers this year work should be commenced at once upon the laterals.

One should be constructed on Washington st., one on Huron st., another on Ann st., another on William st., and one on State st., at once, thus giving relief to the most thickly settled portions of the city.

There are many men out of employment needing the work now and it will cost the people no more to build them now than at any other time, nor perhaps as much, while the fact is one beyond dispute that the heart of the city needs the relief these sewers would bring, both for comfort and health. There ought not to be any delay, but the work should be commenced and pushed at once.

The building of these sewers in the manner specified would not be a burden upon any one, but would make it possible for all to do their part promptly.

When a sewer is constructed upon any street every person living upon that street must be compelled to make connection with it, else the sewer is of no benefit. There is nothing gained by one house owner connecting his premises, while his neighbors leave their outer door closets and cesspools to pollute the soil and poison the air with unpleasant and dangerous odors.

The ordinance empowering the residents of a street to secure a lateral sewer has not yet been drafted, but will probably be considered to-night, at the meeting of the Board of Public Works. No doubt it will be done by petition, that is that the residents along a street desiring a lateral will have to get up a petition signed by property owners, and this will have to be acted upon by the Board of Public Works and ordered by the Council, if deemed necessary.

What say the people? Is it not time to commence NOW?

If the city's hands are so full with the main sewer that the proper officials can not spare the time to superintend or oversee the construction of these sewers, let them out by contract.

Give the contract of one street to one man or firm, and another to another, and so on, but for the good health of our city, to say nothing of the economy of the thing, let us have our lateral sewers built now.

Secretary Mills is authority for the statement that the Washtenaw County Fair Association pays the highest premiums of any similar society in Michigan.

A RICH FIND.

Gov. Rich Discovers a Costly Error for a Few High Officials.

Some very queer transactions have been unearthed at Lansing by Gov. Rich. An incident caused him to look up the vote of one or two counties upon the constitutional amendment voted upon last spring increasing the salaries of the Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and one or other state officers.

In doing that he discovered something that looked to be crooked. So he kept on investigating, and found that instead of being carried by a majority the amendment was really defeated by about 11,000 majority. The State Board of Canvassers were convened and asked to explain. This they did by the statement that the returns were compiled by two clerks, one a republican, the other a democrat, and the result as found by them was certified to without verifying. Which was no doubt true.

The two clerks were then immediately discharged and the officers returned to the state treasury all the extra salary drawn by them under the new law. But investigation did not stop there. In 1891 the people voted upon a proposition to raise the salary of the Attorney General from $800 to $2,500 per year, and this same democratic clerk was serving in the same position.

Investigation soon proved that Gratiot county, which gave a majority of 690 against the raise, was thrown out entirely, and Gogebic county was made to give a majority for it of 1,281 instead of 281 as cast.

This excellent plan the city does not really encumber itself with a debt but simply loans its credit to its citizens, who will be thus enabled to pay for this necessary improvement in small installments that will not be burdensome to them.

By this excellent plan the city does not really encumber itself with a debt but simply loans its credit to its citizens, who will be thus enabled to pay for this necessary improvement in small installments that will not be burdensome to them.

Gov. Rich's sturdy honesty alone unearthed these rascallities, which appear to be due entirely to the dishonesty of this one clerk Porter. He hoped to win by it, but he lost, and has brought shame and disgrace upon those he attempted to benefit.

We believe that the good name of Michigan is smirched by continuing such penurious salaries, and that the change should have been made, but this tampering with returns is something deserving of severe punishment, and everyone, high or low, connected with it should suffer the penalty of their dishonesty.

When it is impossible to have the votes of the people correctly returned and tabulated then a republican form of government might as well be dispensed with.

The Argus, which seeks to make political capital out of this affair, is very careful not to refer to the democracy of Mr. Potter, the clerk, or to say anything about the false returns of 1891, by which its big mogul, Attorney General Ellis, has been profiting for the past years, or to give Gov. Rich any credit for unearthing the dishonesty.

Music especially bound more tastefully than at any other bindery in Michigan.

The democrats who follow Mr. Cleveland in his wild course on the Hawaiian question certainly have to march to Doleful music.—Owosso Times.

Queen Lili was given her walking papers one year ago Wednesday, and has been walking ever since, although "her great and good friend" wanted her to get up and ride.—Three Rivers Tribune.

The Hawaiian tongue is exceedingly musical.—Ypsilanti Commercial. Mr. Cleveland, who at first listened to its silvery tones, has changed his mind. He doesn't even like to hear the musical words ill or iuh.

A German medical paper recommends peanuts as a valuable article of food, rich in albumen and oil, and advises their use roasted and made into soup or mush.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

The Fenton Independent very pertinently remarks: "Both conductor and engineer of the train which caused the frightful wreck and loss of life at Battle Creek last fall, have been discharged in the courts, and the blame is thereby not fixed where it belongs. When will these collisions cease if no example is made of persons whose carelessness causes them?"

As a result of the expiration of the Bell patent, telephones will be placed on the market for sale after January 30. Heretofore they could not be bought at any price, but were placed in offices or dwellings and exorbitant rents charged. It is now estimated that instruments can be purchased outright for much less than one year's rent.—Bellevue Gazette.

Marked in dead earnest by the Adrian Press: "The Ann Arbor Courier is now thirty-three years old and is not ashamed of its age. It had no reason to be, nor of its news columns, but it ought to be in state prison for life, for its murderous assaults on the democratic party." About which the Courier honestly believes the Press will, in the near future, change its mind.

One objectionable feature of the Wilson tariff bill is that it postpones indefinitely the admission of Canada into the Union. With this bill a law Canada can make her own terms with us and will have no inducement to enter the United States.—Dundee Ledger.

If this were the only objection to be urged against the Wilson bill, it might well become a law at once. Annexation of Canada is an ignis-fatuus that a good many Americans are pursuing with a faith and zeal that were not surpassed by Ponce de Leon and his followers in their search for the fountain of youth. Yet annexation is a thing that will not result from aggressive action on the part of either Canada or the United States. So long as Great Britain wishes to retain possession of the country north of us, or that country itself holds aloof, annexation is impossible. The conquest of Canada, if it be ever achieved, must be a peaceable one, resulting from the irresistible logic of events, worked out along commercial lines through scores, perhaps hundreds of years. Politicians who seek to make union an issue to-day are simply wasting their time.—Wyandotte Herald.

JUSTICE WHATEVER THE COLOR. NOW FOR LATERALS!

The republicans have only ridicule and abuse for "nigger" government in Hawaii, where the "niggers" outnumber the whites ten to one, but they are zealous (?) advocates of "nigger" government in the southern states where the whites out-number the blacks. The intelligent negroes of this country will not fail to make a note of the shameless inconsistency of the g. o. p. in abetting and applauding the ruthless overthrow of "nigger" rule in Hawaii.—Lansing Journal.

That is about as near right as could be expected from that source. There is this difference, however. In the United States the republican party ask for justice for the colored man, and that the white people of the south shall stop slandering and murdering them for the simple and only reason that they are colored, and because they have the power.

In Hawaii the republican party asks that the white people shall not be persecuted and robbed simply because they are white, and because the blacks have the power. If the editor of the Journal will read Queen Lili's reply to Minister Willis, wherein she very emphatically tells him that she will cut off the heads of all the whites who have opposed her and confiscate their property, he perhaps, may see, if he cannot appreciate, the force of the position of the republican party, both at home and abroad.

All that the republicans ask is justice, for both white and black, everywhere.

Isn't it a little singular that when such men as Blount, Willis, the editor of the Journal and other democrats are such "nigger haters" here at home, that they should be such "nigger worshippers" in Hawaii?

Does distance lend enchantment? Or are they under contract to dance whenever Grover pulls the string?

FARMERS SHOULD BE PROTECTIONISTS.

The first tariff law that was enacted in this country was for the protection of the manufacturing industries only, manufactures and infant industries only being spoken of as needing protection. But since the interests of agriculture have been considered, and that industry has enjoyed the blessing of protection as well.

This is well, since however great may be our manufacturing and commercial enterprises, agriculture is the cornerstone of a nation's prosperity. Protection means a system of diversified industry. This does not mean that bananas shall be cultivated on Pike's Peak, or that the products of the Arctic regions shall be produced in Florida; but it does mean that all the products suited to the soil and climate of the United States shall be produced here in the greatest variety and to the greatest possible extent.

It means also that all the enterprises suited to the skill and genius of the American people and adapted to the scope of our civilization shall be prosecuted with the utmost vigor. This means that a larger relative percentage of labor shall be withdrawn from agriculture. This means a smaller supply of farm products, and the political economist will tell us that this inevitably means higher prices.

Again, diversified industry means higher wages to the workingman. Better wages for labor mean more money to spend for the products of the farm, hence an increased demand for farm products will surely give better returns to the farmer.

Protection, resulting in a diversified system of industries, means an increased production of all manufactured articles and greater competition among producers in the different industrial fields. This means that manufactured goods must and will be sold at the lowest price consistent with a fair compensation for the labor and capital employed. This means that the farmer shall be able to purchase his supplies at a reasonable rate.

Protection guarantees this, and, by increasing competition, affords the best safeguard against "the oppressive monopolies" which are talked so much about.

John Haberton tells of a preacher who was visiting a sick man, whose house was filled with gasses from a neglected drain. The man spoke of his trust in Providence, when the preacher replied: "You don't need to use more faith but you do need to use some chloride of lime in that drain if you want to get well." Faith and works must not be separated. Watching and praying are coupled together in the word of God, as well as in the revelations of common sense.

If the earth were covered with flowers all the year round, the bees would get lazy.

The Century Co., 33 East 17th st., New York, have just issued "Pudd'nhead Wilson's Calendar for 1894," containing humorous extracts from Mark Twain's latest story, "Pudd'nhead Wilson," now appearing in The Century. They offer to send a copy of the calendar free to any one who will inclose them a stamp to pay postage.

A MAIDEN FAIR IS SHE.

Miss Michigan, the Wolverine young lady belonging to Uncle Sam's family of buxom girls, will celebrate her 57th birthday next Friday. She is not an old maid, either, but just in the prime of life, and one of the hand-somest and best behaved of the family. She is famous for her good health, her excellent education, her fine looks, her industry, her thrift, and her habit of always minding her own business, and allowing no one to impose upon her good nature. She is just now somewhat sad and melancholy over the outrageous conduct of a prominent old fossil suitor for her hand whom she had been coqueting with a little, Mr. Bourbon Democrat. He is attempting to ruin her fortune and thrift by his English methods and by favoring the little Canuck maid over the border, Miss Canada, but the entire family are so enraged over his contemptible acts, that he will probably be compelled to behave, and comport himself like a true American, however much it may be against his inclinations.

Wise Thoughts.

Only what we have wrought into our character can we take with us to the other world.—W. Humboldt.

The unwise complain that the good suffer. They are the only ones who can afford to suffer.—O. B. Frothingham.

The preachers should bring religion down from the clouds, where men don't live, to the earth, where they already entered upon.—Channing.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Home Missionary Society of the M. E. church will be held Friday p.m., at 3 o'clock with Mrs. P. L. Bodner, 91 S. Main st.

W. J. Booth, of this city, is to deliver a lecture before the Presbyterian society of Ypsilanti on what he saw in "Going up the Nile," on next Wednesday evening.

Next Sunday, at noon, at St. Andrew's church, Rev. Henry Tatlock is to commence the annual confirmation lectures, the same to be repeated Monday evenings, in the chapel.

The Washitaw county doctors held a convention last week; and while they talked of squills and anti-bilious pills, several patients, it is rumored, took advantage of their absence and got well.—Adrian Press.

The English language contains 250,000 words, and yet we have seen English speaking people who at times could not even then find a sufficient quantity of words to express their feelings.

Chief Sipley is lengthening out the hydrants that were made too low by building out lawn extensions in the various parts of the city. There are about twenty of them and two a day are being changed.

The pupil's recital of the School of Music last Saturday afternoon, both in instrumental and vocal rendering brought out a good sized audience who were highly pleased with the marked improvement of the pupils. Prof. Stanley is always in his happiest mood when he can present his friends with a good programme for their entertainment.

Next Sunday morning at St. Andrew's church Rev. Mr. Tatlock will have for his subject "Christianity in Business."

The Fenton Independent says: "The Ann Arbor Courier entered a new volume with the new year. The Courier possesses all the qualities that go to make up a model weekly, and no more valued paper comes to our exchange table."

The Knights Templar have invitations out for a reception and banquet next Monday night at the temple. The members of the Commandery give this reception to their friends, each member being entitled to two invitations to give out.

The Ann Arbor Sporting Club had a supper at Zuky Lake Saturday night at their club house, and the keeper of the cuisine took a couple of live oppossums with him to help along the menu. It is perhaps unnecessary to remark that the animals were killed before being cooked.

Teachers of the county will notice that the next examinations are to be held as follows: A special examination on the second Friday in March. The regular examination on the last Thursday and Friday in March, and another special on the last Friday in April. All in the court house at Ann Arbor.

Sunday morning at about 7 o'clock the house at No. 30 S. Division st., was found to be on fire, and the department's hasty response to the summons alone saved it. Ashes has been set out on the back stoop in a paper pall and had kindled the blaze during the night. Other careless people may have a like experience if they are not more cautious.

Wilbur F. Davidson, of Port Huron, the gentleman who put in the Thompson-Houston Electric system in Ann Arbor, has just been awarded $43,000 damages by the Illinois Central R. R., by a Chicago jury. He was seriously injured last February while taking a train in Chicago during his period when the tracks were being elevated, and sued for $100,000.

Thursday evening a lecture in the series explanatory of the leading musical instruments, will be given by Prof. Stanley in Frieze Memorial Hall. Prof. Hempel will lecture Saturday p.m., at 2:30 in the same hall, on "Elements of Phonetics," a very important subject for singers especially. These lectures are free. A large and enthusiastic audience listened to the beautiful recital given by pupils of the school, last Saturday p.m.

At the annual meeting of the Congregational church society held last Wednesday evening, an elegant supper was served by the Ladies' Aid Society, and before the guests arose from their places they pledged themselves to give $500 with which to pay up all indebtedness of the society. At this meeting Mr. William Biggs was chosen a trustee to take the place made vacant by the death of Amariah F. Hammond.

Miss Griggs Art Recital.

The Art Recital given by Miss Idah Anderson Griggs, under the direction of Prof. T. C. Trueblood, last Thursday evening, at Frieze Memorial Hall, was a most enjoyable occasion. Miss Griggs proved herself to be possessed of much of the true histrionic art, and succeeded admirably in the emotional parts of Camille. She did nicely as Mary, Queen of Scots, but was not as well adapted to that as to the more emotional Camille. Mr. Handy, who took the character of Armand, deserved much of the praise showered upon him, and Mr. Hall as Monsieur Duval had a good command of himself. These scenes from Camille presented an exceedingly clever bit of acting. Miss Maxon, who was upon the original programme, was called away by the illness of a relative, her place being taken by Miss Cady, of this city, and considering that she had only two days in which to prepare to assume the roles of Elizabeth, in the scene from Mary Stuart, and Nancie, in Camille, she is certainly entitled to considerable credit. But Miss Cady's forte is evidently in dialect recitations for she rendered a piece in Irish brogue that was "true to nature." Miss Corbin who was to furnish the vocal music for the occasion was also compelled to be absent, and her place was taken by a young lady from Ypsilanti, who pleased the audience with her efforts. Miss Kelly's piano solo and Mr. McClellan's manipulation of the organ were each excellent features. Miss Kelly was given an encore, but modestly declined to respond. Every one of the large audience present seemed highly pleased with the evening's entertainment. It was a success.

A County Fair.

The Board of Managers of the County Fair Association met at Mr. Child's office in the court house last Thursday. They resolved to hold a county fair Sept. 25 to 28 inclusive; elected Fred H. Belsen treasurer in place of Fred Schmid; elected Miss Emma Bower as superintendent of the Fine Arts department; and gave Messrs. Braun, Leland and Mills carte blanche to secure any or all attractions for the next fair they might deem desirable. Populist G. A. Peters reported that he collected $176.70 for the great inflation county picnic last fall, and expended $182.75, so that he did not have anything but a deficit to divide with the society. This was refused, as the society had plenty of deficits of its own in the past, and did not hanker after any portion of another even though it had the flat brand of a populist upon it, with Peters' endorsement. Hon. F. E. Mills, of Pittsfield, will be the mainspring of the next show, and endeavor to make the World's Fair a competitor only in memory.

Has Had Honor Enough.

Speaking of city affairs in a gathering of gentlemen the other day, Mayor Thompson turned to the Courier representative, and said: "You may announce, if you choose, authoritatively, that I am not, nor shall not be a candidate for re-election next spring." Some of those present attributed this decision to the fact that it took so much time on the mayor's part to think up methods of expending his salary as mayor, that he could not afford it. But despite the wits, the mayor is evidently in earnest, and has all of municipal honors that he desires. The position is certainly not a very desirable one. President Watts has also expressed himself as being averse to a renomination, though he has not authorized any statement of the kind.

Christian Sociology.

An Institute of Christian Sociology will be held at Newberry Hall, Ann Arbor, January 28th, to February 2, 1894, under the auspices of the Bible Chairs and the Student's Christian Association. The work will be under the charge of Prof. G. D. Herron, of the Department of Applied Christianity of Iowa College, and principal of the American Institute. The programme is as follows: Sunday evening, Jan. 28th, at University Hall, subject, "The Social Revolution." Monday, at Newberry Hall, "The Scientific and Religious Ground of a Christian Sociology." Tuesday, lecture omitted on account of Choral Union concert. Wednesday and Thursday, "The Christian Constitution of Society." Friday, "The Political Economy of the Lord's Prayer."

Conferences will be held each day consisting of a series of talks and answers to questions concerning the family state, etc., on the light of the Christian constitution of society.

The management of Miss Mattie Vickers have engaged at an enormous salary the great Ty-Bells in their wonderful head balancing and breakaway ladder act. This act is patented by Mons Ty-Bell and is done by no other performers.

A. L. Noble,

Pearl's Three Lovers.

Margaret Raymond was the daughter of an intelligent well-to-do farmer in the Empire state; a farmer who did not dig and delve as did his ancestors, but one who, by reading and study, enlightened his mind, enabling him to improve on the old routine and to strike out new rotations in seeding and planting, which made his old fashioned neighbors shake their heads and predict failure; but somehow the failures did not come. He was prosperous; his herds increased; his buildings and farm improved, and he plainly demonstrated that scientific farming was not a humbug.

Very fair and pretty, yes, and modest withal, was his only daughter. He called her Pearl when she was only a wee, toddling thing, so when she grew up so wondrous fair, the name seemed so appropriate that it clung to her.

Her education, though mostly acquired at the "district school," would put to the blush many a graduate at Madame Blank's seminary. Apt to learn, her teachers took pride in illuminating so bright a mind; and when at the age of seventeen she left school, to be her mother's pupil in domestic affairs, she was indeed an ornament to society—a pearl of the purest type, whose charms were acknowledged by all.

We shall not attempt to describe her person, for though made up of a thousand charms, her chief attraction was an indescribable sweetness, in manners and disposition, which beamed out in kindness and love for her friends, of all ages, sexes, and conditions.

Pearl Raymond was scarcely out of short frocks when admiring swains began to court her favor. The newest books and choicest flowers were presented by her admirers. Still, Pearl did not grow vain, nor indulge in flirtations.

Many callers had they from fashion, rank and wealth, who came rather to patronize the Raymonds, but went away feeling "cheap," to use a slang word. Farmer Raymond's daughter was not awed or captivated by the proud dames or their exquisite sons, and did not seem at all anxious to court their favor. She, like her parents, was polite and friendly to all.

Matters continued thus until Pearl was 19, when the strife to win her became exciting and earnest to three of her suitors. The rest stood back and admired at a distance.

One was Thad Marsden, a millionaire, who had no business, but managed to kill time by dashing from sea side to the mountains and springs in summer, while in winter he attended operas and germans during the week, and going regularly to church, attending properly to the responses on Sunday.

At a picnic he met Pearl Raymond, and her matchless grace and loveliness completely captivated the hitherto indifferent Adonis. He raved of her charms in rhyme and blank verse; sent scores of perfumed notes; sealed and stamped them with the family crest—sent some of them by mail, some by his liveried servants, and the remainder he took in person. He took her to drive in his handsome turn-out, and endeavored to impress her with the honor done her, but he only succeeded in making her laugh, and he wasn't sure that her merriment was not at his expense. He flattered himself, however, that when he offered to make her Mrs. Thaddeus Marsden, he wouldn't have to wait long for her consent. He could pick and choose from all the belles in town, and, surely this rustic beauty, as he called her, would be only too glad to accept. There was only one hindrance, which was in the person of Harry Wells, a promising young lawyer in town.

He (Harry) was very elegant, very popular, very agreeable in manner and person, while his conversational powers quite threw the millionaire in the shade. Many thought the lawyer would win, but that was only a surmise, as Pearl kept her own counsel. To be sure Harry had obtained a high standing among the legal fraternity, while his clients were numerous and his fees large. He was altogether a leading young man, and it was prophesied he would make his mark.

There was at times a little too much hilarity and dash about him, while at other times there was a very noticeable dullness. The truth was he drank wine and sometimes when urged, stronger drinks.

"It cannot be avoided you know," he said, when his friends remonstrated with him. "I only taste a little with clients."

Harry was assiduous in his attentions to Pearl Raymond, and made himself very agreeable to her mother, but the clear-headed farmer was observant, and cautioned his daughter not to be in haste to leave home, nor to engage herself to any one that made use of intoxicating beverages.

If Farmer Raymond had only known how matters stood, he needed not to hint to Pearl or Harry Wells' increasing fondness for stimulants

She knew his weakness long before, and was grieved for him.

When the city swell had been dismissed, Harry laid fresh siege, and hoped to win Pearl. If wealth had no attractions for her, perhaps she was ambitious. He was aiming high, and hoped to place himself among the nobility in the land. He surprised her by whispering his aims and wishes in her ear, but she coolly thanked him for his honesty, but want of discretion.

* Mr. Thaddeus Marsden and Young Lawyer Wells were so much taken up with their own particular aims and hopes, that they never suspected that Pearl Raymond was having a little heart affair of her own in another quarter; but it was even so, and here is the sequel.

Everett Randolph, a fine, athletic, healthy young farmer, whose land adjoined the Raymond's, and who had been Pearl's assistant and champion at school, and her firm friend ever after, had gone on from liking to loving his pretty neighbor and schoolmate. He saw her courted and caressed by the world of fashion, which sunk his hopes below zero. It was of no use, he thought, to let her know how he adored her—no use for him to compete with the wealth and talent offered at her shrine. And yet his steps often led to her home, where he was always welcomed and kindly received. He kept on making friendly calls, and, like the silly moth, continually to singe his wings by daily intercourse with the beloved of his soul.

Now, Pearl really liked Harry as a neighbor, as a talented and intelligent friend, with whom she enjoyed discussing the world of literature. He was a friend, nothing more. When he urged her to take time, and not make her decision final, she answered with tearful eyes, and begged him to forget his proposal, as she could not give him encouragement to hope for any other answer.

At sight of her agitation and tears he was greatly moved, and asked what was the reason she could not bid him hope.

"Is it not possible," said he, "that your feelings may turn in my favor?"

"No, Harry, we cannot be caught but friends. But, oh!" said she, falteringly, "if I might but speak my fears for you, if I only dared tell you how distressed I am when I hear of your increasing use of intoxicating drinks. Please, oh, please leave me now! Break off the habit at once, while you are still able to resist. It may soon be too late. Promise me, Harry."

Harry Wells looked at first surprised, then angry, and suddenly observed, as he took his leave, that he was no child to be watched over and reprimanded for occasionally taking a social glass with a friend. He was much obliged for the interest felt, but declined the further interference of his friends. He was irritated and annoyed, and coolly bade her good-night.

A great sorrow came to Everett Randolph. His mother was suddenly removed by death, and when he buried her by the side of the father whom he lost in childhood, he felt bereft of all.

The Raymonds tried to cheer him up by sending often to have him meet company at their house. They succeeded by degrees in drawing him away from his melancholy. His attention was excited by the kindness and tenderness of Pearl, who was so mindful of his bereavement and loneliness.

Was he mistaken? Did not her eyes speak to him? And did not the tell-tale blush, when he addressed her, show at least an interest in him?

He began to hope—began to read in Pearl's downcast eyes something that nearly set him wild with joy. He could scarcely believe it, but so it was. He proposed and was accepted.

People wondered a little that she had not chosen the millionaire in preference to a simple farmer. Those, however, who were acquainted with the subject of her choice were convinced of the wisdom of her decision.

Thad Marsden, the millionaire, had lost the bulk of his riches at the gambling-table. With him "mortages" and "foreclosures" were the order of the day. His bloated face and bleared eyes told the sad story of his misspent life.

Harry Wells, went to the far West, where he for a time abstained from intoxicating drinks, and business was thriving. But, alas! he fell, and, with shame by it recorded, his lady friends were the cause. He had resolved to keep the pledge unbroken, but on New Year's day he was urged—yes, pressed—to drink wines, and when he yielded, the burning desire for stimulants overturned all his good resolutions, and he soon lost all self-respect, and sank in the depths of drunken wretchedness.

THE CAT CAME BACK.

Why the Winner of a $100 Bet Was Thrashed by the Loser.

Henry Valtz and Virgie Wise, residing in the eastern part of Bourbon county, Kentucky, had a pitched battle the other day, all because the "cat came back," and Valtz is dangerously wounded. Valtz and Wise were friends. Some four months since they were both sitting on Wise's porch conversing about cat's attachment for certain localities. Henry Stemp, Wise's hired man, was to leave next morning for Texas. Valtz said: "I would be willing to bet $100 that Stemp can take your black cat to Texas with him and it will find its way back home before two months."

The bet was taken, and next morning Stemp left for Texas, carrying the cat along in a box. One night, just a month ago, Wise heard a mewing at his door. Investigation showed the mews emanated from the identical black cat with which the hired man started to Texas. The cat was badly disfigured and almost starved, giving every evidence of having made a long journey. A letter from Stemp stated that he arrived in Texas with the cat and had turned him loose. The $100 was paid to Valtz and nothing more would have been thought of it had Valtz not done too much talking. Let it out that Stemp took the cat as far as Cincinnati, and then expressed it to Valtz at Paris. Valtz came to town one night, got the cat and took it home. He then half starved it, scratched it up and allowed it to wander over to his neighbor's. He collected the money and sent half to Stemp. Wise heard all this, met Valtz, unmercifully thumped him and has brought suit to recover the $100.

ONE AND ANOTHER.

The khedive of Egypt has sent Richard Harding Davis the Order of Egyptian Merit.

Clarence King, the geologist, has very speedily recovered from his mental malady, and is about to leave the Bloomingdale asylum, where his friends placed him, once more in good health and cheerful spirits.

Mrs. William Thaw of Pittsburg has presented a tract of 1,100 acres to the city for a park. She stipulates that it shall be called Lyndhurst Green, and reserves the right to build a public fountain on it.

There is to be another college centennial next June, that of Bowdoin, up in Maine. The oration is to be delivered by Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller of the United States supreme court, and Arlo Bates is to read a poem.

Appreciative parents and friends are inundating Dr. Edward Everett Hale with reports of children's sayings which Dr. Hale was said to be collecting for philosophical purposes. The statement, Dr. Hale says, was an entire hoax.

Mme. Bernhardt introduced an innovation at the Renaissance theater in Paris recently by persuading the manager not to allow women wearing bonnets to sit in the orchestra stalls. The result was that the house gained greatly in appearance and there was rejoicing among the male sex present.

Julian Hawthorne is soon to remove his family and his lasses from the "House of the Seven Gobblers" at Sag Harbor to establish them for a year or two—possibly longer, if he yields to the fascination of the place, as Stevenson has to the charms of Samoa—on the island of Jamaica, in the West Indies.

John Hogg, who died the other day in his home near Washington, was the oldest chief clerk in the government service. He had been in the navy department nearly forty years, and had been chief clerk of the department for nearly half that time. He was 75 years old. There is said not to have been a question of naval custom or a fact of law regarding the naval establishment that he did not have at his fingers' ends.

Rice, of that place, which will be proof against a burglar attacking a safe or an express car, and ever leaving the locality alive. The minute the door is disturbed it sets a whole arsenal of guns firing in every direction.

Alex. Soulier, well known throughout this county, died at his home in Webster township, near Dexter, Jan. 13, aged 69 years. He was a man of strong convictions, an uncompromising democrat, and a man who always believed in and fought for progress. He leaves a wife and two children, Robert Soulier, of Detroit, and Mrs. A. J. Lenfesty, of Ann Arbor.

At the annual meeting of the Farmers Club held at S. R. Crittenden's last week, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, C. R. Cobb; vice presidents, T. Josenhans, Mrs. N. H. Isbell; secretary, Cynthia Hurd; cor. sec., N. B. Smith; treas., A. G. Cobb; members of executive board, S. R. Crittenden, G. L. Hoyt, G. S. Wood.—Saline Observer.

Amos Wilbur, of Superior township, aged 85 years, died on the 14th inst., at the home of his son George. He was one of the prominent pioneers of this country, coming here as long ago as 1834. He leaves three sons and one daughter, all residents in the vicinity, and besides a comfortable fortune leaves them what is more to be prized a name without a blemish.

Speaking of the talk of Hand to a newspaper reporter, just before going to Jackson, in which he casts out hints against other people, the Ypsilanti Sentinel says: "It is bad for Hand that he could not have had counsel before uttering such nonsense; for it certainly will convince many that have not before been fully satisfied as to his guilt. So far as its effect upon the others is concerned, it will not be felt, and still it is very annoying to have one's name bandied about in such a way." If Hand is guilty, as most people believe, is it not best that he should convict himself out of his own mouth?"

Mr. Nordman is authority for the statement that the proper proportions of London purple or parrot green for spraying fruit trees is three-fourths of a pound to 100 gals. of water.

Mrs. A. O. Miller is back at her Blissfield home. A few days ago she joined a theatrical company, which busted. She is now taking the part of "the queen of the broom."—Hudson Post.

There were 90 people received into communion at the Presbyterian church, Tecumseh, on a recent Sunday, 60 of whom were baptized that day. It was a great day for the pastor, Rev. Mr. Brown.

Judge McMahon, of the Ludington circuit, is a former Washtenaw county boy. Upon assuming the bench recently, he informed the bar that hereafter, in that circuit, all divorce proceedings should be in open court.

T. A. Sayre shored a flock of 60 of his half blood sheep last Tuesday. Lou Hammond and James Blackwood have also turned out a flock in their nude state.—South Lyon Excelsior. Won't those sheep feel that they have been fleeced before spring?

The Dundee Ledger announces the failure of J. W. Smith, who has been a large purchaser of grain of all kinds in and about Dundee, Rea, Britton, Ridgeway, etc. The general decline in business is what caused it.

E. Sampson, in an article entitled "World's Fair Aftermath," published in the Ypsilanti, brings vividly to mind several pictures that struck the average sight seer at the World's Fair as being of unusual merit. Mr. Sampson's description of them is excellent.

Louis Chamberlain, of Webster, says that peach trees should be set with 16 feet between rows, and care should be used in selecting varieties adapted to soil and climate. Peach trees 1 1/2 years from bud he recommends as the best to set on account of cheapness, principally.

"How many wives are being poisoned to sickness and death by the tobacco-using husband, God only knows," exclaims a writer in the Dexter Leader. Why, how many wives has the filthy old lopper-chopped, bosom frescoed, goat-scented varmint, anyway?—Adrian Press.

Remarkable the unusually small eggs on the market, Dick says the hens are mad because eggs are on the free list in the Wilson bill, and won't lay any more big ones. Dick's philosophy goes deeper into the science of cause and effect than most people imagine.—Ypsilanti. Eggsactly so.

One evening last week the skating pond became too crowded for comfort and there was a question as to which should leave, the town boys or college students. The students withdrew, but say they never will again.—Ypsilanti. That will probably be owing to numbers and sand.

Dr. McLachlan, of Mooreville, exhibited his Brown Leghorn birds at the show at Ypsilanti last week and took eight out of twelve premiums in that class—1st, 2nd, 3d and 4th on hen, 1st and 4th on cockerel, 1st and 2d on pullet. The doctor claims to have the finest Brown Leghorns west of Niagara Falls.—Milan Leader.

A POLITICAL PLUM.

Falls to a Washtenaw Divine.

Another Washtenaw man gets a plum. This time it is Rev. M. M. Goodwin, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Ypsilanti, who has been appointed as chaplain in the U. S. navy, through Representative Gorman's influence, it is said, though how much Mr. Goodwin's friends in his former home had to do with it is not stated. It may have been similar to Prof. Gill's appointment, which was decided upon by Mr. Dickinson, and Mr. Gorman was told about it after it was all fixed. Rev. Mr. Goodwin has been rector of St. Luke's but a few months, coming there from Illinois. He is a gentleman who has created a very favorable impression, and is very popular with his congregation. He is a Knight Templar, and that body are to give him a reception and banquet next Monday evening, at the temple in this city.

"From a selfish point of view it is a great loss to us, but being an admirer of the gentleman I cannot avoid congratulating him on his entrance into this new field of ecclesiastical work."

Such is the unanimous opinion of all who have a personal acquaintance with Rev. M. M. Goodwin, yesterday appointed to a naval chaplaincy by the United States government. Mr. Goodwin has been a resident of Ypsilanti hardly a year, but in that time he has won a new life into the ranks of the Episcopal church that had been hitherto in a state of lethargy. Innovations of a most commendable character have been introduced by him and what was for a couple of years before his pastorate here a quiet state in church affairs has been radically changed into the busiest of ecclesiastical works, and it has been mainly through his efforts.

The introduction of the surprised choir, the church cadets, the Saturday market and the St. Luke's Register are the monuments of the church that he will always be remembered in connection with. His high minded liberality concerning worldly affairs has brought him in close communion with thinkers of the advanced stage and to say that his appointment gives the greatest of satisfaction is simply approaching the truth.

Mr. Phoenix Lamont, organist of Christ church, Detroit, Mr. E. N. Billie, violinist and Miss Minnie Davis accompanist, will give a musical recital before Unity Club on Monday evening, Jan. 29, at 8 o'clock. Mr. Lamont is an artist of ability and his renditions should be of the highest order. Mr. Billie and Miss Davis need no introduction to Ann Arbor people. This concert promises to be one of the best of the season.

A book should be chosen as we choose a friend. The reading of pupils aside from that of the school room is not planned. If left to themselves, children are quite likely to read that which adds no information to the mind, and gives them mental pictures of doubtful morality. The taste for good reading is easily formed, and we think that such a taste implanted in the child will do more towards the formation of good character than the subjects taught in the school room.—Enterprise.

Fox hunting has become a popular pastime and the local Sportsmen's Association is taking advantage of every propitious day. The association has recently purchased an imported hound which has been added to the home pack, and the buying of others, with pedigrees from three to six feet long, is contemplated. If the plans of the hunters don't miscarry, the importation of foxes will be next in order.—Dexter Leader. Will the assessors of Scio, Dexter and Webster please make a note of those dogs?

Death of James D. Winans.

James D. Winans died January 21, 1894, at the ripe old age of 88 years 11 months and 7 days. The deceased was born at Coxsackie, Dutchess co., New York, Feb. 14, 1805, came to Michigan in 1835, and located in Detroit, where he worked at his trade, a tanner and currier. In 1837 he bought 320 acres of land in Undinilla township, Livingston county. Jan. 4, 1838, he was married to Miss Sarah Hillyard. The following March they put all their personal effects on a lumber wagon, hitched on their ox-team and drove to the farm. Did not they exchange their farm there for the one where he has since lived. An abolitionist in the early days and since then a staunch republican. He was a great lover of his country, and gave four years service of one son, the life of another, besides a liberal amount of money during the late great rebellion, that his country might live. He leaves a wife and four children, Mrs. Eleanor E. Diamond, of Hastings; Niles H., of Grand Rapids; Stephen B. of Ann Arbor, and Martha D. Diamond, of Grand Rapids, to mourn his loss. Well, that much actual cash in these democratic days would make almost any one crazy.

This is old, but as it is going the rounds of the press again, can be safely given, for it is good. When a young lady is bored by the attentions of a young man who never hears the clock strike in the latter part of the evening. She gets a pencil and paper and gives the y. m. these directions: "Please make a row of 11 ciphers; now make a perpendicular mark downward at the right of the first, fifth and tenth ciphers, and upwards on the fourth, seventh and eighth. Read what you have written, please."
