Death of Prof. Emil Baur.

The people of Ann Arbor were shocked last Friday morning at the announcement of the death of Prof. Emil Baur, on the evening previous, at his home on the Dexter road. He had been suffering for months from a severe attack of the grippe, from which he never fully recovered, and had been very despondent about himself for several weeks.

The deceased was born in 1830 in Wurtemberg, Germany, the son of Rev. Emil Baur, and came to this country in 1852. About 1857 he was married to Miss Bertha Herzer, of Grass Lake. In 1861 he came to Ann Arbor, and for many years was the teacher of German in the High School. The family have resided at their present home for 33 years, and it has been a very happy home.

The deceased leaves a widow and seven children, five sons and two daughters. The funeral services were held from the family residence Sunday, being conducted by Rev. Henry Tatlock, of St. Andrew's Episcopal church, of which society Mr. Baur had been an ardent member for many years.

The active pall bearers were Profs. Thomas, Hudson, Walter and D'Ooge, and Messrs. L. Gruner and F. Pistorius. The honorary bearers, composed of neighbors and friends, were Messrs. J. H. Altmann, J. Schenck, Jacob Schaefer, Jacob Ganzhorn, W. F. Bird and N. B. Covert.

Prof. Baur was a man of far more than ordinary ability. He was a pleasing writer, and was a regular contributor to several German and English publications. Being extensively engaged in fruit culture, he was an enthusiastic member of the County Horticultural Society, and its secretary for many years, lent much life and energy to its councils.

A man of spotless life, living in love and charity with his neighbors, he held an enviable position in the community, respected by everyone.

His family have the general sympathy of the public in their sorrow. His lips emboldened by a love for man, Enabled him to live life's little span, As one who builds while dwelling here, A home of beauty in a brighter sphere.

Death of Gertrude Ware.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Ware, of the 5th ward, met with a sad loss yesterday in the death of their little daughter, Gertrude, aged 11 years. She died very suddenly and unexpectedly, although having been ill for some time with consumption. Funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon from the family residence on Broadway. The parents in this great affliction, can be little comforted by words, though the heartfelt sympathy of friends heal such wounds, they would soon be healed. Time alone can bring relief to them and assuage the grief such a loss inflicts upon loving parents.

A Free Library.

The Detroit Convention, by far the largest student convention ever assembled, is past, but its educational exhibit is to be perpetuated in a free missionary library, that will be placed in Newberry Hall. Anyone who wishes may either pay the price of a new book, or give a book he now possesses, and have his name placed in it as donor. The same may be done by any missionary society, young people's society, or Sunday School.

The value of this library will depend on what the Christian people of the city can do. If the response continues to be as encouraging, a fine collection is assured. If you desire to add, please speak soon to one of the following persons:

Miss Lou E. LaTourette, 97 South State st.; Miss Berta Sherrod, 28 1-2 S. 5th ave.; W. W. Parker, 26 Thompson st.; N. D. Merens, 22 W. 2d st.; Miss Johanna Neumann, 53 S. 4th ave.; Miss Belle L. Otis, 4 Mary st.; Melvil P. Porter, 25 Maynard st.

When you attend the sacred concert at St. Andrew's church to-morrow evening, take a 25 or 50 cent piece with you and drop it on the plate to help the choir boys meet expenses.

A Combine in Prospect.

A movement is on foot to combine the Ann Arbor city R. R., and the Ann Arbor & Ypsilanti St. Ry., equip the entire line with electricity, and run it as one corporation. Representatives of houses having such equipments for sale were in the city yesterday in conference with the directors, and estimates made as to the cost. It is stated that as soon as the agents presented their figures the directors adjourned for two days in which to catch their breath again, and nothing definite was concluded. It is understood that the estimate is only a paltry $100,000. Further investigations will be made and it is hoped that the scheme may be made possible.

Our New Star Spangled Banner.

The Courier office is now the possessor of a elegant new American flag, 7x15 feet in size, having 44 stars, whose broad folds will wave for protection to American industries and American homes, with not a stripe erased nor polluted, not a single star obscured by My Commissioner Blount, Queen Lill or any of that miserable gang; for to use a useless interrogatory, what's all that worth? Nor those other fellows of British delusion and pension fraud-folly, Grover Cleveland and Hokesmith. But everywhere spread all over in characters of patriotic delight floating over ever corner of the nation, sea and land, those other names dear to every true American heart, Reed, McKinley, Alger, American labor and American liberty forever!

Ann Arbor Y. M. C. A.

The board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association, of Ann Arbor, met Monday evening and organized by electing Chas. W. Wagner president, Geo. D. Stinson vice president, Nathan Stanger secretary, and W. B. Phillips treasurer.

The necessary steps were taken to secure the incorporation of the society under the state law, and other business important to the society transacted. The regular meetings of the board were fixed for the first Tuesday of each month, and of the association for the second Tuesday of each month.

The adjourned meeting of the board is to be held next Tuesday evening to consider some important questions.

It may not be generally known that the association has rooms nicely fitted up on E. Washington st., over Mr. Martin's store, where many young men now assemble to pass away the evenings, but such is the fact. The young men who gather here have just as social a time as they desire. They have games of all sorts, music if they want it, and all the current literature of the day. And the rooms are well filled almost every night.

This movement has commenced right, for it has come from the young men themselves, and they are availing themselves of the opportunity offered of a pleasant place to spend an evening without any evil temptations surrounding them.

"The Tornado."

The dissecting-room scene in Lincoln J. Carter's new play, "The Tornado" which comes to the Grand Opera House Tuesday evening, March 20 is one of the most attractive scenes of the performance, perfect in its detail. The action of the story during the scene is the very essence of quiet and refined intensity. At its close, as the curtain slowly falls, the young husband and surgeon, alone with his great joy, a storm of appreciative and sympathetic applause invariably comes from the audience. It was this new feature of the play which was awaited by Mr. Carter's admirers, with a possible doubt as to his ability to keep it free from gruesome shades, but the reception accorded the scene at the first production settled beyond a doubt the complete triumph of the feature.

A year in power and not a pledge redeemed. That's the position of the democracy.

The man who has plenty and can't sell it is nearly as bad off as the moneyless man who wants a good deal and can't get it.

Last year there were 6,000,000 tons of sugar produced in the world, of which 3,500,000 were from beets, and 2,500,000 from cane. The beet beats the cane.

A Chicago couple were married after an acquaintance of one day. But that is nothing. A Chicago judge recently heard a divorce case and granted a decree in six minutes. Cupid must hustle.

If rumors are true, Hon. Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, will be a democratic candidate for the presidency in 1896. The democracy could go farther and fare worse. In fact they might better have taken him in 1892.

Pennsylvania and Ohio combined, rolled up two hundred and sixty-five thousand majority for protection to American labor and American industries. Some of the democrats in the United States senate have heard about it evidently.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, is being commended by all parties for his patriotism and manly independence, as shown in his report upon the Hawaiian question. If the south had more such representatives and fewer Blounts, it would be better for that section of our country.

Sixty democrats in the House swore by the eternal, being genuine Jacksonians, that they would never vote for the Wilson bill. But they did—all but seventeen of them. The same noisy demonstration is now being made by democrats in the senate. The "conservatives," we fear, will be cuckoos in the end.

Here is a little computation of figures that will give an idea of the loss that the laboring masses have suffered since the present administration, with its free trade tendencies has come into power: A ten per cent. reduction in wages deprives the laboring men of the country of $1,200,000,000 per annum; and 25 per cent. reduction robs them of $3,000,000,000 annually.

The Detroit Free Press of last Friday contained two or three notices of eastern factories resuming operations but every one of them read something like this: "The cotton factory in this city will start up Monday with a reduction of 20 per cent. on wages." Reduction upon reduction Not a factory that resumes work but does so at free trade wages. Many of them have reduced wages 25 per cent and more, but even such wages are so much better than idleness and starvation that the workmen accept the inevitable and sullenly and sadly go to work again. Free trade is a sorry thing for them and no mistake.

SUGAR AND WOOL.

One of the curious political vagaries of our esteemed opera-house contemporary the Argus, is its plea for protection to sugar, a Louisiana product, and its attack against protection for wool, a Michigan, and notably a Washtenaw county product. This is doubly singular from the fact that The Argus has a great deal to say about the "tariff breeding trusts." Now everyone knows that the sugar trust is one of the worst of all trusts in the country. Under the friendly legislation at Washington, last week, its stock jumped up $10 per share to the great profit of a number of democratic senators of the finance committee who used their exclusive information of what was to be changed in the Wilson bill, to their private speculations.

The McKinley bill dealt the sugar trust such a blow that its stock had been continually depreciating until it was in great danger of being wiped out. But now its stock is in great demand, for the southern senators in control have saved it, at the expense of the northern wool-growers. This unfair legislation is even defended by northern cuckoo newspapers, just as they used to do before the war when the south was in the saddle before.

It is a principle of political economy that "where the product of a domestic article does not nearly equal the demand; and where the duty levied on imports does not stimulate production of the home-made article, the tariff duty operates as a tax both on the home made article and the imported article of like nature."

The consumption of domestic and imported sugar in 1892 in the U. S. was 3,627,126,000 pounds, while our production was only 370,579,307 lbs., but one-tenth of the total. Therefore the placing of a duty of only one cent per pound means at tax of $36,271,260 upon the people of this country in one year, which is to be laid on the people for the benefit of the sugar trust and the Louisiana sugar growers.

But there is no trust in wool, gotten up by wealthy sharks who, having grown fat on their profits squeezed out of their fellow citizens, can afford to put such a lobby at Washington as to make effective demands on legislation. The million wool growers of the U. S., losing perhaps $100 each on the average, by the Wilson bill have no swelling treasury to pay lawyers and lobbyists, and they cannot even get the support of the democratic papers published right in the midst of one of the greatest wool countries on this continent. The Argus lacks the manliness of the southerners, who stand up for their own interests.

In the future, when our friend The Argus, prates about trusts, its readers may remember its labored defence of the sugar trust and its attack on wool which has no trust.

The hollowness of republican institutions in Brazil is well illustrated by the fact that only about 7,000 votes were cast in Rio de Janeiro, the capital and metropolis, in the recent election for president. The population of that city is officially estimated at 800,000, and in this country the vote of so large a place would be at least 150,000. Where 7,000 men speak at the polls for 800,000 people, freedom does not go very deep.

Kansas prides itself on its record for the last year, and it has reasons. In that time the field crops amounted to $69,441,000, and the wool, cheese, butter, poultry, horticultural products and animals slaughtered or sold for slaughter are set down as having been worth $53,124,000 making the total valuation of the crops and live stock previously on hand $220,831,000. The number of fruit trees in bearing is 13,690,494 and of those planted, but too young to bear, 8,106,424. Of these there are 12,408,050 apples, 6,029,630 peach, and 877,256 cherry trees, thus indicating that fruit raising is an industry by no means overlooked. There are also 39,319 acres planted in nurseries and small fruits. The live stock valuation is put at $98,296,000.—Mass. Ploughman.

A writer in the Cedar Springs Clipper has this to say about the road question, that we comment to our readers: "It is said that intemperance is at the root of all evil, but ignorance is responsible for a large amount of intemperance. I think it was Kate Field who said, 'All crime, all bad legislation are due to ignorance, the one unknown quantity which is impossible to overcome.' This condition is largely due to ignorance born of bad roads. 'As ye sow, so shall ye also reap.' By ignoring the farmer, by leaving him in his ignorance, the churches of this country have a great deal to answer for. Their missionary work lies here, not in Japan and Africa. The beam needs to be cast out of our eyes before we see the mote in our brother's. Christianity begins at home, and Christianity begins with better roads. But farmers oppose them. They fear greater taxation. This is evident from the vote on the constitutional amendment last spring which showed plainly that the amendment was carried by the city vote."

NOT A CENT FROM THE SOUTH.

According to Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, who is a great student of political economy, the south does not pay one cent toward the pensions that this administration is endeavoring to Hokesmith the northern soldiers out of. He says that of the $150,000,000 internal revenue taxes, the south pays less than $9,000,000; of the $177,000,000 custom receipts the south pays but $4,000,000; and of the miscellaneous receipts less than $2,000,000. All together the south pays about $15,000,000 toward the support of the government. It gets paid back $9,000,000 in sugar bounty; $5,000,000 in pensions to Mexican and Union veterans, their widows, etc., and $5,000,000 in post office department deficits. That makes a total of $19,000,000, or $4,000,000 more than it contributes, so that the late Confederate states, that Hoke Smith represents in the cabinet of Mr. Cleveland, does not contribute one cent toward pensions. Still the south isn't satisfied. It wants the sugar bounty, or protection to sugar in lieu thereof. It wants protection to rice, oranges, lemons and peanuts, and it wants no protection for the north. More than that, the people of the south want $400,000,000 from the National Treasury on war claims which have been filed at Washington. These claims can never be allowed so long as there is a bar in the federal statutes in the form of a provision requiring claimants to prove loyalty to the government during the war, and so long as a large share of the national revenues goes for the payment of Union pensions as now. Several attempts have been made to give Southern war claimants a standing in the Court of Claims without requiring proof of loyalty. If that could be done now and the pensions of Union veterans could be stopped, the south would be happy, indeed.

ENGLAND'S CHANGE.

The retirement of Gladstone, the grand old man of England, from the primiership, caused by the feeble health he finds himself in, in his declining years, is regretted by many who admire him and the cause he represents in English politics. It is marvellous, however, that any man should hold his mental powers and vigor at so great an age, for it must be remembered that Mr. Gladstone is now 84 years old. History offers few instances where any man has been able to shape the affairs of a great nation at so advanced an age. Lord Roseberry, who has been appointed to succeed him, is only 47 years of age. He is a scholar, a fine debater, and an aggressive man. It is thought that England's foreign policy will be far more aggressive under him than it was under Gladstone. How Ireland will fare under his administration is yet to be ascertained.

Twelve Billion Dollars Lost.

Another month has passed and the record of the country's loss grows larger and larger. We are now able to present the result of eleven months business under the policy of prostration of the free trade party, since April 1, 1893, in comparison with the corresponding eleven months beginning April 1, 1892, as shown by the volume of bank clearings reported at Bradstreet's. The result is a loss exceeding TWELVE BILLIONS OF DOLLARS in the aggregate trade throughout the country, as follows:

Table with 3 columns: Month, 1892, 1893. Rows for April through December, plus January and February 1894. Totals are also provided.

Under the present administration the country has sustained a loss exceeding one billion dollars during each and every month, and the greater is the monthly loss the more we have of free trade. During February it amounted to almost two billion dollars, whereas ten months ago the loss of trade was represented only by an insignificant, comparatively, hundred-dred million of dollars. This total loss of TWELVE BILLION OF DOLLARS in eleven months represents a loss of $170 for every one of 70,000,000 persons.—Economist.

Rose from the Ranks.

The best engineman has been a fireman; the best conductors are made of brakemen; the best officials are promoted from the ranks. Mr. John M. Toucey, general manager of the New York Central, was once a trainman. President Newell, of the Lake Shore, used to carry a chain in an engineering corps on the Illinois Central. President Clark, of the Mobile and Ohio, was a section man; afterwards a fireman. Another man who drove grade stakes is President Blockstand, of the Alton. Allen Manville, the late president of "the largest road on earth," was a storehouse clerk. President Van Horn, of the Canadian Pacific, kept time on the Illinois Central. A man named Town who used to twist brakewheels on the Burlington, is now Vice President Town, of the Southern Pacific. President Smith, of the Louisville & Nashville, was a telegraph operator. Marvin Hughtit, of the Chicago & Northwestern, began as a telegraph messenger-boy. President Clark, of the Union Pacific, used to check freight and push a truck on the Omaha platform. The Illinois Central, I believe, has turned out more great men than any other road. President Jeffery, of the Denver & Rio Grande, began in the Central shops at forty-five cents a day.—McClure's Magazine.

March Crop Report.

The wheat fields of Michigan were fairly well, though lightly covered with snow during the larger part of February. A heavy snow storm occurred near the middle of the month but the high winds prevailing left the snow largely in drifts. The average depth of snow in the lower peninsula, on the 15th was from four to five inches, and on the 28th, in the southern and central counties, about one inch.

At this date, March 8, the snow is all gone, and the frost in the southern half of the state, all out of the ground. The weather in February was almost continuously cold. At Lansing the mean daily temperature was above the freezing point on only seven days. The highest daily average was 37 degrees on the 7th, 39 on the 8th, and 40 on the 9th and 28th. About 40 per cent of the correspondents express a belief that wheat has been damaged, and 60 per cent. that it has not.

The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed by farmers in February, is 1,035,127, and in the seven months, August-February, 10,285,039, which is 245,884 bushels less than reported marketed in the same months last year. At 23 elevators and mills from which reports have been received, there was no wheat marketed during the month. In condition live stock averages from four to seven points below a full average, comparison being with stock in good, healthy and thrifty condition.

DREADFUL PSORIASIS

Covering Entire Body with White Scales. Suffering Fearful. Cured by Cuticura.

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scales fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA Remedies, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. Mrs. ROSA KELLY, Rockwell City, Iowa.

STRANGE PROPHECY

That is Now Deeply Agitating the Nations Abroad.

Nearly a half century ago a most curious little pamphlet was published in London. It was entitled "The End of the Age in 1901," and was written by one Rev. M. Baxter. It sold on the street for one penny.

The pamphlet was a prophecy founded on the Book of Daniel and the Apocalypse of St. John the Divine, and contained a table of predicted events of the last decade of the 19th century.

The most striking feature of this quaint publication is the fact that the curious chain of predicted events begins with the rise of a new Napoleon in 1897, who shall rule France, and through her dominate Europe with more splendor than the great Corsican.

For many years the little lurid-covered pamphlet has lain about in odd corners, strewn with dust and forgotten; now the strange, unexplainable Napoleonic fever which is sweeping over France and Europe, in view of the crisis toward which the powers of the world seem to be hastening, has blown the dust from the leaves and the prophecy has been read with curiosity, with interest and with almost wonder. It has been translated and published in German, French, Spanish and Dutch.

Its prophecies, which follow a distinct Biblical analogy and form a consecutive chain of events mutually dependent on each other, are the more curious because in their general bearing they comport with certain facts and tendencies of the present time which the most far-seeing judgment could not

THEN HAVE DIVINED.

Just before the new Napoleon shall arise, declares the prophecy, Europe will be rearranged into a new 10-kingdoms alliance or confederacy, which will include all of the states comprised in the ancient Roman Empire of the Caesars. This, as expositors of all ages have agreed, was symbolized by Daniel's 10-horned wild beast and by the 10-toed iron legs of his metallic human image. The two legs naturally correspond with the Roman Empire's eastern and western divisions, each of which is therefore to become sub-divided into exactly five kingdoms, corresponding to the five toes on each foot.

The countries of Caesar's original Roman Empire consist at present of about 20 kingdoms or states, which must be reduced to the number of 10 confederated kingdoms, which can hardly be otherwise, says the prophet, than as follows:

1. Britain, separated from Ireland and India and such of her colonies as never formed a part of Caesar's Roman Empire. This seems to indicate that these countries will have Parliaments of their own.
2. France; enlarged to the Rhine so as to include all territories west of that river, Belgium, Luxembourg, Alsace-Lorraine, Switzerland and Tunis, and whatever of Baden, Wurtemberg, and Bavaria is not added to Austria. This can come to pass in only one way—by France defeating and dictating terms to Germany.
3. Spain—with Portugal and Northern Morocco.
4. Italy—Probably with Tripoli.
5. Austria—losing its provinces of Bohemia, Moravia and Galicia north of the Danube, which may be added to Germany, but gaining Bosnia, Herzegovina and perhaps part of Serbia.
6. Greece—with Thessaly, Epirus, Macedonia and Albania.
7. Turkey—reduced in size to ancient Thrace, and by Bythina.
8. Syria—separated from Turkey.
9. Egypt.
10. The Balkan States—Bulgaria, Bohemia, and part of Hungary and Servia.

Either Austria or Greece will annex Montenegro.

IT WILL BE SEEN.

That these ten states are separated naturally into two groups, containing five eastern and five western states. These groups correspond to the two feet of Daniel's statue.

These 10 states are to be formed together into an alliance, which is denoted by the body of the statue. This alliance can be produced by only one cause. It will be a combination of these 10 Roman nations to resist military attacks by Germany or Russia, which have never been Roman nations, and which will stand outside and apart from these 10 kingdoms.

The prophetic parcelling points to the dreadful conflict which Europe is with dreadful certainty approaching—a gigantic struggle which will not have all of its virulence in the mutual hatred and jealousy of Germany and France. The prophecy infers that Germany will meet with overwhelming defeat and be driven altogether across the Rhine, so that the whole left bank will be annexed to France—a result necessitated if the old Roman Empire be revived. Its revival implies, also, the victory for home rule for Ireland, either peaceably or by the renewal of the events of 1873-1857, and infers that England is to experience another mutiny in India, and perhaps the horrors of another Eastern war. So says the prophecy.

"And there are seven kings," says the Apocalypse. "Five are fallen and one is, and one other is not yet come; and when he cometh he must continue a short space." Following the governmental headships of the Roman Empire it will be seen that the Napoleonic dynasty became, in 1806, the seventh head of the empire, which dictated law to the rest. France then was this one of the seven heads of the monster whom the prophet Daniel saw, and the one of whom St. John spoke when he said: "And I saw one of his heads as it were wounded to death by the sword." This is the dynasty according to the prophecy, which is to be healed and make the WHOLE WORLD WONDER.

"And the beast that was and is not, even he is the eighth," said the angel to St. John.

Then, in the prophecy, follows the identification of the Napoleonic dynasty with the beast, from the familiar fact that according to the Greek dative inscriptive forms the letters of the word Napoleonic stand for numbers which, added up, make 666.

When Daniel had the vision of the ten-horned wild beast and asked the meaning of the horns he was answered: "And the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise, and another shall arise after them." This other little horn, which is to be a Napoleon, is to be a king, and first rule over some little kingdom partitioned out of one of the four Greco-Macedonian horn kingdoms of Greece, Syria, Thracian, Turkey or Egypt. "The little horn," says Daniel, "waxed exceeding great toward the south and toward the east and toward the pleasant land." "The pleasant land," to the Biblical writers, meant Judea or Syria.

After coming to the crown of Syria, however, the new Napoleon is to lay his plans for the headship of France. "And after the league made with him," says Daniel, "he shall work deceitfully; for he shall come up, and shall be strong with a small people * * * and he shall forecast his devices against the strongholds, even for a time."

From being King of Syria, with a suddenness that bespeaks a peaceful vote of the ten nations, he becomes Emperor of France, and thus the head of the confederacy. "And they worshipped the beast—Napoleon—saying, 'Who if like unto the beast? Who is able to make war with him?'"

The new Napoleon, says the prophecy, is to become more powerful even than in the time of the first Napoleon, possess military occupation of Rome, and restore the temporal power of the Pope. He is finally to dictate law to almost all of Europe, take Egypt, decree changes in law and times and

ABOLISH CHRISTIANITY.

Strangely enough, the situation of the European powers seem to be so shaping itself as to make the old prophecy most interesting. In regard to the predicted Roman alliance, the present shows only possibilities. The world is talking now of dual alliance between Russia and France. Thus far, however, it has consisted most largely of a city covered with bunting, of the shouts of fanatic Parisians and the throwing in the air of greasy caps at Toulon. France has made much noise about it, but, after all, does it mean much more than that she would give the Great Bear anything he asked with a view to a future creeping under the mantle of his protection? What Russia wants, of course, is a port on the Mediterranean and a water way for her fleet through the straits. She is patting France on the back but discretely promising nothing. It is from the realization of this that Germany has all along smiled at the Franco-Russian fetes. Germany is waiting for the great struggle—one most imminent with her—which will have as its virus the mutual hatred of France herself. Meanwhile she gives herself little concern about this new move of Russia, knowing that it will be balanced by counter moves of England.

England, on her part, seems alone to have looked to the bottom of the Russian flattery of France and has seen that it meant nothing less than a possible re-opening of the old Eastern question, the dominance of the Mediterranean and danger to India. This scarcely expressed fear is what is responsible for the present war scare in England and the efforts which are not being pushed for the

INCREASE OF HER NAVY.

The wondrous advantage France has made since the catastrophe of 1840 and her increasing wealth are every year making her more and more nearly a match for Germany. Under such conditions Russia would be most unlikely to take any decisive move, occupied as she is with thoughts of the East and of England. No, Russia might prove the broken reed piercing the hand of France should she lean upon it.

Russia's object in the Mediterranean will sooner or later come to France like the menace of an armed hand, and then France will have no choice but to turn to England. A Russian fleet in the Mediterranean would be a terror to both, and it will make common cause.

So much for France and Britain. Italy might join hands, too, because of the jealousy of Germany and Russia the international relations of Germany and Italy would rather help than hinder Italy in this coalition. Italy's nonchalance of late is due to the same cause as Germany's. Crispi is waiting. The feeling seems to be one of strained anxiety, and waiting for the Franco-German imbroglio which is to precipitate the gigantic European struggle and foreshadow its end.

Should Germany be defeated in this, as the prophecy states, her weakened condition and her hatred of France would be more than sufficient to drive her into an alliance with Russia, against the confederacy.

From this view, nothing becomes more reasonable, in the general outline, than this predicted Latin alliance against Germany and Russia. Much more imminent, indeed, seems to be England's loss of Ireland and India.

But in the meantime, says the prophecy, the new Napoleon has risen as King of Syria, from which he goes to the Empire of France, and becomes

DICTATOR OF THE CONFEDERACY.

The Napoleon possibilities are limited to the direct line. At the death of the Imperial Prince Louis Napoleon, in the Zulu war in 1879, Prince Jerome Napoleon became head of the Napoleon dynasty. On his death, in March 1891, his two sons, Prince Victor and Prince Louis Napoleon, cousins of the dead Imperial Prince Louis, became the direct heirs of the empire. The eldest son, Victor, is the head of the dynasty.

Strangely enough, until very recently, Prince Napoleon, who by far is the more popular of the brothers in France, has been in the Russian army, and was Colonel of a Russian regiment at Tiflis, in the Caucasus on the north of Syria.

According to Daniel, Napoleon is to "stand up in the place of the King of the North and obtain the kingdom of Syria by flatteries." Whether Russia be the "place of the North," and the King the Czar himself, is matter for conjecture. It but adds to the strangeness of the circumstances when we remember that the Czar has all along favored the young Napoleon and would be more than inclined to help him, it may be, to a diminutive buffer kingdom, such as Syria, if by so doing he might strengthen his own frontier against Germany or help to strike a final blow at Anarchy and Nihilism in his own limits, by assisting the forces allied for the downfall of French republicanism.

The present condition of popular feeling in France chimes strangely in with the prophecy. The Napoleon fever is abroad; it is in the air. It has become, in public opinion, almost a certainty that if France falls as a republic her only future is in the Napoleon dynasty. There is still the party of the Royalists, who own a staunch allegiance to the old Bourbon line, and in the event of

ANOTHER REVOLUTION.

The line of the Comte de Paris would not lack support, but the real strength of the Royalist enemies of the republic is on the side of the empire and the Napoleons. With them would be thrown all the force of the Protestant element of France, who fear another kingdom which might mean rife Catholicism and the returned power of the Jesuits.

Is Louis Napoleon to be the man who is to stand up, "a king of fierce countenance and understanding dark sentences and of crafty policy, destroying many by peace?"

In connection with that part of the prophecy that refers to the temporal power of the Pope at that time, it is most remarkable to note that Lucien Bonaparte, who at his ordination in 1858 was pointed to as likely to be chosen Pope some day, is now a Cardinal and is eligible to the office.

In foretelling the unparalleled success of the new Napoleon, the prophecy is but recalling the deeds of his great forerunner. The newcomer is to be of the same audacious originality as Napoleon I. "And he shall speak great words, against the most high, and think to change times and laws." In 1812 when Cardinal Fesch the uncle of Napoleon I, tried to dissuade the Emperor from his ruinous enterprise of invading Russia, Napoleon replied: "The great power I have already attained forces me to become Dictator of the world. My destiny is not yet accomplished. I must establish one universal code of laws—the Napoleonic code—one Court of Appeal, one coinage and monetary currency, with Napoleon's effigy stamped upon it—one system of weights and measures. I must make one nation out of all the European states, and Paris must be the capital of the world."

This change of times and laws will in the main be the programme of the new Napoleon. The French Republican calendar was dated from September 22, 1792, and it would not be more startling should the new Emperor, in a similar manner, "think to change the times."

The new Napoleon is, moreover, to decree the abolition of Christianity. "And the King shall do according to his will, and he shall exalt himself and magnify himself above every god, and shall speak marvelous things against the God of gods."

This also is only what happened in France in 1793.

Scotch Thrift.

An Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman, making a tour around the city a short time since, were observed looking through a confectioner's window at a beautiful young woman serving in the shop. "Oh!" exclaimed Mr. Patrick, "do let us be after spending half a crown with the dear craytur, that we may look at her conveniently, and have a bit of chat wid her." "You extravagant dog," said Mr. Bull. "I'm sure one-half of the money will be sufficient; but let us go in, by all means; she's a charming girl." "Ah, wait a wee," interposed Mr. McAndrew; "dinna ye ken it'll serve our purpose equally well just to ask the bonnie lassie to gie us twa sixpences for a shilling, and inquire where's Mr. Toompson's house, and sic like. We're no hungry, and may as well save the shiller."—Birmingham Mercury.

UNIVERSITY.

Dr. Martin L. Belser, class of '90, has been made a Fellow of the Royal Microscopical Society, London, Eng.

The last wrinkle was issued Thursday, and contained much information upon a subject that was quite laughable.

The cases in the practice court for this series will be jury trials, all the procedures of actual practice will be made use of.

On Saturday next the Glee and Banjo Clubs are to give the Athletic Association a benefit in University Hall. They should have a full house.

Prof. Geo. W. Patterson has in press a translation of a work on "Photometry," by Palza, from the French. It is expected that it will be on sale by May 1st. The professor has added a few chapters bringing the work up to date, and as this will be the only English book upon a subject that is assuming an important position in electrical science, it will be invaluable.

The row concerning the University funny paper is ended, and "grim visaged war has smoothed his wrinkled front." The accordion skirts and lurid underwear of some of the jokes met with disfavor from the Y. M. C. A., and the humor in others, it is alleged, would draw green bottle-flies in hot weather. The charter board was abolished, the editors strangled, a new board and literary corps appointed, and all jokes prohibited under such penalty as a majority of the faculty, acting under the mandates of Y. M. C. A., may see cause to prescribe. All matter of a humorous character, will be submitted to the gas-inspector before publication.—Adrian Press.

An Old Twentieth Michigan Boy.

EDITOR COURIER:

Just before the sun goes down on this beautiful March day, the remains of Wallace W. Bliss, a person who has been well and favorably known in the past history of Washtenaw county, will have been placed in their last resting place.

For upwards of thirty years Wallace had been the constant companion of those who enlisted and went forth from this county—"to the front"—to fight for and defend this beautiful country and the flag that they so much love.

He enlisted in company D, under Capt. C. B. Grant, in the summer of 1862, as a musician, and has always been known since that time as one of the "20th Michigan Drum Corps."

He had always seemed to enjoy himself very much at the gatherings of the old boys, and especially was this the case on the occasion of our encampment two years ago in the capitol of this great country—Washington. There he was accompanied by his son, and he did enjoy himself—in his own words—"better than he had ever done in his life."

They took in all the sights—nothing was too grand or too small (that was of interest) to miss their earnest and unwary search.

But the day came when Wallace, for some reason, desired to go out of business. He sold out, and shortly after it was discovered that he was "loosing his mind."

The first time that the writer of these few lines had his attention called to this fact was one morning as he was passing up main street, they meeting on Huron street crossing, when Wallace suddenly halted, jumped a few steps backward and then coming up again, said, "Why, Jim, I thought you were dead! I read it in last night's paper." After assuring him that we "were worth a dozen dead men yet," and that there must have been some mistake, he commenced to talk about pensions. Claiming that some persons were doing considerable kicking about his drawing a pension, and claiming "That if they suffered as he did, they would not be satisfied with double or triple the amount he was getting." It seemed impossible for him to get the subject of pensions out of his mind, and the longer he talked about it, the more excited and irrational he became, until finally his mind gave way completely.

Within twenty-four hours we heard he had become violently insane, and it was necessary to remove him to the asylum. He was taken there, and died on Saturday last.

His funeral takes place at the house, 20 East Williams street, at three o'clock this afternoon. Welch Post, G. A. R., of which he was an honored member, will attend in a body.

ANOTHER 20TH MICHIGAN BOY.

Must be a Stupid Lot.

Prof. David Swing preached in Chicago recently in Central Music Hall, on the subject "The New Catholics."

In the course of his sermon, referring to the controversy between catholicism and protestantism, Mr. Swing said:

"Much as it is regretted that the Catholic church does not indorse and make use of the public schools, and thank God for a republic that compels the taxes of the rich to give a common education to all the children, even those of the classes the most poor, yet we must all be in judgment the most just and must not assume that to oppose our school system is any proof that the days of blood and torture are to return. In these days religious opinions do not mean guns. Once they did, but that was long ago; and in those times, when opinions meant guns and swords, they had that import among the protestants. The shadow of the sword fell on all churches alike. As no church could escape the dominant ideas of the earlier time, so no church can escape the happier philosophy of the present period.

"Guns for one means guns for all; and now toleration for one means toleration for all. Those societies that are now arming themselves must be composed of protestants and Catholics of the humblest mental equipment. It is full time for the higher and calmer classes to speak out in favor of peace. It would be a disgrace to our country should a single Catholic or protestant be slain in the name of any church of Jesus Christ. Under the influence of our schools, literature and freedom, fanaticisms ought to disappear from religion and permit its large place to be occupied by charity and pity."

Tennyson on Spring.

We have the word of Alfred Tennyson for it that in the spring the young man's fancies lightly turn to thoughts of love. It is singular that the great laureate omitted to mention the fact that it is in the spring that a considerable portion of the human race turn to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Probably nothing but the difficulty of finding a good rhyme for that invaluable remedy deterred him. Certain it is that the old-time domestic remedies are generally discarded in favor of the standard blood purifier, Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has attained the greatest popularity all over the country as the favorite Spring Medicine. It purifies the blood and gives nerve, mental, bodily and digestive strength.

The general democratic sentiment has crystallized upon President Watts for Mayor. There are other candidates but there is some drawback about all but Will. For instance, Dr. Zimmerman is considered too young in his citizenship; Mr. Bogle respectfully but positively says "I don't want it, gentlemen," Mr. Belser don't want anything to do with it, and so on to the end of the chapter.

Charles A. Loder in the comedy, "Oh! What a Night." To remember the many laughs caused by the mishaps of Pottgieiser and others who figure in the dramatic story is to break into a broad smile. The funny incidents are so numerous and follow each other in such rapid succession that the faces of the audience are puckered into laugh shape all the evening. Grand Opera House March 17th.

Lincoln J. Carter, the successful young author and manager of "The Fast Mail," announces as his second bid for public approval, "The Tornado," and recognizing that much of his great success with his first play was due to the fact that he always kept faith with the public, he has adopted as a trade mark this motto: "To hold, as well as win success, keep all your play-bill promises." "The Tornado" will be produced at the Grand Opera House, March 20.

Chas. McConnell, of Owosso, was killed while attending to his duties in the T. & A. R. R. yards in this city, at about 3 o'clock Tuesday a. m. He had been sent back to couple on some cars, and it is supposed that he fell upon the track in some manner and six cars passed over his body, killing him instantly. No one witnessed the accident, and of course no one can tell how it happened. The body was taken to Martin's morgue, an inquest held by Coroner Clark, and a verdict rendered in accordance with the facts as stated. The remains were forwarded to Owosso last night where funeral services will be held. He was a young man of good reputation, and about 20 years of age.

Oh! What a Night?

Secure seats early. The management of the Grand Opera House will put the seats for the above attraction on sale in time to admit of every person desiring a good one to be accommodated without the annoyance of waiting in a crowd at the door. This is one of the best attractions that will appear here this season, and will undoubtedly draw a full house, as they do everywhere. Mr. Charles A. Loder is conceded to be the funniest German character on the stage, and is supported by a strong company.

The following from an exchange says: A farce comedy, new to Brooklyn, was presented at the Novelty Theatre before a crowded house last evening. The play is constructed, as the author says, for the sole purpose of making people laugh. This it did most successfully last evening. The house was in constant roars and the numerous specialties were encouraged again and again. Charles A. Loder is a clever comedian.—Brooklyn Times. Grand Opera House, March 17th.

The case of Mary Kinne against the City of Ann Arbor, for damages for injuries received by reason of a defective grate in a sidewalk in front of an E. Ann st. store, was decided in her favor by the jury in the circuit court yesterday, she being given $65. It is altogether probable that other suits now pending will be brought on.

On to-morrow, Thursday evening, at St. Andrew's church, the popular sacred cantata "The Holy City," is to be given by the vested choir, assisted by several soloists from the vested choir of St. John's church, Detroit. This musical performance is not so heavy as not to be understood by the masses, and yet it is classical and requires excellent skill. It is one of the most popular cantatas ever given. Admission free, but a collection will be taken up at the close to defray expenses.

Ann Arbor Democrat: "I hear the post-office question is now rather quiet. One aspirant spends many anxious hours in reviewing his excellent qualifications for the office and I am told that in his conversation with his friends, the fact of his being a candidate is constantly put before them. With all of this in the air however, Postmaster Beal goes on and attends to his duties and when his time is out and he leaves the office the public will say one and all that Mr. Eugene E. Beal has made a faithful and efficient postmaster."

Hon. A. J. Sawyer is assisting in the defense of the slick and adroit man known to "fame" as DeFrance, on trial at Kalamazoo, for swindling the bank at that place out of a large sum of money, and also wanted in several other places on a similar charge. He is supposed to be the same fellow who attempted a like scheme here, but our bank officials were too "conservative" to allow him to draw any money out on a check before they found out whether he had any on deposit elsewhere. Orla B. Taylor, formerly of this city, now of Detroit, has charge of the defense.

John A. Seyler, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Seyler, of this city, died Tuesday morning, of consumption, aged 20 years. The deceased was an exemplary young man, whose death will be regretted by more than the immediate family. Last spring he was apparently strong and well, and went to the World's Fair in the employ of the Wheel Chair Co., remaining all summer. There he took cold which settled upon his system so firmly that he was unable to shake it off, although he went south and did everything that could be done, but all to no purpose and death resulted. Mr. Seyler was a graduate of the High School, class of '93, and gave evidence of becoming a reliable and active business man. To be taken away, just as life was bursting upon him, is indeed a sorrow, and a great shock to his family, to whom he was very dear, and they have the sympathy of many friends. Funeral services will be held Thursday p. m. at 3 o'clock, from the family residence on E. Liberty st.

The operation performed on Mrs. Shankland, at the County House, by Mrs. Doctor Hartley, Saturday last, proved very successful, and Mrs. S. is doing well, with fair prospects of a speedy recovery.

A more beautiful scene is seldom looked upon than greeted the eyes of the early riser last Thursday morning. The trees had a foliage of the purest white, and everything out-of-doors was covered with a beautiful robe of snow. An energetic photographer could have caught some elegant scenes that morning. Said to be a sugar snow.

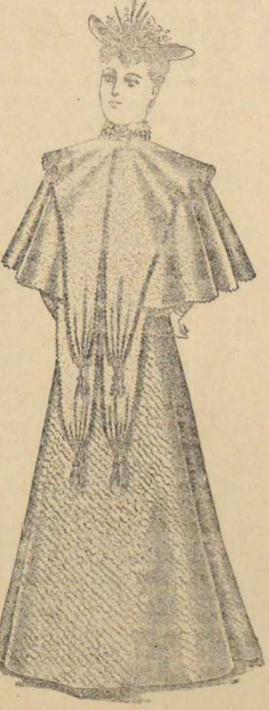

On Saturday, John W. Robison, the young colored man, who had an altercation with his uncle some two years ago, was sentenced to two years and eight months in states prison at Jackson. The difficulty grew out of a severe and unprovoked beating which the uncle inflicted on the prisoner's father, a day or two before. This, notwithstanding the fact that the prisoner used stones and a revolver, (probably to frighten the uncle) led the court to leniency. It also appeared that the prisoner was a peaceable, quiet, industrious young man, who had never carried weapons. He leaves a wife and child in destitute circumstances. Andrew E. Gibson and P. J. Riggs defended the prisoner. In giving the sentence the court announced that hereafter those who carried razors, revolvers, and other dangerous weapons need not ask or hope for clemency; that such lawlessness was utterly inexcusable, and not to be tolerated. And he warned all such that hereafter they would be dealt out the severest penalty prescribed by law.

Permanent Good Long and Discouraging Illness With Symptoms of Consumption All Medicines Fail Except Hood's Sarsaparilla. "C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "Gentlemen:—Ten years ago, my wife's health began to fail. I consulted a physician, and for one year she remained under his care and took all the medicine prescribed, but still grew worse. We then consulted other physicians, and she doctored off and on for four years without any improvement. As her mother died of consumption, and I expected my wife would go the same way. However, feeble as my wife was and though Given Up as Incurable by the physician, I could not give up hope, and she still clung to life. Then we began to try different medicines. We found that of all the preparations taken, a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla had seemed to do her the most good, so she determined to take that medicine again. I bought six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and while taking this lot she seemed to get better. This was so encouraging, after so Long and Discouraging Illness, that she continued with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Her health has improved and she has ceased to complain. She is still taking the medicine, and feels so much better and stronger that we believe her to be in perfect health. Altogether, Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures we have spent $26 for Hood's, a very small amount compared to the big bills in those four years, and considering the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has done her permanent good." PRESIDENT LINCOLN'S HERO.

Col. Wm. Sillowaye, Whom Secretary Stanton Called the Greatest Hero of the war, Cured by Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN. Charles J. Noyes, of the Massachusetts Senate and house of Representatives has been cured by this remarkable medicine, and now we report the extraordinary cure of the illustrious Col. Wm. A. H. Sillowaye, one of the most noted

There never was a time when so many of our great and prominent persons have been cured by one and the same remedy, as have been reported in the papers of late, cured by that wonderful medical discovery, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Hon. Ex-Speaker Charles J. Noyes, of the Massachusetts Senate and house of Representatives has been cured by this remarkable medicine, and now we report the extraordinary cure of the illustrious Col. Wm. A. H. Sillowaye, one of the most noted

Such an astounding cure as this in so prominent a personage as Col. Sillowaye, the personal friend of the President of the United States, Secretary Stanton and officers of the war of whom Secretary Stanton and Secretary Welles said in conference with President Lincoln: "Col. Sillowaye save President Lincoln's life, and we consider him as great a hero as any in the service."

Col. Sillowaye resides at 8 Pine St., Boston, Mass., where in an interview with him he talked very interestingly: "On the 19th of April, 1861, I enlisted in the army of the North. I weighed 162 pounds. After serving four years and eight months in the Army and Navy, and suffering from wounds and rheumatism, I was discharged. I weighed the day I was discharged 109 pounds. Every year I had attacks of nervous prostration; shortness of breath and the loss of appetite were not the least of my misfortunes. I tried numberless things. Nothing did me any good.

"While employed in Boston I was compelled to resign my position on account of ill-health. I consulted several eminent physicians, and took their medicines. No use—I grew worse day after day. They told me I could not live. I could not walk alone in the street without falling or clinging to the railings. At times I would shake and twitch. Had spells of falling down in the office and on the street.

"In the house I had to lie down or drop down; several times I believed I was at death's door. I had been commander of three different G. A. R. Posts, and my comrades advised me to try Dr. Greene's Ner-vura blood and nerve remedy. I bought a bottle, and when I had taken two-thirds of it I began to improve.

"I kept on taking it, improving all the time. I now weigh 130 pounds and feel like my old self again. You can put it in your paper that I attribute my good health to nothing but Dr. Greene's Nervura. I am perfectly satisfied that it saved my life. I am 75 years of age, but, as you can see for yourself, I am as active as a man of 40 and can do a good day's work, as people here well know. My friends in Boston, New York and other places are surprised at my recovery. Indeed, I am surprised myself to be so well. I advise anybody afflicted to buy and try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy at once."

Secretary Welles, of President Lincoln's Cabinet, is the highest and strongest recommendation which any remedy could possibly have.

It is a fact that this wonderful medicine is doing more good all over the land than any other known remedy. Everybody who has used it speaks in the highest terms of it. It is strengthening the weak, building up broken down constitutions and curing the sick and suffering everywhere.

Everybody requires a spring medicine and this is just what you need. Thousands of people, while not exactly sick, are out of order; weak, nervous, run down or ailing in some way. Many people at this season do not eat or sleep well, wake mornings tired, with bad taste in the mouth, dull feeling head and without strength or energy to take hold of their work. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will cure all this; it will make you well. It is the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

These were not ex-Cathedra denunciations, nor bigoted, fanatical propositions; but reasonable and practical rules by which to test our recreations. To night I appeal to all men who are able to reason and to all who are sincere and honest in their desire to do right and only right, as I apply these tests to the dance. And I want to say first, as I said before, that Methodists do not object to dancing—of a certain kind. We do not object to the Bible kind of dancing; leaping for joy in religious ecstasy or in innocent exhilaration.

In Bible times at the religious festivals the maidens danced in bands and the youths in bands. The sexes always danced separately excepting in the Bacchanalian festivals of the heathen which the Bible emphatically disapproves. The only promiscuous dance in which the Children of Israel engaged was that in connection with the making of the golden calf. But they had many pure religious dances, and so in the early church on feast days there was a religious dance in which the Bishop led the chorus. The early Christians believed in dances—of that kind. If your dances are like that I would not disapprove them. There is no sin in the step of a dance. Dancing is the poetry of motion, acted music and it has always been one of the tenses delights of the young. It may be voluptuously beautiful, luxuriously lascivious, fiendishly wild; or it may be gleefully innocent. There is no sin in the step of the dance. "There is no sin in the music of the polka and the waltz, as some queer people think. If the class leader and his wife or if you and your brother should go through the steps of the dance, I should say nothing against it. I do not ask what step. If on the lawn or at the lawn party in the joy of their heart some of the young girls should whirl around in the steps of the dance—that would I care, or any well instructed Christian? I would not ask whether it was the Greek or the American or the African step. You know in Africa they scarcely move their feet at all, but keep time by shrugging their shoulders and working their elbows backwards and forwards. I see no harm in that. The Bushmen support themselves on sticks when they dance and keep one foot perfectly motionless. The other foot does all the dancing. There is no harm in that so far as I can see. In Yucatan they dance on stilts. That might be good exercise. The Hottentots dance on all fours, some imitating the antics of the baboon and others the actions of the frog and the kangaroo. Their dance is literally a hop. Now I see nothing seriously wrong in this and if your teacher of gymnastics should put you through this course I would not disprove it—and I am sure that your calisthenics and Delsarte training can give you all the grace that you would gain from a French dancing master. There is no more sin in keeping time to music with foot or body, any more than with head or hand, and I defy anyone to stop that sort of dancing when the ban plays.

A lady once told me that I was "breaking the discipline," because I was dancing around the parlor with the baby in my arms. That was nonsense. It is no sin to keep time to music. That lady had wholly misunderstood the philosophy of our objections to this amusement—if we have any; and we have.

Now, you knew at the beginning how I was going to come out. You knew that if I approve of the dance that I would not be here, a Methodist preacher. If I had any manhood I would get out of this pulpit if I wanted publicly to favor it. But I want you to know that I am not opposed to the dance because it is contrary to the Methodist discipline to dance. Not at all. What our general rules say on this subject is, that Methodists must not "take such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus." But that is scripture language. If you talk about the narrowness of the Methodist rule, you are talking against the narrowness of the Bible itself. If you think that rule condemns dancing. It is true that from the beginning the highest councils of our church and our most intellectual men have said as Dr. Buckley in a late Advocate, "We will not attempt to prove that among the diversions to be prohibited dancing must be included, because we cannot believe that any Methodist who is not a reproach to the name he bears can have any doubt about it." But the Methodist church is not so much stronger on this point than other evangelical churches. I have testimonies here from the pastoral letter put forth by the Archbishop and Bishop of the Roman Catholic church, from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church and from the most distinguished leaders of the Congregational, Baptist and other evangelical churches, which prove that all of these solemnly believe that the dance of today is not an innocent amusement which can be taken in the name of the Lord Jesus. Local churches of these great denominations may be slack in this matter, and perhaps a preacher here and there, but these great representative bodies speak with no uncertain sound.

Now I have been taken to one side on the street several times this week and warned that what I am going to say tonight would not increase my popularity with the young folks, or with some of the members of this church. Let me say a word about that. In the first place I believe in free speech and I have a perfect contempt for the overgrown infant who can't listen to a man who disagrees with him without becoming his enemy. And secondly I think if there is any place in the world where there should be absolute frankness and honesty of speech and where the face of no man is to be regarded, it is the pulpit. If there is any member of this church who wants a preacher simply to say what he likes to hear—why it isn't a preacher that he wants. He wants one of those men I saw the other day at the anatomical laboratory—polovers they called them, or cadavers or some such name. That's what he wants. Simply put a photograph inside of him and talk out of him on Sunday. It's a cadaver he wants, not a live man with independent reason and conscience and tongue; not a prophet of righteousness; not a preacher of Jesus Christ, who gets his message straight from the sky and utters it frankly and plainly like a man and a Christian. Well, all I have to say, any such person will not be suited with me until I do become a cadaver.

Now for the argument. Once I believed as many of you do that dancing was all right. I know a man can be a good true man and a Christian too and still think that parlor dancing, and such like, are entirely innocent, for I once felt just that way. Shall I tell you frankly why I now disapprove of them and why the evangelical church disapproves of them? Listen then as we apply the tests. No one will probably claim that the dance benefits one physically or mentally. True the exercise if taken at a proper time, in proper degree, in a proper way (as in school), might not be injurious; but I have here the testimony of Dr. Dalton, the great physiologist, declaring that the dance as it is carried on "is an injury instead of an advantage." Therefore if that is the reason you dance the reason is not sufficient. Dance parlors are not sanitariums, as many a poor girl as proved to her cost. Physicians declare that the dance is a prolific source of disease; how dare I or you say it is not hurtful. I lately received a letter from a young lady who asked if I would object to her dancing when it was prescribed by a physician to overcome the mental strain of study. I replied: No, I would not object—unless the prescription were given by a very young physician, or the medicine was suggested by the patient! I called attention, however, to the fact that medicine is not usually taken in public and there was no need of dancing with those who were healthy and in no need of such medicine. She might dance with the other girl patients or get up early in the morning and enjoy a good long dance all by herself. Indeed if the prescription called for the late hours and fashionable dressing and the excitement of a dancing party, I would say, "Better let up on your studies a trifle; for such medicine does not usually make the studies come easier the next day." Is that not true? Do you mothers find your daughters better tempered, more obliging, more energetic, more helpful, more cheerful for going to the dance? No, and the hilarity which brings a reaction of mental sluggishness and sleepiness and dissatisfaction is not a rational and therefore not an innocent amusement.

But is the dance not a benefit to us socially? Certainly not the square dances, for conversation and social intercourse ceases. What shall we say of the round dances? Certainly there is abundant opportunity to get well acquainted. No one denies that there is sufficiently close intercourse. I dare not say all that it is possible to say on this subject. Ah! young men, young women; you with your purity of heart and wholesome home surroundings, you (many of you) know not of the temptation to awful sin, which these dances are to many. I do, for I have had confessions come to me, not one, many—from young men that stood highest in their society circles. The Catholic priest knows more, and the confessional has revealed an abyss beneath the dancing floor. I know from personal and awful knowledge that the modern society dance does affect the social nature; but not for its betterment.

In saying this I stand by the side of every great religious reformer—Knox, Calvin and Wesley and all others; of every missionary; of every great revivalist whom God has honored as a soul winner—Fundy and Mills and Chapman and Moody and Spurgeon, and all others. All of these denounce the round dances as bad in their proved tendencies to evil. Why are these dances so popular, even with the lowest classes of society? Why cannot the same glow of excitement be produced when the young men dance together and the young women together? Why are these so much more popular than the old fashioned, graceful and modest dances, now almost forgotten? There is a reason and it is not a good reason. That man knew the reason whom Punch reports to have told his hostess that he did not dance, but he would be happy to sit out the waltz with his arm around his partner.

I am far from hinting that these dances are not enjoyed by many in perfect innocence so far as their intent is concerned. I know that ladies of the purest refinement and men of the most irreproachable character do this, but no one can read Byron's poem on the waltz or can listen as I have done to a company of young men discussing the last ball, without discovering that some—and some who get to the best society balls—do enjoy these dances and know why they enjoy them, and the reason is not good. That some that you meet in the dances—and must meet, for you cannot discriminate—have these unchivalrous and unholly motives ought to be enough to frighten you away, if your soul is pure, just as soon as you know this. Every minister knows that I have not told half that I might tell. I have the testimonies here of perhaps a dozen of the noblest preachers and bishops of the Episcopal church, who write more plainly than I can speak before the miscellaneous audience. These dances are the dances which voluptuous, licentious Paris taught us, and although you yourself may be too innocent to recognize that spirit of Paris which throbs within them, yet even innocently you ought not to be allowed to harm others by your practice and influence.

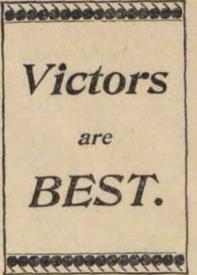

But you say I do not waltz, or if so it is only with my wife or sister, or most trusted friend. Certainly these select home parties cannot in justice be confounded with miscellaneous public balls; but, alas! I have known very few young people, if any, who began with the select parlor dance who did not, at least when away from home, dance just the same and with a company not so select. But you say I do not waltz, I confine myself to the square dances. That's just what I did after awhile—at least I tried to do so. But I would go to places where there was no expectation of any other dances being called than the square dances and the others would be introduced, and when you get there it is almost impossible to refuse when invited. "Why not? you dance. You are not going to be so vulgar and uncharitable as to reflect upon the company by such discrimination are you?" I found it impossible if I danced at all not to dance the round dances, which I knew were doing harm to some of my companions. I saw finally that the dance was an institution which was looked upon with suspicion by the very men I trusted most and would have wanted to pray with me if ever I wanted to be a Christian. I heard progressive Christians sneered at even by dancers because they danced; as if they thought that this was not appropriate for men and women of Christian principle. Even before I became a Christian I wanted to be as stainless in reputation and character as any Christian could be; much more after my conversion did I want my influence to be pure. But I did not find that my relish for the Bible and for the prayer was as great after the dance, nor did I meet the people there who prayed in the prayer meetings or were honored by the Holy Spirit as soul winners. I found that I did not need it physically, mentally or socially. I saw it made no man a more devoted husband, a more respectful lover, more honorable or chaste, and I knew some who had lost in the dance their servitiveness of honor and conscience; their love of the church and of religion. I gave it up. Did I not have sound reasons for my action? Have you not the same?

It occurred to me also, that even, at the most irreproachable dancing party that I ever attended, it would have seemed to me most incongruous and wrong for my pastor or Sunday school superintendent to take part. Yet why not? If it were right for me, it would be right for him.

Hear me young gentlemen: I speak that I do know and testify that which I have seen. The dance is the greatest foe of the Christian life. I have personally known many in country and city who have told me that they could not dance and live a Christian. There were people in the Mills meetings who struggled to be Christians and could not until, finally, they gave up the dance, and then God gave them his peace. The dance deadens the conscience and so intoxicates the senses that men and women will gratify their wild passion even though they must dance over ruined souls and by open graves. Two years ago when the Moravia laid in quarantine at New York, and all America was mourning because of the scourge it had brought to our shores, the dancers on board that ship spent the evening dancing to the most intoxicating music—though they knew that under their flying feet were 22 dead and dying victims of the cholera! That is no worse than to dance over the corpse of broken vows and dance on though one knows that by the dancing immortal souls may be destroyed. Listen! I know individuals in this city who for the love of the dance are periling their souls and have acknowledged this to me. Ah! Their mothers who sent them to the dancing school and thus created a taste for this intoxicating amusement little thought that it would ultimately lead them to this acknowledged and persistent disobedience to God.

"Rejoice, Oh, young man in the ways of thine heart and in the sight of thine eyes; but know thou that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment."

"Happy is he who condemneth not himself in that which he alloweth."

The topic of the next Sunday evening lecture will be "If we can't dance or go to the theater, what can we young people do—play pedro?"

CONGRESSIONAL- Regular Session.

THE senate held a short session on the 6th and but little business of importance was transacted. A brief debate on silver took place and Senator Stewart (Nev.) offered a free silver amendment to the Bland bill. Senator Morgan (Ala.) offered a resolution looking to the appointment of a tariff commission, offered as an amendment to the tariff bill. The debate on the pension appropriation bill continued all day in the house and at times considerable spirit was displayed. The principal speakers were Messrs. Dooliver, Hepburn, Enloe and Cannon. A total of $1,513,788 is carried by the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill which was introduced.

THE senate a bill was introduced on the 6th to put an end to railway ticket scalping. The main interest of the day centered about the discussions as to the disposal of the Bland bill, and it was decided to move to take it up and make it the business before the senate until disposed of. The debate on the pension appropriation bill was continued in the house, the feature of the session being Gen. Sikes' speech criticising the action of Commissioner Leachman.

THE bill passed by the house appropriating $45,000 for the rescue of the armament and wreck of the Kearsarge was passed in the senate on the 7th, and the silver seigniorage bill also passed its third reading. After five days of debate the pension appropriation bill, carrying $191,000,000, was passed by the house without division.

ON the 8th the resignation of Senator White, of Louisiana, was announced in the senate. The Bland seigniorage bill came up as unfinished business, but a vote was postponed for one day. The bill for the sale of unsold portions of the Umatilla reservation in Oregon was passed. The president transmitted some additional Hawaiian correspondence to the senate. The conference report on the urgent deficiency bill was presented and agreed to. The bill abolishing the office of commissioner and assistant commissioner of customs in the treasury department was passed.

IN the senate on the 9th Senator Peffer introduced a resolution for an investigation into the senatorial sugar speculation. The house bill authorizing a bridge over the East river between New York and Long Island was passed. The seigniorage bill was discussed, and it was decided to postpone voting on the measure until the 15th. Adjourned on the 12th. In the house the District of Columbia bill was considered. The night session was devoted to the passage of individual pension bills.

Horticultural Society.

The annual "road meeting" of the Washtenaw Horticultural Society last Saturday afternoon was addressed by Hon. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti. Thomas W. Palmer who was expected failed to put in an appearance, but sent a telegram of regrets.

Mr. Allen endorsed the new road law of Michigan, as the first step in the right direction. Our present method of "working out" the tax in road districts, which has been in vogue since 1830, was well enough when the country was new and one's own labor was all he had to give toward public improvement, but the time had come for more systematic and scientific methods of road making than were possible under the old law. The new law provides that the board of supervisors of each county shall have the power to submit to the people of the county, the question of electing a board of county commissioners who shall have the power to levy taxes for the improvement of highways, these taxes to be spread upon all the taxable property of the county.

Such a law as this, or some modification of it, Mr. Allen thought necessary, if our roads were to be greatly improved. People were opposed to paying toll and would not encourage corporations to undertake the improvement of our public roads for private profit.

Various speakers followed Mr. Allen, nearly all of whom upheld the present law. H. D. Platt thought those with the most political backing, and not those best qualified, would secure control under the new law. Mr. Stocking favored toll roads and believed that those who used the roads should pay for them. Andrew Campbell said our present district system was in use in Scotland 150 years ago but that the best roads in that country were built under a different and more modern system. Secretary Mills believed road work was done as faithfully as any other public service. The farmers were not the ones who were back of this road agitation. Fred Braun believed that our road laws might be improved, but that the act passed by the last legislature was not what was wanted. Macadamized roads, which have been proposed, could not be afforded in our farming communities. It would cost more to merely keep them in repair than our present roads cost. Geo. A. Peters thought the present no time to talk about increased taxation. Benjamin Smith called attention to the fine roads in his part of the county, built under the present law.

After a recess the society appointed a committee to draft suitable resolutions concerning the death of its former secretary, Emil Baur.
