"The Boy Who's Gone Away."

He was "such a little torment."
We all have often said,
Full of noisy fun and mischief
From his feet to ruffled head.
He was hasty, rude and fretful,
Angelic, sweet and gay.
By turns with every moment—
The boy who's gone away.
He tracked mud upon the carpets,
He spilled water on the floors,
He left the windows open,
He never shut the doors,
He raced madly up the staircase
A hundred times a day,
But we miss him very sadly,
The boy who's gone away.
The house seems like a place of death,
It is so strangely still,
Till he returns we have no heart,
No spirit, strength or will,
To do our daily labors,
We can neither work nor play,
For we love him, ah! so dearly,
The boy who's gone away.

University School of Music.

The closing concert of the University School of Music on Thursday evening June 21, will show that the work done by the students who are taking advantage of the exceptional instruction offered by this institution is of the highest grade. Artistically the School is certainly making rapid advancement. A glance at the new members of the faculty will show that the spirit of progress which controls the conduct of the school will rest content with nothing but the highest type of artist teachers.

Mr. Alberto Jonas, the celebrated virtuoso, whose laurels have been gained by repeated appearances before the most critical audiences in Europe and this country, is an artist of the first rank. His accession to the corps of instructors shows that the needs of the most advanced pupils are considered. Mr. Jonas has already booked a large number of concert engagements for this vacation. Ann Arbor can boast of having secured one of the greatest artists in the United States. The artistic work of Mr. Schmaal has made it impossible for any but a great artist to follow him. We are happy to state that Mr. Schmaal's separation from the school is only temporary.

Mr. Gardner S. Lamson, a singer who is recognized as occupying a foremost position both as a concert and oratorio singer, has been secured as vocal teacher. Mr. Lamson is a graduate of Harvard University, and unites with his ability as concert artist the rarest gifts as a teacher. He has had a wide and varied experience of ten years in Boston, the most difficult city in the United States in which to succeed. A glance at the press notices Mr. Lamson has won from the best critics in Boston, will suffice to indicate how strong is his hold upon the Boston public.

Miss Bally will spend the coming year in study in all probability in Europe. Miss Bally has won for herself the admiration of musical circles here as well as in Detroit, so that her departure is looked upon as a distinct loss. We are happy to state that she will, in all probability, return next year.

The wonderful success which Mr. Zeitz has attained as violin teacher is one of the most impressive lessons of the past season. As a piano teacher Mr. Zeitz has also done first-class work and endeared himself to all his pupils by his sympathy and enthusiasm.

The duty of our citizens toward the School is as plain as day. An earnest effort is being made to build up a great institution in our midst—a school which shall rank with the first in this or any country in developing slowly but surely. Every step taken by the Board of Directors is the result of conscientious study of the problem and with the cordial support of all the School will be in better position than ever before to do work of the highest artistic worth.

America for Americans, and Old Glory floating over every school house and public building in the land is a good enough platform for any party. The republican party would do well to adopt it, and say no more.

Belongs to the Ring.

The services of Chas. B. Davison, who has been a faithful member and active worker in Fraternity Lodge, F. & A. M., for these many years, was recognized last Wednesday evening by the gift of an elegant Masonic ring with diamond settings. The ring was the gift of the officers of Fraternity lodge, and Worshipful Master John B. Dowdigan, Junior Warden Horace G. Prettyman, Junior Deacon Oscar Burkhardt, and Stewards Geo. B. Rhead and Elmer E. Beal, dropped in at Mr. Davison's home that evening and in behalf of the officers reminded him that it was his 53d birthday, and left the ring as a memento of the event, and a testimonial of the esteem and affection of his brothers for him. Mr. Davison was completely surprised, but as he never allows himself to be taken off his feet, he managed to say a few feeling words in reply. There was never a present more deserved than this one, and we believe but very few ever more thoroughly appreciated. While the recipient has been honored several times by Fraternity lodge in being selected as its W. M., he has always retained his interest therein, and given the organization his best efforts, and there are to-day but few members in the United States who can equal him in the work required in a masonic lodge. He is always on hand and never fails to respond to his name. May he live many years to enjoy the beautiful gift.

Mission Work in the Episcopal Church.

At the annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal church, in the Diocese of Michigan, recently held in Detroit, a canon was adopted giving the Bishop authority to divide the Diocese into a number of districts for the better organization and carrying forward of the missionary work of the church in the Diocese. Bishop Davies has at once taken advantage of this new canon, and has divided the Diocese into four districts. These districts are named convocations. The superintendence of the missionary work of each convocation is committed to an executive officer who bears the title of Dean.

The convocation in which Ann Arbor is situated, and which will be known as the southern convocation, comprises six counties, Hillsdale, Lenawee, Monroe, Washtenaw and Livingston, and Bishop Davies has appointed the Rev. Henry Tatlock, rector of St. Andrew's church, Ann Arbor, as Dean of this Convocation.

The Deans of the other convocations are the Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, D. D., of Detroit, the Rev. Ralph E. Maeduff, of Flint, and the Rev. Thomas W. MacLean, of Bay City.

The first meeting of the Southern Convocation will be held at Hamburg, on Tuesday, June 26th, and a part of the proceedings of this meeting will be a service, with addresses, celebrating the semi-centennial anniversary of the organization of the Hamburg parish. This service will begin at 10:30 a. m.

Death of Mrs. Spring.

The funeral services of Pauline, the wife of August F. Spring of Penetanguishine, Ont., were held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mr. Spring's brother, Emanuel C. Spring, No. 13 1/2 S. Fifth ave., many friends and relatives being present. Rev. John Neumann officiated, paying a touching tribute to the departed, using for his remarks the same text as he used at her wedding, June 27, 1893. The Bethlehem church choir rendered appropriate anthems in a touching manner, after which the casket, almost covered with beautiful floral offerings, was conveyed to the quiet repose of Forest Hill cemetery, and interred in the family burial lot. The deceased was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Huss, of Ann Arbor, and was 27 years of age. A bereaved husband and infant son survive her. Among the relatives who were present at the funeral were her brothers Theodore, of Saginaw, Ernest, of Dayton, Ohio, Alfred, of Monroe, and Eugene, of Akron, Ohio, William Herrle, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Widenmann, Rev. Fred Volz and family, Miss Hannah Spring and Henry Helm, of Saginaw, Mrs. Martha Steinbach, of Chelsea, and Mrs. C. Hilder, of Detroit.—Daily Times.

This is to Introduce Mr. Smith.

When the Ann Arbor Press Club—bless its lively carcass—holds another meeting it will have a name to inscribe upon its membership roll, that of E. J. Smith—Smith is an odd name isn't it?—formerly of the Adria Press, now, by the grace of Grover Cleveland, (and Mr. J. Gorman) the city editor of the Ann Arbor Argus. While we never have met Mr. Smith, we know him well, and he is acquainted with us. His epidermis is covered with scars where we have jabbed our cold steel (pen) deep into his quivering conscience, and in turn have been inundated and drowned out times without number by the flood of choice words flung into quaint Anglo-Saxon paragraphs, and ink (Arnold's best green-black) (not black and blue it will be noted), which he has poured upon our unprotected occiput in an unending torrent. His wit is keen, his sarcasm like the famous blade referred to by scholars and poets. There is poetry in his soul and goodwill in his heart. His parents called him E. J., not A. J. by any manner of means. He is one whom we shall all delight to honor, and extend to him the same hand (in the same to those we greet. We shall huddle up a little closer and make room for him on the bench. The Argus is to be congratulated, and so is Smith. The citizens of the city will be convulsed and telt city will be augmented by adding another citizen—too had he didn't get here quick enough for the census enumerator to get him (but if he will take up his abode in the 4th ward we will use every endeavor possible to get him upon the list). In all seriousness we extend our right hand to Bro. Smith and bespeak for him the good will of all Ann Arborians.

Teachers' Institute.

The Institute for Washtenaw county will commence Monday, July 9, at 9 a. m., in the high school building in this city. The regular institute will continue for one week. The work will be continued for two weeks longer with the same kind of instruction in the nature of a summer normal. All the branches required for a third grade certificate will be presented. The institute will be divided into sections and the instruction will be both academic and professional. A section will be devoted to Algebra and Natural Philosophy, thus enabling those desiring to prepare for second grade examination to have a thorough review. Every one who attends must work. Credit will be given on certificates of all classes for attendance. An excellent opportunity will be afforded for review. Let every teacher come. For further particulars apply to M. J. Cavanaugh, Ann Arbor, Mich., local committee.

High School Alumni Banquet.

Preparations for the A. A. H. S. alumni banquet Friday evening, are all completed. Returns show that there will be an unusually large attendance, the special effort to make the reunion part of the programme prominent having been received most cordially by the alumni. The banquet has usually begun at 10 and closed at 11:30 leaving not more than an hour and a-half for dancing. This year the banquet will begin promptly at 9 o'clock, giving an additional hour afterward. Toasts at the banquet will be responded to by G. Frank Altmendinger, W. W. Watts, Julius E. Beal, Chas. H. Cooley, Supt. W. S. Perry and Miss Winifred E. Beman.

Mr. Stead will please take note that the first organization to take action upon the late Willie C. P. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, was the Union League Club of Chicago. He has been expelled from the membership thereof. Give the greatest windy city one credit, mark, at least.

The gold in the U. S. treasury is down to the danger limit once again! But then, it doesn't matter much. You know the government presses are not very busy just now, and more gold bonds can be easily printed.

Detroit has a $5,000 health officer who lets small pox patients die in public hotels because he is a doctor, and professional ethics would not warrant his doing his duty. There's a fellow who wouldn't pull a knife out of a man if some other ethical cuss had jabbed it into him. A little less salary and ethics, and a little more good sense would be for Detroit's good in the health department.—Adrian Press.

What is the matter with the democrats? Troubles at home and abroad. Is the loss system bound to prevail? asks the timid democrat. Most assuredly. The boss has his slate in hand and operates eth machine, turning out delegates to county and state conventions at will, and the people have no choice in such matters. They are only called upon to vote after the boss has arranged the ticket.—Fenton Independent.

The Trackman's Journal, the official organ of the brotherhood of railroad trackmen, says that the members of that organization are kindly and friendly disposed toward Gov. Rich, and the Journal will plead for his election if Gov. Rich is renominated. The Trackman's Journal also says that the best interests of all laboring men are now plainly to be seen to be secured through support of republican candidates.—Cadillac News.

It will do the Polacks of Detroit lots of good to be obliged to fight potato bugs and the weeds for a season, for before he harvest of tubers is gathered in, they will have learned that eternal vigilance is the price of potatoes, as it is of liberty. Let Pingree's experiment be tried; by all means give the anarchists the responsibility of reaping a harvest in the sweat of their faces, for then they will realize what it costs to secure what a day's work is worth.—Ypsilantian.

The Argus, in seeming seriousness, remarks: "Chelsea is to be congratulated upon the appointment of Geo. S. Laird as postmaster. Mr. Laird is a hustling young democrat," etc. The democrats of that vicinity point with pride to the word "young" in that sentence, and claim that Laird's demeracy is yet in its soothing syrup state, not being a year old. Others say that Laird was not appointed for his own sweet sake, but as a stool pigeon for some other person, who is to be deputy, do all the work and draw the pay, but who Gorman did not wish to appoint postmaster because it might invite criticism.

It is amusing to hear the Argus yell machine at the republicans. In the interior of the state it has great sympathy with "Pingree's followers," who it is alleged are attempting to smash the so-called machine of the republican party. In Detroit, Pingree and his followers are the machine, and so it goes. It will be noted that any person who is successful in securing a nomination for any position immediately becomes a member of the machine. The Argus would do well to pay some attention to its own two machines—twins. They do not run in harmony as twins ought to, but in direct opposition to each other. Their names are Don and Dan and both are beautiful fighters. They will have a fight to a finish it is expected at Grand Rapids, on June 22nd.

AN UNFORTUNATE MOVEMENT.

A one-term republican club was formed in Detroit last week by the opposers of Gov. Rich. The men present were mostly composed of three classes, first, the Detroit appointees of Mayor Pingree; second, the ambitious state office-seekers who failed to get an office from the governor, and third, the drifters, who think the present Coxe wave will so carry away the people that Pingree will be put in as governor through his hatred of corporations. Thereby they think to become solid with what they consider the heir-apparent.

It is an unfortunate movement both for the men who lend themselves to such politics and for the party by which the most of them have been honored. It lays them open at once to the charge of sordidness, and no one cares to see the man who goes around exhibiting an inflamed or an inflated cranium. Therefore is greatly damaged their future usefulness and influence in the party when they show such weakness as to allow themselves to be led away by so thin an excuse against Gov. Rich as a one-term idea. The majority of the people will see through this gauze and laugh at the fellows who do not. Hence when they have butted their heads against the stone wall of the popular approval of John T. Rich's course as governor, there is danger of these heads being even sorer than they are now.

The people of Michigan have watched with intense interest the many and courageous act of their chief executive in rebuking, turning out and showing up these officials who have attempted to betray the sacred ballot and falsify their votes. They will not now go back on him for doing as he did, for if they do say to all his successors: "It is better to wink at and cover up any fraud, if it be done by a member of your own party." Heaven help the morals of Michigan, when her people discourage uprightness, fearlessness and honorable discharge of duty, to encourage fraud, deceit, ballot crimes and perjury!

Why, don't those members of the One-term project see that their action is dangerous to the party? Let them carefully read Friday's Free Press editorial which in commenting on their meeting says: "It will make a terrific fight against the existing order of things and insure an antagonism that will assert itself at the polls. It is a movement that strengthens the hands of democracy, and with loyal, united, determined action on its part, the bolt in the republican party will not only deprive Gov. Rich of a second term, but give the succession to a democrat."

If they go on with this it will look as though that is what they are trying to do, but we opine that Coxeism in Michigan will not go this year.

QUESTION FOR DEMOCRATS.

Speaking of the vote on sugar, every democrat except Senator Hill voting for it, the New York Sun says: The loss to the government by that vote on sugar may be stated briefly:

Table with 2 columns: Description, Amount. Rows include: By the extension of the bounty on raw sugar ($18,300,000), By the postponement of the duty on raw sugar ($3,000,000), Total ($21,300,000).

Can political cowardice go further? Can personal humiliation be deeper or disgrace more lasting?

Senator Hill wrote to the president of a democratic club in N. Y., city as follows:

"An income tax feature has no proper legitimate place in a tariff reform bill. It engenders and embarrasses an honest, equitable revision of our tariff laws, which was expected, if not desired by the citizens of all parties. The unfortunate effort to incorporate it in the pending measure has delayed a speedy disposition of the tariff subject and induced a surrender of nearly every correct and consistent principle upon which a tariff reform measure should be based. It is clear that it would not be adopted by congress if senators would vote according to their own conscientious conviction, rather than in pursuance of a dicker and a contemptible compromise, couched upon no principle, and tolerated only as a miserable makeshift or expedient."

For this some of our democratic contemporaries, who think the income tax feature is going through, severely criticize the astute leader of the New York democracy. But they will swallow it all in good time when in 1896 they are booming him at the head of their ticket.

GOLD MINES OF COLORADO.

(From Harper's Weekly.)

While silver still remains a moral rather than an economic issue in Colorado, and a citizen's opinion on the coinage question establishes his social status as his views on baptism would have done in another decade, the year 1894 is witnessing the evolution of the state from a silver-producing to a gold-producing one. Finding it impossible to mine silver profitably at present prices, the Colorado miners have simply turned their attention to the gold-bearing veins of the great mineral belt reaching from Long's Peak to beyond the south west corner of the state, and they promise to dig up during the year from fifteen to twenty millions of dollars in the yellow metal. Nor is this estimate an extravagant one. Besides the newly discovered district at Cripple Creek, where there are millions almost literally "in sight," and the "Little Kingdom of Gilpin," which has been steadily producing its quota of gold for more than a quarter of a century, there are estimated to be five thousand opened veins in old or abandoned camps which have lain dormant since the mining of silver has been so much more profitable than gold, but which have been taken up this spring. And in the districts of Leadville, San Juan, Boulder, Clear Creek, Silver Cliff, Roleta, Breckenridge, Red Cliff, and innumerable other camps, thousands of the silver miners of a year ago are now at work in the gold mines, and thousands more are prospecting in the mountains, and daily locating new claims. All through this vast gold territory, two hundred miles long by eighty miles wide, there is scarcely a square mile of hillside where the conditions of mineralization exist that does not bear the marks of the gold hunter—either the mine in full operation, with its shaft-house and "dump," or the small mound of yellowish soil where the miner has perhaps unsuccessfully put his probe, or which marks a spot where a mining plant is to be erected; but nowhere throughout the gold region do the sides of the grand old mountains remain unscarred.

Cripple Creek is the camp on the "boom," and hence the most interesting to the mere sight-seer. It is also the most productive camp in the state, over two and a quarter millions of dollars having been taken out of the ground last year, and the estimated production of this year, with two railroads soon to be completed into the camp, being $7,000,000. The Cripple Creek district lies near the western base of Pike's Peak, 9400 feet above the sea level, at a distance from Colorado Springs of twenty miles as the crow flies, or more than thirty miles if the crow preferred to go, by the way of the Midland Railroad and the stage-coach line. It is not until the traveler boards the train that winds among the lofty hills from Colorado Springs to Midland, whence the rest of the distance is by stage or wagon over the mountains, that the appearance of his fellow-passengers begins to suggest the wilderness and the rugged life of the mines. Until we reached Colorado Springs the passengers on the trains were the usual heterogeneous lot that one sees on the railroads all over the country. The occupants of the train that left Midland, however, were all obviously mining men intent on mining business or tourists bent on little else than pleasure. A fine-looking lot of men they were, too, big fellows with slouch hats and trousers in boots for the most part, mine-owners, prospectors, and speculators. One of them was accompanied by a pretty little girl, not more than five or six years of age, who was evidently a veteran traveler, to judge from the experienced air with which she took off her fur tipped, cloak, and hat, and handed them, one after the other, to her father to place in the rack above her head before she settled her small self comfortably at the windows. I was told that she had been born in a mining camp, where her mother died, and that, following her father's varying fortunes, she had during her brief career roughed it in most of the camps of the state, and a more contented little girl than she appeared to be I have seldom seen. The only others of her sex were two brilliantly attired ladies who remained under middle age with a cosmetic effort, and who, like their fellow-passengers, were going to Cripple Creek—"adventuresses" they would be called in polite society. There was an evil-faced gambler, accompanied by a lame bull pup, for which he evinced a tender solicitude; and an English capitalist, who was said to represent a syndicate that was prepared to invest largely in mines, travelled with us in charge of an American promoter, who had brought the other across an ocean and a continent.

At Midland everything was delightfully primitive, pristine and frontier-like—when we turned our backs upon the engine. Two old-fashioned stage-coaches of the earliest type, looking exactly as if they had been modelled after one of Remington's pieces, were waiting at the station, and to each of these were attached six powerful horses, obviously bred by another Remington student. The drivers were just the sort of men that Bret Harte has told us all about—big and picturesque, and each absolute lord of his equipage and all who embarked with him. There were passengers enough to more than crowd both stages inside and out; and when the overloaded vehicles started, with the small and experienced traveler aforementioned looking out of the window of one, and the lame bull-pup through the legs of the driver of the other, those who were left were obliged to wait for the stages that met the afternoon train, or to hire a special conveyance at the livery stable. Four of us drove over the mountain together in a surry drawn by a pair of brisk horses, whereby it was that we reached the hotel at Cripple Creek more than an hour ahead of the stages. The drive from Midland to Cripple Creek on a fresh spring morning is something to be remembered. The narrow road winds along the edge of the mountains above precipitous cliffs, occasionally taking a short cut through the sparsely growing timber to issue on a narrow ledge over another deep gorge. At varying distances the road was broadened to allow teams to pass each other, on which occasions there were very few chances to spare between the wheels of the outside vehicles and the edge of the precipice. Our driver told us that there was no danger of our going over, but the occasional bodies of dead horses on the rocks in the gullies below did not tend to weaken an impression that the locality might be unhealthy in some circumstances. But it was not any fanciful danger of falling off the mountain that made the drive memorable. The scenery, along this stage route is as magnificent as almost anywhere in the Rockies. From one point the eye takes in a sweep of 300 miles of mountain ranges, with Pike's and Long's peaks looming grandly in the middle distance, while far to the southwest the white crests of the Sangre de Cristo are outlined against the sky, and the intervening landscape presents a scene of tangled forest, black hills, and gloomy valleys that rouses the latent barbaric instinct that exists in every human breast, and makes one feel an impulse to turn his back forever upon civilization and roam those primeval solitudes in savage freedom—or an hour or two.—Harper's Weekly.

AS TRUE NOW AS 110 YEARS AGO.

Adam Smith, the father of British political economy, in his "Wealth of Nations," which was the bible of free traders until it was seen that his teachings led to protection, says, as an example of pig-headed foolishness: "To diminish the number of those who are capable of paying for it is surely a most unpromising expedient for encouraging the cultivation of corn (wheat). It is like the policy which would promote agriculture by discouraging manufactures." Just now the majority of one of our great political parties is trying, or at least it says it is trying, to promote agriculture and the prosperity of farmers by—discouraging manufactures! It has already seriously diminished the number of those who are capable of paying for farm produce, and it proposes to make this diminution permanent and increase the number of destitutes by closing our factories, mines and workshops. During the last presidential campaign farmers were told of the large wages paid for work in American factories, and they were advised to use the free trade club against those men who were their customers. This they did. Since then cotton has fallen in value and the price of wheat has been making records, each one of which unfortunately is lower than the previous one, and the lowest depth is not yet reached. On the other hand it does not seem the best policy to discourage agriculture with the hope of promoting manufactures. The British "Anti Corn Law League" thought to break down agriculture that labor might be plenty and wages low. The agricultural returns for last year show that 175,000 less acres are returned as arable land in Great Britain for 1893 than in 1892. Comparing this with the returns for 1873 it is seen that the diminished "surface carrying corn" is 1,800,000 acres. The result of this successful effort to debase the British labor market, or at least to hinder the natural increase in wages, has been that British manufacturers depend almost entirely on foreigners for a market, as they depend on foreigners for two-thirds of their bread. Two months of war with a maritime nation would bring starvation to many, and if Flidun does not get his free ship bill through, so that washed sides can be made to so-called American citizens and their vessels put under the protection of the United States flag; if they have to run their vessels under the protection of the British flag, insurance and the difficulty of reaching their usual markets will turn a large proportion of their artisans out of work to meet famine prices for food. It is an old saying that what comes over the devil's back will go under the devil's belly. And any such gains as President Cleveland has argued for, gains acquired through preaching "greed and selfishness," through encouraging class animosity and sectional distrust will be for the nation like those referred to in the saw quoted. The mass of those who receive such gains, however, will not suffer with the people of the United States, for those of them residing here at present can easily return to their homes in Europe with their profits.—American Economist.

Mrs. Cleveland and the Cabinet Circle

(From Harper's Bazar.)

At one of the small almost informal luncheons given Mrs. Cleveland in one of the cabinet homes this spring, it was proposed that the feminine half of the little administration family circle should drive to a photographer's studio and sit for their portraits in a group. It was a very happy thought, and the successful result has given great pleasure to their circle of friends who received these interesting souvenirs, which are admirable portraits of all those who stand at the president's right hand on state occasions. The wives of the president's cabinet advisers under this administration, have formed one of the most united and harmonious circles known in many administrations. No tales of jealousies, rivalries, small spite, or overshadowing of one another have regaled the Washington gossip clubs. These women, so brought to the front and charged with maintaining the social popularity of the administration, and acting as hostess for it to the whole country have all proved themselves women of dignity, sense, and intelligence, and in every way worthy their high position.

The cabinet families, officially and socially, are a part of a great White house family, necessarily brought together by the obligation of state entertainments, and meeting many times a week as long as they stay in Washington. The president being the Washington social winter with his New Year's reception, when all the cabinet ladies assist him in receiving the congratulations of the different official bodies, and at three card receptions and a public levee which follow they lend the same aid. The state dinner at the White House began with the dinner to the cabinet families, to which only the more distinguished and intimate friends of the president's family are ever asked. After that each cabinet officer tenders a dinner to the president and his wife. President Cleveland, whose taste would never lead him to become a professional dinner-out in the high season, expressly asked that these cabinet dinners be restricted to that intimate circle, so that all such feasts this winter have been the most intimate little family parties, where talk was unrestricted, all formality and stiffness banished. In addition to this, the ladies of this cabinet introduced a new feature, which will, of course, be permanent, hereafter, as such happy innovations soon crystallize into fixed customs. Each of the cabinet ladies in turn tendered Mrs. Cleveland a luncheon, and this form of entertainment allowed them to include other guests, and pay the highest compliment to such friends by inviting them to meet "the first lady of the land."

All of them are devoted enthusiastically to Mrs. Cleveland, who as a young mother, has achieved even greater popularity and esteem than she enjoyed eight years ago as a young bride. In beauty and attractiveness she has gained greatly in charm, ease, and finish of manner than before, while retaining the simplicity and naturalness which were such aids to popularity from the very first. As the mother of two young children, and a most conscientious and devoted mother, Mrs. Cleveland cares less for society itself and gives less time to it than during her former stay in Washington, but she has the time, and she possesses much more scrupulously carried out all that custom exacts from the mistress of the White House. Although much younger than several of the ladies of the cabinet circle, Mrs. Cleveland is easily their leader and controlling spirit, and it has never been said that the young mistress of the White House was directed by any one in her social conduct. While youth, beauty, health, wealth, high position, and a phenomenal personal popularity, Mrs. Cleveland seems to have been favored by all the fairies at her birth, and now at the height of all those endowments must have realized all her material and other ambitions for this world. No portraits have ever done her justice, nor entirely satisfied her admirers. The photographers' most sensitive plates have not succeeded in catching the charm of expression and the animation which adds so much to her countenance and constitute its greatest charms. She soon lost the brilliant color in her cheeks which marked her when she visited the White House as Frankie Folsom, the school-girl of nine years ago, and she has now a complexion as pale and pure as even as a magnolia leaf, set off by the dark brown hair, brushed back and dressed in the simplest knot.—Harper's Bazar.

Northern Michigan Resorts

Few places offer so many advantages for tired people as do the popular resorts on the shores of Lake Michigan and its tributary bays.

Bay View, Potoskey, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Traverse City, and Grand Traverse Bay Resorts are peculiarly inviting during the hot weather by bracing air, cool nights and freedom from dust contrivances to make this region a natural Sanitarium, for the recuperation of exhausted energies.

To those interested, Bay View offers special advantages in the great Chataqua course and Assembly, held in July and August, the program of which will be of unusual excellence this year, comprising classes in many branches of learning and lectures by noted professors and teachers from the highest colleges and universities of this country.

The Way to Reach these RESORTS

IS VIA THE CHICAGO AND WEST MICHIGAN RAILWAY, which runs through the entire region, and is known as "The Scenic Line," on account of the beautiful scenery through which it passes, traversing the shores of lakes, rivers, and bays, for miles, which, with the splendid service offered by this line makes the trip a delightful one.

Through parlor and sleeping cars from Detroit to Potoskey and Bay View, are run during July, August and September; via the Detroit, Lansing & Northern Railroad to Grand Rapids, thence via the C. & W. M. Tourist tickets at reduced rates are sold at principal stations on these and other lines from June 1st to Sept. 30—good to return until Oct. 1.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

John Smalley, a pioneer of Clinton, died June 12.

In some parts of the county a light hay crop is reported.

The Arbeiter Verein of Saline has now 73 active members.

Schools close in Saline to-morrow with the usual exercises.

Gov. Rich will fire off a patriotic speech at Orion July 4.

Base ball banquets: Chelsea 32, Manchester 3. Later: Manchester 60, Chelsea 10.

F. E. Munger is now sole proprietor of that newsy little paper, the Dundee Ledger.

The Arbeiter society of Saline will celebrate the 4th of July with a picnic at their park.

Hon. S. G. Ives, of Chelsea, has gone to Battle Creek, to seek better health at the Sanitarium.

Jackson is to have a balloon race on the 4th of July. Its congressional race will come later on.

The graduating exercises of the Ypsilanti high school takes place at the M. E. church next Friday, June 22.

The people about Saline have been losing their cows recently, three dying last week owned by different ones.

Some of the Bridgewater farmers are cutting their rye for hay. That is better than to drink the distilled product.

The Saline Observer man remarks "a glass of liquor sells to-day for as much as it did twenty years ago." Uh-um-m-m!

Fred L. Keeler, a Sharon boy, has accepted the principalship of the schools at Houghton, U. P., at $1,000 salary.

The Dundee Ledger playfully remarks: "A little money now and then is relished by the most of men." Must be a joke.

Gen. Geo. Spaulding, of Monroe, is to deliver the oration at the 4th of July celebration in Dundee. No politics in it, of course.

Why do we not hear some one say, "I am a democrat?" Is it that they are afraid of being asked which kind of a democrat?

The B. Y. P. U. national convention is to be held in Toronto, July 19-22. Many delegates are being elected thereto about the county.

The enterprise complains of the luxuriant crop of weeds in the mill pond at that place. Why not extract them? Pond's extract you know.

John N. Morgan, who lived southeast of Saline, suffered a sunstroke last week, and died within a few hours. He was 80 years of age.

Miss Agnes died at the home of her father in Dexter township, June 12th aged 26 years. The remains were interred in the Dexter cemetery.

J. E. Avery, of Saline, is a breeder of Jersey cattle, and the constantly growing popularity of that breed makes it pretty certain that he has struck the right trail.

Mr. Allen has resigned as marshal of Ypsilanti, and Mayor Seymour has appointed P. W. Ross as his successor. This gives nearly all the offices to the democrats now.

The only remedy for insects of all kinds that attack fruit and other trees is Paris Green and the spraying pump. They must be used early and often enough to kill the pests.

Thomas J. Green, of Ypsilanti, was married recently at Charlotte, to Miss Nellie Foreman, daughter of ex-Mayor Foreman of that city. It was one of the most stylish weddings of the year, at Charlotte.

There is bitter complaining about the mail service at Saline. The only true way out of the dilemma is to build the Adrian, Saline, & Ann Arbor Electric Air Line R. R. on the earth instead of in the atmosphere.

The writer of this item has traveled about the state considerably of late, and finds that many orchards have been nearly ruined by the canker worm. The trees in entire orchards in some places, look as though fire had swept through them.

A chunk of copper weighing 32 lbs. and being 95 per cent. pure metal, was ploughed up on a farm four miles west of Lansing, recently.—Mason Democrat. Perhaps that is a copper bottomed farm, one that was made to withstand such pests as the Wilson bill?

Saline Observer: A petition was sent in from here last week asking for a better mail service. The request has been granted, and we now get a noon mail each alternate day from Pittsfield. It is a dandy too, as it only includes Ann Arbor mail and a few scattering letters. No dailies or eastern mail at all.

Geo. E. Schafer loaded a car, Tuesday, with Boscage racks, sixty in all. They will be shipped to a firm in Iowa who are anxiously awaiting them.—Saline Observer. Very well. If the firm in Iowa know what they want, and those are the articles, it's all right. But it would wreck a man's brain hereabouts to tell what a Boscage rack is.

Miss Dennis who is employed by the Congregational home mission society in teaching in North Carolina, arrived at her home in Salem, recently, for her summer vacation.

Judson Thompson, a highly respected citizen of Salem, died very suddenly last week. He was a graduate of the Ann Arbor high school, and had attended the University one year. He was 49 years of age.

Wolverine Lodge No. 197, I. O. O. F., has elected its officers for the ensuing term as follows: N. G.—E. W. Mead; V. G.—W. H. Whaley; Secretary—J. S. Bray; Treasurer—S. T. Blackmer.—Milan Leader.

Talk about your business enterprise! A worthy resident of a neighboring township died soon after noon recently, and his monument had been ordered of a dealer 20 miles away by 5 o'clock the same day.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

Dates for teachers' examinations at Ann Arbor are as follows: Regular, last Thursday and Friday in August; special, first Friday in August, and last Friday in September. First and second grade certificates are granted only at regulars.

An effort is being made to organize a colored Knights of Pythias lodge at Ypsilanti. They have colored applewags, dark lanterns, black beans and as soon as they can secure a black goat they will be ready to begin night work.—Adrian Press.

Adrian Press: "The Ypsi department, of the Ann Arbor Times avers that postmaster Pete Carpenter has 'joined the smugmugs.' Must be a step-brother to a mugwump, then, and the columns of The Press are at his disposal, to make such explanation as the case demands."

Don't swear when your neighbor's chickens hold high carnival in your early lettuce bed. Just knock them over with a club, throw them over the fence, and listen while their owner dross the profanity act. It's more gratifying, besides being in the line of morality.

The Enterprise propounds the following conundrum for Manchester: If the railroad company cared to be accommodating to the public, why not run the freight train three days and the passenger train the other three days instead of running both trains the same days and having no trains at all the other three.

A private letter from Prof. Still U. S. minister to Corea, to a friend in Ypsilanti, has the following paragraph published in the last Sentinel: "We had a prosperous voyage and are all quite well except that Mrs. Still is still plagued by rheumatism. Everything here is new and interesting, and we are all enjoying ourselves. There are several acres in our legation grounds and I expect to have my usual amount of fun in farming."

Persons who believe in luck and signs, say an exchange, will doubtless agree that it is unlucky to be struck by lightning on Monday, or to take hold of a circular saw on Tuesday, or to tumble down stairs with a bundle of coal on Wednesday, or to be hit by a switch engine on Thursday, or catch the grip on Friday, or marry a girl on Saturday who swings ten pound dumb bells, or to be one of a party of thirteen when there is only rood for ten.—Fowlerville Observer.

The commencement exercises of the Manchester high school occurs Thursday evening, June 21, at Arbeiter Hall. The graduating class is composed of Herbert D. Witherell, president; B. Fred Buttless, vice president; Frances J. Logan, secretary; Florine M. Renaud, treasurer; Warner A. Spencer, Edith M. Kapp, Homer O. Palmer and Rose E. Scully. The class colors are green and white, the flower, sweet pea, and the motto, "Gaining Ground." Mrs. R. C. Miller of Toledo, Miss Edith Chamberlain of Horton, James Dwight Hause, of Clinton, Mrs. A. F. Freeman and the male quartette of this village will furnish vocal and instrumental music.

Dexter proposes to let the eagle scream on the 4th of July, and the Leader announces one of the largest and most complete celebrations ever known in the county. The address will be delivered by Hon. Jas. McNamara, of Alpena, it is hoped. All of the surrounding towns have been given vice presidents, Hon. J. T. Jacobs and Ewart H. Scott, Esq. holding the position for this city. Games, processions, brass bands, fire works, pyrotechnic patriotism, fire crackers, American eagle oratory, crackers and cheese, music, etc., etc., will fill in the day's sports. As Ann Arbor has no celebration many of our people will no doubt visit Dexter on that great day.

CANKER WORM CURE. J. M. Gross writes to the Saline Observer a remedy for that awful pest known as the canker or army worm, which is devastating so many apple and fruit trees in this county: My remedy is Pine tar. About 18 years ago my orchard was about ruined and the next winter on pleasant days I prepared my trees by scraping the rough bark off the trunk about two or three feet from the ground, so as to form a smooth ring around the tree about 6 inches wide, and just as the frost was coming out of the ground I put on pine tar with a large flat brush, spread it all around the ring for about four weeks as often as the tar began to glaze over and I must have struck every female miller, as no worms have been seen since and my trees look as good as ever after the first application. It takes but little tar and little time, but to be successful begin early and do it thoroughly, do not let the tar glaze over or get so covered with millers as to give others a chance to get over.

SHARTAN SHOT. A difference of sentiment which seems to have existed for some time between Prof. Shartan the principal of the Dexter schools, and the school board of that place, culminated in an open rupture last week. The professor was discharged by the board and Miss Grace Hall, the preceptress was given charge of the schools until they closed. In respect to the affair the Leader remarks: "As is usual in cases of this kind there is a division in public sentiment as to the justice of the Board's action, not only as it concerns Prof. Shartan but the school as well. However, they gave the matter a fair and impartial investigation and their action was not taken until they were in full possession of all the facts in the case. What effect this trouble will have upon the school's next year can only be conjectured. One thing is certain—it will do them no good; but with a new hand at the helm and everyone doing his best to eradicate the effects of the mistakes and dissensions of the past year, let us hope that the injury will be so slight as not to materially affect their past excellent standing."

Wool.

From the circular of Justice Bateman & Co., Philadelphia wool commission merchants, of June 15, we glean the following interesting facts:

The last old Michigan and similar fine wools passed into consumers' hands at 19c. for washed and at 13c. for unwashed. Not enough new wool has yet arrived to establish prices. The value of Michigan fine in the London market is about 13c. for washed and 10c. for unwashed.

The irregularity at the last London wool auctions was believed to indicate that prices were on the brink of a decline which was only averted by the curtailment of the sales. At the close, prices averaged from 5 1/2 to 7% below the prices current in March, 1894, and about 15% lower than the prices current in May of last year. Thus the free wool markets of the world that were expected by some to be such a boon to the American wool grower, are now even below the prices of 1893.

The enclosed extracts from the Philadelphia Press of June 5th give some idea of the efforts still being made to save the American wool industry from destruction. If wool is put on the free list, the wool growers of the U. S. will receive $40,000,000 less than was received under the McKinley Law, previous to March, 1893. Wools, classified as the 1st and 2d class, are mainly those qualities grown in the United States, and if the effort to obtain a duty of 5c. per pound upon these classes is successful, over $18,000,000 above the free wool price will thus be put into the hands of the wool growers for the clip of 1894, which is now ready for market. If the "free raw material" plank of the Chicago platform is not to apply to coal and iron ore, why should it be applied to wool? The imports of raw wool for the four years ending June 30, '94, was nearly 500,000,000 lbs., upon which $24,000,000 in duties were collected. The duties collected upon imports of "manufactures of wool" for the same period are about $127,000,000. The woolen goods imported are almost exclusively luxuries, but the pending bill proposes to lower the duties on the latter about two-thirds, thus reducing the revenue derived from these goods about $80,000,000, making a total reduction of over $100,000,000 in duties, heretofore collected in four years from wool and woolens, which the present bill proposes to throw away at a time when the government needs revenue.

The Wrinkle did not take the raid upon the sign stealers as a real funny joke, but rather seriously, and thinks the proper wrinkle would be for the boys to boycott a laundry whose help is supposed to have given the officers valuable information respecting the whereabouts of the purloined property. Should the editors of that paper become business or professional men, and have their property confiscated by rolicking or lawless fellows, then they would view the matter from a different standpoint than at present.

Wm. Wedemeyer has been chosen teammaster for the banquet to be held by the senior lits in honor of the inter-class baseball victory.

The senior lits are to celebrate their interclass base ball victory with a banquet, at which time every member of the class will be expected to make his base.

The Commencement Annual for this year will be more desirable as a souvenir than ever before. It will be as near correct as possible to make it, much of the proof thereof, being read by the authors.

You will want a Commencement Annual with all the addresses and papers of Commencement Week, even if you are not here to hear them. Leave your order and address at this office or at the book stores.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," was the idea of the senior lits when they conceived their commencement invitations. Of course the latest one is always the best ever gotten out, but really the present senior class have one that they may well feel proud of.

A Plump Little Foot.

A plump little foot as white as the snow, Belonging to rollicking, rollicking Joe, In a little red sock, with a hole in the toe, And a hole in the heel as well.

A trim little foot, in a trim little shoe, Belonging to 10-year-old Miss Sue, And looking as if it knew just what to do, And do in a way that would tell.

A very large foot in a homely array, Belonging to Peter who follows the dray, So big that it sometimes is in its own way, And moves with the speed of a snail.

Ah! a very big thing is the human foot, In dainty-made shoe or in a clumsy boot, So 'tis well there are various tastes to suit, And that fashion can't always prevail.

The plump little foot a beautiful sight, And the trim little foot, so taper and slight, And the very large foot, though much of a fright, Are travelling all the same road.

And it matters but little how small or how great, So they never grow weary of paths that are straight, At last walk in at the golden gate Of the city whose builder is God.—Selected.

The Shut-Eye Train.

Come, my little one, with me! There are wondrous sights to see As the evening shadows fall; In your pretty cap and gown—Don't detain!

The Shut-Eye train—"Ting-a-ling!" the bell it goeth, "Toot-toot!" the whistle bloweth, And we hear the warning call "All aboard for Shut-Eye Town!"

Over hill and over plain Soon will speed the Shut-Eye train! Through the blue where bloom the star And the mother moon looks down, We'll away!

To land of Fay—O the sights that we shall see there! Come, my little one, with me there! 'Tis a goodly train to ride—All aboard for Shut-Eye Town!

Swifter than a wild bird's flight, Through the realms of fleecy light We shall speed and speed away! Let the night in envy frown—What care we!

How wroth she be! To the Bylow land above us, To the Bylow folk who love us, Let us hasten while we may—All aboard for Shut-Eye Town!

Shut-Eye Town is passing fair—Golden dreams await us there; We shall dream those dreams, my dear, Till the mother moon goes down—See unfold!

Delights untold! And in those mysterious places We shall see beloved faces, And beloved voices hear In the grace of Shut-Eye Town!

Heavy are your eyes, my sweet, Weary are your little feet—Nestle closer to me—In your pretty cap and gown; Don't detain!

The Shut-Eye train—"Ting-a-ling!" the bell it goeth, "Toot-toot!" the whistle bloweth—O the sight that we shall see! All aboard for Shut-Eye Town.—Selected.

It also cured my husband of rheumatism of serious nature a year ago. Four bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla effected

The lecture of Dr. Coburn on "The Alleged Blunders of the Bible," has created so much interest that some of the officials of the church are talking of having it printed and widely circulated.

According to some of our prophets of disaster "the great gittin' up mornin'" is soon to come to all on earth. Some way, there comes a faint recollection of having heard of such a prophecy before.

When rose bushes can be grown to reach the roof of our houses, what's the use of emigrating to California? At O. M. Martin's residence on S. Fifth ave., is one of that sort, and it is a beauty with its wealth of bloom.

There are many enquiring about their taxes, supposing that the treasurer has the books. The treasurer will not receive the books until the 15th of July, and city taxes will be payable from that date until August 15th.

Summer resorts will be sought after by Ann Arbor people quite as much as ever this summer, notwithstanding the cry of hard times. After so many months of toil or hard study, a season of rest and quiet is a necessity.

This is remarked by the Adrian Press man you know: "An Ann Arbor hardware firm offers bread knives at half price. The average Ann Arbor bread basket does not shrink in proportion, however, but placidly awaits the cut of the bread knife."

Emmet Coon, the gentleman who invented the stable floor drain, is greatly encouraged over the prospects of his invention. He received during the week orders from New Jersey, New Orleans, St. John's, Nova Scotia, etc., and every mail nearly brings new orders.

The bright and golden future,

This summer 'tis too fearful hot

There is to be a pupil's recital, the last of the year, at Frieze Memorial Hall, to-morrow evening.

A divorce has been granted Anna Cairns from John Cairns, by the circuit court. The grounds were cruelty, and neglect. Jack is now serving a three month's sentence in the Detroit House of Correction. Mrs. Cairns has received many congratulations.

There was a gathering of the class and an assembly of fez's at the M. C. R. R. station yesterday p. m., as the train bearing the Shriners passed on its way to Jackson where the mysterious rites pertaining to the Mystic Shrine were to be worked that evening upon some 30 or more fortunate pilgrims.

One of the best and most enjoyable socials ever given by the ladies of St. Andrew's parish, took place at Harris Hall on Thursday evening of last week, being under the supervision of Mrs. Chas. S. Millen. There was an amateur theatrical entertainment following which added greatly to the attraction and was a perfect success.

The special edition of the Michigan Farmer devoted to Hay, is a valuable one, just at this particular season. The articles contained therein, one being by Hon. Wm. Ball, of Hamburg, give the experience of practical men who know what they are talking about, and no man is so well posted but what he may gather fresh and useful ideas from it many so well expressed therein.

The hour for holding evening services at St. Andrew's church has been changed from 7:30 p. m. to 6:45 p. m. for the summer months. The service will consist of evening prayer without sermon. This hour has been fixed upon in the hope of avoiding the heat of the day which a 4 or 5 o'clock service might meet with, and sufficiently early to avoid the lighting of the gas in the church.

The Board of Review is in session this week, and citizens feeling aggrieved over their assessments have poured their tale of woe into the ears of the mild and gentle gentlemen in whose keeping the rolls are placed. As a general thing perfect satisfaction has been expressed at the figures placed upon the books of Assessor O'Hearn. The last day of the session will be held to-morrow.

An immense crowd of Maccabees celebrated at Bawbeese lake last Monday. Congressman Aitkin made a speech on the U. S. Time, Major Boynton spoke and Mrs. Hollister and Miss Emma Bower each gave an address and the talking actually was finished before 10 o'clock in the evening. A Detroit paper mentions in this connection that there were other sports. Probably Geo. Knickerbocker, Col. March, and Uncle Mosher were there.—Adrian Press.

To-morrow the democracy of this county, by its accredited delegates, will assemble in convention at the court house, and hold a consolation meeting. There will probably not be as much strife here as there was at Port Huron, and other places, and the presence of the state troops will not be necessary to maintain order and protect life. There will be apparent harmony, but it will be of the kind that goes about with keen eyes and right hand in pistol pocket ready for an offensive word or act.

The demand for residences is reported by real estate agencies to be greater than ever before known. This demand comes almost entirely from strangers who desire to move in here and educate their children. A friend suggests that the Ann Arbor School of Music has been a drawing card in this respect, as he knows of two or three families, at least, who have come here for that sole purpose, and that Ann Arbor is bound to be a great musical center, even if Detroit does object.

Mrs. Chas. D. Bingham, living on N. Main st., died Tuesday morning, of blood poisoning. By her death a husband is left with five children, the eldest about ten years of age, the youngest an infant. It is indeed a sorrowful chapter in life's book.

This story is going the rounds as a true story. There may be some who will doubt it, but doubters are always to be found: A family down in Florida lost their child. They advertised in a newspaper. The next morning they were surprised to see an alligator on their door step, where he had disgorged the lost child alive and then turned up his toes himself. They sold the alligator hide for $5, and the parents are exhibiting the child in dime museums for $50 per week. This illustrates the value of advertising.

Marshal Banfield has been after the keepers of pig pens during the week. Our present marshal has the admirable faculty of doing his duty, no matter who stands in the way or where duty leads him. He believes that laws were made for some purpose and as long as they are on the statute books they should be lived up to. If we have laws the enforcement of which are not for the public good, then by all means let them be repealed. The truth is, most of our laws are intended to benefit the people in general and their enforcement is in line of the public welfare.

Sunday's Chicago Times had interviews from all over Michigan on the popular choice of Senators. Among republicans it seemed pretty unanimous for the renomination of McMillan and Patton, while the democrats although frankly saying they did not expect to win this year, yet if they should, prefer Dickinson and Campbell. Ann Arbor's interviews were from Moses Seabolt, J. F. Schuh, Edward Duffy, Wm. J. Miller, Fred Howlett, Jas. R. Bach, S. W. Beakes, F. C. Brown, L. D. Wines, J. E. Beal, O. M. Martin, C. E. Hiscock, H. S. Dean and Geo. W. Bullis.

There is a great strife between Supervisors John R. Miner and Evart H. Scott as to which one will receive the prize offered by the members of the Board of Review for the champion story teller. Up to date Mr. Miner is a trifle ahead, but Mr. Scott is expected to close the session with some elegant red-headed rattlers.

At a meeting of the vestry of St. Andrew's church, held last evening, the following regular delegates were chosen for the year to attend the convocations of this district of the Protestant Episcopal church: Messrs. H. J. Brown, Edward Treadwell and Geo. H. Pond. Alternates—ex-Mayor B. M. Thompson, Prof. C. S. Denison and Prof. Geo. W. Patterson.

What is Eczema?

It is an agony of agonies.
A torture of tortures.
It is an itching and burning of the skin almost beyond endurance.
It is thousands of pin-headed vesicles filled with an acrid fluid, ever forming, ever bursting, ever flowing upon the raw excoriated skin.
No part of the human skin is exempt.
It tortures, disfigures and humiliates more than all other skin diseases combined.
Tender babies are among its most numerous victims.
They are often born with it.

Our First Mistake! Our second purchase was altogether too large, and the inclement weather has left us with too many goods. There is but one way to unload and that is to put the price within reach of all our customers. We have been selling goods at small profits the entire season and from now on margins will cut no figure. We must dispose of a large amount of goods during the month of June, and we will guarantee every purchase to be lower than the lowest.

WASHTENAW'S PIONEERS.

Full Account of the Annual Meeting at Ypsilanti.

Of the annual meeting of the Washtenaw Co. Pioneer Society held at Ypsilanti last Wednesday, the Daily Times says:

Year by year as death comes into our midst and takes a number of the early settlers of Washtenaw county the roll of the sturdy pioneers who experienced all the vicissitudes and aversities of frontier life grows smaller and smaller, but in geometrical progression does the bonds of friendship and paternalism become firmer and more strongly forged between those that remain.

The 20th annual meeting was held Wednesday in the M. E. church and was attended by over 400 men and women who have had much to do with making the county what it is today.

After a song by a quartet Rev. Mr. Smith led in prayer. Chairman Samson had been presented with a gavel by Charles Fleming of this city taken from one of the beams of the old Methodist Church of this city which it was to be used by all chairmen.

Secretary Sessions and Treasurer Treadwell's reports were read and accepted.

Wm. H. Lay, the necrologist of the society, then presented his report which showed that during the past year 206 pioneers had passed over the river, the year before there were 151. The following are the statistics of the ages: 12 were over 90 years old (last year 12); 65 were between 80 and 90 (last year 34); 65 were between 70 and 80 (last year 21); 29 were between 60 and 70 (last year 30); 35 were under 60 (last year 16).

The total ages of those who had died reached 14,732 years, making an average of 73 years and 4 months as against 74 years last year. Of the 206 only 134 had reached years of residence in the county which made a total of 6,536 years and an average of nearly 49 years of these Thos. Phillips and Mrs. James E. Watling, of Ypsilanti, were residents the longest, having been here 70 years each.

Mrs. J. Fennel, of Superior, was the oldest in years to die, having reached the ripe old age of 96. George C. DeCamp was the youngest, dying at the age of 37, having resided in the county since birth.

The following was the mortality by towns: Ann Arbor city 53, Ypsilanti 46, Superior 9, Dexter, Northfield, Saline, Sylvan, Augusta and Ypsilanti town 8 each, Ann Arbor town 7, Scio and Manchester 6 each, Webster and Lyndon 4 each, York, Bridgewater, Pittsfield, Salem 3 each, Sharon 2, Freedom, Lodi and Lima 1 each.

A special supplemental list eulogized the following prominent pioneers of the county: C. S. Gregory, of Dexter, Judge A. D. Crane, of Dexter, Capt. C. Spencer, of Ypsilanti, Hon. Lyman D. Norris, of Grand Rapids, Prof. Emil Bauer, of Ann Arbor, and Dr. Corydon L. Ford, of Ann Arbor.

THEY SLEPT THEIR LAST SLEEP.

Following is the extensive report compiled by the necrologist, Wm. H. Lay, of Ypsilanti. The report is very thorough and entailed considerable labor in arranging it. The figures given below are for the year ending June last:

Table with columns: NAME, DATE OF DEATH, AGE. Lists names and dates of death for various individuals in Washtenaw County.

and an authority on all horticultural subjects. Many will miss his hearty greeting and genial presence at our fair; and lastly, Dr. Corydon L. Ford, chair of anatomy in the U. of M., and leaves behind him in the lives of the many students who sat under his instructions the memory of the good man, as well as that of one of the foremost anatomists of his day.

All of which is respectfully submitted, Wm. H. Lay, Necrologist.

The venerable ex-Gov. Felch, looking as hale and hearty and speaking with all the energy of 20 years ago, then read that portion of his address, recently delivered at Lansing at the state society, of which he is the honored president, which pertained to this county and contained some valuable historical facts which can now be preserved.

After this paper dinner was served in the parlors in the basement to which the old pioneers were invited and nearly all present grouped themselves about the tables enjoying and exchanging sociabilities and reminiscences.

At the session in the afternoon the attendance was considerably larger than in the morning, many from Ann Arbor and other outside towns being present. The program was made up with reminiscences of early pioneer life in the different sections of the county interspersed with music.

The musical program was rendered by A. F. Clark, of Saline, tenor; Miss Lizzie Millsbaugh, of Ypsilanti, soprano; Mrs. A. G. Lawrence, of Saline, alto; Preston H. Rouse, of Saline, basso; Mrs. A. F. Clark, of Saline, pianist; Mr. Renwick, of Ann Arbor, organist, and the numbers were happily received.

One of the main features of the meeting and one which attracted a great deal of attention was a valuable collection of 160 pieces of pioneer dishes, of Washtenaw county, exhibited by Mrs. J. Willard Babbitt and which has taken her 25 years to bring together. The collection is a rare and beautiful one and it is soon to be turned over to some public institution of the county by Mrs. Babbitt.

Health Officers Meeting.

We are indebted to the Daily Times for the following account of the meeting of Health Officers of the state, held at the University last Thursday and Friday:

The meeting of the health officers of the state opened at the hygienic laboratory this afternoon at 2 o'clock. There were about 60 health officers and prominent physicians of the state present besides members of the state board of health and state live stock commission and some from outside the state.

Dr. Vaughan introduced President Wells, of the state board of health, who presided over the meeting. Dr. Wells called attention to the similar meeting which was held a year ago, when the cholera threatened this country and said that many things had been learned then which would be useful in the future. The state was now threatened with smallpox, for which the popular mind had more fears than for any other disease. He said, however, that it was a disease which could be prevented by care and that it would be a disgrace to a community if it became prevalent.

lois bacillus and gave some demonstrations to show how it was recognized. A number of interesting demonstrations were made in the course of the afternoon's work. The meeting will continue tomorrow. This evening's session begins at 8 o'clock local time and includes papers on tuberculosis and discussions.

To those who have attended the meetings of the conference of the state health officers and have noted the main object of the meeting, the importance of the conference will be without question. While the call stated that the conference was for the purpose of conferring regarding consumption, typhoid fever and small pox, up to noon today almost nothing had come before the conference but the subject of tuberculosis. The theme which runs through the entire proceedings is that consumption is an infectious disease and that it requires the same methods to stamp it out that are employed toward small pox, cholera, etc.

At the session in the afternoon the attendance was considerably larger than in the morning, many from Ann Arbor and other outside towns being present. The program was made up with reminiscences of early pioneer life in the different sections of the county interspersed with music.

Regarding the opposition to treating consumption as an infectious disease Dr. Vaughan stated that it was but a few years ago when the leading physicians of Detroit and of the state had protested against the treatment of diphtheria as an infectious disease, but that no reputable physician would take that ground at present.

At the session last evening Prof. Grange, state veterinarian, reported some experiments he had made with tuberculin in discovering tuberculosis in cattle. He noted two experiments especially. Of two cattle one appeared to be perfectly healthy and fat while the other was thin and hard looking.

As it has been plainly shown that tuberculosis or consumption can be conveyed from animals to human beings by the milk of infected animals Dr. Vaughan offered a resolution which was unanimously adopted asking the legislature to pass an act making it unlawful for dairymen to sell milk unless their cows had been subjected to the tuberculin test and had showed no signs of the disease, the test to be made under the direction of the state live stock sanitary commission. It was pointed out that the danger of communicating the disease by milk was especially strong with infants, as the milk of one cow was often used for many children and in case the cow was affected the probabilities were that all the children would be infected.

After the discussion on tuberculosis in cattle had been finished, Dr. Novy, of the medical faculty of the University, read a very interesting and instructive paper on the spread of tuberculosis. Dr. Novy said in substance that while like certain other diseases, syphilis, small pox, etc., the first cause of consumption was still unknown, yet it had been equally well demonstrated that whatever it may be, that like them it was infectious. Tuberculosis, or consumption, can be communicated in a variety of ways. By subcutaneous cuts in which the tubercle bacillus is introduced. This has been demonstrated on animals. It can be taken in the food or it can be inhaled. The tubercle bacillus is very hard to be destroyed. It exists mainly in the sputa of consumptives and when dried will live as long as six months. In its dried form it mingles with the dust and is most dangerous. Dust from a hospital had been accumulated and upon being given to guinea pigs had developed acute tuberculosis in a short time. If the tubercle bacillus come in contact with a cut it will be taken up into the system and produce tuberculosis.

For the prevention of infection Dr. Novy advised that the sputa always be discharged into a prepared vessel in which it could be taken care of. Dr. Novy concluded his paper by recommending that a consumption hospital be established.

Dr. Baker, secretary of the state board of health, then read a valuable paper on the prevention of tuberculosis in which he brought out the views of the state board of health on the subject. It is clearly the opinion of the board that this dread disease which causes over one death in seven can be nearly completely eradicated by the adoption of the same methods as are adopted for the prevention of other infectious diseases. The proposed consumption hospital is only for those poorer who cannot be sufficiently isolated or cared for in their own homes and who are there-
