FORGING AHEAD.

Ann Arbor Passes the 10,000 Mark and Goes 1,000 Better.

For at least three decades Ann Arbor has been seeking with laudable ambition to pass the 10,000 mark in respect to inhabitants. At last the desire has become a fact. The state census just completed gives the population of Ann Arbor as 11,065. A gain since 1890 of 1,705, or an increase of 20 per cent. The figures for the past four decades are as follows:

First Ward.....	2516	2463	1860	1793
Second Ward.....	2181	1677	1398	1208
Third Ward.....	1639	1512	1336	1151
Fourth Ward.....	1908	1635	1531	1501
Fifth Ward.....	738	723	736	742
Sixth Ward.....	1639	1350	1167	968
Total.....	11,065	9,350	8,028	7,363

This shows a solid, steady growth. No mushroomism, no great boom, but steady, continual forging ahead. It will be difficult for another city in Michigan to give as good evidence of that important fact.

Ann Arbor's growth comes largely from her schools. The fame of the University is co-extensive with civilization, and as a consequence people are called here for educational purposes from all over the world.

The Ann Arbor high school is not excelled anywhere in the United States. It has foreign pupils from all parts of Michigan and the United States. The number of students enrolled therein is greater than a majority of the so-called universities in the country can boast, the past year showing over 800 in attendance.

Then comes the School of Music, which is rapidly becoming famous, and which bids fair, in the not distant future, to rival the most noted musical conservatories in the Union. The extraordinary facilities afforded here and the musicians of renown who act as teachers, will soon draw hundreds of pupils. The standard is very high however, and if a person obtains a diploma from the University School of Music it means something, giving its possessor a position in the musical world at once.

There are other causes which tend to help Ann Arbor.

Another is its low taxes. For the truth is that there are few places in the country where so much is given for such slight taxation.

All of the advantages of a large city with none of its disadvantages; all the advantages of great lectures, great concerts, great libraries, great organs, famous people, beautiful wide streets, magnificent scenery, and delightful drives, are enjoyed here, making the city one of the most desirable residence cities in the world. And this fact is becoming known more and more, and people are taking advantage of it.

The census by houses and families is as follows:

	Houses.	Families.
1st ward.....	579	617
2d ".....	419	478
3d ".....	399	455
4th ".....	425	449
5th ".....	198	205
6th ".....	154	158
Total.....	2,504	2,762

LIBRARIES.

The number of volumes in private libraries in the city is probably larger than in any other place of its size in the state, and the figures will no doubt astonish most of our readers:

	No. of Vols.
1st ward.....	181,899
2d ".....	167,610
3d ".....	6,215
4th ".....	74,500
5th ".....	7,994
6th ".....	85,820
Total.....	367,139

University Library..... 90,000
High School Library..... 5,000
Ladies' Library..... 6,000
Total..... 101,005

Besides there are Church and Sunday School libraries not enumerated. The largest private libraries in the city are those of J. E. Beal, 3,000 vols.; President Angell, 3,000 vols.; Prof. Kelsey, 3,000 vols., and Hon. C. R. Whitman, 3,000 vols. The city gives excellent evidence of its literary character in that list.

DOGS.

The dogs were not enumerated, but here is an estimate that will come awful close to the correct number:

	No.
1st ward.....	409
2d ".....	334
3d ".....	328
4th ".....	225
5th ".....	153
6th ".....	378
Total.....	1,828

THE OLDEST.

Conrad Bissinger, who lives on West Liberty st., is the oldest man enumerated in the city, having passed his 93d birthday last January, and enumerator Schwab asserts that he is as spry and lively as most any of the boys.

D. B. Brown and wife of S. Main st., in the same ward, 89 and 88 years respectively, are the oldest couple in the city.

The oldest person in the 1st ward is Joel Miner, aged 87 years. Conrad Krapf being next at 86.

In the third ward there are a number of aged ones. Elizabeth Riley, of N. Main st., aged 89 years, leading in respect to years.

In the fourth ward the venerable Gov. Alpheus Felch, aged 89 years, is the oldest person on the list.

OUR SISTER CITY STEPS BACKWARD.

The population of our sister city of Ypsilanti has decreased somewhat since 1890, or else the state enumerators have not captured all the names of residents. The figures reported are as follows:

	1894.	1890.
First Ward.....	1324	1373
Second Ward.....	1680	1938
Third Ward.....	1490	1697
Fourth Ward.....	732	767
Fifth Ward.....	1480	1354
Total.....	6604	6129

The Ypsilanti Commercial, relative to the census, says:

"The result in the ward is surprising. That there should appear a loss in the city is not surprising. A considerable number of houses usually occupied by families who have come here to give their children schooling, are not so occupied this year; and the number of people employed in the factories is less this year than usual. But that the 2d and 5th wards would show a gain of 142 and 126 respectively, while the 3d shows a loss of over 300, is hardly explicable upon the basis of any general knowledge in possession of the public. The relative variations, according to these figures, are as follows:

	Per cent.	Gain.	Loss.
First Ward.....	15	13	3.66
Second Ward.....	12	19	12.19
Third Ward.....	9.30	6.12	---
Fourth Ward.....	---	---	0.78
City.....	---	---	---

Therese Freutner, of Ypsilanti, has been granted a pension.

Hon. A. J. Sawyer and family will enjoy cottage life, mosquitoes, fish, and all the usual and unusual accompanying adjuncts of a summer outing at Cavanaugh Lake this season.

Dr. Dean M. Tyler is entertaining his sister Mrs. E. Cook, and niece Miss May Cook, who are on their return home to Portland Ore., from Berlin, Germany, where Miss Cook graduated in music.

Prof. and Mrs. Seymour, of St. Louis, Mo., Mrs. Lawrence, of Kansas, and Misses Juliet and Elizabeth Sessions, of Columbus, Ohio, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. A. Sessions during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. French who came to Ann Arbor to see their son Herbert graduate from the lit. department, have returned home. They were accompanied by their daughters Misses Florence and Ouida.

Nothing Strange.

Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in a normal condition find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat them is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.

The Young Patriot.

BY MRS. H. T. HOLLANDS.

MORNING.

"Hooray! for the Fourth of July," he said,
As he tumbled out of his trundle-bed;
"I'll have a boss time, you bet, to-day—
Hooray! for the Fourth of July! Hooray!"
Boom! Bang! Boom! Bang!
Crack! Crack! Boom! Bang!
Shoo-o-o-o! Bang! Whizz!
Whizz-z-z! Bang! Whizz-z-z!

EVENING.

We patched his head and plastered his nose,
We bandaged one finger and two little toes;
As we tucked his remains in the trundle-bed,
"Hooray! for the Fourth of July," he said.

Street Railway Prospects.

The plans of the new company which will operate the street car line in Ann Arbor are to put in both loops in the south eastern part of the city. One of these is from Washtenaw ave. down Hill to E. University, E. University to Monroe, Monroe to State and State to William. The other loop goes around by the fair ground and back to Forest ave., thence to Packard st. This will give a splendid service to that part of the city and materially increase the revenues of the street cars.

Mr. Clerque, the attorney for the eastern bondholders, who was in Ann Arbor several days this week, said to the Times that cars had already been partially contracted for in order that they could be put on just as soon as the final arrangements had been made. In order to get the cars running as soon as possible the old arrangement with the Electric Light Co. would probably be continued until the company could erect a power house, and in case the Electric Light Co. would give reasonable terms a contract would be made so that a separate power house would not be necessary.

Mr. Clerque was very enthusiastic about Ann Arbor. He said that he had traveled extensively about this country and had not seen a city anywhere the size of Ann Arbor which evidenced such a solid growth and general condition of prosperity. While Ann Arbor had few ostentatious houses the general average was far above the common run which was a far better sign. He predicted a continued healthy growth for the city. He was very much surprised, however, that the sewer system was not completed.

Mr. Clerque believes that the Ann Arbor street car system under good management will be a paying investment and it is the intention to give it good management. The road will be under the charge of a competent superintendent and every effort will be made to give the public such conveniences it shall want.—Daily Times.

Call for the Republican State Convention

The republican electors of the State of Michigan, and all others who may desire to unite with them in upholding the principles of the republican party, as declared in the platform adopted by the last national republican convention, are hereby requested to send delegates to the state convention of said party, to be held at Hartman Hall, in the city of Grand Rapids, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, July 31st, 1894, for the purpose of nominating candidates for state officers, the election of a chairman of the republican state central committee, and two members of that committee from each congressional district, and for the transaction of such other business as usually comes before the convention.

Every county will be entitled to one delegate for each 500 of the total vote cast for governor at the last election (November, 1892), and to one additional delegate for every fraction amounting to 300, but each organized county will be entitled to at least two delegates.

Under the resolution of 1888, no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the convention who does not reside in the county he proposes to represent.

The delegates from each congressional district are requested to meet in caucus at 9 o'clock on the morning of the day of the convention to select candidates to be presented to the state convention for confirmation, as follows: One vice-president, one assistant secretary, one member each of the committees on "credentials," "permanent organization and order of business," and "resolutions," and two members of the state central committee, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before them.

In accordance with a resolution, adopted June 28, 1870, the secretary of each county convention is requested to forward to the secretary of the state central committee, No. 1, Newberry Building, Detroit, Mich., by the earliest mail, after the delegates to the state convention have been chosen, a certified list of the delegates from their respective counties, who are entitled to seats in the convention.

Washtenaw county is entitled to 21 delegates.

Republican state central committee, W. M. BATES, Secretary. JAMES McMILLAN, Chairman.

The invention of printing was the world's sunrise.—The New Era.

Uncle Sam is 118 years old today. Here's to his good health, and his family's good health. May they live long and prosper.

The battle flag of the 22nd Michigan, captured by the rebels at Chickamauga, has been discovered at Washington, and will be restored to the survivors.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

The production of cheap books can be accounted for by the fact that modern printing presses turn out 384,000 pages of printed matter in an hour. By the old hand press but 250 pages could be printed in an hour.

The platform adopted by the democrats at Grand Rapids is a document wonderfully and fearfully constructed. It is the product of a constructive intellect, a fit companion for the men of note put in nomination by that same convention.

How does this sentence from Blackwood's Magazine strike you? "Produce is now carried from Australia to England, a distance of 11,000 miles, in less time and at less cost than was required 100 years ago to convey goods from one extremity of the British Islands to the other." Surely all nations are becoming one.

The advancement of civilization can not be better illustrated than by recalling the historical fact that of the 26 barons who signed England's Magna Charta, but three wrote their names! The balance made their mark. That was England's nobility. Now, in both England and America, the laboring man, even, who cannot write his own name is the exception. The same is true of Germany and to a considerable degree of France, Italy and Spain. Verily "the world do move."

"All run down" from weakening effects of warm weather, you need a good tonic and blood purifier like Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

TURN THE SEARCH-LIGHT WITHIN.

The following paragraph is clipped from the Ypsilanti Sentinel: If the Rev. Mr. Shier wants any justification of his remarks in relation to the University, he can find it in President Angell's baccalaureate, and in fact in many other utterances, during the commencement season. It seems to be a favorite fad with the reverend professors to hold up Christ as the model man, the mould for the formation of character. His divinity is kept in the background so far that it may be said to be ignored, and by implication denied. The precepts of Christ can be followed; the person of Christ, and his behavior on earth, can not be imitated. To hold up his person as the perfect man, as the model for the formation of a human character, is to undignify him, and place him on a level with fallen humanity regardless of his divine character. It is essentially Unitarianism, though coming from an orthodox source, and the Rev. Shier is right when he says the University cultivates that spirit.

Of course the above is sheer—or Shier—household. But it shows how the best of motives can be prevented and turned into channels for which they were not intended. If one chooses to distort facts and find fault. What good can come from picking flaws with our University and its management by a resident of this county especially, and a resident also of a city in which is located another important state educational institution, is past the comprehension of most people. The same line of "argument" adopted by the Sentinel applies with equal force to the religious instruction at the Normal. Will the Sentinel join in a senseless tirade against that institution, for the sake of booming Albion or other denominational schools?

Rev. Mr. Shier and the editor of the Sentinel both have studied the teachings of Jesus Christ to little advantage, evidently. No words of his can be construed into the precept they have adopted that "by pulling others down will I build myself up."

The U. of M. is Rev. Shier's alma mater. What sort of a man is this who scanders his own mother, in order to make the character of a new found sweetheart appear the more brilliant?

The U. of M. is the Normal's elder sister. What sort of an individual is he who attempts to destroy the character of one sister in order to polish up the character of another?

While the University is strong enough to withstand these unkind and unfounded criticisms, it does not seem out of place to ask its detractors to search their own hearts, and see how much of the spirit of the Saviour they find therein.

One might better be a wheat grower in Michigan this year at even fifty cents per bushel, than a fruit grower in California. The railroad employes have tied up all the railroads leading out of that state, and not a car is being moved. Bankruptcy and starvation stares the fruit growers of that state in the face as a consequence. There are about 18,000 railroad men engaged in the strike.

Up at Sanilac the editors seem to be plain spoken people. For instance, here is an obituary notice cut from a paper published in that place. It will be noticed that it is not of the usual stereotyped order: "George Blank is dead, and dying went as straight to hell as an arrow shot from a bow. For 74 years he has lived in this town. During this time he has opposed every enterprise that would tax him a copper; he opposed schools, he never gave a cent to churches or charity; his influence was always on the devil's side. He left an estate worth $56,000 and a life that smells to heaven."

The foresight of John Adams, the most forcible and enthusiastic supporters of the Declaration of Independence, was wonderful. On the signing of that document he wrote to his wife: "This will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America; celebrated by descending generations as the great anniversary festival, commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty, solemnized with pomp, shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of the continent to the other, from this time forward, forever."

Spencer O. Fisher, the gentleman who heads the democratic ticket for governor is not unknown in Michigan politics. He represented his district in congress once on a time, until his constituents concluded that they preferred a republican, and elected Mr. Wheeler in his place. He has long had a desire to be governor of this state and this fall that desire is to be as nearly consummated as it ever will be. He will come within about 50,000 votes of occupying that honorable position. However, the republicans will do well to remember that he is no sluggard, but a wide awake, hustling politician. He represents the Dickinson or referee faction of the democracy, and will not be found sleeping during the campaign.

TRUSTS AND HIGH PRICES

In the first reaction from the unremunerative prices forced by competition, a combination sufficiently powerful to do so often raises prices of a product to a point as unreasonably high as previous prices were unreasonably low, and this is the basis for one of the apparently potent arguments against the toleration of trusts—that they are oppressive to consumers. But there is the reply, first, that the desire to obtain the increased profits consequent upon an extending sale of the products will cause the most enlightened managers to keep their selling prices at the lowest point that consistent with profitable production will to the greatest extent increase consumption. When, however, this consideration goes not prevail, there is a further check upon the maintenance of exorbitant prices in that capital, which tends to flow into the field in which greatest profits can be made, reduces prices by engendering new competition. Delay in the action of this corrective frequency has been caused by the fact that the making of enormous profits for a time is kept secret oftentimes by a combination engaged in an industry requiring a plant for its operations so extensive that great capital and experienced managers are necessary to establish successful competition; and the delay has been longest when, along with these conditions, the product has been of such a nature that the payment thereof ultimately comes from those not concerned in its immediate purchase. But it is a fact that in the industrial history of the last quarter century, notwithstanding these obstacles, many a combination strongly fortified in the maintenance of undue profit has, sooner or later, had its power broken by the flow of new capital into its field.—From The Meaning of Corporations and Trusts; by Logan G. McPherson, in The Popular Science Monthly for July.

Scotch Thrift.

Secretary Morton went on: "As to Scotch thrift. I was at the colonial exhibition at Edinburgh some years ago, and I found that every exhibitor was selling something in connection with his exhibit. During my stay I lost my spectacles, and while buying a new pair from a very pretty girl in the exhibition, I fell into conversation with her. 'You are an American,' said she, 'and you have a lot of my people over there in your own country.'"

"Yes," said Secretary Morton, "we have many Scotchmen among us."

"And how do they get along, sir?" asked the girl.

"Oh," replied the secretary, "there are few of them in jails and none of them in the poorhouse. They are very thrifty and they do very well. You Scotch are noted for industry and for saving."

"Yes," replied the girl, "they tell lots of stories of us. And have you heard the latest of one of our Sandys who went to London?"

"No," said Secretary Morton, "tell it to me."

"Well," replied the girl, "it was not much, but it indicates the Scotch character. Sandy was a stranger in London and, feeling a bit tired, he looked about for some restaurant. He saw an eating-place, and he went in and asked the waiter, 'and how much might it be for a bit of meat?'"

"'Ninence,' said the waiter. 'And how much for the gravy?'"

"'Oh, we charge nothing for the gravy,' was the reply. 'And how much might it be for a bit of bread?'"

"'You can have a loaf for tuppence.'"

"'Well,' said Sandy, 'you must give me the bread and the gravy. I didna care about the meat.'"

When Cleveland said he would have congress on his hands he didn't realize that there was quite such a handful. But the country has both Cleveland and a democratic congress in its hands, and the burden is almost too heavy to bear. All indications point toward a relief from the latter of the two great evils after the fall elections.—Cincinnati News & Express.

You'll taste the democratic tariff thinkers' work, when it's done, in every cup of tea and coffee you drink, unless you take them plain; in every glass of lemonade, unless you go it sour; in every "sweet cake" and mouthful of preserves that gets on the table, and in every pound of candy and confections that you buy. Fifty or sixty million dollars in taxes to be taken from the pockets of the people are put into the pocket of the sugar trust in what "Cleveland and tariff reform" are doing.—Monroe Commercial.

Of the candidates in the field for state treasurer there are none better than State Senator George A. Steel, of St. Johns. He made a capital record in the last legislature, is a young republican of first class ability, popular, and of genial presence. His section of the state has always given good republican majorities, yet has not had its proper proportion of names on the ticket. The more Mr. Steel is known the better will be illustrated his fitness for the position as he is one of the most upright of republicans and of considerable experience in financial affairs.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

The full ticket nominated by the democrats at Grand Rapids is as follows: For Governor—Spencer O. Fisher, of Bay county. For Lieutenant Governor—M. F. Gordon, of Barry county. For Secretary of State—Louis E. Ireland, of Allegan county. For State Treasurer—Otto E. Karste, of Gogebic county. For Auditor General—Frank H. Gill, of Kent county. For Attorney General—James O'Hara, of Muskegon county. For Commissioner of State Land Office—Peter Mulvaney, of Calhoun county. For Superintendent of Public Instruction—Albert E. Jennings, of Manistee county. For Member of State Board of Education—Michael Devereaux, of Isabella county. For Senator (long term)—Edwin F. Uhl, of Kent county. For Senator (short term)—John Strong of Monroe county. Mr. Campau was completely knocked out, and although he took his defeat gracefully in the convention there is no question that the hard feelings engendered before the convention will rankle long in the breasts of the defeated faction.

Lady Montagu's Account of Inoculation.

"Apropos of distempers, I am going to tell you of a thing that I am sure will make you wish yourself here. The smallpox, so general and so fatal among us, is entirely harmless here by the invention of inoculation, which is the term they give it here. There is a set of old women who make it their business to perform the operation in the month of September, when the great heat is abated. People send to one another to know if any of their family has a mind to have the smallpox. They make parties for the purpose, and when they are met—commonly fifteen or sixteen together—the old woman comes with a nutshell full of matter of the best sort of smallpox, and asks what vein you will please to have opened. She immediately rips open the one that you offer to her with a large needle, which gives you no more pain than a common scratch, and puts into the vein as much venom as can lie upon the head of her needle, and after, binds up the little wound with a hollow bit of shell, and in this manner opens four or five veins. The Grecians have commonly the superstition of opening one in the middle of the forehead and in each arm and on the breast, to make the sign of the cross; but this has a very ill effect, all the wounds leaving little scars, and is not done by those that are not superstitious, who choose to have them in the legs or in that part of the arm that is concealed. The children or young patients play together all the rest of the day, and are in perfect health till the eighth; then the fever begins to seize them, and they keep their beds two days, very seldom three. They have very rarely above twenty or thirty in their faces, which never mark; and in eight days' time are as well as before their illness. Where they are wounded there remain running sores during their distemper, which I doubt not is a great relief of it. Every year thousands undergo this operation, and the French ambassador says that they take the smallpox here by way of diversion, as they take the waters in other countries.—From Lady Montagu and Modern Bacteriology, by Mrs. H. M. Plunkett, in The Popular Science Monthly for July.

The Development of the South.

Is furnished by the Queen & Crescent Route by means of a special series of Monthly Excursions to southern points at One Fare for the Round Trip. These rates are in effect from Cincinnati, O., Louisville and Lexington, Ky., on June 5th, July 5th, August 7th, September 4th, October 2d, November 6th and December 4th; good twenty days from date of sale for return. They are sold on these dates to all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida (except Key West), and to New Orleans, and all points on our line in Louisiana. The Q. & C. has over a million acres of farms and timber land for sale along its line at $3 to $5 per acre.

Stop-overs are permitted on these excursions, at any point south of the Ohio River, within the final limit of the tickets. This offers an excellent opportunity to those who desire to go south and look into the present great movement of northern farmers to that section. Send us your name for advertising matter and any information you may want as to lands and immigration to the south.

How Dust Gets In.

When the air around us becomes condensed—shrinks into a smaller volume—it becomes heavier, puts greater pressure on the surface of the mercury and makes it ascend in the tube; then the mercury is said to rise. When the air expands—swells into a larger volume—it becomes lighter, the pressure on the mercury is less, the mercury sinks in the tube, and the barometer is said to fall. Therefore every change of height of the quick-silver which we observe is a sign measure of a change in the volume of air around us.

Further, this change in volume tells no less upon the air inside our cases and cupboards. When the barometer falls, the air around expands into a larger volume, and the air inside the cupboard also expands and forces itself on in every minute crevice. When the barometer rises again, the air inside the cupboard, as well as outside, condenses and shrinks and the air is forced back into the cupboard to equalize the pressure, and along with the air in goes the dust. The smaller the crevice the stronger the jet of air, the farther goes the dust.

Witness the dirt tracks so often seen in imperfectly framed engravings or photographs. Remember, ladies and gentlemen, whenever you see the barometer rising, that an additional charge of dust is entering your cupboards and drawers.

Try the New Fig Honey.

Honey mixed with a nice extract of California figs, etc., make "Honey of Figs," the most delicious of all gentle cures for Constipation, Colds, Fevers, Nervousness and Disordered Kidneys. Californians greatly prefer it to simple syrup. Old folks enjoy it and babies love it. The Fig Honey Co., of San Francisco make it. No other laxative is so soothing or sells so well. Large bottles (50 doses) 50 cents. Trial size 10 cents. In this age of progress be wise and get the best. Eberbach & Son, Agents for Ann Arbor.

Northern Michigan Resorts

Few places offer so many advantages for tired people as do the popular resorts on the shores of Lake Michigan and its tributary bays.

Bay View, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Traverse City, and Grand Traverse Bay Resorts

are peculiarly inviting during the hot weather she bracing air, cool nights and freedom from dust contribute to make this region a natural Sanitarium, for the recuperation of exhausted energies. To those interested, Bay View offers special advantages in the great Chautauque course and Assembly, held in July and August, the program of which will be of unusual excellence this year, comprising classes in many branches of learning and lectures by noted professors and teachers from the highest colleges and universities of this country.

The Way to Reach these RESORTS

IS VIA THE CHICAGO AND WEST MICHIGAN Railway, which runs through the entire region, and is known as "The Scenic Line," on account of the beautiful scenery through which it passes, traversing the shores of lakes, rivers, and bays, for miles, which, with the splendid service offered by this line makes the trip a delightful one. Through parlor and sleeping cars from Detroit to Petoskey and Bay View, are run during July, August and September; via the Detroit, Lansing & Northern Railroad to Grand Rapids, thence via the C. & W. M. Tourist tickets at reduced rates are sold at principal stations on these and other lines from June 1st to Sept. 30—good to return until Oct. 31.

The large fire and burglar proof safe that was owned by and used in the bank of the late C. S. Gregory & Son has been purchased by Mack & Schmid of Ann Arbor, and removed to Manchester. The fact that the safe weighs four tons will give some idea of the difficulty that might attend its removal.—Dexter Leader.

Mack Robison must have been somewhat surprised to see his mother step from the train on Tuesday. A few weeks ago her life was despaired of. Saturday she was 86 years of age and she felt like making her son her usual summer visit so Mrs. A. M. Robison came over with her.—Manchester Enterprise.

The street committee has about completed the corporation work for this year and the people of the village note with pleasure the results of their work in graveling the main streets and fixing the concrete walks. Now what is needed is a couple of weeks work on the board walks and we can point with pride to the manner in which both streets and walks in the village are looked after.—Dexter Leader. By your walks shall ye be judged. Therefore mend your walks.

In spite of all the fatal results seen every year, little boys on our streets are snapping the poisonous paper caps on toy pistols. Parents! What are you thinking about? Your boy who receives a fragment of that burning fulminate in his hand will in all probability die of it to-k jaw, as numbers do every year. And you cannot be innocent of his death.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

The officers of the new Union Savings Bank of Manchester, are as follows: B. G. English, president; Geo. Heimendinger, 1st vice president; Dr. C. F. Kapp, 2d vice president; Ed. E. Root, cashier. The shares are $100 each. C. F. Kapp took 10 shares. A. J. Waters 10, B. G. English 10, Walter Mack 10, John Wuerthner 10, Geo. Heimendinger 10, John Horning 10 and Fred Breitenwischer 10, others took from one to ten shares.

Hannah, wife of Henry Mead, living near Pinckney, Livingston county, died very suddenly at the home of her daughter Mrs. C. W. Seymour, in Detroit, on June 18, where she had gone to visit, being sick only about an hour. Mrs. Mead was a daughter of Dennis and Mary Dwyer, of Lima, in this county, and was 52 years of age. She was married in 1863, and leaves a husband and five children to mourn her loss.

The annual readjustment of the salaries of postmasters was completed at the postoffice department Tuesday. Chelsea's postmaster comes in for a raise of $100, making the salary $1,500—Chelsea Standard. Which shows that postmaster Wm. Judson, was a man who attended to his business. And the persons who are responsible for turning him out before his time expired will reap no benefit from their dirty work. Stick a pin there.

From the Chelsea Herald: Wm. Gillman and wife, Leo Staffan and Miss Mabel Gillman, of this village, had a narrow escape from death last Sunday afternoon. They were spending the day at North Lake, and had taken shelter in a log cabin near the lake, during a shower. After the rain had ceased, the gentlemen started for the lake, leaving the ladies in the cabin, and when but a few feet away, lightning struck a tree which stood about two feet from the cabin door, shivering it into splinters. The young men hurried back to the cottage and found Mrs. Gillman in her chair near the door, pale as death, and fire issuing from the skirt of her dress, which was soon extinguished. Though dazed at first, she soon regained consciousness, having suffered no injury except a little scorching of her hair. Miss Gillman, who was standing near, was uninjured.

AN ABLE ADDRESS.

The annual address to the graduating class of the Dexter High School was delivered by Hon. H. W. Newkirk, and the following brief synopsis is taken from the Dexter Leader: Mr. Newkirk compared the human mind to the unhewn block of marble which by the hand of the sculptor becomes a beautiful statue. The sculptor works to a plan, very carefully and understandingly, until at last he stands before the beautiful object of his creation—triumphant. So it is with the teacher laboring with the human mind as it comes crude from the quarry of the Divine Creator. Unlike the sculptor, the first blow of his mallet must be as delicate as the last. By slow and careful work he brings forth the scholar. The work of the sculptor must meet the eye of the critic. So, too, must the scholar step forth into the world and stand or fall upon his own merit.

As the class of '94 stands in the door that marks the end and the commencement, how will fortune deal with them? If young men, he might point them to politics, the military, the medical profession, the pulpit, etc. As young ladies, what advice should be given them? If they desired to remain within the home circle, there was nothing to say. But if they go out into the world, what then?

It is but a few years since co-education began, and of this Mr. Newkirk spoke in terms of such liberal praise that no one could for a moment doubt his hearty interest in its welfare.

With one exception he could advise these young ladies to take up the same lines as young men, who by their voluntary absence from the class, admit the superior energy and intellect of Dexter's young ladies—that exception is the political field. However man may plan and man may carry out, but the time has come when men go to their wives for counsel.

In the solution many of the great problems of the day have miserably failed—for example the liquor question. We live to-day in a country of paralyzed industries, of smokless chimneys; a country that has men in the halls of legislation that should be in prison. Hence he might well say that all roads were open to success.

Mr. Newkirk closed his remarks with an eloquent peroration that appealed strongly to everyone present. The address was a very able one, well calculated to awaken liberal and progressive thought.

Selfish Resignation.

Some people seem to see nothing disastrous in any event so long as its results are beneficial to themselves. They have much virtuous submission another man's fate.

"There's no misfortune so big that there ain't a little good in it," said Captain Joe Smalllett.

"I dunno 'bout that," answered the younger man, who was being consoled for the loss of property. "I could name a good many catastrophes that ain't been profitable right in this town," he continued. "How about the time John Sawyer's barn burned, and he lost all his hay and critters?"

The captain was silent, but unconvinced, and presently his features lightened with an idea.

"Well, it does seem so, it was tar-nal hard on John, but there was a little good in it, too," he said. "You know that apple tree that stood close to the barn? Well, it was brimful of the nicest apples you ever set tooth to, and that fire roasted 'em to a turn. There they hung, and the juice just dripped out of 'em. We ate 'em after they got the fire out. Seem's though I never tasted such good baked apples."

Captain Joe snatched his lips at the retrospect, but the other man was still unconvinced. He was in no mood just then for looking on the bright side of even a neighbor's misfortune.—Youth's Companion.

John L. Stoddard,

The world-famous traveler and lecturer has enjoyed unexampled opportunities for the collection of the finest selected photographs of American scenery, the choicest of which are published in a series of 16 portfolios with eloquent descriptive sketches from his own pen. In connection with this work, Our Country and Our Neighbors, the publishers offer a large new steel plate of Niagara Falls, the finest ever engraved, and which can be procured in no other manner, both for the absurdly low price of $3. The Queen and Crescent Route.

Invites inquiries in regard to Summer Resorts on its line in the picturesque mountains of Kentucky, Tennessee and Alabama. The line passes near famous battlefields at Mill Springs, Mission Ridge, Chickamauga and Lookout Mountain. They are surrounded by charming summer resting places at Burnside, Cumberland Falls, High Bridge, Rugby, Rhea Springs, Lookout Mountain, Springville, Ala., and other points. Low railroad rates—Charming mountain homes—Perfect rest and quiet.

We invite correspondence, cheerfully giving the information desired, for the purpose of having you arrange to spend your summer recreation on our line. W. C. Rinearson, G. P. A., Cincinnati.

Farm for Sale.

Farm to rent one and one-half miles from Chelsea, Mich. I wish also to sell one pair of good work horses, harness and other tools necessary for carrying on the farm work, and will take small payment down and balance on time. This is a good chance for the right man. For particulars call at Courier Office, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Niagara Falls Excursion.

Under agreement of the Trunk Lines it was decided that no Niagara Falls cheap excursions would be run this year until after the first of August. The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad will run one of their famous excursions to Niagara Falls at the usual low rate, sometime about the first or second week in August. These excursions were discontinued last year owing to the World's Fair, and it is expected that they will be larger than ever this year. Look out for the announcement of them in this paper.

The Courier is issued on Tuesday, this week, to give all hands a fair chance at the Fourth of July.

Dr. Donald Maclean, formerly of the University, was chosen president of the American Medical Association at its recent session in San Francisco.

"How the tires must wear out," said one old lady to another as they watched a group of bicyclists. "Yes," was the response, "how the wearers must tire out."

In the list of graduates from the Normal school, published in the Commercial, are the names of Flora C. Buell, and Mrs. Louise Helmut Uren, of Ann Arbor.

The House of ex-Ald. Wm. Herz, on W. Huron st., was struck by lightning last Thursday, tearing the chimney, fire place and mantel in pieces. It was a close call.

"A man is known by the company he keeps."—Ann Arbor Democrat. Precisely. The first time that we come to Ann Arbor we shall make a bee line for the Democrat office.—Adrian Press.

The sad intelligence comes to us from Pasadena, Cal., that Henry D. Bennett, formerly steward of the University, is seriously ill, with no hope of recovery. He lives with his son Henry G. Bennett.

The rains of last week interfered with haying somewhat, but they caused a fresh, green smile to spread itself over all the growing crops. Which was better than the little loss it brought to the hay.

At the recent meeting of the national association of dancing masters at St. Paul, Minn., Prof. Ross Granger of this city, was chosen supervisor of the district comprising the states of Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana. A good sized district.

Married, at 5 p. m., June 23, '94, by Rev. C. M. Coburn, Miss Emma P. Hutchinson, of the Northside, and Mr. Newell M. James, of Meridian, Mich. A very enjoyable reception was given the wedding party and friends by Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bowen, of 37 Pontiac st.

The drug stores are now closed Sundays after 10:30 a. m.

The Ann Arbor Rifles announce an excursion to Put-in-Bay about the middle of this month.

Ground has been broken for the new brick block on the corner south of the Courier building.

The teacher's institute of this county is to begin its session at the High School building next Monday July 9.

Company A expected to go to Jackson to-day to participate in a regimental drill, but the orders to be under arms may prevent.

The Farmers' Picnic to be held at Whitmore Lake will be on the 25th instead of the 18th of August, as stated last week.

After July 1st, the Ladies' Library will be open on Saturdays from 3 to 5 p. m., instead of from 2 to 4. Tuesdays from 4:30 to 5:30 as usual.

Ald. A. J. Kitson has the contract for building the new English Lutheran church, to be erected at the corner of S. Fifth ave. and William st. It is to cost about $10,000.

Mr. E. N. Bible's playing of the Introduction et Rondo Capriccioso, by Saint Saens, at the Michigan Music Teachers' Convention held at Flint last week, was very warmly received.

The Fourth of July, the grandest holiday of the grandest people in the grandest nation under the sun. May all three continue in grandeur undiminished as long as the world exists.

Samuel M. Skelding, who had been a conductor on the M. C. R. R. ever since it started in 1846, died at his home in Detroit last week. He was well known by many Ann Arbor people and universally respected.

After reading the patriotic, reformative orations of the boys, and the superlatively sweet essays of the girls in about 850 of our exchanges, we have come to the firm conclusion that there will be a wonderful advance made in civilization in just a little while now.

Company A of this city, received orders Monday night to be under arms and ready to respond to a call for aid at a moment's notice. The order caused some rapid heart beats in the breasts of the boys, but there was no evidence of a desire to shirk duty visible to the naked eye.

The editor of the Ypsilanti Sentinel intimates that Bro. Pond of the Courier, is crazy.—Register. Why, what an insane idea in Mr. Woodruff. Were we Mr. Pond, we would tie knots in our pedigree and knout him with it.—Argus. Wouldn't it be better to fling one of Bro. Smith's "jokes" at him?

J. Geo. Lutz and Miss Rosie Hoffmann were married Thursday evening last at the home of Mr. Lutz's parents, No. 25 W. 2d st., Rev. Max Hein officiating. The couple left on the evening train for Kentucky to visit relatives of the bride. Many beautiful and costly presents were received.

Elmer Stofflet and a companion gave an exhibition of trick riding on a bicycle, under the electric lamp at the corner of N. Main and E. Catharine sts., last Friday evening, that would have done credit to any professional in the land. Elmer can do almost anything he sets out to do, on his wheel.

The beauty of Ann Arbor as a summer resort is appreciated by many people who come from large cities to obtain rest and quiet and at the same time not cut themselves aloof from good living and civilization. The beauty of our streets and drives, and the quiet one can enjoy here in the summer, together with the cheapness of living, is an inducement to many who seek relief during the summer months from business anxieties and cares.

Wm. Burke, a former resident of Ypsilanti, died recently of swamp fever, at his home in Delhi, La., leaving a wife and one child. Mr. Burke went south about two years ago and at the time of his death was doing a prosperous business. Many friends in his old home will hear this news with regret.

The Ypsilanti Commercial remarks: "As soon as the small pox scare shall have run its course, the doctors should begin vaccinating against base ball fever. It is really the more dangerous of the two. A young lady was killed by a ball in Ann Arbor recently, and Father Kennedy of this city is carrying a lame arm from dislocating the elbow."

Jerry Minnahan, a drayman, was killed by his horse last Friday and died Sunday from the effects thereof, peritonitis setting in. He was 42 years of age, leaves a wife and one son, was a member of the Maccabees, and a man respected by neighbors and friends. Funeral services from the residence No. 32 Spring st., at 5:00 o'clock Tuesday, July 3d.

Harry W. Hawley, a former Ann Arbor boy, and son-in-law of C. Mack, has sold the Denver, Colo., Evening Times, to a syndicate of republican politicians headed by E. B. Coe, another U. of M. boy, for $225,000. As Mr. Hawley paid but $185,000 for the plant three years ago, it will be seen that he has made a handsome fortune by the sale.

A new company organized to do business in this city is the Warner Catarrah Cure Co. The company have the formula for a remedy that has worked some wonderful cures in the terrible disease catarrh, and is one of the best medicines ever discovered. The company proposes to push business, not only for their own benefit but for the good of humanity, for the remedy they make is a boon for the sick and weary, and brings relief and comfort to those who are suffering from catarrhal, throat troubles or hay fever.

The editor of the Ypsilanti Sentinel, is inclined to think that Bro. Smith now of the Argus, has cut off the limb between himself and the tree of the fame: "Smith, formerly of the Adrian Press loses the greatest part of his influence in this county by moving to Ann Arbor. When in Adrian the Press was copied largely, by nearly all the papers here. The Argus will be copied but little and by few. But it will be taken all the more!" Oh, no. People like desert, after a good meal, but will they stop us regular boarders where they can get nothing but blame manage and whipsyllabub for a constant diet? Not much."

The University Musical Society has closed a contract for the great Columbian organ, a full description of which together with a cut, has been published in this paper. The instrument costs $15,000, and will be presented to the University and placed in University Hall, in the space now occupied by dressing rooms in the rear of the stage. Not enough has been subscribed to pay for it, but enough so that the society feels safe in signing the contract. This is a wonderfully fine thing for the U. of M., and especially for the lovers of the art of music, which is getting such a magnificent foundation here. This organ, the finest in the world, must itself induce a great many students of music to come here, besides being a grand aid to the great musical festivals which have now become a permanent feature here.

When rose bushes can be grown to reach the roof of our houses, what's the use of emigrating to California? At O. M. Martin's residence on S. Fifth ave., is one of that sort, and it is a beauty with its wealth of bloom.—Ann Arbor Courier. It is hardly fair on the part of the Courier to spring a botanical story like this on us without the usual notice. By what right does the Courier break over the established rule of legitimate fish and snake story telling where each editor stands an equal chance? The Courier is bringing the ethics of the profession into disrepute.—Northville Record.

If the M. C. R. R. is to be tied up merely to gratify a spite a few work men have against the Pullman Car Co., there ought to be some redress for the outrage in some way. That is carrying the thing too far altogether. On the same principle if one out of a family is hung to satisfy the law of justice, the entire family should be hung because they are related.

Among other names being canvassed by the republicans for the office of county treasurer is that of John Heinzmann, of this city. No better man for the position could be found. He is a republican of the kind that the party delights to honor. He is one of Ann Arbor's most capable business men, and possesses confidence and esteem of everybody. If Mr. Heinzmann would consent to allow his name to be placed upon the ticket, it would be a tower of strength thereto, and we feel certain that he would be our next county treasurer. The present outlook indicates that the republican party, which has been out in the cold so long in this county, are to be successful this year, in part at least.

On Thursday evening last, death came to Joseph C. Preston at his home on W. Huron st., after a brief illness. Mr. Preston was a man well known and well liked by everyone. For many years he was turnkey at the jail, and still later proprietor of the rink. Altogether he has lived here about a half century. He was 74 years of age, a native of England, and leaves a sister, Mrs. Canwell, in this city, and brothers living elsewhere. Funeral services were held at St. Andrew's Episcopal church last Saturday p. m., Rev. Henry Tatlock conducting them, and the remains were interred in Forest Hill Cemetery. Mr. Preston will be missed by many people in Ann Arbor who held him in great respect, and liked his pleasant, kind ways.

Thomas H. Corbett, with A. L. Noble, left Saturday evening for St. Johns, where he will be united in marriage with Miss Myrta J. Wise, of that city. The wedding is to take place next Thursday at the home of the bride's parents, at 2 p. m. Maude Curtis, of Ovid, and Miss Bertha Noll, of this city, will act as bridesmaids, and Messrs. Chas. Allmand and J. W. Murphy will act as best men. Miss Wise is a well known society lady of St. Johns. She is also well known in this city, having graduated from the High School in '93. Tom is a popular young fellow and his friends all wish him a happy and successful future. He came to this country from Ireland eight years ago and started in to work for Edward Duffy, and has made a decided success as a salesman. The couple will leave for Ireland July 7 to spend a few months with Mr. Corbett's parents in Monaghan county, and also visit different points of interest before returning.—Daily Times.

HARD LUCK

Our First Mistake! Our second purchase was altogether too large, and the inclement weather has left us with too many goods. There is but one way to unload and that is to put the price within reach of all our customers. We have been selling goods at small profits the entire season, and from now on margins will cut no figure. We must dispose of a large amount of goods during the month of June, and we will guarantee every purchase to be lower than the lowest.

A New Species of Debt.

Nelle Ryan is a bright, sunny-hearted girl in her early twenties, who earns her own money and is learning to spend it. Learning, I say, for that is one of the things it seems as if it would take a lifetime to understand.

Her family are in "easy" circumstances. She is an only daughter, with three brothers, who are very fond of her. They are all careful economists from the father down. And one of the boys has been heard to boast that no merchant in town had one of their names on the debtor side of his account books on New Year's.

Of late, Nelle's intimate friend, Nora Payne, has felt mystified whenever she has suggested that Nelle indulge in some bit of luxury—a charming old rose teagown, like Nora's own, a trip to the city for the Patil concert, a lovely Canadian outing to be arranged for the coming summer, and to each proposal Nelle has answered: "I cannot do it. At least, not now."

Nora grows inquisitive, at last. "Nelle, you are growing stingy. Your bank account is getting the better of you."

"No, it isn't," Nelle answered, "but I am paying debts."

"Debts? You told me your father didn't allow you to have anything charged."

"He doesn't; but I have some that he does not know about. You look so shocked that I shall have to explain. It occurred to me in this way: You know Aunt Jane Rollins? Old, crabbed, deaf, disagreeable, but my own great aunt. Mother was getting ready to sit up with her, one night, and was taking her some little dainties, working hard over them herself, too."

"Aunt Jane will never thank you," I said, "nor appreciate it at all. And as long as she isn't destitute, but has a good home and all that she needs, what is the good of your doing it? It seems like throwing time and strength."

"Mother looked at me a minute. 'I call it paying an honest debt,' she said; 'I owe something to Aunt Jane—we all do. She has watched with you children many nights and has taken care of you days when you were sick, that I might rest. And, notwithstanding she is so forbidding, at heart she is as good as gold. I like to pay my debts even if they are outlawed.'"

"It was a new idea to me, and I thought it over until I was ashamed to find how many people beside the home folk that I was indebted to, and some of them need the payment now, sorely."

"I remember when I was sixteen I went to Portsmouth, to see mamma's old friend, Mrs. Reeves. How very kind she was, and what a lovely time I had there, for they were wealthy then, and delightful family. Well, she is older now, and poorer. Last week she had a birthday; I happened to know the date and sent her something. Yes, it took just what the teagown would have cost."

"Uncle Jack was always doing things for me when I was little and growing up, taking me to places, making me presents and helping mamma with my school expenses and my painting lessons. Now he has children, and a daughter growing up, and not very much money, and there are many of the pleasant things they must do without unless some one helps a little. So I have found a way to pay some instalments on that debt."

"And when I sprained my ankle once, mamma was ill herself, papa away, and the boys so thoughtless! But Miss Frye lived opposite us, and she was such a comfort! She must have taken infinite pains to look after me and keep me in good spirits. She is an invalid now, and often lonesome and sad. I know she is comfortable and independent, but her lot might be much brighter if some one thought or cared to do little cheering things for her. So I can't help sending back the crumbs she cast on the waters so long ago."

"They're honest debts, all of them. I cannot repudiate one, and I am ashamed to have been so long getting to them."

"And another thing I am beginning to think about," added Nelle, "is that I would like to make a few investments of that sort myself. It might be very convenient to have some dividends coming in by-and-by.—Household."

Cure for Headaches.

As a remedy for all forms of Headache, Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headaches yield to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only 50 cents at The Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's Drug store, and Geo. T. Haussler, Manchester.

A Chicago Business Man.

"I'll not detain you two minutes," said the book agent briskly as he hung his hat on the back of a chair and laid a large volume on the lawyer's desk. "This work, which I am introducing, sells itself. It is called 'The Model Home; or Housekeeping reduced to a Science.' Beginning with the plan of a six, seven, eight or ten-room house, as the case may be, it describes the best methods of fitting up each room according to a general design, with schedule of prices arranged to suit any purse, and—"

"You needn't waste any more time describing it," interrupted the lawyer. "I happen to know my wife wants that book. She has been waiting for it. If you will call at my house, No. 797 Pettis Court, and inquire for Mrs. Grashly, she will take a copy of it at once. But stay! I might as well get it myself and surprise her. How much is it?"

"Seven dollars."

"Can you deliver it now?"

"Yes, I have two other copies with me. You may have this one, though it is not my usual way. Five six, seven—that's right. Thanks. Good morning."

After he had gone away the lawyer discovered the binding was defective. He also found in the book the agent's card. It was inscribed: "J. Alfred Jones, No. 277 College Row."

"That's lucky," he exclaimed. "Broxy, across the hall, lives at No. 279 College Row. I'll ask him to send that fellow back here, and I'll make him exchange this copy for one of the others."

About an hour later a briskly moving book agent called at No. 797 Pettis Court and inquired for Mrs. Grashly.

"I'll not detain you two minutes, madam," he said, when she had made her appearance. "This work, which I am introducing, sells itself. It is called 'The Model Home; or Housekeeping reduced to a Science.' Beginning with the plan of a six, seven, eight or ten-room house, as the case may be, it describes the best methods of fitting up each room according to a general—"

"Why, I been wanting that book for months," said the lady joyfully. "How much is it?"

"Seven dollars."

"Are you taking orders for future delivery, or can you let me have the book at once?"

"I can let you have this one, I guess, though it is not my usual way. I have another one in my valise. Four, four-fifty, five, six, seven. That is right. Thanks. Good morning."

A man called at No. 277 College Row late that afternoon.

"Is this Mr. J. Alfred Jones?" he asked.

"That's my name," answered the man who came to the door.

"My name's Broxy," rejoined the caller. "I have an office just across the hall from that of Grashly, the lawyer. He told me to ask you to call and see him the next time you are down town."

"Well," said Mr. Jones meditatively, "I know exactly what he wants. I am the agent for a book he's been trying to get, and I promised to let him have a copy to-day. It's called 'The Model Home; or—'"

"If that's all," said Mr. Broxy, "perhaps I can take the book myself and turn it over to him to-morrow."

"Why, so you could. He was to pay cash down for it, though, and—maybe—"

"How much is it?"

"Only $7. I've just got this one left, and I start for Indiana in the morning—"

"Here's the money."

"Let me see—three, four, six, six and a half, seven. That's right. Thanks."

Where He Was Fooled.

"How is it that you charged that man more for the same lunch than you did me?" inquired a customer of a restaurant attendant.

"There are tricks in all trades, me boy," answered the waiter, as he punched a meal ticket. "I sized that man up and knew that unless he was charged a good price that would think this is a cheap joint."

"But you can't always judge the book by the cover," he continued, "and I remember once of the proprietor getting neatly caught on a young fellow who came in here with a young woman. They were dressed in the height of fashion, and sauntering in with a languid air, ordered an after-theatre lunch that showed they had fastidious palates. When the bill was presented the boss took a look at his customer and without turning a hair, demanded $3 for fifty cents' worth of stuff. The young fellow looked at the boss for a minute or two dispassionately and then quietly requested that he take another inventory and guess again. He only paid sixty cents for his lunch."—Buffalo Express.

Geographical Discussion.

Two tough-looking citizens stood in front of a north side saloon the other day engaged in animated conversation.

"It ain't no use tellin' me," exclaimed the man with the ragged cap, "that Elligzandry is in Afriky. Durn it all, it's in Egypt! Anybody that knows anything at all knows it's in Egypt."

"That's all right," marled the other. "If you knowed anything about jography you'd know it wasn't within a thousand miles of Egypt. It's in Afriky. I've seen it on the map mo'n a hundred times."

"You can't tell where Afriky is to save your life."

"You hadn't got no more idee where Egypt is than if you was on the other side of the moon."

"Egypt is on the Nile, you —"

"Look out. Don't you call no names."

"Well, you just tell me where Afriky is. Jest you tell me where Afriky is, if you know so all-fired much."

"Afriky's right on the equator. It runs along on both sides of it. It's where the Africans live. If you'd ever seen an Egyptian you'd know he wasn't an African fur as you could see 'im."

"Say, I'll tell you wot I'll do with you. We'll go right in here to Grief's saloon, and if he's got a map I'll leave it to him."

"I'll do it."

"And if his map says it's in Egypt the drinks is on you."

"Yes, and if it says it's in Afriky, they're on you."

"That's right."

They went inside the saloon, and when the policeman on that beat softly entered the place an hour afterward, the two men were seated at a table in one corner of the room with a faded old map between them, thirsty beyond the power of man to describe, wild-eyed with anger, and still wrangling.—Chicago Tribune.

An Invalid's Bed.

Many, many a time when we have a dear one in our charge who is seriously ill, the embarrassing question of changing the bed linen arises, and unless one knows how to do this without removing the patient from bed, serious consequences are apt to follow.

Suppose that the patient is quite helpless, the one in attendance takes the sheet or blanket which is to be placed under her and spreads it out until it reaches the place where the patient rests. The excess amount is gathered into long, thick folds as compactly as possible, and then the patient is gently moved on to the plain space and the folds are spread out on the other side to correspond with the section already laid out.

If the individual is able to move only the least bit this operation is a comparatively easy one, and even when she is entirely helpless the change can be made much more expeditiously than the telling of it indicates.

Care of Stoves and Pipe During Summer.

To prevent amused stoves and pipe from rusting through the summer is an item of domestic economy worth consideration. Stoves and pipe left standing through the summer, even in rooms in which there is little perceptible dampness, will rust before one's eyes unless light fires are occasionally built to rid the air of moisture which surely exists and will leave telling marks, especially if there is running water or a dripping faucet on the same floor. Russia pipes put away for the summer should first be carefully wrapped in newspapers; if there are several stoves to be cared for, each outfit should be labeled.

If lengths of pipe are borrowed for summer stoves, it is well to jot that down also, as it may save confusion and unsanctified language later on. Stoves likewise should be encased in paper, and further wrapped in old carpeting to prevent jams and bruises. Blacking should always be done in cloudy weather, as sunshine is not conducive to high polish. If rust is found on cast iron, kerosene may be applied, but never on sheet iron. Apply the blacking with a brush, rub quickly with a woolen rag, and polish with brush or broom.

To keep the elaborate nickel work of our modern stoves untarnished, I know of nothing better than an abundance of "elbow grease" applied daily with a woolen cloth. When such stoves are stored for the summer, all removable nickel—such as base, urn, fenders, and knobs, should be separately papered and kept in a perfectly dry closet. An excellent preparation for renovating old cloth mats is a furniture dressing composed of equal parts of sweet oil, turpentine and alcohol.—American Agriculturist.

Troy, Mich., May 23, 1894.—I was troubled with boils and other skin diseases and two or three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me entirely. I have enjoyed good health ever since taking it. My father takes it regularly and considers it a great medicine. We are never without it. Hilda L. Brand.

Hood's Pills cure indigestion.

A Samoan Superstition.

"During wars the unbured dead caused a great deal of anxiety and distress to their relatives, who imagined they could hear the spirits of the warriors constantly crying to them. 'Cold! Cold! Oh, I am so cold!'"

As it was impossible to bury the real body, they imagined the spirits assumed material shape, or could be obtained in some tangible form, and funeral ceremonies held over them. About dusk the friends and relatives assembled where the warrior was supposed to have fallen. Spreading a cloth on the ground, one would pray to some family god, asking to obtain quickly and without trouble the spirit of the fallen one. Whatever happened to alight or crawl on the cloth was considered to be the spirit. If nothing appeared some other member of the family would pray, giving place in turn to someone else. This was continued until something would alight on the cloth. Whatever it proved to be—ant, moth or worm—was carefully wrapped up in the cloth taken home, and buried with all the honors and ceremony due the real body of the warrior.—From "The Land of the Bread-fruit." Outing for July.

Our Neighbor John and Some of His Queer Ways.

We cannot ignore him, for he is our nearest neighbor in this direction—under our feet. Perhaps the fact that he is opposite to us in location may prepare you to learn that he is opposite to us in many other respects.

He studies from dawn till dark while a boy, and walks on stilts, plays ball and marbles, and flies kites when he is a man. He is fond of fire-works, but displays them principally by daylight. He rides in boats drawn by men, and in a vehicle (which might be called a carriage or wheelbarrow, according to one's mood) moved by balls. The needle of his compass—the mariner's compass being his own invention, by the way—points toward the south, and he talks of the "west-north" or the "east-south," as the case may be. His own name is also turned about.

If he is John Chairman with us, he would be Chairman John at home. In school he sits with his back to the teacher and studies his lessons aloud. The ferule reaches for him if he fails to study loud enough. He dates his letters with the year first, and begins to read on the lower right hand corner of the last page. If John is mortally offended or insulted, he does not attack his enemy as a hot-headed American might do; but kills himself instead, on the enemy's doorstep, and the mourning relatives don white to show their grief.

When John wishes to pay special respect to any one, he keeps his hat on and takes his shoes off in that one's presence. When he meets a friend he grasps and cordially shakes his own hand, leaving the friend to do the same for himself. Instead of heartily performing that operation for each other, as we do, if so glad to see each other that hand-shaking does not express their joy, they rub shoulders until tired out. John shaves, not his face, but his head and eyebrows; he whitens his shoes, he wears a long gown, and carries a fan. He assumes the duties of milliner, laundress and dressmaker; he pays the doctor as long as he is well but stops payment as soon as he is ill.—St. Nicholas.

A Mysterious Phenomenon.

Numbers of explorers, who have sought the Arctic regions in quest of the pole, have told of a mysterious city mirrored against that northern sky—stately buildings in choice architecture, tall and imposing spires, but such as differ from anything we know of. Whether the foundation of this mirage is a reality and only recognizable, because of transposition as to directions, whether it is the work of some mysterious remnant of our race that once occupied the pole, or whether this is some fanciful feature of the frost, as the peculiar shrubbery we sometimes see on the window-pane—whatever this is, it must be consigned to the perplexing enigmas of the unknown region.

Who knows but that some spot, once the theatre of busy and advanced human life, may have escaped the general cataclysmal wreck and that this city may be the silent and as yet undiscovered witness of pre-polar time standing alone in the dead desolation, in the frigid shroud of now polar death! If we must be barred from this undiscovered country we may add to our equipment by a careful noting of its mirage and then give to the basis of these phenomena a most thorough study.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE MOTION DENIED.

Judge Kinne Refuses a New Trial in the Hand Murder Case.

The following is Judge Kinne's opinion filed in the Hand murder case, denying a new trial, as published in The Daily Times:

This motion is based upon the arguments of the counsel for the people.

If I did not believe that the accused had had a fair and impartial trial it would be my pleasure as it would be my duty to set aside the verdict in this case.

There have been two trials of this case. At the last trial I think it was manifest that the counsel for the people sought to so conduct the proceedings that if a conviction resulted there should be no ground for a reversal.

In my opinion they succeeded in this attempt. No conviction is likely to stand unless some allowance is made for the ordinary infirmities of human nature and the natural beatings of the human heart. Absolute perfection can hardly be expected even in a court of justice.

The law of the country surrounds the accused with every reasonable safeguard and I am not aware that any protection was withheld on this trial.

The accused was represented by able and experienced lawyers. No more alert and astute counsel can be found at the bar of this state. All that eloquent lips, faultless logic, keen reasoning, sagacious management and untiring devotion can accomplish were liberally employed to secure the acquittal of the defendant. Nothing likely to influence the jury was left unsaid or undone.

It may be the opinion of some that the people should have no corresponding representation in this contest between guilt and innocence; that the counsel for the people should be bound and shackled, while the counsel for the defendant may be permitted to go on untrammelled; that zeal and logic and argument on behalf of the people should be deemed error; that the counsel for the state should not reply to their adversaries, but content themselves, with a tame review of the testimony stripped of its legitimate theories and rational deductions. When such practice obtains there can be but little hope that justice will overtake the criminal.

To the poor dumb victim of a crime it seems strange that the fallacy, the sophistry and the absurdity of alleged innocence may not be exposed and the features of guilt fearlessly portrayed.

It sometimes seems to be assumed that the 12 competent and impartial men to whom under the law of this state is committed the solemn duty of determining from the evidence the guilt or the innocence of the accused are mere automatons of counsel, utterly incapable of executing their oaths or of discriminating between the evidence submitted and the speech of counsel. The assumption that the jurors mentally are but children of tender years and therefore they must be protected against the enthusiasm and extravagance of counsel is a poor compliment to, and in my opinion an unjust criticism upon, the intelligence of the jury. My observation leads me to conclude that such a view of the jury system is as mistaken in fact as it is indefensible in theory. I am satisfied that the juries in the state do not base their verdicts upon the statements and asseverations of counsel which usually go for whatever they are intrinsically and in truth worth and no more, but upon the evidence in the case, which has reached their judgment and produced a conviction in their minds.

In my opinion there exists no doubt but that the verdict in this case was reached by the jury through a careful, fearless and conscientious consideration of the evidence submitted at the trial, and in no other manner and for no other reasons. That if anything was said by counsel for the people which might otherwise be open to criticism the same finds full justification in the previous arguments of counsel for the defence.

I think a reading of my charge to the jury will clearly disclose how carefully the rights of the defendant were guarded.

This question of innocence or guilt has been submitted to a jury who have determined the question and I know of no reason why I should subvert their judgment. The motion must be overruled.

Horticultural Society Meeting.

The Washtenaw County Horticultural Society held its summer meeting at the court house on June 23. The reports of the fruit crops were the most gloomy in the history of the society. The strawberry was damaged by the hail last May—the blossom stems being cut off, so that the yield was only about 20 per cent. of an average. Some raspberry plantations west of the city were also ruined by the hail. Several fruit men put their loss at from $600 to $1,000. Vineyards west of the city had their fruit nearly completely cut off—about 80 per cent. of the crop.

North of the river and in the eastern part of the city the hail did not do much damage. The peach crop will be very light about 30 per cent. of an average crop. The Crawfords, although having blossomed fairly well, have set very little fruit. The more hardier varieties are bearing a medium crop. Some varieties of pears are yielding fairly well, but there will not be a full crop. The apple, which started out so flattering for a bountiful crop, has been dwindling down—now there is little left as a crop. The trees have blossomed well and the weather during the blooming was favorable for proper potentiation and the fruit had set well. The cause of the apple failing seems to be owing to a fungous which destroys both the foliage and fruit. The leaves on trees so affected are coming off, and the apples left are largely scabby and will therefore have little market value. It now appears, unless the fungous can be headed off, that the apple in America is doomed. The apple has been the pride of the country, but the foe that has set in towards its destruction may prove as formidable as the phylloxera against the grape in Europe. The experimental stations must be looked to to carry on a line of experiments for combating the disease. The Agricultural Department at Washington has done good work in this direction for the past few years on the failure of the pear. The apple now requires its attention. Individuals cannot well grapple with such a knotty question or piece of work. The loss of the apple means millions of dollars to the country and the subject cannot be treated lightly.

A new peach disease has come up and was recognized last year by Mr. John Schenk and the writer, and at this meeting was mentioned and reported upon by Mr. B. G. Buell from Elm fruit farm. The leaves roll up, have a yellow appearance and show red spots. What the outcome of this disease will prove to be the future will tell. The best course, at present, to pursue, is to take out such affected trees and burn them up. The peachmen had better not run too much risk in leaving diseased trees stand in the orchard. The Cuthbert raspberry developed a disease known as the "curl leaf," and has spread to such an extent as to threaten to destroy this variety, and with it whole plantations in the near future. Had the plants been taken out when the disease first made its appearance, some five or six years ago, the trouble might have been averted.

JACOB GANZHORN, Sec'y.

Literary Notes.

A Colonial Weather Service will be described in The Popular Science Monthly for July, by Alexander McAde, of the Weather Bureau in Washington. This "weather service" consisted of the records and correspondence of Thomas Jefferson, the sage of Monticello, and Prof. James Madison, afterward Bishop of Virginia. Two full-page pictures illustrating modern meteorological methods accompany the text.

The keynote of Mrs. Burton Harrison's latest serial, "A Bachelor Maid" which begins in the July Century, is the remark of a Girton girl: "All might yet be well with us if we had three generations of single women." The heroine wishes to devote herself to the interests of higher womanhood, and she believes that domesticity forms an insuperable barrier to successful effort.

ANN ARBOR, June 18, 1894.

The Famous Triangle.

In an extensive article on "Wheeling In and About Detroit," in Sunday's Tribune there is a paragraph of interest to Ann Arbor people. It says: The most popular run out of Detroit is by the way of Michigan avenue to Ann Arbor, over the old Chicago turnpike. This road leads through a pleasant, rolling country, especially beyond Wayne. It is up and down hill all the way, the turns often being abrupt and unexpected. For a long part of the way the railroad track is near at hand, and, there is given the added fun of an occasional spurt with a freight train; sometimes the cyclist keeps ahead for a long distance, but, sooner or later, he falls behind.

The "triangle" is a roadway that is known by reputation at least, to almost every rider in this country. It runs from Ann Arbor to Saline, and then eastward to Ypsilanti. It is one of the very finest stretches of public highway in the United States. It is a smooth, gravel-bedded road, lined with beautiful rural scenery on all sides, and is made doubly inviting by reason of the rugged, hilly country through which it passes. But the heights and valleys are not abrupt and are gained by no special exertion on the part of the cyclist. If you ride a bicycle and are contemplating a little up in the country, by all means do not overlook "the triangle." You will find all your expectations anticipated.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular Session.

Called to order by Pres. Keech.

Roll called. Present Messrs. Keech and Clark.

Absent, Mr. Schuh.

Minutes of the previous meeting read and approved.

The petition of Geo. W. Bullis, which was referred to the Board of Public Works by the Common Council, asking for a plan how to take care of the water that accumulates in the vicinity of Washtenaw and South University Avenues, was referred to the City Attorney and City Engineer for a report and plans.

Mr. Norris appeared for Mrs. Jolly before the Board, asking permission to cut Washington street for the purpose of connecting with the High School sewer, provided permission was granted by the School Board.

By Mr. Clark: Resolved, That Mrs. Blanche Jolly be allowed to cut Washington street for the purpose of connecting with the high school sewer, provided permission is given her by the School Board of District No. 1, and that permission for connecting with the high school sewer do not exempt Mrs. Jolly from the lateral sewer tax.

Adopted as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Leach and Clark.

City Engineer Key asked for an assistant engineer so as to expedite matters as to work laid out by the Common Council as to building lateral sewers. Mr. Clark moved that we invite the Sewer Committee of the Council to be present at a special meeting of this Board to be held Tuesday evening, June 21, at 7:30 o'clock sharp, for the purpose of considering the matter as to employing an assistant engineer.

Adopted as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Keech and Clark.

On motion the President and Clerk of the Board of Public Works were ordered to conclude a contract with Koch Brothers for the construction of the end of the Fountain street culvert.

The Sidewalk Inspector reported that he had personally inspected the sidewalks which had not as yet been constructed: On Observatory street, west side, in front of the property of Mrs. Sarah Wilson; Mrs. Alice Grant; Mrs. Julia A. Street; Mrs. Miranda A. Jenkins and Miss Sylvia Smith, on Broadway, northerly side, in front of the property of Isaac Greenman; Chas. Neithammer; Isaac Dunn; W. Whitlark and Hughes and Ferris; on Fuller street in front of the property of Harvey Cornwell; on E. Catherine street along the property of Wm. R. Stevens and Mrs. Rogers.

On motion the report was received and ordered filed, and the Street Commissioner ordered to take the necessary steps to build the walks.

Ald. Snyder appeared before the Board and stated that it was a public necessity to pave the gutter on the east side of Gott street from Summit street.

The matter was referred to Mr. Clark and the Street Commissioner.

On motion the Board adjourned.

W. J. MILLER, Clerk.
