To Improve the P. O. Service.

It has long been felt and known that the mail carriers at Ann Arbor were over worked, and that a large portion of the city which is clearly entitled to free delivery, is not granted that desirable boon by Uncle Sam.

Ex-Postmaster Deal made several attempts to secure additional carriers and showed up the condition here to the Washington authorities in a manner that ought to have brought relief, but the government would make no changes because of the hard times and the constantly increasing expenses over receipts in running the country.

Postmaster Beakes has now opened up a campaign on Washington in the same line. He has had a census taken of the districts outside of the free delivery and finds 581 houses, together with the University Hospitals and Observatory in the 4th ward, and a factory in the 2d ward. He also finds that when the students are here, nine months in the year, that Ann Arbor has over 15,000 inhabitants, and that because of the fact that nearly 4,000 of these are young people away from home, that the city receives more mail than any other place of 15,000 inhabitants in the entire United States. That while the receipts are about $29,000 per year in money, the same as Bay City, the receipt of mail matter is far greater than any other post office located in a city of this size.

The carrier's loads average about 45 lbs., and often reach 55 lbs each; even during vacation period loads weighing 52 lbs. are taken out. There are no other carriers anywhere in the state forced to take such enormous loads. And even then the mail could not be delivered did not all the carriers return to the office in the evening and hand out mail to callers therefor. At times fully 100 people at each of the six windows have been found waiting for the evening mail. At no other city do all the carriers have to return to the office evenings to do this work.

There are some instances of injustice in the present free delivery districts. For instance, when the present routes were established there were no inhabitants on S. Ashley st. between Madison and Jefferson sts. Now it is densely inhabited, the entire distance having been built up within a few years. And according to the ironclad P. O. rules no person, if even only ten feet from the established free delivery line, can have his mail delivered.

Postmaster Beakes has asked for four new carriers, two of whom shall be mounted carriers to supply the outlying districts, and everybody in Ann Arbor hopes he will secure them. It will be simply doing justice to Ann Arbor.

Up North.

Like many others who have read of the new boat the "North-West," running from Buffalo to Duluth, we concluded to take a trip on it up to the Soo. She is the fastest and largest boat on the lakes, requiring the service of 150 employees. With her 28 large boilers her speed can be put up to 21 knots per hour. On board is a complete electric lighting plant supplying 1,600 incandescent lamps, adjoining which is an ice machine for making all the ice used. The cabins and saloons are furnished in mahogany. No freight or emigrants are carried. The rates are high, and the boat is too fast for pleasure seekers, for one reaches Sault Ste. Marie in inside of 24 hours, whereas on a trip for rest he would prefer to be longer on the water.

Probably the boat will not pay expenses, but that is not much of an object, for the Great Northern R'y built it to run in connection with its trains, to beat railroad time from Duluth to Buffalo and give connections east in competition with the other Pacific roads.

The Soo has shown a handsome increase in population since the 1890 census and is sure to be a large city. With such a water power it will not be five years before there are established immense paper mills, flour mills, breweries and manufactories. Half a million dollars have already been spent in buying the right of way and digging on the water power canal. It is now in the hands of the bondholders who got it for less than $70,000, thus putting it in excellent shape for some one to take hold of and develop.

Another year will see the new locks opened which the government has spent two millions of dollars upon, and which are 800 feet long by 100 feet wide—large enough to take through at one time, four steamers the size of the North-West.

Mackinac Island is as beautiful as ever. The crowd has not arrived yet, therefore the hack men and hotel keepers are very tame and accommodating in charges. Before the season fairly opens one gets the best there for two dollars per day.

Alpena has not felt the panic very seriously, as all the mills and factories are running. But it is tough on the mill owners, for as they cannot sell their lumber, it has to be piled up on the docks. In the meantime they have to pay out large sums for logs and pay rolls.

The farming lands of Alpena, Montmorency and Presque Isle counties are being rapidly bought for about ten dollars per acre and cleared up. All these farmers come to Alpena, so the future of that city after lumbering ceases will be assured. Great success attends fruit culture in that region, plums, pears and apples being large crops.

The strike almost killed lake traffic, tying up thousands of boats. Even those still running go without half a load. This will cause great distress to the sailors next winter, as nearly all are now laid off in this their harvest time.

To take a trip on the lakes in mid-summer is the ideal vacation, since the tourist can take a passenger steamer of some of the best lines, get his state room, meals and passage for about what it costs at a hotel on land, thus enjoying the delights of motion, the changes of scenery and the coolness of fresh air.

Miss Minnie J. Gardner of this city formerly one of Prof. Trueblood's pupils, gave an Elocution Recital at Toledo, O., on Friday evening last, which is spoken of by people who were there, and by the press of the city, in terms of great praise. Miss Gardner was assisted by Albert Long, violinist, of Ann Arbor, and by Miss Hattie Long, guitar and banjo player, and Miss Lillian Trost, pianist, of Toledo. The programme contained ten selections, and was sufficiently varied to be pleasing and entertaining. Miss Gardner, who has a school of elocution at Toledo, is meeting with excellent success, and is considered to be at the front in this profession.

To Britain's New Baby.

Hello, there, kid! How do you do? Even cousin to the Red, White and Blue, We want to say we're proud of you. Of course, you'll have to wear a crown After a while and trample down Your subjects rights, but then, dear kid That's what your royal ancestors did; And you are not to blame for that, Go cozy, woolly, chubby, fat, Pink-toed kinglet you don't know The American eagle from a crow. And Liberty's nothing more to you Than freedom to raise a hullabaloo. And shall all night and make your dad wonder what in thunder had Got into you to make you raise Your rows of nights instead of days. You're born to a high and mighty place. And Liberty's nothing more to you Than freedom to raise a hullabaloo. Of a piece of dough, turned up and red As the fuzz that's on your little head. And a mouth so puckered and pink and small, That it is hardly a mouth at all. And daddy wonders not a little bit How all that squall come out of it; And rosy cheeks of dimpled fat. That mamma loves to pinch and pat. There's nothing of kingdoms and crowns and thrones In your baby face or your yellow tones; You're like a kid like the rest of us. Were one time; but they make more fuss For one like you than a million that Are not sure where they are at. But rag or royalty, or little sing, You're the baby, and the baby is king. P. S.—If England is short on poets laureate to boom the baby, what's the matter with her getting one from America, the land of the free, etc., who can shake down a boom similar to the above, and repeat, "If its twins!"—W. J. L., in New York Sun

She Made the Train.

One of the best looking young ladies in the 3d ward, went to Detroit last Saturday p. m. In getting ready she parried a little too long in primping and curling her hair, for she went to meet her intended, and wanted to look very sweet, of course. By reason of this, time sped faster than she had any idea of, and before she arrived at the M. C. station the train which was to carry her to the delighted presence of her Detroit friends, (especially one of them), whistled for Ann Arbor. She immediately increased her speed and kept increasing it as the danger of getting left presented itself to her fevered imagination. In her haste she did not notice a projection in the sidewalk over which her little feet were fleetly. Her foot hit the projection, of course, and her momentum being so great it was not a pleasing thing to hit just at that particular moment. Then came a fall. The little lady landed about ten feet ahead of the projection, and she slid the remainder of the distance to the station. Did she scream, and cry, and attract attention? Not she. She picked herself up, rushed through the waiting room, and jumped on the train just as it moved off. After boarding the train she took time and pinned up the rents in her dress (for there were several of them) shook the dust and debris out of her frizzes, patched up two or three ugly holes in her hands made in the headlong slide, with court plaster, and upon arriving at her destination was in a presentable condition, notwithstanding the provoking accident. This is a true story. And this young lady is one of the right sort, too, who is not to be crushed by circumstances and accidents, but who has the grit to do what she attempts to do. That Detroit young man is one of the fortunate ones of this world, if he does but know it.

Cut off His Pension.

As showing some of the peculiarities of the present administration in regard to pensions, it might not be amiss to state that during October last the pension of Frank J. Lewis, who was well-known to many of our citizens, was suspended by Commissioner Lochren, on the ground that he was not disabled. Mr. Lewis was at the time confined to the house and not able to be out, was never down town after that date, and died on the last day of May. This was a cruel piece of injustice, and the wrong that his government did him preyed upon his mind to a considerable extent the last few months of his life. Of course, a man like Mr. Hoke Smith can not feel the cruelty of such treatment of the old veterans who periled their lives for their country, but the people up north, regardless of party, are indignant at such contemptible work, and will resent it when the time comes to express their opinion. There is no doubt but that the suspension of Mr. Lewis was illegal under decisions of the courts.

A Small Horse—Pony—on Himself.

This didn't happen yesterday, but it happened all right enough. A gentleman who sometimes attends to official business was looking through a list of names in whose favor county orders still remained uncalled for on the books of the county clerk. His eyes happened to catch a familiar name that can be seen any day on a sign in front of a N. Main st. establishment. No sooner had his vision caught the name than a brilliant thought entered his head. He confided this thought to the clerk, who isn't more than an hour usually, in getting a good thing through his head, and he fell in with the plan.

Then there was a scurrying around to get ten fellows together who just at that time were in need of a tumbler full of that exhilarating, non-intoxicating German beverage, called in vulgar vernacular lager beer. Only nine could be found, but the crowd marched into the establishment above referred to, trusting to luck for the tenth, and at the suggestion of one each made his wants known.

A satisfied look lit up the dealer's face as he gazed upon the long row of customers, and it encompassed his physiognomy in an all-prevailing smile as one of the party said: "What's your's, Fred?" "Oh! I guess I dake a schmall one," was the reply.

After the bottoms of the tumblers were found, the first mentioned gentleman deposited a county order on the counter calling for the payment of fifty cents to the aforesaid dealer who had taken a pony, and waited the result.

Fred took the order up, looked it over, and as the mystery of the thing gradually unfolded itself to his understanding, he remarked: "By gracious, dot's choost vaht I made oop in Pond's office for a vittness. Vell, boys, dot's all right. Dot's one on me, but sometimes I ged it back. I'll red a schoke on you fellers, sometimes already."

When the moon arose last evening it was surrounded by a blood red atmosphere. Taking that together with the letter B on the oats down in Indiana, it surely means something awful. No doubt about it!

The Michigan Farmer has a good word to say for the Farmers' Picnic, to be held at Whitmore Lake, August 25th. It says the meeting always has good speakers, "is attended by the very best class of farmers," and this year "the gathering is expected to be the largest and most interesting yet held."

Call for the Republican State Convention

The republican electors of the State of Michigan, and all others who may desire to unite with them in upholding the principles of the republican party, as declared in the platform adopted by the last national republican convention, are hereby requested to send delegates to the state convention of said party, to be held at Hartman Hall, in the city of Grand Rapids, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, July 31st, 1894, for the purpose of nominating candidates for state officers, the election of a chairman of the republican state central committee, and two members of that committee from each congressional district, and for the transaction of such other business as usually comes before the convention.

Every county will be entitled to one delegate for each 500 of the total vote cast for governor at the last election (November, 1892), and to one additional delegate for every fraction amounting to 250, but each organized county will be entitled to at least two delegates.

Under the resolution of 1883, no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the convention who does not reside in the county he proposes to represent.

The delegates from each congressional district are requested to meet in caucus at 9 o'clock on the morning of the day of the convention to select candidates to be presented to the state convention for confirmation, as follows: One vice-president, one assistant secretary, one member each of the committees on "credentials," "permanent organization and order of business," and "resolutions," and two members of the state central committee, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before them.

In accordance with a resolution, adopted June 23, 1870, the secretary of each county convention is requested to forward to the secretary of the state central committee, No. 1, Newberry Building, Detroit, Mich., by the earliest mail, after the delegates to the state convention have been chosen, a certified list of the delegates from their respective counties, who are entitled to seats in the convention.

Washtenaw county is entitled to 21 delegates.

Republican state central committee.

Michigan wool free! Louisiana sugar tariffed. You see the wool men didn't have the "sugar."

Will some one pardon Gov. Altgeld? No, sir, not much. He and Prendergast should dangle from the same high (neck) swing.

The democrats have pulled the wool off the tariff, but the voters will pull the democrats off their perch next November, all right enough.

The Pontiac Gazette has at last joined the procession, and comes out as a 6 col. quarto instead of a blank sheet folio. Its improved appearance will go far toward holding it in the front rank where its ability has always stood.

President Cleveland and Gov. Rich can both afford to lose the votes of anarchists and their sympathizers; especially when they are so enthusiastically backed by the American citizens who believe in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

There is no doubt but that this administration has been run economically. By dint of reducing and cutting off pensions, etc., the government has managed to get along with only a deficiency of $70,000,000! Economy, thy name is democracy!

One thing is quite amusing. The very people who have been clamoring for the government ownership and control of railroad and telegraph lines, steamship lines, etc., are now the loudest in their denunciation of what they are pleased to term "federal interference." They want everything their own way, even if that way results in bloodshed and arson.

The present commissioner of pensions by democratic manipulation has managed to deprive the Union veterans, heirs, widows and orphans of about $20,000,000 justly and honestly due them, to make a showing of economy. At the same time he has increased the payment to southerners who were in the Mexican war, $1,800,000.—Cedar Springs Clipper.

KICKING THE AIR.

The Courier had a few remarks to make in a recent issue in regard to an article taken from the Ypsilanti Sentinel, patting a Reverend gentleman on the back who had made a triad against the University. Now the Sentinel comes back at us in this way:

The Ann Arbor Courier simply makes itself ridiculous by flying into a fury every time a county paper criticises the University.

If the Sentinel had been fair enough to have quoted what the Courier said, the above assertion would seem just a little queer to its readers, for there was not a sentence, line or word, even, in our article that was so furious or couched in language in the least intemperate. Further:

And its rage is especially ridiculous, when the object of the criticism is an address, that is spread before the public, so that every reader can form his own judgment as to its merits.

Ah! Then it was not the "criticism of the county paper," that called out the "furious rage?"

As to injuring the University, we apprehend that a county paper that frankly criticises either real or apparent fault, will be heard with more respect when it praises what is praiseworthy, than one that is ever full of fulsome panegyric, and blind to every defect.

The Courier will have no more to say if the editor of the Sentinel will reproduce any article of his in praise of the University, (or perhaps any other great institution or enterprise).

If the Sentinel would occasionally find something, somewhere, praiseworthy, and say so, it would be doing itself a great kindness.

But we do not regard the tendency of the University to depart from orthodox lines as a defect, in an institution of that kind. It is a purely secular, non-sectarian, and we may say non-religious, institution. It educates men of all religions, but teaches none. Christianity, Judaism, Buddhism, Brahmanism, etc., stand on the same plane, and, exactly on that line, the baccalaureate treated the founder of Christianity as the model of character.

If it is all right, what have you been kicking about? Why didn't you acknowledge it, on the start instead of endeavoring to convey to your readers an impression that there was something wrong?

CAN'T BE BOUGHT.

It is asserted that Pingree has raised $50,000 to blow in on the scheme to make him governor, which a few of his fool friends are urging upon him. He will find out that if he had fifty times fifty thousand dollars, with all the wealth of the once famous Croesus on top of that, he could not secure the republican nomination for governor, this year. In the first place republicans are not for sale.

In the next place the action of Gov. Rich in rebuking corruption in office has been such that every honest man in the party has but one course to pursue, and that is to vote for his renomination. If he should be elected in the convention, and some one else nominated in his place, it would be the death knell of republicanism in this state. Nothing could save the entire state ticket from defeat. The rank and file believe that Gov. Rich has nobly performed a very unpleasant duty, and they honor him for it, and propose to stand by him. Mr. Pingree, Col. Bliss and others ought to be wise and shrewd enough to recognize that fact.

If the cholera, or plague, or pestilence of any kind was on its way here, and the government took measures to protect the people, would it be termed "unwarranted interference," by our anarchist friends? And yet when the government seeks to protect the lives and property of American citizens from the ravages of a mob, it is denounced. Out upon such senseless twaddle. It is a government's duty always and at all times to protect the lives and property of its people.

The many bands of Coxeyites still in various portions of this nation, vending their way Washingtonward, are quite surprising and alarming. The movement has been ridiculed, but ridicule doesn't appear to squelch it. Even imprisonment for not keeping off the grass does not appear to dishearten the army. The question what is to be done, and how, is still unsettled, and will be until congress gets down to business and does something. Had the Wilson bill been killed last March, there would not to-day be a Coxeyite in existence.

There are several ways, says Dr. Chauncey M. Depew, for a man to feel good in time of adversity; one way is to look at those who are worse off than he is; the other way is to join Coxey's army; there are two other ways to break adversity's ravages; one is to commit suicide, the other is to cheerfully, courageously do the best you can and not cry. David Crockett, the famous Kentucky hunter, said when he missed a coon he always picked his flint and tried again. In that way he always ultimately got his breakfast.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, carefully prepared from the best ingredients. 25c.

AN UNJUST RULE.

There are said to be two sides to all questions, and this strike controversy certainly has more than one side.

There is one rule which the so-called General Manager's Association has adopted, that appears to the writer of this, extremely unjust. That is the rule which forbids the hiring of any man who has been discharged, no matter what for, by any other railroad company.

A worthy employe may have made a mistake; he may have misunderstood or been misinformed, and is discharged by a railroad company. There have been cases known where superior officials have secured discharges through spite. Under this rule such a man can not be employed again by any other company. There is no hope for him any longer in his chosen line. He must go into something else or starve. He may be so far advanced in years that it will be impossible for him to find other employment that will furnish him a livelihood. In that event there is only one road open to him and that road leads over the hill to the poor house.

That rule is a practical boycott and so against public policy. It is not only unjust but it is tyrannical, despotic. If followed for a sufficient period it will surely work great sorrow and injustice to thousands of good, law-abiding people, and in that way effect many communities.

The Association might, with some show of equity, refuse to rehire a man who had been discharged for revengeful deeds, for acts of violence, or taking part in the destruction of property, but even such a rule would be liable to abuse.

While the workingmen oftentimes are unfortunate in having for leaders people who seek their own advancement instead of the general good of those whom they serve, and are almost without exception punished for the mistakes and errors of judgment of their leaders, yet they are in general well intentioned and faithful to the interests of their employers, recognizing the fact that their employer's prosperity is in a great measure their own. They should not have all avenues closed against them, in the event of their being unfortunate.

We believe that almost any court would hold a rule of that kind as being against the public welfare, and therefore null and void.

If we could have justice and fair dealing on all sides, there would be no more strikes, no more killing of men and plundering by mobs, but every man's intent would be: What can I do to help my neighbor? Not: What can I do to annoy and harm my neighbor?

We call attention to the call for the county convention, and the caucuses in another column. This is a most important convention. It is the first step towards correcting the errors from which the country is suffering, and we trust that all classes, the business man in the cities and the farmer in the fields, is truly alive to the issues involved and will drop for a day their employment and attend to matters affecting the government under which we are to live. Let there be a full delegation from every town and precinct in our county. We cannot afford to neglect our duty at a time like this. Tuesday July 24 is the day.—Ypsilantian.

The last issue of the Northville Record had a column write up of Gen. George Spaulding, of Monroe, candidate for congress in this district, and what purported to be a likeness of the General. The write up was excellent, but the picture! It made one think of the old doggerel: "Any lie you'll tell we'll swallow; swallow any kind of mixture; but oh, don't, we beg and pray you; don't for God's sake show his picture!"

We might add, for the benefit of our readers who do not know the General, that he is quite an Apollo in appearance, and is not the ruffian his photographers try to make out. He is pretty smooth, and pretty clear headed, also, and the hustlers who are seeking the republican congressional nomination can rest assured that this representative of the independent state of Monroe is not sleeping just at present.

A rumor is going about in political circles that in the event of Mr. Rich's renomination by the republican state convention on the 31st, that Mr. Fisher will withdraw from the head of the democratic state ticket, and Mayor Pingree of Detroit will be placed thereon. Some of Mr. Pingree's enemies have probably started this story. For if he desires to make such a suicidal move as that he will certainly have the opportunity, as far as the nomination of Mr. Rich is concerned, and if he accepts the opportunity he will never know that he existed after the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November. There wouldn't be a sufficient quantity of Mr. Pingree's elegant physique left for Alex. to dump in the shell of the right smart little mustard seed. In fact it would take a lens as powerful as that in the telescope of the Lick observatory to discover his remains after they had been gathered on the point of a cambric needle.

NOTORIETY THE POINT DESIRED.

Mr. Debs' followers, who struck without any reason for striking, except in sympathy for others, have had opportunity to reflect by this time, and finding themselves out of a situation, with little or no prospect for securing any employment, doubtless feel that the best way to serve friends in trouble is not to attempt to injure those who are your own friends and employers, but to manfully do the work you are employed to do, and show by your own actions and sincerity that those who need your sympathy are worthy of it.

The idea that one person can assist another by ruining his own friends, is an insane one. Whoever originated it is a fit candidate for the mad house. Now that the trouble is over, and the past can be viewed in a calm, dispassionate manner, these men who did the bidding of Mr. Debs can not only see but feel the result of such absurd and ridiculous action.

Such men as Debs are unsafe leaders. They are not seeking the prosperity and welfare of the laboring men whom they represent, but are rather in search of notoriety for themselves.

Mr. Debs' name has been banded about over this entire country. The people have nearly all heard of him, and that was the particular point Debs was interested in. By exercise of even the most ordinary judgment he could have foreseen the result, and no doubt did foresee it. But the notoriety coming to himself as a leader in a great strike overcame all that, and the cruel, wicked and desperate order was given by him that the laboring men under his influence should leave their settlements, bring trouble, disaster and great financial loss upon their employers, under the specious and silly plea of showing their sympathy for a small handful of other laboring men who were at variance with their employers.

Every dollar's worth of property destroyed; every drop of blood spilled; every life lost, is directly chargeable to Mr. Debs. It was the price paid for his notoriety. And the account does not end there. Every hour of idleness forced upon these A. R. U. men by reason of that action; every hour of misery, hunger and suffering endured by their wives and little ones is chargeable to Mr. Debs. Upon his shoulders rests all this enormous and infamous load.

How is it? Is the notoriety worth the cost? Are his shoulders broad enough to bear this fearful burden?

LETTER B.

Hundreds of acres of oats in Miami county, Indiana, have a perfect letter "B" on the blades of the oats in the field. The letter is the full width of the blade, a quarter of an inch wide. The theory of superstitious people is that it means blood, as the same occurred the year before the war of 1812, the Mexican war and the rebellion.—Ex.

Why Blood? Why not Big Blades of oats? Bulls and Bears in the meaning of the stock exchange? Then again the Babies should not be entirely ignored in this deal. And Beauties! surely they ought not to be slighted. It may mean the Brotherhood of man, or locomotive engineers, or something of that sort. Possibly it may refer to piscatorial fame, and be an indication to the fishermen that Big Bullheads are to be caught this year. It is useless to continue this. Buncombe and Balderdash, for a good reform democrat at our elbow has solved the mystery. He says, and he ought to know, that it means Busted.

The Fourth of July, the grandest holiday of the grandest people in the grandest nation under the sun.—Ann Arbor Courier.

Correct, but only just a little while ago the Courier said Washington's birthday was the day of days. Will the Courier take up labor day, Christmas and New Years in their turn?—Northville Record.

Couldn't think of it. Now that Labor Day has been made a legal holiday by enactment of congress, the enthusiasm has all been taken out of it because it falls under the law that prevents the sale of beer, etc., on that day. And as for the other days mentioned; well, we didn't receive a Christmas present and consequently turned over a new leaf on New Years. No, sir! We stick by the glorious 4th of July and the native day of him who made the hatchet famous.

Capt. Drumm states that the objectionable resolutions passed by Co. H. M. N. G., of Jackson, of which he is the captain, did not reflect the sentiments of his company. That they were passed at a lightly attended meeting of the company, and were not written out when offered, or understood by only a few of those present. Further, that all but four of the company utterly repudiate the same. The resolutions referred to censured the governor and other military authorities for calling upon the state militia to quell labor riots. This is glad news, and sets the Jackson militia right in the eyes of the people. The four members who are so far forgetful of their duties as soldiers as to stand by the objectionable action will no doubt be tried by court martial, and dishonorably discharged.

ANARCHY.

Under the above heading the Ypsilanti Sentinel pastes the Evening News this one:

We have seen no more anarchistic a document, anywhere, than the cartoon in the Evening News of Saturday night, representing labor's share of the products of human labor, in contrast with the millionaire's. The $2.25 for a day's work of a trainman is contrasted with the $210,000,000 of the Astor estate, which has been accumulating for a hundred years. Had the contrast been made between $75,000, the approximate of a hundred years labor at $2.25 per day, and Astor's $210,000,000, it would have been sufficiently startling. But let us see even then whether it would have been just to say that the distribution had been an injustice to labor. Old Astor began as poor as the proverbial Job's turkey, and laid the foundation of his fortunes by cheating Indians out of furs, which he sold to the rich at enormous profits. To what share of that dishonest money was labor entitled? Shall labor now be envious because it was not a partner in the robbery of savages?

The money thus obtained, old Astor laid out in the purchase from the state of New York, in other words from labor, on lands which he held, by the consent of the People, for speculation, and when his speculation was not rapid enough, the People of the state of New York in senate and assembly convened, granted him relief time and again. When we deduct from the $210,000,000 of the Astor estate, all the accretions, in which labor can justly claim no share, it is probable that of the remnant, labor will be found to have received a just proportion. Undoubtedly that estate has paid many millions of dollars for labor, representing a large percentage of the present fortune of the family. The cases of the newer millionaires are worse, but even in these the impartial truth is not represented in the picture.

The statement which is heard among the populists to-day, that what we lack in the United States is currency, is clearly not true. There is an abundance of currency piled up and not in use all over the United States. It is an abundance of business which makes money active. Surely there is no better sign of business activity than to have the money of the country constantly drawn out of banks to supply the needs of business. There is more money in existence, more money per capita outside the government vaults, to-day than has ever been known at any previous time in the United States. It is not currency, but confidence that's needed. Let congress swear off, and assure the people that they will let tariff legislation alone, and you will see good times again.

Next a good life, to beget love in the persons we counsel, by dissembling our knowledge of ability in ourselves, and avoiding all suspicion of arrogance, ascribing all to their instruction, as an ambassador to his master, or a subject to his sovereign; seasoning all with humanity and sweetness, only expressing care and solicitude. And yet not to counsel rashly, or on the sudden, but with advice and meditation. For many foolish things fall from wise men, if they speak in haste or be extempor. It therefore behoves the giver of counsel to be circumspect; especially to beware of those with whom he is not thoroughly acquainted, lest any spice of rashness, folly, or self-love appear, which will be marked by new persons and men of experience in affairs.

The Two Words.

One day a harsh word, rashly said,
Upon a civil journey sped.
And like a sharp and cruel dart,
It pierced a fond and loving heart;
It turned a friend into a foe,
And everywhere brought pain and woe.

A kind word followed it one day,
Flew swiftly on its blessed way.
It healed the wound, and soothed the pain,
And friends of old were friends again;
It made the hate and anger cease,
And everywhere brought joy and peace.

But yet the harsh word left a trace
The kind word could not quite efface;
And though the heart its love regained,
It bore a scar that long remained;
Friends could forgive, but not forget,
Or lose the sense of keen regret.

Oh, if we but learn to know
How swift and sure our word can go,
How would we weigh with utmost care
Each thought before it sought the air,
And only speak the words that move
Like white-winged messengers of love.

Moving.

Everything in dire confusion
Nothing where it ought to be,
Furniture piled in a corner
At the moving man's decree,
Everything put helter-skelter,
Not a single vacant chair,
Desks on top of one another,
For convenience—but we're there!

If you want a bunch of matches,
Send the boy to buy a gross;
It would take a week to find some,
Meanwhile you get comatose,
Don't ask who has got a hammer,
Some things are too much to bear;
Moving isn't altogether
Pleasant, is it? But we're there,

Watermelons.

FRANK L. STANTON.

O, the Georgia watermelon! It's a-growin', cool an' green,
An' I soon be pullin' heavy on the stem;
An' the knife—it needs a whettin' and the blade is gettin' keen,
O, the Georgia watermelon is a gem!

Melons, cool an' green—
Jest the best you ever seen!
See the sweet juice drippin'
From them melons cool an' green!

O, the Georgia watermelon, with the purtiest sort o' stripe!
It ain't a streak o' fat an' streak o' lean;
You thump her with your fingers, an' you hear
O, the Georgia watermelon, cool an' green!

When you pull a Georgia melon you must know what you're at,
And look out how your knife is goin' in;
Put one-half on this side o' you—the other half
An' then, you git between 'em an' begin!

They're mighty—mighty fillin' with their flamin' hearts o' red—
Like the reddest o' the roses in the South!
When cotton's down to nothin', take the place
O' meat and bread.

Make you think a hive o' honey's in your mouth!
But they're way ahead o' honey, as a slice or two will prove;
It's slicker an' it's sweeter as it elips;
There ain't no bigger problem when the melon's on the move—
Make the white man and the nigger smack his lips!

Melons cool an' green—
Don't want no fence between!
But I'd outdo all creation
For them melons cool and green!

The Bachelor Girl.

Sing hey, to the cheery bachelor girl!
As she hurries along in the city's whirl!
With her jaunty coat close-reeced and round,
And her dress to "just escape the ground,"
And her flat-heeled boots, with the square-cut toes,
And the easy swing as along she goes,
This "nervy" bachelor girl.

Awake and up with morning light—
For her work was planned while it yet was night—
She trills to herself a lovely lay
As she thinks of the "lot to be done" that day,
And the roses mount to her cheeks and lips,
This eager bachelor girl.

If her money is short her head is long—
And she turns perplexities into a song—
For her work was planned while it yet was night—
Her hands are willing, her heart is free;
And she scans the field with a masterly eye,
And promptly determines to win or die!
This Spartan bachelor girl.

But, dears, beware of a fatal snare,
That will ruin your kingdom beyond repair;
A flower—a word in a tender tone;
A moment of weakness—the mischief done!
Alas for the dream of aspiring youth!
Alas for the solemn, implacable truth!
Alas, for my bachelor girl.
—New York Recorder.

Growth of "Christian Endeavor."

Christian Endeavor has had a marvelous growth in its fourteen years. It has passed the "big boy" period and is far on the way to matured manhood. Its progress is indicated in the following statistics:

MEMBERSHIP OF THE YOUNG PEOPLES SOCIETIES OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR:
	Societies.	Members.
In 1881.....	7	481
In 1882.....	15	870

In 1884.....	156	8,905
In 1885.....	293	10,961
In 1886.....	850	50,000
In 1887.....	2,314	140,000
In 1888.....	5,879	310,000

In 1893.....	106,381	1,577,040
In 1894 (on record Jan. 1):	28,741	1,724,460

To this may be justly added kindred denominational organizations of young people that have sprung from the Christian Endeavor idea. The most notable of these is the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal churches, with nearly a million members.

The Christian Endeavor movement has reached most of the Protestant churches. Twenty-five denominational conferences have been arranged for at Cleveland. The pastor's study has widened, and the present world is welcoming the Christian Endeavor Society. President Clark, in a recent tour of the world, found a Christian Endeavor welcome and a Mizpah benediction in every land.

THE DUTY OF THE HOUR.

As Viewed by the Detroit Evening News.

"First vindicate the law," says Judge Grosscup, in his charge to the grand jury at Chicago, "until that is done, no other questions are in order." The issue is precisely the same at Chicago as it was recently at Grosse Pointe in the neighborhood of this city, when a small mob of misguided Polacks attacked the employees of the water board, drove them from their work, and subsequently assailed the sheriff and his posse. The number of persons engaged in a violation of the law may raise the incident from one of mere assault or riot to the proportions of insurrection or revolution, but in no way changes the duty of the authorities to address their efforts first of all to the repression of disorder and to the punishment of the guilty. After that is done, the community may calmly consider the alleged grievances which provoked the law breakers to their crime and find a remedy for these grievances if they are seen to be remediable. Remedy by insurrection cannot be tolerated, unless it reach the proportions of successful revolution, and even then it must ultimately take the form of new legislation and the orderly enforcement of new laws.

These seem to be self evident propositions which all men might accept without question, and the fact that there are many who do not accept them only shows into what confusion public opinion has fallen under the influence of loose and ill-digested writing and talking in this country.

Judge Grosscup's charge should be printed and reprinted in all the public journals in this country; it should be read and re-read in all the assemblies and unions of workmen of all classes. It might well form a text book for these bodies from which they could learn to understand their own rights and the rights of others with which latter, unfortunately, they are so often tempted by ignorant or unscrupulous leaders to interfere. While it marks a new departure in legal interpretation, it lays down with singular clearness the old and fundamental principles of law as applied to the new labor conflict by which the country is troubled in our time. People who imagine they have wrongs to be redressed may chafe as they please there is no escaping from these principles. If they should succeed in overthrowing the government and establishing a new one on its ruins, with Debs and Sovereign at its head, they would be no better off. To these principles would they have to come at last before they could secure anything like order out of the chaos they had precipitated.

There are many besides those who are striking and rioting, many outside the class who think they have occasion to strike or riot, many, unfortunately, who are trusted with the duty of teaching the public in press and pulpit, who have not yet fully learned the meaning of those simple principles of human law, without whose enforcement there can be neither order, nor peace, nor right, nor liberty in any community. The multiplicity of preachers and writers and public talkers in our day has not brought the wisdom which is said to be the product of much counsel. There is abundance of quackery urging the use of all manner of nostrums which are warranted to cure every social ill, and their clamorous advertising has made many believe that every social ill is curable, and that it must be the fault of government and law if any ill remains uncurable. The strike nostrum has been fed to the patient again and again, and although it has failed in every case to produce a favorable change, and in most cases made the patient worse, the quacks with characteristic assurance of their breed only insist that the dose has not been heroic enough. The sympathetic strike has been added to the strike simple, and the general strike has been swallowed after the local treatment failed. To this is now superadded the compulsory strike, until the poor patient is nearly at the point of death, but the quack in no degree abates his confidence in his prescription.

It never occurs to these gentlemen, or at least they never confess it, that a simple course of right living without any medicine at all, even if it did not bring the strength of a giant to the patient, would give him as much health and vigor as he can get by any other means. It is for the authorities of the land, however, guided by the courts of law, to draw the line of license at downright malpractice. This is what the court has done in Chicago. The quacks may continue to mislead their victims, so long as the latter take their medicine knowingly and willingly, but there is to be no force in the administration of their nostrums. Workingmen who do not believe in them, or who do not want them, are not to have the nostrums crammed down their throats as has been the case heretofore in all the compulsory strikes. In the administration of the dose, too, the quack must be careful not to violate the federal law by interfering with the free transmission of the mails or with interstate commerce.

Judge Grosscup has spread out the law so broadly that it fully covers the ground, and its rigid enforcement hereafter should be amply sufficient to prevent the repetition of such scenes as have disgraced this country during the past few weeks of riot and rebellion. There is plenty of law to preserve peace and order in this country. If they are not preserved, it will be the fault of the authorities, not of the law.—Detroit Evening News.

Fred Stimson is about commencing the erection of a new residence for himself on the north side of Lawrence st., east of N. State st.

Martin Cook, aged 50 years, died Monday, at his home in Ann Arbor town, of consumption. Interment took place in St. Thomas' cemetery this a. m.

The sparrows are beginning to be a terrible nuisance once more. It was a mistake to shut off the bounty for the summer months during breeding time.

The buffalo bugs or carpet bugs, are very annoying to housekeepers this year. Some people say that even gasoline proves an exhilarating beverage for the pests.

There were over $1,700 in city taxes paid in Monday, over $1,000 yesterday, and there will be about the same amount to-day as yesterday. This is more than double the amounts paid in on the same dates last year.

Miss Schlein, who is employed by Mrs. Medaris on William st., attempted to fill a gasoline stove while it was lighted, last Saturday evening, with the usual result. She was seriously burned.

Willfred Eams, of N. State st., had a nephew, Lowell T. Eames struck by lightning and instantly killed while walking along the street during a storm, at Worcester, Mass. a few days ago.

Rev. N. S. Burton is to improve and repair the house recently purchased by him, No. 26 Lawrence st., about $1,000 worth. He will raise it, put under a new stone wall, put in a furnace, bath room and modern improvements.

Bain, son of Mrs. Capt. McGilvary of Packard st., went out in the country to visit, the other day, and climbed a cherry tree. He took considerable less time to get down than he did to get up, and the concussion knocked his right shoulder out of whack.

George T. Greenaway rode over from Howell this a. m., on his wheel. He came up the sidewalk on N. Main st., and ran into the arms of the marshal, who asked him up before Justice Pond to settle up for an infraction of the city ordinance relative to riding bicycles on the sidewalk.

The New County Atlas.

The work of making a new atlas for Washtenaw county is progressing and the book will be a valuable one when completed, for it will be as near correct as it is possible to make it. The necessary data is being procured from the Register of Deeds office, and from actual surveys being made. It is an immense amount of work to make an atlas and make it right, so that it will be valuable to its possessor, but the firm compiling this is evidently on the right track. It is to be hoped that the people will be so well pleased that the enterprise will be a paying investment, for it is something very much needed in this county. George A. Ogil & Co., of Chicago, is the name of the firm that will publish the atlas, which will contain the original government surveys, all city and village plats, the acreage of all property as well as ownership, and a complete county directory. It will contain no pictures or "obituaries," or other extraneous matter, but strictly what is desirable and valuable in a county atlas. The preliminary work is so great that it will be about three months before it can be completed and published.

Hood's Gives Strength.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 1, '94.—Before I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I had such a tired feeling I had thought of giving up my work. To-day I feel strong and am still at my work. That is not all. I had pimples on my face and am now cured. I owe this to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mary Lee Fisher.

Rev. Marcus S. Angell, of Grand Rapids, died on the evening of July 4th, at the home of his daughter near Armada, Macomb county, Mich. Six weeks previous to his death he had been preaching in a church near by, and upon returning home after the service, was stricken with paralysis. He leaves a widow and one child. The deceased was a cousin of the late Rice A. Beal.

On Friday last George F. son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton L. Felch, of the Northside, died at the home of his father, of blood poisoning aged 14 years 7 months and 23 days. The funeral services were held from the family residence on Saturday afternoon, and the remains interred in the 5th ward cemetery. The family have the sympathy of many friends in their sad affliction.

A gasoline stove got on a tantrum at the residence of Patrick Kennedy, on 4th ave., at the corner of Beakes st., last Friday. Mrs. Kennedy threw an old coat of Patrick's over the blaze and carried the dangerous thing out of doors. In doing so her skirts took fire, but instead of running and fanning the blaze, and surely burning herself up, she unpinned her skirts, let them fall to the ground and stamped out the fire. It was only the cool-headedness and good sense of Mrs. Kennedy that saved her life, and she deserves much praise therefor.

Through the energetic efforts of Col. Henry S. Dean of this city, it is likely that his old regiment, the 22nd Michigan Volunteer Infantry, will have its old flag restored in time for its next annual reunion, Aug. 1st. Senator McMillan has been much interested in this matter, and secured the passage of a bill by congress authorizing the return of this glorious old memento of days that tried men's souls, and which is so dear to the heart of every veteran of the 22nd Infantry. May the boys all live long enough to see the enemies of that old flag pass to the minority in national legislative halls and executive councils.

Although the Adrian Press lost one of its plummy men, the other one is not so very slow, as this would indicate: "Albert Mann, of Ann Arbor, is quite proud over the advent of a daughter at his home. He rather expected a little man as a member of the household, but as he jostles the little miss upon his arm, he sings: "What though a daughter I begat, A Mann's a Mann for 'a that."

"General" Edward John Jeffries, who has command of a branch of the Coxey army which has been gallivanting about the country, especially in the region of the Saginaws and Bay City, is a former member of the law department of the University, class of '87. He is not a graduate, as has been stated. He was a printer, and while in the University worked in various city offices to pay his way through school. He at that time claimed to be an anarchist, and tried hard to convert every one with whom he came in contact, to his anarchistic ideas. He is remembered here as a good-natured fellow, whom all the boys liked.

One of the most unpleasant things about arriving at the railroad passenger stations in this city, is the persistence with which hack drivers solicit your custom. They go so far in their zeal sometimes as to handle people rudely. An ordinance was passed by the council some time ago to regulate the undue ardor of these drivers, but some way the ordinance did not have the desired effect. Last Saturday Chief of Police Banfield came in from the east on an afternoon train. The boys didn't notice him some way, and solicited him in a very vehement way for a "hack this way, sir; best hack in town; take you to hotel or any part of the city!" But recognizing the star they at once let go his arms, and instead of insisting upon his entering a half-dozen different hacks at the same time, and that right away quick, they dropped him as suddenly as if they had detected a small pox patient. It was too late, though. He had run his eye over the entire gang and had the list fixed as firmly as if they had been listed by a typewriter and drafted into the army. He made complaints Monday morning before Justices Pond and Bennett against seven of them, and they will answer to violating the city ordinance.

Our First Mistake!

Our second purchase was altogether too large, and the inclement weather has left us with too many goods. There is but one way to unload and that is to put the price within reach of all our customers. We have been selling goods at small profits the entire season, and from now on margins will cut no figure. We must dispose of a large amount of goods during the month of June, and we will guarantee every purchase to be lower than the lowest.

One Year for $1.25

The Shipment of Gold to Europe.

During the past three months the Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York has delivered to bankers from the Sub-Treasury on Wall Street $50,335,000 in gold coin, almost all of which has been shipped to Europe. The Treasury's gold surplus on April 10th of this year was $106,000,000, but on account of these heavy gold shipments it is now reduced to $66,000,000, of which $36,000,000 is stored in the vaults of the Sub-Treasury in this city.

At first glance it appears odd that our bankers should have such heavy accounts to settle abroad that they must surrender half of the nation's gold reserve in order to meet their obligations. This condition seems all the more incomprehensible if we know that the government reports for the fiscal year ending June 1st show a trade balance of $230,000,000 in favor of the United States. In other words, our exports for the past year have exceeded our imports by that amount, and it would therefore seem that, instead of our bankers sending gold to Europe, foreign merchants should be sending gold to this country.

Some White Frocks.

In these torrid days immaculate white frocks are a pleasure to the wearer and beholder alike. One of the prettiest and simplest, in which a brunette of sweet sixteen looks her best, is of white silk gingham of a quality almost as transparent as laws, with small raised figures that have the effect of being brocade. It is white throughout, the trimming being a harness of white moiré ribbons, consisting of braces starting from shoulder knots, meeting the belt in back and front, with four long ends hanging thence almost to the end of the skirt. Instead of finishing each of the ends with a bow, these were made to look lighter by being merely cut in forks. Even then eleven yards of ribbon were required for this trimming, which includes also a collar and belt, each having a bow in front and two choux in the back.

Nine yards of gingham make the dress. It has a high waist, hooked behind, gathered very full below the throat, and again at the belt in front and back. This is over an easy-fitting lining of French cambric, in which are four or five thin whalebones. The sleeves have a balloon puff to the elbow, with close lower sleeves banded with embroidered insertion. Double epaulettes ruffles with an insertion above the hem fall over each sleeve and give breadth to the slight figure. The skirt of straight breadths is widely hemmed, then gathered to the belt, and needs no trimming but the flying ribbons pendent from the belt.

A white dress for the mounting or sea-shore has touches of green introduced that add to its look of coolness. This is of white serge in fine French weave similar to camel's hair, and is trimmed with open white silk embroidery in insertions and also in white rosebuds. The serge skirt has a pointed panel of the embroidery on each side extending up to form a basque at the back. Green silk shows through the open insertion. The waist has a yoke of puffed white mousseline over green silk, finished below with very full-gathered embroidered wool, attached with an erect ruffle to the yoke, and disappearing under the belt of green moiré ribbon. A full puff of the serge forms the top of the sleeve, with embroidered bands on the close lower part. Shoulder-straps of pale green moiré ribbon end in choux at the edge of the yoke.

A third white dress for garden parties is of white crepon with silk crêpe stripes two inches wide. It is made over yellow taffeta throughout. The skirt has no trimming, but is well stiffened in the back from foot to belt to keep the godet curves intact. The waist is gathered to a belt of pale yellow velvet, and again to a yoke of white guipure lace, falling below the yoke, is short in the middle and pointed long on each side. Gigot sleeves lined with yellow have insertions of guipure around the top. The crush collar is of yellow velvet, matching the belt, and is finished in the back with a bow of large loops. To complete this toilette is a hat of yellow silk mull holding two white birds. The parasol is of white chiffon over yellow, and the gloves are pure white kid, without wide stitching on the back.

Caught a Bird.

"A strange thing happened to me when I was trout fishing last year up in northern New York," said Andrew Bishop, of Bridgeport, Ct. "The fish were very wary, as the stream was narrow and the pools were but lightly bordered with bushes or cover of any kind. Consequently when I would reach a promising-looking spot, I would get as far from the bank as possible, and at the same time be able to drop my fly over in the water. I had followed this plan with poor success, getting only one or two strikes in as many hours, when suddenly my line began to run out with a whirr. No trout had ever carried off a fly for me in such a way before, and I was nonplussed, but in a moment I saw that it was not a fish that was making my reel sing. Rising from the surface of the stream and flying above it was a bee martin, which had gobbled my fly as I cast it over the bank, and he was making away with it. The bird soon had nearly all my line out, and not caring to lose it I began to play him as I would play a fish. He struggled gamely, I tell you, but the hook had caught in his beak and held him firmly. At last, after a full hour of fighting, the bird fluttered helplessly to the ground, and I released him. You may think that's a fish story, but it's true."—Washington Star.

Teach Children to Swim.

In view of the many and harrowing deaths by drowning that are always among the distressing incidents of the summer season, it would seem as though parents would consider it far more necessary to have their children taught to swim than to spend so much care and trouble on accomplishments that are of no earthly value to the latter who gets into water over his or her head.

This little preach is not meant in any way to run down the advantages to be derived from the highest mental training, but what good will diplomas and honorary degrees be if in a moment of impulsive recklessness, or owing to some unforeseen accident, the student learns, alas, that it is sink or swim, with nine chances out of ten in favor of the former, if there has never heretofore been given, along with the other thought to be necessary lessons, a single one in one of the most important branches of human education?

Phil Sheridan's Shoes.

A good story of Gen. Sheridan was told the other day by a Mexican, an intimate friend of the great northern soldier in his lifetime. One day, calling on the commander of the army at his office in Washington, he found him at his desk, his feet encased in slippers and his shoes democratically placed on the top of the desk. While the general was apparently absorbed in some writing, the Mexican gentleman, who thought some servant had left the warrior's shoes in the wrong place, took his cane and gently deposited the shoes on the floor. The next day the Mexican called again on Sheridan, and found him at his desk, shoes on top, as before. The polite resident of the tropics began once more removing the shoes to the floor, when all at once Sheridan roared out:

"Don't you do that again, sir! You make me ridiculous, sir!"

"I beg your pardon, general, but how have I made you ridiculous?"

"Why, sir," said Sheridan, still annoyed, "yesterday, sir, I went out to walk after you had called on me. I was wearing the White House when I noticed a gentleman looking at me intently. Soon he addressed me, saying: 'Excuse me, general, but are you not afraid of catching cold?'"

"Why, sir, no; not that I am aware of. What is the matter, sir?"

"Well," said the gentleman, "it is very damp and you are going about in your slippers." I tell you, sir," said Sheridan, addressing his Mexican friend, "you made me ridiculous. It is my habit, sir, to put my shoes on my desk, where I can not fail to see them, so I may not forget to put them on, and, confound it, sir, you come around here with your notions of propriety and send me around town in my slippers, sir."—Boston Herald.

Couldn't Reach the Shock.

A Cambridge car had stopped in front of Beck Hall, Mrs. Casey, who sat near the front door, tackled her bundle of washing and started to leave by the front platform. The bundle was rather large and decidedly awkward to handle, and, when she reached the street, it slipped from her grasp and fell upon one of the tracks. She started quickly to recover it, but a sudden apprehension seized her, and she stopped. Looking at the motor-man, she said, doubtfully: "If I put me out on the track, will I have a shock?" "No, madam," replied the motor-man, gravely, "not unless you put your other foot on the trolley wire."

It Was "Sweet Marie."

Yesterday morning a man went in to a music store and asked for "Ave Maria."

"Which one do you want?" asked the clerk.

"Oh, I don't know whose it is," he said. "Give me the best one."

"Well, we have one by Gounod, Luzzi, Liszt, Mascagni, Millard, Cherubini and Duetken—any one is good."

"Gosh," said the customer, "I didn't know there were so many. Give me Jerry Beene's."

Cherubini's was handed him; but about noon he came back dissatisfied.

"This is no good on earth," he said. "I can't make head nor tail to the tune."

Gounod's "Ave Maria" was then given him; but 3 o'clock brought him back again.

"It wasn't 'Ave Maria' at all I wanted," he explained. "It was 'Sweet Marie.'"—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Work If You Would Rise.

Soon after the great Edmund Burke had been making one of his powerful speeches in parliament, his brother Richard was found sitting silent in reverie; and when asked by a friend what he was thinking about, replied: "I have been wondering how Ned has contrived to monopolize all the talents of our family. But then I remember that when we were doing nothing or at play he was always at work." And the force of the anecdote is increased by the fact that Richard Burke was always considered by those who knew him best, to be superior in natural talent to his brother; yet the one rose to greatness, while the other lived and died in comparative obscurity.

The lesson to all is, if you would succeed in life, be diligent; improve your time work. "Seest thou a man," says Solomon, "diligent in his business?"

"He shall stand before kings; he shall not stand before"—that is, shall not be ranked with—"mean men."

Faraday's Lost Cup.

There is a story told of a workman of Faraday. One day he knocked into a jar of acid a little silver cup. It disappeared, was eaten up by the acid, and could not be found. One said he could find it; another said it was held in solution, and there was no possibility of finding it. The great chemist came in and put some chemical into the jar, and in a moment every particle of the silver was precipitated to the bottom. He lifted it out a shapeless mass, sent it to the silversmith, and the cup was restored. If Faraday could precipitate that silver and recover his cup, how easy it ought to be for us to believe that God can restore our sleeping dust!

How He Came Out.

"So you went on an excursion to the races, did you?"

"Yes."

"Bet anything?"

"Of course."

"Come out ahead?"

"No; I came out a-foot," and a glance at the dust covered garments gave proof of the assertion.—Atlanta Constitution.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

Marshal Baker is collecting Saline's village tax now.

The republicans of Ypsilanti city will hold their caucuses on Friday evening.

The census returns for Lenawee co. foot up at 48,589, of which Adrian has 9,509.

Dr. Dwight W. Berdan, of Cheboygan, a former Saline boy, died last week Sunday.

The small pox scare at Detroit cost that city about $15,000 the Michigan Farmer estimates.

Mrs. Marshall Smith, an old resident of Salem township, was buried there on the 10th inst.

The oat crop, in most sections of the county, will be a good one notwithstanding its late start.

Livingston county has 20,647 inhabitants or the census enumerators are 1—mistaken. Howell 2,568.

The republicans of Ypsilanti town will hold a caucus at the Town House Saturday, July 21st, at 3 p. m.

The harvest is about completed in this county, and the crop of wheat is almost without exception excellent.

The hum of the harvester is heard hereabouts. The wheat crop around Dundee is excellent.—Dundee Ledger.

The next meeting of the Stockbridge driving club will be held at Stockbridge, Aug. 1, 2, and 3. Three good races daily.

Over at Clinton the ladies make up hen parties and go to the lakes in the vicinity fishing. Of course they never catch any fish.

F. W. Horner, of Ypsilanti town, recently raised the frame for a new barn. It took about 75 neighbors to do it, but they did it.

W. H. Peek is now the sole proprietor of that excellent paper, the Fowlerville Observer. He has demonstrated the fact during the past year that he is a hustler.

The state of New Hampshire has a state cattle commissioner, and he is making a heroic effort to eradicate animal tuberculosis from that state. Other states should follow the example.

Bay county, for the first time in twenty years, will fall to hold a county fair this fall. All the Bay citizens are invited to attend the Washenaw county fair, to be held at Ann Arbor, Sept. 25-28.

The township of Conway has a rifle team and hold a "practice" shoot once a week. In these times of anarchy and strikes it is not a bad thing to know how to "shoot to kill."—Pinckney Dispatch.

Dr. Harry D. Heller, of Saline, a graduate of the Dental department U. of M., died at Northville, Tuesday July 10, of peritonitis. He was 33 years of age, and leaves a wife. Funeral services were held at Saline, Thursday.

The last Ypsilanti reads the kickers against ending the liquor law a good lesson, enforcing it with these words: "The 'kickers' are playing into the hands of the lawless. They become allies of the saloon and of the house of ill-fame."

Jay Gibson was on a ladder climbing cherries last Sunday, when the ladder objected to breaking the Sabbath and threw him off, breaking his right arm.—Clinton Local. Jay is not the first one who experienced a fall in the fruit business. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

John H. Lampson, the fellow who went about certain parts of the state pretending to vaccinate people under the authority of the State Board of health, has been sent to Ionia for 90 days, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

The only Washenaw county editor who takes in the delightful state press excursion now in progress, is Mat Booser, of the Manchester Enterprise, who is accompanied by his wife. The Thousand Islands and the eastern trip will be a grand thing to see.

Go to Henry Loss for twins. You can buy 100 pounds for $9.—Wayne Tidings.

The price don't seem to be high, but wouldn't 100 pound twins be a trifle heavy?—Northville Record.

Well, it isn't necessary to be a hog and take the whole $9 worth, is it?

Milan people are in great luck this year. Besides the big turtles they are eating from the Saline river, they caught a bull frog the other day that measured 19 1/2 inches from tip to tip of the hind legs. They barbecued him on the spot.—Dexter Leader.

This country does not grow enough beans for home consumption, over one million dollars' worth being imported some years. Michigan is quite a bean state, and the crop is a good one to raise as the nitrogen required is taken almost wholly from the air.—Ex.

The man who is charging the honest farmer 60 cents per capita for vaccinating his family claiming to act under the authority of the state board of health, is reaping the harvest which usually goes to the lightning rod man or the smooth individual with his Bohemian airs.

The Chelsea Standard devotes nearly two columns to the controversy whether Shakespeare was himself or whether Bacon was Shakespeare. Both parties to the controversy have been dead a long time, and it doesn't make much difference whether Shakespeare saves his bacon or not.

Both the following items are from last week's Ypsilanti: "The population of Ypsilanti as given by the returns is 6,094." "According to the census report there are 6,039 inhabitants in this city." Honest now, Bro. Osband, and no foolin' 'bout it, what is the census of Ypsilanti?—Northville Record.

Why is it that there is such a cry always raised when a case of small-pox is found? Diphtheria or scarlet fever may break out and little is said of it, but let a small pox patient be known and the whole state is up in arms at once. There is less danger of death in small pox than in either of the other diseases.—Saline Observer.

Prof. McClenahan, who has made three handsome houses on Summit st. out of fragments of old shells, is now making another. He bought the Aulls place, opposite his residence where the old house was partly wrecked by the tornado a year ago last spring, and is building a wing and a porch upon it, and putting it in good shape.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

Bro. Woodruff, of the Ypsilanti Sentinel is the captain of the Ypsilanti light guard, and when the orders came to fall in, last week, he had to leave away his shooting stick, buckle on his Damascus blade, don his uniform, and leave his office to take charge of the militia. The devil took charge of the office and did his employer very faithful service.—Adrian Press.

The editor of the Fowlerville Observer is a large man for a light weight. When at Howell, recently, he picked up a hose and asked the engineer to let him see how the thing worked. After taking several somersaults in the air and wrestling with a large stream of water, he concluded that it worked beautifully; "just the stuff for sobering up drunks."—Howell Republican.

The beauty of Ann Arbor as a summer resort is appreciated by many people who come from large cities to obtain rest and quiet.—Ann Arbor Courier. "Rest and quiet" is good. We have often wondered why so many of Ann Arbor's citizens come up to Chelsea to spend their vacation. Now it is all explained.—Chelsea Standard. Of course there is no accounting for tastes. Some people, you know, prefer anything loud.

The Wayne Tidings got one of the good and worthy citizens of that place into inextricable confusion by advising people to "go to Henry Loss for twins" when it intended to advise them to go to him for twine. It is said that Henry was at a Loss for his reason one spell, the applications—principally from ladies—came in so rapidly. If there is any one who does not believe that it pays to advertise, let him ask Henry.

According to the Tidings, Wayne people got very much excited over the visit of Count Wearalowski and his band of Coxeyites to that place, recently. So much so that every citizen—and citizeness—armed himself with "pistols and six-shooters." Now just why they didn't take seven-shooters when they were fully as cheap, and would count one more in execution, is a mystery that probably never will be solved.

At the recent annual school meeting in Chelsea a large crowd was in attendance. W. F. Riemenschneider and W. J. Knapp were elected trustees. The expenditures the past year were $5,665.45. The direct tax voted for this year was $6,200. It was voted to have the trustees take the necessary steps for the introduction of the teaching of vocal music in the schools. The item of free text books cost the district $211.49 during the year, and teacher's salaries were $3,760.

If vacations are needed they are needed for rest; for diversion of the mind. To those who need to throw off business restraint and recuperate physically and mentally, we know of no place we can recommend you that is equal to our own beautiful Portage and Base lakes. If you need a vacation avoid the fashionable watering places where the mind is harassed by the cramming of the body into a fashionable role. Come to our beautiful rural lakes and rest.—Dexter Leader.

C. T. Still has invented a preparation for picking eggs—in other words, keeping them eternally fresh. His experiments the past two or three years have proved such a success that he has concluded to go into the business on a large scale. He has, therefore, built two large reverberators, one with a capacity of 5,000 dozen, the other 8,000 dozen—150,000 eggs and next winter when eggs are 25 to 30 cents a dozen he will have plenty nice fresh eggs to sell at a fair profit.—Milan Leader.

This is the way a Stockbridge doctor keeps his patients from getting away from him, as related by the Sun: "Thursday about noon, Dr. Avery went down on the street to get some things preparatory to going fishing in the afternoon, leaving his office door open. During his absence Mrs. Suylandt, a friend of Munith, entered, took seats, expecting the Dr. would return shortly. Being noon the Dr. rushed up the stairs and locked the outside office, without looking whether someone was in the office or not, took his dinner and went fishing."

Everybody knows Nate Schmid, of Manchester, the genial deputy revenue collector. Those who don't know him, are short in the acquaintance ship of a great joker. While on a tour through the country lately, collecting revenue, and incidentally mending Gorman's fences, he rapped at the door of a farm house. It seems that the good wife had been annoyed by several things that day. The weather was extremely hot, the baby was exceedingly fretful, the little kids had been rapping at the door and then running away. It left Mrs. Brighton in no good humor, and when she heard the raps at the door, she was trying to wash the dishes while she held the little one on her arm. "Come in you rascal and I'll spank you till you'll be glad to behave," was the answer to Nate's rap. He opened the door and walked in, and indignant and worried mother turned to make good her promise, but when she saw her visitor, she remembered what she had said, and of course the apology was not necessary. Nate didn't get the spanking, but we are inclined to believe he deserved it.—Adrian Press.

STRIKING BUT NOT A STRIKER.

The last Ypsilanti gives a description of the beautiful garden at the M. C. R. station in that city:

Despite the fact that the weather has been decidedly unfavorable to plant growth, the Michigan Central depot garden is again delighting the eyes of the travelers. Mr. Laddlaw has been supervising the transplanting and trimming of the plants until now the plan of the garden is nearly complete. A new feature this year is the graceful curve of foliage plants, called a sweep, which is outlined repeatedly along the slopes. The pretty pool is now further beautified by blooming water-lilies. Not far from the track is a handsome star-shaped bed made of various colors and kinds of foliage plants and crowned with a dracena, which is fashioned like the cushions which adorn the royal dressing table. But the garden also possesses a structure, the first ever constructed of growing plants, which will excite more surprise and admiration than did even the eagle and the masonic emblems, because of its size and the difficulties attending its construction. Near the tank as though coming up to take water, is a huge locomotive, No. 1, M. C. R. R., with bell, headlight, driving rods, wheels and all that pertains to an engine. Another noticeable figure is the Scotch thistle bloom reproduced in the old-fashioned "hen-and-chickens" plant, which is seen on the slope near a genuine Scotch thistle in full bloom.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house, and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable. G. A. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best Cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at The Eberbach Drug and Chemical Co's. Drugstore, and Geo. T. Haeussler, Manchester. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

God Dislikes Idle and Cruel People.

If there is any one point which, in 6,000 years of thinking about right and wrong, wise and good men have agreed upon, it is that God dislikes idle and cruel people more than any other; that his first order is, "Work while ye have light," and His second, "Be merciful while you have mercy."—Ruskin.

Death of Henry D. Bennett.

We have received a copy of the Pasadena (Cal.) Evening Star, of June 30th, containing the following notice of the death of Henry D. Bennett, late of this city, whose illness we recently noted:

"The long illness of Henry DeWitt Bennett, father of H. G. Bennett, terminated last night in death. The end came to him peacefully, closing the record of a long and well-spent life and taking from our midst a man universally beloved. What his loss will be to his family only they know who have daily felt the influence of his gentle presence.

"Mr. Bennett was born at Stephentown, in Rensselaer county, N. Y., March 12, 1818. His early years were spent in school and on his father's farm and at the age of 16 he was teaching in his native place. He moved to Michigan in the fall of '43 and settled at a little hamlet called Ann Arbor. At that time there were no railroads in Canada and the Michigan Central was just building west from Detroit. The latter was then a small city. At Ann Arbor he engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1851, when he was appointed postmaster of the city and held the office eight years. After leaving this office he engaged in the salt and lumber business in Saginaw, Michigan, retaining his home in Ann Arbor. In the year 1869 he assumed the duties of secretary and steward of Michigan University, a position he held for thirteen years.

"In the fall of 1886 he came to Los Angeles, where he built a home, and in the following year he moved to Pasadena, where he has spent his remaining years in the enjoyment of a peaceful old age. During the forty-three years spent in Ann Arbor, he was universally loved and respected as he was here."
