Second District Congressional Convention.

A delegate convention of the republican electors of the second congressional district of Michigan and all voters who desire to unite with the republican party to advance and maintain its principles as declared in its party platform will be held at Dean's Opera House, Adrian, Mich., on the 10th day of August 1894, at eleven o'clock a. m., for the purpose of nominating a candidate for representative in congress for said second district and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The district is composed of the following counties: Jackson, Monroe, Lenawee, Washtenaw, and ten townships in Wayne, viz.: Plymouth, Canton, VanBuren, Romulus, Sumpter, Huron, Brownstown, Monguagon, Taylor, Ecorse, and the first, second and third wards of the city of Wyandotte. The number of delegates from each county to congressional convention is as follows:

Jackson 38 Monroe 14 Lenawee 25 Washtenaw 21 Wayne (The portion thereof included in the second congressional district, 11.

Republican County Convention.

A Republican County Convention to elect twenty-one delegates to a congressional convention to be held at Adrian, Thursday, Aug. 16, 1894; also to elect twenty-one delegates to attend a senatorial convention yet to be called, and to transact such other business as may properly come before it, will be held at the Court House in the city of Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, Aug. 7th, 1894, at 11 o'clock a. m. The various townships and wards will be entitled to one delegate for every fifty votes cast for governor at the last preceding election.

Republican Ward Caucuses.

The Republican Ward Caucuses for the city of Ann Arbor will be held on Friday evening, Aug. 3, 1894, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. (local time) for the purpose of electing delegates to the county convention to be held at Ann Arbor, Tuesday, Aug. 7, at the following places:

Lodi Republican Caucus.

The republicans of Lodi township will hold a caucus at the residence of G. L. Hoyt, on Saturday, Aug. 4, at 7:30 o'clock p. m., to elect seven delegates to the county convention to be held at Ann Arbor, Aug. 7.

The Conrath Berry.

With the compliments of A. A. Crozier we have received the pamphlet issued by the agricultural college experiment station on the cultivated raspberries of the U. S. In the list of names is the following about an Ann Arbor berry called the Conrath Early. 'An early or midseason blackcap discovered in 1886, by C. H. Woodruff, as a chance seedling near a patch of the Gregg, on his place at Ann Arbor. In 1888 the plant produced its second crop and was so promising that it was further propagated until in 1891 the number of plants was 10,000, when the stock was sold to Conrath Brothers, of the same place, after whom it was named. After having been further tested for two seasons at various experiment stations and by private growers it was introduced to the public in the spring of 1894. The plant is fairly vigorous, very productive, the fruit of a large size, moderately firm, nearly coal black, and parts readily from the core. Although early it has a long season and holds its size well to the end.' The owners now have twenty acres set out and picked three hundred bushels this year, besides selling many thousand plants.

According to the outlook this morning Hon. John T. Rich has a very large majority of the delegates already elected, and the strong Pingree and Bliss counties have all held their conventions. Hereafter Mr. Rich will have practically every delegate elected, which will give him the convention by over three to one. The rank and file of the party are very much in earnest in Mr. Rich's behalf because they believe him to be an honest official, and a man who works for the best interests of the people. Some politicians, who were disappointed because of failure to secure political pap, are opposed to him.

THE 22d's BATTLE FLAGS.

The Boys Will Have Them at Their Next Reunion.

The following letter from Senator McMillan to Col. H. S. Dean of this city, caused a smile of satisfaction to flit over his face as he read it:

SENATE CHAMBER, WASHINGTON, July 18, 1894.

My Dear Sir: The bill for the return of both of the Twenty-Second Michigan's flags has become a law, and I have wired Governor Rich for authority to obtain them so that they may be shipped in time for use at your annual reunion, August 1st. Mr. Thurber has kindly sent us the pen with which the President signed the restoration act, and this I send to you to place among the other mementos of the gallant services of the regiment. Yours very truly, JAMES McMILLAN.

In this connection we find the following in Saturday's Detroit Tribune:

Assistant Adjutant-General Corbin delivered to Senator McMillan this morning the two flags of the Twenty-second Michigan Infantry, which are to be turned over to the state of Michigan in accordance with the law recently passed. The delivery was made to Senator McMillan on a telegraphic request from Governor Rich, to whom the flags have been sent by express.

The first of the flags is a blue silk banner bearing the emblem of an eagle above which are thirty-four stars representing the number of states at the time it was originally carried. There is a large hole just at the bottom of the shield on the eagle's breast and the wings of the bird are covered with blood.

The other is a United States flag, also of silk, and heavily fringed with gold. While there are several holes in it, it is nevertheless in comparatively good condition. The two lower white stripes are splashed with blood. The flags will reach Michigan in time for the reunion of the regiment to be held Aug. 1st.

No member of the regiment has seen the flags since they were lost on that fatal day at Chicamauga. The flags were exhibited in the senate cloak rooms this morning, and attracted a great deal of attention from the senators.

The members of this regiment had been looking for these flags ever since the war closed, but did not know where to find them. Finally, when Col. Dean was down at Washington in attendance upon the G. A. R. national encampment, last fall, he found that the flags were stored in a box in the basement of the war department, and he immediately took measures to secure their return to the regiment, with the result as indicated above.

This Will Interest You.

As many persons and firms are offering special premiums for competing exhibitors at the fair, Mr. Mills, secretary of the Washtenaw County Fair association is anxious that each person should give something in his or her line of business; something suitable and creditable to both the person and the society. Mr. Mills says: 'The society will advertise the premium by giving the names of the parties offering them, stating where you are located and your class of business. We shall publish 12,000 of the 'Washtenaw Fair News' and place copies in every house in the county. This was, in the beginning, merely for the purpose of advertising the Fair, but you will readily see that it will be advantageous for you to have the attention of the public called to your business in so attractive a form.

If you decide to accept this offer, please notify us as soon as possible, that the advertisement of it may be put in an attractive form.'

Mr. Mill will be glad to answer any questions which anyone may wish to ask with regard to this matter.—Argus.

The Public Schools.

Ann Arbor's pride is in her public schools which are ably conducted and economically managed. One of the interesting tables in the 1893 report of the superintendent of public instruction showing the financial statistics of the city schools of the state, puts the per capita cost of education in the Ann Arbor schools at $20.17. This compares favorably with other cities in the state where the cost is as follows: Adrian, $19.91; Alpena, $22.84; Bay City, $20.46; Coldwater, $19.55; Detroit, $25; Flint, $22.64; Grand Rapids, $21.12; Iron Mountain, $25.38; Kalamazoo, $18.57; Lansing, $21.03; Manistee, $22.90; Monroe, $29.03; Mt. Clemens, $23; Muskegon, $25.45; Pontiac, $18.71; Ypsilanti, $20.20.

This is an especial good showing when we consider the large number of foreign pupils in our schools. The high school with its 763 pupils is only exceeded in number by Detroit with its 1350 and Grand Rapids with 1215. We have more than Bay City and Saginaw combined, and 30% more than Kalamazoo and Lansing combined.

The graded school property of our city is estimated at $210,000, and of the $31,161.85 paid to the teachers, $11,337 represents the wages of the men and $19,824.85 the women's wages.

In Washtenaw county there is paid to teachers $88,933.15, while the total expenses of the county schools is $119,384.61. Of the 178 school houses in Washtenaw, 7 are stone, 65 are brick and 106 frame buildings.

Suker-Dunster.

On Thursday evening last, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. R. S. Dunster, No. 23 S. Division st., occurred the marriage of Miss Clara B. Dunster and Dr. George F. Suker, both of this city. Rev. J. W. Bradshaw, assisted by Rev. Henry Tatlock, performing the ceremony. The house was beautifully trimmed with flowers and potted plants, for the occasion, and music was furnished by an orchestra composed of friends of the couple. Dr. Suker has been with Dr. Carrow for the past year or more as an assistant, and has made many friends in Ann Arbor while pursuing his studies here. The bride is well known in the city as one of its popular society ladies. The couple left on an evening train for a trip around the lakes, and upon returning they will go to Toledo, Ohio, where the Dr. will locate permanently. The good wishes of many friends accompany the couple in their journey of life.

Y. P. S. Union Meetings.

The Young People's Societies of the city will unite during the month of August, services to be held in the church selected for the union evening services. The meetings will begin at 6:30. A cordial invitation is extended to all. The following topics and leaders have been chosen:

- Aug. 5.—Companionship with Jesus. Acts, 4:13. Mr. Wm. Hull.
Aug. 12.—Am I Needed? Matt. 9:35-38. Mr. Geo. Simon.
Aug. 19.—The World for Christ. I Cor. 15:24, 25. Miss Wier.
Aug. 26.—Consecration Meeting. John 15:11. Mr. J. A. C. Hilliker.

The call for a republican convention for this congressional district will be found in another column. It is held at Adrian, as usual, on Thursday, Aug. 16. It seems a little strange that Adrian should capture this prize so often. We cannot account for it on any other theory than that the politicians over there are so persuasive and sweet that no one can resist their arguments. It takes a whole day to get to Adrian from almost any part of the district, and a whole day to get away, consequently it is the most inconvenient point to be found in the entire district. An act of secession will be passed by the people over here before long if there isn't a let up on the sameness in the place of holding our congressional convention.

Washtenaw Census, Official.

The following table contains the census of Washtenaw county as compiled by the enumerators in the Secretary of States office at Lansing. The figures for this city and Ypsilanti are substantially as given heretofore. The figures for 1890 and for 1884 are given for the purpose of comparison:

Table comparing census data for 1884, 1890, and 1894 for various cities and townships including Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, and others.

The gain in the county it will be noticed is 1,306. The places making gains are:

Table listing gains for various cities and townships such as Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, and others.

In justice to Ann Arbor town it should be stated that the loss of 292 shown in her figures, came from the fact that two strips of land, containing just about that number of inhabitants, were detached from her territory and attached to the city of Ann Arbor. The census taken as a whole, indicates a healthy growth in the county. The city of Ann Arbor can feel especially gratified over it.

DREADFUL PSORIASIS

Covering Entire Body with White Scales. Suffering Fearful. Cured by Cuticura.

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scales fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. Mrs. ROSA KELLY, Rockwell City, Iowa.

Call for the Republican State Convention.

The republican electors of the State of Michigan, and all others who may desire to unite with them in upholding the principles of the republican party, as declared in the platform adopted by the last national republican convention, are hereby requested to send delegates to the state convention of said party, to be held at Hartman Hall, in the city of Grand Rapids, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, July 31st, 1894, for the purpose of nominating candidates for state officers, the election of a chairman of the republican state central committee, and two members of that committee from each congressional district, and for the transaction of such other business as usually comes before the convention.

Every county will be entitled to one delegate for each 500 of the total vote cast for governor at the last election (November, 1892), and to one additional delegate for every fraction amounting to 300, but each organized county will be entitled to at least two delegates.

Under the resolution of 1893, no delegate will be entitled to a seat in the convention who does not reside in the county he proposes to represent.

The delegates from each congressional district are requested to meet in caucus at 9 o'clock on the morning of the day of the convention to select candidates to be presented to the state convention for confirmation, as follows: One vice-president, one assistant secretary, one member each of the central committee, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before them.

In accordance with a resolution, adopted June 23, 1870, the secretary of each county convention is requested to forward to the secretary of the state central committee, No. 1, Newbury Building, Detroit, Mich., by the earliest mail, after the delegates to the state convention have been chosen, a certified list of the delegates from their respective counties, who are entitled to seats in the convention.

Washtenaw county is entitled to 21 delegates.

Republican state central committee, WM. R. BATES, Secretary, JAMES McMILLAN, Chairman.

In Grover we trusted in 1892, and that is what busted us in 1894.

Election day this fall falls on a very unlucky day, Nov. 13. Candidates would do well to remember this and keep off the ticket.

It looks very much as if Fred A. Maynard, of Grand Rapids, would receive the republican nomination for Attorney General hands down. He has many friends in the Washtenaw delegation, this being his old home.

Debs went up like a sky rocket, and came down about the same way. He is a poor stick, anyhow, but he has entailed a large amount of suffering upon many poor laboring men, who, but for Debs' capers, might have continued in a good job.—Fenton Independent.

The Ypsilanti has taken upon itself a job of mammoth proportions, i. e., curing the editor of the Argus of political blindness. Bro. Osband should remember that none are so blind as those who won't see. Perhaps the Ypsilanti proposes to wait until November 13, next, however to administer the dose.

Gen. Spaulding appears to be springing his pictures on a number of the papers in this congressional district. It is the same picture that we spoke about last week and none of his opponents need fear it. In fact it may have a tendency to help them.

Washtenaw has two and possibly three congressional aspirants, Hon. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, and Jacobs and Sawyer, of Ann Arbor. But the county in the past has had a nice way of getting together and entering the convention united on one man. Perhaps this will be the case the present year.—Monroe Commercial.

Ex-President Harrison and Hon. Thos. M. Cooley both commend the prompt and vigorous action of President Cleveland in dealing with the strike problem. That was all right; but the people were ahead of the Ex-President and the eminent jurist in their commendations. The people are quick to see and understand the right.—Hillsdale Leader.

THE REVEREND ANARCHIST.

Rev. Myron Reed, of Denver, Col., who recently announced himself a socialist in a sensational way, was formerly a resident of Hillsdale, and served throughout the war as Captain of the 18th Mich. Infantry. For a number of years he was pastor of the first Congregational Church in Denver, and his church was always crowded to hear him preach, being a very popular and eloquent divine. When the strikes broke out a year or so ago, he took the side of the miners. This caused dissatisfaction among the wealthy people of his church, and he at once resigned. Now he announces himself a candidate on the populist ticket for governor, and will no doubt receive it, and stands a good chance for being elected. Seth Randall, of this city, tells us much of this gentleman's career. He was a candidate for chaplain of the 18th on the start, but failing in getting that he raised a company near Hillsdale, and took the captaincy thereof and served all through the war. He was said to have been a very good officer, and popular with his men; whenever anything came up demanding a speech, Reed was trotted out, and he made a good one always. While serving as captain the story is told of him, that he would use profane language and drink poor whiskey the same as his men. But when the regiment was ordered home, and crossed over into Cincinnati, he was asked by one of his men to "come on let's take a drink." His answer was: "No, sir! When I entered the service I left my religion up north as I crossed the line into the Southern state. Now I shall resume my religion again, so you see I can not accept your kind invitation." And he faithfully kept that determination.

Mr. Randall thinks that Reed is a man who is quite liable to come to the front in politics. Utah is now a State of the Union, but polygamy is forever forbidden in the act of Congress admitting it to the sisterhood of States. It is the only territory so far that has had to have a peculiar provision attached to its admission. But then Utah is rich in resources, both agricultural and mineral, is now governed in a proper way, and bids fair to make a State that the Union will be proud of.

Henry George will lose very much in general esteem through his recent speech in New York, in which he denounced the use of soldiers to preserve order and put down riots and abused President Cleveland for his patriotic proclamation. Whatever has been thought of Henry George in the past it was not before known that he sympathized with an organized opposition to order and law.—Cadillac News and Express.

The Hawaiians have shown their true American spirit by having the republic of Hawaii proclaimed on that great anniversary of American liberty, July 4th. The first president of the new republic is Sanford B. Dole, who has proved himself a patriot and a statesman of far more than ordinary ability. Here is hoping our little new sister may exist in freedom, and the peaceful pursuit of happiness as long as time shall last.

One of the places on the ticket to be filled by the state convention next week is the important one of member of the state board of education. There will probably be no opposition to the reelection of Perry F. Powers, of Cadillac, who is now president of the board, and it is fortunate for the schools of Michigan that so able and enthusiastic a man can be secured to give it his time and attention. Mr. Powers is one of the brightest men we have in the party.

Senator Patton has chosen C. E. Baxter as his private secretary. A better one could not have been found, for Mr. Baxter is one of the best-informed and widely-acquainted of any of the young republicans in the state. He has good judgement and tact, as well as a wide experience as editor, assistant secretary of the state central committee, deputy state treasurer, secretary of the state republican league, and other places where he has done thoroughly good work.

Does it not begin to dawn upon the people that the only way to prevent outbreaks and the destruction of property by mobs, such as Chicago has recently witnessed, is to have the national government police the country? That is the only outcome. The regular army will have to be increased to sufficient dimensions to be able to mass two or three thousand men at almost any point in the United States at an hour's notice. The general government can handle these outbreaks without fear or favor. It can deal with them as the best interests of the country demand, and do it properly before a movement gets to gathering strength. A regiment of 500 U. S. troops, on the start, at Chicago, under the command of a man like Gen. Miles, would have saved all the recent trouble. There would have been no lives lost, no property destroyed, and the good name of the state and city officials been rescued from the infamy and disgrace which now attaches to them, and the good reputation of the workmen, also, in whose behalf these mobs pretended to act have been preserved from the taint of anarchy which now beclouds it.

The Situation in Corea, From an Unprejudiced Pen.

The following is from the correspondence of W. E. Curtis regarding Secretary Gresham's latest bad break:

The effect of Secretary Gresham's ill-advised cablegram has not yet been seen. A glance at the geographical location of Korea will show the interest with which Russia is contemplating these troubles, for nothing would please her better than to include the Korean peninsula within her vast domains. It would give her a military and commercial position on the Pacific which her ice-bound northern coast does not afford and which is going to be of the very greatest importance when the trans-Siberian railroad, now under construction, is completed. There are a number of fine harbors along the Korean coast, while Russia has only Vladivostok, which is ice-bound half the year. The Koreans have gone over the frontier into Siberia to a considerable extent. Several Russian villages have been established in Korea, and for years Russian officers and agents have been making surveys and explorations within Korean territory. Russia has never permitted an opportunity to pass to cultivate the friendly relations with the hermit nation, but eight years ago China obtained from her a distinct pledge that she would not occupy Korea.

The dispatch practically places the United States on the side of China in her dispute with Japan and Russia, and has probably destroyed with a single penful of ink all the good results that have been gained by half a century of diplomacy and friendly relations.

This government has always been the closest friend Japan has had among the nations of the earth. We have given her sympathy and encouragement in her rapid progress toward modern civilization, and in her foreign policy she has always looked to us for advice and moral support. Her present system of government was organized by men engaged in this country by the Japanese ambassadors, and no one ever suspected that it was possible for a misunderstanding to arise. But Secretary Gresham has always shown a decided partiality toward the Chinese minister. The two were brought into personal contact for weeks while negotiating the treaty which now lies before the senate for confirmation, and formed a strong attachment. The secretary has taken occasion, too, at various times to show his regard for the representative of the Celestial kingdom, while diplomatists from western countries have been treated with indifference. But no one ever supposed a man of his knowledge and experience in legal and judicial matters would be induced, even by personal friendship, to accept the extreme statements of the Chinese minister, and send a threatening message to Japan, at least without some further knowledge than he now possesses of the trouble between the two nations in Korea. It is the more serious because the empire of Russia is involved in the controversy and sustains the contentions of Japan.

Japan has never threatened to levy war upon Korea and has distinctly and repeatedly disavowed any intention or desire to do so. This disavowal has not only been made to China and to the Korean government, but also to Great Britain, Russia, the United States and other nations. Therefore the admonition of the secretary of state must have created a decided sensation in Japan, particularly as he asserts that the war she intends to levy will be unjust.

In the first place Secretary Gresham knows very little about the controversy. In the second place he has no business to pass judgment upon the foreign policy of another nation at any time, and even with all the facts before him it would be an extraordinary breach of etiquette for him to undertake to determine whether the action of Japan had been or is just or unjust, unless the contention between the two governments were submitted to him for arbitration. The United States can tender her good offices for the settlement of a difference between nations, and has done so many times, but there is no record or recollection of a previous instance where we officially declared our opinion of the merits of a controversy before we knew what it was about.

Again, Japan has no quarrel with Korea. The difficulty is between China and Japan and to which shall exercise a quasi-protectorate over the hermit nation and assist her to subdue an insurrection which promises sooner or later to overthrow the existing government unless it is squelched. The dispatch of Mr. Gresham takes it for granted that Japan is going to do something that she has no intention of doing and prevents the United States from exercising any influence that might be exerted in the settlement of the difficulty between two nations with whom we have enjoyed the most friendly and profitable relations. Any of the clerks in the state department might have pointed out to the secretary his mistake, but he permits no suggestions unless they are asked for, and neither of the assistant secretaries dares to criticize his acts. He wrote the Japanese dispatch with his own hand, and sent it without conference with any of his associates, although Mr. Adee, the second assistant secretary, has conducted previous correspondence on the subject with great skill and discretion, and Mr. Rockhill, the third assistant secretary, has spent a great part of his life in the United States legation in China and is familiar with the international complications that have involved Korea for centuries.

For years both China and Japan have claimed a partial protectorate over Korea. Centuries ago Japan claimed that Korea was her vassal, but she had done nothing for ages to make that claim valid, and for hundreds of years Korea has actually been one of the vassal states of China. Although Japan pretends to ignore this relationship she knows well enough it practically exists, although it is not acknowledged by Korea. On the contrary the Koreans claim their independence, and insist that China has no legal or moral right to interfere with their affairs. The present insurrection is the repetition of what has occurred twice before, in 1882 and in 1885, and is caused by the uprising of the people against the extravagance and corruption of the government. During both of the previous rebellions Japan sent an army into Korea to protect the interests of her citizens there. The Japanese far outnumber all the other foreigners in Korea put together. They absorb nearly the entire trade of the country. They control the mint and the banking business, the imports and the exports, and the value of their property within the limits of the kingdom is probably greater than that owned by the Koreans themselves. After the rebellion in 1885 China and Japan entered into a treaty by which they mutually agreed to preserve the peace and protect life and property in Korea, and when the present trouble broke out the proper procedure for both under the convention of 1885 would have been to have held a consultation and cooperated for the restoration of peace. Neither has the right to send troops into Korea without the consent of the other, but a few months ago when the Chinese sent troops in compliance, as they said, with the request of the king of Korea, the Japanese government was not consulted. So on June 6 the Japanese also sent over a force of 1,200 men to protect their merchants. It was claimed in Europe that 18,000 soldiers were sent over from Japan, but this was untrue. It would be impossible for Japan to furnish so large an army at such a time. The government of Japan informed China, through the Chinese minister at Tokio, that in its opinion the revolt was dangerous to the interests of both countries, and that it could not be permanently crushed until the causes that led to it were extinguished. Japan then invited China to join in a scheme for the reorganization of the government of the kingdom, the reform of its fiscal system and the correction of the political abuses that have caused the periodical insurrections. No reply was received for several days, but when it came it was a direct refusal to enter into relations or negotiations of any sort with reference to Korea and was followed by an imperative demand for the immediate removal of the Japanese troops from Korean territory. The Japanese made no reply to this, but renewed the request through the Japanese minister at Peking with the same result. At the same time the Chinese troops in Korea were very largely reinforced. Then the British minister offered the good offices of his government for arbitration, but the Chinese refused and repeated their demand for the withdrawal of the Japanese army. The Russian government, which is directly interested in the result more than any other nation except China and Japan, suggested the simultaneous withdrawal of the troops of both nations. Whereupon the Japanese agreed to evacuate if the Chinese would do the same, and disavowed any intention of territorial aggrandisement. The Japanese government stated that its information was positive to the effect that the revolt was rapidly increasing and growing more serious, and that the causes which led to it, if allowed to continue, would result in further trouble, and it was suggested to the Russian government that all the powers interested co-operate to remove the causes that have kept Korea so distracted for years. The Russian government expressed assent to this plan and its satisfaction with the policy of Japan, and there the matter stands.

Thos. K. Barkworth, of Jackson, who has been credited with congressional aspirations, disclaims any intention of stepping in Mr. Gorman's way, for the democratic nomination in this district. He says he is several thousand dollars poorer by dabbling in politics, and he doesn't see that his party is any better off for his efforts, and so he proposes to hereafter attend strictly to business, and let the political mill grind with those who care to grind it, he doesn't. If Mr. Barkworth adheres to this position he will no doubt be better off financially, but just think what the country may lose!

Hon. Andrew D. White, well known in Ann Arbor from being once connected with the University, has tendered his resignation as minister to Russia, because of ill health, and President Cleveland has appointed Clifton R. Breckenridge, of Arkansas, not Kentucky, as his successor. Mr. Breckenridge has gained his chief prominence from being the man counted in as congressman from Arkansas from the district where Col. Clayton was murdered because he had the audacity to question the methods by which Breckenridge was counted in. The murderer was never brought to justice. Why? Because it is a crime, punishable with death, for a man to run for office on the republican ticket in that section, and be elected. Minister Breckenridge is an able man, and aside from that one stain upon his career, and his objectionable free trade politics, is a good appointment.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS.

[OFFICIAL.]

OFFICE OF THE BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS, ANN ARBOR, MICH., July 18, 1894. Regular session. Called to order by Pres. Keech. Roll called. Present Messrs. Keech and Clark. Absent, Mr. Schuh. Minutes of the previous meeting read and approved.

The matter of the Ann Arbor Street Railway Company, concerning the dangerous condition of the overhead trolley wires, was referred to the Street Commissioner, to ascertain from the City Attorney what steps should be taken in the premises in putting the wire, etc., in a safe condition.

Mr. Clark stated that the City Assessor requested him to bring the matter of assessment rolls for spreading assessments of the lateral sewer taxes before the Board.

Referred to Mr. Clark and the Assessor.

A communication from the Ohio Valley Fire Clay Company was read, stating that they would exchange smaller pipe for the city's 24-inch pipe, was received and filed.

The Clerk was directed to cause notice to be given the property owners on the south side of West Huron street, between Main and Ashley streets, to build sidewalks heretofore ordered.

On motion the Board adjourned. W. J. MILLER, Clerk.

Try the New Fig Honey.

Honey mixed with a nice extract of California figs, etc., make "Honey of Figs," the most delicious of all gentle cures for Constipation, Colds, Fevers, Nervousness and Disordered Kidneys. Californians greatly prefer it to simple syrup. Old folks enjoy it and babies love it. The Fig Honey Co., of San Francisco make it. No other laxative is so soothing or sells so well. Large bottles (50 doses) 50 cents. Trial size 10 cents. In this age of progress be wise and get the best. Eberbach & Son, Agents for Ann Arbor.

WITHOUT THE

BOW (RING) It is easy to steal or ring watches from the pocket. The thief gets the watch in one hand, the chain in the other and gives a short, quick jerk—the ring slips off the watch stem, and away goes the watch, leaving the victim only the chain.

This idea stopped that little game: The bow has a groove on each end. A collar runs down inside the pendant (stem) and fits into the grooves, firmly locking the bow to the pendant, so that it cannot be pulled or twisted off.

Sold by all watch dealers, without cost, on Jas. Boss Filled and other cases containing this trade mark—Ask your jeweler for pamphlet.

Northern Michigan Resorts

Few places offer so many advantages for three people as do the popular resorts on the shores of Lake Michigan and its tributary bays.

Bay View, Petoskey, Harbor Springs, Charlevoix, Traverse City, and Grand Traverse Bay Resorts are peculiarly inviting during the hot weather, the bracing air, cool nights and freedom from dust contribute to make this region a natural Sanitarium, for the respiration of exhausted energies.

To those interested, Bay View offers special advantages in the great Chautauqua course and Assembly, held in July and August, the program of which will be of unusual excellence this year, comprising classes in many branches of learning and lectures by noted professors and teachers from the highest colleges and universities of this country.

The Way to Reach these RESORTS IS VIA THE

CHICAGO AND WEST MICHIGAN

Railway, which runs through the entire region, and is known as "The Scenic Line," on account of the beautiful scenery through which it passes, traversing the shores of lakes, rivers, and bays, for miles, with the splendid service offered by this line makes the trip a delightful one.

Through parlor and sleeping cars from Detroit to Petoskey and Bay View, are run during July, August and September; via the Detroit, Lansing & Northern Railroad to Grand Rapids, thence via the C. & W. M. Tourist tickets at reduced rates are sold at principal stations on these and other lines from June 1st to Sept. 30—good to return until Oct. 31.

Tribute to His Memory by Dr. V. C. Vaughan.

Mr. President, and Colleagues of the University Senate:

We have come together this afternoon to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of him who was long our eldest brother. Students of Medicine and Dentistry: You are here to join us in recalling something of the labors of one of the greatest teachers which this University and this country have known. He was a teacher to whom one listened with both pleasure and profit. His dignified, kindly and intelligent face at once secured the respect, won the love, and awakened the admiration of his students. His words were clear, distinct and decisive. How often and with what advantage to ourselves have we listened to him as with the scalpel he cut and turned the leaves and read to us from that volume which tells how wonderfully man, created in the image of God, is made? How easy it is to recall one of those hours spent beneath his instruction? I pull back the curtain woven by the daily duties of sixteen years and am again a medical student. During the first hour we listen to the wise and experienced Palmer, and fill page after page of our note-books with information. The second hour passes, and while we are entertained by the versatile and learned Dunster, who always uses the right word in the right place, we are so captivated by the lecture that we almost forget to take any notes, but we store in our memories facts which many have utilized in the highest and noblest duty of man, that of saving human lives. The hands of the old clock moved altogether too swiftly and the second hour closes. Then for a few moments all is confusion, noisily we ascend the north stair and take our places, for now we are to listen to Ford. The book from which he is to read lies before us, but young and full of life we are not still even in the presence of the dead. The door opens, the familiar sound of the canes on the floor is heard. We raise a cheer of welcome, and our beloved teacher stands before us again. Under his clear instruction that which we had vainly endeavored to impress upon our minds from the pages of Gray becomes in fact a mental possession of our own. Dr. Ford began his life-work in teaching at the early age of seventeen. For three successive years he "kept school and boarded around the district." The small remuneration which he received for this work and which amounted to $9 per month the first year, $10 the second and $12 the third, probably went into the family treasury as the contribution of the son whom infantile paralysis had rendered unfit for the severe manual labor at that time imposed upon the male heirs of the pioneer farmer. During this time he decided to become a doctor and it may be of interest to sketch briefly the trials through which he passed before he was able to wear the title and undertake the labors of his chosen profession.

On May 7, 1834, the young man, now just completing his 21st year, left the parental roof and started on his mission. He had for taskmaster that blessing to youth, that curse to age, poverty. His father took him to Norwich and with kind words left his son whose purse contained only a few dollars, but whose heart was full of courage. He reached Utica the same afternoon by stage. The next morning he took a seat in a canal boat and after three days of travel stopped over the Sabbath at Rochester. The next day he resumed his journey and on the 19th of May, 1834, he began the study of medicine in the office of Dr. A. B. Brown, of Somerset, Niagara Co., N. Y. The certificate given him at that time by Dr. Brown is now to be found among Dr. Ford's papers. He remained at this place only a few months and on August 16th, 1834, he entered the office of Dr. Caleb Hill, of Medina. He remained in Medina and vicinity for nearly four years, teaching school part of the time, and reading medicine with Dr. Hill. In May, 1838, he entered the Canandaigua Academy. While in this school young Ford attracted the attention of Dr. Carr, who was then the leading practitioner and dentist in the village. Dr. Ford always regarded his acquaintance and companionship with Dr. Carr as one of the most fortunate occurrences of these years. Dr. Carr seems to have been a man of considerable ability and great worth. As has been stated Carr had observed young Ford, probably had heard him in his recitations at the Academy and had noted his studious habits. One day an aching tooth sent the young student to the dentist's office, and the visit proved to be more pleasant and profitable to the sufferer than such visits usually are. After having disposed of the refractory molar the doctor began to question his patient and at the close of the conversation the young man, who had lost a tooth, had found a home with one who was to him ever afterwards as kind as a father.

October 5th, 1840, Dr. Carr and his pupil took their seats in the Doctor's gig and drove over to Geneva. At last the medical college is in sight. The road from the old farm in Otsego County to Geneva is not a long one measured in miles, but this young man with an empty purse has spent six years on the way. Yet he has not been idle. Every day has found him doing his best, but who can number the clouds which have hung over him during this journey? Who can count the brideless torrents which have intercepted his way? Who can tell what lessons he has read in the stormy skies as he trudged on late at night faint with hunger and weariness? Who can imagine the joy which must have filled his heart, when a chance passer-by took him up and gave him a short ride over a specially heavy road. These years filled alternately with hopes and despair gave him, no doubt, lessons of value.

Hundreds of American boys have traveled similar roads, have persevered, and like him whom we to-day honor, have received their reward. Others are experiencing the same hardships to-day. To these we may say, be of good cheer, gather up the sharp stones which poverty throws in your path and which bruise your feet, for many of them contain gems of rare value, hidden only by a rough exterior. Unfortunate, indeed, will be the day, should it ever come, when the sons and daughters of the poor cease to strive for the best education.

The young man, having now reached the college, is unable to pay the lecture fees, but Dr. Carr signs his note for the sum needed, and the name of Corydon L. Ford is placed on the register. He obtains a room in the college building and he pays for this by acting as librarian and curator of the small museum. Soon he knows every book, and his quick, receptive mind becomes the possessor of its contents; but while he enjoys and profits by the library he finds his most eloquent teachers on the shelves of the museum. The voiceless dead speak to him and through him in after years to thousands of students.

After his first year in the medical school young Ford was employed for a short time in making anatomical preparations for the museum. The remainder of the vacation he practiced dentistry at Prattsburg. The money earned in this work enabled him to continue his studies at Geneva, where he graduated Jan. 25th, 1842. One of the members of the Geneva faculty at that time was Dr. James Webster, Professor of Anatomy, who was noted for his skill in dissecting and his fluency in lecturing. Of this man the curator of the museum became the favorite pupil and on the day of his graduation, Dr. Ford was appointed demonstrator of anatomy. Thus, it happened that he was engaged in teaching anatomy from the date of his graduation until that of his death or for fifty-two years.

February 2, 1842, or eight days after his graduation, the doctor did his first surgical operation, which was for strabismus. In 1846, the Medical Department of the University of Buffalo was organized, and Dr. Ford was elected demonstrator of anatomy. In this school he was the first to give instruction, beginning his work in 1847. In this faculty were Flint, Webster, Hamilton,

White and Ford, all names which were to become memorable in the history of medical education in this country and which are now engraved on tablets in the beautiful and admirably equipped building occupied by the school.

In 1849, Dr. Ford was appointed Professor of Anatomy in the then flourishing medical school at Castleton, Vt. In returning to Buffalo from his work at Castleton in this year the Doctor visited the old farm in Otsego County, which he had left fifteen years before, but the place was no longer home, for the father and mother had migrated some years before to Michigan, which was then known to be a country of lakes and marshes located in the far west.

Dr. Ford continued on duty at both Buffalo and Castleton until 1852, when he resigned his demonstrator's work at the former place and accepted the professorship of anatomy in a dental college at Syracuse.

On the 27th of May, 1854, while taking a vacation and visiting his good friend, Dr. Carr, at Canandaigua, he received notice of his appointment to the Professorship of Anatomy in the University of structure has been confirmed by its present application to all branches of science.

These, with others equally worthy, but whom it was not my fortune to know, inaugurated the work of the medical school with good judgment and great wisdom. It was as a teacher that Dr. Ford excelled. On this point, one of his former students, now a man of world wide reputation, has spoken most enthusiastically. Dr. Skene says: "His method of teaching, the Socratic, was by raising questions and answering them. This method he matured to the highest degree. His ability to excite interest in students and keep them interested was wonderful. Anatomy was the 'pons asinorum' of medical students until Ford made it as fascinating as poetry or fiction."

* He made every avenue to the mind effective. All that he said reached the ear and all that he did reached the eye at the same time. He made his descriptions and demonstrations go hand in hand in as perfect harmony as a master artist could play an aria and its accompaniment. He loved anatomy and made others join him in his affection. He never drove students or urged them, but moved them to admire and study the subject in hand. The quaint intonations of his clear simple sentences, the happy gesture or twinkle of those soft gray-blue eyes, and a smile that lighted up the plain, strong face, all together sent facts home to the dulllest brain and made them stay there. Like a strong healthy boy at his favorite play he made his students eager to join him. So thoroughly familiar was he with his subject and so strong, that he was free to think of only how to impart knowledge. With no apparent effort his vast storehouse of facts seemed to well up constantly in his mind and to find expression almost automatically. He could at a glance tell those who failed to follow him. He would look at a class of hundreds and pick out those who had not seen, heard and comprehended what he had said. He would repeat for their special benefit and then go on carrying all with him agreeably and easily. He not only taught, but made sure that every one of his class learned all he ought to know. He anticipated all the obstacles and difficulties and surprised his students by showing them just what had been puzzling them and what they could not grasp in reading the books. Whenever he wished to inculcate any great principle of anatomy that ran through a number of organizations, he had at hand any number of illustrations; birds, reptiles, fishes, were all pressed into service to show the design and principles of structure and their physiological adaptation."

Such is the estimate placed upon Dr. Ford by one of his old students. The fact that he gave so largely of his time and energy to teaching prevented his making any important contributions to anatomical science. This is certainly a matter of regret and we must regard it as unfortunate that his daily duties were so numerous and pressing that he could not give his time and attention to scientific investigation. His keen mental perception, his recognized logical methods of study, his zeal and enthusiasm would have been of great service in unraveling some of the complex problems of organic development. I know from many a conversation with him that he recognized the fact that it is the duty of every medical man to do all within his power to extend the domain of knowledge. Knowledge is the capital upon which our profession depends. Had there been no scientific investigators in the past there would be no profession of medicine to-day. In fact there would be no civilization. Science must always precede art. Had not the Franklins and Faradays of the past lived and labored, the Morse and Edisons of the present could not have come into existence. Michael Servetus and William Harvey by the discovery of the circulation of the blood rendered the brilliant surgery of the present a possibility. Science is the hardy mariner who sails out over unknown seas and discovers new lands. Art is the immigrant who comes, clears the forests, tills the soil and converts the wilderness into fertile farms, thriving villages and populous cities. Wise nations foster science because they realize that civilization can only follow where science leads. The practitioner of medicine can utilize only that which the investigator discovers. The curriculum of the medical college is made up of that knowledge gathered from the various sciences which can be utilized in the prevention or cure of disease. The recent graduate is debtor to the extent of his professional knowledge to those who have contributed by their labors to this fund of information. Shall he not endeavor to repay a part of this obligation, by the proper employment of his powers of observation, reason and experience. Wherever his lot may be cast, he will find if he has only the inclination to see, valuable work which he may do. If he becomes a village doctor, he should not content himself by saying that his opportunities are small and nothing will be expected of him. Was not Robert Koch a village doctor when he made his first contribution to bacteriology? Was not Ephraim McDowell a backwoods practitioner in Kentucky when he performed that great operation which has added thousands of years in the aggregate to the life of women? Was not Marion Sims a young man without honor and advantage when in the then village of Montgomery, Ala., he kept a number of poor, suffering women at his own expense until he solved the technique of an operation, which he was subsequently called to perform in the capital cities of Europe? Was not William Beaumont a surgeon, stationed at his isolated post on the Island of Mackinaw, when under difficulties apparently insurmountable, and with a perseverance almost without a parallel, he carried on the now classical studies on digestion at the very time when a professor in the University of Berlin pronounced all ideas concerning the gastric juice as vain theories? Take from medicine the contributions which have been made by the village doctor and you rob it of more than half its power and glory.

What wonderful advances in his chosen profession did Dr. Ford see? He was already a graduate of some years, when Pollender first described little rod-like bodies found in the blood of animals sick with anthrax. Of what possible utility could this observation promise to be? Yet, upon it the science of bacteriology in its application to the causation of disease is founded. This apparently useless discovery has grown until today voluminous hand-books fail to exhaust the subject, and of such practical utility has it proved to be that it constitutes the most important factor in the saving of human life. Knowledge founded upon this apparently trivial observation has classed purperal septicemia, once the deadliest foe to parturient women, among the rare diseases, has enabled the surgeon to explore any part of the human body, and forms the basis of the greatest and most humane science ever known, that

Worden, Ed. Wallace, O. B. Bradey, Ed. Thompson, G. M. Hull.

John F. Lawrence, from the committee on resolutions, reported the following, which were adopted unanimously by a rising vote:

WHEREAS, The republicans this day in convention assembled, point with pride to the administration of Hon. John T. Rich, and believe that it commends itself to all right minded men, therefore,

Resolved, That the delegates chosen this day to represent Washtenaw county be instructed to use their best efforts to secure the renomination of Hon. John T. Rich for governor.

The convention proceeded to elect a delegate at large. Hon. E. P. Allen nominated Hon. J. F. Lawrence for the position, which was seconded by Hon. A. J. Sawyer, Hon. Joseph T. Jacobs, of this city, and Hon. A. F. Freeman, of Manchester, and he was elected without a dissenting vote.

The next business in order was to separate into representative districts, each to select ten delegates to the state convention. The gentlemen elected were:

FIRST DISTRICT. H. Wirt Newkirk, Scio. James L. Gilbert, Sylvania. George S. Wheeler, Salem. William Judson, Chelsea. Henry F. Dodge, Northfield. Edwin Ball, Webster. Col. H. S. Dean, Ann Arbor. J. E. Ball, Ann Arbor. F. C. Brown, Ann Arbor. E. H. Scott, Ann Arbor.

SECOND DISTRICT. E. P. Allen, Ypsilanti. John Thompson, Ypsilanti. C. P. McKinstry, Ypsilanti. A. F. Freeman, Manchester. Andrew Campbell, Pittsfield. Elias B. Stone, Augusta. A. M. Humphrey, Lud. George D. Ward, Ypsilanti town. R. H. Marsh, Sylvania. John W. Blakeslee, York.

The selection being ratified, Dr. W. B. Smith arose and said that lest some of the delegates might not have fully understood the resolutions passed, he moved that the delegates just elected be instructed to use every effort in their power to renominate Hon. John T. Rich for governor. Carried unanimously.

Horace G. Prettyman, of Ann Arbor, was then elected chairman, and Nathan D. Corbin secretary of the county committee. The various townships and wards presented the following names to act as a county committee:

COUNTY COMMITTEE. Ann Arbor City.—1st ward, G. F. Altmendinger. 2d ward, A. C. Schumacher. 3d ward, C. E. Hiseock. 4th ward, Geo. H. Pond. 5th ward, Norman D. Gates. 6th ward, Fred C. Brown. York township.—J. H. Ford, Milan. Dexter township.—T. B. Kirk, Dexter. Lyndon township.—Richard Clark, Dexter.

After this some excellent speeches were made by Hon. E. P. Allen, of Ypsilanti, Hon. A. J. Sawyer and Col. H. S. Dean, of Ann Arbor, and Andrew Campbell, of Pittsfield, which closed the largest, best and most enthusiastic republican convention ever held in Washtenaw county.

The Street Car Prospects.

Work will probably be commenced on the street car line this week and at the first of next week. Mr. H. W. Plummer, of Bangor, Maine, representing the eastern bondholders, has been in Ann Arbor for the past three weeks making the necessary arrangements to get the work started and everything is now settled satisfactorily. Just how long it will take to relay such portions of the track as will be necessary and put on new overhead fixtures cannot be told with certainty. Some think it can be done in 30 days, but it is more likely that it will take 45 days, which will bring the completion of the work about the middle of September.

As has been stated before in the Times it is the intention to give Ann Arbor a far better street railway system than it had before. New and improved motor cars will be used, which will be comparatively noiseless and everything will be done to make the line and the service satisfactory to the people. Mr. Plummer will remain here until work has been commenced. During his stay here he has become pretty well acquainted and deservedly popular among Ann Arbor business men.—Daily Times.

Death of Arthur Henion.

Arthur T. Henion, formerly a mail carrier in this city, died July 14th, at Anderson, Ind., of typhoid fever, aged 23 years. His remains were brought to this city for interment. The following in reference to his death is taken from the local paper where he lived:

Arthur S. Henion, after two weeks illness of typhoid fever, died yesterday morning. His death was a surprise to his friends, although his attack was severe from the first. He was a young man of excellent qualities and bright promise and his untimely death came as a crushing blow to his family, who, though they are comparative strangers, have the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement. Their former home was Ann Arbor, Mich., whither the family departed with the remains yesterday afternoon, where the interment will take place near other of his kindred. A brief service, conducted by Rev. S. N. Wilson, was delivered before the departure of the family and friends for the train.—Anderson, Ind., Herald.

Farmers' Picnic.

The Farmers' Annual Basket Picnic will be held at Whitmore Lake, on Saturday, Aug. 25th. It is expected the nominees for Governor of all political parties represented in Michigan will be present. Half-fare rates will undoubtedly be given by all railroads. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to everyone. HENRY C. WALDRON, President. R. C. REEAES, Secretary.

John F. Lawrence, of Ann Arbor, has fully determined after much time given to a consideration of the matter, to erect a new office. He intended to build it on a lot at the corner of Fourth avenue and Ann street, but the Argus says he has decided to build it on reflection.—Adrian Press.

"Are you a judge of reprobate?" said an old lady as she walked into a judge's office. "I am the judge of probate," was the reply. "Well, that's it, I expect," quoth the old lady. "You see my husband died testate and left me several little infidels. I want to be their executor."—Ex.

Dr. George Clark, Homeop. class of '93, has gone to Bay City, where he enters into partnership with Dr. N. R. Gilbert, an old practitioner. He has been with his brother, Dr. E. A. Clark, for the past year, and has many warm friends and acquaintances here who will rejoice over his good prospects.

"Did you hear about the strike in Ypsilanti?" said the jolly member of the Board of Fire Commissioners from the irrepressible 3rd ward, as he hurried by here yesterday. "No, what is it?" Why, you should hustle around and get it for your paper. All the clocks down there have struck." And then he passed rapidly on to his dinner.

Joe. T. Jacobs, of Ann Arbor has gone into the boot and shoe business with a partner. This indicates that he expects to make a race for congress, and needs to get his foot wear at wholesale rates.—Adrian Press. The Press probably meant to say that the other fellow would need to get his foot wear cheap, for J. T. always travels fast when he goes.

Washington Beeman died at his home in Waterloo last Wednesday, aged 78 years, and funeral services were held Friday. Mr. Beeman was one of the early pioneers of this county, and lived in Lyndon for a half a century nearly, until a few years ago when he moved over the line into Jackson county. He was a man of considerable prominence, and in the past had taken a prominent part in the affairs of county and state.

Since Bro. Smith, of the Argus, moved away from Adrian they have discovered where his sulphurous articles came from. A well has been struck so impregnated with that mineral—which is necessary to contain all the properties supposed for entertainment in hades—that it will knock an ordinary man down at forty rods. Now it is proposed to bottle the stuff and sell it to people who need a cathartic beverage. There is no telling what wonderful results a change in the residents of a town sometimes brings. Now if Smith had remained in Adrian, he probably never would have let on about that well and its oderiferous water.

He started out to break the record On the 'cycle track— He doubled up to gain momentum, Till he broke his back. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Ald. H. J. Brown had a wheel stolen, day before yesterday, from in front of his store.

If the spirit of Washtenaw County republicans can be judged by the enthusiasm which prevailed at the county convention yesterday, then this is a republican year, and no mistake.

On Sunday last death came to the relief of Isaac Handy, at his home on S. Division st., where he had been seriously ill for some time. Mr. Handy had resided in this city for many years, and was known to all the older residents of the city, by whom he was held in the highest esteem. He was 70 years of age. Funeral was held yesterday p. m., from the residence, Rev. J. W. Bradshaw conducting the services. The masonic fraternity turned out in a body, he being one of the oldest members of Golden Rule Lodge.

Chas. K. Backus, of Detroit, a son of the late Dr. Cyrus Backus, of this city, died at Sconset, Mass., last Sunday, where he had gone with his family for the summer, aged 51 years. Mr. Backus was for many years the editorial writer for the Detroit Tribune, and one of the best that paper ever had. He was the compiler of "Michigan and its Resources," when acting as assistant commissioner of immigration, and a magazine writer of much popularity. He also wrote the "Life of Zachariah Chandler," which is conceded to be one of the best biographical works ever published in this state. Mr. Backus was well known in this city, and highly respected, and his death will cause many expressions of regret.

Prof. J. C. Knowlton came down to the republican caucus in the 4th ward last Friday night for the last time. He had retained his old residence so as to be able to take part in one more preliminary meeting of his party in that ward, where he has voted every year since 1871, when his first vote was cast. He will hereafter be with the six warders. Although Mr. Knowlton has not always attended the caucuses of his party, yet he has quite generally exercised that duty of an American citizen, especially if there has been any questions of importance pending. He believes that the primaries are very important, and demand the careful attention of every good citizen. In fact that in the primaries the work is done which results in good or evil for the party and the people. If more of our good citizens took that view and acted upon it, they would serve their country better. "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," and that eternal vigilance should be shown at the caucuses of the various parties. There is where the greatest duty of an American citizen lies.

Capt. John C. Fischer, of Co. A, is attempting to form a company of cadets, boys from ten to fifteen years of age. The scheme is an excellent one for the boys. It will be of benefit to them in more ways than one. For instance, it will tend to improve their physique, making them erect and of manly carriage. The discipline will be invaluable for it will teach them the necessity of promptly obeying orders, and neatness and accuracy in all things. Should the scheme prove to be a taking one the boys will have an armory and drill room, and as a side pastime be given a course in gymnastics, such as the swinging of Indian clubs, handling dumb bells, and that sort of exercise. The expense attached to forming the company will be somewhere about 25 or 50 cents per month. It is always well to encourage a military spirit among the boys, for at any time a country may be plunged into war and need the services of all her citizens capable of bearing arms. Then if the young men are familiar with military tactics and movements it will be of wonderful advantage to them as well as the country. Capt. Fischer ought to be encouraged in this enterprise, as it is one that can but result beneficially.

of the prevention of disease. Dr. Ford had already nearly reached manhood when the first epidemic of Asiatic Cholera spread over Europe and America. Then men stood aghast; they were in the presence of an unknown foe; they saw those about them stricken down, but they could not tell from whence the blow came. Commerce was paralyzed; communities were thrown into panic and man of ten lost sympathy with his fellow-beings, and even faith in God was shattered by the dreaded affliction. Now the cause of the disease is known and more than once has it been recognized and destroyed at the gateway of the nation. Asiatic Cholera can never again become a plague to the people of this country except as a result of the greatest carelessness on the part of those appointed to supervise our quarantine service. For this deliverance the more than sixty millions of people of this country may thank that profession of which he whom we to-day mourn was so worthy a member.

Dr. Ford was deeply interested in the prevention of disease. Early in its history he identified himself with the American Public Health Association. Although not an active contributor to the literature of this society, he remained in close sympathy with the work done by the Sanitariums of this country. The world will probably never acknowledge the debt which it owes to such men as Edwin Snow, of Rhode Island, Henry Bowditch, of Massachusetts, Elisha Harris and Stephen Smith, of New York, John Rauch, of Illinois, Geo. Sternberg, of the Army, Albert Gibon, of the Navy, and Henry Baker and Robert Kedzie, of Michigan, who have given so largely and generously of their time and labor to the study of the means necessary for the restriction of disease and the prevention of death. In this respect at least, the medical profession is fifty years ahead of civilization. Did not a medical man nearly one hundred years ago demonstrate that small-pox is a preventable disease and did he not make known to the world the simple and efficient means for the eradication of this scourge? Did not Edward Jenner, in 1796, clearly demonstrate the practical value of vaccination? And yet, in this year 1894, that American city which boasts most loudly of its wealth, progress and culture, allows, through its indifference to the value of human life, an epidemic of this preventable disease to prevail to the extent of more than 1,500 cases?

Dr. Ford heard and modestly participated in that strange controversy which attended the discovery of anesthesia and its employment in surgical and obstetrical practice. In 1844, Wells, of Hartford, anesthetized himself in order to prove the practical utility of the procedure, but this poor man, who deserves a place of honor among the benefactors and discoverers of the world, was so virulently attacked for trying "to set aside the laws of nature," that he was driven into insanity and finally committed suicide. Then Morton and Jackson quarreled about priority and finally joined in an attempt to keep the nature of the agent used, a secret; thus, as Reeve has justly said, "sully-ing the greatest discovery ever made for the alleviation of human suffering." However, the benefits of anesthesia were appreciated too highly by both the surgeon and patient to be set easily aside. The employment of ether continued in this country and was soon taken up by the physicians and surgeons of Great Britain. Sir James Simpson became its most able and learned advocate and soon discovered the anesthetic properties of chloroform; but the opponents of medical progress, who have lived in every age, enlisted the prejudices and bigotry of sect in the fight, and it was not until 1853, when England's wise sovereign aided science and blessed humanity as it had probably never been given to women before to do, by submitting her own person to the pain-destroying breath of anesthesia, that the general cry against the wickedness of the procedure was even partially hushed. The medical student of to-day cannot understand how anyone could oppose the employment of ether, chloroform and cocaine in the relief of suffering, but when I began my medical studies the professor thought it necessary to spend an hour or more in answering the arguments against surgical and obstetrical anesthesia, which were supposed to be held by the would-be professional recruits.

It is not generally known, but it is true, that Dr. Ford was a surgeon of ability and no little skill, as well as an anatomist. His perfect knowledge of the relations of the different tissues in every region of the body made his advice and assistance to the general practitioner, who when called upon to do a surgical operation often finds his knowledge of anatomy less extensive than he had supposed, of the greatest service, and in western New York he was often called not only to advise and assist, but to do the operation. He ligated some of the larger arteries a number of times, reduced fractures and made amputations. On the deck of a transatlantic steamer a few years ago, a good looking man, somewhat past middle life, with a slight halt in his gait, introduced himself to me and inquired if Dr. Ford continued his surgical practice? Then he in formed me that when a boy he broke his thigh, and other surgeons had thought it best to amputate, but Dr. Ford believed that the leg might be saved, and then he proceeded to put in evidence the value of the Doctor's advice. After coming to Ann Arbor, Dr. Ford was not called upon to do much surgery until Dr. Gunn went to the front as an army surgeon, and during this time Dr. Ford did all the operations at the surgical clinic. Dr. Skene, who was a student here at that time, bears testimony to the fact that Dr. Ford handled the knife with equal judgment and skill as an anatomist and as a surgeon. On account of his knowledge, experience and interest in surgery, he watched with great pleasure the development of this, now the most scientific branch of the healing art. It would require much more time than I have at my disposal to briefly mention the advances which surgery has accomplished during the fifty-two years which have passed since Dr. Ford took his degree at Geneva. Surgery has utilized the two greatest discoveries of the present age, and I have no hesitancy in saying that measured by their actual benefits to mankind, these two greatest discoveries in this age of wonders are that of anesthesia and that of the causal relation of micro-organisms to disease. Michigan. This appointment has an interesting bit of history connected with it. During a part of his stay at Geneva as a medical student young Ford roomed with Moses Gunn. The young men frequently talked together of the future. They had their dreams of coming prosperity and renown as all ambitious and hard-working young men do. Each planned for the other as well as himself and in all their plans they were to be inseparable. Gunn, who was the more self-confident of the two, frequently said, "I shall become Professor of Surgery in a medical school and you shall be Professor of Anatomy in the same institution." Immediately after his graduation, Gunn came to Ann Arbor and began to practice medicine and to teach anatomy to a few students of the literary department, which at that time constituted the whole University, who intended to study medicine. On the organization of the medical department in 1850, Gunn was appointed Professor of Anatomy and Surgery and did the work in both of these branches until Dr. Ford was made Professor of Anatomy in 1854, when Gunn continued as Professor of Surgery. Thus it happened, through the sagacity and ability of Gunn, that his youthful dream was fulfilled.

Dr. Ford gave his first lecture in this University Oct. 2, 1854. He continued to give lectures at Castleton until the school was closed in 1861. Then he gave a few courses at the Berkshire Medical college and later in the medical department of Bowdoin College. From 1863 to 1886 he was Professor of Anatomy in Long Island College Hospital in Brooklyn.

We are chiefly interested in the work which he did in this University. From his appointment in 1854 to the time of his death Dr. Ford was found at his post each and every year. The medical department was already firmly established when he became a member of its faculty. The men who had been chosen by the Board of Regents to inaugurate the medical work in this University were well selected. There was Gunn, who deserved, if any one man could be given that distinction, to be called the father of the department. Tall, manly and graceful in his bearing, with an eye which commanded and secured the respect of students and the obedience of patients, with well developed forehead which proclaimed the owner's ability to plan and determination to win success, with a trained hand, which dared to do many operations the landmarks of which were not then described in the works on surgery. The story is told, I know not how truthfully, of a Confederate colonel who came under the good doctor's knife in Virginia, and who was so pleased with the result that he promised himself that if he should be again in need of the surgeon's knife, no hand but that of Gunn should direct its course through his tissues. He was exchanged, won a General's rank for bravery, was again wounded, captured, and while awaiting his turn for an operation in the hospital, escaped and found his way to Ann Arbor, where his favorite surgeon not only used his knife upon him again with success, but fed and clothed him at his own expense.

There was Sager, the most studious and learned of all, whose skill as a practitioner many of the older residents of this city still speak of reverently and lovingly, and whose original researches in biology can be found modestly chronicled on the pages of more than one old volume. I once heard a young professor detail his discovery of a certain parasite, found in the frog, which Dr. Sager had described much more accurately some twenty years before. His students, and I fear that the same might be truthfully said of some of his colleagues, did not thoroughly appreciate this man, who was truly imbued with the scientific spirit. It was my fortune during my first two years of student life here to occasionally consult Dr. Sager concerning some investigations which I was then attempting to carry on, and I can bear testimony to the fact that his knowledge of comparative anatomy and general biology was both extended and accurate.

There was Douglas, who was one of the first in this country to appreciate and utilize the laboratory method of teaching. Under his care and wise management the chemical laboratory grew until for many years it had the reputation of being the largest and best equipped institution of the kind on this continent. Many students were attracted to the University on account of the laboratory facilities, and the wisdom of developing this method of instruction. The use of electricity has opened up new resources, lights our streets and homes, transports man and his belongings with ease and rapidity, but anesthesia has robbed pain of its horror, and the knowledge of the relation of germs to disease has increased by several years the length of human life, and has saved nations from the demoralization, suffering and death attendant upon pestilential epidemics.

The genius of Lister saw, appreciated and put into practice the possibility of protecting wounds from the destructive and poisonous effects of germs, and as a result of this, a single surgeon is able to rescue more than one thousand persons from what would have been, had this discovery not been made, certain death, and give to each an average of not less than five years of comfortable life. Think of Spencer Wells adding five thousand years in the aggregate to the lives of one thousand mothers and tell me if the world has ever known any other discovery equal to that of aseptic surgery. Students, you and I may justly feel some pride in contemplating the great services which our profession has rendered mankind. The world has not crowned our heroes with the laurel wreath of victory, but in almost every village in the civilized world there is a plain, unassuming surgeon whose knowledge and skill have rescued one or more fellow-beings from suffering and death. Man has always done more honor to those who destroy, than to those who save lives. The historian fills his pages with the names of those whose unholy ambition has instigated cruel and bloody war, but he makes scant mention of those who have stayed the pestilence. Great painters have spread upon their canvas the features of a dissolute Charles I, a degenerate Henry the VIII, and a tyrannical George the III, and have left to tyros in art to rescue from oblivion the face of a William Harvey, an Edward Jenner, and a John Hunter. Great is Caesar and to the cross with him who healed the sick and raised the dead has always been the cry of the populace.

There is one other phase of the life and labor of Dr. Ford to which I wish to call your attention. His greatest service was given to the cause of medical education. What advance has there been in this work since Dr. Ford began to teach anatomy? Then any one who could read and write was admitted to the medical schools, and the curriculum consisted of a few lectures on anatomy, physiology, practice, materia medica and obstetrics. Now a fairly liberal education is required before admission and four years of close study in nearly every branch of science is found too short to fit one for the duties of the profession. In no other branch of education has the advance been half so great and extensive. The most worthy monument which we, his students, can raise to his memory, is for each to make himself an honorable member of that profession which he loved so well.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

Mrs. Wm Minnet, of Saline, died July 14, aged 83 years.
Mrs. Elias Manning, who lives just west of Salem, died July 15, aged 84 years.
R. C. Thayer, of Salem, has been attending the Baptist Young People's Convention at Asbury Park, N. J.
Rev. D. H. Conrad, of Salem, is attending the Baptist Young People's Convention at Toronto.
Rev. W. H. Shannon, of Salem, is taking a vacation of a couple of weeks, which he is spending in the west.
Howell's milk factory has a pay roll of $500 a week and during the last month $7,000 was paid out for milk.
Mrs. Elizabeth M. Firster died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. O. Lankin, in Saline, July 19, aged 66 years.

The annual county Sunday School Convention for Monroe Co., is to meet at Azalia, Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 21 and 22.

The Saline Farmer's Club will meet at Theo. Josenhans' Friday July 27th. A full program is expected and an early attendance is desired.—Observer.

The Plymouth base ball club has a concert yell, indicating the cyclonic qualities of the club, ending with "Plymouth! Plymouth! Gee Whizz!"

York part of Milan village has 572 inhabitants and Milan part 402, making a total population of 974, which is a gain of 55 over the census of 1890.—Leader.

Editor Allen of the Wayne Tidings, denies the green-eyed assertion of Editor Neal of the Northville Record, that he wears a silk tie. He simply has a picture of one that he gazes at with longing thoughts.

Prof. Nichols of Boston found eight grains of arsenic to each square foot of a green dress submitted to his examination! Here is the fact of poisons freely used. Is there no remedy?—Wayne Tidings. Certainly. Do as they do in Africa. Do without.

Rain does not fall alike upon the just and the unjust always. We are suffering for it and Detroit has had three showers since we have had any. Evidently the unjust have the bulge on that blessing.—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

Poor old Ypsilanti! First it was a cyclone, then its fine school building burned down, and now, worse than all the rest, a horde of Coxeyite ragamuffins made a descent on the ill-fated burg. It was too much. It has driven that burg to drink.—Grass Lake News.

It may pay to make a note of this: To drive away squash bugs and other small, delicate insect pests, wet a small piece of cloth with kerosene, or use the cloth used to wipe the lamps, by laying about the infected plants.—Northville Record. If the kerosene is two strong, it will drive away the plants as well.

"Limberger cheese hid away in a cupboard or refrigerator will drive away aunts." No doubt it will. It will drive a spike in a brick wall; it will drive a tramp away from a meal of vituals; it will drive a mile through a barb wire fence; it will drive a herd of cattle over a precipice or a man to insanity.—Saline Observer.

A Hudson man saw an advertisement in a foreign paper which read "A sewing machine for 50 cents." He forwarded the half dollar and received in return two needles and an awl. That man should read his local papers and patronize home trade.—Dundee Reporter. Is that awl you could expect from a Hudson man? Referred to the Post.

The business man who never advertises saves a great many expenses. He saves salaries and needs but a small stock to supply his customers. This makes insurance and taxes a small expense. Only a small capital is required and a small building is sufficient for the proprietor and spiders. The money saved by not advertising will come handy bearing funeral expense of a dead business.—Fowlerville Observer.

There was a most beautiful freak of nature most artistically developed on the rose bush at residence of Ben. Crane. There came first a white rose perfectly shaped and of equal size to the others; then sprang right up in the center, about one inch high, a stem bearing a most beautiful crown, or red rose, crowning the white. The war of roses, between the houses of Lancaster and York, have long ceased and now the red rose of beauty crowns the white rose of peace; may they ever grow in splendor, peace and love.—Dundee Reporter.

A party consisting of men, women, children, horses, wagons, dogs, mules, bears, etc., struck town Tuesday night. The women proceeded to make a begging tour of the place, with papooses strapped to their backs, and in this senseless lot never stepped foot in a worse location before. Wednesday morning the men made the bears dance and set two bull dogs to fighting with one of the bears, which was cruel in the extreme, as one of the dirty vagabonds held the bear with a chain attached to a ring in the animals nose; the bear was also muzzled. During the fracas the dog's nose was terribly bitten by the brute's nose and his share of torturing by pulling at the chain, when the bear got the better of the dogs. Why our officials allowed such a party, who are steeped in dirt and filth, to give their inhuman exhibition on the street, we are unable to explain.—Pawllville Observer.

Born city folks are disposed to poke fun at the country boy. Some of them mean no harm, but others really feel that there is an odium, or at least a commonness about being born and raised in the country. The country school house is taken as positive evidence of ignorance and stupidity. When the facts are brought out and arrayed in their proper order the country boy becomes a different sort of a fellow altogether. He often stands at the head of the various professions, and leads the procession on almost every occasion, and in fact bears off the honors in the great struggle for the survival of the fittest. In every community you will find that the leading citizens are men who secured their start on the farm.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.
The city of Jackson has gained over 2,000 inhabitants, and now has 22,750.

L. Tichenor, of Chelsea, has just completed the handsomest boat to be found in that section.

Even the ads in the Pinckney Dispatch are so good that its exchanges steal them occasionally.

H. S. Holmes is mediator, F. P. Glazier director, and W. P. Shenk assessor of the Chelsea School district.

The Enterprise would like to see enough enterprise in Manchester to get up a match game of ball. Why not roulette?

It cost the city of Ypsilanti $500 to isolate and take care of its recent case of small pox. Which was not only reasonable but money well invested.

Pinckney's population has increased about 14 a year for the past four years. Not a good report for the doctors of that burg. There are now 504 inhabitants there.

A gang of Coxeyites, after scaring half the town with their fierce demands, were finally scared out of town by the village marshal, decamping for the next town.

It is amazing to see how some writers persist in using the word "Sundayed." If they keep on, doubtless it will appear in the dictionary, and then we all can use it.—Stockbridge Sun.

Work-Horse for sale, also a good, kind driver.—Plainwell Enterprise. Now we don't want to purchase, exactly, but if that good, kind driver is the right kind of a driver he might bring a good, fair price.

The Ypsilanti Athletic Association is a new organization of this city, and already numbers 30 members.—Ypsilanti. And the thermometer scoting up to 100°, 102°, 104°, etc., in the shade! Think of it! And woe! If you want to.

Farmers might possibly do well to hold their wool, as the conference committees of the Senate and House cannot agree and the prospect is, no tariff bill will be passed this session. If the people clean out the House in November as they should do, no legislation will be possible after this session.—Ypsilantian.

Aug. 25th, 1894!
What about that date?
Why, the great Farmers Picnic at Whitmore Lake! Scratch it down on your memory, and make all necessary arrangements to be there. It will eclipse anything of the sort ever held in this section.

"Gone, but not forgotten," is our old time contemporary of the Commercial. The other day a stranger met us in the street with the salutation, "I know you, but you don't know me."

"No, I do not. My name is W., what is yours?"
"Oh, I thought it was P. I used to take his paper."

And so as the Irishman said on occasion, "He thought it was I and I thought it was he, and begorra it was neither of us."—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

The Cavanaugh Lakers organized a ball team and descended upon Chelsea last Thursday afternoon. The natives met the visitors and strove most mightily for the honors of the diamond. When the smoke had cleared away, the score loomed through the gathering twilight showing that the Chelseaites had won the day by the juicy score of 31 to 11. The campers stole away in the darkness, ruminating on the picture of a vanished dream.—Chelsea Standard. And there are a half-dozen or so Ann Arbor boys at Cavanaugh, too! Ghosts of Pat Kelly, what are we coming to?

Every Sunday evening in front of each of the churches just as the services are over may be seen a string of boys and young men, in numbers varying from twelve to fifty, lined up in semi-military order for nearly half a block. The majority are waiting to "catch on," the balance to see it done.—Chelsea Standard. Young ladies should remember that the young men who really care for them go to their houses and accompany them to church in a gentlemanly way. The girls have it in their power to do away with the above objectionable habit of the boys. Just give them the mitten, and they'll soon stop it.

Fifty Michigan Cities.

There is always a clam about figures that the general reader likes, especially if figures prove what he desires to have proven. Below is taken a list of several cities of the state, taken from the advance sheets sent out from the Secretary of the State's office, giving the population for 1890 and 1894, so that comparisons may be made. It will be noticed that with few exceptions these cities have increased in population:

Hutzel's Water Back!

A very important invention which will be hailed with delight by every body using a stove or range for hot water circulation. After years of experience we have succeeded in producing a simple and perfect WATER BACK.

It overcomes all the present troubles of extracting lime and other sediments which accumulate in water backs, often making them useless and in great many instances becoming dangerous.

The outlay of dollars is reduced to times. No household using a range can afford to be without it.

No more trouble by using city water for hot water circulation.

Can be used in any stove. Ask your stove dealer for Hutzel's Water Back.

Mason & Davis Co's. ranges for sale at C. Eberbach are provided with our improvement.

THE NEW UNIVERSITY HEATING PLANT.

To Be An Elaborate Affair, and Complete in Every Particular.

[From the Daily Times.]

The new central heating plant for the University will be a model in every particular. It will not only provide for heating all the buildings at present, on the campus, but for five or six additional buildings, or about all that the campus will hold.

The central plant will consist of 16 boilers. From the central plant the conduit will go north under the medical building nearly to the gymnasium. It will then turn and go west to the law building, then south under the main building to the walk just south of the museum and from there east along the walk to a point south of the central plant, and then turn and connect with the central plant.

The conduit will be six and one-half feet high in the clear and five and one-half feet wide in its widest dimension. It will be in the shape of a horse-shoe or a geostatic arch. The walls of the conduit will be eight inches thick of brick laid in cement with one inch of cement on the outside.

The steam pipes will be on one side and electric light wires on the other. The supply pipe will start from the central plant 12 inches in diameter in each direction, the diameter being gradually lessened as the buildings are passed until the two ends meet at the main building, where the pipe will be six inches in diameter.

Calculations have been made for the establishment of an electric light plant in connection with the heating plant as soon as the money is in sight with which to build it. The two could be run very economically together as the exhaust steam from the engine driving the electric light machinery could be used for heating purposes and would be nearly sufficient to heat the main building. The conduits also furnish a ready means for making the connections.

It will be seen from this short description that the plant will be a fine one. It will not only furnish heating capacity for the new buildings, but will prove economical as well as it will save an engineer's wages by having the entire plant in one place and by the improved methods used save considerably on coal bills.

About $50,000 will be spent on this work and it must be completed by Oct. 1. Under the contract Mr. Harvey is bound to forfeit $50 for each day after Oct. 1 that the plant remains uncompleted. Mr. Harvey will bring some men from Detroit who are used to such particular work as building the walls of the conduit, but he will also hire Ann Arbor laboring men so there is a prospect for considerable work for Ann Arbor laborers on this job.

One of the many instructors here in attendance upon the teachers' session of the University of Michigan, and, by the way, the only one of color, is Mr. J. S. Hathaway, of Frankfort, Ky. He is a professor in the State Normal School located at Frankfort. Mr. Hathaway is making quite a favorable impression here. He is approachable and discusses the conditions in the south quite freely and holds that things are far from as desperate there as, in the north, they are often made to appear.

He has words of hearty praise for the people of Kentucky, but deprecates the lynchings which occur, and the "separate coach" law, as is shown by the evident embarrassment and reluctance with which he talks on these subjects when their operation is inquired into.

For educational purposes, Kentucky gives annually an equal per capita for white and colored children, and under the operation of her revised school law, there will be a general onward and upward movement of the people.—Daily Times.

We have seen a number of watch chains ornamented with a pretty charm in the shape of a watch case opener, which obviates the use of a knife or fingernail to open the watch. They are sent free on request by the Keystone Watch Case Company, of Philadelphia, Pa. Your jeweler here may have one for you; if not, send to Philadelphia. The Keystone Watch Case Company is the largest concern of its kind in the world. Its capacity is 2500 watch cases per day. It manufactures every description of case, but its great specialty is that most popular of all watch cases in Jas. Boss gold filled. These are equal in beauty and wear to solid gold—while they cost only about one-half as much. Boss and other Keystone cases are the only cases that have the famous Non-pull-out bow or ring, which saves the watch from theft or accident. The Keystone Company does not retail, but our local jewelers handle the cases and swear by the thief-proof qualities of the ring.

PAINT cracks.—It

often costs more to prepare a house for repainting that has been painted in the first place with cheap ready-mixed paints, than it would to have painted it twice with strictly pure white lead, ground in pure linseed oil.

Strictly Pure White Lead

forms a permanent base for repainting and never has to be burned or scraped off on account of scaling or cracking. It is always smooth and clean. To be sure of getting strictly pure white lead, purchase any of the following brands: "Anchor," "Morley," "Eckstein," "Shipman," "Armstrong & McKelvey," "Southern," "Beymer-Bauman," "Red Seal," "Davis-Chambers," "Gollier," "Fahnestock."

For Colors.—National Lead Co.'s Pure White Lead Tinting Colors, a one-pound can to a 25-pound keg of Lead and mix your own paints. Saves time and annoyance in matching shades, and insures the best paint that it is possible to put on wood. Send us a postal card and get our book on paints and color-card; free; it will probably save you a good many dollars.
