Henry Feldhauser, Jr.

Henry Feldhauser, Jr., of Grayling, Mich., died last night at 9:30, at the home of J. J. Fischer, 92 N. Main street. The cause of death was consumption. The young man was only eighteen years of age. He had come here about six weeks since for a visit with his relatives, Mr. Fischer being his grandfather, in the hope that a change of climate would benefit his health. Instead of having the desired effect, he grew rapidly worse. His mother arrived this afternoon to take charge of the remains.

MICHIGAN'S SENATORS.

There are two kinds of useful senators to a state, one the thoroughly business one, like Senator McMillan; the other the ready debator and orator like Sherman, Hoar, All son, or Lodge. It is rare that these two qualities are combined in one man. The state needs the business man to look after its local interests; it needs the debator to look after the opposition, and to give credit to the commonwealth by some ringing speech which will make the orator's name known throughout the union, coupled with the name of his state, just as Michigan's University gets renown by the discoverer's and books of its professors.

Michigan does not need two purely business men as senators, neither does she need two mere debators, but she ought to have one of each, as she did with Chandler, the business man, and Ferry, the parliamentarian who as acting vice president steered the ship of state by great tact through the dangerous waters, presiding over the famous and hot recout.

As is right, Senator McMillan's reelection is assured. For the short term there is a choice between many, with the chances favoring Patton or Burrows. Both of these men fill the bill as to readiness of debate, and facility of speech which spreads reputation beyond state borders. Therefore let us see which is the better to select. Burrows has a commanding place in the house, where he can do more for Michigan's interests than all the rest of our congressmen put together. That means a great deal for the peninsular state, because our industries were especially hit by the Wilson bill. Moreover our proximity to Canada makes us feel the quickest and sharpest effects of their cheap stuff brought across the borders in competition with all our farm produce.

Burrows is from a District safely republican, therefore he is sure to be in the congress of 1897, with a republican president and senate, when the Wilson bill will be repeated. Consequently with our interests so great in the house, where all tariff bills originate, it is a serious question whether we ought to throw away this chance of a lifetime to get legislation favorable to Michigan's interests.

What is to be gained by such a sacrifice? Mr. Burrows cannot gain in salary, in reputation, in influence or in tenure of office because his district will keep him in congress as long as the state would, besides the renown gained by the author of the Burrows bill in the 55th congress would put him nearer the White House than a senatorial seat possibly could, for it is well known how hard it is for a senator to graduate to the presidency.

Would the state gain with Burrows in the senate more than with Patton? If so, how? Everything goes by evolution there. A man's influence is mainly in the committees he is on, and he gains those committees by rotation. The new men go to the foot of the committees, having but little influence. Burrows would be a newer man in the senate than Patton, hence could not be expected to rank him there. It is true he might be abler as a parliamentarian than the younger man, but that would be of little use in the different methods of the senate and with the custom to keep new members down. So there is not enough to be gained in the senate to make up for the great loss in the house. Michigan cannot afford to try the experiment.

Mr. Patton has proven himself, even in the short time of his occupancy of his seat, an able and useful legislator. He is a fine speaker, a good parliamentarian, and energetically looks after the interests of his constituents, as has been demonstrated by the bettered service and appropriations for the Grand Rapids postoffice, after they had been trying for them a long time. His campaign this fall was not for himself, but for the ticket. Everywhere he went friends were made, the party appreciating how he went into what seemed hopeless districts as cheerfully as to the sure ones. Forty speeches were made by him in thirty days, proving himself an eloquent pleader for protection, honest money, reciprocity, and all the tenets of the great party which is being called back into power. One term at Washington will put him alongside of Lodge, Wolcott, Dubois and the other leaders among the brainy young men in the U. S. senate. That class of men is needed there. The Michigan legislature can do no better than to confirm Gov. Rehn's wise selection, by electing Senator John Patton, Jr.

Death of Jacob Haller.

Death comes once again into the ranks of the business men of Ann Arbor. This time it is not an active business man, but one who was an expert in his line, as a watchmaker and jeweler, and stood at the head of this trade in the state.

Jacob Haller died Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock, at his home, after an illness of two weeks, with congestion of the lungs. He was feeling considerably better in the morning, but toward evening sank rapidly until death ensued.

Mr. Haller was born at Schwenninger, Wurtemberg, Germany. He came to America in 1854, and in 1858 he located in the jewelry business, in this city, on E. Huron st. He built the brick store, No. 22 E. Huron st., and conducted business therein for a number of years.

He took his son George into partnership after a time, and eventually retired from active business a number of years ago, being succeeded by his son George.

He leaves two brothers and three sisters in Germany, and one brother in Rochester, N. Y. The family here consists of four children, George, Martin and Miss Christine Haller, and Mrs. Ottmar Eberbach. There are thirteen grand children also, all of whom reside in the city. He, of the Daily Times force.

This death, though not entirely unexpected, yet was quite sudden, and removes from among us a man who at one time was active and influential in business circles.

At the World's Exposition in London 1891, Mr. Haller received several medals for superior workmanship, and watchmaker's tools which he had invented. At the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition he was also awarded medals for different things.

The funeral will take place from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Ottmar Eberbach on So. Fourth Ave., to-morrow at 2:30 p. m. The remains will be interred in the Forest Hill Cemetery in the family burial lot, Rev. Max Hein officiating.

Special Rates for the Columbian Organ Concert.

The presence of Gov. Rich and staff, Gen. Alger, ex-Senator Palmer and other notable state officials and people, at the dedicatory concert to be given here on Friday evening Dec. 14th, has made quite a demand for tickets throughout the state and the Columbian organ belonging to the state as it will as soon as paid for, gives musical people throughout the entire state a feeling that they would like to be present and see the magnificent instrument opened to the public.

A conference has been had with railroad people, and we are authorized to announce a special rate on the M. C. Ry and all its branches, and also on the T. A. A. Ry will be given. On the latter road a party of fifty or more will come down on a special train from Bay City and Saginaw, which will return immediately after the concert. A rate of one fare and one-third will be given from other points. On the M. C. parties from Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Detroit Creek, Albion, Jackson, Detroit and other points will be made up and through a rate has not yet been announced it is hoped a half-fare rate may be obtained.

This is good news, indeed, and gives a big boom to the greatest musical event that has ever taken place in the state.

The concert will be a state affair as it really should be, for the great organ will belong to the people of the state when it is completely paid for.

NO CREATION OF SPECIES.

If there be Then Nature is Trying to Antagonize Herself.

Prof. Steere discussed "The Effect of Environment Upon Living Organisms," before the University Bible class of the Methodist church yesterday noon. This was the second of the series of four that he is now delivering. His remarks yesterday were of considerable interest. He declared that all animals were essentially of the same composition, being made of the protoplasmic cell. He assailed the theory of creation of species from several points of view. If that theory be true then the physical world is working in antagonism to the world of life. The two parts of creation are out of harmony. Unless we accept the theory propounded by the evolutionists, that changes of environment are means toward effecting change in species, then the physical world is trying to tear down what the world of life builds up. This is scarcely to be believed. The professor referred to the pet argument of the upholders of the theory of separate creation of species, viz., that the Creator has marked off the distinction between species so closely that the hybrid, the offspring of species that have been inter-bred, is sterile, thus proving that the Creator purposely cut off the development of new species. He showed that in no less than eight cases of hybridism, among forty noticed in the British Museum, the offspring are fertile. Dr. Steere went further in refuting this stock argument and cited cases where the hybrids resulting from the interbreeding of two genera and the species have been fertile. He said that our domestic animals are almost all examples of this very same thing. Our cattle and our fowls and sheep are among the most fertile of animals and yet they are hybrids not only of species but of genera. Prof. Steere spoke interestingly of the effect of environment upon man, saying among other things that Americans, though descendants of the English, were so far separated from their parents in speech, manners and customs that our English fathers and mothers scarcely knew their children. He went further and demonstrated the effect of environment on the lower animals, taking the horse for an example. The many different forms that the horse has taken, according to the environment in which it has been obliged to develop, is proof, either that the two departments of nature are antagonistic, or that there is a process of evolution in nature. Prof. Steere prefers to take the latter horn of the dilemma.

The Bliss-Keeler Nuptials.

At noon Thursday was celebrated one of the pleasantest marriages that have occurred in Ann Arbor in many a day. It was the wedding of Mr. Fred L. Keeler, of Houghton, Mich. and Miss Bertina Bliss, of Ann Arbor. The bridegroom was a member of the class of '93 of the literary department of the University, and is at present the efficient principal of the Houghton high school. The bride was one of the best known of Ann Arbor young ladies, and a general favorite. The young couple start out in life followed by the best wishes of an unusually large number of friends. The ceremony was performed at noon at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. E. Bliss, of 93 S. Main st., Rev. J. W. Bradshaw being the officiating clergyman.

About twenty-five relatives and friends of the bride and groom were present. Immediately after the ceremony a bounteous wedding dinner was served after which Mr. and Mrs. Keeler left on the 2:12 Michigan Central train for their future home in Houghton. The high estimation in which the parties to the wedding were held was attested by the large number of useful and costly presents given. Among them was a hundred dollar bill from the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keeler, of Grass Lake. The following guests from out of the city were present: M. E. Keeler and family, of Grass Lake; Miss Clara Osborn, of Grass Lake; Misses Hattie and Lillie Osborn, of Manchester; Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hill, of Detroit;

WITH RED-HOT IRON.

Guilt or Innocence Was Thus Determined in Anglo-Saxon Times.

Prof. B. M. Thompson gave a very interesting lecture last evening in the Inland League course, on "Trial by Ordeal and by Battle." He did not attempt to trace the origin of the two customs but confined himself to a description of trials held according to each form of law. He said that men must be judged by the age in which they live. The age in which trial by ordeal and battle was in vogue, was one of superstition. They were resorted to as a means of discovering truth. The principal ordeals were by fire, and both hot and cold water. The criminal had to give bail after his arrest just as he does now. There were no witnesses. The matter of guilt or innocence was left entirely to Providence. There was a good deal of religious ceremony mixed with the trial. For three days before the trial he must take the Eucharist. The accused had to thrust his hand up to the wrist into the boiling water and then it was tied up in a cloth and if in three days the hand was not blistered the accused was innocent. If the hand was blistered, then the man was guilty. In case he had the iron ordeal to go through with, he must carry a piece of red-hot iron a distance of nine feet. Then the hand was tied up as in the case of the hot water ordeal and at the end of three days the blister would decide his fate. Another sort of ordeal was that of taking a piece of cheese and making the accused swallow it. If it went down all right he was innocent; if not he was both guilty and strangled to death. The ordeal was abolished in the thirteenth century.

The professor next turned his attentions to the trial by battle or by combat. This method of trial was introduced into England by William the Conqueror in 1065. Curious as it may seem, trial by battle remained a part of English jurisprudence until the year 1819. The last case of the statute being put into use was in the year 1817. There was always a complete legal form to be observed in the trial by battle. Then there was the exchange of gloves from which has come our present custom of shaking hands just before any pugilistic encounter. Then the ring was staked out and the accused and accuser went at it to fight it out. If the accused was defeated, he was adjudged guilty and was hanged on the spot, while a victory for him meant vindication of the charge. Prof. Thompson closed his lecture by giving several illustrations of the trial by battle.

The circuit court for the county of Washtenaw convened in regular term yesterday, the entire day being taken up with calling the calendar. The jury were on hand promptly this morning, and among their number was James B. Angell, president of the University, who proposes to serve which fact alone will make it a memorable term of court. There were no jury cases on this forenoon, but this afternoon there will be some for trial. The docket is a very long one.

The jury in the case of Frederick Marvin, the defaulting cashier of the defunct Third National bank of Detroit, disagreed, last Saturday, and were discharged. Politics played an important part in Marvin's transactions, most of the missing funds having been expended in an attempt on his part to obtain an election to the office of state treasurer. Some of the jury appeared to believe that several of the bank officers were as deep in the mud as Marvin was in the mire, consequently would not vote to convict. Marvin's fate, however, is a lesson to cashiers to keep out of politics.

Every place of any importance in the State, and some not quite so important, has its candidate for justice of the supreme court, and many of them are very able lawyers, too.

Edwin F. Doty, a veteran newspaper man, well known throughout the State some years ago, died yesterday at his home in Grand Rapids, age 70 years. His wife preceded him three weeks ago.

Some of the nations of the earth appear to think that Japan is fighting just for the fun of the thing, but that nation will probably convince even Secretary Gresham that she means business, before long.

When Japan gets through thrashing China, she will have become so proficient in the art of war that the "civilized" powers will think twice before venturing to try conclusions with that war-like little nation.

For the third time within a few years the Thread mills at Flint, have burned to the ground. Each time they have been rebuilt, better than before, but whether capitalists can be induced to face misfortune again, is a question.

If the Democrat had understood the reference of the Courier to the Detroit News as being a brilliant diamond in the rough, perhaps it would not have written as it did. The News probably understood the item as it was meant.

Paderewski's father, who died a couple of weeks ago, was 64 years old, but looked 80. He was made prematurely old by a seven year's imprisonment in Siberia. That is probably the reason why his son's hair was so animated, wild and crazy like.

A monument to the late James Lick was unveiled at San Francisco yesterday, amid imposing ceremonies. Mr. Lick was the man who built the Lick Observatory on Mt. Hamilton, and left several millions of dollars to found public schools and charitable institutions.

It is just possible that the last election has taught one lesson, and taught it thoroughly, that is, that it doesn't pay for any party to lose with another party. Mr. Barkworth lost many votes by trucking to the populists and gained precious few. And the populists, where are they? Not even Peters can tell you. Go ask the winds.

It cost the Czar of Russia $6,000,000 to be sick and he never got well. Evidently it would be an expensive luxury for the Czar to be sick often, and get well. The Czar's physicians must have a prescription rake-off arrangement with their druggist—like some doctors in this country, for instance.

Nov. 6th the republicans carried Hamilton county, O., in which Cincinnati, and all other kinds of sin are located, by 22,000 majority. Just two weeks later a special election for judge, was held in the same county, and the democrats turned out and carried the county by 3,500.—Adrian Press. Yes, sin got in its work at last.

Senator Kyle, of South Dakota, explains it by saying that, "The people are very impulsive and quick to condemn the party in power." Thirty-two years wasn't so awfully "quick" when the people had the republican party to deal with. The people were quick to discover that two years of democratic and populist power were about twenty-four months too much.

ARE WE A "GENTLE" NATION?

Loyal and level-headed Americans may find opportunity for honest and wholesome reflection in the jumping-jack political displays of the last ten or twelve years. It was a man commonly regarded as moderately wise who said "as in nothing is a gentleman better to be discerned from a vulgar person, so in nothing is a gentle nation better to be discerned from a mob than in this,—that their feelings are constant and just, results of due contemplation, and of equal thought." Now, irrespective of the truth of either republican or democratic principles, it may be truthfully said that the American nation has of late years been forming and changing its opinions in a manner that would throw this nation out of the category of "gentle" nations as proposed by Mr. Ruskin. While thoughtfulness and studiousness in public affairs are eminently desirable in any nation they are not necessarily synonymous with repeated, sudden and violent political changes. These recent revolutions in political sentiment in this country do not result from "due contemplation and equal thought." They seem on the other hand to be the result of spasmodic and unreasonable thinking. In fact, by its numerous political demonstrations, the American people has practically acknowledged that it has made a mistake. And the most discouraging feature of the matter is that there is no warrant against future sudden oscillations of the public brain. What is to be done to steady the political cerebrum? The diseased matter of the brain must be discarded. There should be some regulation or restriction of the contemplative organs. In other words the causes of our political lunacy must be eliminated. There are doubtless many causes. One of the chief ones is the too rapid assimilation by us of the foreign element. Through our naturalization and electoral franchise laws we make room in the national mind for the thought that is utterly rejected by the best nations and governments of Europe. It is partly, at least, by this means that the American people has of late years become visionary and uncertain in its political thought. It should go no farther. The national brain ought at once to be cleared up. To this end two policies should be instituted. Our legislators should tighten the immigration laws, and we should at the same time increase the requirements for exercising the electoral privilege. Therein lies American freedom from the reign of mob ideas—ideas that are founded on the momentary feelings of the unintelligent masses, not on the calm and meditative, reasoned and reasonable, conclusions of the competent and politically educated people.

ONE ITEM OF EXPENSE.

The addition of $100,000,000 to the national debt within ten months is a fair sample of a Free Trade "object lesson." It is "a condition" that confronts the people, not "a theory." This addition of debt during ten months of a Free Trade Administration is at the rate of $10,000,000 a month. It has cost the people $333,333 during each and every one of the 300 days in these ten months to pay for the privilege of threatening Protection. It has cost $13,900 every hour of the ten months; it cost over $230 every minute; it has cost the country almost $4 during every second of the ten months. This is only the cost to the people, as represented by the actual increase in the national debt in the sum of almost $4 during every second of the ten months; over $230 during every minute; $13,900 every hour, and $333,333 every day of that time. The cost of a course of lectures delivered by a Buffalo lawyer and a West Virginia college professor is certainly considerably more than it is worth and very much more than the present generation of people will ever pay again.

The New York Press tells why some people are refused life insurance: "Men who make application for insurance in considerable amounts—say for upward of $10,000—are not only very carefully examined by physicians appointed by the insurance companies, but during the period while their application is being examined, are kept under surveillance by a well organized detective service. Some of the reports which are made of a man's habits and mode of life, with, perhaps, some of his pet secrets, as made to the detective bureaus of the different companies, would prove mighty interesting reading. Of course such matters can never become public property, and, in fact, the records are destroyed as soon as the application is passed upon. This fact, which is not generally known, may explain much to solid citizens who, for some unknown reason, have had their applications postponed indefinitely. The insurance companies are entirely justified in employing such an instrument to learn the facts about their risk. Men who live rationally, like men who fill positions of trust, honestly, have nothing to fear from being watched."

ABOUT HOME PATRONAGE.

How the Merchants and Business Men View the Subject.

There is considerable feeling being expressed by local merchants and business men, both in Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti, over the fact that so many of our home people desert their home establishments when they want anything for themselves or their families, and go to Detroit or elsewhere to do their trading.

Every excursion to Detroit takes many thousands of dollars from these two cities.

A great many of the things purchased away from home could be bought here as cheaply, and in some instances more cheaply than Detroit merchants can sell them. The only excuse that can be offered is the one that every lady will give you: "The assortment is so much better there."

Did any one ever stop to think that if our home merchants could have all the trade that belongs to them they could afford to keep the same assortment that merchants in larger cities do? It is the demand that creates the supply.

But it is human nature to buy where one wants to, and it probably will always be done.

For instance, there are thousands and thousands of dollars invested in printing and book-binding establishments right here in Ann Arbor, and yet there are merchants even in the city who go outside for both printing and binding.

Money paid by the tax-payers of this city and county, hundreds of dollars of it, goes to Detroit and Kalamazoo firms for blank books and stationery that could be furnished by home establishments who have to contribute some of the taxes to help pay these foreign bills.

It doesn't seem to be exactly right, and yet this state of affairs will always exist. "Distance lends enchantment," you know, and it sounds so fine to say, "I purchased this in Detroit," or "Toledo or somewhere else, away from home."

Home merchants and their wares are so common, you know, and traveling men for outside establishments so convincing in their "arguments," that human nature can not withstand the temptation. So that there is little use of grumbling over what never will be changed, but "let the wide world wag as it will, we'll be gay and happy still!"

The Republican Column.

Table listing states and their corresponding values in the Republican Column. Includes Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming, Washington, New Jersey, Delaware, Rhode Island, Nebraska, South Dakota, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Kansas, California, Connecticut, West Virginia, Tennessee, Oregon, Indiana, Colorado, Minnesota, Vermont, Maine, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Iowa, Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania.

Buried at the base of this magnificent column is what was once the "Solid South" and Missouri. The south, thank heaven, solid no longer; deserted by Tennessee, abandoned by Delaware, and with its Congressional delegation split and riven with Republican and Populist representatives in almost every state. The free trade pitcher has been carried once too often to the spoils well, and its fragments now lie with its West Virginia apostle at the base of the great Republican monument to the honor of the national American principle of protection to American industries and prosperity.—Chicago Journal.

More republicans were elected to Congress in the solid south than there were democrats elected to Congress in the North. In the present House there are 6 southern republicans—two from Tennessee and one from South Carolina, North Carolina, Kentucky and Missouri. In the next House there will be 34, hailing from 9 states. In the present House there are 98 democrats from the north. In the next there will be 14. The republicans have gained 28 in the south. The democrats have lost 84 in the north. Heretofore it has been a solid south and a divided north. It has taken less than two years of democracy and free trade legislation to reverse the conditions. It used to be said that Grover Cleveland was "bigger than his party." Considering how little there is left of it, the statement may now be accepted as actually true.—Cedar Springs Clipper.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

New York, November 24, 1894. As is usual at this time of the year, business in Wall st. is dull and drooping. The flush of speculative interest that generally appears on the return of operators from summer recreation has exhausted itself, and there is little disposition to undertake new ventures on the near approach of the season of holiday and of annual settlements. The present is a good time for buying in preparation for the usual New Year's rise, and therefore even the "bulls" are not unwilling to see prices easy.

The Administration is understood to have it in contemplation to recommend a broad scheme of reconstruction of our currency system, its main points being the retirement of the government legal tender paper and its substitution by a more elastic system of bank issues than that which now exists. There is perhaps no great division of opinion about the importance of some judicious revision of our monetary arrangements, and when it is all accomplished, the results may prove very beneficial to the country at large. But this prospect introduces another new element of change; and with change comes unsettlement and postponements about matters that anxiously await action and accomplishment; and not a few take it grumblingly that, having got off the tariff gridiron, we should now be pitched upon the hot coals of currency reform. This new source of legislative uncertainty is one of the influences that is now acting unfavorably upon the stock market, and it must be assigned as one of the causes of the weakness of prices during the past week.

Then, again, some dissatisfaction is felt that, while there is no doubt about the loan being subscribed for abundantly in one form of money or another, yet there is no assurance that the 50 millions now being borrowed will suffice either to maintain the reserve at the legal minimum or to provide for the deficiencies of revenue. The rent in the treasury finances is only patched, not repaired in such a way as to hold good. When congress reassembles this whole matter must come up and, with so many diverse and diverse interests concerned in it, there is no foreseeing by what means the public finances will be relieved of their present sources of derangement. It is felt on all sides that the trouble is no longer one of real difficulty in the handling, and that the hand of a strong and resourceful financier could readily put affairs into normal shape and end the vague distrust that is now holding every form of enterprise in arrest. But such a hand seems lacking.

It seems impossible that this timidity and hesitation of management can much longer keep affairs in their present uncertainty. The immediate problem is now to fill up the treasury gold reserve and at the same time secure for the government a gold form of income sufficient to keep the reserve good under any contingencies. There should be no really serious difficulties in the way of solving this question. The supply of gold in the country is many times over what the problem calls for. It is within reach of availability for the purposes of the treasury; and it is within the power of the banks to make it available sufficiently for the purpose contemplated. The banks could now afford to pay out a considerable amount of gold to importers for customs duties; and if the treasury would back them in so doing by returning them as much gold as possible through the clearing house, the dead lock would be broken and affairs would again run in normal grooves. The present indications are that matters are tending towards some such simple method of adjustment; and on that account we hope to see an early end of the present derangements without much dependence on congressional bungling. When that comes, a marked and real recovery of confidence may be looked for, and "the good times coming" of the "bulls" will be here.

HENRY CLEWS.

Are the nations of the earth, the civilized nations of the world, going to sit idly down and enter no protest even, against the fearful atrocities committed in Armenia by Turkish troops? Are the nations asleep? Do they fear to speak out in this matter? Is it possible that in these closing years of the 19th century such fearful massacres can take place almost in the heart of Europe, and no civilized people raise a finger of warning, even?

Or isn't it time to speak yet? Or what is the matter?

A Reverie.

How often do we see men held back for the time by the glibness of envious tongues that are not over sensitive respecting the truth, and are active in repeating this or that story or rumor derogatory of some person they desire to keep from going ahead in this race of life.

Something of the sort forms a sad chapter in the experience of almost every one.

Supposing you take a dozen men and place them in the middle of the road of progress.

They will not keep together.

Some will stay right where they are put, others will fall back and the few will advance, accumulate money, secure honors and would always be influential, people were it not for the fact that some of the men who started in the race with them invariably are the first to charge, selfishness and dishonesty.

Acting as a brake they may check progress for a while. But public opinion steps in after a time and says: "Gentlemen, this was a fair field and a free, unhandicapped race. If you were outclassed that was your misfortune. Ring the bell, there is no "shut-out" flag, the race goes on and merit wins."

Kalamazoo Telegraph: To the business interests of the nation this magnificent republican triumph means much. It means that the patriotic sense of the people is returning; that the tariff and the silver question will hereafter be handled in a business-like manner, all of which will tend to restore confidence. The nation has been saved by the returning good sense of the people. Popular government has again triumphed.

A PLUCKY WOMAN.

AND WHAT SHE WAS ABLE TO ACCOMPLISH.

She and Her Daughter Have a Remarkable Experience.

She Was a Hard Working Person and This Will Interest All Workers.

All kinds of diseases and weaknesses leave their marks on the system. It is very easy for the stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys to become deranged, and when they do, the person soon feels tired, languid, weak, low-spirited and gloomy.

The nerves become weak, and insanity or paralysis may follow. The blood gets bad, there is coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, constipation, the complexion grows sallow and life looks dark. In all months complaining of any of these troubles will read with wonder the following letter from Mrs. James Roake, a well-known lady living at 145 Washington Street, Peekskill, N. Y.:

"About fifteen years ago I was taken very sick. After seven months I got over that, but have never been well since. I have suffered terribly with pains in the chest, back, kidneys and head. There was a disagreeable feeling in the eyes and I would be very sick in the morning.

"My mind was always gloomy and I felt very low spirited. I had terrible numb spells and would have to be rubbed some time before I could get around. Some of those numb spells were so severe my friends thought I would not recover from them.

"I tried doctors and medicines but got no better. Finally I began the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, as my husband had been most miraculously cured by it. After using it a short time there was a most wonderful improvement.

"I continued to steadily gain in every respect until I was cured of all these terrible ailments. This wonderful medicine had now cured my husband and myself of the most fearful suffering, but this was not all. I know want to tell about my little girl.

"She has never been well since she was born. No doctors have known just what ailed her. She was out of her mind most of the time and had constant pain in her side. She had spasms continually, from six to seven a month.

"She is the smallest child for her age that can be found. All medicines could do nothing for her until I gave her Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and then she was cured in a short time. I cannot say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine, it has done so much for me and my family. I heartily advise everybody to take it.

"If you have any of these complaints or for any reason don't feel just as well as you want to, take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and you will be made well and strong. It positively cures all such complaints.

All physicians recommend it, as it is the discovery and prescription of the most successful specialists in curing nervous and chronic diseases. Doctor Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York. He can be consulted, free, personally or by letter.

The Naval Reserve.

Our naval reserve has been commended for its handiness at the guns and the more peculiarly fighting side of the profession, but is pronounced deficient in seamanship. But, after all, what is seamanship on a modern steamer? Since the days that the cloud of sail has given way to the cloud of smoke the sailor is mainly a slave to the holy-stone and brass polish.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

Miss Emma Clessler, of Bridge-water, is visiting Ann Arbor friends. Lima taxes aggregate $6,301.97 this year, which is $488.59 more than in 1893.

Ernest Walsh, assistant cashier of Chelsea savings bank, has gone to Denver, Col., for his health.

Miss Amanda Grossman, of Manchester, has been visiting friends in Ann Arbor this week.

Michael Schwickerath and Miss Mary E. Hines, both of Chelsea, were united in marriage last Wednesday evening.

The stockholders of the Dexter Savings Bank will hold their annual meeting on Tuesday, Dec. 11.

Chelsea common council has to consider a bill of $2,000 from Mrs. Carrie Oesterle. The sidewalk came up and hit her.

Chelsea Methodists aren't so sure whether they want women in the general conference or not. The vote down there stood only 22 to 20 in favor of the idea.

Prof. Geo. B. Hodge is in Kansas, where he is holding interesting meetings connected with the work of the Y. M. C. A.—Ypsilanti. Howin the world can you spare him?

C. M. Blackmer and Archy Gauntlett are candidates for appointments to the office of deputy sheriff at Milan.—Saline Observer. Might as well draw cuts, boys.

Miss V. Nichols, of Ypsilanti, got off a Michigan Central train "wrong end to" a little while ago, and now the company has to pay $100 to get her right side up again.

Benjamin Wuans, an old resident of Chelsea, died at his home on Friday, Nov. 23, at the age of 63 years. He came to Michigan in 1862 and settled on a farm in Sharon. A wife and six children survive him.

Bill Jones' bull-dog and Joe Pierce's calf had a set-to the other day. Jones took a hand in the war and shot his dog-ship. Now Justice Childs steps in and says that Jones must contribute $10 toward Pierce's incidental expenses.

The bell and clock of the high school tower is being placed in position. It will be a great improvement on the old clock, as it will have illuminated dials.—Ypsilanti. Yes, it will be very handy for those Greeks that go home (hic) after their watch is run down.

Manchester has 349 pupils in her public schools. One hundred and sixty-eight are boys and one hundred and eighty-one are girls. Boys, aren't you a little bit ashamed to let the girls get ahead of you in this way.

Supervisor Osborn, of Sharon, had a hard cold, "ached all over," got scared, and sent for the doctor to cure him of small pox. And then he didn't even break out. Of course, Osborn was disappointed after getting his mind all made up for something big.

Another $2,500 Verdict.

During the past week the case of Kate L. Moore vs. Wilfred B. Thompson, has been on trial, for the third time, in the Livingston circuit. Saturday it was completed and given to the jury, which, after being out about one hour, returned a verdict for Miss Moore of $2,500.

The case was taken to the Livingston circuit from the Washtenaw county circuit, and had been on trial all the week. The case has been tried twice in the Washtenaw circuit. In the first, the jury disagreed, next a verdict of $2,500 was secured. It was reversed in the supreme court and sent to Howell for a new trial.

The action upon which the trial was based occurred Feb. 25, 1888. Mrs. Moore was called into Dr. Jas. C. Wood's office and accused before the defendant, Thompson, and another man, Mr. Halleck, now dead, of stealing certain articles from Mrs. Waldron, whom she had cared for as a professional nurse, Mrs. Waldron being a sister of Mr. Thompson. Mrs. Moore protested her innocence, but was kept there several hours against her will. She was then taken in a bus and driven home and her rooms searched, one of the men, Mrs. Moore claims, representing himself as an officer. In a few days the articles were found in the Waldron house on the farm, showing Mrs. Moore had nothing to do with them. Hence the charge of imprisonment and slander.

The display of eminent lawyers was unusual. For the prosecution appeared Sawyer & Knowlton, Mr. Lehman, of Ann Arbor, and L. E. Howlett, of Howell. For the defense were Henry C. Waldron, B. M. Thompson, of Ann Arbor, and L. C. Montague, W. P. Van-Winkle and D. Shields, of Verdell. The case was well tried, and the verdict gave satisfaction to Mrs. Moore, her friends and attorneys.

We understand that the case has been settled, the defendants paying Mrs. Moore's attorneys the sum of $2,000 and the supreme court costs. The people will be glad to know that there is not another trial of it to go through, at least.

WHAT MASONRY IS.

Judge McGrath Gives a Beautiful Illustration of What Masonry and the Eastern Star Mean.

At the Masonic Temple dedication at Kalamazoo, on Wednesday, Nov. 14th, Past Grand Master J. W. McGrath, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of this state, delivered the principal address. Among the numerous word pictures during the address was the following:

I came across the other day this beautiful reminiscence of Parepa Rosa:

"Satisfied with praise, Parepa Rosa drew her fur rap around her shoulders and stepping from the private entrance of the Grand, was about to enter her carriage, when, 'Please, mi ladi, in low, pleading accents, arrested her attention. It was only the shrunken, misshapen form of little Elfin, the Italian street singer, with his old violin under his arm; but the face upturned in the gaslight, though pale and pinched, was as delicately cut as a cameo, while the eager, wistful light in the great brilliant eyes, the quiver of entreaty in soft Italian voice, held her for a moment against her escort's endeavor to save her the annoyance of hearing a beggar's plea.

"Well!" said the great singer, half impatient, yet full of pity. "Would mi ladi please, in sweet, broken English, and the slender brown hands of the dwarf held up a fragrant white lily, with a crystal drop in its golden heart.

"Do you mean this lovely flower for me?" A passionate gesture was her answer. Taking the flower Parepa Rosa bent her stately head. "You heard me sing?"

"Mi ladi, I hid under the stair. 'Twas yesterday I heard the voice. Oh, mi ladi, mi ladi, I could die!" The words came brokenly from quivering lips, passionately in earnest. The loud voice of the world she had just left had never shown Parepa Rosa the power of her grand voice as she saw it now in these soft, dark eyes aflame, and in the sobbing, broken words. "Mi ladi, oh! mi ladi—I could die."

"Child," and her voice trembled, "meet me here to-morrow at 5, and holding the lily caressingly to her cheek, she stepped into her carriage and was driven away.

It was Parepa Rosa's last night. In a box near the stage sat little Elfin, like one entranced. Grandly the clear voice swelled its triumphant chords and rang amid arches with unearthly power and sweetness. The slight frame of the boy swayed and shook, and a look so wrapt, so intense, came on his face, you knew his very heart was set free. Then the wondrous voice thrilled softly, like the faint sound of bugles in the early morn; again its sweetness stole over you like the distant chiming of vesper bells. Encore after encore followed. The curtain rolled up for the last time, and as simply as possible the manager told the audience of last night's incident and announced that Parepa Rosa's farewell to them would be the simple ballad warbled many a bitter day through the city streets by little Elfin, the Italian musician.

Long and prolonged was the applause, and at the first pause, sweeping in with royal grace came our queen of song. At her breast was the fragrant lily. Queen too, by right of her beautiful, unstained womanhood, as well as by the power of her sublime voice, she stood a moment, then sang clearly and softly the ballad with its refrain, 'Farewell, sweet land.' Accompanying her came the low, sweet wail of little Elfin's violin. There was silence in that great house at the close, then a shout went up that shook the mighty pillars.

To-day little Elfin is great and famous and they call him to play before princesses. Parepa Rosa! God called thee in thy perfect womanhood, but thy voice lives in our hearts, and at the last great day, it shall be written in shining letters on thy name: 'Inasmuch as ye did it unto the least of these, ye did it unto me.'

How little Parepa Rosa did, yet how much was done!

That act of hers was as clearly Masonic as though she had been admitted to all the mysteries of the Eastern Star; it was as purely Christian as though she had touched the hem of the Master's garment.

John Hall has said, "kind words, kind looks, kind acts and warm hand shakes, these are the secondary means of grace when men are in trouble and are fighting their unseen battle."

What a fortune lies in a word of sympathy or encouragement; the world is full of little "Elfins," who need sympathy, encouragement, recognition, the giving of which will not impoverish but would enrich the giver.

One of the loveliest scenes in nature one which sets at defiance the artist's pencil, is that of a babe taking its first lesson in the art of walking; mother, father, sisters, brothers and friends surround him; whose very presence inspires confidence. He is conscious and proud of his achievements; they are anxious for his progress and solicitous for his safety; their hands in voluntary perhaps, are stretched out to protect him; every movement is watched and guarded. Methinks that the best wish that could be expressed for that child would be, that along life's journey there might be as anxious eyes upon him, as willing hands outstretched for his protection.

We never outgrow the necessity for the interest of others in our welfare. How many bumps could be saved, how many shoals avoided, how many dangers averted, how many human beings saved from wreck and disaster, if loving anxious eyes were stretched out all along the rough and rugged pathway of life to keep us from falling.

We have myriads of churches and numberless creeds in the world, and have any amount of sympathy which shed tears over the trials and sufferings of an imaginary heroine in a novel, or prays for the relief of the heathen in India or Japan, but pays no heed to the poor widowed washer-woman across the street, or the poor laborer out of work with his family of six children around the corner. The great need of the times is practical sympathy between all classes of society; more humanity; more men like Wilberforce, Howard and Cooper; more women like Mrs. Nightingale or Parepa Rosa; more tenderness; more love; more practical Christianity.

The general admission to the Frieze Memorial Concert, without reserved seat is $1. The boards will be closed Friday afternoon, Dec. 13, at 5 o'clock. Gov. Rich and wife, together with the governor's entire military staff, will be present. There will also be a large number of Detroit people here, and many from other cities. Gov. Rich had to decline two other invitations to be present on this occasion, but the great organ brought him. The arrangements are being rapidly perfected, and the occasion will certainly be the great event of the year.

A copy of the Wichita, Kas., Daily Eagle reaches us with a reminder that Charlie Jones is still wide awake in that western city. In a long account of a magnificent banquet given by the Scottish Rite Masons of that place, occurs this sentence: "Charles M. Jones, one of the brightest lights in Scottish Rite Masonry, in this section of the country, and one of the most zealous supporters of the Masonic order in this city, was the toast master, and as such he distinguished himself in the happy manner with which he presented the various toasts and introduced the speakers."

Through the untiring efforts of the ladies of Ypsilanti, headed by Mrs. Judge Babbitt, the sum of $1,000 has been raised by them to secure a like sum offered by Mrs. Starkweather of that place, with which to erect a soldiers' monument. The ladies now have a certificate of deposit calling for $2,000, and are still at work for more, so that the monument, when it shall be erected, will be somewhat commensurate with the sacrifices made by the brave and noble men who went at their country's call, and cemented this union together with their blood. It would be very much to the credit of the patriotism of Ann Arbor people, could they do a similar thing. If the fathers, husbands, brothers and lovers of 1861 could give their lives for their country, surely the people of to-day ought willingly to give of their abundance to erect a monument in the very heart of the city, telling to all the generations that come of that heroic sacrifice. There are many Ann Arbor boys sleeping in unknown graves on southern battle fields. Shall the valor of their deeds, the memory of their heroism perish from among us, or only be handed down from lip to lip through all these years to come? Or will some brave, country-loving heart be moved to take the lead in this matter, and not weary in the work until a noble monument be raised here to the memory of Ann Arbor's dead heroes?

St. Jo. is happy. Berrien Springs is disconsolate. Jo. has the county seat in his lap; Berrien has lost it, after having possessed it for many years. The removal was made Saturday, and no one mobbed. We can't help but sympathize with the unfortunate Berrien Springs, though for convenience St. Jo. is probably the best place for a majority of the people of Berrien county.

LEAVES ITS MARK

—every one of the painful irregularities and weaknesses that prey upon women. They fade the face, waste the figure, ruin the temper, wither you up, make you old before your time. Get well. That's the way to look well. Cure the disorders and ailments that beset you, with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength. It's a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nerve, imparting vigor and strength to the entire system.

Mrs. Anna Ulrich, of Elm Creek, Buffalo Co., N. Dak., writes: "I enjoy good health thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I was under doctors' care for two years with womb disease, and gradually wasting in strength all the time. I was so weak that I could sit up in bed only a few moments, for two years. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and by the time I had taken one-half dozen bottles I was up and going wherever I pleased, and have had good health and been very strong ever since—that was two years and a half ago."

Harper's Magazine

THE SIMPLETONS, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December number, 1894, and continued to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and THE SIMPLETONS may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked Trilby—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the PERSONAL RECOLLECTIONS OF JOAN OF ARC, by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular present the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on CHARLESTON AND THE CAROLINAS, the first of series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empire. The next volume of HARPER'S MAGAZINE will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict present life there. JULIAN RALPH will prepare for the magazine a series of eight stories depicting typical phases of Chinese Life and Manners. Besides the long stories there will begin in the January number the first chapter of a Three-Part Novellette, by RICHARD HARDING DAVIS—the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the magazine.

Send for Illustrated Prospectus. The volumes of the Magazine begin with the Number for June and December of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the Number current at the time of receipt of order. Cloth case for binding, 50 cents each—by mail, postpaid. Title-page and Index sent on application. Remittances should be made by Post-office Money Order or Draft, to avoid chance of loss. Harper's Weekly

HARPER'S WEEKLY pictorial history of our times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately and exhaustively in illustration and descriptive text of the highest order.

The manner in which, during 1894, it has treated the Chicago Railway Strikes and the China-Japanese War, are examples of its almost boundless resources. JULIAN RALPH, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there he joined by G. D. WILSON, the well-known American artist, and for many years resident in Japan, who has been engaged to co-operate with Mr. RALPH in sending to HARPER'S WEEKLY exclusive information and illustration.

During 1895 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, and also in special articles by the highest authorities in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and powerful and and caustic political cartoons, will continue to be characteristic features. This Busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department.

FICTIONS. There will be two powerful serials, both handsomely illustrated—The Red Cockade, a stirring romance of olden days by STANLEY J. WEYMAN, and a novel of New York, entitled The Son of His Father, by BRANDER MATHEWS—several novelettes, and many short stories by popular writers.

Send for Illustrated Prospectus. The Volumes of the WEEKLY begin with the first Number for January of each year. When no time is mentioned, subscriptions will begin with the Number current at time of receipt of order.

Cloth Cases for each volume, suitable for binding, will be sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of $1.00 each. Title-page and Index sent on application.

Mr. and Mrs. Angell will be "At Home" after Feb. 20th, at 5712 Monroe ave. Chicago, Ill.

The Ethical League of the M. E. church is to organize a glee club of male voices, and on Saturday evening Prof. Stanley will select the singers from those who make application for membership therein. It is understood that the League is to establish a lecture course to be confined to places in the immediate vicinity of Ann Arbor, and the glee club will accompany the lecturer each evening to enliven the meeting and make it more attractive.

One of the B. Y. P. U's informs us that at their social Friday night in the Baptist church parlors, those who come will be furnished with chicken pie, pumpkin pie, pie-plant pie, squash pie, apple pie, custard pie, peach pie, and pie, pie, pie, of all known kinds and descriptions, and many that have never been known or described. The only way to get this pie is to go after it.

The Delta Sigma Nu fraternity of the high school gave a very delightful party last Wednesday evening at Granger's hall. About 30 couples were present. The music, which was furnished by L. Jones, was very fine, and the two-step which he wrote for the fraternity made a great hit. The patronesses were Mrs. W. Tilton, Mrs. E. B. Hall, Mrs. W. G. Doty and Mrs. A. R. Seavey. The program consisted of 20 regulars and ten extras.

Wednesday last at 7 o'clock, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Dowdigan, No. 38 Williams st., Miss Mary Dowdigan was united in marriage with Mr. Oliver Carson, of Indianapolis, Ind. The immediate family only were present. The groom is a graduate here, law '93, and is now practicing his profession at his home. The bride has many friends in this city who will wish her a long and useful life. The couple left on the early train for Toledo.

The Adrian Press makes this angelic remark: "President Angell, has, in some manner been drawn as a juror in the Washtenaw circuit court. He proposes to serve, too. About the first question some lawyer will ask will be 'do you read the newspapers?' And it is ink bottles against a foot ball, that there'll be no Angels on any jury this term. As he is an LL. D., i. e. Doctor of Laws, he may be able to do a little something for some of the sick laws passed by the last legislature."

This pretty hard item is going the rounds of the press: "One of the curiosities of Brazil is a tree whose wood and bark contain so much silica that they are used by potters. Both wood and bark are burned in equal proportions with clay, producing a very superior ware. The trees grow to the height of 100 feet, but do not exceed a foot in diameter. The fresh bark cuts like sandstone, and when dried is brittle and hard." Perhaps Bro. Smith, of the Argus, has a piece of that bark to continually rub that pencil of his on—he keeps it so sharp all the time.

Next Monday evening, at the Inland League, will be given up to the ladies, who will have entire charge of the programme. There will be three twenty minute speeches by Mrs. J. B. Angell, Mrs. J. N. Martin and Mrs. Elsie Jones Cooley. Mrs. Angell will speak on the customs of the Chinese, especially of their women. Mrs. Martin will give an account of her summer's outing in the west. Mrs. Elsie Jones Cooley will talk about Italy. A special musical programme will be prepared for the evening.

Waiter! Beefsteak, Ham and Eggs, for One.

"God gave us meat, but the devil sent us cooks," is a trite saying. From bad cooking, fast eating and overeating, comes a whole train of diseases—indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, catarrh of the stomach, headache, dizziness, and the like. God also gave a brainy man, who compounded the "Golden Medical Discovery," a corrective of all the ills resulting from overeating and bad blood. Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, has furnished in the "Discovery," a great desideratum in America, where everybody are in such a hurry to make money, they have no time to eat, and scarcely any time to live. It invigorates the liver, cleanses the blood and tones up the system.

Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Book of particulars 10 cents in stamps, mailed sealed in plain envelope. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 773 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

There is to be an important business meeting of the Humane Society, at the M. E. church, Sunday, Dec. 9th, at 3 p. m. Every member is urged to be present and bring any number of friends.

Thanksgiving foot ball games resulted as follows: Chicago A. A. 4; Dartmouth College, 0; Adelbert College, 24; Case Scientific School, 0; Ohio State University, 20; Kenyon College, 4; Purdue, 28; DePauw, 0; University of Wisconsin, 30; Milwaukee A. A., 0; University of Virginia, 34; University of North Carolina, 0; Nebraska University, 36; Iowa, 0.

Cornell and Lehigh had a hard struggle on Thanksgiving Day. It resulted in a technical victory for Cornell by the score of 10 to 6. The game ended, however in a dispute. A questionable touchdown was made by the Cornell men and Lehigh said it was no score. When the referee said that the score belonged to Cornell, the Lehigh men left the field and the game went to Cornell.

On Tuesday evening a complimentary dinner was tendered Dr. Donald McLean, at the Russell House, Detroit, by the physicians of that city and the state. The occasion was the election of the Doctor as president of the American Medical Association. There were present from this city, Drs. V. C. Vaughan, I. C. Wessinger, C. B. Nanerode and C. Georg. The Doctor formerly filled the chair of surgery in the University.

A largely attended meeting was held Saturday in the parlors of the Russell house Detroit, relative to the dedicatory concert of Dec. 14. President Angell was present and spoke of the matter of the dedication and stated the financial situation. Considerable interest was aroused among those present. John R. Russel was appointed chairman of a committee on transportation. Charles Buncher was made chairman of a committee on the sale of tickets. He at once appointed the following gentlemen to serve with him: Levi L. Barbour, James E. Scripps, R. H. Fyfe, E. S. Sherrill, Bryant Walker, J. R. McLaughlin, E. T. Tappet, Frederick K. Stearns, William H. Wells and E. W. Pendleton. A luncheon will be provided for the Detroit visitors, who will probably come down by special train and return late in the evening.

Cannot Say Enough IN Praise of Hood's

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: 'Gentlemen:—I feel that I cannot write words which will speak highly enough of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I can tell my friends what it did for me a good deal better than I can write it. But I will simply state that it cured me of a very severe case of catarrh after the physicians failed to help me. It also cured my husband of rheumatism of serious nature a year ago. Four bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla effected a cure. A Perfect Cure In his case, I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best spring medicine that can be found. We have used it in our family five years, and would not do without it. I am very thankful to you Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures for the blessing this medicine has been to us. Every bottle is worth its weight in gold.' Mrs. J. H. GUINAN, 270 Washburn Ave., Detroit, Mich. Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient, yet easy in action. Sold by all druggists. 2c.

THE WORM TURNED

WESLEY STERRITT was a thrifty soul and enterprising. In early youth he was a crossroads genius. No casual observer would ever suspect him of shrewdness—a fact which he turned to his own advantage in many a bargain—but Wesley had, as though nature provided special compensation for the shortcomings of personal attractions, a peculiar indifference as to externalities, whether his own or those of other people. He was one of those people who could swap a bushel of corn for a bushel of corn and profit by the transaction, maintaining a reputation for fair measure and inch-for-inch honesty. He removed at 16 from Flat Rock to Shiloh. He was rapidly advanced to $40 a month and then to a partnership in a dry goods store. He soon became sole owner of the business. He added a line of school books and coffins, flourished for ten or twelve months, insured everything and got burned out. He went to Fairburn. He flourished, of course. He expanded, as it were, to the limit of his opportunities. His enterprise was a revelation to his competitors. He had toys for Christmas, Valentines for the 14th of February, flags for the Fourth of July. There were rumors that he had sold whisky—very profitable that, because very risky, the town and county being dry—but the grand jury never did anything with it; and Wesley continued to prosper. He attended church and Sunday-school regularly, ingratiating himself to a degree with the denomination that had most adherents in the neighborhood. Eventually he began speculating in cotton. He sent mysterious telegrams in cyphers and received equally mysterious answers. The telegraph operator told all about it, confidentially. The rumor was speedily corroborated, as it could be in none but a small town where everybody knows everybody else and everybody else's business. Fairburn held its breath a while—the expression is semi-figurative of course—in expectation of a catastrophe, the sudden annihilation of Wesley Sterritt. The negroes who heard the white folks whispering about it, looked for the earth to open up and literally swallow him up. There was no financial crash, no crack of doom, no sensation of any sort. The man simply continued to prosper. The town rubbed its eyes and looked again, to be certain Wesley was still there, and then deliberately settled down to the conviction that he was a great financier—a man who could hold his own in conflict with the money kings in Wall street. He came to be regarded as an oracle in the matter of speculative investments. No list of trustees or directors could be complete without his name. He was offered the mayoralty and declined the honor. His store burned up, fully insured—a fact which some envious people and the insurance adjuster, referring to the similar experience in Shiloh, made a suggestive coincidence—but Wesley collected the money and removed to Atlanta. He started a business in Atlanta. He was amply successful. He was dissatisfied. One evening, after a good day's business, he went home in a thoughtful, silent mood. He had little appetite for supper. His wife—yes, indeed, he had a wife. It is strange how naturally one who knew Wesley Sterritt at this time might, in telling the story of his life, forget to mention the existence of a Mrs. Sterritt, except her existence to be mentioned in that connection. Even in the account given by her old neighbors of the marriage—the one time in her life when she said "I will"—she was made subordinate and incidental to the consideration of a grist mill, which Wesley was commonly said to have married, the wife passing as a sort of incumbrance upon the property. Poor woman! Her identity, except the mechanical part of it, had faded away into that of her husband—her mentality, if that isn't itself too positive a term, bore to his the relation of a shadow to substance. She acquiesced, always acquiesced, simply acquiesced in what he said and did.

"YOU MUST GO NOW, WESLEY."

"Martha," said he abruptly, when she had finished with the dishes and began with her knitting as usual, "I'm going to buy that lot I was talking about yesterday—the brick bo'd-in'-house place 'jini'n' the church." Mrs. Sterritt was vaguely startled and suspicious. He never made her a confidant in his affairs, and now talked as though it especially concerned her. He even looked as if he expected her to make a reply.

"He's erebleged to sell—the fellow I war talkin' to in the sto' when you was thar yistiddy," he continued, presently. "I kin git it fer $22,000 cash. It's wuth easy a time and half that; easy."

Mrs. Sterritt continued her knitting in silence, never once looking up. The indications, she knew, were ominous.

"I've got, say, $14,000 of that. My credit is good, but not good enough, Martha."

Wesley looked closely at her face. She fumbled a bit at her knitting.

"I can't be burned out again. I must try something else. I must fail. I must put that lot in yo' name."

He explained the scheme in detail. She listened without comment until he had finished. Then she folded up the knitting and said quietly:

"That's stealin'. I won't."

Wesley's face crimsoned. He was equally amazed and angry. She astonished him further before he could find words for his wrath by asking sternly:

"Is what they say about them fires o' yo' n'a fact, Wesley?"

He answered with an oath. His face was pale now and his fists were clenched. He controlled himself with an effort, and then said slowly:

"If you won't, she will; I'll put the lot in Dory Turner's name, an' you— Glad enough she'd be. Now, Miss Righteous, will the lot be in yo' name or her'n?"

He saw her flush at the mention of Dora Turner's name. Her head and shoulders drooped for an instant as though she had been dazed by a blow. He had thought it useless to say as much as he had intended to say, so confident was he that she would submit. He asked triumphantly:

"Yo' name or Dory Turner's?"

"Mine," she answered.

She obeyed implicitly after that, signing papers as he directed. The fraud was consummated. Outraged creditors attacked the title, but unsuccessfully. The deed was good. Wesley Sterritt owned property in his wife's name, worth more than $30,000. He calculated that, all things considered, he had done well in business. He had only to sell the lot after a while and begin again, probably in Nashville or Louisville, with a cash capital which it would have taken years to acquire in legitimate business. Meanwhile the house was filled with boarders, the property was paying good interest. He could afford to wait, to look about leisurely for a purchaser and for an opportunity to locate elsewhere. He went home with his wife from the court house on the day of the final decision.

"Is it all over?" she asked.

"All over. It's paid for, too."

He laughed at his own wit, and laughed at her puzzled, curious expression.

"All over," she repeated thoughtfully.

"May I ask?" he grinned, as the new idea occurred to him, "what you propose to do with yo' property?"

"Yes," she said quietly. "I propose to keep it, Wesley."

"You're comin' out," he said, in mock encouragement, noting the aptness with which she matched his grim humor. "An' what, may I ask, do you propose to do with me?"

"You must git out, Wesley."

"When?"

"To-day. Yes, I'll keep the place. I'll pay back what you stole an' keep the place."

Then the suspicion, and instantly the certainty, got into Wesley Sterritt's head that the woman was in earnest—that she was crazy and would do exactly what she said. Cold perspiration came out in beads upon his face. He pleaded as he never pleaded before. Mrs. Sterritt was inexorable, and answered simply:

"You must go, Wesley."

"Ain't my credit good for board, Martha?"

"Mebbe—with Dory Turner."

There was no answer for that. He looked to see that the window curtains shut off the view from the outside, and then got upon his knees.

"Martha," he whined, "Martha—"

"Wesley," she said decisively, "you must go now—go right away."

That was ten or twelve years ago. Mrs. Sterritt still keeps the boarding-house. She has paid off what Wesley stole, every cent of it, with interest. At long intervals there reappears in Atlanta a homeless sot, the meekest of men, who goes there and asks for Mrs. Sterritt. She gives him a meal in the kitchen, and says when he has finished it:

"You must go now, Wesley."

DON'TS OF DRESS.

Don't hold up silks and display rags. Don't wear a sailor hat with a silk dress. Don't use pins where stitches would do. Don't wear striped material if you are tall. Don't wear tan shoes if you have big feet. Don't wear a white petticoat unless it is white. Don't dress more fashionably than becomingly. Don't imagine that beauty will atone for untidiness. Don't buy common boots—they are not economical. Don't trim good material with common trimmings. Don't wear big sleeves and big hats if you are short. Don't expect great bargains to turn out great savings. Don't jump into your clothes and expect to look dressed. Don't dress your head at the expense of your hands and feet. Don't wear feathers in your hat and patches on your boots. Don't achieve the grotesque while attempting the original. Don't pinch your waist. Fat, like murder, will out—somewhere. Don't forget that dress was made for woman, not woman for dress. Don't put powder on your cheeks without looking in the glass afterward. Don't forget that although veils are becoming to most faces, feet veiled in lace stockings do not look well in the street. Don't emulate the ostrich; the new flower in your hat does not divert attention from the ragged condition of your skirt lining.

A WOMAN IN THE CASE.

Women pilot three Mississippi river boats. The ladies of the Astor family own $3,000,000 in jewels. Mortuary tables show that the average duration of the life of woman in the European countries is something less than that of men. In Switzerland there are 1,064 men to 1,000 women; in Greece 933 men to 1,000 women. In Hong Kong, according to an authority, there are only 366 women to 1,000 men. An attendant in the Boston Art museum recently saw a lady standing long in front of a portrait of a lady by Whistler. At length she spoke: "Jane McNeil, Whistler; she doesn't look as if she could whistle."

In England women are coming to the front very fast as gardeners and florists, though such occupations were not sought by them until recently. Lady Carlisle is training an entire staff of women to take charge of the fine grounds of her extensive estate in Yorkshire.

A London curate had the usual notice to marry a couple one Sunday morning, but when the time came found only the woman had arrived. After waiting some time and no man coming, she reluctantly withdrew. The next Sunday the woman turned up as before and again no man. After waiting considerable time she became furious and exclaimed: "Drat him! 'tain't his trousers this time, 'cause I bought him a pair."

ODD AND ORDINARY.

In Canton, China, 300,000 live in houseboats. A teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda in a wine glass of cold water will relieve a mild attack of headache. Edward Lewis of New York has lost his speech as the result of a blow he received in the face from a man with whom he was fighting. Pakhoi in China exports over 100,000 dried lizards, valued at $2,500 yearly; they are used for making "lizard wine," a medicine used for eye troubles. A New York man, weighing over 200 pounds and measuring six feet in height, had a fight with a German dwarf recently, who is but thirty inches in height. Glass houses on wheels are now employed by horticulturists for forcing plants. The structures run on fixed rails, and may thus be easily moved from place to place to points where it may be desirable to protect vegetation or to force its growth. Experiments conducted in Paris, it is declared, show that the right side of the human body, when magnetized, gives off a blueish light and the left side a yellowish red, and that there is a corresponding effluence from the eyes, ears and nostrils. It is the common belief that the peach tree is necessarily of short life, but there are some very old orchards on the Delaware peninsula and single trees have been known to bear for a great many years. A Sussex county peach grower has an orchard thirty years old, and in good peach years it yields abundantly. As a train of the New York and Harlem river railroad was rounding a curve near New York recently the engineer saw the body of a man lying on the tracks. He reversed his engine, but to no purpose, for it passed over the body. When the engineer went back to pick up the remains he found nothing but clothes and sawdust, which had been the makeup of the dummy which practical jokers had placed on the rails.

A Scheme for Comfort.

Friend—Why are you so enthusiastic on the subject of women's suffrage? Mr. Nojoy. The elections always come in the spring and fall, don't they?

"Certainly."

"Well, get 'em interested in the campaigns, and they'll forget about house cleaning."

WHIMS AND FANCIES.

She—Are you sorry that you kissed me? He—Yes; but it's better than being sorry that I didn't.

He—What assurance can I give you of my love for you, when we are married? She—A good life assurance.

Hubby—I was out to a stag party last night, dearie. Dearie—Yes, I heard you staggering as you came in.

George Washington—I can't tell a lie. Senator Sorghum—Oh, come, come, don't give up. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again.

A Georgia love scene—"Good-by, Jim—be good." "So long, Sue—keep peart." "Oh, Jim." "I hear you." "Write me a letter through the post-office."

Dr. Probe—Now that my patients have nearly all gone away I think I shall get off myself. Miss Summit—I hope, doctor, that you are not going to join them.

Crimsonbeak—Can you let me have $5 until I see you again? First—No, I can't; but this is the yeast intimation I have had that you were going on an extended journey.

Gent—How came you to put your hand in my pocket? Pickpocket—Beg your pardon. I am so absent-minded. I had once a pair of pants just like those you are wearing.

"Yes, sir, the alligator swallowed me, boots and all; but a dynamite cartridge I had in my pocket exploded and blew the monster all to pieces!"

"But you?" "Oh, I'm here!"

Mrs. Slasher—No, Mr. Slasher, you need not have the butcher call for orders. I wish to go to the shop and pick the beef myself. Mr. Slasher—Pick the beef! To hear you talk one would think beef grew on a vine. Mrs. Slasher—And so it does, Mr. Slasher—on a bo-vine.

WOMEN VOTERS.

In Norway women have school suffrage. In Finland women vote for all elective officers. In Sweden women vote for all elective officers except representatives. In Delaware suffrage is exercised by women in several municipalities. Women have municipal suffrage in Cape Colony, which rules 1,000,000 square miles. Municipal woman suffrage rules in New Zealand, and at parliamentary elections also. In the United States twenty-eight states and territories have given women some form of suffrage. Petitions are being circulated in South Australia asking that women be given the suffrage of both houses of parliament. Iceland, in the North Atlantic, the Isle of Man (between England and Ireland), and Pitcairn island, in the South Pacific have full woman suffrage. In the Dominion of Canada women have municipal suffrage in every province and also in the Northwest territories. In Ontario they vote for all executive officers except in the election of members of the legislature and parliament.

WOMEN VOTERS.

Women have recently been appointed to clerkships in the bank of England, after passing preliminary examinations. Confident at friend, rushing in—Oh, Madeline, the hour is long passed, and the bridegroom has not arrived. Madeline—Well, thank heaven, my dress got here!

Little Girl—Did you ever dream of being in heaven? Little Boy—No, not exactly; but I dreamed once that I was right in the middle of a big apple dumpling.

Old Gravelly—If you do not care to be my wife, perhaps the prospects of being a rich young widow might tempt you. Minnie, eagerly—Oh, Mr. Gravelly! If I were only sure I could trust you.

There are three women doctors—Alice Mitchell, Helen Knight and Frances G. Deane—now among the sanitary corps of the New York board of health, and it is agreed that the board is all the healthier for their work.

"You don't mean to say you gave living pictures at the church fair?" "O yes. We advertised them well, too, and the house was crowded." "What pictures did you give?" "O, just a lot of flower pieces. With living flowers, you know."

A widower at Rondout, N. Y., aged 60 years, was married a day or two ago to a woman of 21. As a romantic incident of his wedding, it is stated that the bride was first introduced to the groom by the latter's son, who at the time was in love with her.

Corean women carry the children on their backs like the Japanese, and their system is a simple one. The child rests on a strap of cloth, the ends of which go over the mother's shoulder and cross her breast; the child's legs cling around her waist.

"Now tell me what the trouble is," said a mother to her little girl whom she had been obliged to take out of church because of a violent fit of weeping. "He called me," said the child between her sobs, "a simple little cross-eyed thing." The child was cross-eyed, and the minister had just given out the hymn: "Simply to Thy Cross I Cling."

There was a curious spectacle at a school election in Westchester county, N. Y., when a score of Italian women, most of them with a babe in one arm and a ticket in the unoccupied hand, marched to the polls and voted. An incident of the same election was the successful challenging of a minister's wife on the ground that she was childless and paid no rent. She and her husband occupy a parsonage provided by the congregation.

A List of Ann Arbor's Largest Tax-Payers.

It has been customary to publish each year a list of those people in the city who pay the largest tax, we present to our readers to-day this list, for their delectation—if they take it that way.

This list does not comprise but a small portion of the number of taxpayers in the city, of which there are nearly 4,000 in number.

For convenience we give the table in two columns, the first one representing the city or summer tax, the next one including the state, county and school tax, payable now.

To-day, Saturday, Dec. 1, is the first day for the payment of taxes. This list may not be exactly accurate in some instances, for the reason that there are a number of people who pay in different wards, and in running through the rolls it is possible some tax may have been skipped, but it is practically correct. It is intended to include the names and amount of all who pay $70 and upwards.

Pleasant Family Reunion.

The annual Thanksgiving reunion of the family of Mrs. E. P. Calkins was held yesterday at Mrs. Calkins' home, 17 S. Ingalls street. The following members of the family were present: E. I. Arms and family, John Arms and family, Rev. S. Calkins and wife, and Mrs. H. T. Smith and family, of South Lyons; Mr. Frank Bidwell and family, Mrs. Anna D. Birkenstock and daughter, and Miss Ella Bidwell, of Brighton; Mr. J. Harker and family and E. E. Calkins and family, of Ann Arbor, and John Hawley and family, of Detroit. A bounteous Thanksgiving dinner was served by Mrs. Calkins and a day of unusual enjoyment was spent. The family is descended from the family of Isaac Arms, who came to Michigan in the early days and settled on a farm in Webster, afterward moving to the township of Brighton. The lineage of the family extends back to the early days of Connecticut, when the Arms were prominent in the religious life of the old state. Rev. S. Calkins is now engaged in writing a history of the family.

To Push the Columbian Organ Fund

At a meeting held at Frieze Hall on Friday evening of last week, a committee was ordered appointed to have general charge and supervision of the arrangements, together with the sale of tickets for the Columbian Organ Dedicatory concert, to be given December 14.
