CRITICIZED THE NEWSPAPERS.

Rev. Reed Stuart Thinks They Pay too Much Attention to "Social Rot." A Fine Lecture.

Rev. Reed Stuart, of Detroit, delivered an interesting lecture in the Unity Club series last evening, and one that proved profitable to the limited audience that the inclement weather permitted to be present. His subject was "Literature and Life." The main thread of his discourse is contained in the following epitome: Much is being said at the present time of the influences that mold life. Some have attempted to construct a philosophy of civilization. Heredity, climate and many other factors do much to influence the course of life, but literature must not be left out of consideration.

How like a miracle is the transmission of ideas from one mind to another! The spoken word is perishable. To guard against this, the written word was invented. How it was invented we can not tell. It was probably learned at different times and at different places. But however it began, written language marked the beginning of a new era.

As the fern leaf leaves its delicate structure in the rock, so words have left Greek customs in history. The flower of modesty of a Greek girl is preserved to-day, colored by the flush that spread over her cheek.

We open one book and we are in Thebes; another and we lift our hat, to let Queen Dido pass; another and we talk with Socrates in Athens; still another and we walk with Jesus in Galilee. The reader is the citizen of the world.

Ability to write presupposes ability to write nonsense. Man may find his theme among the heights of thought or in the lures of lowest desires. When one reads he is at liberty to make a choice. There are never so rich flowers in the woods as in the fields of literature. Wise is the youth that comes home in the evening with his hands full of them. Such power is there in books that one "raises a mortal to the skies, another drags an angel down."

Much of our literature is infected with that phenomenon that deals with facts rather than with principle. Our writers jot down the facts of life. But they cling to the smallest facts. Zola, Maupassant and Tolstoi are among them. They seem to think their duty to present the material side of life. The cry is, "Enough!" More than enough is said about the gutters, let us see the green fields.

Never before has there been such a reading age. Perhaps there is too much reading. Newspapers are read too much by some people. There is no more sense in reading three newspapers, than in eating three breakfasts. And there is less sense in reading all that is in a newspaper than in eating all there is on a table. The pulpit has more power than the press. It is stronger than the courts. It is doing more than anything else to form public opinion. The pulpit is always telling what editors should do. The editor never listens and never gets mad. To get even, however, he prints a cut of the preacher. The editor refers to the latest scandal as "social rot" and then prints three or four columns of it. It is of but little importance to anyone but himself that Rev. Woodenhead has gone to Milan to lecture and will be back in time to preach next Sunday. It is better to have no news than this trivial or bad news. An editor condemns a thing in one column and describes it in another. We expect better things of the newspaper. We don't want it to come into our homes bringing the sabon, brothel and prize fight with it. Newspapers ought to lead the highest sentiment.

Literature is a corrector of judgment. It broadens and deepens the intellectual sympathies. True realism deals with spiritual realities. Many books come to us that we can get along without. May we find the few that have sometimes felt the breath of the Great Spirit moving over their pages.

IF NOT, WHY NOT?

A Question that Should Commend Itself to Our Board of Supervisors.

"Why not put in an elevator?" That's the question.

A gentleman who was discussing the matter of offices for the county officials, and incidentally "cussing" the supervisors for allowing two of the ex-prosecuting attorneys $200 each for past office rent, asked that question while in the court house yesterday.

Well, why not? The authorities in other cities and counties make all the rooms in their public buildings available in this way.

There is enough room in the court house to accommodate all the county officials with splendid offices, and have several good ones left if they were only available. The third floor of the court house has a number of rooms that are just as good as the ones below if there was any way of getting to them except by climbing so many stairs. These could be fitted up and the prosecuting attorney and the county commissioner of schools, and the county poor commissioners, and the county drain commissioner, and all other county officials having public affairs to attend to, and public documents to preserve, could then be given a place where they and their documents could be found. It is but a question of time when this will have to be done.

"Where would you put an elevator?" There is a fine place for that, connecting with all the rooms of all the floors in a convenient way. Use the tower space in the center of the building. The elevator could be placed in one corner of that and not obstruct the passage way on the first floor—it interferes with it nowhere else—enough to do a particle of harm. And the elevator could run clear to the fourth floor if necessary, and make some excellent rooms on that floor available. It is not at all improbable that the county could rent enough rooms up there by this means to pay the extra expense of running an elevator.

Then the judge could have rooms suitable to his station. People coming here from other places notice that defect in our court house, and make questioning remarks about it. There never was any provision in this great court house for the most important official in the county. In fact the judge is the man who has control of the building and all its affairs. It is in his power to order anything done or any improvement made if it be his pleasure to do so. He is the chief executive of the county so to speak, and yet no provision was made to provide him with office rooms of any kind until a former prosecuting attorney consented to give up his two little coops and turn them over to the judge. The foresight of the builders of the court house should have been greater.

But this is a way out of the difficulty, and one that would be wonderfully pleasing to the public. There are a great many people having business with the various county officials who find the flight of stone steps leading to the first floor very difficult to climb. This is especially true of many who have business with the probate office, and could they step into the basement and be taken there to in an elevator, it would be a thing they would most heartily appreciate. This improvement will be made some day, but how soon, is a question difficult of answering.

SADLER AND BLOCK, CHOSEN.

Alpha Nu's Contest of Saturday Evening Settles the Primaries.

The Alpha Nu preliminary debate of Saturday evening resulted in the choice of F. P. Sadler and Edmond Black, both '95 lits, to represent the society in the University debate, which will occur during the later part of February. There were seven contestants up for Alpha Nu's honors. They were Messrs. Sadler, Black, Reynolds, Adams, E. Geisner, H. Geisner and Rubin. The contest was sharp, each debater being loaded with arguments and presenting them in a manner that left no easy task for the judges to pick out the winners. The question debated was this: "Resolved, that attempts of employers to ignore associations of workmen and to deal with individual employees only, is detrimental to the best interests of both." The judges of the contest were Profs. I. N. Demmon and F. N. Scott and Mr. E. J. Ottoway. The debate was enjoyed by an audience that nearly filled Alpha Nu hall. Mr. Barchent, furnished the musical program, his zither playing being very popular.

The debate of Saturday evening completes the preliminary scoring and the University debate will be fought out among the following contestants: Messrs. Newton and Wilcox, Adelphi; Messrs. Kimball and Vogan, Webster; Messrs. Crosby and Oxtoby, Jeffersonian; and Messrs. Sadler and Black, Alpha Nu. The material thus presented will insure a debate of more than ordinary interest, and whoever may be the three winners, Michigan will certainly be ably represented in the contest with Northwestern.

Saturday evening's debate was also the dedication program of Alpha Nu hall. Those who have had recitations in room M—the old amphitheater room—would be surprised to see the neatly arranged and inviting society room that has superseded the amphitheater. The latter feature of the old room no longer exists. It has been removed. The room has been handsomely papered, pictures are hung all around the room and the walls further decorated with statuary. It furnishes a pleasant place for the society, and being entirely unmolested by recitations, has none of the objectionable features of room 4, where both societies formerly held an uncertain sway. Alpha Nu is to be congratulated on her new home, and the auspicious advent into it may doubtless be correctly interpreted to mean the beginning of a new and more prosperous era.

WRINKLE'S JANUARY SMILE.

Wrinkle's regular sui-monthly smile is again abroad in the land. This time it is especially broad. And why shouldn't it be when it has for its text of hilarity and a general good time in the "Fraternity Annual Ball?" Wrinkle didn't make any New Year's resolution to stop treading on the toes of the Daily, the Reform League or the S. C. A. It still planks its big foot down just wherever it happens. Wrinkle objects to having his liquor and tobacco record "indexed and put on tap in McMillan hall." Perhaps the Court Jester has reason to file his objections. This month's jokes are appropriately new. The co-eds will find entertainment in "Side Talks with Girls" where they may find all sorts of pointers on love, courtship and marriage. The illustrations call for favorable mention. The double page cut by Miss Dunster is an illustration of the co-eds in the gymnasium, and being drawn by a girl it may be supposed that the scene is true to life. The front page cut is by J. H. Harris, '98, and shows up the poor local best girl that gets jilted at J. Hop time.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

The junior laws threaten to form another literary society. Mrs. Paul C. Freer entertained a party of University girls on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. B. M. Thompson entertained a party of girls from the Woman's League on Saturday. The freshman glee club is getting ready to drop on the public. Mr. G.

Nichols is chief musical instigator.

Judge Champlin is lecturing in the law department for three days. Prof. Thompson will lecture Thursday and Friday.

H. Spaulding, '94 lit, who has been on the staff of the Chicago News, has taken a position with the Chicago Journal.

Adelphi hall, room N of the main building, will be dedicated with an appropriate program next Saturday evening.

The new officers of the Engineering society are as follows: J. H. Dye, president; T. J. Hatswell, vice-president; Mr. Streeter, secretary; Messrs. Hatswell, Nichols, Roberts, Lamont, Fisher and Newberry.

Yale and Princeton have arranged for the first inter-collegiate gymnastic meet ever planned in this country. It will be held in Yale gymnasium Feb. 27, and will include a program of fifteen events.

If anyone wants to get a whack at the oratorical association pocket-book and pulmonary championship, let him or her hand his or her name to J. H. Quarles by Feb. 1, and get the manuscript to the same destination by Feb. 10.

Frank Briscoe has resigned as leader of the Glee Club, and A. G. Cummer takes his place. The next date of the clubs is in Detroit, Feb. 8, when they will give a concert before the Detroit high school alumni association.

An informal reception will be given Mr. Tracy McGregor next Saturday evening in the parlors of Newberry Hall from 7 to 10. Anyone wishing to meet him will be welcome. Mr. McGregor is the leading spirit in McGregor mission, Detroit.

F. M. Hall, who formerly played right guard on Princeton's eleven, and who carries a certificate of reasonable ability and agility in base ball, has entered the law department. As usual, reports are emanating from the lit department that the laws have illegitimate designs on the base ball banner for 1895.

Here is a chance for some U. of M. man to blossom out in a gold medal. The National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution offers a gold medal annually for the best essay on some subject connected with Revolutionary history. The subject for this particular year of our Lord is, "The Principle fought for in the Revolution."

Chelsea Boys in Trouble.

A Chelsea dispatch tells of trouble that appears to have come to some of the young men of that place, as follows: Last Saturday evening about ten young men from Chelsea village, ranging from 15 to 19 years of age, left that place for Dexter. As Dexter is situated so near Chelsea, it makes it very handy for the young men of both places to go back and forth and enjoy themselves. But it seems that on this identical evening the boys were not contented with viewing the glorious sights which grace the village of Dexter. The output of this evening's sport by these young men is liable to end in their having to put themselves to a considerable inconvenience and expense, as Deputy Bell, of Dexter, went to Chelsea Monday afternoon, and began at once to arrest some of the boys. After having placed five or six of them in his custody, he lined them up in front of the town hall, and left them standing there. He at once commenced to hitch up his horses, but in the meantime, the boys having nothing to hinder them, broke ranks and fled. Mr. Bell, after a few minutes' search, left for Dexter, where undoubtedly he will procure the proper warrants and return again and arrest the boys. Some of the boys claim he did not exhibit a paper to them.

Republican County Convention.

The Republicans of Washtenaw County will meet at the Court House, in the city of Ann Arbor, on at 11 o'clock a. m. for the purpose of electing 19 delegates to the state convention, to be held in Detroit, on the 23d day of February; to nominate a candidate for County Commissioner of Schools, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention. Each township and ward will be entitled to delegates as follows:

THE PROPOSED SCHOOL LAW.

The bill relative to the qualifications of the members of the County Board of School Examiners, County School Commissioner, and other school matters, now before the legislature, and which will no doubt become a law before the spring election, provides that each examiner shall possess at least a third grade certificate and have taught at least nine months in the public schools of the state.

A Commissioner must possess at least 24 months experience as a teacher, and be a graduate of the literary department of some reputable college, university, or state normal school having a course of at least three years, or hold a state teacher's certificate, or be holder of a first grade certificate which has been counter-signed by the state superintendent of public instruction. Those who have held the office of commissioner of schools under the provisions of Act No. 147, Acts of 1891, shall also be eligible. In counties having less than fifty school districts a man holding a first grade certificate will be eligible to the office.

These provisions in the main are all right. But it strikes one who has looked into the matter somewhat as though there are many counties in the state in which it will be difficult to fill the position. They will have to import.

Another good provision of the bill is that no certificate shall be granted any person not a citizen of the United States.

There are many other provisions of the bill that are excellent.

Before the bill is passed, however, we should suggest that on page 2, line 15, an explanation be made of what board is referred to, whether the board of examiners, board of supervisors, or what.

The bill is pretty sure to become a law, and take immediate effect.

Senator McMillan is probably the only senator who has been elected by every vote in the legislature since the nation was first formed and political parties have divided the people. It is a compliment that the gentleman no doubt appreciates, and Mr. Donovan did a very graceful thing in voting for him.

The United States Senate has voted money to collect the income tax, notwithstanding Senator Hill's vehement protest. Hill couldn't swing the senate.

There is a disposition upon the part of the millers from various sections of the state to have the legislature fix the weight and size of a sack of flour. That might be a good idea, too.

Either another block of bonds must be sold very soon to meet the needs of the government, or else there must be a suspension of gold payments. The condition that confronts the government is no theory. It is a fact all right enough.

A bill is to be introduced in the legislature providing for the sale of pine barrens upon which taxes are delinquent, to the highest bidder. Often the taxes have been allowed to run till they exceeded the market value of the land, so that the owner had no desire to keep the land and no one cared to pay for the tax title. The bill will bring something into the state treasury.—Cheboygan Tribune.

If Senator Watts' senatorial re-appointment is a go, Washtenaw and Livingston will constitute the Seventh Senatorial district, and there will be a natural democratic majority therein of 1,500 or more. Hillsdale is placed with Hillsdale in the Sixth district, and will have a republican majority of about the same amount. The Washtenaw republicans very naturally kick against being overwhelmingly swallowed up.

The French republic is without a head. The new president, elected as successor to the murdered Carnot, in a fit of pique the other day, resigned, and now some other man will be called upon to fill the important place. Casimir-Perier proved himself too sensitive to fill the position. He could not withstand the criticisms of the opposition. He should have been old enough to realize that our best men are made by honest criticism. It is self-conceit that kicks at honest criticism, and a right-minded man should be ready to meet it.

"No one can vote hereafter at an election in Michigan except full citizens of the United States," said Judge Steere to the News this week, "except that special class, which is not very numerous—those who had their first papers two years and six months before the 7th day of November, 1864. This is the plain reading of the constitutional amendment. It seems hard to disqualify a foreign born person who has become an elector, but this is what this act does, except in the case of the certain class mentioned. How the amendment will be construed by the courts is a question for the future to decide.—Soo News.

Here is a poser for a foreigner: A fast man on a fast day took his fast horse and tied him fast, and as fast as he could broke his fast. Then he rose, took off his hose, and went with a hose along the rows and put his rose on the end of his nose, which, as every one knows, as a sort of a hose. So here goes. His hose watered every rose in all the rows. Now, say, who knows how a foreigner might learn very fast the meaning of hose and rows, and knows and nose, or try to perform any rite right, or even write right which involved the right writing of wright, rite, write, and riot?—There! the machine busted.—Menominee Herald.

Can not this legislature do something to help the people secure better country roads? Let the prisoners at Jackson and in other state prisons prepare the material for roads, and sell it to the counties for actual cost. How would that do?—COURIER. That scheme would never work. Transportation would be too expensive. Almost every township has material enough to make good roads if they will only use it as it should be, but there is where the trouble is.—Manchester Enterprise. Transport the prisoners, and let them work up the material where it is, the way they do in some of the southern states.

THE STATE BANKS.

Bank Commissioner Sherwood has made his annual report, and it is a very gratifying one. There has been but one failure during the year, and not one cent lost to depositors.

The following figures may be of some interest to our readers:

Table showing Commercial dep't, Savings, Total, and Net Gains for 1893 and 1894.

The evergreen populists are to have a high old time at Greenville on Feb. 6, the date of their state convention. Gen. Weaver will be there, and Dr. Nichols will make one of his volatile, effervescent and punny speeches to the populist multitude.

Public opinion has broadened and deepened within the past few years, and is constantly broadening and deepening. Not more than a score or so of years ago it was thought to be out of place for a girl to earn her own living in any employment but teaching. Now there are many paths open for them, and a girl or woman who earns her own livelihood is highly respected therefor.

"Owe no man anything" societies are being started in different localities in the state. If the objective point sought by these societies, to keep their members out of debt, is ever reached, their mission will have been accomplished. These organizations should endeavor to show their members that a condition of debt is not necessarily indicative of a life of slavery and final ruin, for even careless observers know that many of our men of moderate means today owe their homes to the fact that conditions permitted them to run in debt for the purchase price. When debts are contracted for the ordinary living expenses, all the conditions being normal, there is something wrong in the domestic system. When debts are contracted for property, real or personal, which is expected to be productive of income of some kind, debt is not only justifiable, but usually a blessing to the debtor.

The legislative junket to the upper peninsula is a mistake. What is wanted of the legislature is business. The people are in no mood for play. The McKinley tariff brought no hardship to the workman or to anybody else in the United States. There is not a single class in the country today which does not feel the baneful effect of that instrument of robbery known as the Gorman bill.

The murder of Chas. L. Carter in Honolulu, is laid at the door of this administration. His blood is upon Pres. Cleveland and Sec'y Gresham, and there it will remain, forever. The patriotic people of this nation have been outraged by the action of those two men. This sentiment is everywhere expressed.

The U. S. war ship Philadelphia was ordered to depart from San Francisco Sunday for Honolulu. It will take six days for it to make the voyage if everything is favorable. That length of time may be fatal to the interests of America and the civilized world. For the fact appears to be that the trouble has been brought on by Japan, which nation has sent a man of war to those islands, and report says, has also landed thousands of coolies there all well armed, and ready for battle. Japan has long wanted these Pacific Sea Islands, and her government is sharp enough to know when to strike for them.

The condor, the largest bird of prey, can devour a full grown calf inside of thirty hours, eating at intervals of three hours until it is gorged.

Its flight then is slow and difficult until it has gained a height of 200 yards by gliding up and down aerial planes. The condor can then hover on the wing and float for half an hour in circles without moving a feather.

As far as known, swallows' migratory flights are always carried on by day. The fact that, though warblers and other migrants are constantly found dead around light-houses, having dashed themselves against the windows of the lanterns, swallows have never been known to meet their fate in this way, furnishes strong presumptive evidence of this peculiarity of the swallow tribe.

Partridges and quail will generally when accidentally caught by a high wind, close their wings and drop to the ground in a slanting direction, only using their wings to check the flight when near the earth. They frequently fail to check themselves in time, or the force of the wind is greater than they calculated, and they are dashed with tremendous force to the earth and are wounded or killed.

Hutzel's Water Back!

A very important invention which will be hailed with delight by every body using a stove or range for hot water circulation. After years of experience we have succeeded in producing a simple and perfect WATER BACK.

It overcomes all the present troubles of extracting lime and other sediments which accumulate in water backs, often making them useless and in great many instances becoming dangerous.

The outlay of dollars is reduced to dimes. No household using a range can afford to be without it.

No more trouble by using city water for hot water circulation.

Can be used in any stove. Ask your stove dealer for Hutzel's Water Back.

PHILOSOPHY, SCHOLARSHIP.

He is Well Exemplified by the Young Massachusetts Ex-Governor.

When President Angell introduced Wm. E. Russell last evening he said that the Massachusetts ex-governor was an eminent example of what we have been hearing so much about in these days—the young man and the scholar in politics. As to his being a young man, the appearances are all in his favor without a word being said; and as to his scholarship the address of last evening ought to remove any previous prejudice that anyone may have had against him on that score. His lecture was certainly the best prepared, most thoughtful and philosophical that any lecturer has given in the S. L. A. course for many a day. His address was not one of those in which the speaker depends upon the applause of his audience for his inspiration. It was one in which only the most thoughtful would be interested. It was characterized by the reasoning of a statesman rather than the politician. And his diction is so replete with studied, vigorous English that the expression alone, regardless of thought, holds the strict attention of an audience. Last evening he held the large crowd without a break, which fact is very much in his favor.

As the subject "Individualism in Government—A Plea for Liberty"—would suggest, Mr. Russell's words were entirely along the line of political philosophy. He began his address with brief reference to the collegiate life, speaking of it as a great inspiration. Yet he would not have it tend to exclusiveness. The fact of a collegiate education involves the duty of going into all the world and preaching the gospel of truth. Education ought not to be content to bound its influence in narrow limits. Its mission is service, not contemplation. The speaker alluded to democracy in its broad sense, and remarked that to him it meant also a political conviction. He spoke of the young man's place in political life, saying that the young men and women of to-day were embarrassed less by their youth than by their responsibility.

One hundred years ago Lessing declared his age one of coming enlightenment. The same is true now. Utopia is not here. The present is a time of abstract discussion of government. At such a time, when the idea of combination is rife, it is not amiss to speak of the individual: to assert the power and place of the individual in free government. Mr. Russell said he proposed to pay homage to the idea; not as between absolutism and anarchy but as the law of self-protection. The speaker said he did not mean to uphold crankiness. He meant individualism in which we trace the root of man when God breathed upon him and became a living soul. On this individualism Le Conte built his philosophy. On it is built all society. Science points the telescope at the solitary star, not at the whole heavens. The idea is true of man more than of science. All the commands of God are addressed to the individual, not to society in general. His command is, "Thou shalt" and "Thou shalt not."

The same idea is true of law in its rights and duties. Communities are not indicted: individuals are. Law deals with man as an individual moral agent.

A right suggests a remedy. Rights are innate. Remedies rests in government. The possibility of government rests upon man's association. The success of government must recognize the individual's right, it must protect him and must establish institutions for the development and education of the people.

In early ages there was not recognition of the individual. The central idea of government was control. The idea of compact grew out of this and with it came Magna Charta, the Bill of Rights, and finally freedom. With us the struggle has terminated in a democracy. The ballot gives man a personal privilege, and as it controls others it gives him a trust.

The question arises "what way government do and what may it not do?"

How far may it restrict the individual? First comes anarchy. Its devotees say that government is inadequate. It must be destroyed. With it they would destroy rights, the result of centuries of development. They would go back to confusion and chaos out of which we have emerged. From that they would evolve a body politic, not from above but rather from the nether world.

The theory of individualism is that protection is the limit of the governmental function. Then arises the question, "What is protection?" We must recognize the steady growth of inequality. Inequality in distribution is intensified by the power of wealth.

Is government interference necessary to get individual rights? Our inter-state commerce and anti-trust acts say that it is. Labor, too, may combine in unions with government sanction. It is not a function of government, however, to guarantee opportunity. Labor cannot interfere with the right of the individual.

Individualism like socialism insists upon education. It does not, however, believe in clothing the people; giving the motive for advance. Giving the individual freedom to use his own, and retaining him from injuring others is the creed of individualism.

The idea of socialism is for all to take care of each, instead of each man caring for himself. It annihilates individual effort. If, under such influences it can exist, it makes individual effort superfluous. "Train each according to his strength; to each according to his need" is unjust. Socialism or collectivism inaugurates slavery. Any scheme running contrary to individualism of man is wrong.

Socialism first, individualism second is contrary to the law of God.

A Queer Remedy.

As there is considerable small pox about the country just now, and schools in various cities and villages have been closed as a precaution against its spread, anything relating to the disease and its treatment is of interest.

The following story of a queer way they have of treating the disease down in Mexico, is not new, but is told in a very entertaining manner:

At a prominent hotel a few days ago was a gentleman hailing from New Mexico. He had been on the frontier since boyhood, and was regaling several friends with choice bits of personal reminiscence, eagerly listened to by his audience. Finally, drawing attention to the pitted condition of his face, which showed the ravages of that dread scourge small-pox, he said:

"Yes, I had a dose of it in Socorro, long about '81; everyone gets the smallpox down there from force of example. You hardly ever see a Mexican who is not scarred, and yet they never go out of their way to avoid it. There is a peculiar superstition held by Mexicans regarding the disease; with them it is associated with their religious creed. It is this: Should one of them die of smallpox, there is no grief manifested by his relatives, as the cause of death is regarded as one of open sesame to the kingdom come, the pilgrim avoiding any tiresome wait in purgatory or other stations on the route. Why, they take their children where it is, so that they will catch it when young the same as American mothers handle the chicken-pox or measles problem.

"I have a sister who was taken down with the black smallpox when she was but 14 years old. The American doctors did everything they could but finally decided the case was hopeless. It was then, that the Mexican nurse, Maria, asked if she could try her hand. She explained the remedy, and we gave assent. What do you suppose she did? She went out and hunted around until she got a black rooster. One with a white feather wouldn't do; it would spoil the charm. This rooster was decapitated in the sick room and the warm blood used to bathe my sister. Improvement began at once, and to this day I don't know whether it was the black rooster which which saved my sister or the dropping of the case by the doctors."—New York Telegram.

ESTATE OF DANIEL E. WINES, DECEASED.
STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Washtenaw, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, the ninth day of January in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five. Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Daniel E. Wines deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Charles A. Wines praying that a certain instrument heretofore in the possession of Levi D. Wines and now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased may be admitted to probate and that administrator of said estate, may be granted to the executor in said will named or to some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 17th day of February next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the devisees, legatees, and heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted: And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor Courier, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

WHERE THE SUMMER BREEZES BLOW

Would you fly if you could
To a glen in the wood,
To a hillside in the distance,
That nature hath made:
Rich with ferns and wild flowers
And the fragrance of flowers?
What life is the soul
If to labor is all?
What is joy to the heart
When for rest the depart
To the woods and the dells
Does your heart cry for rest
In a place that is best,
With shadow of sorrow
Nor care for the morrow?

If so, send your address for a list of "SUMMER TOURS," published by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. Geo. H. Heafford, Gen'l Passenger Agent Chicago Ill

THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE SOUTH

Is being furthered by the Queen & Crescent Route by means of a special series of Monthly Excursions to Southern points at One Fare for the Round Trip. These rates are in effect from Cincinnati, Ohio, and Lexington, Ky., on November 6th and December 4th, good twenty days from date of sale for return. They are sold on these dates at all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida (except Key West), and to New Orleans, and all points on our line in Louisiana.

Stop-overs are permitted on these excursions at any point south of the Ohio River, within the final limit of the tickets. This offers an excellent opportunity to those who desire to go South, to look into the present great movement of Northern farmers to that section.

The Q. & C. has over a million acres of farms and timber land for sale along its line at $3.00 to $5.00 per acre, on easy terms.

Send us your name for advertising matter and any information you may want as to lands and immigration to the South.

Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Cure." Three weeks ago to-day
I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco-Cure" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it.
Yours truly,
C. W. HORSLEY.

OVER PREPARATION.

Why Prominent Men Fail to Interest Their Audiences Here—They Lose Their Individualism.

One great trouble with lecturers and men of note who come to Ann Arbor is "over preparation." Ex-Gov. Wm. E. Russell, for instance, at University Hall Friday night, started out in a very pleasant way, and the audience expected to be charmingly entertained by his wit and eloquence. He proved to them at the outset that he could be both eloquent and witty. But when he reached the announcement that he had prepared himself somewhat carefully for the evening, and asked their indulgence, they knew what was in store for them. They had been there many times before.

The speaker prepared himself with too much care. He expected a critical audience, and did not want a word or syllable out of its perfectly proper and precise place. In that he succeeded. He proved himself master of elegant English. He clothed his sentences with the plush and velvet of the Anglo-Saxon tongue. His ideas were conveyed to the audience in the most select phrase, each word encased in a kid glove. He sacrificed his own individualism to appear before an Ann Arbor audience as a true exponent of Boston culture.

But what the audience desired and expected was his individualism. They wanted to hear Wm. E. Russell. They did not care so much for the cultured expression of thought as for a specimen of the individual who had attained prominence and fame at home. They desired the individual, in his natural manner, and with his usual expression. This they did not get. They received a choice specimen of his culture.

It was not such efforts as the one given here Friday night that made Mr. Russell prominent. Not by any means.

He shot over the heads of his audience. The same lecture would have passed just as far over the heads of a Massachusetts audience, even a Boston audience. They would not have been any more enthusiastic. His ideas, while not new by any means, were presented in such a manner that a miscellaneous audience in any city or village on the face of the globe would not be interested. To follow him required a trained mind, an active student's mind. The majority of people do not possess such minds. Therefore when they go to hear a man who has attained prominence in any walk of life, and he comes here and presents his acquired knowledge instead of his own natural self, they are disappointed.

People like a man who has got something to say and who says it in an impressive manner for that very reason—that is what often makes a plain spoken man eloquent. Mr. Russell's lecture was a failure in this respect. It was a forced composition, clothed in perfect English, read in a tolerably fair manner. He had no new ideas to present, only old ones rehabilitated in his own fine garments.

He lacked earnestness, he lacked enthusiasm, he lacked eloquence. His individualism was gone. The idea that he must "thoroughly prepare" himself for a critical Ann Arbor audience, spoiled his lecture, except for the very few.

What was true of Mr. Russell, has been true of others who have come here. But few of the famous men who appear here do themselves justice. They make such elaborate preparation that the average mind does not grasp the drift of their lecture.

Mr. Russell's lecture was far preferable, however, to the last lecture of Robert Ingersoll. That eloquent heretic when last upon the platform here was greatly disappointing. He had a bad cold, to be sure, but he confined himself closely to his notes, and read with great rapidity. He acted as if he had an unpleasant task to perform, and got it off his hands the shortest way possible.

The last time Rev. Talmage appeared before an Ann Arbor audience, there was loud complaining. He evidently thought he had an audience of Kentucky corn crackers, and rehearsed a lot of stale jokes and threadbare stories, not presenting a new thought or idea during the evening.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it if procurable. G. A. Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best Cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's drug store, and Geo. J. Heaussler, Manchester.

Honors to a Washtenaw Warrior.

Congressman John C. Tarsney, of Missouri, is a survivor of the famous Fourth Michigan. Mr. Tarsney has received, writes the Washington representative of the Detroit Free Press, from Major-Gen. Fitz John Porter, of New York, a letter strongly favoring the granting of a medal to Col. Jonathan W. Childs, of Michigan, who is the only colonel of that regiment who did not lose his life on the field of battle. One colonel fell at Malvern Hill, one at Gettysburg and a third in the Wilderness. Col. Childs has been for a number of years employed as a clerk in the sion office at Washington. Mr. Tarsney says that he would take up with zeal the matter of granting a medal to Col. Childs for gallantry.

Fitz John Porter, in his letter to Secretary Lamont, says:

"I respectfully recommend that a medal of honor be awarded Jonathan W. Childs, late colonel of the Fourth Michigan Infantry, for distinguished bravery and gallantry displayed and marked services rendered in the charge made with his regiment across the Potomac river at the ford near Shepherdstown, Va., September 19, 1862. On Sept. 19, after the battle of Antietam, I was directed to push across the river and ascertain as near as possible, the position and strength of Gen. Lee's army, which lay beyond the southern bank. Preliminary to the movement, however, it was necessary to clear the southern bank of the enemy's artillery and infantry commanding the ford. On conferring with Gen. Griffin, whose brigade was near that ford, and with others was to be engaged in the operation, Col. J. W. Childs, commanding the Fourth Michigan Infantry—part of Griffin's brigade—volunteered to take his regiment and make the effort to capture the enemy's artillery. Knowing the valor of the colonel and of the regiment, which also volunteered, I accepted the offer, confident of success notwithstanding I knew the undertaking was perilous in the extreme. Col. Childs led the attack with his regiment and succeeded in fording the river—near 300 yards wide—under the enemy's raking fire, drove the enemy from their position, captured several cannon and many prisoners and hotly and gallantly executed all that was desired with excellent results. A medal of honor would not only be a recognition of Col. Childs' brave and gallant acts, but those of a noble regiment."

Col. Childs was a resident of Augusta township at the time of the breaking out of the war—Ypsilanti Sentinel.

W. K. Childs, of this city, is a brother of Col. Childs.

SIGNAL TRIUMPHS WON.

By Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder.

Two signal triumphs have been achieved by Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. First it received Highest Award and Diploma at the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. Next it secured Highest Award and Gold Medal at the California Midwinter Fair of 1894. At both Fairs it compassed all competitors in every respect. The award, in each instance, was for strongest leavening power, perfect purity and general excellence. It was sustained by the unanimous vote of the judges. The victory at Chicago establishes the supremacy of Dr. Price's as "The Foremost Baking Powder in the World." The triumph of San Francisco confirms and emphasizes it.

In the Circuit Court.

The following cases have been disposed of:
Jennie Franklin vs. Henry Frye, et. al. Demurrer sustained.
Oscar Sorg vs. Mead. Order dismissing the case.
Ann Arbor Milling Co. vs. Hiram Storms. Continued upon terms.
Ann Arbor Milling Co. vs. Hiram Storms, et. al. Case discontinued in open court with costs to be taxed by consent of parties at $30.
Stoddard W. Twitchell vs. Frank Kenyon, et. al. On trial.
John Hildebrand vs. Rorabacher. Twenty days time granted in which to file bill of exceptions.

Ward Howlett has been confined to his home on E. Ann st., several days, by an attack on his lungs.

"Wish I was down in Interlaken with John Miner." That's what all the boys say such days as these.

The Adrian Press Says:

Ann Arbor ladies decide to see if they cannot also "run a paper" so they will soon follow the example, set them by Adrian ladies, and will issue an edition of one of the daily papers in Ann Arbor.

The Ann Arbor Courier has in almost every column a liner "swear not at all." The editor will have to keep away from two places, if he follows his own advice. One is the court room and the other is Dam's saloon.

The students of the state normal school have organized a mathematical society, and it cuts quite a figure in educational circles though only a fraction of the students are members. The problem of the lights, is generally discussed Sunday evening.

The fools are not all dead yet. An Adrian man still continues to split wood under the clothes line, and the other day the ax caught in the line, came down and cut off his great toe.—Brooklyn Exponent. Yaas; darned fool. Ought to made his wife split the wood.

Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti chess players are now engaged in playing a game by mail. The players are busy most of the time taking things out of pawn. This delays the game some, but Ypsilanti last Friday and got her pawn on the queen bee's third. Any chess player will tell you where that is, if you have any solicitude in the matter.

The board of supervisors did a very brilliant trick over in Ann Arbor the other day. The treasurer filed a bond, and one name thereon was not satisfactory to the board, and instead of rejection, the board then erased the name, and thus approved it. The erasure invalidated the obligation and the treasurer was obliged to file a new bond. What some people don't know about law would fit a man for the U. S. Senate.

It was not and I said but or. The above is a correct sentence, grammatically and every other way, but the puzzle is to read it so that it will make good sense. It has bothered the brains of a good many Ann Arborites of late.—Ann Arbor Courier. The trouble is that the sentence is not correct, as printed by the Courier. It lacks punctuation which is as essential to grammatical construction as is spelling. Suppose you print it this way: "It was not and I said, but or." Then how much trouble would it give the Ann Arborites to read it?

A SURGEON'S KNIFE

gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is an urgent necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting. The

Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that RUPTURE or Breach is now radically cured without the use of a knife and without pain. Clumsy chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death.

TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations.

PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife, and all particulars sent in cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting.

STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send in cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

MOTHERS

come mothers,
should know that Dr.
Pierce's Favorite Prescription robs
childbirth of its tortures, terrors and dangers to both mother and child, by aiding nature in preparing the system for parturition. Thereby "labor" and the period of confinement are greatly shortened. It also promotes the secretion of an abundance of nourishment for the child.

Mrs. DORA A. GUTHRIE, of Oakley, Overton Co.,
Tenn., writes: "When I began taking Dr.
Pierce's Favorite Prescription, I was not able to stand on my feet without suffering almost death.
Now I do all my housework, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. I am stouter now than I have been in six years.
Your 'Favorite Prescription' is the best to take before confinement, or at least it proved so with me. I never suffered so little with any of my children as I did with my last."

FRIENDS OF THE COURIER WHO HAVE BUSINESS AT THE PROBATE COURT, WILL PLEASE REQUEST JUDGE BABBITT TO SEND THEIR PRINTING TO THIS OFFICE.

The examination of Ex-County Treasurer Paul G. Suekey, which was to have taken place Friday a. m., before Justice Pond, has been adjourned for two weeks.

Miss Mary Pyfer, aged 73 years, died Friday morning of paralysis. The funeral services will be held at the family residence No. 36 S. Thayer st., on Sunday afternoon, at 3 o'clock.

Washtenaw is entitled to nineteen and not twenty-one delegates in the next state convention. The call in another column for a county convention has been properly changed.

The fellow with a fast horse and nice cutter is the popular young man, and is on a par with the young man who never passes an ice cream shop with a lady without treating her.

Judge Kinne having so much business on hand that he could not give it proper attention, has resigned as one of the executors of the Lucy W. S. Morgan estate. Judge Babbitt has accepted the resignation.

George Wahr received a letter last Friday that was mailed in Berlin, Germany, Jan. 5. This makes 13 days to get from Berlin to Antwerp, then across the Atlantic ocean and here in Ann Arbor some 600 or 800 miles inland.

Louis J. Liesemer has purchased a controlling interest in his old paper, the Hausfreund-Post. Alfred Paul will hold the balance of the interest, and act as business manager. Mr. Liesemer is too well known to need any words of introduction or commendation.

The House at Washington, D. C., voted to give our bustling little neighbor up the road, Chelsea, the next two condemned cannon at the disposal of the war department. These cannon will be used for a soldiers' monument. Jimmie is the big gun that got them.

Isn't it a puzzle though, to know how some men live. With no visible means of support they hang around the street corners, loaf in stores and barber shops, from morning till late at night without doing a stitch of work. If the secret is not patented we would like to know what it is.

The writer was told this morning that some of the students in the 1st ward school were forming a secret society. The name chosen was not disclosed, but its objects are said to be of a purely social nature. They expect to make their debut into society with a grand full dress party somewhere about Feb. 22d.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Esslinger, of Macabee Hill, lost their infant son yesterday. Funeral services to-day, from the home of Fred Esslinger.

Mrs. Abbie O'Reilly, of 12th st., died Sunday, aged 87 years. She was a sister of Miss Margaret Burns whose death was mentioned a short time since.

Chas. L. Stevens, of Ypsilanti, and a member of Ann Arbor Commandery K. T., was elected attendant in the 3d veil, at the grand chapter's session of R. A. M., in Detroit Tuesday.

The Wolverine Cyclers' fifth annual Masquerade Ball will take place at Light Infantry Hall, on Thursday evening, Jan. 31. Grand march at 8:30 sharp. Music by the Chequamegons. Invitations required.

There were twenty-two in the sleigh load that went to the home of Jas. McLaren in Lima Friday eve. It was a merry company and they had a merry time, even to tipping over on the return home, which was reached at 4 o'clock a. m.

There is an electrical display in Eberbach & Co's window, fitted up by Albert C. Schumacher, that draws quite a crowd each evening from 7 to 8 o'clock. Lightning is sent through glass tubes and colored chemicals and gasses and is quite astonishing in its effects.

In the matter of A. Anna North, Sarah H. Goodrich and Morrell Goodrich vs. Elizabeth A. Lum, legatee in the will of Merchant H. Goodrich, and Noah W. Cheever and Joseph H. Vance, executors of said will, an appeal has been taken to the supreme court.

The sensational reports in some of the newspapers about the trouble in the Courier office, respecting its employees, is very amusing to those who know the truth about it. The attempt of the Detroit Free Press for instance to make political capital out of it, is very "phunny."

P. W. Shute, the gentleman who is working up the new opera house project is very sanguine of success. There appear to be several offers of locations, but the most promising one is on N. Fourth ave., between E. Huron and E. Ann sts., on what is known as the Goodrich property.

George S. Willets who gave Senator Cullom such a scare in Illinois in respect to his seat in the senate, is a Michigan boy. He was born in Monroe, is a son of Edwin Willets, 1st assistant secretary of Agriculture under Pres. Harrison. He graduated from the lit. department in 1878.

The Congregational church was crowded last Sunday, the program of the Young Mens Sunday Evening Club being an especially good one. Prof. Kempf's Lyra chorus of thirty voices furnished the music. To say that their work was appreciated is to put it very lightly. The congregation was unanimous in praise of their music. Rev. C. M. Coburn, of the M. E. church preached a fifteen minute sermon.

Robert H. Mann, brother of Miss Miss Florence Mann, who has been clerk in the University Hospital office, for the past three years, died at San Francisco on Jan. 19. The deceased had been to Honolulu several months for his health, and returned to San Francisco the day previous to his death. He was a nephew of Joseph Clark, superintendent of the hospital. The remains were forwarded to his former home at Lansing.

The Detroit Male Quartette, one of the finest quartettes in the country, accompanied by an impersonator, and a blind pianist, will appear in Ann Arbor in the near future, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The pianist is quite a prodigy, although blind, plays by note. That is he has his music printed in raised type, and then commits it to memory. The entertainment this company gives is spoken of everywhere in the highest terms.

There was some excitement on one of the hills last Friday night. A party of coasters was enjoying the fine coasting, most of the number being students. Some boys thought it would be nice to see the party slid through a sea of flames and getting a box they saturated it with coal oil. It was placed at a bend in the street where it would not be seen by the coasters and when they started from the top of the hill the box was lighted. It was in a mass of flames when the coasters came along, and not seeing it until they came to the turn, they were unable to steer out and the sled went straight into the fire. The head ones on the sled rolled off in time to avoid any bad burns and the others being further back on the sled were not injured as the fire was under them. The boys took after the impractical jokers and only several pairs of large legs saved a free fight.

If the Ann Arbor Courier would give The Sentinel proper credit for news items (as it seems to other papers) it would have fewer sins of omission to answer for at the time the bones of that skeleton are gathered.—Ypsilanti Sentinel. The Courier never has taken an item from the Sentinel without giving proper credit. And the Courier honestly believes that it is sinned against in this respect far more than it sins, even with the Sentinel. Many items, original with the Courier, are noticed in our exchanges without credit, and not infrequently credited to other papers. But we never have kicked.

The Detroit Male Quartette, one of the finest quartettes in the country, accompanied by an impersonator, and a blind pianist, will appear in Ann Arbor in the near future, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The pianist is quite a prodigy, although blind, plays by note. That is he has his music printed in raised type, and then commits it to memory. The entertainment this company gives is spoken of everywhere in the highest terms.

There was some excitement on one of the hills last Friday night. A party of coasters was enjoying the fine coasting, most of the number being students. Some boys thought it would be nice to see the party slid through a sea of flames and getting a box they saturated it with coal oil. It was placed at a bend in the street where it would not be seen by the coasters and when they started from the top of the hill the box was lighted. It was in a mass of flames when the coasters came along, and not seeing it until they came to the turn, they were unable to steer out and the sled went straight into the fire. The head ones on the sled rolled off in time to avoid any bad burns and the others being further back on the sled were not injured as the fire was under them. The boys took after the impractical jokers and only several pairs of large legs saved a free fight.

If the Ann Arbor Courier would give The Sentinel proper credit for news items (as it seems to other papers) it would have fewer sins of omission to answer for at the time the bones of that skeleton are gathered.—Ypsilanti Sentinel. The Courier never has taken an item from the Sentinel without giving proper credit. And the Courier honestly believes that it is sinned against in this respect far more than it sins, even with the Sentinel. Many items, original with the Courier, are noticed in our exchanges without credit, and not infrequently credited to other papers. But we never have kicked.

The suit against Geo. Darrow for assault and battery, brought by S. Baumgardner, has been again adjourned in Justice Gibson's Court, for one week.

M. F. Clements in the name of the people complained of Nathan Pierce for assault in Justice Gibson's Court, and the case has been adjourned. Both are Northside parties.

Hon. Jas. M. Dunn, of Milwaukee, will deliver an address upon "Success in Business and the Relation of the Liquor Traffic to it," at the Unitarian church, Sunday Jan. 27th, at 3 o'clock p. m. The speaker announces this to be absolutely non-partisan.

Lieut. W. F. Armstrong, of the Light Infantry, gave a spread to the boys Monday night after rehearsal in the armory. The entertainment which is scheduled for the nights of Feb. 11 and 12, promises to be a great success. One of the features of the show will be a foot ball game.

According to the action of the Ann Arbor Typographical Union this office is what is called an "open office," one in which union men are allowed to work. Wonder if it will occur to some parties who have taken pains to herald the contrary statement abroad, to have the fairness to correct it.

Owing to the activity of the fierce Kabibonokka together with Kabeyum as Hiawatha called them, combined with the other elements last night, it was thought best to postpone the lecture of Mr. Beal before the Inland League to some more favorable evening. Some way Monday evenings have been unpleasant ones nearly all this season.

The Y. W. C. A. will give a social at their rooms, over the 1st National bank, on Friday evening. A short programme will be arranged for the evening, and light refreshments will be served. Everybody is invited, and each one attending is requested to bring a slip of paper with their name and address thereon.

Just before the last election Martin Schantz was given $5 by Eugene Heiber, of the Washtenaw Post to bet with a certain party that Mr. Suekey would not be elected county treasurer. The money was put up in John Burg's hands. After election Heiber directed Schantz to go and get the money, which he did but after turning over to Mr. Heiber his original $5 he refused to turn over the other $5, but kept it himself. Heiber brought suit before Justice Gibson to recover the other $5. Each was represented by able attorneys. Justice Gibson has decided that the money belongs to Heiber and Schantz must give it up. Whether it will be appealed, or whether Schantz will rest on his shant, is yet to be found out.

Scrofula Tumors. Salt Rheum, Nervousness, Other Troubles. Complication of Diseases Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: "Dear Sirs: From childhood I had been a great sufferer from scrofula, having a tumor on my left breast and another in my stomach. I was also afflicted with salt rheum. We spent much money for medical attendance and remedies, but all to no avail. Three years ago I commenced to run down. The trouble with my stomach would not allow me to eat and even milk distressed me very much. My right hand and arm became almost paralyzed, and my stomach difficulty was fast developing into Serious Female Troubles. I became very nervous and was subject to fainting spells. Dark spots appeared before my eyes. The doctors failed to help me. In the spring I read about the wonderful cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla and decided to give it a trial. After taking it a short time I commenced to feel better, my digestion improved, and the burning sensation in my stomach and bowels ceased. Shortly I was able to work about the house, standing on my feet considerably, something I had not done for months before. For two summers I have done My Own Work Alone. I shall continue taking Hood's Sarsaparilla as it is my cheapest hired servant. I am a farmer's wife, our place embracing 120 acres. We think Hood's Vegetable Pills cannot be beaten, and we have great faith in Hood's Sarsaparilla." Mrs. BENJ. SHETTERLY, Buchanan, Michigan. Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache, &c.

AND THE VOTE STOOD 7 TO 2.

Troublesome Section 14 was Repealed Last Night by the Board of Education.

Section 14 of the rules of the board of education was repealed last night and the twelve members of secret societies suspended under its provisions returned to school this morning. The vote on the repeal stood 7 to 2, the yea and nay vote being as follows:

Yeas—Miner, Mack, Scott, Jacobs, Whedon, Beal and Miss Bower.

Nays—Gruner and Smith. The fraternities have won their point. The societies may go on unimpeded by the decisions of Principal Pattengill. And to all appearances Principal Pattengill is glad that there is no longer any secret society rule to interpret.

Last night's meeting of the board was a warm one. There was not a very torrid display of caloric among the members of the board, but the visitors kept down the necessity for turning on more heat from the steam pipes. Supt. Perry's office was crowded to the doors. The parents of the suspended children were there to plead for the cause of their children and the fraternities. The suspended students were present and not at all afraid of speaking out in meeting. There wasn't a bit of lagging between speeches, and sometimes three or four persons were trying to get in their arguments and gesticulations at the same time. The enthusiasm lasted until the meeting stood adjourned, and it didn't stop even then, for the fraternity boys considered the occasion worthy of a jollification and the high school yell echoed throughout the streets of the city until a late hour.

President Beal called the meeting of the board to order at 7:30, all the members being present except J. T. Jacobs and he came in later and made up for lost time. Pres. Beal stated the purpose of the meeting and invited the spokesman for the suspended boys to speak. The invitation did not remain long unaccepted. Mr. H. P. Danforth arose, took off his overcoat and told why he was present. He said that he deemed the cause for suspension insufficient and he wanted the students reinstated except more cause was shown for the action of Principal Pattengill. He asserted that the societies were not secret. The parents had watched them closely. They would rather that the societies exist than not. There was no harm in them and they did not interfere with school work. He felt outraged at the manner of suspension. No notice had been given the parents. There had been no opportunity for explanation. The action was at a critical time, just before examinations when the loss of time meant loss of credits. He demanded immediate reinstatement.

Then Dr. S. A. Jones took the floor and waxed eloquent and wroth at the same time. He read the pledge of Zeta Rho and said that any society with the sentiment behind it that such a pledge contained, was worthy of support. The significance of the Greek words was not open to the world, but they contained a motto for which the members, if they were true to their society, would shed their heart's blood. It contained the teachings inculcated by Him of Nazareth. It was not for school, but for life. He was glad that such a spirit existed. He spoke of the tyranny of the school teacher as the worst tyranny in the world and roundly scored the teachers who would suspend a student without opportunity for a hearing.

Dr. David Zimmerman next spoke for the boys. He had watched the growth of the societies from infancy. In fact the one most in question was formed in his back yard with the consent of every father and mother concerned. He maintained that the societies were all right. He demanded reinstatement at once.

Mr. Miner here offered a resolution that the suspended students be reinstated and that Section 14 be repealed. He thought that the board was going further than it had a right to do in promulgating any such rule. It had as good a right to suspend for membership in the Christian Endeavor Society. His motion was seconded by Mr. Scott, but the audience was not talked out yet and the verbal display went on. Mr. Scott thought such societies were all right, but they ought to be restricted. In some cases they detracted from the school work. If the board rules were thrown down entirely, bad societies would come in. Still he supported the motion to repeal the rule.

Dr. W. B. Smith, of the board, thought it was not time to vote yet. They were sitting as a sort of board of arbitration and they ought to listen to all there was to be said. The resolution was too previous in his opinion. They should first find out whether the students had really been suspended for belonging to a secret society. What did they mean by a secret society? There was no secrecy about one when its sessions were held when parents were passing through the room. (This point so tickled one of the suspended boys that he laughed right out in meeting.) When Section 14 was passed, a secret society was one that held its meetings down town in a hall and drank beer and smoked cigars and raised Ned. He understood that the present societies were something different.

ten to all there was to be said. The resolution was too previous in his opinion. They should first find out whether the students had really been suspended for belonging to a secret society. What did they mean by a secret society? There was no secrecy about one when its sessions were held when parents were passing through the room. (This point so tickled one of the suspended boys that he laughed right out in meeting.) When Section 14 was passed, a secret society was one that held its meetings down town in a hall and drank beer and smoked cigars and raised Ned. He understood that the present societies were something different.

Mrs. Bach then spoke in behalf of the boys, telling what sort of initiations were held. She knew all about them for they were held in the store room of her house, and the boys had to go home at eleven o'clock every night.

Mr. Jacobs wanted to hear what Principal Pattengill had to say, but Miss Bower interrupted to find out how long the obnoxious Sec. 14 had been in existence. It was finally settled that the troublesome law had lived anywhere from six to eighteen years. Principal Pattengill and Superintendent Perry said it was eighteen.

In the meanwhile it had been forgotten that Mr. Pattengill was going to speak and Mr. Wilson, another father of a suspended boy, got the floor. He thought the whole lot should be suspended or none at all. It was unjust to select a few. The said Sec. 14 was, in his opinion, a relic of bygone days, like the Blue Laws of Connecticut.

Finally Principal Pattengill took the floor to defend his action. In administering the rule he said that he had found considerable difficulty. He had tried to live up to it. At the same time he had and would do no detective work. If the board would authorize the employment of a detective he might enforce the rule to the letter. Things notorious to the town were not so notorious to the teachers. He knew the fraternities were here. When the members were questioned by him they evaded the questions. Things had gone on till now. Three or four men had acknowledged to him that the organizations were secret societies. Others told that they weren't, and he was surprised. The average pupil was not able to draw any distinction. He had been compelled to see every week the effects upon the scholarship of the students, sometimes upon their morals. He had been helpless. Now when the case had been so he could, he had acted. He supposed he had done so within the rule, the attempt to enforce which had not been pleasant.

Then Supt. Perry's opinion was called for. He arose to give it, but in the meantime Messrs. Miner and Scott got into an animated discussion over something and the superintendent was forgotten and sat down. When the two board members were quieted, Mr. Perry, in reply to a request from the board, stated his opinion of the societies. He said that in his opinion they were injurious to the scholarship of the members, often to a serious extent. Often there was an immoral effect. He often had to caution new students against the invitations. We knew of a number of cases of moral injury. The societies were not all alike. It was difficult to frame a rule covering all cases. As a rule the poorer classes of students joined the societies, or else the societies made them poor students. He thought the societies had no place in the high school. They ought to be postponed until the University.

At this point, Dr. Jones' emotions overcame him again and he arose to object to the arbitrary manner in which the rule had been carried out. It was worthy, he said, of the Czar of Russia.

Mr. Pattengill said that Dr. Jones had been misinformed. He had inferred that the men came to him as representatives of the societies and that they had talked the matter over and settled it among themselves.

Mr. Tilton, one of the suspended students, related his experience with Mr. Pattengill.

Dr. Jones made the statement that he was prepared to prove that one of the teachers had said that no matter whether the fraternities beat or not, they (the teachers) would have it in for them afterward.

Supt. Perry objected to such a statement being made. He didn't believe any teacher ever said it.

To which Dr. Jones replied warmly that he desired it to be understood that when he said anything he could prove it and he could prove that statement to the dotting of an i.

Mr. Denison, a student, was overcome by the situation, and beating back his bashfulness he arose to say that he had heard a teacher say that "as soon as we find out the members of the secret societies we will make it as hard for them as we can."

J. V. Sheehan was called upon for a speech and he made a very sensible one. He thought the board had better heed the advice of the superintendent. There must be authority somewhere. They had better adjourn, go home and think the matter over calmly. In the meantime the superintendent or principal might give them a hint about the societies that would change their minds.

Mr. Jacobs said that was what he had been thinking about for the past ten minutes. He said: "Go slow."

Mr. Francis Stofferlet made a speech against the fraternities.

Mr. Wilson wanted to know if Supt. Perry knew a single moral flaw in one of the suspended students. Supt. Perry replied that he knew no moral flaw.

Mr. Miner said that he would like to see the students reinstated and the section amended at the next meeting when he would be in Florida, and they could blow their bugle.

Miner's resolution was changed so that it included reinstatement, pending investigation. President Beal suggested that any motion providing for reinstatement before the repeal of section 14 would be declared out of order.

Dr. Smith moved a substitute motion providing that the students be ordered to report to their classes in the morning to learn their fate and that in the meanwhile the board go into executive session with the superintendent and principal to settle the matter. The motion was lost.

Then Mr. Miner's motion was changed to include the repeal of section 14 and the motion carried by the vote given above. The fraternities had won.

REGENT KIEFER A BELIEVER.

He is in Sympathy With the Amalgamation Scheme of Dean Obetz.

Dr. V. C. Vaughan was approached this morning for his opinion of Dr. Obetz's communication yesterday. The subject seemed to tickle him for he laughed as he said: "Well, it's not my funeral. However, I might add that owing to his success in running the homeopathic department, which has now dwindled down to nearly nothing, Dr. Obetz feels able to direct the policy of the allopathic school." As to the amalgamation scheme he laughingly observed: "One and nothing make one, and the homeopathic department is about nothing, so we are now nearly one." Further than these remarks, Dean Vaughan refuses to make any statement.

WHAT THE REGENTS DID.

Yesterday's meeting of the board of regents was productive of little business of real importance. Dean Prescott and Prof. Newcombe appeared before the board and made a few remarks relative to the appointment of men to higher positions in the pharmacy department. Dr. Kiefer, chairman of the medical committee, said that he was in favor of the amalgamation scheme of Dr. Obetz, and that while he could not endorse every word of his communication, yet he could not vote for the dean's resignation. However, the resignation of Dr. Obetz was finally accepted by the vote of five to two. Regents Barbour and Kiefer voted in the negative. Fred H. Staudt was granted a B. S. diploma, dated 1894.

LAW COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

President Crosby, of the junior law class, at a meeting of the class yesterday afternoon, announced the following class committees to act in conjunction with committees from the senior class, in the festivities of Washington's birthday:

Arrangements—Messrs. O. S. Williams, Compton, McBride, Woodworth and Deahl.

Reception—Opmadoc, Ryker, Hambley, Shannon and Schenk.

Invitation—Spill, Selby, Lund, Holtzheimer and McHarg.

Music—Huseman, Saint, Price, Northomb and Trueman.

Decoration—Saunders, Riecker, Besie, Lindley and Miss Bates.

Ushers—Sturtevant, Eggleston, Kuh, Thompson, Ely, Ford, McDonald, Connor, Benner, D. K. Williams, Ingraham and Martyn.

Crop Report for January.

December was a warm, dry month, the mean temperature being above and the precipitation below, the normal. The snow fall in the lower peninsula was light. The ground was not covered Dec. 15 in the southern and central counties, and on Dec. 31 the average depth in these sections was less than one inch.

The total number of bushels of wheat reported marketed in December is 1,494,736. The number of bushels reported marketed in the five months, August-December, is 6,235,193, which is 1,663,932 bushels less than reported marketed in the same months last year.

The average condition of live stock in the state is reported as follows, comparison being with stock in good, healthy and thrifty condition: Horses, 94 per cent.; sheep and cattle, 95 per cent, and swine, 97 per cent.

The average price of wheat, Jan. 1, 1895, at the usual places of marketing by farmers, was 50 cents per bushel; of corn, 46 cents, and of oats 32 cents, and the average price of hay was $7.95 per ton.

The average price of fat cattle was $2.94 per cwt., of fat hogs, $3.96 per cwt., and of dressed pork, $3.97 per cwt.

The average price of each class of horses was as follows: Under one year old, $18.19; between one and two years old, $28.42; between two and three years old, $42.58; three years old and over, $60.77.

Milch cows were worth $27.91 per head. Cattle other than milch cows under one year old were worth, per head, $6.78; between one and two years old, $12.18; between two and three years old, $18.99, and three years old and over, $25.61.

The average price of sheep under one year old was $1.32, and one year old and over, $1.64; and hogs under one year old were worth $4.32, and one year old and over, $8.79.

The prices here given are for the state. For each class of horses and for sheep they are higher, and for milch cows, each class of cattle other than milch cows, and hogs, lower than the prices ruling in the southern four tiers of counties. The difference either way, however, is in no case large.

Compared with Jan. 1, 1894, there has been a decline in the prices of all farm products named in this report, excepting corn and oats. Corn averages 3 cents and oats 1 cent a bushel more now than one year ago.

The loss on wheat is 5 cents per bushel. The decline on fat cattle is 16 cents; fat hogs, 73 cents, and dressed pork, $1.10 per cwt.

The several classes of horses have declined in value as follows: Under one year old, $4.68; between one and two years old, $7.26; between two and three years old, $10.07, and three years old and over, $15.06.

Milch cows have declined $1.82 per head. Sheep under one year old have declined 38 cents per head, and those one year old and over, 52 cents per head.

Hogs under one year old average 94 cents less, and those one year old and over, $1.40 less than one year ago.

The Temptation of Job.

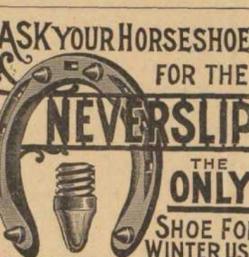

Mr. Geo. E. Dawson's second lecture on "The Problem of Temptation as Treated in Literature," was given yesterday noon at the M. E. church. The hour was given to an exhaustive and critical analysis of the treatment of the subject in the book of Job. Mr. Dawson took the ground that speculation in the authorship of the book was useless. That the book was written was the important point for consideration. Job was surely a typical victim of temptation and the particular value of the story is its application to the problem as met today. The speaker then proceeded to treat the subject as to its bearing on the life of to-day and closed with a vigorous and spirited application of the lessons of the book both to tempters and tempted in our social organizations. But running all through the lecture was a thread of the brighter lessons to be drawn from the gloomy aspect of the trials of Job, and his final triumph.

Lumber Interests Affected.

Free-Trade in lumber works infinite mischief to our interests. For example, Marine City, Mich., is a salt manufacturing town. A stove factory employing 125 men has been one of the industries of the town. Now the free staves coming in from Canada have been laid down in that town at prices below those of the native product, and the 125 men are out of work. In other large stove towns the Canadian staves, cheaper because of the lower Canadian wages, are forcing the American stove mills either to cut down the wages of their employees so that they can meet the Canadian competition, or to close their mills entirely, throw the employees out of work and surrender the market to the Canadian producers. In the face of thousands of such cases of direct ruin wrought by the Sugar-Whisky-Trust-Tariff monstrosity, there are fanatics and fools, dolts and imbeciles in this country who prate about "the inestimable benefits of Tariff Retawm to the laboring men of the United States."—The Lumber World, December, 1894.

THE SIMPLETONS, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December number, 1894, and continued to November, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and THE SIMPLETONS may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked Tilly—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the PERSONAL RECOLLECTIONS OF JOAN OR AGE, by the Sienr Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers tell the story of the Maid of Orleans. In the January number will appear a profusely illustrated paper on CHARLESTON AND THE CAROLINAS, the first of series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empires. The next volume of HARPER'S MAGAZINE will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict present life there. JULIAN RALPH will prepare for the magazine a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of Chinese Life and Manners. Besides the long stories there will begin in the January number the first chapters of A Three-Part Novella, by RICHARD HART, and the longest work yet attempted by this writer. Complete short stories by popular writers will continue to be a feature of the magazine.

Harper's Weekly.

IN 1895.

HARPER'S WEEKLY is a pictorial history of the times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately and comprehensively in illustration and descriptive text of the highest order.

The manner in which, during 1894, it has treated the Chicago Railway Strikes and the China-Japanese War, and the amount of light it was able to throw on Korean and Sino-Japanese attention was directed to that little-known country, are examples of its almost boundless resources. JULIAN RALPH, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there joined by C. D. WELDON, the well-known American artist, and for many years resident in Japan, who has been engaged to co-operate with Mr. RALPH in sending to HARPER'S WEEKLY exclusive illustrations of the war.

During 1895 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, and also in special articles by the highest authority in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and powerful and artistic political cartoons will continue to be characteristic features. "This Busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department."

FICTION. There will be two powerful serials, both handsomely illustrated—The Red Coward, a stirring romance of olden days by STANLEY J. WEYMAN, and a novel of New York, entitled The Son of His Father, by BRADLEY MATHEWS—several novelettes, and many short stories by popular writers.

Young Men's Christian Association
Has Safely Passed Its First Mile Stone.

It was a magnificent audience that gathered at the First M. E. church Sunday eve, to witness the first anniversary exercises of the Young Men's Christian Association. Almost a thousand voices joined in the opening hymn of praise. Every seat in the house was filled. The galleries were packed.

The presence of the large audience was a deserved manifestation of interest in the work of the Y. M. C. A. It must have given encouragement to the officers and directors of the association, under whose untiring care and by whose persistent efforts the first year of the local association has been one of continual growth and prosperity.

The Y. M. C. A. orchestra, under the leadership of Lew H. Clement, played an overture, while the latest of the audience were being seated. It may not be out of place to say that there are probably few associations in this or any other state that can boast of an orchestral organization as good or nearly as good as the one that Mr. Clement has developed in the few weeks that it has been organized.

Rev. T. W. Young, of the First Baptist church, offered the opening prayer, after which President Wagner, of the association, introduced Rev. W. H. Davis, of the First Congregational church, of Detroit, who delivered the anniversary address. Mr. Davis' sermon was not lengthy, but it was good. It appealed to the young man to do his best in life. The theme of his sermon was, "Some Motives of the Christian Life." The words from which the speaker drew the lessons he sought to teach were those of Paul in Romans, "Called to be Saints." The main thought of the speaker was as follows:

When we speak of saints we commonly think of dead people. The word implies an uncomfortable feeling. It makes us think of a desert or a monastery; of the philosopher with a skull on the table to remind him of mortality. Paul's idea of a saint was different from this. He looked out upon a tiling, common people. It was of their saintliness he spoke. It was Lincoln who said, "God must love the common people because he made so many of them." From these few words of Paul, "Called to be Saints," let me draw two inferences.

In the first place, we have here the divine way of estimating men as to what they may become. Paul is so sure of people becoming saints that he speaks of the fact in the perfect tense. He thinks of men as to their possibilities. Jacob was a mean man; the meekest man of the Old Testament. Yet the time came when he prevailed with God, and he became Israel. Peter was impulsive. At one time he was utterly depressed, and at another he was an enthusiast. Yet God honored him by seeing the possibility in him, and he called him the rock upon which he should build his church. How grand is this measurement in comparison with the measurement of men! If a man steal, we can never forget it. If he deceives us once, we remember the offense forever. How mean it is in comparison with the great, generous, stimulating method of God's grace. He sees the possibility in man and forecasts it.

The second thing to be derived from Paul's words is the great working motive it presents; to live efficiently and well the life we have to live. Motives, are motors. They are the propelling forces of our lives. The motives of the Christian life are many. Your motive may be fear, reward, gain, pride, honor, or fear of loss. Grand as all is the motive that appeals to the best in us. God expects the best that we can do. Nelson, at the Battle of Trafalgar inspired his soldiers to victory by hanging out an ensign on which were the words: "England expects every soldier to do his duty."

Young men, God measures you by your possibilities. God has put into your hands gifts, and he has great expectations regarding their use. You are all called to be saints. Keep ever in your view the prize of the high calling, which is pure and noble manhood.

After Mr. Davis' address, General Secretary W. C. Hull gave a brief report of the history of the association, outlined the work now being done and what is expected for the future.

It was not difficult for the audience to guess what was coming when Fred H. Belser began his speech. He told of the finances of the association. He said $1,200 must be raised for the work of this year. All but about $400 was already in sight and he had no fears for that amount. The ultimate object the association held in view was a $25,000 building of its own. Mr. Belser let the congregation off easy with a basket collection.

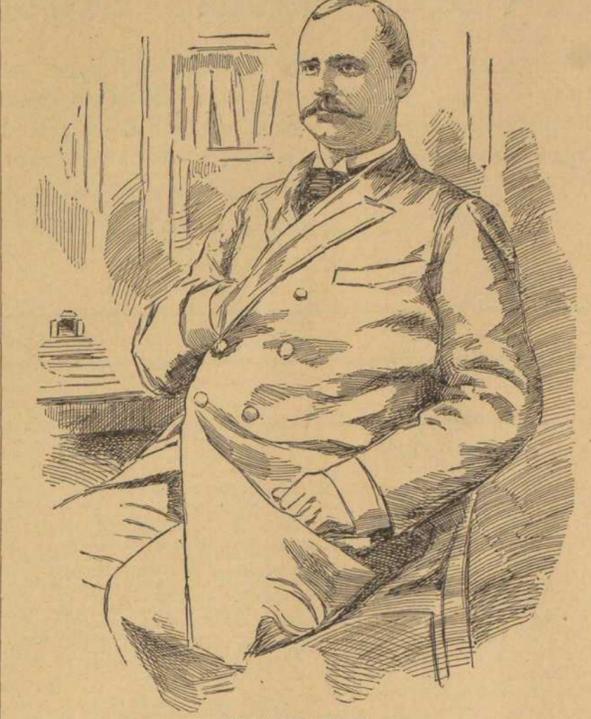

Following Mr. Belser's talk was the singing of a familiar hymn, when Dr. Davis dismissed the audience, every member of which was far more interested in the fortunes of the Y. M. C. A. than when the services of the first anniversary began.

ALMOST A MIRACLE!

A Well-known Railroad Man's Experience. Life Saved in a Way Which is Wonderful, and Ought to be Told Everywhere Far and Wide.

MR. CHARLES ANNABLE.

There is no better known railroad man than Mr. Charles Annable, who resides at 20 Jordan Ave., Brunswick, Me. He has occupied trust positions for thirty years on the Maine Central R. R.

"Yes," said Mr. Annable to the writer, "I can tell some remarkable stories from my long thirty years' railroad experience, but something has happened recently which is of the greatest importance to the people. Before I speak of myself, however, let my wife relate her wonderful experience."

"I have been troubled," began Mrs. Annable, "so bad with neuralgia that I could not turn my head in bed. It seemed as though my head was paralyzed. I was so troubled with heart disease and palpitation that a good many nights I thought I might pass away during the night."

"I suffered severely, and expected every day would be my last. My head seemed sometimes as though it would be paralyzed, and the least exertion would upset me and render me terribly weak and nervous. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and it completely cured me—made me well and strong again."

"It seems as though my cure was almost a miracle, for I am now cured. My neighbors, well-knowing my condition, are astonished at my recovery, and I cannot half highly enough express my gratitude for this wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. I shall be glad to answer inquiries at any time."

"I also have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy," said Mr. Annable, "and have derived great benefit from its use; I know it is the best of all medicines. I have recommended it to many of my friends, and shall continue to do so upon every chance."

The enthusiasm of Mr. and Mrs. Annable in regard to Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is not to be wondered at. It is indeed a wonderful medicine, wonderful because it cures almost everybody who uses it. It makes the sick well everywhere. It gives health and strength to the weak, tired and nervous sufferer. It gives good digestion to the dyspeptic, sweet sleep to the sleepless, and makes life again a joy and pleasure to those whom weak nerves and tired brains have rendered depressed in spirits, melancholy, discouraged and well-nigh hopeless. Use it and it will make you well. Doctors recommend it because it is the discovery and prescription of the well-known physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City, who is without doubt the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor can be consulted in all cases without charge, personally or by letter.

A USEFUL INVENTION.

A Sieve that Sifts Out Dusky Diamonds and Saves Bright Dollars.

Mr. J. B. Coon, of Washenaw avenue, has invented a sifter, to be used in sifting the ashes that come from furnaces and coal stoves, that will certainly come into general use, and his desire is to start a factory here, and have them manufactured upon a large scale, for the invention is practical, and one that every housekeeper will never do without if they only try it once.

The invention is a box, slightly oblong, into which are placed one or more sieves, according to the saving desire of the person. After filling the sieve with ashes from the furnace or stove, it is shaken very easily by a lever appliance, and the ashes entirely sifted from the coal and cinders. After the sifting process is through—which is performed in a tight box, out of which no dust can escape—the sieve with its contents is removed, and it takes but a brief period of time to separate the cinders and dump the good coal in a pile by itself, to be used over again. One is surprised at the quantity of good coal that is secured. Even from ashes that look as if there was little or no coal in them, there is found to be a considerable quantity.

The sifter has no legal name as yet, but quite a number are in use in the city, and every person having one considers it a necessity and would not part with it.

At present Mr. Coon has the sieves and parts made in Detroit, while he makes the boxes and puts them together here. The retail price of $3 is very reasonable for the little machine, if it may be called a machine, will save its price several times over during the winter.

The person who is really practical and saving takes the contents of these sieves and puts them in a pile separate from the other coal, and uses them at night, when it is desired to keep the fire without its burning too fiercely. In this way it is very economical.

Why They Didn't Vote.

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Marquis tells a very amusing incident of the late campaign which occurred at his Ohio home, says the Louisville Courier-Journal.

"I never fully realized the influence of example until last election day," said Mr. Marquis. "I have been a working member of the Logan county democratic committee for 34 years, and following my usual custom was out election day to get our people to the polls. Just outside of town I came across four or five democrats husking in the corn field. Aren't you boys coming to the polls?" I asked.

"Have you heard whether or not Mr. Cleveland has voted to-day?" was the prompt rejoinder.

"I replied that it was generally understood that the president was not going to vote that day."

"Well, neither are we. We are just as good as he is and have just as good reasons for staying away from the polls. Besides," said the spokesman of the party as I was leaving the field, "Mr. Cleveland gets $50,000 a year for being a democrat, while we receive $1.20 per day for husking corn. He can better afford to lose the time to go to the polls than we can."

"I have no doubt but that a great many democrats felt just that way about the election," concluded the Ohioan. "Just 1,000 democrats in my county remained away from the polls the 6th."

Frank Carroll was arrested by Officer Ambruster Saturday night for begging on the streets, and was given two days in jail by Justice Pond, with the assurance that if he came again, that a sentence of ninety days in the Detroit House of Correction would be the result.

A Brilliant Man Cut Off at the Threshold of His Usefulness.

The following article will be read with interest, from the fact that both Mr. Carter and Mr. Job were U. of M. boys and well-known in Ann Arbor:

Charles L. Carter, who was killed in the uprising of the royalists, led by Robert Wilcox, at Honolulu, was the intimate friend and classmate of Fred W. Job, consul general of the Hawaiian Republic in Chicago. The uprising, which had been feared for some time, took tangible form on Sunday, Jan. 6. On that day Mr. Carter was one of a posse which proceeded to the home of Henry Bertlemann, a prominent royalist, to search the premises for arms and ammunition. In the party were Chas. L. Carter, Alfred Carter and J. B. Castle, members of the Citizens' Guard. While the men were on the lawn in front of Bertlemann's house they were fired on by a party of natives in ambush under a boatshed. Charles L. Carter and Lieutenant Holi fell, the former fatally wounded. Desultory fighting continued for several days, during which twelve rioters were killed and 200 revolutionists were taken prisoners. Fighting had not ceased when the steamer Alameda, which brought the news, left Honolulu Jan. 11. The notorious Robert Wilcox, a half-breed, is at the head of the rebels. Ex-Queen Liliuokalani is reported to be in custody of the government, though her exact whereabouts is unknown. It is believed that she is at the bottom of the uprising.

"Carter was a martyr and like a martyr he has laid down his life for his people," said Mr. Job to-day. "His name will go down to posterity as a martyr. He was of the stuff of which heroes are made and nothing could daunt him in a cause which he considered right. Bullets could not fly fast enough to keep him from going anywhere to do what he thought right and threats had no effect."

NATIVE OF THE ISLANDS.

"Carter was thirty years old and I recently had a letter from him, written on his thirtieth birthday, full of hope and promise for the future of the islands and the people he loved so well, for he was born among them and was one of them. He was a son of H. A. P. Carter, who died four or five years ago, and who was the leading diplomat of that country. The Carters are an old and influential family in Hawaii and they have done more than anybody else to help and enlighten the people. The mother of Charles L. Carter was from an old missionary family at the islands."

"Charles Carter took the deepest interest in everything pertaining to the place of his nativity. The rotten condition of the government under the abuses of the old king and the queen preyed upon his mind, and he has told me that he walked the floor at night thinking of what could be done and what the outcome would be. But some of the natives, who are an impressionable race, would not follow the lead of men like Carter, who had their true interests at heart, but would take up with renegades like this Robert Wilcox, who is a man totally without character, principle or standing. He was educated by the old monarchy, forsook the monarchy and joined the revolutionists for a position and then went back to the royalists again, and now leads them in this new rebellion. Wilcox, as the late Charles Carter said, ought to have been hanged; if he had been Carter would not have been killed."

QUEEN A DANGEROUS WOMAN.

"Liliuokalani, in whose interest he has stirred up this revolt, is a dangerous and vicious woman. She is morally depraved and mentally without ability, and so far as her treatment of the natives is concerned has absolutely no claim upon them for anything. She does not do right by them and never has done anything to advance the best interests of the island."

"She is continually intriguing and harboring the revolutionists, and is ready to resume her throne again at any minute and by any means. She must realize that hers is the lost cause by this time, and I firmly believe that her recent petition for annexation was only a 'bluff,' and that she is at the bottom of the present uprising."

"Robert Wilcox, her chosen leader, has native blood in his veins. He is between thirty-five and forty years of age, and always had been an enemy of Mr. Carter. He saw that Mr. Carter was coming to the front in the affairs of the island, and while perhaps he did not know of the very bullet which killed his enemy, I believe it was fired at his instigation. He is, as he ought to be, a man without a country and has fostered his schemes by playing upon the credulity of the deluded natives."

Charles L. Carter was born on the island, where his father was an extensive sugar planter. He received his first education there and then traveled in Europe and in this country with his parents, his father being in the diplomatic service and a member of the king's cabinet. In 1883 young Carter came to Ann Arbor University, where he took a two years' literary course and a full course at the law school. He was one of the most popular men of his class. Of fine stature—he was over six feet tall and weighed over two hundred pounds—he was a first rate athlete and brave almost to a fault. He was a member of the college foot-ball eleven and was a leading spirit in the Sigma Phi fraternity."

SAW WITH PROPHECY VISION.

"While at Ann Arbor he met Miss Mary Horton Scott, a daughter of one of the oldest and most prominent families of the town. He became engaged to Miss Scott, and after his graduation in 1887, Mr. Carter went into the practice of the law with Senator Manderson at Omaha, Neb. Desiring to perfect himself in constitutional and international law, a year later Mr. Carter went to Toledo, Ohio, where he would be near enough to Ann Arbor to take advantage of its educational facilities. At Toledo he became associated with Emery D. Potter, one of the most prominent men at the Ohio bar. He remained there two years and then married Miss Scott, and the couple went to the islands, where Mr. Carter engaged in the practice of his profession."

"Even then he saw from the indications of the times that affairs in Hawaii would soon reach that crisis he had so often talked about and predicted, and he began to prepare for it. He interested himself in public affairs and he and Lorin A. Thurston, now minister at Washington, were immediately looked to as the representatives and leaders of the better element of the young Hawaiians who opposed the methods and policy of the monarchy, which was growing more and more rotten and corrupt and which was beginning to show the signs of dissolution and decay. So, when the move was made to throw off the yoke of monarchy, Mr. Carter, as one of the leading men of the island, was selected as one of the five commissioners to come to this country to ask for annexation. Mr. Carter was left at Washington as the representative of the new government when the other four commissioners returned to Honolulu. He was the head of the Hawaiian legation during his stay in Washington and he did an effective work and made great headway toward annexation with President Harrison and his cabinet."

WAS A NATURAL DIPLOMATIST.

While Mr. Carter was in Washington he became prominent in diplomatic circles, and was lionized by society there. He was regarded as one of the brilliant, rising diplomats of the day by Washington people. Subsequently, his services were needed at home and he returned, Lorin A. Thurston being sent as minister."

"Upon his return to Honolulu, Mr. Carter was elected judge. This position he resigned to turn to the practice of the law, forming a partnership with his cousin, Alfred Carter, who was with him at the time he received his death wound. He had three children, two of whom survive him, as well as two married sisters, Belle and Cordelia, at the island, and a married sister and a brother at Seattle, Wash., the latter being Hawaiian consul at that place. Mr. Carter was an intensely loyal man, and devoted to his country, which he loved ardently."

"This man Wilcox ought to be shot as soon as taken. The western law ought to apply to this case—shoot him first and try him afterwards to find out if he was guilty or not. The ex-Queen Liliuokalani ought to be closely guarded to prevent her making mischief. Her presence on the island is a menace to its peace, yet what to do with her is a serious question. If she were despoiled or were to die, then her niece, a young girl of good character, who is now being educated in Europe, would become the successor to the throne. This might result to the advantage of the royalists, as they could say of her that her character was all right, and that the objections which can be urged against Liliuokalani do not apply. The ex-queen is known to be a depraved and worthless woman, and this destroys sympathy for those who want to place her on the throne again. There are 100,000 inhabitants in the island, and of these 30,000 are natives, who are decreasing in number every year, still favor the monarchy, and these are the people among whom this man Wilcox is sowing the seed of sedition. But the uprising will be promptly put down, I have not the slightest doubt, and the ringleader will be punished."

Mr. Job received a telegram from Mrs. Carter to-day announcing her husband's death. It merely said: "Charles L. Carter died here Jan. 7. See press dispatches." The message came by the steamer Alameda to San Francisco."

THE C. H. & D.

Did Not Wait For The Interchangeable Mileage Bill to be Passed.

The general passenger agent of one of the important systems of roads in the Central Traffic Association territory, in conversation with a reporter of the Indianapolis Journal, said: "I see by the Journal of Wednesday that the commercial travelers' bill for interchangeable mileage has been favorably received and will likely be passed at the next meeting of the senate. The Commercial Travelers' Association have spent a great deal of money and time in pressing the bill. The passage of the bill will undoubtedly help them in some parts of the country, although in the more densely populated and busy parts of the community the demands of business are more likely to produce favorable methods for the free interchange of business that can be accomplished by legislation, as, for example, commencing with the 1st of January, the thousand-mile tickets of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton which are sold for $20, are accepted for passage over not only their connections but competing lines, and this mileage book gives a man the choice of a commercial territory covering over ten thousand miles of railroad. For instance, this ticket is honored from Cincinnati to St. Louis over the issuing road, in connection with the Vandalla, and also over the competing lines, the Big Four and the Ohio & Mississippi. It is also good between Louisville and Cincinnati, good between Chicago and Cincinnati over two roads, good between Cleveland and Cincinnati over two roads, good between Columbus and Cincinnati, good between Cincinnati, Toledo and Detroit, so that so far as the Central states are concerned, the field is practically covered by the liberal action of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad, in advance of the proposed legislation."

FIVE O'CLOCK TEA.

As might have been expected, the golf stick has appeared as a gold scarf pin. Women who wear French heel shoes forever complain of "that tired feeling." Young matrons in velvet gowns make themselves rather prematurely aged. There seems as there are different religious sects. Long strings of pearls around the neck is the ultra-fashion in opera boxes. English red and tan walking gloves are the kind the modern Brummel affects. Bonbon boxes are a dream as beautiful as Cinderella or any other girl ever had. Dresden china picture frames are sufficiently popular to crowd out the silver ones. Art pottery has reached a perfection that even the visionary never dreamed of. It would now be difficult to decide which style of hair-dressing is most fashionable. Shopkeepers surely cater to fashionable taste when they sell dog blankets embroidered.

Commissioner Chas. L. Carter Killed.

This morning's news from the Hawaiian Islands is very exciting. It seems that one Robert Wilcox with about 200 Royalists raised the standard of rebellion against the existing government. A posse of men was sent to the residence of a prominent royalist, to search his house for arms and ammunition. The posse was joined by Carter, who discovered a number of natives armed. They fired upon him and he fell pierced by three balls. Taken to his home he lived a few hours only. The paper states that when the boat left on Jan. 11th, the government troops had the rebellion practically subdued.

The death of Mr. Carter will be sad news for this community. He was a graduate of the University, class of '84, and married Miss Mary Scott, a daughter of the late J. Austin Scott, and sister of Evert H. Scott, of this city. He is pleasantly remembered here as being a good student and thorough gentleman.

The news is received here with astonishment and regrets, and many have criticized this administration very severely for its course in Hawaiian affairs, believing that had even a United States war vessel been retained at Honolulu, this life would not have been sacrificed.

Mr. Carter was one of the commissioners sent by the provisional government to this country, who were so coolly received by President Cleveland.

ESTATE OF DANIEL E. WINES, DECEASED.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Washtenaw, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, held at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, on Wednesday, the ninth day of January in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five. Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate. In the matter of the estate of Daniel E. Wines deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Charles A. Wines praying that a certain instrument heretofore in the possession of Levi D. Wines and now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased may be admitted to probate and that administration of said estate, may be granted to the executor in said will named or to some other suitable person. Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 18th day of February next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the devisees, legatees, and heirs at law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, and show cause, if any should not be granted: And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereon, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the ANN ARBOR COURIER, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing. (A True Copy.) J. WILLARD BABBITT, Judge of Probate. Wm. G. Doty, Probate Register.

DREADFUL PSORIASIS

Covering Entire Body with White Scales. Suffering Fearful. Cured by Cuticura.

My disease (psoriasis) first broke out on my left cheek, spreading across my nose, and almost covering my face. It ran into my eyes, and the physician was afraid I would lose my eyesight altogether. It spread all over my head, and my hair all fell out, until I was entirely bald-headed; it then entirely broke out on my arms and shoulders, until my arms were just one sore. It covered my entire body, my face, head, and shoulders being the worst. The white scales fell constantly from my head, shoulders, and arms; the skin would thicken and be red and very itchy, and would crack and bleed if scratched. After spending many hundreds of dollars, I was pronounced incurable. I heard of the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using two bottles CUTICURA RESOLVENT, I could see a change; and after I had taken four bottles, I was almost cured; and when I had used six bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was cured of the dreadful disease from which I had suffered for five years. I cannot express with a pen what I suffered before using the REMEDIES. They saved my life, and I feel it my duty to recommend them. My hair is restored as good as ever, and so is my eyesight. Mrs. ROSA KELLY, Rockwell City, Iowa.
