HIGH SCHOOL REGULATIONS.

Board of Education Preparing a Brand New Set of Rules to Govern the School.

The committee of the board of education on teachers and text books has been re-arranging the rules and regulations of the high school and will present them to the board at its meeting next Tuesday, for approval. The committee which consists of Dr. W. B. Smith and Junius E. Beal, met with Supt. Perry and Principal Patten last Saturday and made a general revision of the rules of the board, culling out the out-of-date regulations and amending others. When the board acts upon the report of the committee there will be brand new set of rules that can be enforced without danger of the faculty being charged with disciplining with antiquated rules.

One almost uniform change in the rules will be that expulsion will be subject to a two-thirds vote of the faculty instead of at the discretion of the principal alone. This is more easily possible on account of the fact that the teachers hold regular weekly faculty meetings. The rules will aim to give the teachers more authority in the government of the school and will doubtless insure better scholarship and better work.

It is understood that the report of the committee will be condemnatory of the so-called secret societies as having a harmful effect on the students. These societies have now been formed among eighth grade students and even in the ward schools. The board sees that it is absolutely necessary to restrict these societies, although it is not an easy task to draw the line in the matter.

VERY LARGE ENROLLMENT.

School of Music Has a Surprisingly Big Attendance This Semester—Much Above Last Year.

The faculty of the School of Music was pleasantly surprised this semester at the largely increased enrollment. The attendance has now reached a number between 150 and 175, which is almost 50 more than last year's registration.

At the beginning of the semester it was seen that the increase in attendance was so marked that difficulty would be experienced in taking care of them with the faculty facilities then at hand. The new students were, however, sandwiched in, and with the addition of Miss Frances Taylor to the faculty, were well taken care of. This necessitated a much heavier draft of work from Mr. Lamson and Miss Jaffe than usual. The faculty are greatly pleased with the signs of prosperity for the school and willingly submits to the increased demands upon their time for instruction.

Mr. Goodyear Appointed.

The Detroit papers last evening contained a complete list of the appointments made by Gov. Rich. Among them was that of Mr. J. J. Goodyear, of this city, as trustee of the Eastern Asylum for the Insane at Pontiac, for a period of six years.

Mr. Goodyear succeeds Mr. Fred Schmid of this city, in the position. This new appointment of Gov. Rich is one that will commend itself to the people of this vicinity, as Mr. Goodyear is a successful business man possessing the qualifications necessary to guide aright the affairs of such a great institution. He is popular with the people, and has many friends who have already poured in their congratulations.

Isaac N. S. Foster, of Ann Arbor township, one of the Washtenaw county delegates to the republican senatorial convention, remained in Jackson over Sunday, visiting his brother, U. T. Foster, who has been confined to his house for a number of weeks with a broken limb. Mr. Isaac Foster has been a resident for 57 years on the farm taken up from the government in 1837. His brother, Rev. G. L. Foster, deceased, was the first settled pastor of the Congregational church of Jackson.—Jackson Daily Citizen.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Washtenaw County Association Will Convene in Ann Arbor Next Monday and Tuesday.

The eighth annual convention of the Washtenaw County Sunday School association will be held in the Disciples' church, of this city, next week Monday and Tuesday, March 11 and 12. An interesting program of four sessions has been arranged and published by the executive committee, in which several prominent Sunday school workers will participate. The opening session will be on Monday evening next, when Rev. J. M. Patterson, D. D., of the First Presbyterian church, of Detroit, will address the convention on "Soul Winning." On Tuesday there will be papers and addresses by Rev. C. C. Marshall, of Saline; D. F. Mertz, of Ann Arbor; E. A. Hough, of Jackson; Miss Jennie L. Moore, of Ypsilanti; Prof. G. P. Coler, of Ann Arbor; Rev. H. M. Morey, and Rev. E. W. Ryan, of Ypsilanti. Each Sunday school is entitled to two delegates. The present officers of the association are Rev. M. W. Fairfield, D. D., of Ypsilanti, president; Prof. W. S. Perry, of Ann Arbor, vice president; Mrs. W. W. Beman, of Ann Arbor, secretary and treasurer.

Preliminary to the convention, an inspirational meeting will be held in this city, in the M. E. church, to-morrow evening, at 8 o'clock, when Secretary of State Washington Gardner, of Lansing, will deliver an address. Everybody is invited to hear him.

Saturday Evening's Meeting Brought Out a Hundred Men.

There was an enthusiastic meeting of the candidates for the varsity track team in room 24 of the main building last Saturday evening. Over one hundred men took interest enough in the matter to turn out. The men were addressed by Capt. LeRoy and Trainer Fitzpatrick, each of whom spoke of the plans for the spring training which is now on. Manager Baird and Capt. Shields also spoke enthusiastically of the prospects for next spring's team. The team will be sent to the inter-collegiate games in Chicago, possibly to a meeting with the University of California, and if any man shows likelihood of winning a point, he will be sent to the inter-collegiate contest in New York.

In the training the men will be divided into squads according to the events. During the month of March all candidates except broad jumpers and hammer throwers will be required to come out three times a week. Out-door work will begin April 1, weather permitting.

Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's drug store, and Geo. J. Heausler, Manchester.

FARM STATISTICS.

The Census Bureau Gives Out Interesting Figures.

Robert L. Hewitt, chief of the Michigan census bureau, Wednesday morning issued some interesting tables showing the number of farms in the state classified according to tenure, and the dairy statistics of the state as returned in the state census of June 1, 1894. No farm of less than three acres was returned unless two hundred dollars worth of produce was sold off from it during the year. The total number of farms in the state is 177,952, of which 149,093 are cultivated by owners, 9,127 are rented for fixed money rental, and 19,732 are rented for shares of products. In 1884 the total number of farms returned in the census was 157,389, of which 138,523 were cultivated by owners, 5,657 were rented for fixed money rental, and 13,209 were rented for shares of products.

Of the total number of farms in the state, 88.01 per cent, in 1884, and 83.78 per cent, in 1894 were cultivated by owners; 3.60 per cent, in 1884, and 5.13 per cent, in 1895 were rented for money; and 8.39 per cent, in 1884, and 11.09 per cent, in 1894 were rented for shares of products. The proportion of farms cultivated by owners was 2.01 per cent less in 1890 than in 1884, and 2.22 per cent less in 1894 than in 1890. Beginning with 1880, in each one thousand farms in the state, the number cultivated by owners at each census was as follows: In 1880, 900; 1885, 880; 1890, 860; 1894, 838.

The state totals of the dairy statistics are as follows: Total milk produced on farms, 212,070,373 gallons; value of all milk and cream sold from farms, $2,970,385; butter made on farms, 48,951,378 pounds; cheese made on farms, 206,660 pounds. These totals are for the year ending June 1, 1894.

The national census of dairy products taken June 1, 1890, including the products of the year ending December 31, 1889, shows as follows: Milk produced, 224,537,488 gallons; butter made on farms, 50,197,481 pounds; cheese made on farms, 325,682 pounds. The products as shown by the present census are less than the national census totals by 12,467,115 gallons of milk, 1,246,103 pounds of butter, and 122,022 pounds of cheese.

Clubs for Farmer's Wives.

A simple organization and one of great interest, is called "The Newspaper Club," writes Helen Jay in the March Ladies' Home Journal. The members are bound to carefully read the news of the day as stated by the papers. One member is assigned the foreign news for one week, another the political charges of our country, a third has charge of the book reviews, while others must study up the records of the lives of men and women at the moment most prominently before the public. In this way women are brought closely in touch with the life of the world and lifted above local prejudice and tradition. In some neighborhoods what are called "Rocking-Chair Clubs" obtain. Such organizations have no object other than the cultivation of friendship among women. The motto might well be the words of Emerson, "Conversation—what is it all but that?" One member reads aloud while the others sew, but part of the time is devoted to the good old fashion of telling the individual experience and passing on the helpful thought, the title of the book or article found of service, the useful receipt or the personal discovery of new methods of value in the home. In one club what has been called the "Three D's"—Dress, Diseases and Domesticity, were prohibited topics, and no woman was allowed to quote her husband or chronicle the sayings and doings of her children. In another neighborhood, where most of the women were young mothers, the little ones became the principal subject of discussion, and that most charming work, "Mothers in Council," became almost the hand-book of the organization.

The new village law requires twenty instead of ten days to gain a residence, as under the old law.

During the past year forty-two of the Livingston county pioneers have been taken away by death.

Rev. J. Huntington, for a number of years pastor of the Baptist church at Milan, died at his home in Plymouth, Feb. 23.

The town board of Dundee have appointed a commission to exterminate the yellows in peaches and black knot in plums.

The Enterprise would like to have some of the capitalists of that village erect some new cottages there this summer.

James Hendershott, of Manchester, died Feb. 20, aged about 80 years. He had lived in the vicinity of Manchester since 1838.

Mrs. Ann Cunningham, of Scio village, died Feb. 20, aged 69 years. She had lived in the county since 1855, and was a native of Ireland.

A man may wear a full beard for sanitary reasons; he may shave and wear a smooth face for cleanliness' sake; but no man shaves a part of his face and cherishes a mustache or goatee for any other reason than personal vanity. Shave smooth or go hairy.—Ypsilanti Sentinel. The editor of the Sentinel cannot raise either a goatee or a mustache.—Chelsea Standard.

Chas. Cooley has received his appointment as postmaster at Iron Creek. Among the list of names he sent in was that of Spike, his bulldog's name, and this one it was decided by the department to use, so the postoffice at Iron Creek will be called Spike. It has not been decided definitely as to the route, but it is thought that the mail will be brought to Reynold's Corners and the Evans Lake carriers bring it here.—Clinton Local.

The editors of the Fenton Independent and Northville Record are vying with each other in publishing original prescriptions to relieve their readers from pain and suffering. Here is the Independent's latest: "The Northville Record says that a nutmeg, suspended on a piece of common string near the breast and next to the skin, will afford instant relief from neuralgia. Try it, and if not successful, this one will do it: Suspend yourself by the neck with a good strong rope, and remain suspended for twenty minutes. You will never be troubled with further neuralgic attacks."

Died, Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 27, at her home in York township, three miles north of this village, Nancy, wife of Robert Rainey, aged 86 years, 11 months and 24 days. She was born in Antrim county, Ireland, and came to America in 1852, settling in New York state. She was there married to Robert Rainey, who survives her. They came to Michigan about the year 1858, locating at Macon, Lenawee county, and in 1864 they came to York township, where they have lived since. She was a member of the York Baptist church, where the funeral was held to-day; sermon by Rev. J. Ward Stone, pastor of the Milan Baptist church.—Milan Leader.

If the republicans desire to go before the people with no club over their heads, they should insist upon a short session of the legislature. At the present rate of progress the session will last until July or August.

The statistics from the secretary of state's office show that over three-quarters of the farms of Michigan are cultivated by their owners. An increase of thirteen per cent. for the year.

A colored boy, the son of a barber, took the first prize in a recent oratorical contest at the University of Indiana, his subject being "Lincoln." This is another evidence that the negro can rise through application and industry as well as the white man.

Representative Redfern has introduced a bill to prevent divorced parties marrying again within two years after the decree has been granted. A few more little hindrances like that would have the effect of materially checking this wholesale divorce business.—Fenton Independent.

In connection with the defection of the Jackson county delegation from Judge Kinnear, at Detroit, one thing should be remembered, that Col. V. C. Deland and John C. Sharp stood solid with Washtenaw. This should be remembered by our county delegation that goes to the senatorial convention next week. If Col. Deland wants the nomination for state senator he merits the support of Washtenaw.

This is from the Adrian Press, which is not republican in politics: "Last Sunday Prof. Bradley M. Thompson, of Ann Arbor, lectured on the 'English Exchequer.' That's the checker, professor. Tell the students and political economists, over there, how John Bull snickered when he saw the United States issuing bonds at four per cent. to fill up the English Exchequer, by interest on gold transferred from the English Exchequer. It's a case of checkered financial management and may be termed the gold-zootie."

The Orange Judd Farmer gives the following crop estimates: It places the last wheat crop at 518,000,000 bu. The amount remaining in farmers' hands is placed at 29.8 per cent. or 154,000,000 bu. A year ago they estimated the amount at 138,000,000 bu., which proved to be 30,000,000 bu. too low. In other words the present reserves in farmers' hands are 10,000,000 bu. smaller than a year ago. About 37,000,000 bu. of wheat were fed animals up to March 1st. This is smaller than expected. It says at present rate of exports the supplies left next July would be about the same as a year ago. It estimates that 39 per cent. of the corn crop, or 563,000,000 bu. remains in reserves.

THE COTTON MEN ARE CAUGHT.

The following article, taken from a recent issue of the Detroit Journal, to which it was sent by Giles B. Stebbins, shows how the southerners are waking up to the true condition of affairs as it is down there, and where they made their mistake:

Editor Journal—Eli Perkins writes the American Economist of a late interview at Palatka, Fla., with Judge Hunt. After discussing the loss to orange growers by the late frost, the judge said:

"But there is another over-production in the south in a worse condition than the orange crop."

"What is that?" I asked.

"It is cotton, sir. Our farmers are now getting 3 1/2 and 4 cents a pound for what we used to get 10 cents for, and it is going lower every day. When I think how foolish we southerners have acted it makes me sick. We had the chance to save ourselves offered us and we threw it away. We are now convinced of our own foolishness."

"Well what have you done?" I asked.

"We could not have done worse," said the judge. "We know how that cheap wool is a substitute for cotton. That is, cheap cotton was substituted for wool, but now cheap wool is a substitute all over the north for cotton."

"Cheap Thibet, Asiatic and Australian wool used to cost from 16 to 25 cents. We southerners thought it was smart to stab the wool farmers and take the 10-cent tariff off of wool. We did it, and now that same wool is being sold to Northern knit shirt and cloth factories for from 6 to 15 cents. With 6-cent wool the mills are throwing back our cotton. Who would not give two cents a pound more for woolen shirts or cloth than for the same thing made of cotton?"

"How much cotton will this throw out of the market?" I asked.

"A million bales, sir. A friend of mine, who has been in the New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts mills, writes me that 'cheap foreign wool is hurting the south more than the north. It will reduce the demand for cotton a million bales,' he says, 'and send the price of cotton down to 3 1/2 cents to our cotton farmers.' Then see what idiots we have been on the sugar question!"

"What have you done?" I asked.

"Why we southern men voted solidly against the bounty on sugar. Sugar was growing prodigiously in Florida, Southern Alabama, Louisiana, and Texas. It was spreading all along [the Gulf of Mexico from Lake Charles to Corpus Christi. It was going up the Brazos. In five years, with the bounty which Germany kept on till she now makes $60,000,000 worth of sugar annually—I say in five years this sugar would have taken 2,000,000 bales of cotton out of our way and put $50,000,000 worth of sugar in its place. Think of it, we southerners have cut off the demand for cotton a million bales in the north and increased our product 2,000,000 bales in the south."

"What made you do it?" I asked.

"Oh, politics. Dog-on silly, idiotic politics. We thought we must back the Democratic party, and now they've swamped themselves in the north and made paupers of us in the south."

"And what do you propose to do?"

"Why let us put the wool tariff back and let our cheap cotton take the place of Asiatic wool, and then put the sugar bounty on again and send sugar into the cotton fields. Editorials in the papers and prayers in the churches won't save us now. We must quit politics and use our brains!"

Southern planters are now trying to combine and reduce wages to 50 cents a day for men and 40 cents for women;—dire necessity driving them to this best measure.

But Judge Hunt's plain talk shows "the solid south" is in danger. What will the Democratic party do without that solid ally and ruler?

Its case is bad. Let Republicans in congress and out be active and wise, and give it rope enough, that all may be glad in 1896 to see how it has hung itself.

The democrats nominated the following ticket Thursday at their convention in Saginaw: For associate justice of the supreme court, the present incumbent Judge J. W. McGrath; for regents of the University, Judge C. J. Palthorp, of Petoskey, and Hon. Stratton D. Brooks, of Mt. Pleasant.

The people of the state, especially the state militia, and the members of the G. A. R., will be shocked to learn of the death of Gen. Chas. L. Eaton, at Detroit Wednesday. He was attending the funeral of Green Pack, and just as the benediction was pronounced, he dropped dead with a stroke of apoplexy. Gen. Eaton was known all over the state, and had friends wherever known. His death will cause a feeling of sorrow from one end of Michigan to the other.

The commission appointed by the democratic legislature of Tennessee is now going through the farce of pretending to decide the gubernatorial contest in that state. They are almost certain to give the place to the democratic incumbent, even though, on the face of the returns, the republican candidate was elected. The task of breaking the solid south is a difficult one, but it will be accomplished in good time.

IT IS THE POOR WHO RULE.

When a man tells you that it is the men of wealth that controls this nation, he is telling you something he knows nothing about. It is not wealth or wealthy men who control the affairs of this country.

It is the anarchist and the bigot who preaches that thing. Let us look into this matter and see about it.

In this country all men who have the right to vote are on a dead level on election day. A rich man can vote but once. A poor man with a cottage and a bit of ground, or without either the one or the other, is the peer of the millionaire when he stands before the ballot-box.

Poor men in congress, poor men in every public station are far more numerous than rich men. The United States senate has been called a club for millionaires. Yet there are more poor senators than rich ones and there always have been.

Poor men are in the majority on the bench of the Supreme Court.

Poor men are almost invariably elected President. Lincoln, especially was poor. So was Grant.

The friends of Garfield gave him money with which to meet the personal expenses of his campaign.

Cleveland was poor when he went to Washington in 1885, however rich he may be now.

The richest man in this field was George Washington, of Virginia, he was worth, as the saying goes, something like $600,000. He had broad acres and many slaves and lived in a fine mansion. He drank French wine and wore English clothing. From a purely selfish point of view George Washington ought to have been a Loyalist instead of a Patriot. By throwing his sword on the side of the struggling colonists George Washington placed both his head and fortune in jeopardy. No man since his day, rich or poor, has been as patriotic and unselfish as George Washington.

The presidency of the United States begun in riches has continued, in the main, however, in respectable and dignified poverty—not the poverty that is dependent and revolutionary, but the poverty that is independent, self-respecting, patriotic, and generally able and intelligent. John Adams wrote many letters to his splendid wife, Abigail, his wife at home on the farm, counseling frugality, and thus John Quincy, his son, by the father's counsel and the mother's thrift, came to be a rich man. Thomas Jefferson was wealthy, for a man in his time, but he died poor and his patriotism underwent no change. There was no money measure to his devotion to his country and his countrymen. He was not ennobled when he was poor; nor was he denounced when he was rich.

After Jefferson came the son of those Irish immigrants, the Jacksons; then Harrison, the court house clerk of Hamilton county, Ohio; then Taylor, the soldier on a soldier's pay; then Fillmore, the wool-carder; then Lincoln, the splitter of rails; then Johnson, the tailor; then Grant, the obscure leather merchant, and then Garfield, the carpenter and bellringer of Hiram.

From the beginning until this very hour American thought and legislation have been led and shaped by men who were poor in purse, but rich in honesty, capability and patriotism. And so long as the majority of the American people are poor or are in moderate circumstances, and they always will be, and so long as men vote and money doesn't, the republic will be safe and solid and laws will not be made for the strong and against the weak. What this country needs to-day more than anything else is the eradication of class intolerance and class prejudice.

The total number of men who served in the Union army during the war is placed by carefully revised figures at 2,128,948. The deaths in battle were 67,058, from wounds 43,012, and from disease 224,586, leaving to be mustered out 1,794,292. The number alive a year and a half ago was reported at 1,209,968. Probably not more than half the vast army that preserved an undivided country are now alive.

The confederate silver half dollar is reckoned as one of the rarest of American coins. Only four of such coins were struck. The confederate silver half dollar bears the date of 1861 and was struck at the mint in New Orleans just before that institution was closed by the Federal troops. It has the goddess of liberty on one side, and a stalk of cane, one of cotton and the stars and bars of the confederacy in a coat of arms on the other.

When the aldermen think it over we presume they will not deem it best to send a junket to Lansing to lobby for or against any bills. In doing so they would be spending the taxpayer's money for defeating the very things some taxpayers want, or for favoring things some do not want. They might run up against the same kind of an injunction the Detroit council did on their $2,500 junket money. Ann Arbor has a representative at Lansing able to look after the interests of the city.

OPPOSED TO SALARIES.

The following article from the Ann Arbor Democrat, expresses the prevailing opinion in regard to the proposed charter tinkering on the salary question:

"Strong opposition is being shown in many quarters to the proposed charter changes giving salaries to our aldermen, council president and mayor. It does seem that enough capable men can be found in Ann Arbor who will give their time to the city's interests in the future as in the past, without further salaries than the present liberal allowance of one dollar per year to the mayor. Ann Arbor can always be well served in her city government with progressive, educated, business men, because her exceptional educational and business advantages will continue to attract proficient men in all professions. The last thing to which city officers of this character would descend, is the petty ax-grinding which characterizes only too many actions of salaried officers everywhere. Our offices have been well managed in the past by officers who generally donated their services to the city and legislated without thought of reward. If any salaries were attached to these offices they should be large enough to attract men of ability; and this additional burden on Ann Arbor's tax-payers would hardly be welcomed by any but the would be officers themselves."

HOW THE O. E. S. IS GROWING.

The worthy grand matron, of the Order of the Eastern Star, Mrs. Louise A. Turk, of Alma, has been obliged to forego her usual winter visit to Florida, on account of pressing work in the order.

A chapter of the order was recently organized at Homer by A. S. Wright, worthy grand patron, assisted by the worthy grand matron and Mrs. Sarah Marsh, of Quincy. On Feb. 13 they organized a chapter at Clayton, Mich. Both chapters are in a very prosperous condition. Thirteen chapters have been organized since the beginning of the fiscal year, October, 1894, and several more are to be organized in the near future.

The work of the order was never in so prosperous a condition. Mr. Wright and Mrs. Turk are receiving much praise and credit for the thorough work they are doing in the interests of the order. It was never in better hands, and though other years have been progressive ones, this will exceed them all.

The proceedings of the last annual session have been issued by the grand secretary, Mrs. A. A. Matteson, of Middleville. They are models of neatness, and reflect much credit on her. Twenty-three chapters were organized during the year.

THE HAWAIIAN INFAMY.

The following is an extract from the address of Hon. Chas. H. Aldrich before the Michigan club, at its recent banquet:

"What could be expected from such a beginning? They have made the word 'diplomacy' equivalent to the word 'ambuscade.' Where in the history of civilized nations was a representative accredited to another power, whose chief executive was addressed as 'My great and good brother,' and was to be stabbed to death as the credentials were presented and the pretended embrace of friendship was given? 'Brutus declaration of love for Caesar, as a justification for slaying him, would never have rung through the pages of literature as the statement of a patriot, if its real purpose had been to tender a dissolute queen the imperial crown which Caesar had put aside."

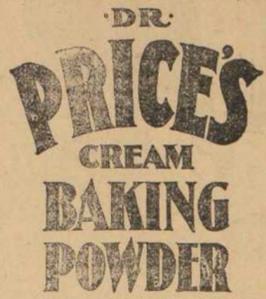

"But the infamy of the Hawaiian policy did not end here. There lies in a martyr's grave in that far island in the Pacific, a man educated in yonder University of yours, and who there imbibed those principles of liberty which inspire patriots and lead them, if need be, to sacrifice all—even life itself—upon the altars of human freedom. And there mourns beside his grave a fair daughter of Michigan, his wife, who 'weepeth sore in the night, and her tears are on her cheeks, and like Rachel refuses to be comforted.'"

"Who is there who believes that insurrection had been possible in Hawaii if the government at Washington had been true to our country, our traditions, and our young and struggling sister republic of the Pacific Ocean? Let the blood of Charles L. Carter and the tears of his stricken wife rest upon this policy of infamy! Had not the people registered their swift rebuke, we would have had cause to mourn these degenerate days."

The democrats in congress kicked the McKinley law out, body and breeches, because it was a republican measure. They have been ever since trying to bring it back again—by sections, and introduced many bills looking to reciprocal trade with other countries discriminated against by the repeal of the law. It is plain enough to anyone who can see, that the reciprocity idea was one of the best things for the country ever enacted. It will be a good thing for the country when beneficial laws will be allowed to remain in force, even if originated by the other fellows.

The Northville News tells something about Michigan's fame: "Northville against the world every time for pretty women, fast horses, and fish culture, particularly the latter. All other towns have to stand back like a poor man at a frolic, while Northville fairly revels in worldly fame. Now comes his majesty, the emperor of Russia, who in the most elegant court language asks Superintendent Clark for full information on the culture of fish, as conducted under his direction at various points in Michigan. Also orders a lot of fish boxes to be used for the transportation of fish eggs. Mr. H. O. Waid is at work preparing the boxes for his majesty, in the best possible style, and they will be forwarded to their destination all in good time. Thus have the peerless fisheries of Northville become a household word in the homes of royalty."

Why purchase gold? To restore the gold reserve to the $100,000,000 limit. Why was the gold reserve not maintained by this administration as it had been by all its predecessors? Because it was used to meet current expenses. Why was it used to meet current expenses? Because of a deficit in the treasury. Why was there a deficit in the treasury? Because of tariff tinkering by those who denounced protection to home industries as a "fraud" and reciprocity with foreign nations as a "sham." And so the president pays 3-3-4 per cent. interest on a loan for the ostensible purpose of replenishing the gold reserve—but for the real purpose of making good a tariff reform deficit. Remember the facts!—New York Mail and Express.

A New York clergyman, Rev. Madison C. Peters, gave his congregation these wholesome truths on a recent Sunday: "The wealth of this nation is in the hands of the few, and these few are marrying off their daughters to titled imbeciles. This is the most successful way of making a nation poor. A marriage for money or title is a humiliation to the dust; a hollow mockery that blushes to heaven. Most men as a rule marry for love; the coy and scoundrel always for money. With them Cupid has changed his name to Cupidity. There is no record of an international marriage, where hard cash was the consideration for empty titles, that did not end unhappily. Yet ambitious fathers and managing mothers and heartless daughters are constantly playing the same unlucky game."

It is said that when this Count who is to marry Anna Gould's money, first sent word to his parents that he was engaged, they cabled him these cabalistic words: "How much do you get?" He answered "Don't know yet." After a few days he ascertained, and made the hearts of his old parents glad with these words: "Fifteen millions."

BOTH CHARMERS CAME.

How a Student Got Caught in a Little Game of Hearts.

The following true story is told by the Adrian Times and needs no vouchers. The fact that the Times tells it is vouchered enough:

"An Ann Arbor student had a row with his best girl, who lives in Toledo, about Christmas time, and out of spite he some time later invited a Chicago girl and her mother to the junior hop. Meantime the Toledo trouble cleared up, and the student was sorry he hadn't asked the girl who was so much as ever. But about two weeks before the swell event she was taken sick, and in writing her a sympathetic letter he told her how sorry he was, for he had intended asking her to the ball, but now he had to stay at home, as he couldn't think of going with anyone else. The morning of the hop he received a telegram from Toledo and one from Chicago, saying all was well, and that two best girls and two fond mammas would be on hand for the ball. Rushing to the drug store the dismayed hypocrite got some stuff to make him sick, and was soon laid up in bed. His failure to meet his friends at the depot was explained by a fellow student, and the fair ones were so grieved that the two old ladies went at once to the invalid's rooms, where they met, compared notes, and tumbled to his little racket. The student courts only Ann Arbor girls now."

SPRING CHICKENS.

A Description of How They are Hatched and Cared for.

The following description of how the early spring chickens are raised for market, is taken from the Salem correspondence of the Northville News, and gives one a pretty good idea, of this comparatively new industry:

"Notwithstanding the extremely cold weather we have had during the past few weeks, chicken raising by artificial means at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Packard has been carried on. As some of our readers are doubtless not familiar with the process of hatching and raising broilers for market by artificial means, we shall endeavor to tell, in part at least, how this industry is carried on at the home of our worthy friends. To begin with, they have a Geo. M. Stahl & Co. incubator with a capacity of 200 eggs. After the chicks are hatched they are removed to a building near the house built of matched lumber and covered with tarred paper on the inside." Around the inside of the building and elevated about three feet from the floor is a shelf with a railing and on this shelf the chickens are placed after they are hatched. Through a hole in the bottom of the shelf and projecting upward to the height of a foot or more is a circular, perforated tin box, inside of which is placed a lamp, kept burning night and day. Outside of the tin enclosure is a wooden hoop some eighteen inches in diameter and perhaps eight inches in height, or a little lower than the tin enclosure, with a hole cut in one side to admit the chickens. This may be termed a home-made brooder house. In the center of the room, a wood stove is kept burning almost constantly. Should the fire in the stove go out there would still be heat enough from the brooder lamps to keep the chicks from being chilled. It was a novel sight to go into this building and see those bright eyed little chicks, apparently so warm and cosy, while just outside, the snow was piled two or three feet deep. Mr. and Mrs. Packard are people who thoroughly understand this business having made it a special study for a number of years. A person wishing to embark in this enterprise can get more really practical knowledge by visiting and conversing with them than from any amount of farm journals and poultry papers. You will find this worthy couple ever ready to converse on this subject and to show you around the place."

G. W. Wilson, acting commissioner of internal revenue, has prepared and sent out to collectors the following explanation of changes made in the provisions of the income tax law:

"By joint resolution of congress, approved February 21, 1895, the time within which income tax returns for the year 1894, may be legally made has been extended from the first Monday in March, to April 15, 1895. Other provisions of the income tax law have been modified or construed by said resolution which is copied in full for your guidance, as follows:

"Joint Resolution—Extending from March 1, 1895, to April 15, the time for making returns of income for the year 1894, and for other purposes.

"Resolved, by the senate and house that the time fixed by existing law for the rendering of income returns, to wit: 'On or before the first Monday of March, in every year' (Section 3, Act of August 28, 1894, and Section 3,173, revised statutes, as amended by Section 34 of that Act) is hereby extended, with reference only to returns of income for the year 1894, so that it shall be lawful to make such returns for that year April 15, 1895.

"Resolved, That in computing incomes under said act the amount necessarily paid for fire insurance premiums and for ordinary repairs shall be deducted.

"Resolved, That in computing incomes under said act, the amounts received as dividends upon the stock of any corporation, company or association shall not be included in case such dividends are also liable to the tax of the two per centum upon the net profits of said corporation, company or association, although such tax may not have been actually paid by said corporation, company or association at the time of making returns by the person, corporation or association receiving such dividends and returns or reports of the names and salaries of employees, unless called for by the collector, in order to verify the returns of employees."

The True Cure
Of all
Nervous Troubles

Is Found in
PURE BLOOD

Because upon the purity of the Blood depends the health of every organ and tissue of the Body. If the Blood is thin and impure there is weakness, Nervousness, That Tired Feeling, and you are in the condition which invites disease. If the Blood is pure and healthy, you have sweet sleep, nerve strength, mental vigor, a good appetite, and perfect digestion.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Makes Pure Blood
That is why the Cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla are permanent. They do not rest upon the insecure support of temporary stimulant, opiate or nerve compound, but upon the solid foundation of vitalized, enriched and purified blood. Read this:
The cure of Olive Carl by Hood's Sarsaparilla has few equals in medical history. The testimonial was first published two years ago, and a letter from her mother says Olive continues in good health and "We are satisfied her remarkable cure by Hood's Sarsaparilla was permanent."
Briefly stated the case was this: "When called to cut her hair, as she could not bear the weight of it. At first the change for the better was very gradual; the pains seemed to be less frequent and the swelling in some of the joints subsided after using about one bottle. Then improvement was more rapid and one night she surprised us greatly by telling us that we need not prop her up in bed as we had one for several months, and next night she surprised us still more by rolling over across the bed. From that time on Improvement was Very Rapid and she soon began to creep about the house and then to walk on crutches. Now she generally uses but one crutch, and I fear have left one leg crooked, and I fear it will remain so. We feel that to Hood's Sarsaparilla we owe our child's life.

"I can't eat, I have no appetite," is the complaint of many people just now. This is because the blood is in a sluggish and impure condition. Vitalize and enrich it by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and you will soon be hungry all the time because your blood will demand proper sustenance from good food.
Nervous Dyspepsia.
"I suffered with what the doctors called nervous dyspepsia. I could hardly walk and could hardly keep anything on my stomach. I doctored for six or seven years but the different medicines did not do me any good and I grew steadily worse. I would have sick headache for three days and nights causing me such agony that it seemed as though I would rather die than live. I was told to try Hood's Sarsaparilla

DON'T STOP TOBACCO

IT'S INJURIOUS TO STOP SUDDENLY and don't be imposed upon by buying a remedy that requires you to do so, as it is nothing more than a substitute. In the sudden stopping of tobacco you must have a stimulant, and in most all cases, the effect of the stimulant, be it opium, morphine, or other opiates, leaves a far worse habit contracted. Ask your druggist about BACO-CURO. It is purely vegetable. You do not have to stop using tobacco with BACO-CURO. It will notify you when to stop and your desire for tobacco will cease. Your system will be as free from nicotine as the day before you took your first chew or smoke. An iron clad written guarantee to absolutely cure the tobacco habit in all its forms, or money refunded. Price $1.00 per box or 3 boxes (30 days treatment and guaranteed cure), $2.50. For sale by all druggists or will be sent by mail upon receipt of price. SEND SIX TWO CENT STAMPS FOR SAMPLE BOX. Booklets and proofs free. Eureka Chemical & Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis

Eureka Chemical and Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis.
Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Kely Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it.
Yours truly,
C. W. Hornick.

TAKE STEPS

in time, if you are a sufferer from that scourge of humanity known as consumption, and you can be cured. There is the evidence of hundreds of living witnesses to the fact that, in all its early stages, consumption is a curable disease. Not every case, but a large percentage of cases, and we believe, fully 98 per cent, are cured by Dr. Hisecock's Golden Medical Discovery, even after the disease has progressed so far as to induce repeated bleedings from the lungs, severe lingering cough with copious expectoration (including tubercular matter), great loss of flesh and extreme emaciation and weakness.

Do you doubt that hundreds of such cases reported to us as cured by "Golden Medical Discovery" were genuine cases of that dread and fatal disease? You need not take our word for it. They have, in nearly every instance, been so pronounced by the best and most experienced home physicians, who have no interest whatever in misrepresenting them, and who were often strongly prejudiced and advised against a trial of "Golden Medical Discovery," but who have been forced to confess that it surpasses, in curative power over this fatal malady, all other medicines with which they are acquainted. Nasty cod-liver oil and its filthy "emulsions" and mixtures, had been tried in nearly all these cases and had either utterly failed to benefit, or had only seemed to benefit a little for a short time. Extract of malt, whiskey, and various preparations of the hypophosphites had also been faithfully tried in vain.

The photographs of a large number of those cured of consumption, bronchitis, lingering coughs, asthma, chronic nasal catarrh and kindred maladies, have been skillfully reproduced in a book of 160 pages which will be mailed to you, on receipt of address and six cents in stamps. You can then write to those who have been cured and profit by their experience.

Here is a little item showing what the Detroit pension agency has done. For the year 1894, $7,033,343.72 was paid out. During the year 900 died who had formerly received pensions there. There were 2,058 additions, of which 1,225 were originals, 378 restorations, and 52 transfers. The total loss was 1,751, and the increase in value over the year before was $23,846.

The city ordinance relative to impounding dogs ought to be changed in one respect. When a license has been issued for a dog, and the tag has been lost, no pound fees should be charged. There are some rascals about town who steal these tags off dogs unless they are riveted on, and put them on the collars of their own canines. At least this is asserted to be so by people who have had the tags taken from the collars of their dogs.

It is with deep regret that we have to announce the death of Supervisor David Edwards, of Ypsilanti, which occurred Thursday in that city, at the Hawkins house. He had many friends all over Washtenaw county.

It is somewhat astonishing that the expenditures for the poor for the past three months are over $200 less than were the expenditures for the corresponding three months of last year. Supt. Siple thinks that the building of the sewers last winter did not help the city poor very much, but rather made the expenditures greater. This has been a harder winter than last winter was, and it would not have been surprising had there been an increase of amount paid out. Mr. Siple says he made the best bargain this winter in buying wood that he ever made, getting the year's supply at much less than has been paid heretofore.

Peter A. Dignan, who formerly lived here, is secretary and treasurer of the Citizen's Loan Association in Jacksonville, Florida. As to the recent freeze in the south he says: "I do not think the damage as great as at first reported. All this year's crop was ruined and the trees may be hurt, so as to give us a rather short crop of oranges next year, but it is too early to estimate the damage done to the orange trees. Our farmers and truck growers are already at work replanting early vegetables for the northern market, which crop always brings good prices, and that will not drive away the blues caused by the frost. Mercury to-day is 75 degrees in the shade."

On Saturday morning last, death came to Mrs. Anna M. Braun, at the home of her daughter Mrs. Michael Stein, of Ann Arbor town. Eberhardt. She leaves five sons, Fred B., Charles, Michael, Christian and Henry, and two daughters, Mrs. Stein of Ann Arbor town, and Mrs. Fred Kirn, of this city. Funeral services are to be held Tuesday afternoon, at 12:30, at the residence of Michael Stein, where she died, and from Zion Lutheran church in this city at 2 p. m. Interment will be in Forest Hill Cemetery.

The Dexter Leader gets on the right side of the ladies in this complimentary manner: "The Ladies of Ann Arbor made a great success of their red, white and blue edition of The Daily Courier, issued on Washington's Birthday. One of our fruit growers remarked the other day: "We are pleased to state that the prospects for a crop of all kinds of fruit were never better at this time of the year. All kinds of fruit buds entered the winter in fine condition owing largely no doubt to the drought last fall, and the recent cold weather has had no effect upon them. Fruit growers have greater reason to fear a warm, open winter, followed by spring frosts, than steady cold weather."

SILVER MEN ON THE MOVE.

Baby Alumni Conclude that Old Times Must be Kept Alive.

The '94 lit alumni of the University and city held a meeting yesterday in room 9 and unanimously voted to revive the memory of old times by means of a banquet, which will in all probability be held Saturday evening, March 16. There are about sixty members of '94, including those at some time affiliated with the class in the University. All are enthusiastic in the matter of a banquet, and there is but little doubt that the affair will be a rousing success. At yesterday's meeting, ex-President D. F. Lyons was made chairman and D. B. Luten, secretary, an organization which was afterward made permanent for the year. After thoroughly discussing the best method of doing justice to auld lang syne and determining that a banquet was the proper thing, the following committees were appointed: Arrangements, B. B. Selling, chairman; D. B. Luten and E. J. Ottaway; invitation, R. F. Hall, chairman; A. A. Pearson and S. H. Perry. D. F. Lyons was elected toastmaster.

NEEDS OF THE UNIVERSITY.

From Lansing comes the report of what the regents are asking of the state legislature in addition to the one-sixth mill bill. Chairman Waite of the University committee makes public the following wants of the regents: For the current fund, $20,000, taken from the fund for the improvement of the heating plant. For an electric lighting plant $25,000. For repairs on the chemical laboratory $15,000. For the building of a home for the nurses, kitchen and laundry for the hospitals, $25,000. For an addition to the law library and reading room, and a fire-proof book room for the recent bequest of 10,000 volumes, $35,000. For an addition to the chemical laboratory of $35,000. For additions to the anatomical laboratory and accommodations in the hygienic laboratory, $40,000. This is a total of $175,000, asked for the next two years.

Regents Cocker and Barbour have been spending a few days in Lansing, trying to induce the legislature to make a visit to the University.

It is reported that Chairman Waite is in favor of uniting the two medical schools so that a student may study under either theory or both.

Secretary Wade, when asked if the above list of requests was correct, replied that the legislature had asked the regents for a statement of what is wanted here, and the statement was accordingly sent. So the list is not so much of a request from the regents as one from the legislature.

SILVER MEN ORGANIZE.

The free silver students of the University, about fifty strong, met yesterday afternoon in room 13 of the law building and adopted the following constitution:

1. This organization shall be known as the University Silver Club.
2. The object of the club is the investigation of the money question, from a scientific and non-partisan standpoint, and to receive public speakers on the question from time to time.
3. The officers of the club shall be a president, two vice-presidents, a secretary, a treasurer and a sergeant-at-arms, which officers shall be elected by a majority vote of the club.
4. The officers shall be elected at the first meeting of the club in each semester and hold their offices until their successors are installed.
5. Any person shall become a member of the club on signing the constitution.
6. This constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the members present, upon a previous notice of one week, given at a regular meeting.

In accordance with the constitution officers were elected as follows: Edward Horsky, '95 law, president; E. B. House, '95 engineer, first vice-president; Mr. Ward, second vice-president; E. P. Hicks, '96 law, secretary; Bayard Ames, '97 lit, treasurer; E. N. Heath, special, sergeant-at-arms.

W. M. Downing acted as chairman of the meeting and W. C. Borst as secretary. A committee of fifteen was appointed to solicit members of the club. It is hoped by the club that a great many students will sign the constitution regardless of sentiment on the silver question, inasmuch as the club is organized for non-partisan study, and also because a large membership list will be necessary in order to obtain the speakers desired. A by-laws committee consisting of Messrs. Horsky, Heath and R. I. Sullivan, was appointed. The club will have debates relative to the silver issue at frequent intervals.

PROF. KELSEY AT WISCONSIN.

Prof. F. W. Kelsey has been at the University of Wisconsin this week. On Wednesday evening he lectured there on Pompeii. The Daily Cardinal speaks of his lecture as follows:

"Even standing room was at a high premium in the physical lecture room yesterday afternoon during Prof. Kelsey's lecture on recent excavations in Pompeii, and many were turned away. The lecture proved very enjoyable and instructive and commanded the deepest interest throughout. The speaker was thoroughly enthused with his subject and his descriptions were very clear and vivid, the more so from having himself witnessed and experienced what he described. The photographic views were excellent and added greatly to the instructiveness of the lecture.

"He told of being present at an excavation in Pompeii in honor of Emperor William of Germany and the king and queen of Italy. The excavation was carried on in a large house of which Prof. Kelsey showed a drawing and explained the various features of the dwelling. He had a number of relics which he showed.

"The latter part of the lecture was illustrated with a number of excellent stereopticon views of the scenes in and about Pompeii, which were thrown upon a large canvas. As the views were projected on the canvas Prof. Kelsey explained them in detail."

Geo. W. Kenson, '94 dent, is now practicing in Mansfield, Ohio.

Ex-Gov. I. P. Chase, of Ohio, will act as judge in the oratorical contest of March 15.

The senior lits will pay a class tax of $2.50 to defray the expense of President Angell's bust.

It is probable that the state legislature will pay a visit to the University on some Saturday in the near future.

The sophomore lits will give a party in Granger's hall on the evening of March 15. Admission one dollar a couple.

Judge C. J. Pailthorp, of Petoskey, who was nominated yesterday on the democratic ticket for regent of the University, is a graduate of the law department, class of '75.

The Socratic Union elected the following officers yesterday: C. V. Donovan, president; Mr. Honey, vice-president; Mr. Nothomb, secretary and treasurer; Mr. Hicks, marshal.

The freshman dents are kicking because they have 8 o'clock recitations four times a week and have to stay until 6 o'clock three nights of the week. They naturally get sleepy.

The Dental Journal announces that Drs. Van Deiman and Whinery, of the dental department, will locate next year in Toledo, Ohio, where offices have been engaged in a new office building there.

Marquis B. Eaton, '97 lit, is a son of Gen. Chas. L. Eaton, of Lansing, who died suddenly yesterday while attending the funeral of Green Pack in Detroit.

Work on the new outside stairways leading into University hall is progressing nicely. The south stairway is completed and work on the north one is well under way.

An attempt was made to-day to drain the water off the northwest corner of the campus. Connection was made with the campus drain. There is still a good sized pond at that extremity of the campus.

Notwithstanding the fact that Harvard's faculty sat down hard on football a few days ago, Capt. Brewer has called out his men and is making arrangements for the campaign of 1895.

Mr. H. Prinz ('96 dent, review editor of the Dental Journal,) will sail for Germany about April 15, where he will give a course in crown and bridge work, returning to graduate with the class of '96.—Dental Journal.

The proposed changes in the baseball rules already make the players' fingers tingle. It is recommended by the committee on rules that no player wear gloves except the catcher and first baseman. No equivalent softening of the ball is spoken of.

The University of Chicago Weekly speaks as follows of one of the University's medical professors: "The Disease-Resisting Power of the Body," was the subject which Dr. Charles T. McClintock, of the University of Michigan, treated in his lecture before the Biological Club, last week Wednesday afternoon in Kent. Dr. McClintock is a noted bacteriologist, a brother of Dean McClintock of the University, and a most clear and entertaining speaker. The room was crowded."

The Dental Journal for the second quarter of 1894-5 has just been issued from the Courier office. There are several interesting articles therein. Prof. Geo. H. Meade concludes his article on Hypnotism, read before the thirtieth annual session of the Michigan Dental Association, June 7, 1893. Dr. N. S. Hoff contributes an article on Odonatoglia, which he read before the Ohio State Dental Society last December. Dr. W. Xavier Sudduth, dean of the College of Dentistry of Minnesota, writes several short articles under the head of "Pot-Pourri." There are the usual interesting department notes.

To-day's Wrinkle is the last one for the first half of Wrinkle's year. Tomorrow afternoon a new editorial board will be elected. That is, the old editors will be re-elected with possibly one or two exceptions. There is nothing to complain of about this issue. Frank P. Daniels opens the literary pages with a neat poem, "The Gift of a Curl." "Artemus Ward Comes to College" is a sample of a new sort of humor for Wrinkle. The jokes are on the same plane of humor as usual. The cuts, some of them, speak for themselves. Others are not so loud and are better on that account.

THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO., CINTL.

The Wayne Hotel, Detroit.

This hotel was completed and opened by a banquet to the newspaper men in December, 1887. With its furnishings and fittings it cost upwards of $250,000. It was owned by the heirs of the Cass estate and was first leased to W. P. F. Meserve, who engaged Mr. James R. Hayes as manager.

Sometime after there was a change in the proprietorship and Mr. Hayes became lessee and proprietor. The original lease expired last month, but it was renewed and Mr. Hayes secured the house for a long term of years.

When built this hotel was considered complete in every detail, but the march of progress has affected hotels as everything else, and of late the Wayne has lacked some things needed for the utmost comfort of its guests. No one recognized this fact as fully as Mr. Hayes, but he could not put his ideas of improvement into execution until he had secured the lease.

As soon as the new lease was signed he started the improvements that will not only make the Wayne what it was at its opening but far surpass it.

Among the many improvements, and they will be very thorough when complete, is the laying of a new tile floor in the lavatory, the supplying of hot water where there has been none before, and the complete renovation of the gentlemen's toilet room where the old wooden fittings and appurtenances have given way to marble and the latest sanitary appliances. The bar room has been entirely refurnished.

The next move was the refurnishing of the dining room. Here also marble tile flooring replaced wood; the ceiling and side walls were repainted in lighter and more dainty tints, and new silver table service was provided. Nor was this all; the old staircase, leading from the office to the dining room floor, which was of wood and had an abrupt and awkward turn at the bottom, was torn away and in its place is now seen handsome marble stairs, of broad tread and easy rise, with wide landings of marble to make more easy the ascent.

The improvement already made have cost $25,000. A large number of bath rooms are to be added to the house and the latest improved steam heating system be put in and every room supplied with a heater.

These improvements, when complete will make the Wayne rank favorably with any hotel in the whole country.

It is to the newly furnished Wayne that Mr. Hayes welcomed the newspaper men of Michigan, to whom he has already shown his boundless hospitality. Mr. Hayes' invitation to the recent banquet carried with it the cordial assurance that the Michigan press will find as warm a welcome waiting at the Grand Hotel, Mackinac Island, of which Mr. Hayes is also proprietor and manager.

The budget of the University of Chicago for July 1, 1895 to July 1, 1896, gives the University $602,426 for current expenses, applied as follows: Administration and general expenses, $43,958; faculty of arts, lit. and science, $288,211; the divinity school, $44,125; the academy, $35,981; university extension, $40,008; libraries, labor and museums, $34,867; printing and publishing, $21,130; physical culture and athletics, $5,475; affiliated work, $1,140; buildings and grounds, $57,890; miscellaneous, $20,631.

Governor Rich seems to have a partiality for U. of M. men in his appointments, if those of the past few days are any index in the matter. Three members of the Detroit health board are U. of M. men. Harlow P. Davock graduated from the University in 1870. He was a literary student. Dr. Oscar LeSeure, of the same board is a homeopathic alumnus of 1873. Dr. Howard W. Longyear also studied here in the medical school in '73-4, graduating, however, from the New York college of medicine. J. J. Goodyear, too, of this city, whom the governor has just named for trustee of the Eastern Michigan Insane asylum at Pontiac was a medical student here in '74-5, graduating from the Cincinnati College of medicine.

Babylonian Collection.

Prof. Craig, of the chair of Semitic languages at the University, has a rare collection of Babylonian tablets and seals at his home, which were sent here by Mr. Noorian, of Newark, N. J., on approval. They are wonderfully interesting because of their extreme antiquity, showing civilization as it was in Nebuchadnezzar's time. Exhumed from the banks of the Euphrates river where they had rested for four thousand years, they show the methods of business transactions, contracts, leases, deeds, receipts, bills of sale of horses, cattle, houses, lands, etc. They were written on bricks, stones, glass and marbles previous to any known manuscripts of the Hebrews or Chaldeans.

Many are what are called case tablets. These are contracts written on brick the size and shape of a piece of soap. To protect them an outer case of clay is put about them, on which was written the contract. In the event the inscription on the covering got indistinct, or a dispute arose, it was taken off and the inner one referred to. They are all signed by private seals and witnessed the same way. These seals were small cylinders which were graven with figures or hieroglyphics, and as they were rolled over the soft clay they made an impression of the seal of the owner. These date 2200 and 2300 years before the time of Christ.

The University has nothing of this kind in its collections and should possess these very rare documents for research, teaching and exhibition. The value of them is $800, an extremely reasonable figure as considered by Prof. Craig, who is an expert in his branch. He can read all of them and appreciates their importance. It is hoped a subscription can be gotten up to retain this valuable collection here.

HEART DISEASE.

A Toronto Physician says it Never Exists Without the Presence of Some Kidney Disease.

TORONTO, March 4.—The number of sudden deaths due to heart disease is appalling. The medical profession is devoting more attention to the heart and its ailments at the present time than ever before, and physicians are making a specialty of diseases of this organ. A Toronto doctor, who devotes much attention to this branch of his practice said to your reporter to-day "I have yet to learn of a single case where heart disease caused death, in which a post mortem examination did not show the existence of Bright's disease, diabetes, or some other kidney disease." Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure all disease of the Kidneys and thus ward off the danger of heart disease.

The Boys Were Winners.

A Hastings man watched a lot of boys play whist, and he was surprised at their lack of the elementary principles of the game, and allowed that they played no such stiff game of whist as was in vogue when he used to play it years ago. His son told him to hunt up one of his old players, the best he could find, and a couple of the kids would try and learn the game from them. They were willing to play second hand low or high, to learn the correct game. The old gentleman brought on his partner and sat down with confidence and began to play. Some how or other the cards wouldn't run right, and the boys seemed to know what each held. Six straight defeats of the old timers filled them so full of satisfaction that they abandoned the school of instruction for the kids, and began to compare notes as to what caused the trouble. Both decided it was due to democratic rule. Both are perfectly whist about whist, whenever the game is mentioned. In the meantime, the young larks are adopting a new code of signs, that they may still keep the lead.—Adrian Press.

IN 1895.

THE SIMPLETONS, a new novel by Thomas Hardy, will be begun in the December number, and continued in the January, 1895. Whoever may be one's favorite among English novelists, it will be conceded by all critics that Thomas Hardy stands foremost as a master artist in fiction, and THE SIMPLETONS may be expected to arouse enthusiasm not inferior in degree to that which has marked Tribes—the most successful story of the year. Another leading feature will be the PERSONAL RECOLLECTIONS OF JOAN OF ARC, by the Sieur Louis de Conte, Her Page and Secretary, under which guise the most popular of living American magazine writers will present the story of the Maid of Orleans in the January number. It will appear a profusely illustrated paper on CHARLESTON AND THE CAROLINAS, the first of a series of Southern Papers.

Northern Africa is attracting more attention than at any other time since it was the seat of empires. The next volume of HARPER'S MAGAZINE will contain four illustrated articles on this region, and three of them will depict present life there. JULIAN CALEPH will prepare for the magazine a series of eight stories, depicting typical phases of Chinese Life and Manners. Besides the long stories there will begin in the January number the first chapters of A Three-Part Novelle, by RICHARD HARDING DAVIS—the longest work yet attempted by the writer. Comic matter will appear in popular writers will continue to be a feature of the magazine.

HARPER'S WEEKLY is a pictorial history of the times. It presents every important event promptly, accurately and exhaustively in illustration and descriptive text of the highest order.

The manner in which, during 1894, it has treated the Chicago Railway Strikes and the China-Japanese War, and the amount of light it was able to throw on Korea, the instant attention was directed to that little-known country, are examples of its almost boundless resources. JULIA S. RALPH, the distinguished writer and correspondent, has been sent to the seat of war, and there joined by C. D. WEDDON, the well-known American artist, and for many years resident in Japan who has been engaged to co-operate with Mr. RALPH in sending to HARPER'S WEEKLY exclusive information and illustrations.

During 1895 every vital question will be discussed with vigor and without prejudice in the editorial columns, and also in special articles by the highest authorities in each department. Portraits of the men and women who are making history, and power, wit and and caustic political cartoons, will continue to be characteristic features. This Busy World, with its keen and kindly comment on the lesser doings of the day, will remain a regular department.

FICTION. There will be two powerful serials, both handsomely illustrated—The Red Cockade, a stirring romance of olden days by STANLEY J. WEYMAN, and a novel of New York, entitled The Son of His Father, by BRANDE MATHEWS—several novelettes, and many short stories by popular writers.

A GOOD THING—PUSH IT ALONG.

An Association that is the Connecting Link Between the Church and the People.

Since its formation in this city the Y. M. C. A., has steadily increased in numbers, in influence, in work accomplished. It stands to-day as a stepping stone for young men to enter upon a new and better course of thinking and living. It furnishes plays and pastime and congenial social advantages which are so necessary for the lad or young man just entering into the stern realities of life. It is the sociability of the saloon that attracts. The Y. M. C. A. is endeavoring to furnish this sociability in a way that will not endanger the life of the one who seeks it.

The association in Ann Arbor is young, but vigorous. It is exerting every energy to accomplish good, and in this it deserves the aid both moral and financial, of every good citizen of Ann Arbor. It has been endeavoring this winter to establish an educational work, and its success has been fairly good. Statistics show that throughout the state the number of people enrolled in the educational classes are becoming more and more a feature of the work of this organization.

These figures are very interesting and encouraging to those who take a broad and intelligent view of the progress of the commonwealth and of the influences and agencies which operate for the defense and improvement of American institutions. They show that one of the best and most enterprising organizations in the country is rapidly widening its field of labor for the good of young men in particular, and of society in general. They attest the continued and increasing love of learning which is the clearest light that shines down the pathway which the American people must follow into the unknown trials and dangers of the future. They are in all respects hopeful and good to study.

The Young Men's Christian Association as a whole is one of the very best agencies which society possesses for its defense against moral and social disease and decay, and it deserves well of all classes and interests. In the city of Ann Arbor this excellent association has been enabled to attain a most cheering growth. Here its work and its merits are well recognized, and it has received fair support. Still there is much to be desired. The growth of the educational department of its work has been only one of many grains, and the field lies open for still larger and better achievements in the future. All that is needed to insure splendid and increasingly rapid development and more effective and valuable work than has ever yet been done for the good of the community is sufficient financial support.

The Ann Arbor Y. M. C. A. believes that such organizations should be run on business principles. Therefore it declines to run in debt. It depends entirely upon the liberality of the public for its support, and fully believes that it has accomplished a good work with little money. Now it needs the aid of the people who believe in it, and unless it can have the aid of the board of directors will have to curtail expenses and work according to means furnished. No great sum is asked from any one person, and a little from many is what is desired. A generous response means a large amount of work (there is plenty to do) and a limited response means a limited amount of work. The association needs the moral and financial support of every christian in Ann Arbor, and in return will promise a rich harvest.

Let the good people remember the claims of the Young Men's Christian Association as an institution which aims high and hits the mark in a way which cannot fail to compel the respect and admiration of all who acquaint themselves with its work and its history.

A Splendid Chance.

Everybody who is weak delicate or sickly wants to get well. Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th st., New York City, makes a specialty of treating patients through letter correspondence. He makes his explanations so clear that they cannot help but understand just what ails them, and he tells exactly what to do to get well. It saves a journey to the city and doctor's fees, and costs nothing. Dr. Greene is the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He is the discoverer of that wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Thousands are being cured through his perfect system of letter correspondence. It has been proved successful.

SPRING NEEDS.

WHAT EVERYBODY REQUIRES AT THIS SEASON.

Some Things Are of the Utmost Importance to You.

This Will Tell You Just What You Most Need and How to Get it.

In the spring changes always take place in our systems which require attention. There is a tried, languid feeling, a depression, the digestive organs become deranged, the blood is bad, causing the complexion to become affected and the person feels an inability to work.

At such a time a spring medicine is absolutely necessary. It will overcome all these conditions. It will invigorate the blood, regulate the blood, regulate the digestive organs, clear the complexion, and makes you strong and well.

Read what Mrs. W. H. Smith, of 74 Sutton street, Providence, R. I., has to say:

"I was taken sick five years ago with the grippe. It left my whole system and especially my nerves in a terribly weak condition. I was dreadfully nervous, and lost almost complete control of myself. I was all discouraged and did not know what I should do.

"My limbs were swollen, my feet ached and I had pains all over my body. I got scarcely any sleep, and what little I did get did me no good. I took many remedies but without benefit. Finally hearing Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy highly recommended I determined to use it.

"After taking one bottle I was almost entirely cured of my troubles. My nerves were strong, and the pains left me, the swelling disappeared, and I could sleep well. I am cured to this wonderful medicine. I thank God. I wish every sufferer might use it."

The reason why you should take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is, because it is the surest and quickest medicine in its action known. It positively and permanently cures all forms of nervous weakness and exhaustion, invigorates the blood and gives health and strength. Take it now, for Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will do more for you than any other remedy. It is the best spring medicine known.

It is not a patent medicine, but the prescription of the most successful living specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th St., New York City. He has the largest practice in the world, and this grand medical discovery is the result of his vast experience. The great reputation of Dr. Greene is a guarantee that his medicine will cure, and the fact that he can be consulted by anyone, at any time, free of charge, personally or by letter, gives absolute assurance of the beneficial action of this wonderful medicine.

Still Another Lecture Course.

A short lecture course has been arranged by the Epworth League of the Methodist church in which several good lectures will be heard for practically nothing. As at present mapped out the course will be as follows:

March 8, Rev. Dr. C. M. Cobern, on "An afternoon with great men;" March 16, Dr. S. A. Steele, of Nashville, Tenn., on "Backbone;" April 6, J. E. Beal, on "Norway and Sweden;" April 12, Rev. E. W. Ryan, of Ypsilanti, on "Palestine."

Dr. S. A. Steele, who will lecture Mar. 16, is one of the most prominent of Methodist church-men in the South, although he is only a young man. He has been prominently spoken of for the office of bishop in the church. At present he is editor of the Epworth Era, the official organ of the Epworth League in the South. Dr. Steele comes north to speak before the state Epworth League convention in Detroit and has thus been induced to visit Ann Arbor.

How Editors Are Treated in China.

Nineteen hundred editors of a Pekin paper are said to have been beheaded. Some would shudder at such slaughter, who are heedless of the fact that Consumption is ready to fasten its fatal hold on themselves. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the efficient remedy for weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, bronchitis, asthma, severe coughs, and kindred affections.

STAMPS, LA FAYETTE CO., ARK.

DR. R. V. PIERCE:

Dear Sir—I will say this to you, that consumption is hereditary in my wife's family; some have already died with the disease. My wife has a sister, Mrs. E. A. Cleary, that was taken with consumption. She used your "Golden Medical Discovery," and, to the surprise of her many friends, she got well. My wife has also had hemorrhages from the lungs, and her sister insisted on her using the "Golden Medical Discovery." I consented to her using it, and it cured her. She has had no symptoms of consumption for the past six years. Yours truly,

THE BRAVE LITTLE REPUBLIC.

An Interesting Letter From Ranney C. Scott to His Brother Evert, Relating to the Hawaiian Rebellion.

Through the kindness of Evert H. Scott, of this city, we are permitted to make the following extracts from a private letter to him from his brother Ranney, under date of Honolulu, Feb. 16th, 1895:

"I sent you a printed account of the rebellion, but have had no opportunity of writing at length.

"You know how things are situated here, and from having been on the spot you can understand.

On that Sunday night Charles (Carter) was sitting upon the lawn between the house and the sea with Alfred and some others, talking, when the firing began.

"The deputy marshal and a squad of police had during the afternoon been watching Bertelman's house. You remember where it is—about half way between the park and telephone station on Diamond Head. Early in the evening the deputy and his men, suspecting that the arms were in the house or near it, went down to search. While Deputy Brown was reading the search warrant, the men outside were fired upon and a brisk engagement began, the rebels having an advantage in being hidden behind trees and sheds. Soon after the firing began, Charles and James Castle, Alfred and Jack ran along the road and coming on to the place in the bright moonlight. Seeing dark forms under a canoe shed Charles cried, 'There they are!' and started forward, closely followed by the others. They were met by a sheet of flame and a shower of bullets. Charles and one policeman were wounded, Charles fatally.

"As quickly as possible Charles was carried into the house. Alfred went for a surgeon. Castle stayed with Charles in the front room of the house and the lights were put out. Captain Park was in the room adjoining, guarding their prisoners, and this while a perfect rain of bullets was striking the house on every side.

"The plan of the rebels was to start from four quarters, Diamond Head, Ewa Side, the wharf and from Mauka. Then the four companies were to proceed toward the center, meeting at the government buildings and police station. As they advanced they were to throw bombs into the houses of all government supporters and blow them up. Charles and James Castle's houses were, you see, to be the first to be sacrificed.

"When the government troops came up Charles was brought home suffering intense agony from seven wounds through his breast and abdomen. When he was carried in and saw Mary he smiled and said, 'Hello, dearie.'

"During all of the shooting Mary had been preparing for what she seemed to know was coming to Charles or some one else, and had bandages ready. Charles was in intense pain all night until 5 o'clock when he died.

"The whole day was spent in shelling the insurgents, who had retreated to the crater of Diamond Head. The cannon being planted in the park directly in front of the house.

"Charles was buried at Sweet Home at 3 in the afternoon.

"You may have noticed the name of Jas. Castle's brother, Henry Castle, among those lost in the sinking of the Elbe. His daughter also was with him.

"It is owing to Charles and James and one or two others that the whole town of Honolulu was not blown up by dynamite, together with the men, women and children therein. The rebels had bombs, and they were hidden at Liliuokalani's place. There was one in her writing desk. She knew of the wholesale carnage and slaughter that was intended, and she approved of it. She had been led to believe that the Washington administration approved all of the acts of the United States which had been hostile to the republican government.

"I am disgusted with my native country. Had it not been for a handful of brave men who rushed to the front immediately, and before the insurgents were prepared, the streets of Honolulu would have run red with blood, and Mary and her children would have been the first to have been slaughtered.

"Let Mr. Cleveland not dictate to us what to do with the ringleaders. His instructions to the Philadelphia were to give no protection to anyone in any manner connected with the uprising. That of course includes every decent man woman and child in the Islands and touches only a half dozen cowards who were afraid to fight for their homes and good government.

"The success of the rebellion would have meant anarchy.

The lady referred to as Mary is the sister of the writer, formerly Miss Mary Scott, the wife of Chas. Carter who was killed. James Castle, referred to is the collector of customs, of that port, and brother of Mrs. Prof. Geo. H. Meade, formerly of the U. of M., now of Chicago. Alfred Carter is a cousin and the law partner of Chas. Carter.

The people of Hawaii must fully understand that the great masses in the United States are in full and hearty sympathy with their new republic, and do not approve of the unpatriotic and disgraceful action of President Cleveland and his cabinet on this question. There will be but two years more to wait when there will be a president in the White House in sympathy with the people, and favorable to the Hawaiian republic, or to closer relative if desired. It will not be long to wait, and then this shameful and disgraceful stain upon our nation's escutcheon will be wiped out. To be sure the dead can be brought back to life, but the wrong done the plucky little nation can be righted and patriotism be once more enthroned at Washington.

CHAPTER VI.

A HERO IN OIL.

She was diverted from her conjectures by a heavy sigh, which resembled a groan, behind her. Dolores turned her head quickly, and discovered her grandfather leaning against the doorway, watching her movements in an attitude so rigid and threatening, in a frozen immobility, that she might have believed him stricken with paralysis had he not remained in an upright posture.

"What is the matter, grandpapa?" she cried in alarm.

The sound of her voice seemed to loosen the bonds of a spell, the silence imposed by sheer impotence on the benumbed faculties of the old man. He moved his right hand feebly and mechanically, his pale features worked, and his pallid lips twisted away as if by a spasm of pain, re-covered the power of speech sufficiently to articulate in agitated tones—

"You—you jade? What are you doing there?"

"I was only dusting the portrait, grandpapa," she replied, relieved to notice the change in him.

"I will teach you, idle hussy! to meddle with my house," continued the old man, a violent nervous tremor pervading his frame, while his eyes rolled in their sockets and flashed ominously. "How often am I to warn you not to touch my things? You have no right to be here, at all. What are you but a beggar's brat? I—I—have a mind to drive you off altogether. Go, beg your bread of strangers! You are not wanted here."

He seized her arm, and left the imprint of his claw-like fingers in a bruise on the soft and shrinking flesh.

Dolores recoiled, with terrified eyes, and a deep flush of shame and anger mounting to her cheeks. She was bewildered and astonished. The act of cleaning the portrait seemed so slight an offense that she was amazed at the anger aroused. If she had not fully understood the torrent of reproach which had gathered in volume on the lips of her grandfather on the former occasion, when she had attempted to bury a broken doll in the garden, his bitter invectives now reached her mind with a keen force of comprehension, wounding deeply her heart.

The excitement and wrath of Jacob Dealtry did not abate during the entire day. The most trifling incident would arouse a fresh paroxysm of rage, and he would walk away from his granddaughter as if in the fear of such propinquity with the object of his displeasure as might lead him to some act of violence.

Dolores had trembled and wept at first, troubled by such manifest injustice, as well as frightened by the expression of her grandfather's countenance. Gradually her tears were dried in the fever of sullen rebellion; as, in the depths of her soul, the seething passions, prone to swift action, of her southern temperament became aroused. The slow hours were torture to her irritated nerves, and each new attack of Jacob Dealtry, harping ever on the same chord of his grievances,

"I'll teach you! idle hussy," fanned the rising flame of resentment in the breast of the girl.

At length they met at the evening meal.

"You deserve no supper, ungrateful child, but come along to the table," grumbled the old man.

Dolores paused, erect, with flashing eyes and quivering nostrils.

"I will not eat your supper, grandpapa!" she exclaimed, in a trembling voice. "You make me hate you! What have I done? I will go back to the convent and take the veil. No body wants me anywhere! No! I shall go to the town and tell all the people how cruel and wicked you are to your only grandchild. Then those who have children will take pity on me, and come and mob you, tearing down our tower stone by stone!"

"Eh!" ejaculated her companion, blinking nervously, and turning his head as if he had not heard aright.

At the same time he clutched the edge of the table, as if to support himself, while an expression of startled apprehension swept over his features.

Dolores nodded her head energetically, enjoying this unforeseen triumph. Evidently her chance threat, actuated by childish spite, had intimidated her relative.

"They will mob you," she continued.

"Who?"

"Oh, the good, kind people."

"Hush!"

"They will tear the garden all to shreds and destroy everything."

The threat was her defiance of exhausted patience, of overwrought emotions. The tragic woe of the pictured destruction of the Watch Tower suited her mood.

Jacob Dealtry uttered an unsteady laugh, and then his voice assumed a whining inflection.

"You would not set the populace against me, child? There are always wretches that delight to hound and worry a poor old man. You shall return to the convent and become a nun, if you like. We must speak of it later."

Dolores made no response, but sought her own chamber, supperless, with nostril dilated and head thrown back.

She was aroused from her first slumbers by hearing her grandfather insert a key in the lock of her door and turn it, thus making of her a prisoner. He feared she might run away to the town and set the populace against him, then. She fell asleep once more, with a smile on her lips.

The following morning Jacob Dealtry was mild and ingratiating in manner. Evidently his anger had spent its force over night.

Dolores was sulky and heavy-eyed. At breakfast the old man insinuated that she might return to the convent if she wished to do so. The girl pouted at his alacrity to get rid of her companionship. She beheld herself a nun, with a flowing robe and a veil, investing the placid image with all the fervor of a youthful imagination.

The next moment fright seized her at the thought of the prison bars of restraint imposed on her wayward humors and impatient spirit by dedication to the cloister.

"Not yet, grandpapa," she said, appealingly. "Let us wait a while before we decide. Besides," she added, with soft feminine reproachfulness, "there would be no one to take care of you in case of illness if I left you."

"To take care of me?" repeated the grandfather in shrill accents. "Tut! I need no care or company. Suit yourself, girl."

A warm color mounted to the temples of Dolores, and sudden tears dimmed her eyes. Her glance strayed to the garden, and then reverted to the picture of the Knight in the entrance hall of their dwelling.

"Do not leave us!" the pomegranate and orange trees seemed to whisper, swaying in the light breeze.

"Do not leave us!" sighed the flowers, each unfolding bud of rose and jessamine wafting their fragrance to her senses.

"Depart if you dare, foolish child!" said the Knight of Malta in the picture, a threatening shape in the shadow.

"I am not sure that I would like to become a religious recluse," the full red lips of the girl murmured, half ruefully.

Unconscious of these subtle influences at work on the nature of his granddaughter, Jacob Dealtry pointed to the picture with the intent of disparaging its merits.

"Rubbish! Mere rubbish as a painting, you understand," was his contemptuous comment.

"I like it," said the girl slowly. "Give it to me and I will hang it in my room."

"Nonsense!" he retorted, regarding her with furtive uneasiness. "What put that idea in your head? Do not touch the picture again. I forbid it. Ha! Carry the Knight away to your room, indeed!"

"Grandpapa, do you believe that he built our tower?"

"Pooh! No."

"Perhaps he did, you know. He may be pleased to shelter us here, or very angry with us for the intrusion. It is like that with ghosts who have buried treasures, for example, I heard the Sister Scolastica once telling—"

"How you run on, with your woman's tongue," interrupted the old man, peevishly. "When I said that the picture was poor trash it was between ourselves. Some fool may take a fancy to it and pay a good round sum for an ancient portrait of a Knight of Malta, artist and date unknown."

The mobile features of Dolores acquired a scornful expression, and she replied with that mixture of audacity and timidity which had ever characterized her intercourse with her aged relative:

"Then you wish to cheat some stranger? I would not try to sell the Knight at all in that case, but just leave him hanging there on the wall."

Jacob Dealtry chuckled, and rubbed his chin.

"Your advice is sound, my dear. Perhaps I will leave him," and he moved away.

Dolores sighed, and went to the fountain, where she gazed at her blooming image, reflected in the water, for a long time. What was life after all? Perhaps "the riddle of the painful earth" flashed through her being for the first time. As every maiden, in all social conditions, beholds in a swift and dazzling glimpse the vision of fleeting pleasures not to be her portion, and the brave knights riding away two and two, the fountain's basin may have served as the crystal mirror of the Lady of Shalott to Dolores, giving back, as yet, the blue sky above. To be young was to resemble herself. To be old was to be like grandfather. She shuddered slightly, and turned aside, with a gesture of repulsion. Perhaps it would be better never to grow old. That night the girl drifted softly away to dreamland. Between shifting shadow and rippling light, other than that of the moon, she beheld a radiant shape approach her door and pause on the threshold. The accompanying footsteps, which had echoed on her heart and smitten sharply her brain, had been clear and ringing with a vibrating, musical sound, unlike the dull, shuffling movements of grandfather around the house at all hours. Woven of the tissue of pure fantasy was her sleeping thought, mingled with the teachings of saintly lives in the convent school. Not the angelic presence of St. Ursula this, but the Knight of Malta, terrible, beautiful, awe-inspiring, his cross glittering with a phosphorescent ray, and his drawn sword sparkling as the waves of the Mediterranean gleam in breaking on the shores of the island in the midnight hour of summer. Spurning the clogging film of the obscuring years in the portrait, he revealed himself to her in his pristine strength of noble and chivalrous manhood, and the soul of Dolores trembled in her breast. He seemed to address her in a tongue that reached her senses like the murmur of a sea shell, or the sighing of the wind through the trees.

After that, Jacob Dealtry brought the tiny dog Florio to the delighted Dolores. Her happy and careless temperament cast off the first somber impression of the incident. She did not forget the Knight, she even entered into a secret alliance with the picture, unknown to her grandfather. She no longer whispered to the pigeons and the flowers, but questioned the dim portrait and wove histories about the career of the hero; muttered poems, vague, confused, and fleeting as the rainbow spanning a dissolving storm-cloud. She artfully led her grandfather to converse about the history of the island. Jacob Dealtry was a well-informed man in many respects, and he spoke occasionally, in connection with some relic of stone, pottery, or glass discovered by him, of the rule of Count Roger of Sicily, the institution of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, the first crusade. He repeated that rock of soft sandstone called Tufa, known as Malta, with generations of earlier inhabitants, until the coming of the knights to hold the citadel against the Turk. The little maid at his elbow listened demurely, and the old man may have experienced some transient sentiment of gratification in the awakening intelligence of his granddaughter. He was ignorant that Dolores, bridging time and space with fancy's airy bow, linked each glorious deed with the original of the portrait. Nay, she actually became the heroine of thrilling adventures, in which, about to be swept away by an invading host of bold and brutal Corsairs, the Knight Templar rushed to her rescue, and drove off her assailants with prodigious valor.

These idle reveries resolved themselves from roscate mirage into a solid conviction in the mind of the girl. The Knight had built their Watch Tower and protected them in humble poverty, a feeble old man and an ignorant child, within his precincts. He still kept guard about the crumbling beacon at night. When the sea was rising, with a monotonous beating on the strand heralding an approaching tempest, Dolores fancied she heard his footsteps of a sentinel coming and going beyond the boundary wall.

To-day, Dolores lost herself in pleasant dreams, as she worked on the pink dress. "To render it sweet and sacred, the heart must have a little garden of its own, with its umbrage and fountains and perennial flowers; a careless company!"

Her thoughts dwelt on Dr. Busatti, as the first young man in whose eyes she had ever read a dawning admiration. The purchase of the dress was distinctly traceable to such a source. She was accustomed to his presence, pondered on his words during his absence, and found it agreeable to watch for his return. Fie! Dolores! The unexpected intrusion of the young naval officer, Arthur Curzon, handsome, amiable and full of youthful animation, banished speedily preference for the sallow and thin Maltese physician. Her pulses still fluttered, as the blood coursed more rapidly through her veins, at the recollection of his visit. Should she ever see him again? Why not? Then, as her needle flew, her dream deepened.

The Knight of Malta, in polished armor, would come to the garden gate in a golden chariot and lead her away. Are the knights all dead, and must the world grow so old and sad as to lose all faith in the actual existence of these splendid cavaliers? Stay! what was he like? Had she ever truly gazed upon his face?

She paused, with her needle uplifted, and her features contracted in meditation.

At this moment, Florio sprang up and uttered the most miniature of fierce canine barks.

Dolores glanced about her, with a little gasp of wonder.

Lieut. Curzon, after a preliminary rap, pushed open the gate and entered the inclosure without ceremony. His face glowed with a smile of satisfaction, as his glance sought the girl, seated beside the fountain with her work.

Each paused in silence and gazed at the other, Dolores with indefinable apprehension, and the young man with an eagerness of which he was unconscious. The soul of the girl spoke through her eyes with an instinctive, appealing grace, and Lieut. Curzon was again thrilled through with an emotion that occasioned a quickened heart-throb beneath his uniform.

"Good day," he said, at length, advancing and extending his hand.

"Good day," replied Dolores, placing her small brown fingers on his brown palm, and dropping thimble and scissors in the act.

Florio growled, menacingly, and seized the boot of the intruder in his teeth.

"I trust your grandpapa is all right," continued the visitor, retaining the little hand in his grasp rather longer than ceremonious politeness exacted.

"Yes! thanks," purely. "Shall I call him?"

"No! Give me another moment first."

"As many moments as you wish. You were so good to poor grandpapa that day," and gratitude brought a warm tide of rose color to the velvety cheek, a moisture to the brilliant eyes.

"Was I good?" He forgot his mission, and everything else in the world, except the piquant face before him, which fascinated him strangely.

Wounded pride made Dolores flash a reproachful glance at the officer, while her short upper lip curled scornfully.

"I would not buy a privilege," she said in a smothered tone, as the old man shuffled away in search of other relics, tempted by the yielding mood of the amateur collector.

"I would buy some privileges," he retorted, laughing.

She shook her head and approached him near. Her shoulder touched his arm.

"Why are old people so greedy for gold?" she inquired, seriously.

"They have learned the value of all earthly things, my child," said Arthur Curzon, with mature gravity.

"Will you become so horribly greedy when you are old?" pondered Dolores.

"Even more so," he said promptly. "I do not believe it," she said, gazing up into his face intently.

Again the sailor drank deeply of the soul in the eyes of the girl.

When Jacob Dealtry had yielded a half abstracted consent, the messenger of Mrs. Griffith departed.

Dolores ran to her own chamber, climbed on a chair and lifted down a green box, studded with brass nails, from a high shelf.

She raised the lid of the receptacle and drew forth a mantilla of black lace, a shell comb, a fan and a tiny pair of black satin slippers. A faint perfume of sandalwood and orange flowers emanated from these treasures, which had belonged to her Spanish mother.

Was the faded green box destined to play the part of Pandora's casket, and scatter abroad, with the contents, the fairy shoes and the fan, confusion and trouble?

Then she put on the pink dress, and pausing before a small looking glass, audaciously severed the sleeves above the rounded elbows, and cut down the corsage.

She thus prepared the new robe for a most unexpected debut.

Attired to her satisfaction, Dolores sought the corridor, and passed before the portrait. She made a little genuflection, and held up a finger mockingly.

"Perhaps he is the Knight of Malta after all," she said aloud.

The cavalier of the picture was mute, somber, threatening, in the obscurity of the old Watch Tower.

CHAPTER VII.

THE SWALLOW WALTZ.

The girl listened in passive silence. Her rich color faded to a warm, golden pallor, the corners of her lips drooped; the delicate arch of black eyebrows met above the bridge of thin nose with the flexible nostril. She did not question the means whereby Mrs. Griffith had become aware of her capacity to serve on the occasion. Possibly she divined that some suggestion made by Lieutenant Curzon had resulted in the invitation. Why did she not betray more joy in the opportunity of diversion? The messenger was piqued, puzzled, even tantalized, by the appearance of wilful indifference in her bearing.

"You understand the role assigned you, do you not?" he demanded, with tender insistence.

"I understand perfectly well," she rejoined, musingly. "Grandpapa may not consent, though."

"He must consent. We will tell him there is question of receiving a Russian grand duke."

"Should I be required to recite a verse? I have done that several times at the convent," said Dolores, with childish triumph.

He suppressed a smile.

"Not on this occasion, Dolores. May I call you Dolores?"

She gave neither consent nor refusal; a dimple deepened near the corner of her mouth.

"I will bring all the things in the morning, I mean your stage wardrobe, and then we will have a full dress rehearsal here in the garden," said the young man, blithely. "Grandpapa shall decide if you are a true Phœnician maiden."

"I must be ugly and yellow, like the figures on the bits of stone and pottery," demurred Dolores, ruefully.

"As if you could be other than lovely, Dolores," he said, bending over her. "Afterward there is to be a ball."

An expression of sudden delight transfigured her face. She threw back her head, and opened her eyes. To go to a ball and dance! What felicity of happiness! She clasped her hands together, with an irrepressible transport of delight, and sprang to her feet with an elasticity of movement which sent a tingling vibration of sympathy through the veins of her companion.

"I will come if grandpapa only consents," she exclaimed.

"Give me the very first waltz," insisted Arthur Curzon, with a soft meaning in his tone.

The maiden accustomed to ball room gallantry might have blushed modestly, lowered her glance and toyed with her bracelet before yielding consent.

Young Dolores stooped to recover her scissors, and retorted frankly—

"Oh, yes!"

Then she added, naively: "I thank you for remembering me."

Jacob Dealtry approached from the house and returned the greeting of the officer without warmth, and yet without any manifestation of surprise at his second visit.

Dolores flew to his side, clasped her hands on his arm, and explained the invitation of Mrs. Griffith's to the tableaux and ball.

The old man listened without comment, while his countenance betrayed bewilderment and suspicion.

"Did you come to see my Moorish coin?" he questioned abruptly of Lieut. Curzon, when his grandchild had finished.

"Yes," said the young man, with hypocritical alacrity. "I think of going in for that sort of thing, Mr. Dealtry, during my stay at Malta, and making a collection."

"Very good," muttered the grandfather, producing the Moorish coin for his inspection.

Wounded pride made Dolores flash a reproachful glance at the officer, while her short upper lip curled scornfully.

"I would not buy a privilege," she said in a smothered tone, as the old man shuffled away in search of other relics, tempted by the yielding mood of the amateur collector.

glish servant carrying tea, came unexpectedly upon a group of officers in brilliant uniform lingering at a buffet, or was surrounded by a bevy of ladies in toilettes bearing the imprint of Paris and London make.

The hostess received her royal guest at the entrance of the first sala, a gracious presence in a robe of cream-colored moire antique over pistachio green satin, with fair arms and shoulders revealed by a corsage of golden tracery, studded with opals.

The young prince, pale, slender and beardless, with heavy-lidded eyes, and a languid utterance, was a modern Telemachus, escorted by Mentor in the person of Gen. Lubomirsky, with a bristling, white mustache, a la militaire, and several orders attached to the breast of his uniform.

As such Mrs. Griffith wished to welcome the grand duke.

Telemachus was conducted by his host through several rooms, where myriads of lights were reflected on mirrors, and a profusion of flowers, arranged in banks and masses with a background of tree ferns and tall plants, with variegated leaves, formed a miniature garden, to a gilded arm chair placed in the center of a large and lofty apartment. The prince, seated here, and surrounded by an expectant company, was required to contemplate a dark curtain, draped with Russian and British flags, until such time as the drapery was drawn aside, revealing a tiny stage.

The scene, arranged with admirable artistic effect, represented a margin of shore and rocks, with tropical vegetation. In the background was visible the entrance of a grotto, half concealed by a drooping vine.

The hostess, personating Calypso, in a classical mantle and robe of ivory-white tints, with a soft crepe peplum, embroidered in a Greek pattern, and her abundant dark hair gathered in a knot at the back of the head, pushed aside the vine, emerging from the grotto, and extending her hand with a smile to the grand duke, said in a musical voice:

"Telemaque, venez dans ma demeure ou, je vous recevrai comme mon fils."

"Malta was the island of Calypso," said the prince, when the curtain had fallen.

"Yes. Let us respect all myths at such a moment," added Gen. Lubomirsky.

When the mimic stage again became visible, three pictures, divided by a seemingly massive frame, occupied the space.

Lunar Photography.

Professor Langley has been interested for a considerable time in the possibility of preparing a chart of the moon by photography, which would enable geologists and selenographers to study its surface in their cabinets with all the details before them which astronomers have at their command in the use of the most powerful telescopes. Such a plan would have seemed chimerical a few years ago, and it is still surrounded with difficulties, but it is probable that within a comparatively few years it may be successfully carried out. No definite scale has yet been adopted, but it is desirable that the disk thus presented should approximate in size one two-millionth of the lunar diameter, but while photographs have been made on this scale none of them show detail which may not be given on a smaller one.

A Sad Time for Actors.

The critic met the old school actor on the highway, and, observing a pale melancholy in the face of the Thespian, said: "What's the matter, Hamleigh? You look blue."

"I am blue," returned Hamleigh. "These new school actors are knocking us old fellows completely out."

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the critic.

"I'm not educated up to the standard," said Hamleigh. "A man to be a good actor nowadays has got to swim in real water, or ride a race, or manage a buzz-saw, or be an expert farm hand. I can't swim, ride or milk cows, and I am as afraid as death of a buzz-saw. Result
