MORE HOSPITAL ROOM NEEDED.

More Patients Placed Outside the Hospital this Month than Put Inside.

The cry has been so industriously circulated that there was insufficient clinical material at the university hospital, and the Courier took upon itself on Saturday the task of investigating to some extent the real facts in the case. The first thing discovered was that there was far from room in the regular hospital for all or nearly all the patients who present themselves for treatment. This has been especially true for the past month. There are sixty beds in the hospital, and the number of patients cared for during the past year has ranged from the highest number of 82 to the lowest number of 69. Supt. Clark packing them in as best he could. Besides this number in the hospital, and the number of patients in private rooms outside, waiting for operations or treatment. At present there are no less than twenty-five patients waiting to get into the hospital. During the month of May, the number of "outs," as they are called, has far exceeded the number of "ins," as the patients in the hospital are designated in contra-distinction to those outside. And this situation does not bid fair to change. The number of patients accommodated in the hospital from year to year is constantly on the increase, as the following table for the past eight years will show:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Patients. 1888: 673, 1889: 698, 1890: 1,069, 1891: 1,477, 1892: 1,470, 1893: 1,560, 1894: 1,592, 1895 (up to May 21): 1,79

If the same rate be kept up this year from this time until the end of the year, the total number of patients of 1895 will aggregate 1,617, over a hundred in excess of any previous year. To explain the large increase in 1891, it must be said that that was the first year in the new hospital and the institution was then for the first time kept open the year round.

This does not appear to strengthen the case of those who keep up the cry of "not enough material." However, it must be said, that the objection urged that there are not enough emergency or acute cases, is to some extent true. Yet there is another side to this part of the question. It is a fact that the most of the emergency cases of the city hospitals come in during the night, and at a time when the students can derive no benefit from them. Here it is different. Whenever there is an emergency case here, it is peculiar how quickly the students are aware of the situation. Supt. Clark says that the largest crowds that are ever in the clinical amphitheatre are those that are brought together for an emergency case in the middle of the night. The reason is this. Here in Ann Arbor the students are within easy range of the hospital, no matter where they room, while in a large city, they are scattered over so large an area that it is with difficulty that they can be brought together except during recitation hours.

There is another difficulty in the way of clinical advantages to be derived from a private hospital like Grace or Harper's in Detroit. A large number of cases coming to them are private and not subject to the inspection of a crowd of students. They are under the direct care of a certain physician, and the students have little experience with these patients. Here they have every advantage in the world. Each patient is turned over to one, or in most cases to two students, whose duty it is to watch the case, to note every symptom and to report it from day to day to the physician in charge, who will then prescribe for the following twenty-four hours. In this way the students have the best of clinical advantages, which they could only have in a hospital like the one here. No one can elect here whether he shall be under the care of students or not. He is placed there, because he comes to a hospital where he pays a minimum price for his board and necessities, and his medical attention is thrown in. He is here not only for his own benefit, but for the good of the students as well.

There is another thing to be said in favor of this hospital, when compared with those of the larger cities. It averages as many patients as does Harper's in Detroit. That hospital last year contained at one time 92 patients, the highest number of the year. While the lowest number was 39, a point to which the university hospital does not descend, except at a few times during the summer vacation.

It would seem, therefore, that the assertions that the local hospital gives insufficient clinical advantages is ill-timed. There are only a few kinds of cases of which it does not present as many cases as do the hospitals of any city.

A GRAND DRIVEWAY.

Ann Arbor will Have one When the Boulevard is Extended.

"I tell you," said a Northsider this morning, "when we get the boulevard extended, we will have a fine avenue. Good enough for any city in the land."

"Where do you propose to extend it?" was asked. "I'll tell you." "Commencing on Broadway, where Cedar Bend Avenue now ends, it will run northwest to Traver street southwest to Plum street, and from thence directly west to Pontiac street. For this distance the right of way has been secured, we understand, and the extension is a sure thing.

"Then a further extension is well under way, running to the Whitmore Lake road, terminating near the bridge that crosses the Huron."

This scheme if carried out, will make one of the finest drives in the country. Then this grand avenue might be extended along the river bank on the south side of the river just at the foot of the bluffs, as far up stream as the water works.

Ann Arbor has it in her grasp to make a delightful drive of some three miles or more that no place in Michigan could excel. But she must take better care of it than she is now doing with Cedar Bend avenue. At least $1,000 per year, for ten years, ought to be appropriated to build up and beautify this magnificent pleasure drive, and as Ann Arbor is without a park to its name—much to its detriment—the common council ought to take hold of this drive and make it not only a famous one, but a pleasure to every person in the city who can either walk, ride or drive.

THE "GREAT SECRET."

There was a man I knew him well, He owned a little store, And he would have to stock it up Three times a year or more. And when I'd take the paper up I would be sure to see His name and business well displayed, As names and trade should be. He had to build a large store, For wider grew his faith, Just like his trade, for man to him The buying public came. His rival said that trade was "dull," And looked in sore distress, And wondered if he let them know The "secret of success." He was the kindest hearted man We had in all the town, His genial face was like a sun, It never wore a frown. He met his rivals at the door And took them by the hand; He showed them thro' a crowded store; They couldn't understand. "We handle all the goods you do," The startled spokesman said; "But trade has drifted down to you, With us 'tis nearly dead." "Impart the secret of your trade," The merchant smiled; "I think The anchor of the business man Is labeled 'printers' ink.'"

The genial merchant hath retired, He doth ascribe his fortune to Trade's anchor—printers' ink.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Callouette, Druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store, I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial bottle at Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's Drug Store, and Geo. J. Heausler, Manchester.

Death of Mrs. Pattengill.

At 8 o'clock Friday evening last, death relieved the earthly suffering of Sara Ewer, wife of Judson G. Pattengill, principal of the Ann Arbor high school.

Mrs. Pattengill had been in delicate health for a number of years, but had been confined to her bed but a few days. She leaves a husband and one child, a daughter, Miss Carrie.

The deceased was a native of Mendon Center, N. Y. where she was born in 1852. She had been a resident of this city for some 25 years or more and was universally esteemed in the community.

The funeral services were held at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon, from the family residence, at Cornwell Place.

A Grand Meeting.

The meeting of the County Teacher's Association, at the Ann Arbor High school chapel last Saturday, was an excellent one, especially so in point of attendance, as over one hundred and fifty teachers were there. This reflects credit upon School Commissioner Cavanaugh, who appears to be taking as much interest in the duties of his office now, as he did when he first assumed the position a few years ago. Quite often people who have only a few more weeks to serve take little interest, and allow their duties to lag or go by default.

Beside the papers mentioned in Saturday's daily, Miss Rice, a teacher in the Ypsilanti High school, read a very interesting essay on "The Art of Questioning." It gave those present a number of good points, and was filled with practical ideas.

Those teachers who were fortunate enough to be present, are quite unanimous in expressing themselves as very much pleased, and regard the meeting as not only interesting but full of instruction for them.

The paper read by Prof. Wines was commented upon in a way very flattering to that gentleman.

To Take a Jaunt.

At a meeting of the street committee Wednesday to decide upon the purchasing of a stone crusher and road roller, there were representatives from three companies for rollers and two for crushers present. Bids were put in and opened by the committee, but the result not given out.

The agents present chipped in $320 to take the entire street committee together with the city clerk and Prof. M. E. Cooley on a swing around the circle.

The committee consisting of Aids. Moore, Almendinger, Snyder, Ferguson, Taylor, Prettyman and Butterfield, with Aid. Taylor as chairman, expect to leave here on Tuesday next, going to Detroit at first, then on Wednesday to Buffalo, N. Y., Thursday to Harrisburg, Pa., and then to Springfield, Ohio, to see the machines as they are made and in operation. The agent of the Harrisburg Co. has given the entire crowd a personal invitation to visit for one day the Gettysburg National cemetery, which has been accepted with thanks.

After spending a week investigating and sight seeing at the expense of the companies, the committee think they will be able to decide upon the machine the tax-payers of Ann Arbor ought to buy, and will make a contract for it.

MATT GOT A SEAT.

And Unlike the Lansing Croaker he Didn't Get Mad—The Grass Lake Man Liked it.

The following notice of the May Festival is taken from the Manchester Enterprise, Matt D. Blosser, editor. It is so different from the dyspeptic Lansingite's version, we give it entire:

"The May Festival at Ann Arbor last Friday and Saturday must have been a great success financially as it certainly was as a musical event. The large university hall was packed to the doors—and we might truthfully say to the roof—with people from all parts of the state and Canada and Ohio. Hundreds were turned away unable to gain admission and the management is being criticised in consequence, but so far as we could discover no partiality was shown; first come, first served being the rule.

"Our Manchester friends were very successful in getting good seats and choice positions but we went early in order to do so. The management have one consolation, they will hear no kick from those who went early and secured good places and those who did not would kick anyway.

"The concerts were truly grand and the Columbian organ recital was alone worth the price of a season ticket and the Boston orchestra gave immense satisfaction. Many were disappointed in Miss Stein. On Friday evening her singing was not up to their expectation and when she sang Saturday afternoon she refused to respond to the hearty applause and continued entreaty to appear. Those great singers forget that the same audience does not hear them on their every appearance. Nordica also disappointed the audience. She has a splendid voice and knows how to use it but she did not do herself justice Saturday evening that's sure. The pianist is an artist and no mistake. Miss Stewart has a voice like a bird and we were charmed by her singing. Mr. Rieger, the tenor, Max Heinrich, the baritone and W. H. Clark the bass, gave good satisfaction. The choral union showed good training but the oratorio was not sufficient to bring out the full power of the voices.

"All unite in according great praise to Prof. Stanley for his part and Ann Arbor and the university are to be congratulated for having so successful a school of music.

"The attendance on Friday evening was 3,039; on Saturday morning, 3,063; afternoon, 3058; evening, 3,860 including the chorus and orchestra."

The Grass Lake News remarks: "The May Festival at Ann Arbor was a grand success and is acknowledged to have been the most conspicuous musical event that ever took place in Michigan. Prof. Francis W. Kelsey, president of the University musical society, is praised on all sides for his untiring efforts in bringing the affair to so glorious a consummation; a work in which he was ably seconded by Prof. Spence, secretary of the society. The Detroit Tribune says the attendance at the four concerts was 13,019. People were present from all parts of the state and were delighted with the splendid program presented. No doubt the marked success of the festival will induce the university musical society to arrange for its repetition next year."

The kind words of the News are certainly appreciated by the management, but that paper does not understand that to Prof. Albert A. Stanley is due the principal credit for the entire series of festivals and concerts given here in Ann Arbor. He is the man who can with truth stand up and say "I did it," but he is a man who never would do that, no matter who might receive the credit for the result of his labors. Of course the gentlemen mentioned contributed to the success of the enterprise, but the moving spirit was Prof. Stanley.

The democratic leader who talks on either side of the silver question is sure to give aid and comfort to the republicans party.

The attempt to make political capital by charging Gov. Rich with opposing the University appropriations and interests is pretty small potatoes.

Probably the southern democracy is less unsound on silver than the western democracy. There is considerable room for improvement, however, even in the south.

Party lines were not drawn in the income tax decision. Two republicans and two democrats voted for the law, and three republicans and two democrats against it.

The Agricultural department has decided that the peanut is not a nut but a pea. Thus does the present administration gradually solve problems of great pith and moment that were neglected by its republican predecessors.

By a vote of five to four the U. S. Supreme Court has decided the income tax law unconstitutional. So another idol of this administration is shattered. Between the verdicts of the people and the courts there will not be much left at its close.

It does not matter what Carlisle may have said or how he may have voted on the silver question at some previous time so long as he is now on the right side, and he can afford to disregard those who are criticising him because he has gained wisdom as he has grown older.

Societies have been formed in London and Dublin to rescue the Gaelic and Anglo-Irish languages and to train translators to get it into English in a form worthy of its long existence, reaching down to the last century. Only a fourth of the people of Ireland now understand the ancient language, and only a sixteenth use it to the exclusion of English. The Irish tongue is rich in epics, ballads, romances, satires, and songs, and the new societies contain many leading literary men their labors are likely to result in a succession of volumes of high interest and lasting value.

The actor says: "I felt born to a new life; my chest expanded more freely in that atmosphere of life and movement and liberty. I seemed to have become again a youth of twenty, walking the streets of republican Rome." It was a mystery to him how American audiences, when he played before them in his own language, were so responsive to the dialogue, even to the intonation of a single word. This tribute from a man like Salvini leaves the Americans a long way ahead on the score of recent foreign criticism.

The elder Salvini knows as much about this country as any foreigner of his time, and the pleasant words he speaks about it in his new volume of recollections have the merit of resting on long and intelligent observation. He says he enjoyed in the United States a finer, more exhilarating, more oxygenated air, but why he hardly knows himself. The greater conveniences of everyday life had something to do with it. So had "the busy people, lovers of work, and the beautiful ladies seen by thousands on the street, dressed elegantly and having a free, dignified bearing." There was also the thought that the Americans had fought for and won their independence. At all events,

Gen. Weaver says that the populists will never go into the democratic party; but it is to be remembered that they have done other equally foolish things.

It is easy to understand that the increased foreign demand for American securities is based upon the foregone conclusion that the next administration will be republican.

There is one man in the country who knows there is nothing in the third term lunacy. That man is Cleveland himself. He is aware that he could not get twenty-five votes in any national convention.

The decision of the supreme court in the income tax case is to the effect that the democrats in the last congress made an unconstitutional attempt to catch the votes of the populists.

The fee of $40,000 which Secretary Hoke Smith recently collected from a railway corporation is not so much as he has frequently taken away from the pensioners in a single day to make a democratic record of economy.

A fellow of the British Royal Society has issued a pamphlet on "How to Draw a Straight Line," something most people can do without learning. But those who can draw a straight line without ruling it can draw anything.

Just at present the biggest canal lock in the world is the Canadian one at Sault Ste. Marie, 300 feet long and sixty feet wide; but Uncle Sam will have a bigger one finished in a few months on his side of the line.

The fact is to be borne in mind that the recently deceased income tax was imposed upon the people because the income of the government did not equal its outgo under democratic rule, in times of perfect peace and quiet.

The Greek Premier has announced that in consequence of his defeat at the polls he will retire from politics. David B. Hill is said to have registered a similar vow last fall and kept it for a whole week, but he talked fearfully in his sleep.

California's fruit crop in ten years has increased sevenfold, and its value last year was $50,000,000, or $10,000,000 more than that of the gold mined in the state. The experience of California shows that the demand for fine fruit is practically unlimited.

When republicans are casting their eyes around the horizon for a suitable candidate, each and every one stops as if by magic, at the name of Robert T. Lincoln. The next president must come from the west, and Lincoln has no enemies in his own party, or the opposite party either, for that matter.

Senator Jewell has worked heroically and persistently for the repeal of the special charter of the Michigan Central railroad company, but was finally defeated, lacking three votes of the number required. When it is remembered that the chief reason for the passage of this bill is to bring this road under the operation of the two cent fare law, it seems rather peculiar that there should be serious opposition to the bill.—Grange Visitor.

Bull fighting is a good business in Spain, if the fellow who follows it manages to keep out of reach of the bulls horns. Mr. Gueretta, who is an expert artist in that line, has put the quietus on about 1,400 bulls in his time, and scooped in a fortune of $600,000 by his performances. If the gentleman worked in a Chicago slaughter-house and was paid killing wages, at so much per bull, the New Orleans Picayune opines that he would earn less, but he would be ever so much more useful in the world.

The Monroe girl, Miss Mary St. Dennis, who disappeared suddenly a few weeks ago, leaving a note that she was going to climb the golden stairs, by the hydraulic route, through the river there, has been found in Detroit. She advertised for a situation as teacher of piano and violin, and this gave her away to her grandfather, who went down and induced the lass to return. Living in Monroe begets such ennui, in the minds of spirited girls that they have to run away occasionally to wake up. It's so quiet there that they have to use a watch for a town clock and the ticking of this even, can be heard all over town, when the ball club isn't playing.—Adrian Press. And now the quill drivers at Monroe can begin to shed ink.

"A Freak in Finance, or The Boy Teacher Taught," is a right sharp and bright answer to vagaries and exaggerations in "Coin's Financial School." It is from the pen of John P. Cargill, and besides answering Coin it gives an outline history of bimetalism in this country, from 1792, up to date. It also contains a brief statement of the theory of money, and some other facts curious and interesting. It is an entertaining book and every person who has had his mind biased by Coin's books, ought to procure this and give the other side a chance. George Wahr has them at only 25 cents. Get it and read it.

BEEF AND RECIPROCITY.

The recent worry and fret over the beef situation could have been settled in the twinkling of an eye if the reciprocity feature of the McKinley law had been incorporated in our present nondescript tariff act.

It was the design of the friends of reciprocity to apply this principle so as to admit free, with compensating benefits from other countries, such articles or things as were not produced by ourselves in sufficient quantities for the domestic consumption.

Under the McKinley reciprocity clause in the act of 1890 the president could at any time remove the duty upon any article, and at the same time, by treaty, enlarge our exportation of such commodity as the country with whom the reciprocal relation was established should want.

In case of the possible inability of our own cattle raisers to supply the domestic demand the exercise of such powers by the executive, did they exist, would be more effective. Supplies could be drawn from Argentina, Mexico, and Canada, and for the privileges extended to these countries, privileges would have been obtained in return.

A FEW THINGS.

Sheep slaughtered by millions, because wool has been made free; the price of beef advancing; a Portland (Oregon) syndicate buying three thousand horses with an intention to introduce horse meat to American consumers; Edward Atkinson running about the country giving demonstrations of methods of preparing 15-cent dinners and recommending to poor people the use of skin beef and oleomargarine; women doing men's work in the tin plate mills in western Pennsylvania; foreigners leaving the country as fast as others come in, and the Treasury of the United States unable to stand by itself, but propped up by British Bankers—These things indicate what we have come to and foreshadow what we are coming to under the domination of American affairs by British ideas.—The Manufacturer, April 27, 1895.

VIGILANCE IS NECESSARY.

Great danger exists that the homeopathic school will be removed to Detroit. This means not only a loss of that school, but an entering wedge for the removal of the old school. The uneasy spirits, who for years have been trying to get the medical college and hospitals away from Ann Arbor moved through jealousy or hope of personal gain, have been tireless in attempting every means to accomplish their ends. This is the latest game, and the legislature is likely to vote to remove the homeopathic department unless Ann Arbor takes speedy measures to oppose it. Some representative citizens should go at once, and the Courier will be the one of the number of subscribers to pay the expenses of the trip.

In the largeness of the old school there is likelihood of the importance of the new school being forgotten. Through its professors, students, nurses, employes and hospital patients a large amount of money is left here every year and after what this city has done for the hospitals we have a right to be heard. There is no question but that we shall lose it unless prompt action is taken at Lansing.

MAY FESTIVAL LESSONS.

The wonderful success of Music Festival shows that the people are hungry for the best music. University Hall when built was one of the largest auditoriums in the country, but now it is too small for the great gatherings which tax it. It is too small for commencement, or even for the students, when they all gather together. We must look to the musical society, which has not failed in any undertaking so far, to furnish an auditorium large enough to hold the great meetings which assemble. With that and a good hotel Ann Arbor could attract state and national conventions. One like the Chautauque assembly hall could be erected at a cost of $12,000 or $15,000 to hold six thousand people. It is a most valuable thing to this city to have these May festivals and we should see to it that they can be accommodated for if they are not the festivals will either have to be discontinued or higher prices for tickets charged. The latter would cut down the attendance, thus reducing their value to the town. No other thing will so advertise Ann Arbor as a model residence town than to have all these well-to-do people come here.

The official title of the governor of Rhode Island is "Governor, Captain General and Commander in Chief of and over all the state of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations." Quite a voluminous title for a little wee state.

President Cleveland is said to be opposed to the calling of an extra session of the republican congress to provide relief for the treasury. That is probably true. He knows that the republican remedies will be difficult to swallow, and he wants to put off the taking of them as long as possible.

Coffee Rooms and City Mission.

Do we need a place where men reformed from following the saloon and kindred evils can gather for enjoyment and improvement? Do we need a mission work here adapted to the poor and the depraved? If yes, do we need a new organization to maintain such a place and carry on such a work? These questions have been asked and considered at meetings held for some weeks past at the various churches on Wednesday nights following the prayer meetings. A goodly number of earnest men and women have been in attendance, and have given the matter thought and investigation. The decision is, to go forward to test the feasibility of the movement in an effort to secure a guarantee fund of five hundred dollars.

A meeting was called at the Methodist church at 8:30 o'clock last night to take action towards an organization and the election of proper officers.

The need of such a work for the unfortunate and depraved, though not so great in Ann Arbor as in our large cities, is conceded by all who have given the subject consideration. Certainly those among us who need salvation the most should have it ministered to them; and ministered in ways that are fitted to them. Our Lord offered His help and salvation especially to the poor and needy and the depraved; and the Gospel as given us by Him consisted in help and healing to the body first; afterwards to the mind and soul. Why should we not copy his methods if we are aiming to do His work? The question is a serious one whether the Gospel of our Lord is ministered at all to the most needy amongst us, either to body or soul. The failure of our churches along this line is being recognized and in our larger cities the work for these classes is being attempted through city missions and the Salvation Army, and so the question arises, do we need a separate organization here for the accomplishment of this work? To multiply organizations unnecessarily would seem to be unwise. But can this peculiar work be done under present organizations? Cannot the churches do this work directly? or the Young Men's Christian Association? whether they could or not, the fact is it is not done. The Y. M. C. A. has been approached to see whether it can incorporate this specialty of a Coffee Room, etc., with its other work, tell us it is outside their plans and they could not safely cover so much ground. This has always been the answer of the Y. M. C. A.'s when work of the city mission order has been proposed to them. They conceive that they must confine themselves to their own specialties—and probably with wisdom. For the genius of good and successful work in all departments in our day, is in specializing. It would be an economy of agencies and expenses if the Y. M. C. A. could take up this work, but they have considered it and have declined.

We therefore, recognizing the importance of this work should not hesitate to adopt an agency which is admirably fitted for the work and which elsewhere is grandly accomplishing it.

E. A. SPENCE, Secretary.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

"M. Quad," the Famous Humorist, Takes his Old Place on The Free Press.

We find great pleasure in announcing to our readers that Chas. B. Lewis the famous "M. Quad," has resumed his former place upon the Detroit Free Press. Since his retirement from the Free Press four years ago, Mr. Lewis has been writing for one of the leading syndicates. His preference for direct newspaper work, however, led him to abandon that connection, and hereafter his popular writings will appear only in the Free Press. Mr. and Mrs. Bowser, Brother Gardner, Arizona Kicker, Zeb White, Abe Crofoot, Mrs. Gallup, and many new characters, will appear regularly.

The publishers are making a special four months' trial offer of the Semi-weekly Free Press for 25c to introduce their paper to new readers, and we would advise those looking for a great bargain to send in their subscription at once. The offer is good only until August 1st.

Some Work That Has Been Done.

The young Men's Christian Association is always first in recognizing the needs of any class of persons in the community. Statistics show that only one boy in four hundred is in school at the age of eighteen. Many of our own young men were obliged to leave school early, so the following evening classes were started last winter, in order to place within the reach of all young men, some of the more practical branches of study. Penmanship and book-keeping were taught by Mr. Ed. Seyler, mechanical drawing by Mr. Wentmore, conversational German by J. A. C. Hilder, and shorthand by Otto E. Wagner of the stenographic institute. The success of these classes has been more than could be expected the first year. The whole number of classes held was 50, with a total attendance of 417. The average attendance in book-keeping and penmanship was 13, in mechanical drawing 6, in German 16, in shorthand 6. As the young men of Ann Arbor have appreciated their efforts thus far, the educational committee are planning for a course still better and more thorough for the coming year. Classes will begin early in the fall. Complete announcements of course of study, etc., will be given during the summer.

"Tax-Payer" Believes the Council Have Made a Mistake.

Editor Daily Courier:

Dear Sir: I notice in your last evening's edition that the council at their session Monday evening, reduced the bonds required of the city treasurer from $80,000 to $50,000. That action, as you say, was a very generous deed on their part, for I presume that it is difficult just at this particular time to secure bonds, but was the council warranted in taking such action?

By looking over the reports of the city treasurer as published in your paper, I find that on the 31st of December 1894, the treasurer had on hand $63,867.05. On the 31st of January 1895, he had on hand $66,459.47. On the 28th day of February, 1894, he had on hand $55,643.10. This money, although in the bank, I take it is subject to his order, and he can check out any part or all of it, as he may desire.

The law requires, in most instances, that a custodian of public funds shall give a bond for double the amount of money that comes into his hands. That is the rule governing at the probate office I am told, and Mr. Gruner, as treasurer of this school district is required to furnish bonds to the amount of $40,000, while the money that comes into his hands at any one time never or seldom reaches $20,000. At the county treasurer's office I find the same rule is applied.

The city treasurer is liable to have more than $50,000 of city money alone come into his hands at one time, through the sale of bonds the coming year if the two sewers now projected are built. The estimates on one of these alone (the Hill or Packard street sewer) was published some months ago as reaching $50,000, and the Huron street sewer will add some $10,000 or more to that. These sewers are built by the sale of city bonds, the city treasurer being the custodian of the funds.

There is another feature that perhaps the council did not understand. When the bond of the City treasurer was fixed at $80,000 it was made to cover the amount of school tax money that he collects, and for which he is not now required to give a bond to the school district. If this practice is changed, and the school district shall hereafter require a bond of the city treasurer, which it seems to me would be a proper business precaution, then the action of the council might be more justifiable. If this is not done, then the council's action in reducing the amount of the bond required was not such precaution as the business men composing that body would require in their own private affairs.

I have no other interest in this matter save as a citizen and taxpayer, and as such I am most assuredly interested. It strikes me the council has made a mistake.

Very Respectfully,

RESOLUTION LOST 10 TO 5.

Plan to Increase the Board of Public Works to Five Easily Downed.

When the special session of the council was called to order last evening, all the municipal representatives were present except Alderman Taylor. The latter soon made his appearance.

Alderman Ferguson at once offered a resolution, providing for the amendment of sections 134, 135 and 139 of the city charter, as shown by the proposed bill.

Section 134, if amended as proposed, would provide for a board of public works, composed of five men, no two to be from the same ward. No other change would be made, except that the official terms begin and end on the 15th Monday in June, instead of May 15.

Section 135 provided that two additional members be appointed for three year while all subsequent appointments would be for three years.

Section 139 provided for no change except that the appointment of the street commissioner be with the concurrence of the common council. The city engineer would still be appointed by the board of public works subject to the approval of the common council.

Alderman Prettyman opposed the resolution. The question had already been thoroughly discussed last winter and the board had been left alone. This action was taken advisedly. The council had seen the evil of a large executive board under the old aldermanic system of supervision. Each ward represented was always trying to see how much could be gotten done for itself.

Under the present system the members were directly responsible and there was a way to get at them. The matter of having the street commissioner's appointment approved by the council was in direct conflict with the spirit of the council in giving the mayor freedom in the appointment of his police force. The amendment had been proposed within the past forty-eight hours, and the change was too radical to be made with any such haste. It was unwise to make any change when there was so much important work to be done as there is in the city now.

Ald. Brown saw no good in the new plan. He wanted to know why five members were better than three. It was said that the mayor now had difficulty in finding men for the place and this difficulty would be multiplied by three. Detroit was a fairly large city and she had a board of only three members. He thought the reasons for the change were not clear in the minds of those proposing them.

Alderman Allmendinger wanted five members, because with only three members, two of them could easily get together and run the whole thing.

Alderman Snyder thought there was as good reason for the increase as there was in increasing the council by two. There seemed to be ten good men willing to serve on the board and he would like to see three of them on.

Alderman Taylor had seen good in the proposal to have a board made up of one man from each ward, but he did not see so much good in the present proposition. There was danger of ring rule in a board of three.

Alderman Maynard thought five was too many. He thought a board of three where one did nothing and the other two ran things was worse than no board at all.

Opportunity was given for free discussion by the citizens present, but none availed themselves of it and the roll call was ordered resulting in the defeat of the resolution by the following vote:

Nays—Alds. Moore, Maynard, Brown, Taylor, Shadford, Prettyman, Coon, Butterfield, Cady and President Hiscock—10.

Yeas—Alds. Allmendinger, Koch, Snyder, Laubengayer and Ferguson—5.

Festival Echoes.

The May Festival and its phenomenal success, is still the talk of the town. Consequently anything in regard to it still remains of interest.

The total attendance on all four of the concerts was 13,019, as follows:

Friday evening.....3,039.
Saturday morning.....3,062.
Saturday afternoon.....3,058.
Saturday evening.....3,860.

This includes the chorus and orchestra on Friday and Saturday evenings.

There were 351 people in the chorus and orchestra. This makes a pretty handsome crowd.

There was $115 forced on ticket takers by people who could not purchase tickets, and $90 was paid for standing room.

It will be remembered that Miss Stein declined to respond to an encore at the Saturday afternoon concert. It was not her fault but her misfortune, as she did not feel physically able to do so, having been afflicted with a severe cold. She expressed her regret to friends here, and wanted them to excuse her therefor. It is probably needless to write this item, but lest some may feel that she was ungracious, we gladly give place to it.

English Spavin Liniment removes all Hard, Soft or Calloused Lumps and Blemishes from horses, Blood Spavins, Curbs, Splints, Sweeney, Ring-Bone, Stiffles, Sprains, all Swollen Throats, Coughs, etc. Save $50 by use of one bottle. THAT LANSING GROWLER.

He Didn't Get a Seat but he Got Wet and Got Mad.

A writer in the Lansing Republican ticks about University Hall not being large enough to hold the people who desired to attend the May Festival, and also because he got wet in the rain that greeted all the people as the Saturday night's performance was over, and thinks the management to blame for it all.

He also asserts that there were four thousand tickets sold when the hall would seat only about 3,000 people. The official figures as published show that the largest attendance was Saturday night when 3,800 were in attendance including the 351 people upon the stage. Of this number about 200 paid the door keepers the entrance fee after the management refused to sell any more tickets, thus taking their own chances, making only about 3,000 tickets sold for that night, and for the other entertainments it was much less.

Heretofore the hall has been amply large to accommodate the crowd, but this time the affair outgrew all expectations.

It is certainly to be regretted that that there were any from abroad who failed to secure good seats, but the management did the very best they knew how with what they had to do with, and instead of being censured, should be commended for handling the unwieldy multitude as well as they did.

The same writer appears to have been in bad temper from the start, for he finds fault with everything, even the hotel where he stopped, and the "kid" who directed him thereto. It was an off day for him all around, and if he ever comes again, it is to be hoped that he will have the good sense to make arrangements ahead of time, and have all the luxuries provided for him that he seems to think should fall at his feet at his bidding.

The writer of this item has been in Lansing when he could not get a meal of any kind served him, and could not get within a block or two of the event he went there to witness, but he did not go home and write a letter to the papers cursing the poor management, the hotels and the whole town for it.

If a man takes his chances in a crowd without having made any arrangements in advance for his accommodation, he ought to be man enough to take what he did secure with good grace, and not give the public a taste of his dyspepsia.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY SERVICES.

St. Thomas' Church Taxed to Contain the Crowd—Father Kelly's Excellent Sermon.

St. Thomas' church could not contain the great mass of people who crowded there Sunday morning to witness the services of Memorial Sunday. The front part of the church was well filled with the G. A. R., the Woman's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans and the Ann Arbor Light Infantry. The service was a most interesting one. McClellan's mass, given for the first time on Easter Sunday, was repeated with strengthened chorus and orchestra. Altogether, it was a very enjoyable service for the old soldiers and also the younger ones.

Father Kelly's sermon was a fine effort and was well appreciated by all. His subject was "The Love of Brotherhood Effected only by Christianity." Following is a brief synopsis of the sermon:

The qualities which make for fraternity are the sharing of heart, labor and possessions. But as these qualities were unheard of in pagan, and even now, are unknown among unchristian peoples, fraternity becomes the heritage of the teaching of Jesus Christ. At different times did Christ return to the sentiments of fraternity, when he said "love one another, by this shall all men know you are my disciples if ye love one another," "whosoever will be greater among you let him be the least," "blessed are the poor in spirit for the kingdom of heaven is theirs."

Destitute of these sentiments man saw no reason to love his fellow man. Under the christian dispensation he knows that his brother has in his soul the image and likeness of his Maker. However repulsive he may be, he becomes nevertheless the object of love. Thus is the greatest barrier to unity and fraternity destroyed.

Horse Doctors Himself.

A striking instance of animal instinct, or "horse sense" is revealed by the actions of an old horse owned by Henry Root, a prosperous farmer of Wissahickon. Mr. Root's horse has been troubled for months with rheumatism of the entire body, and all the treatment of learned veterinarians failed to relieve the suffering animal. One day, upon being turned into the meadow, the horse pawed up the loose earth with his hoof and stooped down to lick up the earth. Almost immediately the beneficial effects were noticeable, and ever since the rheumatic horse has taken his daily dose of mud to the extent of nearly a half peck per day. He is almost entirely cured.

The annual diocesan convention of Michigan convenes in this city next week Wednesday, and the annual meeting of the Womans' Auxiliary for the same diocese next week Tuesday. This will bring some 400 or 500 strangers into the city, it is expected.

Jacob Dingman was arrested Saturday evening on a charge of rape and of taking indecent liberties with a child under fourteen years of age. The evidence against him is very black. The same man at the time of his arrest was out on bail on charge of indecent exposure of person before a number of little school girls.

Mrs. Jennie Voorheis, Mrs. A. C. Clark and Miss Emma Bower will attend the twenty-first annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Michigan, which will be held at Battle Creek, June 4, 5, 6 and 7, delegates from the local W. C. T. U. Any person wishing to attend the convention may avail themselves of the reduced rates.

Prof. A. H. Pättingill rode his horse up in front of a State st. store this morning and tied him to a post. A minute later a young man rode his bicycle up in front of the same store and set it up against the next post. The horse looked at the wheel for a moment, pricked up his ears, snorted and then deliberately backed around and gave that wheel a kick that landed it about two rods distant. The horse resented the steel steed's presence, and made his kick effective.

Tecumseh Herald: "Three thousand music lovers stormed University Hall at Ann Arbor Saturday night, to hear 'The Damnation of Faust.' The hall wouldn't hold the crowds, and the culmination of the May Festival was a huge success. Nordica was a disappointment, but Heinrich and Reiger made hits." Just add another thousand to start of with, please.

The telephone office at this place was so connected with University Hall, at Ann Arbor, that listeners here could very easily hear the singing in the "Damnation of Faust," which was rendered at that place Saturday evening.—Chelsea Standard. The above seems astonishing, and yet the telephone will be so perfected before many years pass, that each family can sit at their own fireside and listen to great concerts that are in progress. This is not a dream, nor is it prophecy. It is fact.

On Saturday night, Rev. D. C. Wright, of 69 S. Main st., died of heart disease, aged 77 years, one month. The deceased had been a resident of this city for five years, and had been in his day, a man of considerable note. He had been a chaplain in the army during the war, and as such drew a pension of $20 per month at the time of his death. He had been a G. A. R. man, and a Mason, both of which organizations had befriended him in the past. His life, written by a facile pen, would make an interesting volume, as he had traveled far and near and had met with many thrilling incidents. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. He leaves a wife.

According to present indications there will be about forty bids for the Hill and Huron street sewers. There has been an unprecedented call for specifications.

During the month of June the money order and registry departments will be open evenings for the benefit of the rush that always takes place at that time, and money orders will be paid as long as the cash holds out.

Chas. A. Ward has been appointed inspector of plumbing by the Board of Public Works. He is now inspecting the plumbing already put in. Any one on the line of the Liberty or Washington st. sewers can connect with those later sewers by applying to the city clerk and paying $2 tap fee.

The Kalamazoo Sunday News has a long article of a sensational character, in regard to the E. W. Morgan estate, and some of our prominent citizens. The basis of the article is an affidavit made by Willard Eames. "Judge Kinney," "Philip Baugh," and others figure in the scenes.

Here is the way they serve the two persevering fishermen in our up river hamlet: "A couple of parties of Dexter fishermen who were spearing on the river last Friday night, caught more than they anticipated, in that they were themselves caught by Deputy Game Warden Chas. Bell. The next morning all appeared before Justice Stannard and settled up by paying $4.60 apiece."

If they could get a machine to run over the Ann Arbor sidewalks and shave off the bumps and fill up the depressions, they might have good walks. In passing along the streets on a rainy day or night, you plant one foot on a mound and the other goes kersplish into a hole and the sensation is very unpleasant. No wonder the students learn profanity.—Manchester Enterprise.

Mr. Geo. M. Seward, state treasurer of Topeka, Kas., a man respected by the community for his integrity and his honor, and occupying one of the highest offices of trust in the state, writes: "I have tried every remedy under the sun for headaches but nothing has given me relief until I tried Gessler's Magic Headache Wafers." When a practical druggist and one holding the confidence of the entire community like A. E. Mummery, will sell them on a positive guarantee, they must be good. Price 25c a box.

Miss Emily Eberbach, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otmar Eberbach, died Monday afternoon, of inflammation of the brain, at their home on S. 4th ave. She was about 20 years of age, and for the past year, since graduating from the Ann Arbor High School, had been keeping the books for the Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co. She was a very loveable young lady, with hosts of friends on every side, and in her death the parents have the most sincere sympathy of the entire community. The funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, from the residence.

Tuesday a. m., from old age, Mrs. Elizabeth Speechley, widow of the late George Speechley, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. G. Cook, on S. Main st. aged 83 years 6 months. Mrs. Speechley was born in Whittlesey, England, in 1841, came to America in 1836, and to Ann Arbor in 1838. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, from the Unitarian church, Rev. J. T. Sunderland conducting the services. Interment will be in Forest Hill cemetery. When this old pioneer first came to Ann Arbor there was no upper town, the "city" comprising the settlement on the Northside. She had truly lived to see the wilderness bloom.

There were upwards of sixty Knights Templar in line Sunday. They formed at Masonic Temple went to Forest Hill cemetery, where they decorated the graves of their fallen brothers, some twenty in number, with flowers and evergreen. The ritual services were observed, Rev. W. L. Tedrow, of Trinity Lutheran church, doing the chaplain's work in a most admirable manner. Rev. Mr. Tedrow is a member of Three Rivers Commandery, and a valuable acquisition to the ranks of the Knights in this city. The lack of music at the services was caused by the failure of Dewitt C. Fall to come from Jackson to sing with the Business Men's Quartette, who were to furnish the music. Mr. Fall writes that he was detained by the illness of his son Ray, who has been very sick with what they suppose to be Bright's disease together with dropsy.

They did so, and the lady who came to the door pointed over to the left a ways and said, "There is Whitmore Lake, it is only about a mile away." As one of the boys was a green wheelman, you can imagine how that bit of information was received by him.

Fred. C. Brown, of the Daily Times contemplates removing his family to Chicago before long.

W. F. Bird tells us that aside from grapes he thinks fruit is not seriously injured, and in some very high localities grapes even escaped.

Charlie Davison is not an extremist in any way, but he is such a firm believer in printer's ink that he would risk an entire leg on it.

Those who were engaged in early garden bean culture, had them cooked before they were ready, and the consequence is that they are not exactly palatable.

If it is pleasant Thursday, Ann Arbor will be pretty well depopulated, between the excursion to Detroit and the rush to Ypsilanti for the soldiers' monument dedication.

If it is a good thing for the Home-ops. to go to Detroit, it is a better thing for the Alopaths. Such will be the argument that Dr. McLean and others will spring on the next legislature, or we are no prophet.

Now that the Chicago dailies reach here at noon, those papers are beginning to pay more attention to Michigan news. They may become hot competitors of the Detroit dailies even at this distance from that place.

It is to be hoped that the advance in the price of wheat will be permanent, for it means greater prosperity in the rural districts. The farmers are to be congratulated that the prospects of better prices for grains are very bright.

The Battle Creek Moon says: "The pupils of the high school are making arrangements to spend a day in Ann Arbor soon. Prof. Warriner can secure one fare tickets if fifty will go. They will visit the University and other interesting points."

Sunday's News-Tribune had a portrait, and short history of Rev. John Hildner, father of J. A. Hildner, of this city, and pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical church of Detroit. Rev. Hildner was born on an island in the Aegean Sea, in 1837. He was ordained at Mannheim, Baden, Germany and came to Washtenaw county in 1859, serving the German Evangelical church in Freedom as its pastor for 13 years.

The funeral services of the late Newell Farnum, who died on Monday afternoon of cancer, were held Wednesday forenoon, at the residence on N. Ashley st. He was 76 years 7 months old, and had of late been a great sufferer. Rev. Henry Tatlock conducted the services, and the remains were taken to Detroit for interment. He leaves a widow and one son, Guy Ralph, here in Ann Arbor, and two children by a former wife reside in Detroit.

It has been suggested that with a little united effort, the bicycle riders of this place and Ypsilanti could improve the south road between the two places, thereby making bicycling a real pleasure. Something of the kind is now being done between other cities. Bicycling has passed the experimental stage and there are so many who ride both for business and pleasure that the interest in good roads of course increases with the advent of each new wheel.

The Board of Public Works has a little duty to perform at the corner of E. Ann street and N. 5th ave. That unsightly hole should either be filled in or the owner of the property be compelled to erect a tight board fence around the same. In its present condition it is not only unsightly but positively dangerous. The old railing on the Ann st. side, has tumbled down over the sidewalk and obstructs the same. In other cities owners are compelled to build tight board fences around such unsightly places.

Saturday evening, June 8th, a lawn social will be given by the Ladies' Benevolent Society of Hamburg and Webster, at the residence of Hon. Wm. Ball, in Hamburg. You will find plenty of entertainment in the loan exhibition, art gallery and musical. The musical will consist of both vocal and instrumental music, rendered by the Hamburg orchestra, and others of our best home talent. It is expected that Mr. Robson of Lansing, a fine singer, will lend a helping hand. Ice cream and cake will be served. Come and aid in the worthy cause. Remember the date, Saturday, June 8th.

The rumor is in the air of a great scheme for a new composite democratic daily and weekly paper in Ann Arbor. It is a capitalistic venture. The scheme as it is told is to purchase the Ann Arbor Democrat, the Ypsilanti Sentinel or Commercial, the Dexter Leader, the Saline Observer, the Manchester Enterprise and one of the Chelsea papers. Then establish a daily, semi-weekly and weekly. The daily to give news from all these sections, and the semi-weekly and the weekly to be devoted to the villages at least one page from each village. It is a great scheme, and one that would take a considerable capital to swing. The singular thing about the affair is no one appears to know who is back of it, and who is the front of it, either. The prevalent opinion is that it is only a hair-brain scheme. All air.

They talk about the silver, And they say it's their opinion, That the country would be better For the coming of the halloon, The question never bothered me, And I never thought to let it; But it makes me feel most desperate blue, Because I cannot get it.

Reserved seats may now be obtained at Watts' Jewelry store for the June Festival to be given in the opera house on the evening of June 7, by St. Thomas' Conservatory of music.

Three Ypsilanti wheelmen had their wheels smashed Tuesday evening. They met a party coming from Ann Arbor and saw them too late to avoid a collision. G. H. Scharf's "Smalley" was nearly a complete wreck and one Ann Arborite lost a finger. —Ypsilantiian.

The fire department disposed of their large horse used on the hook and ladder truck, for $75. They also bought a span of grays, five and seven years of age, weighing 1,350 lbs. each. The two horses are brothers, and look so near alike that it is difficult to distinguish the difference between them.

Representative Donovan's bill provides that a 1,000 mileage book bought on any railroad may be used on any railway in the state by any immediate member of the purchaser's family. It is a mighty good law and will stimulate travel enough to more than compensate for trouble of settlements.

Some theatrical combine exhibited at Ann Arbor lately and the price of admission was $1.50. Any person who will give up that sum to see a theatrical performance, is accessory before the fact to larceny from the person, or highway robbery at the first base.—Adrian Press. The sentiment is worthy of an amen, and the grammar is perhaps admissible, but the mixture is appalling.

There is considerable interest manifested by the farmers and dealers in wheat in this locality over the heavy rise in that grain. It is now worth 78 cents here in Ann Arbor, and is still on the rise. The higher price is said to be caused by the reports of damage done to the growing crop by the recent weather in the west, and also to the small acreage, as owing to the low price last year much less was planted. One dollar wheat is now prophesied. Mr. Kyer, of Swathel, Kyer & Peterson, thinks that the day of 50 cent wheat is forever past, and the entire country hopes he is a true prophet.

The person who says that there is insufficient clinical advantages here at Ann Arbor doesn't know what he is talking about. The hospitals are full to overflowing, and people come here to them with every disease known, almost. No hospital in Detroit would give the students such advantages in that line as does our own hospitals, for when patients come here they come with the understanding that they go before the class, while in the city hospitals the students could only be given permission to see the operations and observe the treatment in rare cases, where the patient is willing.

"Say, I've got an item for you," said a lady to this scribe, yesterday. Out came a plump, unused pad from the scribes pocket, while a pencil was grasped with the other ready for business. "Just tell Prof. Stanley that if he wants to retain the good will of the public, especially of the ladies, he should take the profits of the May Festival and buy cushions for the seats in University Hall. If he doesn't do something of the kind, he will have an awful lot of hard swear words to answer for, I'm afraid." We have given the item just as the lady gave it to us. All we have to say is that the purchasing of cushions for those seats would be a pretty big item—of expense. But nevertheless our sympathies are with the lady's proposition. How is it with you, dear reader?

MOCKING BIRD FOOD.

It Made a Decided Sensation in a Chicago Street Car.

A north side cable car the other day was the scene of a most comical incident. It was about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and the car was comfortably filled with ladies returning from their shopping tours, says Chicago Tribune. Sitting between two ladies was an old gentleman of patriarchal appearance. Suddenly both the ladies uttered a shriek and jumped from their seats. The conductor rushed forward, and on his inquiry was told the matter the agitated ladies pointed to the old man. "See! See!" they cried, "look at the worms." And sure enough on the old man's overcoat and trousers crawled about half a dozen fat, yellow worms about an inch long. When the old man found out what was the matter, he slapped his hand on his knee and commenced to laugh. "Well! well! Don't be scared, ladies," he said; "they are only four worms for my mocking birds. I can't understand how the pesky critters got out of the box," and the old man hauled a round paper box, with a hole in the cover, from out of one of his pockets. "I got a couple of hundred in here," he said. The worms were gathered together, the ladies quieted down, and the old man amused the passengers with a description of his beautiful mocking birds. The car had by this time approached Lincoln park, when the lady sitting third from the old man made a sudden grab at her dress somewhere about the knees. "Oh, my, I must have some of them!" she exclaimed, to the amusement of the other passengers, and an expression of agony swept over her face. She looked helplessly round at the passengers, and finally signaled to the conductor to stop the car, jumped out in a hurry, and disappeared among the trees in the park.

The old man, unconscious of the new trouble his worms had caused, was talking to a lady on the other side about his mocking birds, when he was told of what had happened by one of the ladies. He looked a little regretfully on the box of worms and said: "Why didn't she tell me? Why, they are absolutely harmless. I wonder how many she got away with?"

NEW SIGN OF THE ZODIAC.

The Bicycle Recommended for a Place in the Heavens.

The next time the signs of the zodiac are revised room should be made among them for the bicycle. As they stand they are out of date. The bicycle has come to be about the most conspicuous and omnipresent vernal emblem, and it is more conspicuous and omnipresent this year than ever before. Herds of new adventurers—women adventurers in particular—have learned to ride it during the winter that is past, and are ready to seize upon the earliest days of warmth and sunshine to explore the parks and country roads. Since bicycling began an appalling amount of new knowledge has become necessary for the successful guidance of a family. One must know which bicycle is the best, what is the lowest sum it can be bought for, what sum any given second hand bicycle is really worth, whether last year's machine will do for another season, and so on indefinitely. Briefly, the active participant in contemporary life must know bicycles, and if he is the father of a family his knowledge must be co-extensive with his parental responsibilities. The peculiarity about bicycles which is most impressive, and also most afflicting, is that every bicyclist yearns to start the season with a brand new machine of the very newest make. There is such a thing as being satisfied with last year's horse, and even preferring him to an untried quadruped, but improvements in bicycles are devised so much more rapidly than improvements in horses that bicycles get out of date much sooner. And then, too, when you buy a new bicycle you can know pretty definitely what you are getting, and when you buy a new horse of course you can't.

Freting Under the Law.

There is said to be a law in Massachusetts making it an offense to give away any object or thing as an inducement to purchase other things; for example, to give away a picture with every certain amount of other things purchased. There was once a law which made it an offense for a man to kiss his wife on Sunday, but was strangely silent about kissing some other man's wife. Many a man still living can remember when it was not permissible to open the theaters in Boston on Saturday evenings, and there was a law to punish any dissipated individual found smoking on the street. Some of these fantastic old legal freaks have been done away with, but there are some communities which, like some individuals, require quite an unconscionable time to get wide awake.—Boston Traveller.

Whalebacks for Oil Distribution.

The Standard Oil company is building at Superior, Wis., two tank barges for distributing its oil products from that point on Lake Michigan. They will be an experiment and may lead to the employment of tank steamers such as the company uses for its trans-Atlantic trade. The tanks will be whalebacks, with a capacity of 8,000 barrels each.

The Aitken Bible, a copy of which has just been sold in Boston for $300, was the first Bible in the English language ever printed in America. The imprint is as follows: "Printed and sold by R. Aitken, at Pope's Head, three doors above the coffee house in Market street. MDCCCLXXXII."

FROM THE PEOPLE.

Correspondence Upon Several Subjects—Lady Bugs—Base Ball—Personal Reminiscences.

Ann Arbor, May 15, '95.
39 S. Ingalls St.

Editor of the Courier.
Dear Sir:—I wish to call the attention of our citizens to a serious danger menacing our shade and other trees, from a scale insect which is now infesting them in different parts of the city, and which will cause great loss if effectual measures are not soon taken to exterminate these pests.

The scales are very numerous on many maples along our streets, and I have seen them on a plum tree, on red currant and flowering currant bushes, and on grape vines. Ordinary spraying mixtures, I believe, are not very satisfactory against the mature insect, as it is protected by a scale which completely covers it as the creature adheres closely to the bark. The natural enemy of the scale insect is the lady bug, and last summer I saw an unusual number of them, and many of their larva were crawling over the sidewalks. These should be strictly protected, and propagated as rapidly as possible, as our best hope of staying the ravages of the scale.

Some years ago, the orange groves of California were threatened with extinction by the attacks of a scale insect, and the government sent an expert entomologist to Australia, to secure a peculiar species of lady bug which has cleared the orange trees there of this scale. A few of these lady bugs were brought to California, and when distributed in the infested districts, they rapidly multiplied, exterminating their foes, and relieving the orange grower of further trouble. I think we shall have to adopt a similar course, if we can find the right species of lady bug to do the work.

I would respectfully ask Professor J. B. Steere, Entomologist to our County Horticultural Society, to give us his views on this important subject.

Respectfully yours,
HENRY PURFIELD.

EDITOR OF COURIER:

DEAR SIR:—The third ward Tigers went to Chelsea, Saturday, with the intention of playing boys, but when they got there they were very much surprised to see what they had to play. The Tigers are all under fifteen years of age, and the Chelsea boys were between fifteen and twenty-three years of age. The score stood 32 to 10, in favor of the umpire. This was the first time the Tigers have been defeated this season.

ONE OF 'EM.

EDITOR OF COURIER:

DEAR SIR:—May 22d was the sixtieth anniversary of my reaching the United States. I have lived chiefly in Ohio, but am now a resident of this beautiful city, Ann Arbor. In 1841 being in Napolin, and court being in session I took out my first naturalization papers. My home was in the part of Lucas county, that is now Fulton county.

At the expiration of two years I applied for my second papers. Judge Potter presiding (he is still living, at ninety years of age, and a few weeks ago he was confirmed in Trinity church, Toledo, Ohio, a lady from Ann Arbor was present at the ceremony,) he looked at my papers and said the legal time had not expired, it lacked two days, so I took my papers and went home twenty miles on foot. At the next court I appeared again with two good witnesses ready to testify that I was plenty good enough to be a citizen. He took my paper again and said there was a mistake in the dates, one date said 1841, and the other said 1844. It was only 1843. When I was offering the paper the Judge said it must go back to the clerk of Henry county to be righted so I went to my lawyer in Napolin and he wrote back that he would meet me at the next court of Lucas county, but neither he or the paper appeared, so I abandoned the idea of becoming an American citizen, and I became tired of living in the wilderness and I moved to Maumee City and am well worthy and highly honored. Chief Justice Waite then lived in Maumee City. I met him one day and he asked me if I had got my papers. I said no, I had given it up, and I had concluded to die an alien.

My wife was three or four generations American, and my children were citizens, and I would stay out in the cold. He said "I'll get your papers, without one penny cost." So I have been an American citizen fifty years.

GEORGE WOOD.

The right of way for an electric road from Ann Arbor into Detroit, is being secured, and in the course of a year or so, Ann Arborites may have the privilege of riding into the City of the Straits propelled by lightning. The scheme is yet in its infancy, and no one can tell who is at its head or behind it pushing it on. The only thing positive just now is the fact that eastern capital is incubating such an enterprise. The people here would be glad to see it succeed.

On Thursday the post office will be closed from ten o'clock a. m., to five o'clock p. m. There will be one delivery in the morning. Evening window delivery as usual. Registered letter and money order closed all day.

A WHOLESOME TALK.

To the Solons at Lansing and their Treatment of the U. of M.

The following very calm and excellent statement of the situation at Lansing with reference to the attitude of the legislature toward the University, is taken from the last issue of the Tecumseh News. It is a very sensible and able article:

"In this time of financial depression well directed economy on the part of the legislature is to be commended, but it is unfortunate that the solons at Lansing should have selected the state University as the first victim of the policy of retrenchment. Possibly the amount first proposed in the bill was too high, but even after it was cut down considerably more than half, so as to include only such items as seemed to the friends of the measure to be imperatively necessary to the needs of the institution, there was found a sufficient number of members to at least temporarily defeat the bill and it looks now as if the university would have to get along as best it may without a cent of appropriation aside from its ordinary revenues, for the next two years. It may be that the majority of the citizens of Michigan will be satisfied to see a policy pursued toward our greatest public institution, that will cripple it or retard its wonderful career of usefulness. It costs something to maintain it and perhaps the people who own it are getting tired of paying the bill for its support. If so, those members of the legislature who are fighting the university appropriation are making themselves solid with their constituents. But we are unwilling to believe that the people of Michigan would turn against an institution that has been so great an honor to the state. The University of Michigan ranks among the six greatest schools of learning in the United States. Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, Michigan and Chicago are the leading half dozen colleges of the country, and Michigan is unique among the six because she has accomplished so much without a tithe of the financial support which the remaining five enjoy. Over 25,000 students have received instruction within her walls and nearly half of these have graduated. Who shall estimate in dollars and cents the influence for good, material, intellectual and moral, which this army of graduates has exerted and is still exerting, not only in Michigan, but throughout the whole country? President Angell recently showed in a speech before the legislative visitors to the university, that the institution has cost the state an average of about $50,000 a year since its foundation—surely a very small sum to be laid upon two and a quarter million of people, in proportion to the results achieved! But the cost of keeping a great university abreast of the times has greatly increased during the last twenty-five years, and if the great institution of higher learning that crowns the educational system of the state and makes the name of Michigan famous wherever learning is appreciated throughout the world, is to maintain its proud place, it must be generously dealt with. Otherwise it will degenerate to the second rank and the experiment of a great university maintained by the state will prove a failure. We don't believe the people of Michigan are ready to sanction such a backward step."

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

Next Saturday is the date of the Western Inter-Collegiate field day in Chicago. It is hoped that a party may be made up to go from here to help the "varsity" track team to victory. The University of California team will participate in the events.

In the state Prohibition collegiate oratorical contest held last Friday in Albion, W. B. Hatch, of the University, won second prize. His subject was "Modern Menaces of America." N. T. Harper, of Kalamazoo won first place. F. A. Kulp, U. of M., was elected delegate to the national convention in Cleveland.

The Courier is in receipt of the preliminary announcement of the forty-fourth meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, to be held in Springfield, Mass., August 28 to Sept. 7. The announcement indicates a very meagre program. Dean A. B. Prescott, of the School of Pharmacy, was formerly president of the association.

THE "GREAT SECRET."

There was a man I knew him well,
He owned a little store,
And he would have to stock it up
Three times a year or more.
And when I'd take the paper up
I would be sure to see
His name and business well displayed,
As names and trade should be.
He had to build a larger store,
For wider grew his fame,
Just like his trade, for unto him
The buying public came.
His rival said that trade was "dull,"
And looked on sore distress;
And wondered if he let them know
The "secret of success."
He was the kindest hearted man
We had in all the town,
His genial face was like a sun,
It never wore a frown.
He met his rivals at the door
And took them by the hand;
He showed them thro' a crowded store;
They couldn't understand.
"We handle all the goods you do,"
"But trade has drifted down to you,
with us 'tis nearly dead."
"Impart the secret of your trade,"
The merchant smiled: "I think
The anchor of the business man
Is labeled 'printers' ink.'"
The genial merchant hath retired,
The richest man I think;
He doth ascribe his fortune to
Trade's anchor—printers' ink.

Captured the Thief.

On Thursday of last week Prosecuting Attorney Randall was called to Milan to look after a case there that puzzled the officials of that burg.

It seems that things had come up missing at the hotel in Milan for several weeks. The first thing was a gold watch and chain belonging to a daughter of the hotel keeper. Then traveling men stopping there lost different things. One lost a lot of cigars; some two or three their mileage books on the railroads; another a couple of new hats, etc.

Suspicion fell on an agent named Frisbee, who was canvassing for the new county atlas, and who had been at the hotel for some six weeks, but no evidence could be secured against him. Mr. Randall issued a search warrant, and Frisbee's room was entered and his trunks searched. The result was just what was expected. Several of the missing articles were found.

When confronted with the evidence the agent owned up, restored all things that had been taken, paid all the costs, amounting to about $50, and was allowed to depart, a poorer, sadder, and it is to be hoped, a wiser man.

This man, we are told, had been in the employ of the atlas publishing company some five years, had done excellent work, was receiving a good salary, with no expensive habits to gratify, and why he should have fallen from grace seems a mystery all around.

PATRIOTS' DAY.

It is Being Celebrated To-Day for the First Time in our Schools.

By a recent resolution of the Ann Arbor School Board, it was resolved to set aside one day in the school year to be known as Patriots' Day, to be spent in teaching patriotism to the children. To-day is the first observation of that Day.

At the high school, we understand, no notice has been taken of the occasion, but in the ward schools the event is being observed in a very commendable manner, and all the school rooms have been handsomely decorated for the occasion.

The following detail has been made from Welch Post G. A. R. to attend the various wards:

High school—Col. H. S. Dean, H. Soule and J. T. Jacobs.

1st ward—J. Q. A. Sessions, Rob't Campbell and F. Pistorious.

2nd ward—W. K. Childs, Conrad Noll, H. P. Lamb and A. D. Markham.

3rd ward—Hi A. Sweet, J. B. Saunders and W. J. Clark.

4th ward—Herman Krapf, J. Laughlin, A. C. Kingsbury and Maj. Wm. C. Stevens.

5th ward—J. M. Perkins, Eli Manly, Elliott Williams and Nelson S. Garlinghouse.

6th ward—A. F. Martin, N. P. Danforth and M. O. Cranell.

Those Counterfeit Tickets.

The Courier spoke last night of counterfeit tickets being in circulation for the May Festival. A thorough examination of all the tickets discloses the fact that there were just two of them. One of these tickets was a very ingenious affair. It was the work of a penman, equal in all particulars to the famous "Jim, the Penman." The imitation of the original was so exact that it took a close inspection to detect the fraud. The fellow who did it certainly earned his $1. But the question naturally suggests itself, if he would counterfeit a ticket for this affair, would he stop there? Is he not on a straight road to state prison, unless he stops right where he is?

The other ticket was a "doctored" one. Some one had taken a Max Heineck concert ticket and colored or stained the front so as to resemble the color of the Saturday night tickets, and on the back he had pasted a thin paper of similar color, making a very good counterfeit to be used when there was a rush at the doors, which was about all the time.

Next year, Prof. Wines informs us, the tickets will be such that the schemers will have a considerable more difficulty in playing sharp tricks on the door keepers.

Your Physical Condition.

Needs attention at this time. If you are tired, weak and nervous, it is clear that your blood is impure, and without doubt there has been too much over-work or strain on brain and body. The course of treatment for such a condition is plain and simple. The blood must first be purified so that the nervous system, and in fact all the organs will be fed upon pure blood. Intelligent people without number have testified that the best blood purifier, nerve tonic and strength imparting medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Nervousness, loss of sleep and general debility all vanish when Hood's Sarsaparilla is persistently taken; in a word, health and happiness follow after taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

THE BUSINESS MAN'S LUNCH.

Hard Work and Indigestion go Hand in Hand.

Concentrated thought, continued in, robs the stomach of necessary blood, and this is also true of hard physical labor.

When a five horse-power engine is made to do ten horse-power work something is going to break. Very often the hard-worked man coming from the field or the office will "bolt" his food in a few minutes which will take hours to digest. Then too, many foods are about as useful in the stomach as a keg of nails would be in a fire under a boiler. The ill-used stomach refuses to do its work without the proper stimulus which it gets from the blood and nerves. The nerves are weak and "ready to break," because they do not get the nourishment they require from the blood, finally the ill-used brain is morbidly wide awake when the overworked man attempts to find rest in bed.

The application of common sense in the treatment of the stomach and the whole system brings to the busy man the full enjoyment of life and healthy digestion when he takes Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to relieve a bilious stomach or after a too heavy meal, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood. The "Pellets" are tiny sugar-coated pills made of highly concentrated vegetable ingredients which relieve the stomach of all offending matters easily and thoroughly. They need only be taken for a short time to cure the biliousness, constipation and slothfulness, or torpor, of the liver; then the "Medical Discovery" should be taken in teaspoonful doses to increase the blood and enrich it. It has a peculiar effect upon the lining membranes of the stomach and bowels, toning up and strengthening them for all time. The whole system feels the effect of the pure blood coursing through the body and the nerves are vitalized and strengthened, not dazed, or put to sleep, as the so-called celery compounds and nerve mixtures do—but refreshed and fed on the food they need for health. If you suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness, and any of the ills which come from impure blood and disordered stomach, you can cure yourself with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which can be obtained at any drug store in the country.

THE WIZARD OF THE PICK.

Some of the Doings of the Excavator in the Land of Philistia.

Rev. C. M. Cobern completed his Sunday evening course of lectures last night on "A Trip Through the Land of Philistia." He recited at length the discoveries of Prof. Petrie in the East and especially in Egypt and the land of the Philistines. He described this "wizard of the pick," with whom he spent a week in Philistia, as an intensely active and earnest man. His zeal was illustrated by an anecdote. The professor went out one morning early to see about some exploring, eating only a cracker for lunch. He became so interested in the discoveries made that he forgot all about time, but finally happened to think it must be nearly breakfast time. Looking at his watch, he saw that it was the middle of the afternoon.

Dr. Cobern spent several days in Gaza, the city of Samson's exploits. He explained how Samson could tear down a whole temple by breaking down a single pillar. The buildings there are built on a side hill, so that the pillars are implanted in the ground at a considerable angle. It only requires the destruction of a single pillar to bring the whole building tumbling down.

Considerable was said of the Bedoin Arabs, the only really dangerous people in the land. Strangers always sleep in their tents at night with guards without to watch; but Dr. Cobern thought the watchers were of little use. They sleep too soundly. Prof. Petrie awoke one night and looking out of his tent he saw a hyena that had crept up to the camp and was whining over the sleeping guards without. The professor grasped his pistol and fired. The hyena ran, but the unfaithful guards slept on undisturbed alike by the howl of the hyena or the crack of the pistol.

Dr. Cobern closed his account of his visit to Philistia by telling the present customs of the people and comparing them with those of the ancient Canaanites. There are many of them still the same.

In Memoriam.

DIED.—On Friday, May 24, 1895, Sarah Ewer, wife of Judson G. Pattengill, aged 48 years 5 mos. and 21 days.

Sara Ewer was born Dec. 3d, 1851, at Mendon Center, N. Y., where her childhood and early girlhood was passed.

In 1869 she came to Ann Arbor to enter the high school of which her brother-in-law, Prof. Elisha Jones was then superintendent, and from which she was graduated in 1871.

Gifted with a bright and appreciative mind, and a charming personality, she soon made many friends, and for us who knew her in those days the sensitive face, with its ever varying color, is among the pictures of memory.

The years from 1871 to 1875 were spent mostly in her home at Mendon Center, where in 1875 she was married to Judson G. Pattengill—whose acquaintance she had made in Ann Arbor, but who was then teaching in Pontiac. When in 1876 Mr. Pattengill returned to Ann Arbor, as principal of the high school, his wife found a warm place waiting in the hearts of her old friends, and has added hosts of new ones in the intervening years.

Of the traits of mind and character which endeared her to us our memories keep the record, though but brief mention can be made of them here. A rarely discriminating taste in literature, a healthy interest in the affairs of the world at large, and a keen zest in social life, combined to make her companionship a delight—while her sterling good sense, and the unflinching courage with which she spoke her convictions, furnished a firm basis for trust.

Over these later years one shadow has lain, that of a constantly recurring ill health that has limited the activity of a nature rich in its capacities for both action and pleasure. How often the frail body was constrained to do the spirit's bidding, we who have watched the struggle know well, and now that it is over, and we mourn a loyal friend, and feel the grief of those yet nearer and dearer ones before whom stretch out the lonely nights and days, we can at least be glad for her that pain and weariness touch her no more, and spirit is no longer body's thrall.

Of Diphtheria, Defective Sight, Paralysis, Dyspepsia.

Mrs. A. T. Lyon of Detroit the Noted Patient, and She Talks of the Means Used. It is an Interesting Story and Means a Great Deal.

The Same Means Used on Patrick Doyle of Lewiston, Mich., for Inflammatory Rheumatism and Paralysis with Perfect Success.

THE MOST INTERESTING SUBJECT OF THE DAY.

In a neat, home-like cottage at 112 Fifth Street lives Mrs. A. T. Lyon, a remarkably pleasant and motherly lady who tells a very interesting story of her life and, incidentally, speaks of her gratitude for a remedy which has wrought such a wonderful change in her.

Said Mrs. Lyon to a Journal reporter:—"About 30 years ago, before we knew how to pronounce the word diphtheria, I was stricken with that awful disease which left me blind, nearly, and paralyzed in my lower limbs. There seemed but little hope for me, but I did improve gradually until I was able to sit in a chair and drag myself around the room by pulling the chair along with me. I doctored for years, but was not cured. I spent a great deal of money and tried many of the most noted physicians. They only gave me temporary relief. I never was well. Finally, I began to have dyspepsia. My stomach refused all food. I had the most dreadful feelings. I can not describe them. It was a peculiar burning sensation, as if I had been poisoned. I would fall down in the streets, and became so weak that I could not sit up only part of the time. I suffered intensely. Nothing seemed to do me any good. I became thoroughly discouraged. To add to my misery, I had trouble with my heart. One day a lady friend called to see me. She told me about the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I did not want to take them and it seemed foolish to bother with them when physicians had failed to help me. She said so much about it, however, that I began to give the entire credit to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did not want to feel differently. They made me feel so much better. I continued taking them and they have made a different woman of me. I feel like a new creature. I feel better than I have since I was a girl.

"I am over sixty now, and I am stronger and can endure more than the ordinary young woman. I do my own work and feel well, which I haven't been able to say before for over thirty years."

How Patrick Doyle of Lewiston, Mich., Was Cured of Paralysis.

Paralysis could be well named the king of diseases. Its insidious method of attack and terrible results is more than likely to baffie the best physicians. Until within a very few years ago paralysis was considered absolutely incurable, and as sure to cause death as a knife thrust in the heart or a bullet in the brain; but science persevered; no stone was left unturned in the eager search for a means of conquering this dreaded enemy of mankind. At last from Canada the welcome news was flashed to the far ends of the world that a remedy for paralysis and diseases of kindred nature had been discovered. Physicians doubted, newspapers investigated thoroughly, and it was soon proved that paralysis had been cured. This was the beginning of the fame of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Since then reports of marvelous cures by this medicine have come from all parts of the world. That Lewiston has not been slighted in this good work is proven by the following as told a reporter of the Journal:

Patrick Doyle, a man more than seventy years of age, called at this office recently and related a remarkable account of his battle with disease and his recovery. Everyone knows the nature of paralysis and how difficult it is to cure, so that his testimony is extremely interesting. He said:

"About six or seven years ago I was afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism, contracted while engaged in my usual work, and had to be confined to my bed for several months."

HONOR TO JUDGE COOLEY.

Bust of the Distinguished Jurist and Citizen Dedicated This Afternoon.

HON. Wm. B. HORNBLOWER

Delivered the Main Address—R. J. Barr Unveiled the Statue and Gave the Presentation Address—President Angell and Others Spoke.

This afternoon at four o'clock, occurred the unveiling exercises attending the presentation of the bust of Judge Thomas McLintyre Cooley to the University. The exercises were held in University Hall, under the auspices of the senior law class, who presented the memorial. The hall was crowded with students of every department and with citizens anxious to do honor to the distinguished jurist and citizen. There were invited guests present from various places, many of whom had at some time been associated with Judge Cooley in some capacity.

As soon as the audience was in the hall, Prof. Stanley opened the program with an organ prelude, after which Mr. R. J. Barr stepped forward, and in behalf of the class, unveiled the bust, which is a remarkably good likeness of the Judge. The statue was appropriately veiled in Yellow and Blue. Following this ceremony, Mr. Barr gave the presentation speech:

Mr. Barr's address was in substance as follows:

"Fixed principles are the basis of organized society. The history of civilization is the bringing of mankind under the control of established rules. And in all ages, man has recognized the efforts by which a few great men have risen above the place of their fellows, and established and maintained principles that have been contributed to the foundations of all well regulated states. But as great as the praise merited by those who have so generously contributed to man's philosophical and mental nature, is that reserved by those who have formed and developed the jurisprudence of a nation, those who have developed the constitutional principles and interpreted the meaning of the maxims of personal liberty, those who have from a multitude of disorderly and disconnected customs, produced a system of laws that now constitute a science, commanding a respected position in all well ordered institutions of learning." The eminent jurists of the world were here mentioned and the principles established by Judge Cooley compared with those laid down by Marshall, Taney, Chase and Waite. The speaker continued: "The appreciation of the efforts of the world's illustrious name is attested by the imposing monuments and statues that fill the public squares and art galleries throughout the civilized world. The trophies of St. Paul's and Westminster, of Trafalgar and Washington, and many others of imposing aspect are testimonials of universal recognition." After showing the propriety of such action by the law class of ninety-five, and expressing gratitude for having the opportunity by this act to connect their name with Judge Cooley's, Mr. Barr closed by saying: "By our action today, we would show our deep sense of gratitude for what has been done for us; and by presenting this image would endeavor to keep alive a similar spirit and to foster a deep regard for the contributions Judge Cooley has made for the benefit of mankind."

Dean J. C. Knowlton followed Mr. Barr in a brief address:

He first accepted the bust in behalf of the faculty and then spoke somewhat as follows: "I wish to promise in behalf of the University authorities, that your kind gift in honor of Judge Cooley, will be appropriately installed in the law building, and in behalf of the faculty, I wish to extend their thanks to the class which deserves the highest praise, it being the first class to leave behind it a memorial. Judge Cooley especially deserves this honor as being perhaps more responsible than anyone for the success of our law school. When this school was founded in 1859, it was a very doubtful experiment. There were practically only three law schools of any note in the country, the Litchfield school, the Harvard school and the Yale school. But he diligently studied to introduce the proper method of instruction, and took as his models Kent, Washburn, Strong, Parsons and Gould. Besides, he adopted the lecture system, and ever since it has been the standard for western schools. I heard his lectures in 1877-8 and always admired his lucid statement and accuracy of thought. He was a great lawyer without the aid of cases. The subject that he excelled in was constitutional law. It was by an accident that he took up this branch of jurisprudence. On the formation of the law school, as the most important topic, it belonged to his senior in years, Judge Graves. But the latter at the time declared his views on many points were directly in conflict with many other settled authorities, and he could not consistently take up the subject, which was then assigned to Prof. Cooley. After that no one else ever lectured on constitutional law while he was a member of the faculty. On the other hand he has taught every other subject of the curriculum. To Judge Cooley we owe largely the fame and the preeminence of the law school, and nothing could be more appropriate than this recognition of our esteem for him.

President Angell came after Dean Knowlton.

After referring briefly to what the preceding speakers had said, President Angell proceeded: "I wish briefly to call attention to two points. First, great as Judge Cooley has been in his intellectual gifts, he has been quite as great by the force of his character. The simplicity, purity and weight of his character have exerted an influence quite as marked and as lasting as the strength of his mind. No one could be near him and not be the better for it. His modesty was a rebuke to conceit, his simplicity to pretentiousness, his purity to vice. The keen glance of his honest eye scorched and withered meanness. He was ever ready with exhaustive patience to give to his students what was so valuable to him—his time—in explaining in private the intricacies of legal problems. His kindness in this regard was proverbial. His pupils were permitted to come into so close relations with him that they were deeply impressed by his charming personality. His noble manliness, his quiet courage, his generosity of heart, his loftiness of spirit, have exalted and ennobled their souls. How many of them have I heard testify to the moral, as well as the intellectual inspiration they have received from him. How much has he done, through the thousands who have caught something of his spirit, to elevate the American bar and thus to aid in the prevalence of justice and the triumph of righteousness. Secondly, Judge Cooley though especially connected with the law department, has always had at heart the good of the whole university. He has cherished the broadest views of university life. He has held that what is good for the university as a whole is good for each department. He has always been ready to serve any department. He frequently lectured in other departments than his own. He went at much inconvenience on long journeys to attend alumni meetings. He resisted all attempts to disintegrate the university. In all the trials through which the institution has passed, he has stood firmly by it, has helped fight its battles and has inspired others with his enthusiasm. Well, therefore, does the whole university rejoice with the law department in the exercises of today. Indeed, the whole university owes a debt of gratitude to the senior law class for placing in our halls this splendid bust of the great jurist, teacher and friend of the university."

When President Angell concluded the glee club rendered a selection, after which Hon. William B. Hornblower, of New York, gave his address.

Judge Hornblower spoke in part as follows:

Judge Cooley's career has filled out the well rounded ideal to which every lawyer ought to aspire. As a practitioner, a statutory reviser, a judicial reporter, a judge, an instructor, a thinker, a writer, and a public official, he has passed through all stages of usefulness. His widest and most permanent fame rests of course upon his writings, such as his additions to Blackstone's commentaries, his treatise on the law of torts and his work on constitutional limitations. By these writings he is known to every lawyer in the United States. His work on Constitutional Limitations stands without a competitor in its special field, dealing as he does not primarily with the federal government, but with the limitations imposed by the states and federal constitution upon the state governments. The immense importance of this branch of our general government has been up to this time, largely overlooked.

The sentiment of patriotic devotion to our common country, strengthened as it has been by the lapse of time, by the stress of foreign and civil conflict has tended to make us subordinate our state pride and our state affections, to the pride and affection which we have felt for the United States. Not only does the sentiment of nationality thus appeal to our emotions, but the great dramatic questions which have been before the people of this country from the very beginning until recent years have tended to magnify the functions of the national government in the eyes of the people, and to minimize in popular estimation the functions of the state governments.

Now during all this period, it has remained true, and is true today, that the federal government as a government has very little to do with ordinary daily welfare or comfort or happiness of the individual citizen. It impinges upon the life of the average man only on very rare intervals and on very great occasions, or in matters of detail which do not effect vitally his interests. On the other hand, the state government impinges on his life at every point. Every transaction of his daily life is subject to the law of his state.

The wonderful permanence of the constitutional framework of our federal system is after all, one of the marvels of modern history. While the unexpected permanency of our theory of government has remained, our two great sister nations, Great Britain and France, have passed through a series of revolutionary changes affecting the entire system and substance of government. Almost the only point on which the constitution has broken down is the one which the framers of our constitution expected to be the most permanent and satisfactory, that is, the mode of electing our president. This breakdown of the elaborate scheme for taking away from the people and giving to the wise men of the states the choice of president does but emphasize the wonderful permanency of the other features of the institution.

It still remains true as it was before the great civil war, that almost all the functions of government still reside in the states; that on questions of finance, revenue, tariff, currency, interstate commerce and foreign relations does the federal government really govern. Not only so, but the constitutional rights and liberties of the people are in the main and for the most part, protected, not by the federal constitutions, but by the state constitutions.

I have mentioned these subjects to emphasize the point that the work of Judge Cooley in writing a treatise upon constitutional limitations of the various states as distinguished from the more attractive subject of the limitations of the federal government, has proved a boon to the profession and to the public, and has shown the ability of Judge Cooley to grasp properly the perspective of the relations of the state to the individual and to the federal government.

I have spoken of Judge Cooley as a writer and have enlarged upon the importance and value of his great work on Constitutional Limitations. Next in importance and value is his judicial work. In no country in the civilized world is the function of the judge so potent for good or evil as in this country. Judge Cooley as a judge, nobly maintained the standard of the American bench. It is a matter of pride and satisfaction to the American bar that while corruption has too frequently run riot in legislative halls, and politics have too frequently controlled executive action, the judiciary has remained with rare exceptions almost absolutely free from scandal and even suspicion. Such men as Judge Cooley—proud-minded, high-minded, keen-minded, pure-minded—have been found to adorn our state and federal bench.

As an instructor he accomplished a great work—he was one of the founders of this great school of law. I need not before this assembly enlarge upon the importance and far-reaching results of this part of his career. The results of his work in his field cannot be estimated. The influence of his teaching will be felt long after his name has been numbered among those who have departed.

"We fall as leaves, the immortal trunk remains. Bulldozed with costly juice of hearts and brains, Gone to the mold now, whither all that be Vanish to rot, yet are pre-eminence still In human lives to some of good or ill, And feel unseen the roots of destiny."

And now a word as to Judge Cooley as a man, a lawyer and a citizen. If I have apprehended his character aright, he has been distinguished by strength and independence of conviction, ready to follow his conviction wherever it might lead him, regardless of criticism or opposition. I wish to urge upon you who are to be the future lawyers of the coming generation the importance of these qualities. The bar of America always has been and is likely to continue to be the mold of public opinion. The twentieth century has tremendous social problems in reserve. Courage, conviction and conscience will be necessary to meet these problems.

Yours will be the duty to stand as the protectors and the defenders of the constitutional safeguard to individual rights and vested interests against the reckless and wanton assaults that will ruthlessly destroy these safeguards. You who have studied under Judge Cooley or who are graduates of the institution with which he has been identified, ought to be inspired by his precepts and his manly example to do your duty bravely, wisely and manfully.

It was announced that owing to a rush of work Gov. Rich was not able to be present and after a letter from him was read the exercises closed with music by the Glee club.

OF ENGLISH BEAUTY

HARD TO DO JUSTICE TO IT IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

Some Interesting Types that Have Many Admirers—Clever and Beautiful American Women Who Have Married Into Nobility—Lady Grey Egerton.

(Special Correspondence.)

THE British type of beauty is, as a rule, hard to photograph with justice. The upper classes have usually a proud, distant look that the glow of health and ease of manner go far to turn into a regal beauty. The camera, however, gives only the appearance of hardness and chill. On this account many beauties of high way abroad cannot gain homage on this side of the water through photography. The other type of British beauty, the gracious and tender, however, finds many admirers here.

Of this latter class is Miss Florence Willoughby, whose expression is one of rare sweetness and sentiment, and MISS LESLIE CHESTER. whose profile indicates features of the warmest and most sympathetic delicacy. Miss Leslie Chester is also the possessor of a strikingly beautiful face. Her profile is as clear-cut as any cameo perfected under skillful hands. Though the rest of her features are of the smaller, more delicate type, Miss Chester's eyes are very large and wonderfully deep and lustrous.

A woman who is heralded abroad as one of the really stunning beauties of Great Britain is Lady Fitzpatrick, who is inclined to be plump, and whose sunny expression lacks the icy haughtiness of many of her sister noblewomen.

Miss Hope Temple, too, has been blessed otherwise than with her unusual musical abilities, and she is doubtless woman enough to prefer her physical charms to her mental gifts and would not give her mellow, dreamy eyes for any of her musical reveries, not even for her extremely well known and well-liked song, "My Lady's Bower." To be endowed with the ability to compose is rare even in women, but to have beauty at the same time is to be an especial pet of Fortune.

Miss Ethel Matthews is also accredited abroad as a "type," but her rousse nose rather unfits her for that distinction, though it does not detract from the charming vivacity of her very pretty face.

One of the best known women in all England is Lady Dunlop, who attracted many devotees when she was a music hall dancer, doing her "turn" every night with her sister on that stage where so many of the British aristocracy have taken their wives, to become the mothers of future nobility. She was won, however, by the Count of Clancarty, who on the recent death of his father, Lord Dunlop, advanced a step in the peerage. Lady Dunlop's very decided beauty is of a wild and passionate character that eminently justifies her fame and is not crushed beneath the gorgeousness of her new station.

Another woman of the lower rank who has occupied the public attention recently is the American variety actress, May Yohe, who, failing to make any particular impression here, crossed the water and found fame, fortune and aristocracy in the person of Lord Hope, who fell in love with her and made her his wife. She has a very piquant expression and looks like the pretty waitress she played in the comedy, "The Lady Slavey," in which she appeared before her marriage.

Two other fair women who are English beauties only by adoption are Lady

LADY FITZPATRICK. Randolph Churchill and Lady Grey Egerton. The number of American women who have become the wives of English noblemen is really startling. One is inclined to think that the jokes on the subject have very slender foundations, but there is a goodly list of the women who have forsaken home and country for the glitter of a coronet in a strange land.

The Leonard K. Jerome family furnished England with three very hand-some daughters, one of them marrying Jack Leslie of London, another Marston Frewen, and the third Lord Randolph Churchill, whose political career was as brilliant as it was short, ending in his recent death. After their marriage Lady Churchill took a strong interest in politics and won a very close second for her husband by the truly fanlike enterprise she displayed in her vigorous and personal electioneering. This exhibition of pluck so tickled the voters that numberless enemies were converted over to the Churchill ranks. Lady Churchill is a stately brunette, of a very serious mien and with deep, dark eyes and a full, rich mouth.

Lady Grey Egerton was plain Miss Cuyler of Morristown, N. J., before she married her sonorous title. She is a remarkably beautiful creature. Her form is shapely, her throat and shoulders are superb, and her head is well built and perfectly poised. Her features are the perfection of their sort, and might almost be taken as an ideal type of American beauty.

People say that Cora Timble has been hiding her light under a bushel in "A Trip to Chinatown" for a long time. Only a couple of years ago rumors were current that she was the darling of an English lord, and it seemed quite likely that she would feather her nest as May Yohe has done. She went to London with D'Oyly Carte, and flaunted her pert little excuse for a voice in the ears of the long-suffering Britishers. Then she went to Australia and made a hit there as the only woman on the stage who didn't use golden hair. Wash. She had all the elements of success, including a stage mommer, who trotted everywhere at her heels. And yet she has been swamped by "A Trip to Chinatown." She hasn't been seen for ages, but she used to beam with that face of hers and tell wonderful stories about her mommer and herself that people used to believe. And of course they were all true.

It is said that at one or two of the private houses to which Cissie Loftus was bidden as a paid entertainer in London recently there was considerable vexation because the note did not include the presence of her literary husband, Mr. Justin Huntley McCarthy. One lady said to Miss Loftus: "Of course, you know, it's very annoying. We quite reckoned upon having your husband with us. We should have made it quite pleasant for him." That is why McCarthy stayed away. He knew it would be pleasant—too pleasant—but as he is the social superior, or at least equal, of anybody in London, he declined to subject himself to the humiliation of being known as an entertainer's husband. McCarthy, by the bye, is putting the finishing touches to two new novels, both of which will probably be published simultaneously in New York and London. It is improbable that he will make a fortune with "A Woman's Impulse," published by the Putnams. It

LADY GREY EGERTON. is what may be described as a namby-pamby kind of book, without any feature worth remembering.

FAY TEMPLETON HIS WIDOW.

The will of the late Howell Osborne, the noted man about town who died in January, was admitted to probate in New York last week without opposition, Fay Templeton, the burlesque actress, signing her waiver "Fay Templeton-Osborne, formerly Fay Templeton." It leaves to his favorite cousin, Henrietta Olive Trowbridge, pictures and works of art to the value of $1,000 to be selected by herself; to William B. Oliver and G. H. Worrier, his private secretary, pictures and works of art to the appraised value of $500. Out of the residue of the estate property not to exceed $100,000 is left to Fay Templeton, which she is to select for herself. The testator stated that in his opinion some relatives for whom he might naturally wish to provide have already been provided for under the wills of his father and mother, his grandmother, uncle and aunt. Therefore, he leaves the residue of his estate, including his interest in the estates of deceased relatives, in trust for Henrietta Olive Trowbridge for life. Upon her death her property is to go to her descendants, if there are any, otherwise it is to be applied for the benefit of Minnie Garson and other relatives. Howell Osborne was one of the most conspicuous of the gilded youth about town for years, during which his extravagances and dissipations were the envy of his associates. He was a great admirer of stage beauties, and finally centered his devotion upon Fay Templeton, long an ornament of the burlesque and operatic stage. For a few years past his health was not good and last winter he succumbed to the grip and a general breakdown of the constitution. He was less than 40 years of age. Most of his large fortune was tied up in trust by his parents' wills. Whatever was unincumbered was spent years ago.

Something Novel in Hats. Recently in New York a unique Easter hat sale was held by the Social Establishment of a certain church that counts among its parishioners many to whom a head covering of any kind is a thing to be thankful for. All the hats and bonnets and trimmings that cumbers many attics were collected and trimmed by a club of young women, and then the sale took place. The hats ranged in price from two cents to a quarter of a dollar, and the women or young girls who came to buy them were helped to make a suitable choice if they desired it. More heads in the neighborhood of the settlement were becomingly capped than ever before. At least that is what the amateur milliners thought.

Speech Restored.

For five years I suffered with pain and discharge of the throat, hacking cough, frontal headaches, weak eyes, etc., at times; could not talk above a whisper; lost weight continually, and not able to be at work. I was treated by the best physicians in the country, but received no relief. After giving up all hope I was recommended to use a bottle of Mayers' Magnetic Catarrh Cure. After using it for four weeks my speech returned. All symptoms of Catarrh has disappeared and "I feel like a different person."
