HON. DON M. DICKINSON.

An Appreciative Sketch by Professor Bradley M. Thompson.

The following excellent sketch is reprinted from the June number of the Michigan Alumnus:

For the past ten years Don M. Dickinson has been a prominent figure in national politics. During six of those years Mr. Cleveland has been president and no one has stood closer to the president than Mr. Dickinson. His advice has been frequently sought and his counsel followed. For ten years prior to Mr. Cleveland's first election Mr. Dickinson was the leader of the Democratic party in Michigan. When that much can be truthfully said of a man still on the sunny side of fifty, it goes without saying that he must possess rare natural abilities. The order of that ability, its kind and quality, is not however indicated and the kind and character of a public man's ability are of primary importance.

During the last twenty-five years several persons in New York City have attracted public attention and have had quite as much to do with shaping the political history of this nation as any member of the Senate or House of Representatives, and yet not one of them if he had lived in some country village would have been known outside his township, provided he had been fortunate enough to escape indictment. They all belong to the class known in this country as practical, working politicians, political drill sergeants, masters in the art of making the public serve the office in place of the office serving the public. The result of an election under the manipulation of such men always registers the voice of the worker, seldom the will of the voters. A politician of that order bears the same relation to statesmanship, that the crackman does to the art and industry of manufacturing burglar proof safes. Each presents a problem to the citizens or the artisan which he must solve, if the public are to be protected from burglars and the state from spoils-men.

The practical political worker is always found in the party having a majority in the location where he schemes and plots. A majority is an essential condition to the harmonious development of his peculiar abilities. Mr. Dickinson could not if he was properly equipped, intellectually and morally; if he possessed both aptitude and inclination, be one of that class. From infancy he has lived in the state of Michigan and for the past thirty-five years there has not been a presidential election when any Republican could not carry the state. Twice during the period the party has failed to elect its candidate for governor. But in each case the result was due to local and transient political squalls, producing sea-sickness for a time—which kept many away from the party feast. The indisposition was temporary, due to stomachic difficulties and not to any constitutional troubles, and when they passed away they left the appetite of the afflicted well whetted. Since 1860 the Democratic party proper in this state has been in the minority and for most of that time the minority has been weak and contemptible.

A political majority so strong that the opposition exerts no restraint upon its selection of leaders or its party policy is a plague to any state or borough. The majority of every party will always vote the party ticket and if such majority is a majority of all the electors the result is foreordained. There are many pious souls, politically, who hold that there is no reform for the state save "reform of the party within the party." Similia Similibus Curantur may be a correct basis for Materia Medica, and the adage that it takes a thief to catch a thief may contain a trace of truth, but neither the one or the other justifies the belief that political evils may be best cured by retaining in power the party responsible for those evils. Great majorities make all political evils chronic.

A tyrannical majority is responsible for a still greater public misfortune. It fills public positions with a lot of nincompoops whose abilities great or small are a menace to the public good. The best public service is necessarily patriotic and self-sacrificing service. The great statesman is always a philosopher, a prophet, a seer, with no aptitude for the work of the political heeler. The man who can serve the public well seldom proffers his service. He waits to be invited, in the meantime doing the work at hand, ploughing the fields with Cincinnatus or tanning hides with Grant. And he must wait, in obedience to the law of his being; if he did not he would not be great. There are some few blessings in this world that are bestowed without the asking, the sunshine and the dew, but most of the things that are worth having or are desirable must be sought and labored for, while the pests, the brambles and briars, mosquitoes and vermin are neither shy nor diffident. The same law prevails in politics. The statesmen who will serve the public for the public good must be searched for with a lantern while the slumbers of every voter are disturbed by the importunities of those who desire to serve themselves under the pretext of serving the public, and if there is one man the political boss admires more than another it is a man who makes politics a business. If the majority is large enough, so that he dare gratify his own wishes, no other candidate is nominated. In all the states where a nomination is equivalent to an election candidates have been taken from that class almost exclusively for years. With the exception of General Grant, whose election to the presidency was due to his army record, the states of New York, Ohio and Indiana, where parties have been fairly matched, have furnished all the presidents elected since the war, and all the defeated candidates for that office except Mr. Blaine. That these states, having about one-tenth of the population of the whole country, should have furnished all the successful candidates and with one exception all of the unsuccessful candidates for the highest office in the nation for thirty years is not due to chance but to the pernicious labors of Bill, Jack and Jim at the primaries in all the other states.

The effect of an unbridled party government is quite as disastrous to the party in the minority as to the party in the majority—the whole party machinery of both parties falls into the hands of second and third rate men. If examples of this truth were needed, Michigan is a good object lesson. At the close of the war she had a number of men of ability for public affairs, among them Chandler, Palmer, Alger, but for twenty-five years the party in power has not produced a single man of national reputation. The state it is true has not been disgraced. Her mediocre statesmen have been fairly honest. Their sins in government have been due rather to selfishness than to venality, to ignorance and incompetency and not to pure cussedness. Their follies have amused and have not shocked the public. If occasionally the little fellows have promulgated from the state capital some law which savored of nepotism, and they have been found legislating for the special benefit of "skunks" and "imbeciles" a generous public has not been disposed to be captious and to overlook the esprit de corps that prompted the act.

That Mr. Dickinson has been able here in Michigan to make for himself a national reputation is a very significant fact and its full significance cannot be appreciated without taking into account the political life of our people and the political situation in this state. He has made for himself this reputation without being in fact a politician at all of that order that Tammany first originated and which has been so successfully imitated and improved upon here and there where majorities would permit. Mr. Dickinson graduated from the Law Department of the University in the class of '67 and was soon after admitted to the bar at the age of twenty-one. He has from that day to this been first of all a lawyer. No other attorney in this state for the past ten years has had so extensive a practice in the United States Supreme Court and in the district and circuit courts. Other attorneys, under equally favorable circumstances, have given their entire time to the profession and have accomplished far less. It is only necessary to suggest to those who know what a jealous mis-stress the law is that Mr. Dickinson gives the whole of his time, practically, to his profession. We believe that he has never been a candidate for any office, appointive or elective, and has never held but one office, that of Postmaster General. He has for years been personally acquainted with the leading men in the state. He is a good judge of character and when appointments to office have been made upon his recommendation, the choice has invariably been satisfactory to the public.

The secret of Mr. Dickinson's success is the fact that his political work is unselfish. He wants no office, seeks nothing for himself and consequently his judgment is never warped by personal and selfish considerations. He is a born leader of a political party when great principles are at stake in the contest, but there is many a man who is his equal, if not his superior, in presiding over a political dress parade where prizes are to be awarded to the victor in a sack race, and the fellow who catches the greased pig. Without those qualities of head and heart he could not have gained his present position with the poor support of a minority party, torn asunder by divided counsels, and opposed by a party united, and grown bold and arrogant through great and repeated triumphs. No part of his success is due to party support at home, or party concessions abroad. In spite of the incubus of modern political methods, indeed in a measure by being opposed to such methods, he is to-day the most prominent political figure in this state. Mr. Dickinson is another illustration of the truth, that history has emphasized over and over again, that if the public man would serve himself he must serve the public fearlessly and honestly. He has by an unselfish devotion to the public good as he saw it, attracted the attention and gained the confidence of the nation. The times are not ripe for great leaders, because each of the old parties are busily engaged in threshing over old straw. When the time comes for a new alignment of parties upon the vital issues of the near future, how the freedom of the individual may be preserved and at the same time each citizen given an equal start in the race of life, Don M. Dickinson, or men of his mould, will be in command of the contending hosts.

CASES IN CHANCERY.
1069.—Lula Nordman vs. Albert A. Nordman. Action for divorce. J. W. Babbitt, attorney.

POLICE COURT—JUSTICE GIBSON.
Some days ago Luther E. Church, an old soldier hailing from Tiffin, Ohio, came to Ann Arbor in order to effect a reconciliation with his wife who has been living at the house of Moses LeJolie, in the third ward. He engaged room and board for a month at the American House.

Then he procured Sheriff Judson's aid in reaching his wife. The sheriff did the job well and the man and wife were reconciled, and Church went to the house to stop awhile with his wife. Saturday they packed up preparatory to leaving for Tiffin. "Accidentally" they packed up with their belongings two pairs of lace curtains and one of Mr. LeJolie's best shirts. Mr. Church was arrested, and on being searched was found to have one hundred dollars in ready cash. Mr. Staebler, of the American House, garnished what was due him from this. Mr. Church paid $5 and costs to county, paid $14.50 board bill to Mr. Staebler, paid sheriff for aid in becoming reconciled to his wife, and then the couple went on their way rejoicing.

People vs. William Dugan. Assault and battery. Plea, not guilty. Adjudged until July 15. Bond of $200 given with Barney Keenan, Fred C. Euler and Henry G. Pipp as bondsmen. Complainant is Eugene Dailey. He is pretty badly bruised. Defendant claims complainant talked slanderously about him and his landlady.

It is generally conceded that traveling men always see the laughable or ludicrous side of everything, and one of that class was standing in front of a S. Main st. store the other day when his attention was attracted by the sign on the sprinkling cart that does duty in allaying the dust on that thoroughfare, which reads: "Ann Arbor Brewing Co's Bottled Export and Lager." This combination was pleasing to the gentleman's mind, and he remarked to the merchant who was standing beside him: "When I return home, I can tell my folks that I was in one place out west where it was so dry that they sprinkled the streets with lager beer."

Carlisle is the only member of the Cabinet who is strong enough in his own State to secure an endorsement of the administration by a democratic convention.

There should be a law in every State requiring the governor to pay the expenses of a special session of the legislature when called for the promotion of his personal purposes.

Gov. Morton seems to be performing the duties of his present office without the least reference to any other; and perhaps that is the best way, after all, to get another and a higher one.

Irish home rule will take a back seat for a few years. For this state of things the Home Ruler themselves are chiefly responsible. A faction divided against itself can not accomplish anything.

The five civilized Indian tribes are resisting the changes proposed by the Dawes Commission, but they will have to surrender in the end, and there is nothing for them to gain by fighting against the inevitable.

The tide in immigration is responding to the improved condition of business, the increase in the arrivals from Europe since April amounting to 11 per cent over last year. The British immigration is about double that of the same months in 1894.

The campaign which is about to open in England will be short, but exciting. The party pendulum swings with considerable regularity from one party to the other in that country as in this. It is the Tories' turn to win this year, and undoubtedly they will win.

Grover Cleveland is being cursed by a large element of his party at this time, but if he should get a fourth nomination and should accept it, most of this element would sneak into line and vote for him. Cleveland is the meekest democrat since Jackson, and even the profane end of his party knows this and is impressed by it.

Lincoln's Gettysburg speech has been cast in bronze. Its delivery occupies only two or three minutes, and yet if Lincoln had made no other speech that one would have placed him at the head of the orators of his time. As the voice of Moses to the Jews, that brief address will stand as a lesson and inspiration to American citizens.

During the eleven months ended with May, our exports decreased about $74,000,000, and by a significant coincidence, our imports increased in that time about the same amount. The average citizen can readily see that the effect of the new tariff law is favorable to more buying than selling, or, in other words, to the advantage of foreign countries at the expense of the United States.

A member of parliament has called attention to the fact that "thousands of commercial travelers from the United States, as well as agents from American firms, are now in the United Kingdom soliciting orders." If this is true the British bagman has a formidable competitor. We may not be able to sell American coal in Newcastle, but we will soon be ready to warm up the town with Yankee electric heaters.

The Richmond, (Va.) "Times" says that if the national democratic convention next year adopts a free silver platform, that paper will urge a second convention "to nominate a democrat of the straightest sect upon a sound money platform." Probably four-fifths of the papers in the south would support the movement.

The fact that the Treasury deficit was $20,000,000 less in the fiscal year just ended than it was in the one immediately preceding gives some ground for hope that it will disappear before the present year ends.

The railroads were a little slow in responding to the trade revival, but they feel it now. Gains in earnings are being made by nearly all the roads. On some of them the revenue is up near the highest figures of the past.

The Japs have learned the art of making lucifer matches, and have taken away the vast trade of India in this article from Europe. Our ingenious and industrious neighbors across the Pacific are decidedly in the swim, in peace or war.

It may be true that Russia has assembled 80,000 soldiers and sailors at Vladivostok, but Japan is a nation of 40,000,000 people, and the Czar should think over the matter carefully before taking the aggressive in Eastern Asia.

Our Minister to Guatemala reports that corn occasionally sells in that country at from $6 to $8 a bushel. We shall have to call in the maize missionaries to concentrate their efforts on our own farmers and planters. The world has discovered the value of the great American plant.

No man who has ever been Secretary of the Treasury has reached the Presidency, but this consideration should not discourage Secretary Carlisle. Next to the President himself he is nearly or quite the greatest man in his party, and he ought to get the nomination if he wants it.

John Sherman is said to be writing a book of recollections covering the period of his public service. He has seen and been a part of more history making than any other living American, and his account of it can not fail to be an interesting and valuable contribution to our political literature.

The Ann Arbor Courier has declared war against Turkey in Europe and says it is time she was wiped off the face of the earth. Major General Beal should be provided with a sponge and a passport, forthwith.—Adrian Press.

All right. Come over—the passport will be forthcoming.

Within thirty years the increase in the world's gold supply has been $3,330,400,400, and as the yield is increasing rapidly there is no telling how much gold will be turned into the currents of commerce during the next thirty years. But there will be enough of it to keep a 100c dollar in fashion.

A prominent lecturer in New England states that the editors of the "Atlantic Monthly" held the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" under advisement for several months, fearing that Dr. Holmes was displaying too much egotism. The fate of the series was soon settled when the public got a chance at it.

The Senior Year Book of Yale College, contains the statement that "one-half of the class intend never to marry." But it is safe to predict, nevertheless, that as time passes, the most of them will be found quoting Benedict's declaration: "When I said I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married."

According to the official statistics, there were 926 strikes in England during 1894. Of this number, 17 per cent. were ended successfully for the strikers, 14 per cent. were partly successful, 51 per cent. were failures, and 16 per cent. had no definite result. Generally speaking, therefore the workmen got the worst of it, and the cause of labor lost more than it gained.

The Social Economist, a Journal of statesmanship, economics and finance, for July has among its interesting articles a new light on Lincoln's broadness of view. It is from a speech made in the Douglas debates in December, 1859, in favor of a government bank. His fundamental proposition that "no duty is more imperative on the government than the duty it owes the people, of furnishing them a sound and uniform currency," is one not to be lost sight of today, in these times of financial unrest when people in debt are seeking some easier way to pay those obligations than by work. In an article on "Protection and Bimetallism" is this idea:—"To ask that the government shall buy the entire product of the silver mines, whether it needs it or not, is not protection but pure and simple paternalism, of the most ancient undiluted and socialist type. The function of the government is not to buy products but to secure to American producers the opportunity of supplying the American market. Other able editorials are "the historical aspects of the monetary question," "the new protection party in England," the "first trade union" and "English and American manners."

Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder World's Fair Highest Medal and Diploma.

We believe that irrigation is destined to play a more important part than it has heretofore in the agriculture of Michigan. For some time we have been trying to get ideas from Michigan men on the subject, but so far they have been meagre. In this issue we publish an article showing the work in this line being carried on at the Agricultural College. Of course the question of cost is going to be the stumbling block in the way of extensive irrigation, but it is not impossible that a system of "intensive" irrigation may be practiced which will prove profitable. Certain it is that these repeated and long continued drouths are fast rendering futile a large proportion of the hard-working farmer's labor.—Grange Visitor.

But where will the water come from to irrigate? We have no mountains here in Michigan, and to force the water from the lakes would be extremely expensive. Would it not be more practical to restore the forests in part?

THE LAW NO GOOD. Attorney General Maynard Holds the Homeopathic Removal Bill Invalid.

Attorney General Maynard has looked over the laws passed by the last legislature and gives it his opinion that twenty-three of them are unconstitutional, or for other reasons are of no value. Among the twenty-three is the law authorizing the removal of the Homeopathic department to Detroit. This bill is n. g. because it was passed more than five days before adjournment and was not signed by the governor until after adjournment.

He holds the same to be true of the bill establishing a new Normal school at Mt. Pleasant. If the supreme court holds the same opinion, that will end these two bills, and the removal agitation, which is engendering much bad blood, can take a rest for a couple of years. Then things may be different.

BELIEVES IN HIS OWN COUNTRY. Michigan is One of the Greatest Fruit States in the World.

"Talk about California," said a well known citizen to the writer last evening, "just come with me for a moment and let me show you what luxuries in the way of fruit we have right here in Michigan. Fruit is so common that our people do not appreciate what they do have."

He led the way, and we followed him to a well known grocery store, and he remarked "now look at that! Is not that simply wonderful?"

Before our vision were cherries in several varieties, blackberries, black, red and yellow raspberries, currants, whortleberries, gooseberries, strawberries, all nice, all home grown Michigan fruit, and all reasonable in price.

Then there were also tropical and semi-tropical fruits, in plenty, such as bananas, oranges, lemons, apricots and pineapples.

"Now why do our people talk about going to California or any other country to live? I do not believe that there is another state in the Union where such an abundant supply of so many different kinds of fruit are to be had.

"It will be only a few weeks before plums, pears, apples, quinces, grapes, peaches etc., will be in market in abundance, and at prices within reach of the masses. Don't you think we ought to be satisfied?" was asked.

And we at once admitted that we were never yet out of Michigan without being homesick to get back.

Why Not You?

When thousands of people are taking Hood's Sarsaparilla to overcome the weakness and languor which are so common at this season, why are you not doing the same? When you know Hood's Sarsaparilla has power to cure rheumatism, dyspepsia and diseases caused by impure blood, why do you continue to suffer? Hood's cures others, why not you?

Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient. 25c.

Perhaps $1,000 May be Saved.

A citizen told a Courier man this morning that the city would better quickly repair some of the tottering side walks over on Fourteenth St. A little child had an arm broken recently by falling from a certain defective walk in that section, and the city may possibly soon have another suit for damages on its hands.

License to Ride a Wheel. If one wants to ride a bicycle in Munich he must pass an examination to see if he can get on and off the machine. Then he pays fifty pfennigs and gets a license.

The only country which exceeded the United States in coal output during the year 1894 was England.

The United States produced, in 1889, over one-fourth of the entire amount of iron mined on the globe. Emeralds have been discovered in Arizona and it is said, in North Carolina. They are, however, very small.

Two Good Receipts.

A lady handed us the two following reasonable receipts the other day, with the suggestion that they were good enough to publish:

Peach Tapioca—Boil one coffee cup of tapioca until clear, using a double boiler and beginning with three cups of water; pour over the contents of a can of peaches drained from the juice and laid in a baking dish. Set in the oven for half an hour and serve with cream sauce or cream and sugar.

Cheese Straws.—One of the latest conceits for the dinner table is the serving of some cheese dish. This is usually in the form of ramequins or cheese straws both of which are delicious relishes. Cheese straws are easily made and always successful. Mix one cupful of grated cheese with a cupful of flour, a half teaspoonful of salt, a pinch of cayenne pepper and a piece of butter the size of an egg. Add enough cold water to enable you to roll the paste thin; then cut it in strips seven inches long and one-half inch wide. Put them in tins and bake in a quick oven from five to ten minutes. They are often served tied with ribbons.

And the People Get the Benefit.

Quite a promising war of prices on coal is in progress in the city. A few days since one coal dealer put the price per ton on best grades of hard coal down to $5.50. This was met by the others and now Staebler has set the price at $5.00 and nailed the flag to the mast head.

At these prices it will pay users to lay in their coal. What a pity such prices never control during the winter months. The local dealers are quite worked up over the war of prices.

Prof. Harrington Bounced.

Tuesday, the Washington dispatches announce, that President Cleveland removed Prof. Mark W. Harrington, chief of the Weather bureau, from duty.

It seems that the relations between Secretary Morton and Prof. Harrington have been strained for some time, and that all communication between them has been of the most formal nature. Because of this feeling President Cleveland some days ago, asked for Harrington's resignation, which the professor declined to hand in, because, as he stated, there was no reason that he knew of why he should resign. Then the President relieved him from duty.

Prof. Harrington was a member of the faculty of the University of Michigan, when appointed to the position by President Harrison. He was given the place, not because of any political pull, but because of recognized ability and knowledge of the duties required in that position.

The professor intimates that he has been removed because he would not permit the scientific corps of the bureau to be sacrificed for the benefit of spoils-men. He further says that the expenses of the department since its establishment as a civil bureau, and severance from the war department, has averaged $849,522, against $924,600 under the old regime, while the work done has materially increased. James F. Cook who is temporarily in charge of the bureau is a Michigan man. It is understood that Secretary Morton has a friend in the regular army whom he desires appointed to the place.

The Law Summer School.

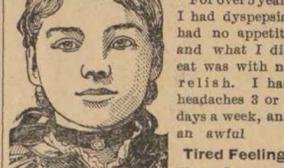

The prospects for a large attendance at the law summer school are most encouraging. Many students who intend to enter the law classes are already in the city. During yesterday and to-day six new students have interviewed Prof. Hughes and expressed their intention of taking the law lectures. Many letters of inquiry have been received, and unless all signs fail, the attendance will far exceed all former expectations. The courses offered are practical and important ones, and the instructors who will give them, have left nothing undone that would tend to make them a complete success. The lectures will be delivered in the law building where the students will have free access to the magnificent law library. The hours and rooms will be arranged soon, and will be announced probably in Saturday's issue of this paper.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Callouette, Druggist, Beaver-ville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store, I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial bottle at Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's Drug Store, and Geo. J. Heussler, Manchester.

A Good Appetite

Is essential to good health, and for restoring and sharpening the desire for food there is nothing equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"For over 5 years I had dyspepsia, had no appetite and what I did eat was with no relish. I had headaches 3 or 4 days a week, and an awful Tired Feeling. When I went to bed I seldom had a good night's rest. But I am glad to say Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured all my ills. I rest well at night, have a hearty appetite and can perform my household duties easily. I am glad to report the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla." ELMORA E. THOMAS, Forestville, Md.

Hood's Pills

Won't you tell us of your plans, Fair July? Is it overcoats or fans, Fair July? Is it rain that floods and washes, Or umbrellas and goloshes? Must we "star" our macintoshes, O July? Come—we ask you altogether, Fair July! Can't we have the proper weather, Fair July? We're prepared for perspiration, And we'll find a compensation in aquatic recreation, O July! Don't do funny tricks as June did, Our feelings will be wounded, Fair July! Better give us heat oppressing, Though it bothers us in dressing, Than to go and keep us guessing, O July!

Huddy—Marsh Wedding. On Wednesday, July 3d, at 8 o'clock a. m., Mr. John Huddy, of this city, and Miss Anna Marsh, of Delhi, were united in marriage, at St. Joseph's church, Dexter, Rev. Fr. Fleming performing the ceremony. From the church the couple repaired to the residence of the bride's parents Delhi, where an elegant dinner was served, and enjoyed by relatives and a few intimate friends of the couple. Returning to Dexter in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Huddy left on the 4 o'clock train for Buffalo, N. Y., where they visited relatives.

Mad People's Thumbs.

A physician in charge of a well-known asylum for the care of the insane recently said: There is one infallible test either for the approach or the presence of lunacy. If the person whose case is being examined is seen to make no use of his thumb, if he lets it stand out at right angles from the hand, and employs it neither in salutation, writing, nor any manual exercise, you may set it down as a fact that that person's mental balance is gone. He or she may converse intelligibly, may in every respect be guarding the secret of a mind diseased with the utmost care and cunning, but the tell-tale thumb will infallibly betray the lurking madness which is concealed behind a plausible demeanor.

A Chicago Cottage in Poland.

Edouard and Jean de Reszke have given to J. Sidney Villiere, an architect of Chicago a commission to build for them a princely lodge at their country seat in Poland. The contract specifies that all the carvings, wood designs, interior appliances, and constructive material shall be completed in Chicago. The brothers, desiring to compliment this country, have written that the place shall be called Cottage American.

A Gentle Corrective is what you need when your liver becomes inactive. It's what you get when you take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets; they're free from the violence and the griping that come with the ordinary pill. The best medical authorities agree that in regulating the bowels mild methods are preferable. For every derangement of the liver, stomach and bowels, these tiny, sugar coated pills are most effective. They go about their work in an easy and natural way, and their good lasts. Once used, they are always in favor. Being composed of the choicest, concentrated vegetable extracts, they cost much more than other pills found in the market, yet from forty to forty-four are put up in each sealed glass vial, at the price of the cheaper made pills.

"Pleasant Pellets" cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, constiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heart-burn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Put up in sealed glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. Whether as a laxative, or in larger doses, as a gentle acting but searching cathartic, these little "Pellets" are unequalled.

As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve the distress arising from over-eating, nothing equals one of these little "Pellets." They are tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules. Any child readily takes them. Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.

A free sample (4 to 7 doses) on trial, is mailed to any address, post-paid, on receipt of name and address on postal card. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

"TOM" LEONARD IS DEAD.

One of the Familiar People of the City and County Passes Away.

Ex-sheriff Thomas F. Leonard died very suddenly last evening of heart disease. He complained of not feeling well and went up to Dr. Smith's office in the St. James block, for medicine. While waiting there for the doctor he died.

Thomas F. Leonard, or "Tom Leonard" as he was familiarly called, has long been a prominent character in this county. Nov. 2, 1858, he was elected sheriff of the county on the democratic ticket. He made a popular officer and was re-nominated in 1860. This, however, was the year Lincoln ran for president, and "Tom" went down with the rest of the democratic ticket. The majority against him was only 130 while the other men of his ticket were defeated by majorities ranging from 540 to 1164. This indicates to what extent he had secured the good will and confidence of his fellow citizens.

Though by nature gruff and unapproachable, still he had a big, warm heart, and through a long and active life never lacked for hearty friendship. At his death he was nearly eighty years old, but he seemed still able to serve his country as well as ever before. For close on to half a century he has been a county official, first as sheriff, then as deputy, or constable or marshal. He never knew what fear was, never quailed in the pursuit of duty, whatever the danger, and dozens of stories can be told concerning his utter fearlessness. In the old days he has approached and captured many a dangerous character, of whom nearly the whole country stood in terror. The Courier regrets his death as do all who were acquainted with him and knew of some of the many generous and big hearted deeds he has done.

Funeral services were held from the residence on E. Ann St., at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

George Craig's Livery Barn Entirely Destroyed With Five Horses.

George Craig met with a severe loss Saturday morning. His livery stable, on Hill st., was completely destroyed by fire, together with five horses, a large quantity of hay and feed, two hacks, five buggies, one baggage wagon and harness. Only two horses were saved from the flames. When Chief Siple and the fire ladders reached the ground at about 2 o'clock this morning the entire barn was on fire, as well as the house which adjoins it closely. Everything was as dry as powder and burned fiercely. The firemen were forced to confine their efforts to saving the house, and this they finally succeeded in doing. It was a long and hard fight and they will feel the effects of it for some time.

Just how the fire began is a mystery. "George's Livery" is well known to our citizens, and its owner has worked long and industriously to gain a competence. He has the sympathy of all in his loss. However this may not reach higher than five or six hundred dollars, since there was an insurance of $600 on the building and of $1,400 on its contents.

This is a dangerous time for fires. The firemen say that if there had been any wind the fire would have caused considerable more loss.

Just What's Needed

Exclaims thousands of people who have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla at this season of the year, and who have noted the success of the medicine in giving them relief from that tired feeling, waning appetite and state of extreme exhaustion after the close confinement of a long winter season, the busy time attendant upon a large and pressing business during the spring months and with vacation time yet some weeks distant. It is then that the building-up powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are fully appreciated. It seems perfectly adapted to overcome that prostration caused by change of season, climate or life, and while it tones and sustains the system, it purifies and vitalizes the blood,

U. S. BUSINESS BOOMING.

The Receipts at the Postoffice Show a Constant Increase.

Postmaster Beakes has figured out that during the month of June the receipts at the post office were $2,230.14, against $2,769.27 for May, and $3,363.47 for March. This shows how the hot weather, and the closing of schools effect Uncle Sam's business here.

During June there were 66,374 two-cent stamps sold, and during May 77,581. This would indicate quite a lively correspondence between our people and the people of other places.

Every month this year, so far, has shown an increase over corresponding month of last year, the increase for June being by far the lightest, the figures amounting to only $77.

The total business of the office indicates a constant growth in the city. There is no doubt but that the population of Ann Arbor, as well as the number of students, are increasing constantly. Every thing indicates that fact.

Daniel L. Quirk.

D. L. Quirk is the possessor of a considerable amount of farm land in this county, owning 1,240 acres in Van Buren township. He is a banker, and resides at Ypsilanti, but visits his agricultural property twice a week. His lands are generally divided into twenty and forty acre lots, some of this he rents on shares, but he cultivates the bulk of it himself. His buildings, fences, tools and other appointments are always in first class order, and the lands are all finely cultivated and thoroughly till drained. He is a wealthy man, and is said to be a millionaire or nearly so.

The above article from the Detroit Tribune, is concerning one of the best business men in southern Michigan. Mr. Quirk is a man of wonderful activity and fertility of resource, as has frequently been shown in taking up new business and making a success of it. He personally conducts all the affairs of his large farm, the 1st National bank, the gas works the Peninsular paper mill in Ypsilanti, besides a packing house in St. Louis, a printing house in Chicago and many other companies. At a time in life when most other men would want to retire he enjoys looking after business. He has helped many young men to get a start in life and he keeps his heart young and his brain active.

You're an Easy Prey, with your flesh reduced below a healthy standard, for Consumption and other Scrofulous diseases. And it's for just this condition that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is especially valuable.

If you're thinner than you ought to be, whether from wasting diseases, defective nutrition, or whatever cause, the "Discovery" will surely bring you up to the healthy standard. By restoring the normal action of the deranged organ and functions, it arouses every natural source and means of nourishment. As a strength-restorer flesh-builder, nothing like this medicine is known to medical science. Filthy Cod liver oil and all its disguised compounds can't compare with it.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation, indigestion, or dyspepsia, biliousness and headaches.

Part With Regret.

The members of the Congregation of the 2d Baptist church express their regret at the decision of Rev. Moore to sever his connection here, and have handed in the following:

It is with a feeling of deep regret that we, the members of the Second Baptist church, accept the resignation of our beloved pastor, Rev. E. W. Moore who has served us so faithfully for the past year. Our loss will be the gain of the church to which he goes. He carries with him the love and best wishes of his members and friends.

AMERICAN EAGLE SCREAMED!

A Glorious Celebration of a Yet More Glorious Day.

THE FOURTH AT WHITMORE.

Members of Northfield Parish array Forward a Notable Observance of the Day so Dear to Every American Heart.

At Whitmore Lake yesterday the glorious fourth was celebrated in good old fashioned style by the girls in the lemon color dresses, the parishoners of Rev. Fr. Goldrick assisted by a large crowd from Ann Arbor, Dexter and the surrounding country. These popular fourth of July picnics, which have been in vogue ever since Rev. Fr. Goldrick took charge of the Northfield parish, show no signs of even diminution in interest. The Ann Arbor road took out over seven hundred from this city, and there were hundreds and hundreds of teams which added their loads to the crowd. Over 1150 people were fed by the ladies of the Northfield parish, and the hotels were also patronized. From this it may be seen that if numbers count, the fourth was well celebrated.

The four large tables seated by actual count 200 people at a time, and for hours they were kept filled by hungry people. There was the boy who had five cups of coffee, while he was being watched and the Lord only knows how many more. And there was the cake fiend, who started off with cake, then chicken pie, then cake, following this with roast beef, and more cake, then ham cake and biscuit, more cake and cake and cake. The tables were always laden down with good hearty eatables and in spite of the hungry crowd who did full justice to the good dinner provided there was a large quantity left over.

The bowery was going full blast with Henry Menth acting as caller and William Walsh as floor master, and the Minnis orchestra furnishing the music. Each of the hotels also had dancing going on.

There were many of the older people present but the younger people predominated with the girls in the large majority, and every where could be seen the omnipresent lemon colored dress.

There was an absence of accidents and the small boy did not as usual get into the water. The lake was there, it is true, in all its glory of pond lilies, tempting the young spoons to the boats to get away from "the maddening crowds." The old settler was there too, to tell you how many feet the lake had receded and to point out to you its ancient boundaries. And there was Wirt Cornwell's large new cottage, of mushroom growth, commenced last Saturday and fully completed and occupied on the fourth, right on the banks by the little white church.

Rev. Fr. Goldrick is a happy host, with a jovial word for every one, and now and then a pat story to tell as a remark was dropped to draw it out. He looked happy yesterday, though he must have been a tired man when night set in and the picnic was over as must have been the ladies and men who made such a success of their management of the culinary department.

At ten minutes after three o'clock the crowds at the table who had been at it since eleven o'clock having thinned out, Rev. Fr. Goldrick called the vast concourse of people together and the Minnis orchestra played "My Country 'Tis of Thee," and then the Beethoven Quartette, the new Ann Arbor organization, drew an encore and in response to it sang "There was a Merry Cobbler." This was so good that they were compelled to follow it with "There were Three Crows Sat on a Tree."

Then Fr. Goldrick told a pat cow story and introduced Rev. Frank Kennedy, of Ypsilanti, who spoke on the Day we Celebrate—the fourth of July, the greatest day in the American calendar. It is said to be a great brag day and that the Yankee who would not brag on the fourth of July is not worthy of his inheritance. The speaker discussed the circumstances leading to the declaration of independence. Our fathers asked for no unusual powers. They asked only to be left alone in the enjoyment of the privileges granted them. The greed of the mother country had become tyrannical. The colonies were forbidden to buy only from Great Britain. They had a large surplus of products. They were forbidden to trade only with Great Britain. Heavy and unwarrantable taxes were imposed upon them. Standing armies were sent to keep them in subjection and they were obliged to maintain them. The right of trial by jury was violated.

It was to make an end of these wrongs that our fore fathers issued the declaration of independence. On the muster roll of the continental armies were 237,000 names and only one of these was a traitor. After giving credit to these farmers boys who could not be tempted to betray their country, Fr. Kennedy said: "but why recount the deeds of honor during this contest. The prize our fathers won was well worth the price paid for it. What a glorious constitution has been ours—a constitution so perfect that it might almost be said to have been given by God. Teach your children to love it.

After a song by J. A. Kelly "There will never be one like you" and a tenor solo by Bruno St. James and another story by Fr. Goldrick, Martin J. Cavanaugh spoke on Our Country. He said "the fundamental idea embodied in the declaration of independence was that all men are created free and equal. It came not only from the pen but the heart of Thomas Jefferson. It formed the ground work of our religious and political freedom. Some writers would have us believe our country was on the decline. But our constitutional government will continue forever. As tending to prove this assertion, Mr. Cavanaugh instanced the sweeping away of municipal misrule in New York and Chicago, by the assertion of those lofty sentiments that had only lain dormant. If anything dishonest is done in politics the people in their sovereign might will rise above party lines for the cause of good government. It is the misfortune of every land to pass through severe trials and our country has not been without them. Only a year ago there was a most crucial period when the streets of Chicago were in the hands of an organized mob. This occasion called for a man of great executive ability in the executive chair. The president called out the troops and restored order and for it received the plaudits and gratitude of the entire intelligence of the country, irrespective of party. Certain things are necessary for the perpetuation of the government: national unity—the idea that we are one nation and not forty-five; education and toleration; free thought and free speech. Without this America can exist only in name. It is the mission of the United States to ennoble labor and honor the toiler. In other countries labor has been the lot of the peasant and the serf, the enjoyment of its fruits the lot of the lords. In this country the laborer is the lord.

Miss Lizzie Kinnie sang a solo, which was well received. Some enthusiasm began calling for "Jimmy" Harkins, and Fr. Goldrick introduced him with the remark that he was Jimmy Harkins every day in the week but on the fourth of July when he was James Harkins. He sang Maggie McCann, the Belle of the Town and in response to repeated calls "Girl Wanted." Terrence R. Shields, of Foylerville, was introduced to give a "miscellaneous talk." He traced the wide difference between those who gave up their lives in olden times too often for personal ambition, love of conquest or for some favorite king and those who sacrificed themselves for our American liberties. He traced the great influence of our institutions upon the nations of Europe and claimed that the monarchical systems of government were crumbling and appealed to the parents to teach their children to love this land and her institutions.

J. Warner, a little Whitmore Lake lad, sang a song which was vigorously applauded, and J. Grove Campbell, of Detroit, formerly of Ann Arbor, spoke on Patriotism. After roasting the other speakers and himself—saying that in the earlier days the sages and wise men spoke, who had some instruction to give but as fire crackers became cheaper, it became necessary to hire cheaper speakers and briefless young patriots, he drew a distinction between patriotism and the love of war. He deprecated war. And pitched into the jingoists who would have this country go to war on slight pretenses. He wanted less military expenditures and the love of peace inculcated.

The Beethoven Quartette sang another song and the great day was over so far as the intellectual entertainment was concerned.

A MOMENT OF SUSPENSE.

A Mammoth Firecracker—It Scared a Multitude but Never Cracked.

Last evening, just as the crowd of people were pouring out of the post office after getting their evening mail, a couple of young lads marched into the middle of the street between the post office and the opera house corners and planted a huge cannon fire cracker. It was an immense affair, big enough to break all the windows in the buildings round about, and the people quickly moved back to a respectful distance without asking any questions.

The boy who planted the terrible exploder lighted a fuse, and it was rapidly sissing its way along when he ran away from it.

Horses were stopped and not allowed to approach near the terrible bomb, and the people all set their teeth firmly and braced their nerves for the mighty shock. The fuse got shorter and shorter, and finally gave one short puff like a firecracker before the explosion takes place.

But it didn't explode. It smoked and smoldered a little, when a boy ran up to it and look in as boys are apt to do, to see what was the matter, while the people all around were horrified, and yelled at him to "keep back." "It will blow you all to pieces," etc. He looked at the cracker a minute, then grabbed the cracker and ran away, much to the astonishment of the hundreds who had looked on in terror.

The truth leaked out afterward that the boys had taken a lot of old newspapers, rolled them up and taking a sheet of red paper had constructed an exact imitation of a mammoth fire cracker. They made a fuse by rolling some powder in a strip of tissue paper and the sell was complete.

Some of the people have not got over shuddering yet.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO

IT'S INJURIOUS TO STOP SUDDENLY and don't be imposed upon by buying a remedy that requires you to do so, as it is nothing more than a substitute. In the sudden stoppage of tobacco you must have some stimulant, and in most cases, be it opium, morphine, or other opiate, leaves a far worse habit contracted. Ask your druggist about BACO-CURO. It is purely vegetable. You do not have to stop using tobacco with BACO-CURO. It will notify you when to stop and your desire for tobacco will cease. Your system will be as free from nicotine as the day before you took your first chew or smoke. An iron clad written guarantee to absolutely cure the tobacco habit in all its forms, or money refunded. Price $1.00 per box or 3 boxes (30 days treatment and guaranteed cure), $3.50. For sale by all druggists or will be sent by mail upon receipt of price. SEND SIX TWO CENT STAMPS FOR SAMPLE BOX. Office of THE PIONEER PRESS COMPANY, C. W. HORNIK, Supt. St. Paul, Minnesota, Sept. 7, 1891. Eureka Chemical and Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis. Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and today I consider myself completely cured. I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it. Yours truly, C. W. HORNIK.

When my little girl was one month old, she had a scab form on her face. It kept spreading until she was completely covered from head to foot. Then she had boils. She had forty on her head at one time, and more on her body. When six months old she did not weigh seven pounds, a pound and a half less than at birth. Then her skin started to dry up and got so bad she could not shut her eyes to sleep, but lay with them half open. About this time, I started using the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in one month she was completely cured. The doctor and drug bills were over one hundred dollars, the CUTICURA bill was not more than five dollars. My child is now strong, healthy, and large as any child of her age (see photo), and it is all owing to CUTICURA. Yours with a Mother's Blessing, Mrs. GEO. H. TUCKER, JR., 632 Walker St., Milwaukee, Wis.

Sold throughout the world. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston. "All about the Blood, Skin, Scalp, and Hair," mailed free.

While the open car is popular evenings, it behooves those who ride upon it to carry wraps with them. They will be quite apt to take cold unless they protect themselves.

"Hello, Prof." said a friend to a teacher he met on the street this morning, "what are you doing now-a-days?" "Oh, taking a head rest, that's all." "A head rest! What do you mean?" "Why, a vacation, of course."

When busy housekeepers are troubled with that disagreeable burning sensation in tired feet during the hot July weather, they should try a hot foot bath with baking soda in the water before retiring; and in the morning the pain will not return as it has been in the habit of doing, as the daily round of household duties is commenced.

Duluth has gone into the curfew business. Her council has passed an ordinance to the effect that when the town clock rings out the hour of 9 at night, no person under the age of 15 years will be allowed on the street, under a penalty of $100 fine or 90 days in jail. Ann Arbor might with profit to many a young boy and girl adopt and enforce the same law. It would be a blessing to numerous children and parents.

The Michigan Central has had a gang of men along their road burning off the dead grass. They do this to prevent fire getting started by the roadside when there is no one present to watch it, thus preventing the destruction of fences and grass fields. Notwithstanding the fact that a gang of men have been watching the burning off of the grass, everything is so dry that in several places the fire got the start of them and considerable fencing has been destroyed.

Here is a list of people who will go to California, and most of them to Southern California soon, from this city: Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Miner, Miss Jennie Oaks, Chas. J. N. Jacobs, Hugh Mars and family, Samuel D. Kinne, Prof. Wm. A. Morse, Rev. E. W. Moore, and A. W. Weir. This is a slight indication of what Southern California will be in the future. This is a big nation of seventy millions of people, and Ann Arbor is only one little city of a few thousands, and yet the magnet draws many. If all other places are similarly affected, what a flood of population that country will have! What will they all do when they get there?

"Everybody wants to know how to get rich. Here is the secret. You can tell your readers, and maybe they will thank you for it and maybe they won't," said a well to do gentleman in conversation with a Courier reporter. "There is only one way for the average man, and that is by industry, perseverance and saving. The last quality is the one that counts most. However little you earn make it a point to save a portion of it, even if not more than five cents. That has been my motto through life and I have done only what any man can do if he only commences right and hangs to it."

Just go about your daily tasks As calmly as you can. Don't hurry; take things easy, and You'll be much happier than The chap who groans and frets and stew, And fusses all the time; Just follow this advice, and you'll Be glad you read this rhyme.

Sterling, pastor of the Scotten ave. church, Detroit, will conduct a two day's meeting for Bible Study and prayer, at Newberry Hall, the 11th and 12th of July, meeting Friday to begin at 10 o'clock a. m. Bring you Bibles and lunch and spend the day praying for and expecting an outpouring of God's Holy Spirit. These meetings are entirely undenominational and all are welcome.

Miss Mary A. Sawtelle, who was studying in post graduate courses here some three years ago, and who was at one time president of Kalamazoo college, and is at present president of Colby college, Waterville, Maine, has in connection with her sister, Miss Alice E. Sawtelle, published an Olio in Verse, a very attractive and tasteful little volume, from the presses of G. P. Putnam's Sons. The book is receiving many complimentary notices.

It is certain that Prof. Harrington, as the head of the weather bureau, did not treat his old friends and neighbors politely. He should have given them a little more moisture. He made it too dry for them. Though showers were frequently promised none ever came. The new man can gain in popularity wonderfully in this neck of the woods by sending a series of long continued showers, and that right away quick.

Every piece of waste land along the rivers, and every hillside in the state should be planted to forest or nut bearing trees of some kind. There are hundreds of acres along the Huron river that have been stripped of timber and trees, the land of which has been put to no use, and in fact is of no value but to raise trees on. All these strips of land should be replanted with forest trees, and the humidity coaxed back into the atmosphere again. The wanton destruction of our forests have no doubt had a great effect on the rain fall.

—Our Animal Friends.

Some South American Birds.

Following the example of other members, I thought I would write and tell you about some of the birds. My brothers and I have just been talking about the blue hawk. It is not a particularly large bird, and is grayish-blue in color. It is comparatively harmless, its chief prey being rats and mice. Its nest looks like a pile of sticks roughly laid together, but at the bottom of the nest it is very soft. This is the description my little cousin gives of its eggs: "If you were to take a pure white egg and rub it all over with blood, leaving a few white specks, it would be just like a blue-hawk's egg." In shape it is round, and the color is really a dirty red. The bird's call sounds very much like that of a cross-billed baby. Another peculiar bird here is the hammer-nop. It is a large brown bird, and has a crest upon its head which looks like a hammer, hence the name. It preys upon the frogs. It makes a tremendous nest in the shape of a hut on the top of a high rock. I am told that it plasters the nest on the inside. One of our prettiest birds is the gilded cuckoo or didrich. The color of its back is green, and looks as if a lot of bronze dust had been sprinkled on it. Its breast is white spotted with brown. Like other cuckoos, it lays its eggs in other birds' nests. The color of the eggs is pure white. It has a very musical call—"de-dee-dee-dee-dee."

The avogool is a species of vulture. It is of a dirty white color, and has no feathers at all on its neck. Almost as soon as an animal dies the sky is darkened by avogools flying to prey upon the body. The leader or king perches upon it first, while his followers sit round waiting until he is finished. He claims the eye as his portion, as a rule. As soon as he has satisfied his hunger he flies away, leaving his followers to have their share. The avogool builds his nest of sticks on the top of some inaccessible crantz (precipice). The eggs are white, I believe, spotted with brown.—Emma Fincham in Harper's Round Table.

Godliness Is Profitable.

The thought brought out by H. N. Jacks, secretary of the Oakland, Cal., association, at the noon prayer meeting in the Chicago association building the other day, that godliness is profitable even in this life is one that is sometimes lost sight of, even in this practical age. Even from the utilitarian standpoint there is no stronger argument for Christianity than the fact that it helps a man to make the most of this life. The Christian is not promised great wealth or prosperity—few Christians could stand this—but he is promised a sufficiency, and prosperity in earthly things often follows in the wake of Christianity. It is but natural that it should be so. Christianity means diligence in business and the best use of the talents God has given each individual man. It means also honesty between man and man, which in the end is the best policy. It means temperance, self-control and the right use of all the powers of body and mind. It means the strength to embrace opportunity. In fact the Christian man is the only man who is living in harmony with nature's laws, and as such he can not but be successful in the highest sense of the word. On the other hand, the man who disregards God in the affairs of his life opens the door to all kinds of evil inducements. Many start out with the false notion that it is manly to drink intoxicants, to gamble, to occasionally sow their wild oats, forgetting all the while that they are forging the chains that will bind them in this life as well as for the next. The man of dissipated habits can not be a success in any position. He is unworthy of confidence. No employer will trust him. Quickly he loses place, respectability, character and manhood, and as he finds himself an outcast from society he is reluctantly brought to the conclusion that "the way of transgressors is hard."—Young Men's Era.

Effects of Exercise.

In a recent pamphlet issued by the University of Wisconsin are given statistical results of investigation on the part of Dr. J. C. Elsom, the professor of physical culture and director of the gymnasium. It will be remembered that Dr. Elsom was formerly physical director of the Minneapolis association. The students at the University of Wisconsin, at their second examination, where asked certain questions as to the effects of exercise. Out of seventy-five answers, selected at random, fifty-eight men testified to an improved state of health and strength as a result of the season's work. Following are some of the results of exercise reported by these students:

"I have been more free from biliousness and kidney troubles."
"The gymnasium has greatly improved my digestion and sleeping."
"Health generally improved, especially my chest and lungs."
"Scarcely ever now have a headache."
"The exercise has caused many of the eruptions on my skin to disappear."
"Am freer from cold in head and throat."
"Appetite better, digestion improved;

formerly had spells of dizziness. Have disappeared."

"The exercise has enabled me to stand straighter, and I feel better generally."

"One stated that he noticed a better concentration of mind and freer and quicker action during study, as a result of his exercise."

"The effect has been gratifying. I find that I can study much better."
"My standings last term were better than ever before."

"I can spend one hour in the gymnasium and study as much in three hours as if I studied four hours in succession."

A Terrified Sexton.

"Never but once have I entirely forgotten my dignity in the pulpit," said a ministerial friend. "It was on a stormy Sabbath evening. My congregation was small and seated at my request in the front of the church. During services one of the rear lamps became disordered and I called the attention of the sexton to it without disturbing the congregation."

"Taking down the offending article, an old-fashioned side lamp, and holding it at arm's length, he tried to extinguish the blue blaze that was filling the chimney. His fright was so apparent and his efforts so comical that it was with difficulty I continued to address my audience, still in total ignorance of the serious state of affairs in the rear. Their first intimation of danger was a sharp report accompanied by the terrified exclamation: 'There she goes!'"
"All heads turned to behold the old sexton with eyes and mouth distended, clutching tightly the empty bowl from which chimney and burner had just shot skyward. Beheld and beholders presented such a ludicrous appearance that my gravity gave way and I sank into a chair in uncontrollable merriment."—Ida Kays, Kelly, Kas.

What a Copyright Is.

A copyright, dear Sir Harry, is a legal right to a copy. Suppose you and your friend Delano, four doors away, should publish a book that proved as popular as—well, let us say Tribly, or Ben-Hur, or Uncle Tom's Cabin did. If you sent out a few copies and put upon them no legal proprietary mark, other persons seeing the demand could and would take your work, make copies of it, sell them, pocket the money, and give you nothing for what perhaps cost you a great deal of effort. If, however, you observe the legal forms, and your book proves saleable, other persons are prevented from making additional copies. Those who want copies must buy them from you. The legal form is very simple. Before you publish the book, paper, print, or whatever it is, you mail two copies to the Librarian of Congress, Washington, with $1. He returns to you a paper, duly signed, setting forth the fact that for a certain number of years that article belongs to you. You state this fact on each copy published, and then the profit is yours, and the law protects you in it.—Harper's Round Table.

Pat's Pride and Fall

"Dennis," said a minister to a new member of his flock, "I am told that you were being fighting last night."
"Am was, your honor, and his sorry Oi am for it, notwithstanding the insult!"
"But don't you remember the text of my last Sunday's sermon, Dennis? 'If a man smite thee on one cheek turn to him the other also.'"
"Oi remembered it well, an' thought to meself 'twas an illegant chance to show the sinner how good a saint Oi was, for he hit me an' say tap; but when Oi turned the other cheek, as meek as a prize, he hit me s'ich a murdering swipe that Oi lost me patience entirely. 'The devil fly away with the villain that would tempt a converted Christian,' Oi yelled, 'and make the commands of the Bible of none effect!' an' Oi paid him back in his coin wid interest thrown in."

Too Liberal Theology.

Pat and Jamie had been converted under the preaching of repentance for sins. They applied to become members of the Presbyterian church. Appointment was made for them to meet with the session for examination. Pat came first and it was deemed best to refuse to admit him at that time. He was sorrowfully making his way upstairs when he met Jamie coming down.
"Jamie," he said, "how many Gods are there?"
"One," replied Jamie.
"Ah," said Pat, "you had just as well go home, me boy; you don't stand the ghost of a chance. They asked me that and I told them there was a hundred of them, and they wouldn't let me in; you never in the world will get in with only one God."—Rev. G. W. Bull, Opelika, Ala.

Kill Him Where He Is.

Charlotte Cushman, a celebrated actress, was filling an engagement at the opera-house in B—. A man in the gallery created such a disturbance that it seriously impeded the progress of the play, and finally brought it to a standstill. Immediately the audience, furious with anger, cried: "Throw him over! Throw him over!"
Miss Cushman stepped to the edge of the footlights, and in a sweet and gentle voice exclaimed: "No, I pray you, don't throw him over. I beg of you, dear friends, don't throw him over, but kill him where he is!"

Pat's Defense.

An Irishman was on trial for committing a burglary, and had conducted his own case. The evidence against him was strong, and the judge, after summing up, remarked, while looking at the prisoner, that he could detect the rascal and villain in his face. "Hold there!" shouted the prisoner. "I object; that is a personal reflection."

A Facetious Visitor.

"See 'at 'ittle boy over zere?" said Mabel. "Yat's my 'ittle buzzer, an' his name is Nat."
"Indeed?" said the visitor. "Well, I think 'nat is a very good name for a ouzzer."

CHARLES FRANCIS BRUSH.

The Father of Arc Electric Lighting Systems of the World.

AN ALUMNUS OF THE U. OF M.

A Short Sketch of the Life of the World's Greatest Inventor in the Field of Electricity—His Patriotic Home at Cleveland.

The literary class of 1869 has the proud distinction of having among its members one of the most gifted men in the world today, one whose name is known wherever civilization has reached, "the father of the arc-electric lighting industry," Chas. Francis Brush, of Cleveland, Ohio. Within the past few weeks several articles have appeared in the leading papers of the country descriptive of the life and activities of this great man whom the University of Michigan is proud to call an alumnus. Of the class of '69 there are at present living in Ann Arbor the Rev. J. Mills Gelston and Prof. F. M. Hamilton. Regent W. J. Cocker, of Adrain, is also a member of the class.

"He was an inventor from his youth," recently wrote Mr. Gelston, speaking of his famous classmate. "Not all boy inventors are famous in after life, but it is gratifying to know that the boy Brush was the natural father of the inventor. He was always 'making things.' On the farm, in school and at college, this disposition never forsook him. While in his 'teens' he made electrical machines, electro-magnets and batteries. He made microscopes and telescopes including the lenses. He devised a plan of turning gas on and off the street lamps by electricity. He constructed, while in the Cleveland high school, an electric motor and his first electric arc-light. It is not always true that coming events cast their shadows before them, but these early experiments were clearly prophetic germs.

To have achieved such results full of blessing to the world, is more than to have won millions, but Mr. Brush has done both. Yet with all this he is ever a modest man. He is a man of deeds rather than words, intensely practical, not over sanguine, and with a disposition to overestimate the value of his work. His strong mind is tempered in a noble physique. Some six feet two inches in height, strongly built, and with a bracing head and soldierly bearing,—he is a man to arrest attention at sight."

Charles Francis Brush was born near Cleveland, Ohio, March 17, 1849. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1869, as above mentioned, taking the degree of M. E. His interest in electricity dates as far back as his twelfth year. He was continually experimenting. After his graduation from the University of Michigan he returned to Cleveland and established a laboratory, doing the work of an analytical chemist. Still he experimented and studied electricity. In speaking to a reporter recently he said, "I kept working on my dynamo and the electric light, but it was more as a toy and to amuse myself than with any idea of accomplishing anything of a commercial value." About 1876 he began to appreciate that his electric light had a commercial value. He had at that time completed his first dynamo electric machine. This was exhibited at Philadelphia and at the Franklin Institute. Soon his light surprised the whole scientific world at the electrical exposition at Paris. The French government decorated him a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

Wealth beyond the dreams of avarice was soon his. Frank G. Carpenter, the well-known writer in a recent contribution to the periodical literature, estimates that his inventions in electric lighting alone are represented by an aggregate capital of $500,000,000, and that his inventions in other lines have created a capital of many millions more. There are today more than one thousand millions of dollars invested in electrical industries outside of the telephone, telegraph and electric railways. Mr. Brush is also the inventor of the storage battery.

His genius has made the city of Cleveland famous and there he lives out on Euclid avenue in a perfect palace. His great house set in the midst of seven acres of magnificent lawn shaded with immense forest trees is lit from cellar to highest turret with hundreds of electric lights, the electricity for which is furnished by storage batteries. These batteries are charged by an enormous windmill, itself the invention of Mr. Brush.

Though Mr. Brush has long since ceased to be a struggling, poverty stricken inventor, still in his private laboratory his studies and experiments continue. The world owes him a debt of gratitude which it can never pay. How great may this debt grow if his activity continues? He is in the very prime of life. Great problems in his chosen field are still to be taken up and solved. Whatever the future may bring, none will watch with closer, deeper interest the life of Charles Francis Brush than does his Alma Mater, the University of Michigan.

OF INTEREST TO LADIES.

We offer no apology in placing before you "The Ladies' Safe Protector," it is absolutely reliable, easily adjusted, does not become misplaced and insures protection. Can be worn when desired without observation or knowledge of another and prevents disagreeable annoyance under certain conditions. If you use it once you will never be without it. It is a faithful, safe and reliable friend whenever needed, by special circumstances requiring its use. It is an article every woman should keep ready for immediate use. It is simple to use, and inspires confidence to the woman using it. It is reliable and scientifically made, insures protection without injury to health, as any good physician would say. We are of the opinion that no article has ever been made which will give as much satisfaction to the women of to-day as "The Ladies' Safe Protector." The immense sales of this article is a substantial indorsement of our claim. Do not therefore experiment with any of the numerous unreliable articles, as it is both dangerous to health, and expensive to do so. Such experimenting can only result in loss of time, disappointment and dismal failure. Ladies should remember this before ordering other goods and not waste their time and money on inferior articles. The best is always the cheapest. "The Ladies' Safe Protector" is sold under a positive guarantee for use for one year, with full directions and is sent sealed in plain wrapper upon receipt of express money order for $2.00, three for $5.00. Do not wait but order at once. Address THE LA CROSSE SPECIALTY CO., LaCrosse, Wis. 1774 1/2 ft.

HOW SARDOU WRITES.

The Great Dramatist Builds a Play in Scientific Fashion.

Sardou's way of working is as follows: The moment an idea has occurred to him he puts it down, and all the various notes, documents, and particulars which have to do with this idea are joined together, forming a sort of dossier. When the idea is crystallized into dramatic shape Sardou writes a scenario of a few pages, giving the skeleton, as it were, of the whole play. Then he puts the work aside. All his various schemes are treated in the same way. He has at the present day from seventy to eighty dossiers in his drawers, out of which eight or ten plays will come. So, when he has to write a drama or comedy, he only chooses. For instance "Theodora" was written fifteen years after it originated in the author's mind. As soon as Sardou's choice is made he reads over all the accompanying notes and documents which pertain to that play, and then he begins to write the drama or comedy, act by act, scene by scene, as they come into his mind. When he has done this preliminary work, he rewrites the piece on large white quarto paper. The play is then reduced and condensed. It is this second manuscript which is given to the copyist, to whom is intrusted the care of putting it in shape. All this writing is ordinarily done at Marly. Sardou is not disturbed there as he is in Paris.

The prizes will be awarded as follows: $1000 in gold will be given for the best picture taken by this camera; $100 for the second best; $50 for the third best; $25 for the fourth best; $15 for the fifth best; $10 for the sixth best, and for the next 40 best $5 each will be given; for the next 80 best $2.50 each will be given and for the next 200 best pictures taken by the La Crosse Camera $1 each will be given, making in all $1000 given away.

We shall do this for two reasons, viz: The first to introduce the La Crosse Camera for 1895; the second, to educate the amateurs in photography.—This contest closes on November 1st, 1895.

This camera can be used by any one and is sold under a positive written guarantee to do the work or money refunded.

Sent by express with full instructions and rules governing this contest upon receipt of express money order for $1.75.

Remember, A Written Guarantee Goes With Every Camera.

A KICK ON THE M. C. R. R.

And its Ill Treatment of Ann Arbor—The Road Can Afford to be More Generous.

John Laidlaw, the Michigan Central gardener, has constructed on the grounds near the depot, of ornamental plants, a reproduction of the celebrated cantilever bridge at Niagara Falls with a train just arriving on the structure. The bridge is 45 feet long, and reproduced in every particular in the proportions to this scale. He has used about 40,000 plants in producing the work.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

Those who have seen the above pronounce it a wonderful work of art.

The question now before us is, why does the M. C. R. R. allow its grounds here to go unimproved?

Ann Arbor is one of the most important stations on the line of the road. The railroad makes as much, if not more money from the passenger traffic of this station than any other, and it is always the last to receive improvements of any kind, and when they do come the city is asked to pay a good portion of the expense.

When the new station was built here Ann Arbor had been slighted for years and years, until the old structure used as a passenger station had become such a disgrace to the road that out of very shame the officials had to do something. Then the city was asked to give, and did give $5,000 in cold cash and besides it closed up one street entirely and allowed a bridge to be built over the tracks on another street that is no credit either to the city or the railroad company, so that the city has paid pretty dear for the improvements.

And now the land owned in and about the grounds are allowed to lay idle, except the side hill that was sodded to keep it from running down on to and covering up the railroad tracks and the station itself.

The M. C. railroad authorities always profess to have special interest in Ann Arbor, and yet that interest is never sufficient to have anything done here until necessity compels it.

If Ann Arbor received the sort of treatment that is given other stations there would be a much better feeling existing between the people of the city and the corporation. The people feel now that the company is very greedy and very penurious, and as a consequence when anything arises to give them an opportunity they give vent to these feelings. Which is perfectly natural.

The M. C. R. R. ought to treat Ann Arbor better than it does.

Cure for Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of Headache, Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headaches yield to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only 50 cents at The Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's Drug store, and Geo. T. Haeussler, Manchester.

Great Merchants' Shabby Desks.

As a rule the head of any large and long-established concern has the shabbiest desk in the room, says Chicago Times-Herald. Business men have a kind of superstition on this point, at least many of them do. They feel like clinging to the old desk, which has witnessed so many of their financial triumphs, and are half inclined to believe, perhaps, that it might break the spell if they should part with these old partners in their joys and sorrows. Henry Clews, in his "Twenty Years in Wall Street," remarks that Jay Gould transacted all his business at a desk "which never ought to have cost over $25," and everybody knows the story of A. T. Stewart, that when he removed from the old store in which he began his career to the new one which he built later on he insisted on taking along the old one, which had been carrying on her small mercantile transactions near his door for so many years and whom he grew to associate with his business success.

RECOLLECTIONS OF OLD TIMES

J. W. Wing Tells of the Pioneer Days of 1831—32.

FIELDS OF WILD FLOWERS.

One Band of Indians 1,200 in Number—Capt. Hayes the Sailor—Judges Dexter and Crane—The Noble Women.

About sixty-three years ago this present month, and about the 20th of the month, or in other words, in the month of June, 1832 there might have been seen an emigrant wagon drawn by a pair of sleek brown oxen (which were very gentle and kind) wending its way upon the north road leading from Ann Arbor to Dexter.

This wagon contained a sential load of goods and two ladies. The ladies occupied a very comfortable seat in the front part of the wagon prepared expressly for them, the elder of which was considerably past the meridian of life and the other was a young lady about eighteen years of age.

The oxen were driven by a young man about 22 years of age, and it was the first effort of the kind he had ever made in his life. By the side of said emigrant wagon, a part of the time riding and a part walking, was an elderly gentleman and two little boys one nine and the other twelve years of age.

This emigrant wagon contained the father and mother sister and brothers of your humble speaker and I was the elder of the two little boys.

We ended our journey about twelve o'clock on the 20th day of June 1832 by stopping at the house of Horace Leek who kept, at that time, a sort of hotel where Mr. John Helber now resides, about three miles east of Dexter village.

The land for our new home had already been located the previous autumn by my elder brother, and is now known as the Columbus Waite farm about two and a half miles east of Dexter.

I would not wish to be understood that we made all the journey from central New York with oxen. We brought a wagon with us and bought oxen in Detroit, and with their assistance we made the journey from Detroit here.

I have a very distinct recollection of the next morning after our arrival at Mr. Leek's that my sister asked me if I would not like to take a walk up to the place that was to be our future home. I said I would and we walked up together.

The place was in a perfect state of nature never having had anything done upon it until that morning when my father and brother had preceded us and commenced chopping logs for a house.

The scene was beautiful beyond description. The timber consisted of large white oak trees standing several rods apart and the intermediate space between them was covered with bright green grass and beautiful flowers.

The whole country had been burnt over by the Indians every fall or spring I presume for centuries and every thing had been destroyed except these giants of the forest. It did appear as if one half of the vegetation were flowers.

The most of them were about eighteen inches high and when moved by the wind the effect was wonderful. I have never seen in any of our large cities a park that was its equal.

A few days after our arrival here I went back north from where my father was building his house to the Huron river which was about one half mile distant. The river appeared much larger than it is now and I was surprised at its beauty and the scenery upon its banks. It was well stocked with fine fish and was a great resort for deer at evening.

It is true on its bosom no proud ships were sailing, No large puffing steamers appeared to our view, And yet its bright waters were quite as delightful As rivers whose broad winding course they pursue.

At the point where I reached the river was quite a large Indian planting ground where the dusky maiden had perhaps for centuries attended her favorite corn. At the upper end of this planting ground and upon the immediate bank of the river was an Indian cemetery where many graves and at least one chief had been buried. The rows of corn in the cornfield were regular but not at right angles. But Michigan as a territory in a state of nature, with all its beauty, its nobleness and grandeur contained no bread. This must be secured by the willing hearts and good right arms of the pioneers in changing the forests into beautiful fields, to rich plantations of rustling corn and the golden robes of the wheat fields.

And well their work was done. And so it was made possible that their children and those coming after them could keep the rich rewards of their useful and industrious lives.

On account of my youth my acquaintance was not very extensive except in our own neighborhood, and in the village of Dexter where I attended school in the winter. Dexter had a merchant by the name of Cowden, and our venerable friend Mr. Dennis Warner, who is present with us here to day, was his clerk. It also had a blacksmith in the person of Judge Crane. The blacksmith was perhaps the most useful mechanic in the country, for we depended upon him almost entirely for our plows and on our plows we depended for our bread. Dexter had a physician in the person of Dr. Sybil Nichols, who was an expert in handling bilious fevers and agues, the prevailing diseases of the country. Judge Dexter then resided here in a house that is still standing near the river. He was a good man in every sense of the word and was beloved and respected by every person who knew him, and many of the pioneers when overtaken by sickness or misfortune, received from him substantial assistance. He often rode up to our door and had a few minutes conversation with my father as he went back and forth to Ann Arbor. There was no fence to prevent his too near approach. Judge Dexter was a temperance man and practiced what he preached.

The judge always rode a large chestnut horse with a white face, no carriage in those days, and but few of the pioneers had wagons. They made carts, however, by sawing wheels off the butts of large trees and putting an axle and tongue in them, and they answered very well to go to mill and for other domestic purposes and in an emergency they would do to go to church.

No aristocracy in those days, you know; but the men and the women that could and did do the most good with the means at their command, were the ones that had precedence.

The memorable George C. Page came to this territory in 1832 and to Dexter soon after where he has since resided, occupying many positions of trust and responsibility and it gives us great pleasure to see his genial face here to day.

Dexter had a postoffice where we paid twenty-five cents for every letter we received.

There came to this territory in the month of July, from Cape Ann in Massachusetts a man by the name of Capt. Elias Hayes with his family which consisted of his wife, one son and one daughter. His daughter, however, had come with her uncle, Capt. Dix, in 1825, after which Dixborough was named.

Captain Hayes was a sailor and sea captain. He had followed the seas from his youth. He located an eighty acre lot of land adjoining my father's on the Ann Arbor road. He let the job of building his house to a Mr. Thomas Sill who resided here in Dexter at that time. I recollect of Mr. Hayes coming down to our house and introducing himself as Capt. Hayes, said he had located the lot adjoining my father, had let the job of building his house and as soon as it was completed he was going to take possession and be a neighbor.

My father expressed himself as being much pleased to have a neighbor so near, and asked the captain what kind of a house he was going to build.

The captain spoke of his house as he would a ship. He said she was to be built after the most approved model, her bulwarks were to be made of quite large trees. She was to be seven feet lower deck and five feet upper deck.

Capt. Hayes had had a very beautiful life, he had followed the seas from the time he was twelve years old, had visited nearly every country on the globe. He ran a privateer in the war of 1812 with Great Britain and took many prizes. He said on one occasion he came near being captured by a British man of war dressed in disguise to which he ran dangerously near before he discovered his mistake, but his ship was a fast sailor and they made their escape.

Capt. Hayes had been taken twice by pirates while in the merchant service. On one occasion they left them only provisions to last a week but they were so divided as to last a month instead of a week before the expiration of which time they fell in with a friendly vessel and were relieved.

Mrs. Hayes (whose maiden name was Tucker) was a daughter of a brave captain in the Revolutionary army and she exhibited with much pride a brace of brass pistols with flint locks which she said were presented to her father by Gen. George Washington for meritorious conduct in battle. I saw these pistols on two occasions, one of them had two deep sword cuts on the barrel, one on a diagonal and the other at right angles.

The venerable lady Mrs. Sidney Smith, the daughter of Capt. Hayes and mother of Mrs. Foster Litchfield, 84 years of age, is present with us here to day, a living illustration of the noble pioneer of others that have gone before.

1832 was the year that the Black Hawk war prevailed in Illinois and many people feared that it might extend to this territory, but Black and his warriors were soon captured and the people, even here, slept better nights. The Potawatamie Indians were quite plenty here in 1832-3, but they were not troublesome except when they had been drinking liquor and then they behaved very much like their white brothers under similar circumstances.

I recollect on one occasion a very large number of them passed our house (said to be twelve hundred) on their way to Canada to receive their presents,

The British government at that time made presents to the Indians annually at Ft. Malden, about twenty miles below Detroit. The place is now called Amherstburg. They were very expert with the bow and arrow and in throwing the tomahawk, but they were not what we would call good shots with a gun, in fact their guns were of very poor quality. They had instruments for calling both turkeys and deers to them, and their game was taken more by stealth than skill. There were not very many Indians here after '32, but we often saw a few and they generally wanted to swap something. Their stock in trade generally consisted of deer skins, smoked hams, cranberries and wild honey.

The early pioneers of Michigan were a very industrious class of citizens but they never would have succeeded as they did had it not been for their most excellent wives, and I have often wondered how those noble matronly mothers, under such adverse circumstances, with almost no conveniences at all at first for the management of their domestic affairs, could always appear so cheerful and pleasant, never complaining. But I have heard them say, and they said it very pleasantly, that the darkest of the night was just before day. I think if St. Paul could have seen these noble self-sacrificing women, he would have had a more favorable opinion of matrimony. In fact:

If Paul had been a pioneer,
And had our forest lands to clear,
And had old fashioned ague shake him,
And bilious fever overtake him;
With no one near to soothe his woes,
Or hold the camphor to his nose,
He would have said, "I do declare,
I must have been mistaken there."

WHOSE BUSINESS IS IT.

Trees Dying on the Public Parks Because of Neglect.

Some one is neglecting a public duty. A few years ago the city had a number of trees set out on Hanover square, through which Packard street runs. And these trees have been properly cared for until this year, and have made a fine start.

This summer these trees have been neglected, and the result is that two or three of them are dead, and every one of them will be dead if not given water at once.

At the council meeting the other night, the Water Company, through its attorney, Ald. Butterfield, announced that they were willing that sufficient water should be used to sprinkle this park to keep alive the grass and trees, but did not want the fire hydrants touched without some member of the fire department was present to see that the hydrants were properly used.

At that an order was given to have the square sprinkled, under the supervision of some member of the fire department, yet nothing has been done, and it is a shame.

We are told the Board of Public Works refuses to do it because they object to the restriction imposed by the Water Company, and that the Committee of the Council on public parks are waiting the two, you see, the water cometh and the trees must die.

The chairman of the committee on public parks, Ald. Shadford, is an energetic young man, and is not given to neglecting any duty that falls upon him. The public would applaud him if he would take this thing into his own hands and see that it is done before any greater damage is done.

WHEN YOU GO NORTH

for the summer, please bear in mind that Chicago and West Michigan railway service to Bay View, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Traverse City is the most complete and best arranged this year of any since the "Scenic Line" was completed. All trains of the M. C. R. R. connect at Grand Rapids with the following trains on the west Michigan: Leave Grand Rapids at 8:05 a. m., with parlor car, arrive at Traverse City at 1:20 p. m. Boats for Bay ports leave Traverse City at 2:30 p. m. This train arrives at Petoskey and Bay View at 4:30 p. m.

OUR AFTERNOON FLYER leaves Grand Rapids at 1:00 p. m., with parlor cars, and arrives at Traverse City at 4:50 p. m., Charlevoix 6:30, Petoskey 6:55 and Bay View 7:00 p. m.

It is a great train, enabling a person to reach his destination in time for supper. Just the thing for families with children. The daylight ride along the beautiful bays and lakes north of Traverse City is a delightful feature of the trip on this train.

THE NIGHT TRAIN

leaves at 11 o'clock, with sleepers, and arrives at Traverse City at 4:00 a. m., Charlevoix 6:30, Petoskey 7:00 and Bay View 7:10 a. m. Any M. C. R. R. agent can get seats in parlor cars or berths in sleepers reserved by telegraphing to J. S. Hawkins, Agent C. & W. M. R'y., Grand Rapids. We have first-class, convenient service and ask your patronage. GEO. DEHAVEN, G. P. A.

AT THE SUMMER SCHOOL.

The University Summer School Opens Today for Six Weeks of Study.

CHANGES AMONG TEACHERS.

Outline of Work to be Done—Special Popular Lectures Offered—Advanced Work in Laboratories and Class Room.

The second session of the University of Michigan Summer School opens today. Every train is bringing students, and the campus and libraries are becoming more animated than since commencement. Today is registration day. The students are being assigned to classes and other preliminary arrangements made.

There are but two or three changes in the list of instructors as already announced. In mathematics Dr. J. W. Glover is here and offers the same courses which his predecessor, Dr. F. N. Cole, offered. In drawing Mr. H. J. Golding takes the place of Miss Hunt. Mr. Golding is a Saginaw boy who has been chosen to succeed Mr. D. B. Luten as instructor in engineering.

In the biological laboratory is Mr. W. H. Rust whose recent work at Harvard abundantly qualifies him for the position of instructor.

In political economy Dr. J. P. Davis, author of the Union Pacific Railway, offers three popular courses.

There exists the opinion in some quarters that the Summer School is a sort of teacher's institute. It is much more. Almost any course desired will be offered. There are several of graduate courses. The instructors are all members of the University faculty and offer opportunities for advanced work and for original research seldom afforded during the summer months.

Many are growing to appreciate this fact and are come to take advantage of it. Prof. McAuley, professor of mathematics at the North Dakota State University, has asked admission for special work. Wm. Bellis, principal of schools at Quincy, comes here after two years' summer study at Cornell, to continue his work. Prof. De Barr, professor of physics and chemistry at the Oklahoma University is here for advanced work in laboratory courses. Prof. Wm. McCracken, professor of physics and chemistry at Geneva College, Beaver Falls, Pa., is registered for advanced work in biology.

These and others show by their presence here that our Summer School is gaining a wide and valuable reputation. There is no reason why we should not have as good a Summer School as any in the East.

Arrangements have been made for a series of popular lectures given by the leading members of the faculty. These will usually occur on Tuesday evening of each week. Among those who will lecture are President Angell, and Profs. Kelsey, Demmon, Hinsdal, Thomas and Carhart. Prof. Stanley had offered to give an organ recital but his absence in Europe will postpone this until another organist can be secured.

It is quite probable that a reception will be tendered the students during the progress of the school. Last year such a reception was given by President and Mrs. Angell and was a delightful affair.

The prospects are surprisingly good. This forenoon three times as many students registered with Prof. Lyman as during the same time last year, and the instructors are jubilant. Up to noon 30 had registered to take courses in latin, 20 for Physics, 21 for mathematics, 10 for animal biology, 11 for philosophy, 20 for German, etc., etc. These figures are sure to be raised by over one-half.

As for territory from which students are coming, the following states already have representatives here: Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Massachusetts, California, Colorado, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Dominion of Canada.

Prof. A. J. Howard, colored, professor of mathematics and astronomy in a Mississippi college, came this morning to take work.

Superintendent Biscomb and wife from Cassopolis schools is here for study. From Nashville high school come the principal and two teachers.

The law courses are proving quite a success, and Instructors Hughes, Dwyer and Smith are working hard to make their courses profitable.

The law library is kept open during the day, and the general university library from 9 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 4 p. m.

THE CIRCUIT RIDER

Said "Heat is Life, Cold is Death."

There is no surer way to set up dyspepsia than to drink freely of cold drinks at meals. The natural heat of the stomach is necessary for perfect digestion and any cold substance thrown into it absorbs just so much heat and robs the stomach of its power. A cup of hot Postum Cereal which has all the nourishment of the grains, will do more to fatten the body and preserve good stomach action than all the drugs in the pharmacopoeia. Coffee and tea disagree with many people, while Postum Cereal agrees with the weakest stomach and can be given freely to the children.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Lew H. Clement returned from Chicago Sunday.

Miss Tillie Mutschel left Monday a. m. for a two weeks trip to New York and Boston.

Almeron Crandall, of Chicago, is visiting his brother, M. E. Crandall, of S. 12th street.

Rev. J. T. Sunderland and family leave for Europe Friday. They will be absent about a year.

Since October 1894, Librarian Vance, at the law library, has received and answered over 1700 letters.

Miss Anna O'Brien, with E. F. Mills & Co., commenced a two weeks' vacation Monday morning.

M. Duke left Ann Arbor Monday to visit his parents in England. He sails from New York Wednesday.

Mrs. Seevey and daughter Aimee, of Thompson street, left Monday for Barbarosa, Cal., for the summer.

We shall have to wait ten days or two weeks now for another chance at a rain storm—and then perhaps miss it again.

The latest ball game announced is one between the employes of the Ann Arbor Organ Co., and those of the Michigan Furniture Co.

The Ann Arbor Water Co. are extending the water mains on Packard st., and on Benjamin and Mary streets. In making the connections on Packard st. a section in that vicinity will have to be shut off for a time.

The lawn social to be given by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., on Friday evening next, will be held on the grounds of Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Wetmore, of W. Huron st.

It has been well said that the only honest and high minded way of getting on in the world is by helping the world to get on. A man is never greater than the service he renders.

The school board committee having the matter in charge, report that the present boiler at the high school, used for heating purposes, is so worn that a new one is needed, and will be put in this summer during vacation.

Since the Choral Union here has met with such an unprecedented success, other cities and villages are talking about organizing one. But have they a Prof. Stanley to manage them, and make them a success? That's the important question.

George Wahr is putting in a steam heating plant in his house at the corner of N. Division and E. Ann sts., formerly known as the Royer place. The Alpha Phi fraternity will not occupy the place next year, much to the regret of the neighboring residents.

The law courses offered in the Summer School are proving very desirable, and the number of students taking them is encouragingly large. Instructor Hughes has 12 registered, Instructor Smith 5, Instructor Dwyer, 4. Several more will register later.

Dr. Vaughan lost two iron hitching posts Monday morning from in front of his residence on State st. Some young men were racing and their horse becoming unmanageable ran into and broke down the two posts. The buggy was almost totally a wreck—the young men were badly bruised.

A prominent and far seeing citizen remarked forcibly to the Courier this morning that if Ann Arbor expects to draw students and keep them at its summer schools it must do something at once to abate the awful dust nuisance. Every visitor remarks that the city is beautiful, but they always add, "But Oh, the dust!"

Prof. Alberto Jonas writes Mr. L. H. Clement that his reception by the National Music Association at St. Louis, Mo., was extremely gratifying. He was called out ten times to play before them, and expects to give a recital there during the coming winter. Prof. Jonas is making numerous engagements throughout Michigan for recitals. Ann Arbor and the School of Music are extremely fortunate in having Mr. Jonas with them.

The burial of Avery, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Calkins, occurred from the house Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Coburn officiated. The bereaved parents have the deepest sympathy of their many friends.

Hon. M. P. Wing, of La Crosse, Wis., law '62, and a former resident of this county, died recently at his home in that city. He married for his first wife Miss Hannah A. Palmer, of Scio, in 1859, who died the next year. In 1863 he married a lady of Fondulac, Wis., who with three children survives him. He was a very prominent man in the community where he lived.

The lady who always has some good recipe says, "A broiled salt mackerel makes an excellent breakfast relish for spring; it should be soaked over night, skin side up, in plenty of water. It is equally good, or better, if boiled, and then some hot cream with a lump of butter and a few drops of vinegar in it, be poured over it."

B. L. Baxter attended the commencement at Ann Arbor last week and had a very pleasant visit there. He was the guest of Judge Cooley and Judge Cheever and also called upon ex-Governor Felch. Mr. Baxter was regent of the University during war times and hence enjoys quite an extended personal acquaintance in Ann Arbor. He made a three days' trip of it, visiting friends in Ypsilanti on Friday.—Tecumseh Herald.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM AND ACUTE DYSPEPSIA

Two Cases Cited in Which the Patients Themselves Give the Facts to Two Well-Known Journals.

THE SUCCESS OF A THEORY DEPENDS ON ITS SUCCESS IN PRACTICE, THE PRACTICAL RESULTS ONLY ARE GIVEN HERE.

Thinking People Want Proofs of any Theory Before Believing it and Proofs Which they can Verify if Necessary.

From the Battle Creek, Mich., Moon.

This is indeed an inventive age. Science and art have vied with each other in an endeavor to see which could outstretch the other. Every day the world is astonished by the announcement of some wonderful discovery or invention. Medical science has made as great, if not greater, advancements in the past century than any other science or art. Cures have been performed the past quarter of a century that in the days of our fathers were deemed impossible. Miracles have been performed the past few years that are almost incredible, and which seem almost as marvelous as those performed in the olden time.

A Moon reporter, hearing an almost incredible story of the restoration to health of Mary C. Gould, wife of John Gould, who has been unable to sit up for over two years, drove out to her home to hear the story from her own lips.

The reporter made his business known and asked the lady if the story of her restoration to health was true. "Yes," she said, "all you have heard is true, and more, too. Two years ago last September I was taken with what the doctor called inflammatory rheumatism. At first I only had slight pains in my left limb, but the pains gradually grew worse, and in a short time I was compelled to take to my bed. It was impossible for me to move my leg at all. It seemed to shrink and shrivel up; and when the cold weather set in it was almost impossible for me to keep this limb warm, it was so susceptible to the cold. I doctored and doctored; and although I employed the best medical skill that I could get in Battle Creek, there seemed to be no help for me. After over a year of suffering that no human being can describe, the doctor gave me up. I was discouraged, and it did seem to me that if I had to die I might as well die one time as another, for my pain was beginning to be almost unbearable. A neighbor told my husband that he had heard that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People was a remedy highly recommended for such cases, and he advised me to try them. The next time he went to Battle Creek he called on Messrs. Amberg & Murphy, the druggists, and bought six boxes of the pills and brought them home with him. I commenced to take them and soon began to feel a little better. I kept right on with the medicine, and on the 12th day of September I was able to leave my bed, and to-day I am doing all my work alone. I did not get better all at once, but gradually gained strength. My limbs slowly but surely became strong, and my whole system felt strong and healthy, which it had not for many years. After suffering so long and enduring so much pain, it is little wonder that I feel grateful to this remedy for my restoration to health."

The Moon reporter then called on Messrs. Amberg & Murphy to hear their statement of the case. "Yes," they said, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People have done wonders for Mrs. Gould. She was given up by the doctors, and her lot seemed to be to spend the rest of her days in bed. There probably is no remedy on the market that has done so much good for suffering humanity as Dr. Williams' pills. We know that they will do just what they are recommended to accomplish, and that we will never have to take back a statement we make about them."

ACUTE DYSPEPSIA.

Sympathetic Heart Disease Often Attends It.

From the Republican, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Mrs. V. Curley, who has resided in Clarence, Iowa, for the past twenty-two years, tells an interesting story of what she considers rescue from premature death. Her narrative is as follows:

"For ten years prior to 1894 I was a constant sufferer from acute stomach trouble. I had all the manifold symptoms of acute dyspepsia, and at times other troubles were present in complication—I did not know what it was to enjoy a meal. No matter how careful I might be as to the quality, quantity and preparation of my food, distress always followed eating. I was despondent and blue, almost to the point of insanity at times, and would have been glad to die. Often and often I could not sleep. Sympathetic heart trouble set in, and time and again I was obliged to call a doctor in the night to relieve sudden attacks of suffocation which would come on without a moment's warning."

"My troubles increased as time wore on, and I spent large sums in doctor bills, being compelled to have medical attendants almost constantly. During 1892 and 1893 it was a short time for me to retain food, and water brashes plagued me. I was reduced to a skeleton. A consultation of physicians was unable to determine just what did ail me. The doctors gave us as their opinion that the probable trouble was ulceration of the coats of the stomach, and held out no hope of recovery. One doctor said: 'All I can do to relieve your suffering is by the use of opium.'"

"About this time a friend of mine, Mrs. Symantha Smith, of Glidden, Iowa, told me about the case of Mrs. Thurston, of Oxford Junction, Iowa. This lady said she had been afflicted much the same as I had. She had consulted local physicians without relief, and had gone to Davenport for treatment. Giving up all hope of recovery, she was persuaded by a friend to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The result was almost magical."

"I was led to try them from her experience, and before many months I felt better than I had for a dozen years. I am now almost free from trouble, and if through some error of diet I feel badly, this splendid remedy sets me right again. I have regained my strength and am once more in my usual flesh. I sleep well and can eat without distress. I have no doubt that I owe my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I only wish that I had heard of them years ago thereby saving myself ten years of suffering and much money."

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are for sale by all druggists, or may be had by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., for 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50.
