OWOSSO MOURNS.

Frank H. Banister Suddenly Called to His Last Rest.

Under the above heading the last Owosso Times has an extended account of the death and funeral of Mr. Banister, who was a native of this city, where he was reared and educated, and where his death is deeply regretted, a portion of which is as follows:

"The saddest event of years to the people of Owosso was the sudden death on Sunday evening, at his home on Mason street, of Frank H. Banister, who had been suffering since July 4 from an attack of fever, which finally affected the brain and caused his death. The announcement came Monday morning as a blow to every one who knew him, and on all sides was heard, 'It seems impossible, I cannot realize that he is dead.' Mr. Banister was 45 years of age.

"An active, honorable, public spirited man has been taken from the business interests of the city—a man of integrity of character, unblemished moral and social habits, a genial friend and popular citizen, an active Christian worker, prominent in all the avenues of life which promote good citizenship, make useful members of society and tend to its uplifting—and Owosso mourns the loss.

"Mr. Banister came from Ann Arbor to Owosso a young man, as clerk in the dry goods store of C. L. Goodhue, the old brown store on the corner now occupied by the Thomas block. From there he went to Detroit and held a fine situation in the dry goods establishment of Newcomb & Endicott. In March, 1879, he returned to Owosso and entered into the grocery business in company with Chas. Lawrence. March, 1884, the partnership was dissolved, and Mr. Banister became a partner in the grocery business of C. C. Duff. This connection lasted until January, 1886, when Mr. Banister opened a grocery store for himself in the Wesener block. His prosperous business outgrew his quarters and in May, 1892, he purchased the store, 109 N. Washington street. The same he formerly occupied in company with Mr. Lawrence. Here he carried on a large business until cut short by death, in the prime of life and in an active business career. His fair, honorable dealing and friendly, genial ways made him universally popular and brought him an extensive trade from all parts of the county and surrounding country.

"Mr. Banister was a zealous member of the Congregational church in this city, of which he was both a trustee and clerk. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias order, holding the office of Master of Exchequer in the subordinate lodge and was first lieutenant in the Uniform Rank division. He was also a member of the Odd Fellows and Maccabee orders.

"June 23, 1885, Mr. Banister was married to Miss Cepheise Greenman, who is now left alone in her widowhood. The sympathies of the community is with her. Mr. Banister's birthplace was Ann Arbor, where his parents and one sister reside. His other sister resides at Lake Odessa. Two brothers are druggists in Saginaw. His father is lying very ill of typhoid fever at Ann Arbor.

"The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon and were a most fitting testimonial of the love and respect of the citizens of Owosso for the deceased, and their sympathy for the wife, relatives and intimate friends. Owosso Lodge No. 81, Knights of Pythias and the Uniform Division, in both of which the deceased was an officer and a most enthusiastic and helpful worker, conducted the services. Owosso and Colfax Lodges I. O. O. F., Wilson Tent K. O. T. M. and the Business Men's Association also attended in bodies. At the home, corner of Park and Mason streets, the friends assembled and the organizations in single file marched through the house to view the remains. It was a solemn body of men viewing, cold in death, the body of him who so short a time before had been so active and cheerful a friend among them.

"The floral tributes were by far the most beautiful ever seen in this city, including the triangle of the Knights of Pythias; a broken column with a dove on the top, from the trustees of the church; a pillow with the emblematic links from the Odd Fellows; a broken wheel from the brothers and sisters; and a number of others.

"During the procession the stores on Washington street were all closed, and the Estey factory was shut down. The funeral was most largely attended of any ever held in the city, and showed the respect of the people for the man who lived a noble and upright life, honest in business, kind and obliging socially, and ever ready to lend a helping hand in time of need."

A Guilty Conscience.

Last Saturday a couple of young men stepped into Bailey & Dow's shop on Liberty St. to get something fixed about a bicycle.

The work they had done came to 60 cents, and in payment a dollar was handed out. Mr. Bailey counted out the change and laid it down on the show case.

The young men tinkered around a little and finally, being all ready to go, looked for the change. It had disappeared. No amount of searching could produce it, and it was finally given up as a mystery.

To-day what was the astonishment of Messrs. Bailey & Dow to receive a poorly written letter containing the forty cents, with a confession that it had burned the conscience of the fellow who had taken it, and consequently he could not keep it. Initials were signed to the letter but no name.

Since receiving the letter the fact is called to mind that there were other parties in the store at the time.

Burning of the Tracey Barns.

Saturday night the barns of A. F. Tracey, about two miles west of Ypsilanti, on the motor line, were burned to the ground, together with this year's crop of wheat and hay, which had just been put in, two horses, a cow and calf, and a lot of farming utensils.

The property was insured in the Aetna Ins. Co. for $1,500 which will not cover loss, it is thought.

As we are told the story Mr. Tracey went out to the barn to feed the horses, which the hired man had neglected to do, and took with him a lantern. In going up into the loft in some way he tripped and fell, and the oil spilling out filled the barn at once with flame. So rapid was the spread of the fire that he was unable to get the animals out, though he did save two of his valuable horses.

"This property was insured in the Washenaw Mutual until last fall, at which time through some misunderstanding the policy was canceled. Considering the losses the County Ins. Co. has already sustained this season, this can be considered a very fortunate affair for them.

About Closing the Hospitals.

A few days since a man from the upper peninsula came to the city with a very badly diseased eye, expecting to be treated at the University Hospital. He had just ten dollars in his pocket to pay his way a couple of weeks in the hospital, and in that time the physicians told him he would be able to return home.

When he found out that the hospitals were closed, and that he could not be treated here, his disappointment was really pitiful. And this case is only one of many that have occurred.

Would it not have been wise for the regents to have kept the hospitals opened during the summer season? We are told that last summer the expense of running was only $67 over receipts. We are also told that the hospitals have turned into the general fund some $3,000 or $4,000 profit during the school year. If these statements are true, the regents would not have been moved by a desire to economize in closing them, for taking all things together it would have paid to have kept them running.

WILL IT GO TO DETROIT?

Criticism of Regents' Action Offering To Permit Dr. Long to be Dean And Reside in Detroit.

The following communication has been handed to the Courier by a prominent business man of this place, a man who is foremost in movements looking to the prosperity of the city and its institutions. Whether the criticism be deserved or not our readers may judge.

ANN ARBOR, July 22, 1895.

Mr. Editor:

Saturday evening's Detroit Journal says the Board of Regents called Dr. Long into their meeting as he happened to be in Detroit and urged him strongly to accept the Deanship of the Homeopathic Department, offering him the inducement of allowing him to reside in Detroit. This shows which way the wind is blowing and if Ann Arbor is to lose that department it strikes the writer we might as well know it, and the sooner the matter is tested in the Courts the sooner we shall be able to know where we stand. Certainly the Department will never be made a success in Ann Arbor if presided over by a physician residing in Detroit, who is committed before accepting the position to its ultimate removal. Dr. Long has been urged by the Homeops of the state to accept the position conditional on its ultimate removal, and if he does so, either willingly or on the solicitation of the regents with this knowledge at their command, he will not be the man to make it a success here—certainly not if they break over their rule and allow him to reside in Detroit. If the Regents really made him this offer it would seem to be the first apparent lack of candor in their official treatment of this subject.

Respectfully,
ANN ARBOR.

A Mistake about Prof. Trueblood.

The statement made by the Detroit Tribune and also by the Daily Times, of this city yesterday, that the chair of Elocution formerly occupied by Prof. Thomas C. Trueblood, had not been filled by the Regents, thus indicating that the professor had been dropped from the faculty, was entirely erroneous. The mistake arose from the fact, probably, that Prof. Trueblood's position is permanent and not acted on from year to year by the Regents.

The statement should be corrected as soon as possible, for it is not only unjust to Prof. Trueblood, but will effect a large number of students who are engaged in the course that he teaches, and will desire to understand the fact that there is to be no change in this chair.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, In accordance with the law of our maker the angel of death has entered our circle and taken from our midst one of our charter members, Lady Lottie Blades; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of Arbor Hive, No. 113, L. O. T. M., sincerely mourn the loss of a true and faithful sister, who has ever ready to work for the cause of our sisterhood.

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her sorrowing mother and friends; and be it further

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the records of our Hive, and that a copy be sent to the bereaved mother, and that our charter be draped in mourning for the space of thirty days.

LINES ON THE DEATH OF OUR SISTER.

Gone to rest: Our beloved sister
Now has left this World of care,
Many friends are left behind
Who this sorrow all must share.

She was ever true and faithful
With a loving helping hand,
From our circle of noble sisters
She was first to leave our band.

We shall miss her, Our own dear sister
And her memory we shall love,
Guide us Father, So we may
Meet her, In our home above.

An Editor's Dilemma.

We heard the other day one on J. E. Beal, the well-known editor of the Ann Arbor Courier, who is now making a tour of the resorts with his charming wife. Some years ago Mr. and Mrs. Beal were touring through California, and on one occasion were mounted on treacherous bronchos, riding along narrow mountain passes. At one point where the path led along a frightful precipice the vicious brute upon which Mr. Beal was mounted began backing towards the brink, in spite of all the rider's efforts with whip and spur. Mr. Beal never gets excited, but he realized the gravity of the situation, and turning to his wife, who is a fearless and experienced horsewoman, he exclaimed "What would you do, dear?" "Well," was the quick reply, "I'd get off before he went over the edge." And had it not been for that "expert opinion" Michigan would have lost one of her most popular young editors.—Petoskey Resorter.

Must Have Been Very Careless.

The Ypsilanti Commercial relates how the lost was found in these lines: "General Ypsilanti, who gave his name to this city, turned up missing about a year ago. It was generally supposed that he had been kidnaped, and diligent search has been made for his whereabouts since his taking off. Yesterday afternoon while the new City Clerk was rummaging around in the back closet, he discovered the long lost Ypsi. hidden away among the rubbish. On the 4th of July, 1823, Major Benjamin Woodruff made a speech at a celebration here, and suggested that the town be named Ypsilanti in honor of the General of that name, who had gained a signal victory over the Turks in Greece, which resulted in the independence of that country, Greece. This picture was presented to the city by the Greek Government about 1890."

Sealed Proposals.

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk of the city of Ann Arbor, until 12 o'clock, Thursday, Aug. 1st, 1895, for lighting the streets, alleys, and public places of said city for a term of five years beginning the 31st day of December, A. D. 1895, with no less than 96 arc lights of 2000 candle power and three incandescent lamps of 65 candle power each for 265 nights all night, 365 nights all night.

265 night from twilight to 12:30 and 365 nights from twilight to 12:30.
Separate bids for each proposition.
The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

THE FAILURES CONTINUE.

The statistics of trade failures in the United States having been compiled for the first half of the current year, it is well to compare them with corresponding periods in former years, which we do, since 1890, as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Number. Data points for 1890-1894.

From all that our free trade friends have been telling us we have come to the conclusion that business had recently been so prosperous that trade failures were almost unknown in the community. After the panic of 1893 we were assured that the business atmosphere had been cleared, that all the weak business houses had gone to the wall and that, as business improved, it would be on a solid and substantial basis, with credits unimpaired and securities excellent.

What is the result? The number of trade failures throughout the country have been steadily increasing. During the first half of 1893 there were 888 more failures than during the corresponding period in 1892. In 1894 there were 289 more than in 1893; in 1895 the record has been broken with 69 more than in 1894, a total of 6,597 trade failures. This business barometer affords an interesting study. If the weak had all gone to the wall long ago, the continuation of this free trade administration must be dragging down some of the stronger houses.—American Economist.

The director of the Minnesota Agricultural Station is engaged in what seems to be an important experiment in husbandry. In pasturing sheep in the ordinary way an acre is allowed to two sheep, but Prof Shaw is feeding sixteen sheep on one acre at the experiment station and bringing them forward in excellent condition. He divides the acre by portable fences into four equal parts. Two of the plots were sown to rye last fall, and in the spring, when the rye was well out of the ground, six full grown sheep and ten lambs were turned on to one of the plots. As soon as they had grazed the rye down they were removed to the second quarter, and by the time this was eaten over thoroughly the first quarter was ready for the second time. This alternation was repeated three times, after which the first quarter was plowed and sown with a mixture of corn and rape. From the second quarter the sheep went to the third, which had been planted with oats and peas, while the fourth was sown with rape alone. The sheep have not only done well, but the flock had to be largely increased to keep down the fourth quarter. When this was exhausted the first plot was ready again. A combination of oats and sorghum is also highly recommended.

The improvement in the condition of spring wheat brought by the recent rains may bring the aggregate crop up to 475,000,000 bushels. The yield will certainly be from 25,000,000 to 50,000,000 greater than anybody a month ago expected. Corn promises to go above the 2,000,000,000 mark—to very nearly or quite reach the highest figures ever touched. However, six or seven weeks must pass before corn is entirely out of danger, and forecasts made now are subject to this risk. The country needs crops this year and it has a chance to get them in some of the leading products.

Drake, the republican candidate for governor of Iowa, is a strong man, and will draw out the full vote of the party. From near the beginning of the canvass for the nomination he was the favorite. This consideration, of course, will help him at the polls.

Tears shed over spilt milk are of no use to fill the empty pail, but the time that some people waste that way could almost buy another cow.

To watch the growth of a good flourishing crop or thrifty animal is the true farmer's most solid pleasure, while the man who grows poor products gets neither pleasure nor profit.

Don't be afraid that the world will not appreciate you if you stay on the farm. Your difficulty will be not to find a chance to use your ability, but rather to find ability to use your chances.

"A righteous judgment" is the general verdict of the people in the verdicts rendered by the juries in the Dr. Seaman murder case of Detroit, and the Parmlee murder of Grand Traverse.

It is now unlawful to employ any but American citizens on public work in Pennsylvania. The law imposing this condition was passed at the instance of the labor organizations, and its expected effect is an increase of wages on account of the diminished number of men who can be hired.

Professor Burrill of the University of Illinois, says that the water requirements of a tree in full leaf in warm weather are astonishingly great. A good sized apple tree, having 25,000 feet of evaporating surface, which is by no means a large estimate, will give off 31,200 ounces per day, or substantially 205 gallons.

The trouble with Russia's sphere of influence at present is that it stretches from the Black Sea to Corea, and, as Mr. Lincoln said, the animal must be pretty thin somewhere. China has been forced to make the loan desired by Russia, but Bulgaria is restless because unrecognized, and Japan, while silent, is not intimidated.

During the first half of the current year 201 new textile mills were built in this country, against 116 in the first half of 1894, mostly in the southern states. These new enterprises mean that the idea of manufacturing cotton goods in the section where the raw material is produced can not be prevented from making its way and greatly increasing the prosperity of the south.

The supreme court of Louisiana has decided that a 3-year-old child can not be guilty of contributory negligence in the sense of being in part responsible for injury by a street car. That is to say, it holds that such a child is legally incapable, and its actions cannot furnish any excuse for lack of extraordinary care and watchfulness on the part of the employes of a railroad company.

A woman who has traveled largely in Japan mentioned in the course of a lecture the fact that the Japanese language does not contain an impolite word, hence there is no swearing in that happy land. She also stated that osculation was an unknown pleasure. As the audience dispersed, commenting favorably upon different points, an old woman remarked loud enough to be heard: "Well, for my part, I prefer a country where they kiss and cuss."

It appears from the official statistics that during the present crop year Europe has imported 12,768,000 bushels less of wheat from the United States than in the corresponding period of the preceding year, while there has been a decided increase of imports from Russia, India, Australasia and Argentina. This is not encouraging to our wheat-growers, and does not warrant much speculation based on the crop conditions of this country alone.

Those who are engaged in fish culture complain that many streams are rendered uninhabitable for food and game fish by the waste and chemicals discharged by manufacturing establishments. Fortunately, the waste products in nearly all forms of manufacture are found to be too valuable to throw away, and chemists will discover a better use for the "matter in the wrong place" which now poisons waters that were once clear and beautiful.

Birmingham, England, which is testing many advanced municipal ideas, has established a city public house in the suburbs, where the liquors are bought by the corporation and retailed by a manager who has no interest in the amount sold. The morning beer limit for a man is one quart and the evening limit two quarts. This allowance is liberal enough to escape the standing malediction placed on the h'eyes of any English official who would rob a poor man of his beer.

The hollow alliance of Russia, France and Germany on Asiatic affairs went to pieces as soon as Germany discovered that her partners were playing false, and it seems that China, after all, will not go sorrowing by borrowing money from Russia. The authorities at Peking prefer to borrow the indemnity through English influence, and Germany approves of the movement. Russia and France now stand alone on the Eastern question, and the array of the powers on the other side is an assurance that neither China nor Japan has anything serious to fear at present from Russian aggression.

Progress that is slow and sure is greatly undervalued in the rush and bustle of affairs in this country. That is one reason why the young man leaves the farm.

There are only fifteen physicians practicing in Muskegon now, while three years ago there were 43. The change in water supply has reduced the rate of sickness 70 per cent.

"Chambers' Journal" states that the United States has seventy citizens with an average wealth of $37,500,000 each, and adds that the brain reels before such figures. It is evident that England will be distanced unless it can largely increase its supply of marriageable Dukes.

In giving the criminal news in the dailies it is noticed that persons are sometimes arrested under section 9314 of Howell's Annotated Statutes. As this section has nine distinct headings under which charges can be brought, it leaves the leader at a loss, if he cares anything about it, to know whether it is 9314 a, b, c, d, e, f, g, h or i.

June 27, 1895.

I do advocate a collegiate education because it is absolutely necessary to qualify young men to follow such vocations as those of clergymen, physicians, surgeons, statesmen and editors, and engage in other literary pursuits; and the training of the mind which the classics give is also beneficial for architects, civil engineers and the higher grade of politicians, as well as for army and navy officers. This is a broad field which I advocate to be compassed by college educated men. For the counting house the best education to fit a young man in my judgment is a good common English education, comprising a thorough knowledge of grammar, spelling, arithmetic, history, geography, book-keeping and penmanship. Besides the training mentioned above a boy while at school should be taught to rigidly tell the truth, as that is a live issue and will stand him in better than the dead languages for a business life. Truth is the foundation of honesty in a boy's career. It must be remembered that when a boy enters a merchant's or banker's office at 16, it requires at least four years for him to get through the various departments and obtain a full knowledge of the business. The time is occupied by the young clerk in getting this knowledge through experience in a practical way, precisely as a boy does who obtains a knowledge of the higher branches of education during his four years at college to fit him for one of the professions. The counting-room, therefore, is simply a business school training. A clerk in an office is better able to gain a business education if he commences as a boy, as at that time he is subservient and anxious for promotion. He learns to be persevering, industrious and self-reliant. He is not likely to have a full development of these qualities for business work unless he starts at the lowest step of the ladder as a junior clerk in an office. Each promotion serves to fire his ambition and stimulate him to increased efforts. A college graduate at 22 or 24 years of age, who has reached the growth of manhood and manhood's development generally, is not unlikely to be so hemmed in by pride and self-importance as to unfit him for taking a position in a business office and commence by doing boy's work. If he is given a position over the heads of others in a large office it at once creates discontent among the other clerks and ends in demoralization. The clerks of my office are of my own training. They start at 16 years of age. After they have been doing boy's work for a year or so I am enabled to see by close observation what their qualifications are. I then assign them to the work of different departments, and they are promoted from time to time and salaries increased according to merit. If I should take, for instance, a college-educated young man and put him in a position in my office such as would be agreeable to him and due to his education, it would upset my entire machinery and result in the resignation of 20 or 30 younger clerks in the establishment, as it would be regarded by them as unjust treatment, not in accordance with "civil service reform." In England it is customary for people of means to pay a business establishment a stipulated sum annually for educating their sons for business. I should like to see the young man in this country who would go into a counting-room and be willing to work on such terms, but it is quite usual in Europe. It is plain to be seen that such a system only tends to widen the gulf between classes, and put into execution here would speedily result in great demoralization amongst junior clerks: in fact they would not tolerate it. Under such a system, however, a collegiate educated young man would be able to go into a merchant's or banker's office and would be given, on account of the money consideration, a position more in accord with the elevated feelings with which his higher education has naturally imbued him. He would really occupy a position, in comparison with the other clerks, of a parlor boarder. Such distinctions are against the whole American spirit and therefore could not prevail here. HENRY CLEWS.

THIS IN NEW YORK.

Countryman Put Twelve Gothamites to Shame in a Street Car.

There were thirteen men of us holding down seats in a Fourth avenue car the other day, while four women who couldn't get seats were hanging to the straps, when a man at the front end of the car, who had been busy with the contents of his grip, suddenly rose up and asked one of the women to accept his seat, says the Detroit Free Press. In reply to her "thanks!" he said: "Not at all, ma'am—not at all. I'm sorry I didn't offer it before. Hope you will excuse me, ma'am."

"I am not a New Yorker, ma'am. No, I don't live here. You suspected as much, I presume?" She looked up curiously, but didn't reply, and he glanced around the car and continued: "I'm what you folks call a provincial, you know—live out in a country town. We are hayseeds out there, and have rustic ways. For instance, you would never see twelve of our men occupying seats in a street car while three ladies had to stand up. Regular country style that is, but we can't help it."

"We've got a few professional loafers, of course, but I can't remember when one of them kept his seat and obliged a lady to stand. Twelve men comfortably sitting down and three women lurching around as they hang to the straps! It's New York, you know, and not at all queer to you; but I must confess—" I do not know what he confessed to. I rose up and went out and dropped off the car, and was followed by eleven others, and when the car had passed we went into caucus and bound each other by a solemn oath to punch that man's head at the peril of our lives if we ever ran across him again.

How Would It Look with Bloomers?

A feminine reformer wants a revival of the old-fashioned sunbonnet. "I do wish," she remarked, "that I could get about twenty women to join me in bringing the sunbonnet into popularity again. Many women in this city do their own marketing, and how absurd they look toggled out in flowers and ribbons, in silks and laces; how much more appropriate would be the old-fashioned sunbonnet. A pretty woman always looks prettier in a dainty white sunbonnet than in anything else, and what a picturesque feature of our markets it would become if our attractive society dames would return to the pretty sunbonnets, too. If one wise woman would only 'make the break' how soon our streets would be filled with sweet, chattering schoolgirls in the sweet, old-fashioned sunbonnet. The sunbonnet must have been a southern invention. I wish southern women would revive it."

A SUCCESSFUL MAN.

Inman's Thorough Knowledge of Southern Minerals.

Conspicuous among the many men who have moved from the south and west to New York and have made fortunes, is John H. Inman, now the moving spirit in half a dozen railroads and mining and manufacturing enterprises in the south and southwest, and who is ranked as one of New York's millionaires. When John H. Inman came from the south to New York less than a score of years ago he was by no means a capitalist. But he had what New York capitalists wanted and was willing to invest in, and that was thorough and expert knowledge of the tremendous natural mineral and other resources of the southern and southwestern states, more especially Georgia, Alabama, West Virginia and Tennessee, says an exchange. Mr. Inman was one of the first to see the financial mine that lay ready for men with sufficient brains and some capital to open up. He made a strong impression on northern capitalists and easily secured what was needed to start the enterprises he had in mind. All this was not so many years ago, but Inman's success was immediate and rapid, so that he is now rated among New York's solid men. Like most of the southern men who have come to New York he has bothered little with politics, but has bent all his energies to building up a fortune. In this he has succeeded more than he expected or hoped. True, he was named one of the commission that is trying to give New York a practical and effective system of rapid transit. But this is not considered a political position. It is rather an onerous public duty. It would be hard to say how many enterprises Mr. Inman is identified with.—He is a tremendous worker, as most successful men are. In appearance he is tall, broad-shouldered, with a strong face and iron-gray hair and beard. He is a strong believer in the future of the south and the southwest, and he has sound reasons for his belief, in the shape of a fortune made out of that territory.

to recover, the young woman who is taking Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

In maidenhood, womanhood, widowhood and motherhood the "Prescription" is a supporting tonic and a nervine that's peculiarly adapted to her needs, regulating and curing the derangements of the sex. Why is it so many women owe their beauty to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? Because beauty of form and face radiate from the common center—health. The best bodily condition results from good food, fresh air and exercise coupled with the judicious use of the "Prescription."

"FALLING OF WOMB."

Mrs. FRANK CAMPFIELD, of East Dickinson, Franklin Co., N. My troubles were of the womb—inflammatory and bearing-down sensations and the doctors all said, they could not cure me. Twelve bottles of Dr. Pierce's wonderful Favorite Prescription has cured me."

The Building-Up

Powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are remarkable.

By purifying and enriching the blood and giving an appetite it makes you feel strong and capable of endurance. This is just what is needed at this season. The following is from Rev. Wm. Paddock, Bronson, Mich., formerly pastor of the First M. E. Church at Osseo, Mich.: "I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and received much help from it. I am very thankful for the building up effects Hood's Sarsaparilla has had in my case, and shall continue to take it." Rev. WILLIAM PADDOCK, Bronson, Mich.

A Book for Young Men.

An immeasurable amount of suffering and injury to the human race, is due to the ignorant violation of physiological laws by the youth of our land. Ruinous practices are indulged in, through ignorance of the inevitable injury to constitution and health which surely follows. By every young man, the divine injunction, "Know Thyself," should be well heeded. To assist such in acquiring a knowledge of themselves and of how to preserve health, and to shun those pernicious and most destructive practices, to which so many fall victims, as well as to reclaim and point out the means of relief and cure to any who may have unwittingly violated Nature's laws, and who are already suffering the dire consequences, an association of medical gentlemen have carefully prepared a little book which is replete with useful information to every young man. It will be sent to any address, securely sealed from observation in a plain envelope, by the World's Dispensary Medical Association of 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of ten cents in stamps (for postage), if enclosed with this notice.

Did You Ever Think

That you cannot be well unless you have pure, rich blood? If you are weak, tired, languid and all run down, it is because your blood is impoverished and lacks vitality. These troubles may be overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla because Hood's Sarsaparilla makes pure, rich blood. It is, in truth the great blood purifier.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby adding Nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at The Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's drug store and Geo. J. Hutzel's Water Back!

A very important invention which will be hailed with delight by every body using a stove or range for hot water circulation. After years of experience we have succeeded in producing a simple and perfect WATER BACK.

It overcomes all the present troubles of extracting lime and other sediments which accumulate in water backs, often making them useless and in great many instances becoming dangerous.

The outlay of dollars is reduced to dimes. No household using a range can afford to be without it.

No more trouble with using city water for hot water circulation.

Can be used in any stove. Ask your stove dealer for Hutzel's Water Back.

Mason & Davis Co's. ranges for sale at C. Eberbach are provided with our improvement.

THE G. A. R.'S GETTING READY

To Attend the Next National Encampment, to be Held in Louisville, Ky. in September.

A number of our citizens who were engaged in the War of the Rebellion, and went down South with guns, ready to shoot, are already making preparation to attend the next national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which is to be held in the city of Louisville, Ky., on the 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th of September next, but this time their mission is more peaceful and they will rejoice to receive their old enemies with the open arms of friendship. Quite a number have engaged their rooms and are looking forward to the event with great expectations.

The announcement has been made that the "Headquarters train" will pass through this city from Owosso, probably on Sunday the 8th, on the T., A. A. & N. M. R. R., to Toledo. From that city they will go by the C., H. & D. R. R. to Columbus, and the balance of the way by the Baltimore & Ohio. The route laid out is one that is said to be very pleasant, and as far as can be learned, gives satisfaction among the comrades interested.

Headquarters for all Michigan troops will be at the Louisville Hotel.

On the 18th of September President Cleveland accompanied by Secretary of War Herbert and other high officials and distinguished citizens of the republic, will gather on the battle field of Chickamauga, to establish the lines of battle, and dedicate the monuments erected to the various regiments engaged in that fierce battle.

It is expected that not only will there be a great gathering of Federal soldiers but that the Confederates, both rank file, will also be present in large numbers. Many of the "Yanks" and "Johnnies" will meet for the first time since that eventful day when they were rushing at each other with deadly weapons, seeking each other's lives. Now they will rush into each other's arms as brothers of a great nation, saved by the superior strength both in cause and numbers of the soldiers of a republic founded on the eternal principles of freedom and justice.

There were five Michigan regiments engaged in the battle of Chickamauga, and the last legislature appropriated $1,000, making about $200 for each regiment, to pay the expenses of such old soldiers as might not be able to pay their own way to this gathering.

It was in that battle that the regiment commanded by Col. Henry S. Dean of this city was cut to pieces and captured by the enemy, and the Colonel was a member of the commission that located the monuments for the Michigan regiments.

It is needless to say that all the old boys will desire to attend this great and memorable gathering of old soldiers and dignitaries, and as excursion rates have already been advertised to take them from Louisville at a merely nominal figure, it is probable that those who go from here will extend their journey to that place.

The Smiths are Ahead Here.

A paragraph is going the rounds of the papers to the effect that in the English speaking nations one person in 73 is named Smith, one in 76 Jones, one in 115 Williams, one in 148 Taylor, one in 162 Davis, and one in 174 Brown. Of course, taking the whole country together, that may be the average, but here in Ann Arbor, taking the directory to figure from, we find that we have more Smiths, with the assistance of the German Schmidt and its variations, than any other name, and that the average is one to every 143 persons. Next comes Brown, which by counting in the Brauns average one to every 200 persons. The Taylors average one to every 300; the Joneses one to every 400; the Williams number only one to every 500; while the Davis family count up only one to every 1,000. Were it not for the Germans to help out on the Smiths and Browns here, the average of these two names would be only about the same as the Taylors, one to every 300.

BOARD OF REGENTS MEET.

What Business They Transacted at Detroit Yesterday.

The Board of Regents met in Detroit Thursday. There were present Regents Butterfield, Hebard, Barbour, Cocker, Cook, Dean and Fletcher, President Angell and Secretary Wade.

The board made the following appointments of lecturers:

Constitutional law and constitutional history, advanced course, Andrew C. McLaughlin, A.B., LL.B. Interstate commerce, Thomas M. Cooley, LL.D. Admiralty, Henry H. Swan, A.M., judge of the United States District Court. Toxicology and its legal relations, Victor C. Vaughan, Ph.D. Medical jurisprudence, Marshall D. Ewell, LL.D. Insurance, Melville M. Bigelow, Ph.D. Mining law, John B. Clayberg, LL.D. Comparative constitutional law, Richard Hudson, A.M. Patent law, George H. Lathrop, Ph.D. The railroad problem, Henry C. Adams, Ph.D. Copyright law, Frank F. Revel, A.B.

The board appointed the following named assistants for the chemical laboratory for the year 1895-6:

Assistant in qualitative chemistry, Charlton B. Ross, Ph.B., at a salary of $200, in place of E. R. Miller, of the class of '94, who got the same amount last year, Herman E. Brown, at a salary of $200, in place of P. F. Trowbridge, of the class of '94, who received $250 last year, George Wagner, Ph.C., at a salary of $200, in place of James Seymour, of the class of '94, who received $196 last year; assistant in pharmacy, James Seymour, Ph.C., at a salary of $200 per year in place of J. L. Washburn, of the class of '94, who got $150 last year.

Dean Hutchins was asked to make recommendations for the new instructor to be appointed. The matter of providing three assistants in the law library was postponed until the next meeting.

The board decided that the dean of the new engineering department, Charles E. Greene, should be given an assistant at a salary of $300 a year, assistant yet to be named.

The librarian asked the board to enact a rule that everyone should leave the library at closing hour. The librarian has had trouble with some of the professors at closing time heretofore and found it difficult to get them out. The board enacted the rule as requested.

The board left it with the secretary to see that a sidewalk was laid in front of the university property in West Detroit, on Romaine street, between Cavalry and Campbell streets.

Plans were received for the proposed woman's gymnasium, to cost $50,000. The plans call for reading, waiting, reception and cloak room, a hall for the Woman's League, shower bath and locker rooms and a fully equipped gymnasium. The plans were drawn in the East. Another set is to arrive in a few days. The board authorized the committee on buildings and grounds to adopt a plan for the building, to receive bids and use their judgment about proceeding to lay the foundation and erecting the building.

When the board adjourned it was for the summer, the next meeting to occur in September.

Cold Dishes For Hot Weather.

Potted Salmon. Split, scale, and clean the salmon, but do not wash; rub with salt, and drain off the moisture; season with pounded mace, cloves, black pepper, and cayenne pepper. Cut the salmon into small pieces, lay them in a pan and cover with melted butter. Bake, drain from the fat, put the pieces into pots and cover with clarified butter.

Potted Salmon. Wash and open 2 pickled herrings; remove the meat from the bones, being careful not to break the skin, and keeping the head, tail, and fins on it; mince the fish with the breast of a chicken, the yolks of 2 hard boiled eggs, an onion, a boned anchovy, a little grated ham or tongue; season with oil, vinegar, red pepper, and salt; fill up the herring-skins so that they may look plump, and shape carefully. Garnish with parsley, and serve with mustard.

Salmon Jelly. Break the salmon into flakes; season with salt, nutmeg, salt, and pepper; fill a mould with alternate layers of the salmon and aspic jelly. Turn out on a flat dish, and garnish with lettuce leaves and hard boiled eggs.—Harpers' Bazar.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had Consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida st., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching Consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in Coughs and Colds. He Knew His Business.

"You are the man!" he said, as he leaned forward in the street car and pointed his finger to the complacent and self-satisfied looking passenger opposite—"you are the man who predicted last October that we would have a mild winter!"

"Yes, I did," replied the man. "But we had a terrible winter instead!"

"Yes."

"And you are no prophet."

"No."

"Then why, sir—why did you make such a prediction?"

"As a matter of business. I am in the coal trade, and it was my duty to keep people from running off to Florida to escape a hard winter!"

"But, sir, but—"

"Oh! we shall have a long, hot summer, and if you want fly-screens please call around! I am going into that line for the season!"—Detroit Herald.

A Little Nature Left.

"Unnatural child," moaned the old man. She wept. "Have you made up your mind to go on the stage?" he fiercely demanded. "No, father," she faltered. "The part does not call for it." "Forgive me, You!" He gathered her to his bosom. "—are not quite so unnatural as I thought."—Detroit Tribune.

Musical Item.

Mrs. Neighborly—What are you going to make out of your son? Mrs. Fondmother—We are going to make a great piano player out of him. "How far has he got?" "He hasn't commenced to take lessons yet, but we are letting his hair grow."

A Turkish Bath.

Mrs. Binkle (alarmed in the early morning by the furious barking of the dog in the backyard)—Ruffian! brigand! be off, or I'll call the police! Mr. Binkle (who has been to a masquerade and got full)—Don't be f-fraid, Mrs. Binkle. It's me. Played Turk at 'er (his) Masquerade, an' thought I'd take 'er Turk's bath!

His Depressing Thought.

He had been silent in thought for some time. At length he heaved a sigh, which moved his friend to inquire what the trouble was. "This world ain't run right," he answered. "Why, you ought to be happy. You've been away enjoying yourself, I understand." "Yes, I've been away, but I don't see much enjoyment—not in a world where the fish are so shy about bitin' an' the mosquitoes so eternally willin'."—Washington Star.

The Congregation Inferred.

When the bellows gave out and the organist in a Rockland church was unable to get anything but a few groans from the instrument, and the pastor remarked: "The organist has failed us at a vital moment; let us rise and sing 'Praise God, from whom all blessings flow.'" some of the people wondered just what he meant.—Lewiston Evening Journal.

For Humanity.

"What may I do for humanity?" Her bosom heaved with the great emotions that filled her heart. "I would save lives," she cried, impetuously. She was somewhat uncertain whether she would achieve more by becoming an army nurse or by having a trolley car fender put on her bicycle.—Detroit Tribune.

Sifters.

The busiest poet will have his idyl moments. A short method of measuring timber is by saw-logarithms. Though a man may not like business, he should be business-like. It is no wonder college men become fast. They indulge in a rush so often. Fish, as a rule, drink water, but a shark doesn't object to a nip occasionally. It is a sad fate for the self-made man to be tied for life to the tailor-made girl. The angler first lies in wait for his catch and then lies in weight of his catch. The time is here when the family man who does not know how to beat carpet will have an opportunity to learn. The babble of an infant may be the language of the angels, but without an interpreter it sounds like the sibilant sob of a mush kettle. The loafer naturally gets the credit of being an amiable person. He has time to listen to everybody's story and is never in a hurry. A hotel-keeper in Florida offers a reward of $5 for the best treatise on "How to Make Outdoor Life Attractive to the Mosquito."

"These are hard times," sighed the young collector of bills; "every place I went today I was requested to call again, but one, and that was when I dropped in to see my girl."

A well-known lawyer declared one day at a dinner that the biggest thing he had ever done was to cross-examine a man until he did not know whether he was married or not.

If people could only "bear one another's burdens," as the scripture commands, the world would be happier. Other people's burdens are always so much lighter than our own.

"The farmer," says an exchange, "is the most independent man on earth." Just so. See how he works all summer and steps into a bank in the fall and pays the interest on the mortgage.—Texas Siftings.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO

IT'S INJURIOUS TO STOP SUDDENLY and don't be imposed upon by buying a remedy that requires you to do so, as it is nothing more than a substitute. In the sudden stoppage of tobacco you must have some stimulant, and in most cases, the effect of the stimulant, be it opium, morphine, or other opiates, leaves a far worse habit contracted. Ask your druggist about BACO-CURO. It is purely vegetable. You do not have to stop using tobacco with BACO-CURO. It will notify you when to stop and your desire for tobacco will cease. Your system will be as free from nicotine as the day before you took your first chew or smoke. An iron clad written guarantee to absolutely cure the tobacco habit in all its forms, or money refunded. Price $1.00 per box or 3 boxes (30 days treatment and guaranteed cure), $2.50. For sale by all druggists or will be sent by mail upon receipt of price. SEND SIX TWO CENT STAMPS FOR SAMPLE BOX. Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Keely Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured! I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco-Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it.

Yours truly,
C. W. HORNICK.

The government will not print any more envelopes for firms or individuals after the present contract expires and by a recent ruling all uncalled for letters will be held thirty days unless return directions naming a shorter time are given on the envelope. Printed envelopes, such as every one should use, are furnished very cheaply and promptly at the Courier office.

Every editor of the newspaper thinks he has a hard time of it, but the following, clipped from a Tennessee paper, downs them all: "We are mad! Darn the people! How can they expect us, out here, twelve miles from a railroad, twenty-five miles from a river, millions of miles from heaven, about two miles from the devil, and about two hundred yards from a whiskey shop, to get out a lively newspaper?"

Jessie Wisler, of Antrim county, lays claim to the title of the potato king through being the largest planter of potatoes in the state. He has 140 acres planted to potatoes this year. Mr. Wisler markets his own crop, the points of his shipments extending from Maine to Texas. Of late he has given much attention to the development and production of special seed varieties for other localities and in this purpose he has been very successful.

An exchange says: When the busy blooming bloomers are universally the go, how will tailors press creases in them, I should like to know? When the baby's head is nodding and wants to take a nap, how can mama lull her in a bifurcated lap? How can Bridget shoo the chickens with no skirt to flap and fling, when the creatures go a grubbing in the garden in the spring? But the question most annoying that our speculations catch: Can she vie with men in action when she goes to strike a match?

Dundee Reporter: "In supreme court, Saturday, a decision was rendered in the case Dennison vs. Allen, reversing the decision of Judge Kinne and the circuit court of this county, therefore deciding in favor of defendant. This is the suit growing out of the construction of the Bear Swamp Extension drain in Milan township. After the construction of the drain many persons assessed for taxes therefor opposed payment of same upon alleged irregularities in proceedings, paid their taxes under protest and brought suit against Treasurer Allen for recovery of same. By this course and action of circuit court the parties doing the work upon the drain were prevented from receiving their just dues for their work. Those claims will probably now be paid in full."

THE SECRET OF BEAUTY IS Cuticura SOAP

The most effective skin purifying and beautifying soap in the world. It is the only preventive of pimples, blackheads, red, rough, and oily skin, red, rough hands with shapeless nails, dry, thin, and falling hair, and simple baby blemishes. It is so because it strikes at the cause of most complexional disfigurements, viz., THE CLOGGED, IRRITATED, INFLAMED, OVERWORKED, OR SLOTTISH PORE.

FOR FACIAL BLEMISHES
rashes, freckles, bites and stings of insects, irritations, yellow, oily, and mothy skins, chafings, and undue perspiration. CUTICURA SOAP, because of its delicate medication, is the most soothing, cooling, purifying, and healing application, as well as being beyond all comparison the purest, sweetest, and most refreshing of toilet, bath, and nursery soaps. Sale greater than combined sales of all other skin and complexion soaps.

Sold throughout the world. Price, 25c. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CO., Sole Props., Boston. "All about the Skin, Scalp, and Hair," free.

MISLEADING THEORIES.

The cost of the raw material the manufactured article was a theme of discussion in the Presidential campaign of 1892 among the advocates of the so-called reform Tariff. Facts, ascertained by investigation, show that such cost is very small in proportion to the other expenses. For illustration, the price of an elaborately made article of household furniture may be $100 to $150, yet the raw material used in the same may cost $12 to $15. This is equally true of a piano costing from $300 to $800; the raw material may cost $25 to $30. In these cases the cost of the material is estimated as it reaches the hands of the workmen and not an iron ore in the mine or wood in the forest. Its great expense is in the wages of the workmen who procure it.

Mr. Cleveland, himself, laid great stress upon the free admission of iron ore and coal and was specially earnest for wool to be admitted free of duty. Take an illustration: a gentleman's suit of fine broad cloth weighs, with the trimmings, etc., from 6½ to 7½ pounds; the cloth itself does not weigh more than 6 or 6½ pounds. Suppose an American manufacturer buys the best quality of merino wool to use in making his cloth, and in order to cover the wastage he buys 10 pounds of the wool. The McKinley bill imposed a duty of 11 cents a pound on that class of wool. From this it follows that each gentleman's broadcloth suit costs $1.10 more money because of the duty. Now intervenes one type of statesmanship, which, in order that, perhaps, a half million of gentlemen may each obtain a suit of broadcloth $1.10 cheaper, all wool is admitted free of duty. In consequence the sheep raising industry of the United States, which is estimated in value to be nearly $100,000,000, is depreciated about one-half.—American Economist.

Monday's Chicago Inter Ocean has reports from the Dakotas, Minnesota and Illinois, all to the effect that the crops are to a great extent failures. The wheat crop in the Dakotas is full of smut and rust, and the rain and hail has destroyed much of the corn crop in Illinois. A private letter to the writer from Grand Forks, N. D., says: "Everything here is on the verge of a boom, and if good weather continues the Dakotas will harvest the largest crop in their history. The wheat is very heavy, in some places too heavy. The farmers will begin cutting in about three weeks, and if the market goes up—and it looks very much like it—this country will be right on the band wagon, to use the slang of the day."

Hon. James O'Donnell, of Jackson, is announced as Speaker of the Day at a big Labor Day celebration, to be held in Owosso Sept. 2d. If anyone thinks James is sleeping they are wonderfully mistaken.

The Boston Globe of July 15, devotes sixteen pages to the Christian Endeavor Convention. It gives pictures purporting to be types of maidens from different states, which are pictures drawn from the artists' imagination. The maid from Michigan is represented as a demure, insipid looking girl. The artist evidently did not meet her.

There were about forty-five men in line at the inspection of Company A. Wednesday, and Maj. Howell complimented the boys on the manner in which they performed their duties as soldiers, especially was he pleased with their sentinel duty. He also found the arms and accoutrements all in first class condition, and Capt. Fisher feels very proud of it. This company will be at the head of the list in the State encampment, just watch the prediction.

Now Uncle Samuel will you or some of your servants please arise and explain?

Frank J. Lee, a prominent and well known dental student, whose home is at Benton Harbor died at that place Sunday. He was a successful student and appeared the very embodiment of health and vitality. During the past year he underwent a slight operation at the hospital and it is probable that he never thoroughly recovered from this. He would have graduated in 1896 if he had lived.

Sheriff Judson picked up a man on the street Saturday morning, giving his name as E. C. Fuller, who is wanted in Ingham Co. on a charge of horse stealing, and for whom a reward of $35 is offered. We understand that he told the Sheriff where to find the horse, which had been left at a stable in Lansing. It is also thought that this same man is wanted in Chicago for diamond stealing, and a telegram has been sent there to ascertain whether or not such is the fact. At any rate the fine will probably net Sheriff Judson $35.

The following excellent paragraph is going the rounds of the press: "Backward, turn backward, oh, time in thy flight, feed me on gruel again just for to-night. I am so weary of sole leather steak, petrified doughnuts and vulcanized cake; oysters that sleep in the watery bath; and butter as strong as Goliath of Gath; Weary of paying for what I can't eat, chewing up rubber and calling it meat. Backward, turn backward, for weary I am! Give me a whack at my grandmother's jam; Let me drink milk that has never been skimmed; let me eat butter whose hair has been trimmed; let me once more have an old fashioned pie, and then I will be willing to curl up and die."

The patience of people with the slowness of plumbers, is something really astonishing at times. There is a house in the 6th ward where the plumbers started in before vacation to connect the water closet with the sewer. Yesterday the lady of the house, getting tired of the debris lying about all the time, asked one of the workmen—the "workmen" on the job, by the way, consist of two young boys, whose "work" is inspected once a week or so by the boss—how much longer it would take to complete the job. "It will take us fully a month, Missus," was the encouraging answer. And the "Missus" thinks if she is obliged to wait until the job is completed before she takes her vacation, that she might as well give it up entirely. It might not be out of place to state that the entire job, if put in the hands of a competent man to do, would not take him to exceed a week, and perhaps not over three days.

"Are you going to Detroit Thursday, on the 85c excursion?" "You bet I am," is the universal question and answer of people on the street. The Y. M. C. A. will have a big crowd that day if the weather is pleasant.

Bach & Butler have purchased a horse of Samuel Krause, and a road wagon of J. T. Jacobs, and are now prepared to hustle people more than ever. They rented an even dozen houses last week, which is a good indication.

On Saturday morning July 20th, Frederick, son of Mrs. Sarah Staebler, of W. Liberty street, died at the home of his mother, aged 18 years. He had been ill only a couple of weeks, with brain fever. Funeral services were held this afternoon at Zion church at 2:30 o'clock, and remains interred in Forest Hill cemetery.

Mary Henry, aged 18 years, died at the home of her mother on Spring St., Saturday, of inflammation of the bowels. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon from the residence and interment was in the city cemetery on the northside. The deceased's father, George Henry, was killed in the main sewer trench a year ago last winter.

Chas. D. Bigham, of 72½ N. Main st., went home last Saturday night, and it being so warm and oppressive he sat down in a chair on the stoop to keep cool. Along about half past one o'clock he fell out of the chair on to the floor and thence to the ground. In sleeping with his head inclined upon one side the nerves or cords of the neck became somewhat rigid, and the sudden fall it is thought snapped some of them in two, as he has suffered great agony ever since, so much so that yesterday he begged of his family and the physician to put an end to his life. Whether he will recover or not the physicians think very doubtful.

It is wonderful how far kindness will go to overcome the native wildness of the animal creation. In some parts of the city, especially on Hill street and Washtenaw ave., where the old oaks still stand, the grey squirrels delight to dwell and hold high carnival trooping over the beautiful lawns in quest of food which they often find near the houses where kind people delight to feed them, especially their favorite nuts, and they will actually take the food out of one's hand. At one house they have their play ground all over the roof, but one large fellow ventured too far, went down the water spout the other day to learn what was in it, and fetched up in the cistern a drowned squirrel.

BIG PROFITS ON SMALL INVESTMENTS.

Returning property will make many rich, but nowhere can they make so much within a short time as by successful speculation in Grain, Provisions and Stock.

$10.00 FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED can be made by our Systematic Plan of Speculation originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system. It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand. It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading. Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time. WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successful speculation and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE. Our Manual explains margin trading fully. CITIZENSHIP AND THE SCHOOL

First Lecture Before the Students of the Summer School.

A MAGNIFICENT ADDRESS.

Professor Thomas Speaks to the Students on the True Preparation for Citizenship.

Room 24 was comfortably filled last night at the opening lecture of the summer school course and those who were present were treated to a splendid address on "Citizenship and the School," by Professor Calvin Thomas. The address occupied about forty minutes in delivery and is well worth reproduction. Our limited space however, will not admit of more than brief extracts, and these we give below.

The foundations of our public school system were laid by men who had an abiding faith in the saving power of knowledge. Knowledge to them was the bulwark of popular liberty. No tax is paid more willingly than that paid for the support of our schools. The people feel that our schools somehow hold in keeping the welfare of the community and of the republic.

Is this feeling well-founded? Is popular education, considered as a promoter of "good government and the happiness of mankind," actually doing what was expected of it by the fathers? If not where lies the difficulty? President Eliot, of Harvard, discussed this question in The Forum of December, 1892, under the title "Wherein Popular Education has Failed." Professor Thomas proceeds to discuss the subject in hand with direct reference to the scholarly paper of President Eliot.

President Eliot began by saying that there is serious and general disappointment at the results of popular education. "If general education does not promote general contentment it does not promote public happiness." One of the effects of education, to his mind, should be to make people think and act more reasonably. There is no evidence of increasing rationality among the mass of the people. They do not act upon sober reflection. Education has not promoted equality, it has not done away with cruel war.

The question before us now is, granting the existence of these evils, do these constitute a valid indictment of our system of public instruction? Are we on the wrong track in our confidence in popular education or did people in times past form unreasonable expectations with regard to it?

In the first place contentment is not the summum bonum. Contentment means stagnation. Civilization is the outgrowth of man's uneasiness. I am not playing upon words. It is literally true, as Carlyle says, that man's greatness grows out of his unhappiness. The aim of our social effort is not happiness, but welfare. That people are discontented is no sign that popular education has failed. All the uneasiness we witness is but a sign of healthy life. No doubt many of the agitations we observe are ill-judged and chimerical, but the discontent from which all these spring is not in itself a thing to be deplored. There is danger to-day that the children of the well-to-do may look upon their school and college course as a fashionable routine devised to give them a social standing and so enable them to be happy. Life is to be enjoyed, but the true enjoyment comes through unselfish devotion to some cause felt to be more important than one's personal pleasure.

There is a real though slow increase in rationality. Is it not possible, after all, to overestimate the importance of average life and citizenship of the ability to reason correctly from facts? President Eliot deprecates the fact that in the schools, both lower and higher, more attention is not given to the observational studies in order to develop in the student reasoning power "the all important object of education." I am a hearty friend of scientific education, but I doubt whether any scientific training that can possibly be given in school will rapidly revolutionize popular modes of thinking and acting.

Most of the reasoning done by the average man is not reasoning from facts which he can verify, but from premises which he can not verify, even if he so desired. They are given him by inherited traditions, by the social tendencies of the time, by the doctrines of his church or party and by his social instincts. The education which will protect us from believing in exploded superstitions, therefore, is simply that education which will bring us in every possible way into fullest sympathy with the intellectual life of our own time.

When all has been done that can be done by means of school training to develop the power of reasoning accurately from facts, there will still be large room for differences of opinion upon fundamental premises which can not be settled by an appeal to any facts within reach.

In conclusion the Professor said that if popular education has hitherto failed to produce in full measure the results it ought to produce, the source of the failure is to be sought in the moral rather than in the purely intellectual sphere of our public instruction. A hearty respect for the Golden Rule coupled with a will to live by it, is worth more to the community as an attribute of average citizenship, than is any skill in argumentation. The problem is a difficult one. Help must come from the direct influence of the teacher's personality upon the character of the growing child. We want teachers who know something of the psychology of childhood. We must insist on a higher standard of preparation for teaching. Then after all is done we must expect no sudden transformation. Let us be content to sow our seed and abide the harvest, nor despair of popular education.

PROPOSED FORD MONUMENT.

Alumnus Makes a Wise Suggestion Relative Thereto.

EDITOR COURIER:

I have noticed with pleasure the suggestion that a monument be erected to the memory of the late Dr. Corydon L. Ford, the funds to be raised by private subscription.

Although, as Dr. Stroud, of Sandusky, suggests, it should come from the medical fraternity, yet I believe the citizens of Ann Arbor would be greatly interested, and should take hold of the enterprise with much enthusiasm, as Dr. Ford did a great deal for the University, and in that way for the city of Ann Arbor.

As the citizens of Ann Arbor have shamefully neglected their public parks, and have really supplied no oases or public breathing spots, I would suggest that this monument be located in the center of what is now called Felch park. It would perhaps be the means of calling the attention of the city government to the neglected condition of that public square, and secure its improvement—a thing very much needed.

Then, in the course of time, other monuments might follow. The revered Dr. Tappan, might, possibly, have a column erected to his memory, and the day will certainly come when a statue of the present chancellor will grace some portion of our city.

And the good and wise Dr. Frieze. What of him? Well, a magnificent building will, in the not distant future, be erected to accommodate the growing demands of the University School of Music, and it shall be a monument to the beloved memory of that man whose life was a harmony of wise counsels, beautiful thoughts, and sweet expressions.

Ann Arbor should act upon Dr. Stroud's suggestion. All it needs is some one to lead. Who shall it be?

Very truly yours,
ALUMNUS.

AN EARTHLY PARADISE.

A Brilliant Description of the Greatest Fishing Resort in Michigan.

CRYSTAL LAKE, Benzie Co., Mich.
July 10, 1895.
(Paradise of Fishermen.)

Mr. Editor:

A second trip to this beautiful lake, with its dry sandy shores and surrounded by wooded hills has more than justified the enthusiasm caused by our first visit. The lake is nine or ten miles long, twenty-eight feet higher than Lake Michigan from which it is separated by a narrow strip of high timbered land less than a mile in width. So that we have here all the advantages of Lake Michigan—its pure air its cool and refreshing breezes without its treacherous squalls, storms and fogs. Besides the fishing here is incomparably better than in the larger lake. Our party this time consisted of Ex-Gov. Ashley, Col. B. M. Thompson and the writer—a triumvirate of experienced and truthful fishermen, it is unnecessary to say, and so to be logical we say it.

We fished on the south side of the lake in about twenty-five feet of water, and during our five visits to the spot we "raised" from their watery element over four hundred fine perch, averaging about one fish a minute for the time actually spent fishing. Our lines were often garnished with two hooks and we each brought up two perch at a time, or we could not have made the average of one fish a minute. The fish in Lake Crystal are mostly perch, but to give variety to our operations a large black bass, weighing probably nine or ten pounds, seized the bait of Gov. Ashley and as the hook tickled the roof of his mouth, he gave a downward plunge and the steel fishing rod of the Governor snapped like a pipe stem and that bass is now amusing his aqueous companions by dragging about four feet of steel fishing rod over the bottom of Lake Crystal. The incident and its consequences reminded us of an anecdote of Lincoln. During a visit to the president, after the business in hand was accomplished, Lincoln remarked: "Ashley, are you an Episcopalian?" "No," Ashley replied "I am not an Episcopalian." The President answered with a curious twinkle in those sad eyes, "I thought you must be an Episcopalian for you swear just like Seward and he is an Episcopalian!"

The real and substantial joy of fishing in Lake Crystal is the voracity and rapidity with which the perch seize your bait. My friend John Goltz, tells me that he caught a pickerel last Sunday in Island Lake forty inches long, and I am confident that John tells the truth for he showed me at his store the head of such a pickerel with a mouth like a bull dog and an eye like a tiger, but he said he had been fishing three years for it. Now the aggregate ages of our triumvirate was 180 years, so we could not afford to wait three years for a single bite!

When you strike a school of perch in Crystal Lake they are so thick that in jerking your line you often hook them without their swallowing the bait. We caught one by hooking him through the tail about an inch from the end, and you can imagine the emotions of his associates who surrounded him, as with open mouth and glassy eyes he ascended, tail foremost, from the water, leaving a ripple akin to laughter, upon its surface as he disappeared "out of sight" in the bottom of the boat! Plenty as the fish are in the lake to-day they must have been thicker in early times. One old resident upon the north shore told us that years ago the perch would go up the small streams that flow into the lake in such immense numbers that the big fish would crowd the little ones out on the sand on each side and they would flop and die there by the hundreds.

It is unfortunate that the unreasonable story told by that earliest missionary—the ancient Jonah—of his mishap in the Mediterranean, how the "great fish" tired and sick at last of the prayer meeting which Jonah held three successive evenings in his stomach, by one supreme—and lucky for Jonah—effort heaved him upon the dry land of the shore. Since that day, when an honest and truthful citizen relates his experience fishing nobody believes him. You always hear the discouraging remark, "O that is a fish story." To be frank, we do not expect that our statements about the fishing at Crystal Lake will be believed.

But we may hope that sometime in the far away future, when the common place events of to-day become dim and ragged in the mist and twilight of an entangled past, some gentle and unselfish child, moved by an earnest and childlike "faith," will tell the receptive and wondering audiences the "fish stories" of today and draw from them noble lessons of moral instruction and spiritual edification.

Should Change the Make-up.

On the cover page of the July Song Journal is a handsome portrait of Mrs. May Leggett-Abel. It is pretty enough for any cover to any magazine. Besides its usual contents this number has a supplement for its public school department consisting of the music and words of a beautiful song by Mrs. Allen Howard Frazer, entitled "The Wedding of the Birds." There is only one criticism to be made on the journal, and that is the fault of the "make up," or perhaps of the necessity of pleasing advertisers, and placing their advertisements in the reading matter so that should any one desire to find and preserve the book, these "ads" would have to be bound up also. Otherwise the book is a marvel of neatness and beauty.

OF INTEREST TO LADIES.

We offer no apology in placing before you "The Ladies' Safe Protector," it is absolutely reliable, easily adjusted, does not become misplaced and insures protection. Can be worn when desired without observation or knowledge of another and prevents disagreeable annoyance under certain conditions. If you use it once you will never be without it. It is a faithful, safe and reliable friend whenever needed by special circumstances requiring its use. It is an article every woman should keep ready for immediate use. It is simple to use, and inspires confidence to the woman using it. It is reliable and scientifically made, insures protection without injury to health, as any good physician would say. We are of the opinion that no article has ever been made which will give so much satisfaction to the women of to-day as "The Ladies' Safe Protector." The immense sales of this article is a substantial indorsement of our claim. Do not therefore experiment with any of the numerous unreliable articles, as it is both dangerous to health and expensive to do so. Such experimenting can only result in loss of time, disappointment and dismal failure. Ladies should remember this before ordering other goods and not waste their time and money on inferior articles. The best is ever produced. "The Ladies' Safe Protector" is sold under a positive guarantee for use for one year, with full directions and is sent sealed in plain wrapper upon receipt of express money order for $2.00, three for $5.00. Do not wait but order at once. Address THE LA CROSSE SPECIALTY CO., LaCrosse, Wis. 1774 1 yr.

KIDNEY DISEASES

WITHOUT MEDICINE

Electricity properly applied, is fast taking the place of drugs for all Nervous, Rheumatic, Kidney and Urinal Troubles, and will effect cures in seemingly hopeless cases where every other known means has failed.

Any sluggish, weak or diseased organ may by this means be roused to healthy activity before it is too late.

Leading medical men use and recommend the Owen Belt in their practice.

OUR LARGE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE

Contains fullest information regarding the cure of acute, chronic and nervous diseases, prices, and how to order. In English, German, Swedish and Norwegian languages, will be mailed, upon application, to any address for 6 cents postage.

She dives, she floats with zest
On the highest breaker's crest;
The summer girl is right in the whirl—
And she likes high rollers best.—Puck.

Mrs. Martha Stoll, of Saline, is visiting friends in the city.

Miss Anna Bross, of Dexter, is attending the Summer Normal.

Ed. Krapf, who had been visiting in Stockbridge has returned home.

Schuyler Foster, of Chelsea, is spending the summer here in Ann Arbor.

It is reported that several incautious fishermen living near Whitmore Lake are soon to be taken in by Deputy Bell, for illegal fishing.

Nitrate of soda is a very good thing to have on hand to use in forcing along the late planted crops. Pound it fine and then be careful not to use too much.

The proposition to secure telephone service at Whitmore Lake is a most excellent one. It seems as though it would pay the people of that place to have a phone put in.

A man who is supposed to keep up with the signs of the times remarked to a Courier scribe: "It is altogether probable that within two years a demand for good driving horses will be experienced."

Miss Minnie Steinbach, who has been in the millinery business with Miss Bell, of Ann Arbor, the past season, has returned to spend a few months with her many friends in this vicinity.—Chelsea Standard.

A young girl about sixteen years of age, living in Ypsilanti, attempted to commit suicide a few days since, because her mother drank. If anything under heavens could bring that mother to her senses, this deed certainly ought to.

This is the time of year to harvest your weeds, and pathmasters should remember and read up on the law and ascertain their duties. Milk weeds, prickly lettuce, burdock, and even the dreaded Russian thistle are reported plenty on the highways. Cut 'em down.

The citizens of Dexter are complaining about their wells going dry. Don't blame them—the wells—any. How could they be expected to keep up their flow without any water falling upon the earth to supply their source? The well owners will have to sink pipes in the bottom of their dry wells and thus replenish the supply.

The Ann Arbor Courier registers a kick because the county seat has no beautiful Michigan Central flower gardens like Ypsilanti.—Dexter Leader. No, not exactly that either. But it seems as though, taking everything into consideration, that Ann Arbor deserves better treatment than she gets, that's all.

Deputy Sheriff Byron McCauley, of Dexter, brought in from his burg last night, Mrs. Kate Van Arsdale who will probably be pronounced insane within a few days. She has been acting very queerly and has lately developed a liking for beating the children about. Her husband came to Ann Arbor with her and is still undecided which course to pursue.

"Every piece of waste land along the rivers and every hillside in the state should be planted to forests or nut bearing trees of some kind."—Ann Arbor Courier. Thus, for ten cents per line, can a great newspaper be coddled by doctors, to secure them more fractures.—Adrian Press. Here is an insinuation that a doctor pays for advertising! Ye Gods, man! Did you never hear of the code of ethics?

One of our exchanges tell us about a farmer who tried an experiment last year to find out whether potatoes paid him best sold from the field at current prices, or stored until spring. He put away 100 bushels at 60 pounds to the bushel. In the winter he weighed them and found them shrunk to 83 bushels. These at 60 cents per bushel brought $46.80; and for the same he could have gotten in the field at the time of digging, $75. In addition the cartage would have been saved, interest on money, and valuable time in the spring.

The Salvation Army has given notice that they will carry the fort of Ann Arbor by storm this fall, the first attack to be made Aug. 1st. Sentinels are already on the outskirts and spies have been securing all information possible about the strength of the enemy here. When the battle opens up it is thought it will be a hot one, and the cannonading will be tremendous. The attacking army will be armed with the Word of the Master and their lances will pierce the hearts of the ranks of Satan in such a way that the evil in them will die and the good be preserved to everlasting life.

Some farmers should plan to earn more, others should plan to save more, and still others with a little more carefulness and gumption could advance in both ways.

Steady grumblers are like the old horse that acquired such a habit of shaking his head and switching his tail in fly time that at last he kept up the motion all the year around.

Says Governor Hoard: "I would not keep a cow on my farm that would not earn me $50 a year with butter at twenty cents a pound. Some of my cows the past year have earned over $60 at the creamery."

Although lightning has been very shy this year, yet on Friday the electric fluid struck on the farm of H. V. Watts, of Lyndon, and killed about nineteen sheep, twelve of which were insured in the Washtenaw Mutual Fire Ins. Co.

The government crop report averages Michigan up on corn in this way: acreage of corn as compared with 1894, 104 per cent. while the average condition is only 69 per cent. This year, in the whole country, there are seventy-six millions of acres planted, which is an increase of six million acres. The increase in the acreage of potatoes is about the same.

The Adrian Press Man Says These Things.

The statement is made that a workman, trenching for the Ann Arbor gas mains, dug up a cent of the date of 1827. We give it to the public for what it is worth.

Ald. Davis of Ypsilanti, has secured a pair of beautiful silver barred owls. There are probably persons who will hoot at the alderman's selection of pets, but in the communion of official life there springs up in the human breast a feeling of fraternity and fellowship which neither the scoffs of the world nor the pencils of paragraphers can quench.

The Ann Arbor board of public works, has elected Wesley Hicks "Superintendent of Manholes." His time has been divided in watching the mouths of Hammond of the Argus and Beal of the Courier at their meals, and of A. J. Sawyer and Ez. Norris, in the circuit court. Thus far he has discovered nothing that indicates a failure to work properly in either case. [A proper note has been made of the above, and suits will at once be entered.]

When the tomato is grafted on the potato, which can be done by reason of the close relationship between the two plants, the potato roots continue to produce potatoes, while the tomato grafted on the potato stalk continues to produce tomatoes.—Hillsdale Leader. Yes! It has also been discovered that gooseberries, hatched under a duck, will produce wild turkeys.

A $150 diamond was stolen last week at a game of craps in Ann Arbor. The diamond-stealer was followed to his room and gave up the jewel. No arrests. This incident occurring as it did in Ann Arbor, beautifully illustrates the influence that couple with a classical education. Where else do christian gentlemen settle such grave affairs outside the court room?

The Milan Leader is another newspaper that believes this country is drained too much. But the ditch commissioners cannot prevent the rain can they, unless they drain heaven? And whoever heard of a ditch commissioner in heaven! He would raise—a disturbance there the moment he got in.

By the concurrent testimony of the Washtenaw papers, Ypsilanti is surrounded with the Russian thistle, prickly lettuce, tumble weed and nightshade, all armed with deadly thorns, aimed at human life, which is not even safe from aerial missiles, a meteor having fallen there last season and killed a horse.

Hot weather proves depressing to those whose blood is poor. Such people should enrich their blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla.

LAST NIGHT I dared not say to you,
The words my tongue strove to tell,
And yet I am positive you knew
The sureness of your witching spell.

When'er I gazed into your eyes—
October's most delicious brown—
They looked at me in mild surprise,
As one who sees a clumsy clown.

And when I left you at the gate
And gave your hand one chaste salute,
I tried to ask of you my fate
In love. Alas! my lips were mute.

And so my emissaries must
Be pen and ink and halting measure;
But you will answer this I trust—
One word from you will be a treasure.

SHE WROTE:

This morning, Jack, I got your letter.
Foolish boy to waste your scrips!
But as for answer—well, you'd better
Come and take it from my lips!

They Mistook His Mission.

Some years ago a delegation went from a certain city to Washington to work a great appropriation for the benefit of Mobile's harbor. Among the party was a genial major, who was well primed with facts.

He longed, moreover to see the inside of senatorial poker. Soon occasion presented itself. The genial man dropped his evening's pile and smiled himself out.

Next night he came again. Fickle fortune still frowned.

Once more the genial Alabamian's pile grew small rapidly and hideously less. Finally a pat flush swept his last dollar, and he rose from the table a trifle hasty.

"Don't go," cried the winning senator, chirpily; "sit in again and try it over."

"Gentlemen, you mistake my mission entirely," retorted the Alabamian, backing to the door; "I wish you to understand that I came to Washington to get an appropriation—not to make one!"—Argonaut.

Knocked Her Fainting Silly.

The other evening an immense crowd got jammed in a theater lobby and some women grew hysterical.

"Oh, I shall faint!" exclaimed a stout blonde, looking piteously at her escort.

Men on all sides glanced at her sympathetically, and those nearest made a frantic effort to give the stout blonde more room. Her escort looked down into her face tenderly.

"I am going to faint!" she cried, and she got ready to fall gracefully into his arms.

"Well, faint!" shouted a robust lady at her elbow. "For heaven's sake, faint and be done with it, for the rest of us want to get out!"

Some people glanced at her indignantly, and others tittered; but the stout blonde who was about to faint braced up suddenly and concluded she wouldn't. No sniff of salts could have done the business quicker or more satisfactorily.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Tabooed Text.

Down in the black belt of Georgia a Presbyterian minister received a visit from a colored pastor who wanted counsel and advice. "Well, sir, it's jest this way," said he; "I've done preached myself plumb out. I've worked on election, sanctification, predestination, hell inside and out, till I couldn't say another to save my life." His white brother suggested that he should preach a sermon by way of change on "Thou shalt not steal" for a text. "Well, boss, that certainly is a good text; but I'm mon'sious 'traid it will produce a coolness in the congregation."—Washington Post.

In the Neck.

Mrs. Flynn—Can yez tell me where I'll get the Columbus Avenue car, Officer?

Officer Burke—Faith, ma'am, ye'll get it in the neck. If ye don't get off the track.

How It Worked.

Brown (expert shorthand reporter)—I say, James, the boy from the newspaper office has called for the report of that lecture. Is it finished?

James (a novice)—All but a short sentence in the middle of it and I can't for the life of me make out from my notes what it is.

Brown—Oh, just put in great applause and let it go.

James acts on the suggestion, and the lecture is sent for publication with the doctored part reading:

"Friends, I will detain you but a few moments longer." (Great applause.)

Six Months of the A. A. V.

Secretary A. C. Schumacher has just made up the accounts of the Ann Arbor Arbeiter Verein for the past six months and the showing is very creditable.

The society has paid in sick benefits to its Ann Arbor members, the sum of $204.

The death assessments, paid to the state organization, amounted to $394.40.

Aside from the above $150 has been paid to two men whose wives have died within that period, making a total of $748.40 paid charitable purposes for the past six months.

The balance on hand in the treasury is $3,150.59.

There are now 150 members in good standing belonging to the society.

BABY MUST STAND IT.

Foolish Parents Who Carry Their Infants on Their Wheels.

Among the many foolish extremes to which parental fondness runs, none is more insensate than the carrying of infants on bicycles. So long as the machine holds up the bit of humanity it is safe, being so fastened that it can not fall off. But there is a nervous tension throughout, as may be clearly seen from the frightened and anxious look on the baby's face.

The vibration, too, tells seriously on the immature nerves, while if there be a nip in the air, the motionless child is apt to become deadly cold. All this, however, is as nothing compared with the peril of an upset.

Even the most experienced riders can not assure themselves against the "side slipping" when the surface is slippery; all they can do is to save themselves by jumping off the machine before it lies on the ground. But the baby is bound to see the matter out to the bitter end.

It's too fond parent can not protect it from a smash, no matter how much he may try. It is much the same in collisions. The adult rider can do something to break his fall, or if with a heavy vehicle he can roll out of the way after coming to the ground. But the unhappy infant has to stand the racket in both cases.

We fancy there would be a very limited number of wheelmen on the road if the exigencies of the pastime rendered it compulsory for riders to be fastened to their seats.

Perhaps it was that feeling that influenced the cyclist down in Yorkshre, who was seen to place his little lad standing on the footrests, face to the front, with both hands clutching the handle bars behind. The child was thus left at liberty to jump off, but had either the footrests slipped down, as often happens, a very ugly accident must have happened.

Black Lake in Mexico.

In the midst of the volcanoes of Mexico is the "Lake of Ink," which covers about an acre of ground. The body of water, or ink, or whatever it is, is so covered with ashes from the adjacent volcanoes as to appear a part of the surrounding ground, which is all of the same dull gray tint. Where this liquid comes from, what its chemical properties may be, where or what the supply is, are matters of conjecture.

WHEN YOU GO NORTH

for the summer, please bear in mind that Chicago and West Michigan railway service to Bay View, Petoskey, Charlevoix and Traverse City is the most complete and best arranged this year of any since the "Scenic Line" was completed. All trains of the M. C. R. R. connect at Grand Rapids with the following trains on the west Michigan: Leave Grand Rapids at 8:05 a. m., with parlor car, arrive at Traverse City at 1:20 p. m. Boats for Bay ports leave Traverse City at 2:30 p. m. This train arrives at Petoskey and Bay View at 4:30 p. m.

MRS. WILCOX WAS BORN IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

The Daughter of Andrew Jackson's Niece—Still Lives at the Capital and Is a Clerk in the Treasury Department.

BABY Esther Cleveland was the last child born at the White House. The first White House baby was also a girl and made her debut during the far away reign of Jackson, back in 1830. There was a space of sixty-three years between the first and the last White House baby. Who was the first? She was the daughter of President Jackson's niece, who was the wife of Andrew Jackson Donaldson. This latter gentleman was the Thurber of Jackson's private secretary. Mrs. Donaldson, Jackson's niece, not yet 20, came with her uncle to the White House to reside as his mistress. The first White House baby, Baby Donaldson, grew up and married a Mississippi gentleman once in Congress—named Wilcox. General Wilcox has now been dead fully 30 years, and Mrs. Wilcox, who was the first baby to try the White House as a place wherein to be born, has, since Grant's time, been a clerk in the Treasury Department. The first White House baby is an old gray lady now, and the day Baby Esther was born, she was busy at her desk in the Treasury, not 100 yards from the last baby's cradle.

Yet the last baby has witnessed much of the world. Her father, Donaldson, following his term as Jackson's private secretary, was at various European courts as minister. He came home to plunge into politics, and once ran for the Vice-Presidency.

But whether it was the property of her father or her husband, or both, the fact remains that the war swept away what riches the first White House baby—Mrs. Wilcox—possessed, and President Grant gave her the position which she now holds, and which she will probably hold until death claims the first White House baby for himself.

Among Mrs. Wilcox's most ardent admirers is Senator Hill, and she can boast of the distinction of having received more calls from him than any other lady in the country. Her intimate knowledge of the history of Democracy since the time of Andrew Jackson is a perfect mine of interest to the Senator, and he takes great delight in talking over the old days with her. Just before the State election last year she had a cup made from the wood which came from the doorstep of the house where Andrew Jackson was born. This she presented to Tammany, and Senator Hill made the presentation speech. Mrs. Wilcox is a fine-looking, elderly lady. She speaks with a low, sweet voice. Her flow of language is very remarkable for one at her age. In all these years of toil, since the death of her husband, she has kept up her languages, and speaks German and French just as well to-day as when she was a belle at the German court 45 years ago.

Iowa Saloonkeepers in a Fix.
An important victory for the temperance cause in Iowa was gained by the decision of Judge Spurrier of the district court in the Pressman saloon injunction case at Des Moines. He decided that the consent petition under which the Des Moines saloons were running was not valid, and that the injunction asked for, restraining them from selling liquors, should be granted. The law requires that the petition asking the opening of saloons shall be signed by a majority of the voters at the last election. This would require 5,147 signatures in Des Moines. The saloon men claimed to have 6,059, but their petition was easily discovered to be outrageously stuffed. Some names were signed two and three times; others were fraudulent; others were of men who had not voted at the last election. On these grounds 1,494 names were objected to and the court decided the petition to be fraudulent. The saloonkeepers have just paid the first quarterly installment of their annual "mulct fines," and there are likely to be further legal complications to recover this.

How to Be One's Own Manicure.
Hot water is the first requisite, and a thorough washing or soaking of the hands. This is best attained by having the hot water poured into a basin continually for two or three minutes. The hands must be allowed to soak for fully five minutes, and it is well, instead of soap, to wash the hands very thoroughly in bran, which makes the skin soft and white. After the hands have been thoroughly cleansed, the nails should then be attended to. With a piece of orange-wood stick sharpened to a point, and a bit of jeweler's cotton rolled around the point and wet with the acid that comes for this purpose, every particle of dirt and stain should be removed. The hands must then again be washed, this time in warm, not hot, water. Scissors, very sharp and fine, must then be taken, and all loose flesh at the side of the nails carefully trimmed. The nails must be shaped in a pointed oval. All roughness must be filed away, and the flesh at the base of the nail pushed smoothly and firmly back, so that the half-moon, supposed to be a point of beauty, can be discerned. It is no longer considered good form to have so much polish on the nails that they look as though they had been buttered, as was the fashion two or three years ago. But a certain amount of polish is necessary. Rosaline put on over the entire nail and the end of the finger, then washed off again, and the nails polished briskly with a polisher, makes the hands look very trim and pretty. The first manicuring is by all odds the most difficult. After the hands and hands are once got into good condition, fifteen minutes each Monday morning will keep them in proper condition all the week through, if only ordinary care in washing the hands, with an occasional rub from the polisher, is given.

The Bicycle an Outlet to Woman's Zeal.
There was a good deal of pith to Mrs. Stanton's remark in reply to Bishop Doane that "women are riding to suffrage on the bicycle." They may not be riding to suffrage, but they are riding everywhere and everywhere they want to go, says Harper's Weekly. Certainly and conspicuously they are riding into any sort of costume it suits them to put on. Bloomers are getting so common that it seems possible that the untutored eye will presently dwell upon them without a shock. The more circumspect American ladies still keep out of them, and may never come to prefer them to skirts, but the young and giddy experiment with them pretty freely. Was there ever anything so efficacious to give a woman an idea of what she could do if she tried as the bicycle? Soberly speaking, if she had to choose between the ballot and the bicycle as a means of development and advancement, she might better cleave to the bike. It is worth more to her than the ballot. It is more fun, more use, less trouble, and very much less costly.

In the Wrong Place.
There is a saloon on Van Buren street, Chicago, which was formerly occupied as a mission. The man who now has the place has whitewashed the wall, on which were some religious texts, but the wash is wearing off, and one of the texts which is coming out is "I Need Thee Every Hour." An old soak with grim humor suggested to the proprietor that he should move his bar over to that side of the room.

A CASE CITED IN OCEANA CO.

A Further Case Cited by the Jackson Patriot, in which Rheumatism, Resulting from Same Cause, was Cured in the Same Way.

From the Muskegon, Mich., News.
Oceana County, Michigan, is widely known as one of the finest fruit-growing sections in the country, and especially for its fine and luscious peaches. But all the peaches grown on trees are not to be placed in comparison with the peach bloom which has again returned to the cheeks of one of the best known ladies in Hart, the county seat of Oceana County. How this wonderful and beautiful effect was obtained, and the history of the illness preceding the cure, has been known long since to residents of Hart and others throughout the county, but to a News reporter of Muskegon, who was in Hart at the fair, the following interesting and joyful tale was unfolded recently by Mrs. W. S. Eggleston, the person who once was a helpless invalid. To-day a more happy woman can nowhere be found. "I resided in Cass county, at which time I in common with nearly everybody in the county suffered a severe attack of the grippe, only I left me with a still more serious trouble. The greatest part of my trouble then was in my stomach. I had no appetite, and my weight until I lost twenty-four pounds. Of course I was doctoring, but nothing reached my case. I moved up to Hart in June, 1892, and my ill health continued, although I tried two resident physicians. I grew disgusted finally and quite doctoring, as it seemed it would take our all, and yet I grew no better and looked like a skeleton. My husband read in a paper of a medicine called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he immediately got some for me. I had no hope hardly and was not enthusiastic over the new pills, but I am now.

"It is a solemn fact that I began to get better the very first day and kept on improving. In a short time my stomach had a better feeling; my appetite picked up and I could eat everything I wanted to. I had a second trouble, however, which I did not expect the pills would reach, but they did, and the result is that a swelling in my right side, caused by some ovarian trouble, is almost entirely gone. I can lie on my right side now with comfort, and this is not all the relief I obtained.

"Formerly in wet weather my bones would ache terribly. Now I do not notice any bad effects whatever. I am able to walk three miles at a stretch now, for I did that last week in going to visit a friend. I tell every one of my wonderful cure, and many of my afflicted friends are using the Pink Pills now with good effect. I now weigh 132 pounds, a gain of twenty-one pounds."

Mrs. Eggleston's husband was present during the narration of his wife's troubles and triumphs, and he willingly corroborated the statements made by her.

A neighbor, Mrs. Brown, who happened to drop in, stated that Mrs. Eggleston did not look like the same woman who came to Hart a year ago.

RHEUMATISM'S VICTIM.
How He Was Attacked—How He Was Treated—How He Was Cured.
From the Jackson, Mich., Patriot.
How often are seen people a little past the meridian of life who, but for the lingering effects of some ailment of an unusually stubborn nature, might still be enjoying robust health, but who account of the lack of a remedy as being nature in throwing off the disease are broken down and worn out long before the allotted time.

Marcus S. Lyon, of 1071 Francis Street,

"LINKED SWEETNESS."
But It Was Too "Long-Drawn-Out" to Agree with the Ostrich.
One of the family of twelve ostriches attached to Sells' circus, which has been wintering at River Front Park went to his long home yesterday, a victim of curiosity and a voracious and indiscriminate appetite.

About 1 o'clock yesterday one of the circus attendants brought a lot of chains and whiffletrees from the upper floors and threw them down in front of the ostrich pen. All of the chains were attached to the whiffletrees except one, which lay loose among the pile. The attendant left them lying there for a while, and after he had gone away one ostrich, more curious than the others, caught sight of the shining chain. Quick as a flash he darted his long neck through the bars and seized the chain in his bill. He threw it into the inclosure, and his companions stood eyeing him curiously to see what he was going to do with the chain.

They were not left long in doubt. He at once began to make a meal of it. Link by link it disappeared down his elastic oesophagus. It was very evident that the task was no easy one, for before he got it half way down he seemed to repent of his bargain. But he would not give it up, and finally it disappeared altogether. The bird looked around as if in triumph, but its triumph was short-lived. In a few moments he was seized with paroxysms of pain, and, as all ostriches do when sick, he lay down on his stomach on the floor of the pen and stretched out his neck as far as it would reach. Mr. Sells happened to pass through the animal department and noticed the position that he was in. As the usual troubles from which these birds suffer are indigestion and similar complaints, Mr. Sells gave him the customary remedy—a large dose of castor oil. This, however, had no effect on the bird, which continued to show signs of distress. Nothing that was done gave him any relief, and within a half hour after bolting the chain he turned over on his back and gave his last kick.

This list of used pianos represents our stock of rented instruments, together with a few odd styles and sample pianos, which we desire to close out to enable us to direct all our efforts to the sale of the Clifford Piano, in which Company we have recently become interested. Among these instruments are some rare bargains. Every piano has been carefully regulated, tuned, and put in first-class condition. Most of them show but little wear, and all have been carefully polished, and where deemed necessary, revarnished. We are very desirous of closing out every odd piano in stock, as we wish to devote our entire energy to the instruments in which we are directly interested. Every piano on this list is guaranteed to be exactly as represented, and will be taken in exchange by us for any new piano at its full value at any time within one year. Correspondence invited.
