THE MOUTH OF THE MAUMEE.

And the Thriving and Beautiful City That on it Nestles.

Some days ago there came a summons from Toledo, O., to a number of Michigan editors to appear in that city on Monday Sept. 30th. to be for the day the invited guests of the Chamber of Commerce of Toledo. The summons was one not to be ignored, and consequently a representative of the Courier obeyed it.

Arriving in Toledo, it was found that the editors of Ohio and Indiana had been summoned also, and some sixty or seventy of the tri-state pencil pushers had responded.

The day, which might have been pleasanter, was spent in going about the city and inspecting the elegant electric street car system, the fine paved streets, the beautiful parks, the handsomely shaded boulevards and avenues, and the thrifty and growing business and residence portions of the city known to fame for the great war that once came near taking place between Michigan and Ohio over its possession. You see Michigan people saw into the future and did not desire to give Toledo up, and Michigan as a state, would feel very proud to-day, if that fine city with its hustling inhabitants was only within her territory. But Toledo business men make amends somewhat for the loss, by always inviting Michigan people to participate in all the good things that her people have.

In the first place allow us to pause a moment to say a good word for the electric street car system of Toledo, including the road that runs up the river eleven miles through Perrysburg, to Fort Meigs, and across the river to Maumee, and so on back to Toledo on the opposite side of the river. We have no fear of being contradicted when we assert that it is the finest in the United States. There is no superior, we honestly believe, on any continent in the world. Its rolling stock is all in the best condition, its track perfect, and the cars are so run that the people of the entire city are accommodated and pleased. Whoever planned it deserves the gratitude of the people of Toledo. And we notice also, that the waste places are being turned into beautiful spots of earth, as for instance the Riverside park. And up the river also, are some as fine parks and scenes, as one will run across in many a long journey.

The city in every particular has the air of a progressive, rustling city going forward Chicagoward.

The party all went out on the electric line to Fort Meigs where a stop was made and that historic ground traversed. It will be remembered that it was in this place that Gen. William Henry Harrison won a victory over the British and Indians that practically opened up the great northwest and made it a portion of this magnificent union of states. The trenches and breastworks are still there, though a road has been allowed to run through the site of the old fort, and the historic old Mansfield & Coldwater R. R. road led still lies at the foot of the bluff on which Gen. Harrison so successfully builded his defenses.

It is a shame and a disgrace to this government that nearly one thousand of her brave soldiers lie buried there with no headstones to mark their graves, no mark of any kind to designate where they sleep except a few stakes in the ground which kind-hearted old pioneers have kept renewed from time to time. These men were as true patriots, as brave soldiers, as deeply mourned as were the soldiers in the late war, and that the United States government should be so derelict in its duty to their memory is simply astonishing. And what is still more astounding is the fact that this government should allow that sacred soil, enriched by the blood of its citizens, shed in defense of the nation's life, to be sold and cut up into farms.

What the old pioneers and people of Toledo desire, and what the patriotic citizens of the entire nation should demand, is that this old battle field and burying ground should be re-purchased by the nation, these graves so marked that the generations to come may know of them, and these sacred grounds preserved forever, as sacred as is the soil of Gettysburg or Chickamauga. Think of the hearts that bled when these lives went out! Think of a nation that can so far forget its heroes as to allow their graves to be desecrated as these have been! It is a sad, sad thing to contemplate, and the nation should hasten, while yet there is time, to make amends for its past neglect. The people of Toledo, and Ohio even, are not alone interested in this, but it is the concern of every patriotic citizen in this nation, no matter what country may have given him birth, no matter what color the Lord may have dyed his face.

Not only should the government own this fort, but it should also own Fort Miami across the river, and all the historic ground thereabouts. That three-quarters of a century has elapsed since these stirring scenes were enacted is all the more reason why something should be done right away.

In the evening the visiting editors were given a magnificent banquet at the Boody House by the Chamber of Commerce. The menu was elegant, served in ten courses, in the very latest style, and it took an even two hours to dispose of it.

After the feast, toasts and responses were had. The mayor of Toledo gave an address of welcome, and a number of the citizens of the city told of the history, growth and development of Toledo and its industries.

M. T. Woodruff, of the Ypsilanti Sentinel, spoke very nicely for the Michigan contingent, and Editor Stohl of South Bend, the man who had such an elegant backing for the position of public printer but which President Cleveland ignored and appointed some one else he wanted, spoke for Indiana, and did it well too. If you have ever noticed the cartoon figure with which The Judge represents itself, then you have seen an excellent picture of Editor Stohl. It seems as if that paper must have had a photograph of him when it made its cartoon.

Lack of time prevents the saying of many things in this issue brought out that evening which will be spoken of in a future number of the Courier.

The annual meeting of the national Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in Baltimore, Maryland, October 18 to 23, 1895. In view of the custom to hold a day of consecration and prayer previous to the convention, all local unions are asked to set apart Thurs. Oct. 3rd for this purpose. Mrs. Willard also recommends that local unions consult with their pastors and arrange, when possible, for special temperance themes and prayer for the work at the church prayer meeting service. In compliance with the above several of the city pastors have most cordially consented to carry out these recommendations at the prayer-meetings at the various churches Wednesday evening of this week. Let every one interested in temperance work be present at one of these meetings.

A RIDE INTO THE ALPS.

How Zurich Looks to a Wheelman—An Interesting Letter.

Dear Mr. Editor:

After our two days almost imperceptible climb, we reached Newhausen and the Falls of the Rhine. I can call it names, and apply a few weak adjectives but describe it—well an instantaneous photograph can not do it; a painting cannot; even the poet Bayard Taylor fails when he says that "it winnows a stormy hail of sparkling diamonds." A phonograph might reproduce the sound for you, but you must lose the grand variety of motion unless you take your own eyes there. I can tell you that it has an irregular rocky ledge to plunge from, that four huge limestone rocks seem to attempt to bar its way and one of them has been buttressed to keep it from being hurled away; that there are rainbows in the clouds of silvery spray and that the emerald green mass of water rushes by the stone parapet, where we stand, with a roar like an angry sea; but adequately describe it, I cannot. We left it and were dazed and hushed by its beauty and grandeur until we reached Schafhausen, two miles beyond where new and strange scenes awakened us. A fine old round tower high on a hill and the cathedral in which is the bell which inspired Schiller's "Song of the Bell" are the chief attractions.

Now began our real ride in the Alps, for we set out for Zurich. What is riding a bicycle in the Alps? It partly being a bird, flying and floating, partly being a gaily slave, toiling and moiling. We would make a long ascent with our muscles taut and the sprocket chain creaking and our minds all oblivious to the billowy hills about us, then from the summit all is relaxed and with feet on the coasters, we float for two or three miles and exclaim every now and then in wonder or admiration over some view which we are now perfectly free to enjoy. We reached Zurich. Think of a site inhabited in prehistoric times as Lacustrine remains show. Imagine a long, pale green lake whose shores are outlined by orchards, vineyards, and villages. Behind this scene, conjure lofty Alpine mountains with their diadems of snow and the fantastic peaks of the Rosstock range. Fancy yourself on a long bridge which spans the end of the lake where the river enters upon whose banks the city of Zurich lies. Then look up the river lined by quaint houses, a modern library, and an old time stained cathedral. But you can not make yourself as uncomfortable as we were when we tried to find our way to Zug. There are seven best ways and we found seven different people who spoke seven different languages and vehemently advised a certain route and asserted solemnly that all others were impassable. In desperation, we took our map, shut our teeth hard together and set out on a route we chose ourselves. We soon got into a race with a steam tramway and unconsciously covered a great deal of ground and ourselves with cheap glory of beating the cars. Darkness came on and we were on a lonely mountain road over-arched by pine trees. In the twilight there was a light green haze over everything. The air was pure and the night insects busily hummed about us but our speed saved us from any unpleasant experiences. At last a long glorious coast and we found ourselves in Zug where a night's rest left us light hearted and open eyed for the lake beauties about us. Views of the Rigi mountains and Pilatus and the Bernese Alps are the charm of Zug, together with its antique walls and towers. On a lonely road we set out for Lucerne. The crack of a teamster's whip alone disturbed the stillness. This teamster of the mountains always gets his cart and oxen at an angle across the road and then stops them to see you go by when you can't. The valley of the Emme is a characteristic Swiss vale where the steep sides are dotted with cottages and the bottom lands have an occasional town. The prosperous Swiss farmer has a cottage with an umbrella like roof which projects sometimes ten feet over the sides and the siding looks like the scales of a large fish. The windows are often filled with flowers. These dwellings are very pleasing and pretty in their place in a Swiss valley. They seem a part of the landscape. We were obliged to buy our dinner at one of these cottages of the humbler class and while we ate our coarse bread and milk and Harry ate some horrible pork which he purchased additional, I noted the interior. A stone floor, a ceiling supported by huge beams smoked black, a stove about the size and shape of a steamer trunk, a clock with a brass face and a lame tick, a razor hung over the door like Dan-ocles, sword, and various religious chromos complete the visible interior, but there is an odoriferous and auriferous interior which cannot be told. I am going to give a sort of condensed guide book description of Lucerne. It has walls and nine ancient watch-towers. It faces the snow-clad Alps of the Uri. There are mediaeval covered bridges painted with scenes from the lives of saints. The famous "Lion of Lucerne" is by Thorwaldsen. The lake with magnificent mountains behind it is beautiful enough to be haunted by a whole aquation of water deities. But loveliest of all is the wealth of tradition and story which is associated with its banks. It is an altogether lovely spot if one could only escape the hotel, the cab, the steamboat and other vexations for which nature and the genius of the place are not to blame.

We lingered long and wheeled away reluctantly. Berns had now become our goal. Valleys of rich pasture land and, high above, beautiful pine forests pleased the eyes and made our ride delightful. The houses remind us of Little Red Ridinghood's grandmother. Great, bulky, round shouldered mountains rise at times right before you and as they sit upon their thrones of rock with their robes of forests they seem majestically to defy your passage but the road goes round and the railroad goodnaturedly dives through. The line of forest trees is drawn on a mountainside with such military precision that Birnam's wood seem to be marching in very truth. Mountain streams are crossed by covered bridges and the roof is so huge that it usually has the appearance of having squelched the bridge. How we reached Berns and what we did I shall tell you later.

The sudden taking away of Judge Luke S. Montague of Howell, Sunday, by pneumonia, removes a valuable man from the activities of life. He had always lived in Livingston county and had been ever helpful to the community, his advice having usually been of as much weight to litigants when a lawyer as his decisions were afterwards as a judge. He had only been on the bench five months, having left a practice worth more than double the judicial salary. But by hard work he had acquired a competency, along with his good name. It will be a difficult matter to fill his place.

"The School Supplies Committee of the Allegheny Board of School Controllers, at a meeting held this week, condemned a lot of school supplies known to have been in homes where there had been infectious diseases, and ordered them to be destroyed. This will cover a good deal of ground, as diphtheria and other ailments incident to children have been quite prevalent here lately." The above from Geyer's Stationer shows up one of the bad points of the free text book system, where books go year after year from one child to another. There is nothing better to carry disease germs than the bindings and turn down leaves of dog-eared books.

Just before the devoted young African explorer, E. J. Glave, died at Matadi on the Congo River he requested the missionaries who attended him to send his papers to The Century Magazine. These have recently arrived in this country in safety, and are found to consist of copious notes and journals and abundant photographic material. Mr. Glave crossed Africa in the interest of this magazine to study the slave-trade, and was about to embark for home in order to put his conclusions into shape when he was stricken down by the deadly African fever. It is believed, however, that The Century can obtain two or three striking articles from the material that cost Glave his life to gather. These will appear during the coming year, and a paper on Africa has also been promised by Henry M. Stanley, M. P. Glave was one of Stanley's most trusted lieutenants in the settlement of the Congo stations, and the latter has paid emphatic tribute to Glave's ability and character.

Dr. Brown's Advice About Catarrh.

Severe colds in the head followed by attacks of catarrh are apt to be common during the early fall months of the year. Constant changes in atmosphere, brisk winds and wet feet are followed by symptoms that indicate a prevalence of this disease. Great care should be taken; often these attacks result in pneumonia. I have always felt that an "ounce of prevention was worth a pound of cure" in medicine, and that is wise to heed these warnings. Don't take cold, but if you do, on the first symptoms, obtain from your nearest druggist a jar of Pretzinger's Catarrh Balm, and apply it freely to the nostrils several times each day, especially before retiring at night. This invaluable prescription I have prescribed for a number of years and have invariably found it most efficacious. The camphors which it carries in large quantities are especially healing for the inflamed and diseased organs of the head. In my general practice I have never known a case of catarrh, no matter of how long standing, that this preparation would not cure.

THE QUEEN USES THEM

What One of the Highest Officials Says.

Queen Victoria Uses Proprietary Medicines.

AND WHAT IS MORE THEY CURE HER, TOO.

Other Crowned Heads Use Them Also and Get Well.

People Have High Examples in Using These Remedies.

There never was a time when patent or proprietary medicines were so popular and so widely used by everybody as at present.

Years of experience have demonstrated the great benefit of these remedies. They cure; hence it is not a matter of wonder to learn through the most direct and reliable official sources, that in her recent illness, Queen Victoria, the great Queen of England used and was greatly benefited by such a remedy. Other crowned heads have undoubtedly done the same. Thus we see that the wisest, those with the best opportunity to judge, and rich in unlimited resources, are convinced of the curative qualities of these medicines. With ability to procure the best medical talent in the world, this renowned Queen preferred a genuine remedy which had cured so many people, whose testimonials she had read.

Among all those which rare genius, after long years of study and experiment, has discovered there is none equal to Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

Kings, queens, noble and peasant, the high as well as the low, alike employ and are cured by this grand remedy, especially at this season of the year, when the blood and nerves require this purifying and invigorating medicine. Let others follow these illustrious examples. Don't make any mistake. Take Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is this you need. It is this which will surely make you well and strong.

Mrs. Charles H. Heaton, residing at 143 State Street, Montpelier, Vt., is of the very highest social position. She says:

"Two years ago we had a terrible experience with La Grippe, and by overwork in taking care of my children and the results of the disease I was left in a very exhausted condition, in fact was nearly prostrated. I was so weak that upon the least excitement I would feel nauseated. I was as near nervous prostration as anyone could be.

"Some one recommended Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to me and I immediately began its use. I am happy to say it completely cured me. I think it is the best medicine I ever knew of for any form of nervous or chronic disease. I have recommended it to many and shall do so upon every occasion."

If you are nervous, weak, tired, sleepless, if you have headache, indigestion, kidney or liver complaint, poor blood and weak nerves, you can surely regain your health and be as well as you ever were by taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

The strengthening and curative powers of this remedy are wonderful. Use it and you will be made well and strong. It is the discovery of Dr. Greene, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. He can be consulted by all at his office, 35 West 14th St., New York City, free, personally or by letter.

Catarrh in the Head.

Catarrh is an inflammation of the mucous membranes, and may effect the head, throat, stomach, bowels or bladder. But catarrh of the head is most common, often coming on so gradually that it has a firm hold before the nature of the trouble is suspected. Catarrh is caused by a cold or succession of colds, combined with impure blood. Its local symptoms are fullness and heat in the forehead, dryness in the nose and back part of the throat, and a disagreeable discharge from the nose. When the disease gains a firm hold and becomes chronic, it is very dangerous, being liable to develop into consumption. The eyes become inflamed and red, there is throbbing in the temples, ringing noises in the ears, headache, capricious appetite, and sometimes loss of sense of smell and hearing. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for this ever increasing malady. It attacks at once the source of the disease by purifying and enriching the blood, which, as it reaches the delicate passages of the mucous membranes, soothes and rebuilds the tissues, giving them a tendency to health instead of disease, and ultimately curing affection. At the same time Hood's Sarsaparilla sulds up the whole system and makes one feel as if made anew.

TIRED OF BUSINESS.

One of the Prerogatives of the Holder of Great Wealth.

Thomas B. Bryan, a Chicagoan who is known in many countries, has divorced himself from the legal profession, and henceforth will devote his time to enjoying life without sharing in its troubles. Mr. Bryan has determined to remain most of the time at his home in Elmhurst, surrounded by his books and his flowers, and on the Sabbath to read the service in the little chapel which he has had erected on the grounds. Mr. Bryan will be chiefly remembered for his work in securing to Chicago the Columbian exposition, and for his earnest advocacy of the great

He is a master of several languages, and has successfully practiced law in Cincinnati and Chicago. It is his intention to write some memoirs, which it is expected will prove to be an extremely interesting volume.

CHRONIC MALARIA,

A Very Prevalent Disease Following the Hot Summer of 1895.

The continuance of hot and dry weather is sure to produce the prevalence of chronic malaria. The past summer has been exactly suitable for the production of a great deal of malaria. Even in localities where malaria has been previously unknown many cases of it are developed. This form of malaria is distinguished from the old-fashioned fever and ague by the insidiousness of its attack and the difficulty with which it is cured. It does not come on quickly, like chills and fever. The symptoms persist and provoke sometimes for several weeks before the patient is made sick enough to take medicine.

Slight chilly sensations, cold sweaty spells, frontal headache, biliousness, furred tongue, bad taste in the mouth, sticky mucous in the throat, constipation, languor, etc.

A medical treatise on chronic malaria will be sent free by The Peruna Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, O. This book is a complete guide to the prevention and cure of malaria in its various forms. Peruna has long since been recognized as the only infallible cure for the chronic form of malaria. While quinine has become the standard remedy for acute malaria, commonly called fever and ague, many people have found by bitter experience that it will not cure the chronic form. Peruna cures these cases promptly and permanently.

Filtering the Salt Out.

A well-known Austrian engineer, M. Pfister, is stated to have discovered a remarkable property of the trunks of trees, namely, that of retaining the salt of sea water that has filtered through the trunk in the direction of the fibers. He has consequently constructed an apparatus designed to utilize this property in obtaining potable water for the use of ships' crews. This apparatus consists of a pump, which sucks up the sea water into a reservoir, and then forces it into the filter formed by the tree trunk. As soon as the pressure reaches one-fifth to two-fifths atmosphere the water is seen—at the end of from one to three minutes, according to the kind of wood used—to make its exit from the other extremity of the trunk, at first in drops and then in fine streams the water thus filtered being potable—free, in fact, from every particle of the usual saline taste which is such a drawback to the water obtained in the ordinary manner.

A Cat Story.

May I add to your animal stories a striking instance of that spirit of jealousy which insists on all or none? writes a reader of the London Spectator. I had a cat which had long been an inmate of the house and received all the attentions which it is well known old maids lavish on such animals. Finding the mice were more than one cat could attend to, I secured a kitten and wished to keep the two. My cat was indignant and in very plain language requested the kitten to go. I endeavored to make peace, lifted both on to the table and expostulated with puss. She listened with a sullen expression and then suddenly gave a claw at the kitten's eye. I scolded and beat her, upon which she left the house and I never saw her again.

The Building-Up

Powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are remarkable. By purifying and enriching the blood and giving an appetite it makes you feel strong and capable of endurance. This is just what is needed at this season. The following is from Rev. Wm. Paddock, Bronson, Mich., formerly pastor of the First M. E. Church at Osseo, Mich.: "I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and received much help from it. I am very thankful for the building up effects Hood's Sarsaparilla has had in my case, and shall continue to take it." Rev. WILLIAM PADDOCK, Bronson, Mich.

It has often been noted by those favored men who, in traveling about the west, made the acquaintance of some famous killers, that the killer was always quietly and soberly reserved about the homicides he had committed and never cared to talk about them, says the Washington Post. Charles Basset, who has great renown in the southwest as a gun-fighter and a game man, is no exception to the rule. It chanced that all of Basset's killings were on the side of public order and occurred while he was an officer of the law. For several years Basset was marshal of Dodge City. Bat Masterson was Basset's deputy. It happened more than once in straightening out the destinies of Dodge that Basset was called on to shoot—a ceremony wherein he was always careful to aim low, with gratifying results. When Luke Short—who afterward killed Jim Courtwright, a Texas desperado—was run out of Dodge, Basset was the first man he came to in seeking help to put him back. Having secured Basset, Luke Short gathered about him an array which had a record for cool nerve and quick, sure work with a Colt's pistol that would be hard to duplicate. Short was escorted back to Dodge by Basset, Bat Masterson, Wyatt Earp, Bill Earp, Virgil Earp, Doc Holliday, Curly Bill, Shotgun Collins and others, who, as stark, indomitable fighters, had as much fame in their country as ever had the Black Douglass or Bruce or Wallace in his. But as to the solemn reticence of those killers when touched on as to their bloody deeds: Basset is and has been for years, the manager of a resort in Kansas City. One winter night Basset and several others were standing near the big stove, drinking and defying the weather. The talk had drifted to the winter days of Dodge City, when Jack Nuckols suddenly spoke up with:

"By the way, Charlie, you killed several men at Dodge City, didn't you?"

A look of pain and uneasiness came across Basset's face like a cloud. He was staggered and worried and showed it. A profound silence fell upon the several men present and Nuckols began to grow embarrassed. For full half a minute Basset looked at the questioner without saying a word. Then, as if a thought had come to him that he knew he was safe to act on, he helped himself to a drink of whisky all alone. When he returned he backed up to the stove, and, surveying Nuckols, said, in a mild, inquiring tone:

"Well, if I did it was right."

Nuckols hastened to assure him that no one harbored a doubt on that point and the subject was politely changed. Afterward one of the onlookers remarked:

"You can bet it bothered Basset when it drove him to drinking whisky by himself. I'll bet two to one that's the first drink Basset's taken alone in twenty years."

WAS WASHTENAW SALTED?
She Pays More Taxes Than Counties That are Much Richer.

Washtenaw county's share of the state taxes this year will be $81,940.77, out of the three million dollars appropriated. Last year it was $46,339.13.

According to the list Washtenaw is the sixth county in the state in point of wealth, being exceeded only by Wayne, Kent, Houghton, Saginaw and Jackson counties. The latter county is only one hundred dollars more than our county. Bay, with Bay City is $72,333. Ingham with Lansing, is $55,929. Kalamazoo, with its big manufacturers, is $71,539. Lenawee, with Adrian, is $79,562. St. Clair, with Port Huron, is $53,947. It looks as though Washtenaw got salted on the last valuation, and will have to pay more than her share.

BOARD OF REGENTS MEET.

Their Regular Session Yesterday a Busy One.

The September meeting of the board of regents of the university took place yesterday, with Regents Butterfield, Barbour, Cook, Dean, Cocker, Fletcher and Hebard present. A resolution was passed in July, directing Benton Hanchett, of Saginaw, and Judge Graves, of Detroit, to begin mandamus proceedings against Auditor-General Turner, to compel him to hand over to the university added interest on the land moneys of the institution. When the state took the land, the legal rate of interest was 7 per cent., and that rate has invariably been paid, until now Auditor-General Turner refuses to pay more than 6.

Hon. Benton Hanchett has also been asked to present an opinion to the board as to the constitutionality of the law requiring the removal of the homeopathic department to Detroit.

Regent Dean thought that possibly there might be little doubt as to the validity of the action of the board of regents in holding the July meeting in Detroit, therefore he offered a resolution approving and reaffirming the proceedings of the board in that meeting so that there could be no possible doubt about the matter, the action being equivalent to doing all the business over again that was done in Detroit last July.

The regents were in executive session almost all the morning.

Dr. Nancrede asked the board for the appointment of a second assistant to the chair of surgery as there was so much work to do that he could not see to it himself. He desired the regents to appoint A. H. Johnson with salary, an infringement upon the rules of the board, as no salary has ever been paid to the second assistants, they being taken from among the students as a usual thing. However, Dr. Nancrede said that the method of getting these assistants without salary was about played out. He had paid an assistant for several years out of his own pocket, and he rather preferred the regents to take care of the salary question this time. His appointment was made, although the matter of salary was not considered, being postponed until some future time.

The regents transacted routine business in the afternoon session. Prof. V. M. Spaulding appeared and asked the board to appoint James B. Pollock assistant in his laboratory, to which the regents assented, attaching a salary of $300. J. R. Effinger was reappointed instructor in French at $1,200. J. E. Whitcomb was made laboratory instructor. Julius Kern was appointed instructor in civil engineering at $300. A. A. Passell was made assistant to Prof. H. S. Carhart, the latter to pay the salary. On motion of Regent Butterfield, Messrs. T. W. Hughes, J. Dwyer and W. D. Smith were reappointed law quiz masters. Clarence L. Meader was made lecturer of Roman Law in the law department. Prof. H. L. Wilgus, of Ohio State University, was made acting professor in the law department at $2,000.

It was ordered that 200 lockers be placed in the basement of the law building for the use of the laws who have trouble in retaining their hats and wraps. A plan was adopted by which an extra room will be added to the law building at an expense of $200.

Dr. C. G. Darling was appointed clinical lecturer in the dental department at $300. Dr. L. P. Hall was given a similar position. A. W. Huddle was re-appointed to the dental faculty at $500. Geo. P. Wilder was made assistant in the chemical laboratory, salary $200. A resolution of thanks was voted to Mr. R. H. Scott, of Honolulu for a gift of birds' eggs to the museum.

AT THE COUNTY FAIR.

An Attendance of Fully Twelve Thousand During the Fair Days.—Ann Arbor Day Yesterday.—The Bicycle Races.

Woman's Day was a fine feature of the fair. The addresses were all excellent. Mrs. Mayo, Mrs. Knaggs and Mrs. Hollister, each presented some good homely truths to the public and in a way that made an impression, while Miss Bower presided in a manner that would be difficult to excel. The wind made it unpleasant for the speakers, yet they held their audience well, to the end of the program.

George Nissly of Saline, with his chicken display and incubators had a feature that proved very attractive indeed, and crowds watched his chickens all the time. By means of dyes, he had one coop in patriotic colors, red, white and blue. Who ever heard of red and blue hens? But he had them, there all alive and lively.

Lovers of live stock could feast their eyes for there was an immense display, and some good animals were there, too.

Probably the event that was best appreciated of all the fair, was School Day. It was a happy sight to see the youngsters in their joy and glee, and you know that when the youngsters are happy the parents are happy also. The addresses of that day were all excellent, and many of the ideas advanced fell in good soil, and will no doubt produce good results. This day will no doubt be a permanent feature of the fairs hereafter.

The phonograph which told of Noble's Star Clothing House always had its share of the crowd. It was a novel advertisement.

L. Whitney Watkins, of Manchester, had on exhibition a large and admirable collection of birds and small animals. A portion of the exhibit won great praise at the World's Fair.

Orchestral music coming from the space allotted to the Ann Arbor Organ exhibit kept everything lively in the art hall. The Organ Company as usual made a splendid showing with its organs and pianos and musical goods of all descriptions.

Meek & Company occupied a central position in the art hall and with Dean & Co., drew and held the attention of the feminine portion of the crowd during the whole day. The former firm had a large and handsome exhibit of dress goods and furs, and Dean's display of queensware and lamps was a beautiful feature.

Sec'y F. E. Mills deserves great credit for giving us a clean as well as a prosperous county fair. It has often been uphill work but he has nearly always had the best support of our business men. The Courier congratulates Mr. Mills and the fair directors upon one of the most successful fairs ever seen in the county.

THE BICYCLE RACES.

The bicycle races were run on a heavy track and in the face of a stiff breeze, but the finishes were close and exciting and everybody on the ground crowded about the track to witness them. The following is a summary of the races and winners together with the time made:

Boy's One Mile Handicap—Eddie Wagner, Ann Arbor, first; Howard Brown, Ypsilanti, second; R. E. Butler, Ann Arbor, third; time 2:57.

One-Half Mile Open—Harvey Stoflet, Ann Arbor, first; Elmer A. Joseph, Ann Arbor, second; F. A. Moseph, Detroit, third; Fred C. Krueger, Toledo, fourth; R. C. Kent, Dundee, fifth; time 1:16.

Midway Race, One-Half Mile—Earl Osborn, Detroit, first; Claude Stoflet, second, time 1:50 1-4.

Three Mile Lap Race—G. A. Bellby,

How many young men and young women are cut off just as the future seems brightest and fullest of promise! They are taken away by the disease which causes over one-sixth of all the deaths in the world—the disease which doctors call consumption. There is absolutely no reason in the world why consumption should be fatal—why it should be even serious. It is a disease of the blood, and can be cured absolutely and always by purifying and enriching the blood. The only exception to this is the case where the disease has been neglected and improperly treated until it is stronger than the body—until the body has become so weak as to have lost the ability to recuperate. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure 98 per cent of all cases of consumption if used according to directions. It also cures all lingering coughs, bronchial and throat affections.

Send 21 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page COMMON SENSE MEDICAL ADVISER, illustrated.

THE YOUTH.

O, sunrise, thou art grand today,
And gorgeous to behold;
Dost often wear this sweet array
Of purple and of gold?

THE SUN.

Oh, Youth, each morn I tint the East
With lines of gold and red,
On which the eyes of man may feast,
But thou—thou art in bed!

Price, the millionaire Baking Powder man, writes as follows: "Send me a dozen boxes of Gesslers Magic Headache Wafers. I would not be without them for all the world. They are the best cure for Headaches I have ever found and leave no bad after effects. If you have a headache you cannot afford to be without them." They are guaranteed to cure or your money refunded. A. E. Mummery, your druggist, will tell you there are none half so good. Price reduced to 25 cents per box.

Woman's Gymnasium Notes.

On Tuesday a committee met with Mrs. Carhart to consider plans for the Gymnasium—the plans were submitted by the Regents and provide for a plain but convenient building containing besides a Gymnasium, parlor, committee rooms for the use of the college women.

The ladies were surprised that the Regents intended to begin the Gymnasium at once and they therefor earnestly considered ways and means of raising the money needed to complete the building. It was decided, however, that their was nothing to be done except to go on and present the matter before the public as they have done since Regents Barbur and Hebard made their generous offer.

Only about four hundred dollars has been lent to Treasurer Soule during the summer.

Here is the way it effected just now, who grinds out his Monroe doctrine first, now on the Democrat that place: "That limp, 'all gone' feeling, not like love, but lapse of muscular vitality, produced by the torrid runday of the mercury, disappeared Monday and at night the fan was replaced with an overcoat by the man who was able to get out from the pawn shop. A slight frost greeted the early pedestrian and the aged grasshopper felt his joints snap with rheumatism as he feebly kicked himself out of harm's way."

DON'T STOP TOBACCO

IT'S INJURIOUS TO STOP SUDDENLY and don't be imposed upon by buying a remedy that requires you to do so, as it is nothing more than a substitute. In the sudden stoppage of tobacco you must have some stimulant, and in most all cases, the effect of the stimulant, be it opium, morphine, or other opiates, leaves a far worse habit contracted. Ask your druggist about BACO-CURO. It is purely vegetable. You do not have to stop using tobacco with BACO-CURO. It will notify you when to stop and your desire for tobacco will cease. Your system will be as free from nicotine as the day before you took your first chew or smoke. An iron clad written guarantee to absolutely cure the tobacco habit in all its forms, or money refunded. Price $1.00 per box or 3 boxes (30 days treatment and quartet cure), $2.50. For sale by all druggists or will be sent by mail upon receipt of price. SEND SIX TWO CENT STAMPS FOR SAMPLE BOX. Eureka Chemical & Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis.
Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Keely Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured. I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which myself inveterate smoker fully appreciate, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco-Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it.
Yours truly,
C. W. HORNICK.

The new management of the Toledo & Ann Arbor R. R. Co., have met, chosen directors, and resolved to rechristen the road The Ann Arbor Railway Co., in compliment to the University city. Wellington R. This is certainly an excellent piece of news.

The American Tyler of Sept. 21st, has this complimentary notice of one of Ann Arbor's prominent masons: "One of the ablest and most energetic craftsmen in Michigan is Wor. Bro. Charles B. Davison, of Ann Arbor, who, as Worshipful Master of Fraternity Lodge No. 262, Ann Arbor, has proved his value as a master. He has been Junior Grand Warden and filled the position worthily. The Tyler would be pleased to see Wor. Bro. Davison placed on the way to the Grand Master's chair, which he could ably fill, as he is not only a well-posted Mason, but an educated and courteous gentleman, well versed in Masonic jurisprudence. He is also Worthy Patron of Ann Arbor Chapter, No. 122, O. E. S. So far this year he has raised twenty-two and will add six to that number the present year."

Joseph Howe, who was here visiting friends and relatives, came to Ann Arbor in 1832. When a boy he attended the "Union School" which was in a wooden building located upon the hill back of the Wash-tenaw House on Broadway, north side. If a stenographic reporter could have taken down a chat between him and George W. Doty in the probate office, and between him and Philip Bach, Monday, recalling old times, a fine lot of old reminiscences could have been obtained that would have proven very interesting and readable.

Wednesday an attorney from Detroit was in the city visiting our merchants and business men, endeavoring to settle up for 50 cents on the one dollar some $800 worth of debts accumulated last year by the members of one of the best known college fraternities in the city. These members assumed a great many luxuries during the year, having several servants, and everything the best to be had, and when the year came to an end found themselves unable to pay for what they had had, and now are asking the business men and merchants of Ann Arbor to help pay for the same to the extent of one-half of what they succeeded in getting in debt. It is stated that these young men are all sons of wealthy parents, who can much better afford to pay the honest debts of their sons than the hard-pressed business men of this city can afford to lose what they are asked to lose. Each and every one of them would scorn to be considered a mendicant, but this manner of doing business is simply and only a form of begging—not very far removed from the ordinary street variety. If college fraternities so far forget their honor and good name as to indulge in such transactions, one thing is absolutely certain, if this thing is continued, they will bring these fraternities into disrepute, and make the innocent suffer with the guilty, for there are some of them very honorable and upright and whose members would scorn the smirching of their integrity in such a manner.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

That bond has excited a good deal of comment, but it is as good as the one given by Antonio.

Rev. Henry Tatlock went to Minneapolis, Minn., Tuesday morning to attend the general conference of the Protestant Episcopal church, which convenes in that city to-day. The convention meets once every three years, and is composed of two bodies, the House of Bishops, conforming to the senate of the United States congress, and the House of Delegates, composed of clergymen and laymen chosen for that purpose by the various diocesan conventions, which body conforms to the house of representatives. Neither body can pass a law without the consent of the other. It will be remembered that Rev. Mr. Tatlock was chosen a delegate by the convention of this diocese held here in June. He has some practical legislation to offer to the convention, which it is hoped may meet with favor there.

AUTHORS AT WORK.

Writing Habits of Certain Famous American Authors.

BY GEORGE NEWELL LOVEJOY.

The following article, from the pen of a former fellow townsman, from the Author's Journal, is very interesting, aside from the fact that its author is well known here:

The charmingly gifted writer, Louisa M. Alcott, is said to have cared little for a "study" in which to write her wonderful stories, the delight of all young people, especially girls. With most authors a "study" is a necessary convenience, but with Miss Alcott it was otherwise. A corner of a quaint room suited her quite as well as a more formal retreat. The plot of a story once conceived, she would sit down anywhere, so to speak, and weave the narrative which was to entertain and make better countless youth the world over. The kind of paper and pen to be employed in her work was of small concern to her, and all the table she cared for was an old atlas, or something of a like character, which she could place on her lap. Often she would lie awake nights, occupied in studying plots, and sketching in her mind chapter after chapter of a story, even to the very language to be employed, so that, when she arose in the morning, all she had to do would be to write out the story. Only a few of Miss Alcott's stories were written at her home in Concord. She much preferred going to Boston, and, hiring a quiet room at some hotel, or apartment house, there do the work which was so dear to her heart. It was no unusual thing for her to labor the better part of the day upon her manuscript, taking meanwhile scarcely a morsel of food from morning until evening.

Hawthorne never has any regular hours for work, and never requires to his study except when strongly impelled by a desire to take up his pen. And then, not always after he has gone to his literary den and taken his pen in hand, would he be able to marshal the children of his brain; lo! again and again, would he discover his army but a shadowy host, as it were, unresponsive and cold as the snow of a winter's day.

Whittier used to say that he never had any system in his literary work. Only when an idea suddenly possessed his mind did he retire to his study, and there at one heat, so to speak, put upon paper the lyric, or ballad, born of the spell which had filled his soul. He was never in the habit of revising anything—at least, to any extent—and had no love for toiling over a given piece of work after the first draft was made, usually sending his poem to the printer as originally expressed. But it was different with Longfellow. He usually passed the mornings in his library, working in a most systematic manner; though, during the earlier portion of his career as a writer, he wrote very much as the "mood" seized him. Several of his best remembered poems, such as "The Wreck of the Hesperus," "Excelsior," and "The River Charles," were composed late at night, or during the small hours succeeding midnight.

Longfellow was exceedingly painstaking in his work, and in everything he did the artist-touch is manifest in a very high degree.

Henry James is a systematic worker, going regularly every morning to his private apartment and toiling until the early afternoon. He is slow and painstaking in his manner of working, re-writing and retouching one day that which he has written the day previously. James is never satisfied with his work until he has applied the test of the artist to his performance. Yet, while slow as a producer, he accomplishes a vast amount of work and in a comparatively brief space of time. When sojourning at his London quarters (he is a bachelor) he writes by the aid of two candles, as the London mornings are usually very dark. After his morning task, he saunters forth to his club, where he dines.

Howells writes until the early afternoon, and then, laying aside his pen, he enjoys a lunch with his little family, after which, either alone, or in company with his wife or daughter—or both—he goes out for a quiet stroll. His evenings he devotes to social enjoyment with his family, or to reading; occasionally he attends the theatre or listens to a concert. Mr. Howells—as he is not at all reluctant to state—is a slow producer, and yet he is able to write a couple of novels a year, in addition to performing a large amount of miscellaneous literary work. He revises very carefully, indeed, everything he writes frequently rewriting entire chapters. Many portions of "A Foregone Conclusion" were rewritten more than twice.

Mrs. Burnett usually does her work in her library, but if necessary, she can write elsewhere. She has been known, on frequent occasions, to write in the same room with her family, their conversation disturbing her not in the least, while now and then, she would pause in her work to join with others in whatever topic might be under discussion. Mrs. Burnett devotes the early part of the day, as a rule to her literary tasks, never deviating from this practice, even though not in the precise mood for her work. Sometimes she writes the entire day, but usually gives the afternoon to social duties and outdoor recreation. Mrs. Burnett is a fast writer; for instance, "That Lass o' Lowries," "The Fire at Grauntley Mills," "Pretty Polly Pemberton," and "The Fortune of Philip Fairfax," were written in less than sixteen months.

The editorial quarters of the Atlantic Monthly, on Park street, Boston, are most unpretending, yet here when the editor of this magazine, Thomas Bailey Aldrich did some of his finest literary work. But Mr. Aldrich's study, at his home on Mt. Vernon street, is quite the reverse of the Atlantic sanctum, being richly furnished with all that goes to make such a place the envy of the most fastidious. As any one would naturally suppose, from the rare mechanism and exquisite thought and imagery manifest in his work, both in prose and in verse, Aldrich is always most exacting in his composition, being unsatisfied with anything he writes until the last degree of taste and ease has been exercised in seeking to render perfect that on which he has been toiling.

Dr. Holmes, especially after resigning his professorship, always did his literary work in the early part of the day. When the weather was at all pleasant, he usually took a walk—with a ride on the street cars after—in the afternoon, and almost every day, even to the last weeks of his life, he might have been seen on the busy streets of Boston, walking leisurely along a keen observer of all that was taking place about him. When at his literary task, upstairs in his attractive study at his home on Beacon st., the autocrat's thoughts came readily, and usually in a form to require but little after change. The autocrat was very methodical and fastidious in his work, and was never content with anything he wrote until he had made it as perfect as possible. Perhaps the quickest performance ever accomplished by Dr. Holmes was the poem "The Deacon's One Horse Shay," the incidents of which, with the narrative, as he used often to remark, "came galloping" through his brain. The poem was composed at a single heat.

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps-Ward is said to have never had any real study, because she never cared for one, unless, in summer time, an old barn at her home in Andover, may be said to serve the purpose in question. Here she is in the habit of retiring at times for the purpose of working out some story, or poem. Mrs. Ward is a fast worker, and accomplishes her task, as a general thing, with apparent ease, though she is willing to confess that everything she does "costs immensely."

Frank R. Stockton is a laborious worker, usually devoting the early portion of each day to his work. Much of the time during the past fifteen and more years, Mr. Stockton has suffered much from weak eyes, and during these periods he has made it a practice to dictate his stories to his wife, a lady who is in thorough sympathy with her husband in his work as an author. George W. Cable is yet another example of the laborious author; however, he writes on an average a thousand words a day. He usually works from nine o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon, pausing at noon merely to share a light lunch. There are days when his work consists simply in revising what he has written just previously.

Amelie Rives-Chamber, whose great reputation in the world of letters has been gained through her novel entitled, "The Quick and the Dead," states that her best time for doing work is after midnight. She frankly owns that there are periods when it is exceedingly difficult for her to place her thoughts in proper form, though to her more intimate friends it is a well known fact that Mrs. Chamber is a very fast worker.

Bret Harte, whose creations read as if they had come from his brain with out plan or hindrance, showing great brilliancy of thought, with grace of the artist, is a writer who pauses days and weeks even on a short story, or poem, before he is ready to deliver it into the hands of the printer, a fact which speaks great praise for the author of, perhaps, the most strikingly original short story creations which have yet appeared.

WASHTENAW COUNTY FAIR

School Day Brings Out a Large Crowd.

SPLENDID LOT OF ENTRIES.

The Programs of School Day and Woman's Day Complete.

The second day of the Washtenaw County Fair opened this morning in a blaze of glory. It is school day—the most popular day of the week. Early in the morning the famous Newsboys Band, of Detroit, passed repeatedly along the streets in an open trolley car playing their best music, and letting everyone know that their presence was desired at the fair. And nearly everyone went and took their little ones with them. By noon the grounds were crowded with happy, noisy children from all parts of the county. They came in great wagon-loads, every load having its yell—which they shouted in unison at every opportunity. They bore flags and banners and their wagons were beautifully and profusely decorated. One large school was half hid beneath a great bower of evergreens. Another had a beautiful girl attired as the Goddess of Liberty and bearing aloft a huge flag. Garlands and festoons of evergreens and flowers, prancing four horse teams—all made a pretty sight.

The program for the day's exercises was as follows: Entries for school children's exhibits close at 12 m. Examination of exhibits and award of premiums. (Except in school exhibit, all entries will be ready and reviewing committees will begin work at 9 a. m.) Music by Detroit Newsboy's Band. Yearling trotting stake race. Umbrella race by the Kemp Combination.

Dog race. Leo, the great Ypsilanti pacer, and Prince, the Northville trotter. Kemp Sisters with high jumping ponies. 2:30 trotting.

At the stand, speeches upon school topics. W. W. Wedemeyer, Commissioner of Washtenaw County Schools, presiding. At 1 p. m. sharp, music by Miss Lucy K. Cole's chorus of two hundred school children.

Address by Martin J. Cavanaugh, ex-Commissioner of Schools of Washtenaw County. Music by Chorus. Address by Superintendent Whitney of Ypsilanti. Music by Chorus.

Address by Hon. H. R. Pattengill, Superintendent of Public Instruction. Music by Miss Cole's Chorus.

Four-horse chariot race, driven by M'le Rosalia and F. M. Kemp, of Kemp Combination. Four-year-old race. Race, Leo and Prince.

Ferguson and Malloy race. Kemp attraction.

The assistants in the secretary's office had a hard day yesterday. They began at 7 a. m. and quit at 2:15 a. m.—19½ hours. There have never been so many entries. Every inch of mailable space is occupied. The support which our merchants have given this year's fair is most commendable, and they will reap rich returns. The Courier cannot give a complete list of the entries—they are to numerous. We can name only a few here and there. On entering the grounds at the main gate the visitors upon two merry-go-rounds loaded with children whose shouts mingle with the lively music, and make a perfect babel of noises. Close beside the merry-go-rounds are the four buggy cart and carriage exhibits of H. Richards, Walker & Co., and the Ferguson cart and carriage company, of Ann Arbor, and Huston & Dawson, of Ypsilanti. Ferguson shows the largest number. A road cart built by them for the India trade is a novelty in the Ferguson exhibit.

The exhibits in the various buildings were having the finishing touches put on them this morning and are somewhat cramped for room. The fine art exhibit is one of the most attractive.

fractive. This consists of paintings, etchings and ladies' work of various kinds. Of the school exhibit too much can not be said in praise. The stock sheds are full to overflowing, the poultry building has had a large tent added and both are filled. But of all these exhibits we shall speak more fully later on.

To-morrow is Woman's Day and the official program is as follows, Miss Emma E. Bower presiding during the exercises beginning at 10:30 a. m.:

10:30 a. m., address by Mrs. Mary Mayo, of Battle Creek. Music by Allmendinger Lady Quartette.

1:00 p. m., address by Mrs. Mary Stocking-Knaggs, of Bay City, president of State Woman Suffrage Association. Music by Mrs. Pease's Lady Quartette of Ypsilanti.

Yearling stake race. 2:28 Pacing. 2:40 Trotting. Noble's Clothing House special race. Farmers' Double-Team Trotting.

Between heats the Kemp Combination will give special performances selected by the Superintendent and Business Committee.

Between horse races, Leo and Prince will race twice. 11:30 a. m., Grand Cavalcade of Live Stock.

Superior Band will be in attendance. A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it for procurable.

G. A. Dykeman, druggist, Catskill, N. Y., says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. WM. DANSSINGBURG, Register.

STATE OF MICHIGAN.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw in Chancery.

The petition of Stanley W. Turner, Auditor General of said State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State of Michigan, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said County of Washtenaw upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes and which taxes have not been paid; together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee as provided by law, and the cost of advertising and other expenses of sale of each of said parcels of land. Your petitioner further shows that the Court said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1883, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, except such of the lands set forth in said schedule as were returned to the Auditor General according to law prior to the 12th day of June, 1893, and remain unpaid.
Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and cost of advertising and other expenses of sale, as set forth in said schedule A, are a valid lien on the several parcels of land described in said schedule.
Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and cost of advertising and other expenses of sale, as computed and extended in said schedule, against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid, and your petitioner will ever pray, etc.
Dated August 14, 1893.
STANLEY W. TURNER,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of the State of Michigan.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

As Promulgated by Smith of the Democrat.

Unless the Washtenaw fair authorities revoke their purpose of allowing the sale of beer on the fair grounds there will be no "children's day" for Ann Arbor juveniles. The battle between beer and brains excites interest. With a chance, however, beer has generally been able to "down" its man, if first the man has "downed" the beer.

What long suffering Christians compose the Ann Arbor street committee! In a report to the council they recite at length the sore trials they endured in investigating a grievance, and say: "That all this they endured without flinching, together with the irony, sarcasm, invective and even insult amounting to a literal threat of violence." Ah, those noble martyrs! "Help, Lord, for the godly man ceaseth, and from among the children of men the faithful fail."

An Ann Arbor organ firm ships instruments to South Africa. As evidence that music will soothe the savage beast, it may be stated on the authority of an escaped missionary, that after dinner, of King Mtezjsquahambazi, who has just picked the bones of the last evangelist, dozes off to sleep whenever his daughter, the fair Tzrhinkomboni, clad in a nose ring, sits down and plays "O, Willie, we have missed you."

Herman Hutzel, a contractor, sues Ann Arbor for $5,000 damages and acquiesces back pay. The amount of escaping sewer gas from the mouths of the common council requires "traps."

The small-pill wing of the medical end of the University will this year have for its head, Dr. Wilbert B. Hinsdale. It is hoped that henceforth peace will reign and the "little pills" quit griping each other.

A deranged Saline farmer entered office of the Washtenaw prosecuting attorney and informed the typewriter that she must quit the earth. She telephoned for police and the Salineite was locked up. He is thought to have been inoculated with peach yellows.

Ann Arbor is moving in the matter of a $6,000 bonus which will secure a branch of the Hay & Todd dress stay factory at Ypsilanti. There has been so much kicking about municipal extravagance in the University city, that it is refreshing to see her trying to "reduce the waist."

The Ann Arbor Argus, one of the squares and best democratic papers of the state had added to its editorial force, E. J. Ottaway, late managing editor of the Petoskey Daily Resorter. Mr. Ottaway comes from the camp meetings, laden with an assorted stock of piety—greatly needed in his new field—and brings to his work the supple attributes of the weasel, the sagacity of the trained reporter and the qualities of a thorough gentleman. He is also well soaked with the erudition of the University; and though the smallness of his panicle entirely might compel him to pick strawberries with a stepladder, his contemporaries who underize his ability by his physique, will discover him to their cost, the liveliest little pill in the package.

Beethoven Quartetto at Wayne.

The concert and social given by the ladies of St. Mary's church at Wayne last evening was a grand financial and musical success. The commodious rink was well filled, and the many town folk, regardless of creed, liberally patronized and greatly enjoyed the entertainment.

Beethoven Quartette scored a grand success in rendition of humorous, comic and sentimental selections. The singing of Mr. F. Ryan was highly pleasing to the audience, winning applause and responding to an encore. The singing of Mr. Condon, Detroit's well known tenor, especially his rendition of "The Star of Bethlehem," was highly pleasing.

H. C. Menth gave true representation of Irish character, in costume, in the rendition of "I'll Not go Out With Riley Anymore," and made a decided hit. J. A. Kelly sang "There may be one Like You," and in response to an encore sang "Eyes So Blue." August Koch's rendition of "How Fair Thou Art," showed his voice powers to a good advantage. Takes it all together the Beethoven's left a favorable impression of Ann Arbor talent.

BICYCLE VERSUS TOBACCO.

The United States Tobacco Journal declares that the bicycle has caused a total reduction in the consumption of cigars for the year of seven hundred million. The journal insists that the decrease in the production of cigars has kept pace with the increase in the production of the wheel and hence declares that the bicycle is an enemy to the tobacco trade and will hereafter be treated as such. While this little war is going on between the tobaccoists and the bicyclers, we may congratulate ourselves that the air we breathe is laden with a million or more less vapors of cigar smoke.

SCIENTIFIC TEMPERANCE INSTRUCTION.

Mrs. Lucy D. L. Parker, superintendent of the "Scientific Temperance Instruction," department of the W. C. T. U., gave at the last meeting of that organization, a very complete and comprehensive history of this very important department which aims to secure such legislation, both local and state, as shall make the study and teaching of the laws of health, with special reference to the effect of stimulants and narcotics upon the human body, obligatory throughout the entire system of public education. From the first compulsory temperance educational law enacted in Vermont in 1882 she went through the work year by year, until, in 1895, when only three states remain in which temperance instruction has not become compulsory; over twenty million children receive by law the benefit of these instructions, and there are twenty-five revised and endorsed textbooks.

Four of the Canadian Provinces by legislative enactment, and others by order of the Boards of Education require this study in their public schools as do Finland, Sweden and other countries. Reports from twenty countries beside the United States, show more or less interest aroused in making Physiological or Scientific Instruction a part of the required education of the young. Among these countries are England, France, Germany, Russia, Denmark, Bulgaria, Turkey, India, Spain, China, Japan, Hawaiian Islands, New Zealand, South Africa and Australia.

TEMPERANCE SCRAP BAG.

President Roosevelt's enforcement of the law has extended to the club houses, closing the bars of most of the clubs.

Stockholm, the citadel of the Gothernburg system, is said to have the largest death roll from alcoholism of any city in the world. Ninety in one thousand die from excessive use of intoxicants.

The members of the W. C. T. U. wish to extend their thanks to Corner Ball for the donation of his tent for their use during the fair and for the moving and setting up of the same, also to other parties who rendered kindly assistance.

Statistics gathered and published by Gambrius, a beer organ of Vienna, Austria, give the world's production of beer for 1894 as 5,477,862,221 gallons. The Voice calculates that the beer kegs sufficient to hold this quantity, would belt the earth seven times at the equator.

Two hundred "Fair Numbers" of the Union Signal, tied with white ribbons and having suitable scripture motto cards attached, were distributed on the fair grounds, during the Fair, by Mrs. Chas. Worden, Supt. of Temperance Literature of the local W. C. T. U.

The New York Sun of Sept. 24, speaking of the yacht Defender's crew says: "Some of the crew go ashore nightly. They evade the drinking places." Of Valkyrie's crew it says: "The 100th barrel of beer consumed by her English crew since the arrival in America was opened and drunk." Is this why the Valkyrie lost the race?

The high board fence around the place where intoxicants were sold on the fair grounds was doubtless intended to hide from view whatever was not clean and attractive at the fair. No fence has ever yet been built around our homes and our dear ones high enough to shut out the wily serpent of intemperance, and it is equally true that none will ever be built around the saloon high enough to shut in its shame and degradation and sin.

The Directory's Mistakes.

Many curious things come up in connection with the publishing of a directory. Mr. Donnelly was busily engaged in his private office when the usual quiet of that room was disturbed by the angry voice of a man in the outer office. He wanted to see the manager, and violently made his way inside. He was manager of a big manufacturing firm in Fifth avenue, and was angry all the way through because the compositor had set up "mangr," the abbreviation for manager, as "nurse." It was too late to correct the error, and there is one manager who for a whole year will be presented to the public as a nurse. As the visitor flung himself out of the office he ejaculated:

"I suppose people will be sending their babies to me to nurse, now. I'll kill the first one that does."

Many brokers had no end of fun with one of their number whose vocation in life was given as that of a "porter." A Chicago literary man of some celebrity was written down as a "writer" by the canvasser, but the directory said he was a "waiter."—Chicago Times-Herald.

A Brave Little Woman.

It was a Chevy Chase car. She was tall and broad in proportion. Her gown was very tight and her diamond earrings very large and sparkling. She sat near the end of the seat, and she might have moved along to make room for somebody else, but she didn't. She simply sat and stared haughtily ahead. There was a tiny little mouse-colored woman standing, and the sight of the bearded one made her nervous. You could see her very toes twitch. At length she leaned over with great politeness.

"Pardon me, madam," she said, "but have you paid for two seats?"

The stout woman was speechless. "Oh," went on the mouse-colored one, "I thought you had. Please move along, then."

And the other moved, but I feel sure she had apoplexy when she got out of the car. You could see it coming on.—Washington Post.

Precaution.

"In taking this aluminate of iron," continued the physician as he prescribed for a fair patient, "you must be careful not to get it on your teeth."

"Why so?" she inquired with mild surprise.

"Because it will decay them. Some take iron in capsules, but I think by taking it through a straw you can keep it from getting on your teeth."

"Well, now, doctor, suppose I should leave my teeth upstairs while I take the iron in the kitchen, do you think there would be any danger?"

LOW passes time by summer seas
And life seems like a living tomb
If, by some chance, you do not please
The girl who runs the dining room.

There is no comfort in the place,
The air seems filled with naught but gloom,
Because, with her, you've not found grace—
The girl who runs the dining-room.

Try all you can to work up fun
And give the place a pleasure boom,
There's one who'll undo all you've done—
The girl who runs the dining-room.

If friends to dinner you invite,
Be sure before your gaze will loom,
With visage grim and full of spite,
The girl who runs the dining-room.

And so, if you'd enjoy your stay
By mount or shore, brave not your doom!
But try to square, without delay,

A WAR REMINISCENCE.

Scenes at Hatcher's Creek and Petersburg Recalled.

John B. Scace Speaks to a Reporter of Stirring Scenes—Escaped with a Slight Wound, but, Like Other Veterans, Has Suffered Since—A Story that Reads Like a Page from History.

From the Albany, N. Y., Journal.

When one encounters in print the life story of some scattered veteran of the civil war a feeling of admiration and sympathy is the certain result. Acustomed though we are to tales of heroism and suffering in everyday life, there is something peculiarly attractive about these old war records, serving, as they do, as a sacred passport to the heart of every true American. Thousands found their rest on the field of carnage or in the hospital, but their comrades, when the struggle was over and the victory won, returned to their homes and began anew the battle of life.

John B. Scace, the widely known contractor and building mover of Albany, N. Y., has had an unusually interesting life and when seen by a reporter recently at his home, No. 15 Bradford Street, told of his many experiences and adventures while serving under the old flag in the late war. Although having endured all the hardships and privations of life in the ranks, Mr. Scace bears his more than half century of years with an elastic step and a keen mind, taking an active interest in private and public affairs.

While still a boy, his family moved from Albany, his birthplace, to Pittsfield, Mass., and here he was educated. He mastered the carpenter's trade, became a member of Berkshire Lodge, No. 52, I. O. O. F., and was entering upon a successful business life when came the call from Washington for men. All over the country the word spread, and excited men flocked to the colors. Mr. Scace, who had made Massachusetts famous in Revolutionary days was fired to its utmost. Every town and village sent out its squad or company.

The company in which Mr. Scace enlisted in September of 1862, as a private, became Company A, Forty-ninth Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. Under the common impression that the war would be one of short duration, the men were enlisted for nine months only. Scarcely were they uniformed and armed before they were ordered to the front. The regiment, which at the time was under the command of Col. W. F. Bartlett, served in the First Brigade, First Division, Nineteenth Corps, and participated in some of the hottest battles of the great rebellion.

Mr. Scace, at the time, was but twenty-two years of age, and he remembers well with what a beating heart he first fell in line. His regiment was ordered South, directly through the enemy's country, with Baton Rouge as the objective point. After several months of weary marches, during which Company A passed through several lively scrimmages with the enemy constantly hovering about the flanks and rear, the capital city of Louisiana was reached. An evacuation followed. Citizens and the rebel soldiery stationed in the city fled like frightened sheep, bearing with them what goods they could carry and setting their throats to the rest. The beautiful capitol building, which had been converted into a war prison, had also been fired, and the boys in blue swarmed in, just in time to save the captive comrades from perishing in the flames. Mr. Scace, who had been, while en route, promoted to corporal, was in the thickest of the melee, and describes the scenes in a graphic manner. Although the city had fallen almost without a blow given or received, a fight was not far off, for word was received that a large force of the enemy was fast approaching.

A bloody battle ensued at Plain Store, a few days' march out of the capital, in which Corporal Scace was severely wounded. A minnie ball struck his left thigh and, grazing the bone, narrowly missed the great artery. He was retired to the camp at Baton Rouge, but operated so rapidly that he entered active service again into active service. The battles of Port Hudson and Donaldsonville followed, with all their thrilling episodes.

It was not long after this that, by reason of the expiration of his term of enlistment, he was honorably discharged. His respite was not a long one, however, for he soon afterward re-enlisted, to serve for the remainder of the war. For meritorious action he had been raised to the sergeant's stripes, and as such served in Company A, Sixty-first Regiment,

Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, under Col. Charles F. Walcott. During the term of his re-enlistment Sergeant Scace participated in some of the hottest struggles of the war. Many a gray-haired veteran to-day recalls the scenes of Hatcher's Run, the fall of Petersburg and the battle of Sailor's Creek, seized with scintillating interest. After his honorable discharge, June 4, 1865, Mr. Scace returned to Albany and settled down once again to his business and social interests. He has resided in the city ever since, it would seem that now, and times, his peace and happiness would have been uninterrupted. Such was not to be the case, for four years ago, while engaged in superintending the raising of the immense smokestack of the Albany Electric power house, the lever of a loosened winch struck him a heavy blow across the back. The effect of the blow was not at first apparent, he being able to leave his bed in a few days. But the worst was to follow, for without warning he was seized with sciatic rheumatism in all its virulence. Untold agony followed.

Said Mr. Scace, "I could not sleep for the pain. No one will know the tortures the rheumatism gave me. I don't know how I lived during those days. I became little more than skin and bones, and it seemed like life didn't have anything but suffering in it. Cures? I tried every so-called rheumatic cure that was ever invented. I gave all of them a good trial before I stopped taking them. My friends and neighbors recommended remedy after remedy that they heard of, but my rheumatism went on just the same. Well, after I had almost had the life tortured out of me, I came across a newspaper account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I thought I might as well add another name to the list as not, so I ordered some of my druggist.

"I tell you, I was glad in those days to hear of anything that could give me any hope at all. Yes, I got them, and before I had taken two boxes that pain began to leave me. Why, I couldn't understand it. I couldn't imagine myself being cured. But before I had taken a half-dozen of those boxes I was cured. The suffering which had made my life almost unbearable for so long had disappeared. I was a new man.

"I began to get strong. I picked up in flesh, and I went back to my business with all the vigor and vim of a young man. I think everyone who knows me will tell you what it did for me. Pink Pills is the grandest medicine ever discovered, and if my recommendation will do it any good I want you to use it. I hope others will hear of it and be benefited as I have been. Everyone should hear of it. I can't say too much for them." Mr. Scace exclaimed enthusiastically in conclusion.

This is but one of many cases in which Pink Pills have taken such a beneficent part in the history of humanity.

Mr. Scace is now enjoying the fruits of an unusually large business, managed solely by himself, and covering almost the entire eastern portion of the State. Mr. Scace is also an ivory carver of marked ability, which he follows solely for his own pleasure. Many little trinkets, carved by the light of the camp-fire, attest his skill in this direction.

Far from being solicited to recommend the curative which had taken such a load of misery from his life, in his gratitude his praise for it is unstinted and unceasing. And from his own statements one may easily see that when he does cease to sing its virtues, it will be to answer the last muster in.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by address, Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
