Said Mr. M—the other day: "I want one of your seamless hot-water bottles that you warrant. I had one of them and it lasted six months with constant use. I bought two at — and they gave out very quickly."

We can give you the man's name if you want it.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC,

The First Annual Commencement Exercises at the University School of Music.

A MAGNIFICENT SUCCESS.

Prof. Stanley Delivers a Beautiful Address which is Given in Full.

The first annual graduating exercises of the University School of Music, at Frieze Memorial Hall last night, were highly successful and pleasing. There was a large audience present, and the following order of exercises was carried out:

Organ voluntary. Opening remarks by Prof. Kelsey, president of the University Musical Society. Address by Evert H. Scott, president of the Ann Arbor City Board of Education. Reading of a letter of congratulation from Prof. F. H. Pease of the State Normal Conservatory. An admirable brief address by President Angell of the University of Michigan. Presentation of Diplomas, by Prof. Albert A. Stanley, Director of the University School of Music. These addresses were most happy. Prof. Stanley's effort was carefully prepared, and a model of beauty and true helpfulness. A complete synopsis is as follows:

The most complicated yet delicately adjusted organism in the world is society. Made up of a thousand independent yet interrelated actors, it depends for its very existence upon the harmonious working together of opposing forces. Controlled by the better elements it is a power for good, dominated by the baser elements it makes for evil. Each and every individual contributes something directly or indirectly to the general trend of society's influence. Thus it behooves every thinking man and woman to look to it that his or her influence is in the right direction.

Every man must determine his personal relation to society, no matter what his calling may be, and must deliberately decide upon a course of action based upon principle, that is to say, if he is to be a positive force. It is not enough that one be borne along upon the stream. One must have courage to stem the current, be it never so strong, if it is sweeping onward to destruction. To do this it is necessary, first of all, to be honest with one's self, to look into the depths of the soul—to lay bare as before the Maker of the Universe, the motives of the heart—whether they be good or evil. This is the most difficult task given a human being. Happy the man or woman who can courageously meet it. Happy, for this self examination, though it may reveal one's weakness, is of itself an indication of honesty of purpose, and honesty of purpose begets the virtues necessary to the attainment of the highest success.

This self examination gives an insight into other souls, and thus makes possible the relations which can alone make society ideal.

One is brought into relation with society not alone and in a restricted field, as an individual, but by means of professional ties may assist in exerting a broader influence. The relation of the individual to the profession to which he belongs the relation of a single profession to other professions, the relation of them all to the community, are all parts of the social organism. Summed up, society represents the products of the effort of these and other active factors. If it is to be ideal, then each factor must contribute its best. Anything less than the best can not produce ideal society.

This ideal we are all working for, if we are with honesty of purpose striving to do our best. Possibly this earnest seeking after the best is of itself the highest ideal we may ever know.

A GOOD MAN GONE.

Ex-Gov. Felch Passed Away Saturday Afternoon, June 13th, After a Somewhat Extended Illness.

HE WAS THE SOUL OF HONOR.

A Lawyer who Never Took a Case When he Believed his Client in the Wrong—And one Whom Honors Sought.

On Saturday afternoon last, at about 3 o'clock, word was passed around that Ex-Gov. Alpheus Felch had passed away at his home on N. State st., where he had resided for the past half century. His death had been expected for several days, it being a foregone conclusion that he could not, at his extreme age, rally again. Although expected it was a shock, for the Governor had a warm place in the affections of the people, and they with one accord deeply regretted to have him removed by the hand of death, even though recognizing the fact that he had passed the allotted age of man.

Alpheus Felch, LL. D., who for very nearly 50 years has been known throughout Michigan as Ex-Gov. Felch, was born in Limerick, Me., September 28, 1804. More than 62 of these years have been spent in Michigan, and 52 of them as a citizen of Ann Arbor. Few men in the history of the state have had a more notable public career, and probably no one in the history of the United States can point to so long a record of private life after having retired from such prominence as he had attained.

Before he was 5 years old ex-Gov. Felch had become an orphan, and was brought up by his grandfather, who could tell him tales of his career as a Revolutionary soldier, and who instilled in him that patriotism and solid national pride that was always his distinction. From the district school of the then sparsely settled portion of Maine, he went to Phillips Exeter Academy, and there prepared for a college course. Bowdoin college was his natural choice, and he came forth from that institution with his diploma in 1827. Three years were then put into the study of law, and he was admitted to the bar at Bangor in 1830.

His early efforts as a practitioner were quite successful, but by 1833 he had decided upon a change of climate on account of his health. An accident sent him to Michigan instead of Mississippi, where he had intended to go, and he opened an office in Monroe that same year. This was his home for ten years, and ever since then he has lived in Ann Arbor, except when, in earlier times, public duties called him away.

In 1836 he was elected to the state house of representatives from Monroe county, and almost as soon as the legislature had convened, he sprang into prominence by his solitary stand for honest financing. He condemned the new state banking law and registered one of three votes against it. Afterwards he had the satisfaction of seeing this "wild cat" bank act repealed, and was also very active as one of the state bank commissioners in relieving the evil that the act had caused, and pursuing the cases of fraud.

For a few weeks in 1842, he was auditor general of Michigan, but resigned this appointment to accept one by the governor as judge of the supreme court to fill a vacancy. Positions legal, judicial, executive, legislative, diplomatic and otherwise, were to fall to his lot. While yet supreme justice he was made

United States senator in 1843, again to fill out a vacancy.

On January 1, 1846, he took his seat as governor of Michigan, having been elected the preceding term. But he didn't fill out his term in that office for again he was called upon to take sudden honors. The executive of the state was in the winter of 1847 elected United States senate for six years, and he therefore resigned and stepped out of office to give place to Gov. William L. Greenly, March 4, 1847, when his term as senator began.

Gov. Felch was in the senate in a day when great men were there, and great questions were up before them—the period of Webster, Clay and Calhoun.

It was a time particularly of territorial expansion, and the great questions of the day were territorial questions. Fitted by nature to undertake the subject, Senator Felch was also fitted by research to handle such questions, and for four years he served as chairman of the land committee. The value of his labors was recognized as soon as his term as senator expired in 1853 by his appointment as a member of the commission to settle up the claims made in accordance with the Guadalupe Hidalgo treaty with Mexico in 1847.

It might be a proper suggestion to the Louisiana sugar growers that they should devote a large portion of the bounty which they will receive under the recent decision of the Supreme Court to the work of putting their state in the way of being governed according to the will of the people.

Scientists note with interest the fact that the recent tornadoes were accompanied throughout the country by a magnetic storm. It is all very well to watch the auroras under favorable circumstances, but unless science can turn its observations to account, the study of cyclone caves is far more important.

Great preparations are being made in Canton, Ohio, to commemorate the expected news of McKinley's nomination. That enterprising daily The Repository has had special telegraph wires built from the St. Louis convention hall to its office where the news will be heralded by a big fire gong, the booming of cannon and the forming of a procession to the residence of their beloved townsman, Major McKinley. It will be non-partisan and a splendid tribute to the coming president. These arrangements have been perfected by Geo. Freese, editor of the Repository and one of the most wide awake republicans in Ohio.

In speaking of the Kentucky democratic convention the Louisville Courier-Journal says: The Kentucky democrats have repudiated the only president the democratic party has elected and seated for 50 years. They have repudiated the most distinguished of Kentucky's living sons and the greatest democratic intellect in the United States. They have spit upon the fathers of the party whose names and organization they claim; have proclaimed Jefferson an ignoramus, Jackson a conspirator, Benton a knave, and Cleveland a traitor. Saturday's work makes Kentucky republican for years. The one chance now for Kentucky democracy is that the Chicago convention shall not ratify its stupendous blunder, and that chance seems all too remote.

DRUGS We give you what you ask for

A smart Broadway, New York, druggist has this sign hanging outside his store; it marks the new era of drug selling. Is it any wonder that he has to enlarge his quarters, that his clerks are busy, and that his store is one of the most popular along the leading thoroughfare?

You can afford to trade with a druggist who gives you SCOTT'S EMULSION when you ask for it.

The enemy of silver is the enemy of his country, and beside him, Jeff Davis is a patriot.—Adrian Press. The above is given as a specimen of the "argument" of the Press, that's all.

The highest type of patriotism is to furnish work for all, and to pay good wages. Free coinage of silver means plenty of money.—Adrian Press.

This is the same sort of hurrah boy reasoning that the Press used to convince the people that free trade meant the same thing. Those who listened before will beware this time.

If furnishing work for all is the highest type of patriotism the democratic party must be pretty low down, for there has been little but idleness since it came into power with its free trade, free silver, free everything ideas.

Detroit is going to celebrate Evacuation day, and has sent an embossed invitation to Grover Cleveland to honor the occasion with his presence. When it is known that Hon. Dickinson is chairman of the invitation committee, there will be no surprise over the invitation, and it is peculiarly appropriate that the boss of the democratic party should have an embossed invitation. It will be also specially appropriate for him to be present, at an evacuation celebration, that he may become familiar with such entertainments. He will be prominent in another evacuation movement about March 4th, next, and should arrange to take his wounded with him. His dead are so numerous that it is better they be buried where they fell.—Adrian Press.

THE BRITISH ARMY

Obtains Coffee Direct from the Plantations.

The British Government formerly brought the coffee intended for the army direct from the coffee plantations in Java and the term "Old Gov't Java" is familiar to all.

Mr. P. M. Hanney now manager of grocery department of the great house of Seigle, Cooper & Co., Chicago, was located in Java for about nine years, purchasing coffee for Her Majesty's troops and his ability to judge of the quality and flavor of coffee will hardly be questioned.

Experts of Tea, Coffee, Tobacco and Whisky are not always free users of the article they judge so keenly of. Indeed the reverse is frequently true. In Mr. Hanney's family, Postum, the health coffee made by the Postum Cereal Co. Lim., of Battle Creek, Mich. is used in place of coffee. The immediate cause being that the wife had trouble in digesting coffee and Mr. H., knowing that the grain beverage which looks so much like coffee and which fits the coffee drinker's taste, was a pure and nourishing drink, introduced it in to his family with the result that the old ailments which were directly attributed to coffee drinking, have materially disappeared.

Proper adjustment of food and drink means good body, clear minds and the ability to push to the front and make a success of life, while those who insist upon using such dietary articles as they know check digestion and impair the health, will lag in the race for prosperity. The law of the survival of the fittest is plainly marked.

"Just as good" as Postum Cereal are words used to defraud the public.

The split in the prohibition party is of national interest, because that is not only by far the oldest of the minor organizations of the present day, but it has lived much longer than any other "third" party which has ever figured in American politics. Its first national ticket was put up in 1872, and it has participated in every presidential campaign from that time to this. Its vote has grown steadily from the beginning. Nevertheless the party never had any influence in national politics except in 1884, when the democratic margin was so small in the decisive state of New York, that the prohibitionists may have turned the scale. Very few minor parties have ever split, but when one of them does this, its days are numbered. Slavery split nearly every other party at one time and another, except the free soil and the republican parties, and it never participated in another presidential election.

The Manufacturer, as its name indicates, is a paper published in the interest of the manufacturers of America, and here is a paragraph from its columns that has a moral in it for all Americans—except those who make a living by importing foreign made goods and foreign grown products:

"While our own mills are half idle and our own laborers working on part time with decreased pay, our British rivals are waxing fat over profits lugged away from this market. It is a curious condition of things and interesting just as a study of the possibilities of human folly. We pass a tariff act to prostrate our manufacturing industries. We adopt a British financial system to run our farming industries. Then we borrow money with which to pay our running expenses, and finally we try to keep gold in the treasury by making agreements to pay out more than we take in."

SOME OF OUR EXCHANGES.

It is heart-rending to be famous sometimes. If you doubt this assertion just cast your eye over the alleged portraits of Dr. Angell going the rounds of the state press just now.

Seovel Walker, who for a number of years slung a quill upon the Tecumseh Herald has entered the employ of Uncle Sam, in the railway mail service. The service is to be congratulated.

This reminds us of the man who, after burying seven wives, had erected to their memory a monument, on the top of which was carved a hand pointing upward, and the inscription "Seven Up."—Ypsilantian.

When the collection was being taken, a Marshall young man got red in the face and whispered, "Haven't a cent, I changed my pants;" and the young lady beside him, fussed in her dress pocket and remarked that she "was in the same fix"—so the story goes.—Monroe Democrat, of course.

Prof. Harrington, late chief of the weather bureau at Washington, says that with the appearance of sun spots every seven or ten years, cyclones seem more frequent than at any other time.—Manchester Enterprise.

Bro. Blosser should raise an ex- and place before that chief, for as a chief he never was late.

The editor of the Ann Arbor Courier is something of an antiquarian, and he says that the joke about a locomotive "choo chooing to back 'er," which Tully inflicted upon his readers of last week's Sentinel, is of the vintage of 1792. At this rate we may expect there will be some nineteenth century jokes in the Sentinel in a few years.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

We acknowledge a pleasant call yesterday from Will Carlton, who never comes to Hudson without renewing acquaintances with the printing offices. While in Hudson he met many friends who are always glad to see him, but possibly his best experience was when poet Wetherbee went upon the stage after the lecture, and the two rhymists had a season of mutual enjoyment.—Hudson Post.

It is to be hoped that the editors of our bright and spirited Hudson contemporary did not feel like going "Over the Hills to the Poor House," after that visit.

The Common Council—

The Daily Times has the following report of Monday evening's meeting.

A regular meeting of the common council was held last evening. Quorum present. Absent Ald. Cady and Danforth.

The board of public works recommended that the council order an open paved gutter on William st. across Ashley st. to the Ann Arbor railroad so as to prevent storm waters from flooding the entrance of the Ann Arbor railroad depot.

The petition of C. J. Snyder and 13 others asking for improvements on Gott st. was read and referred to the street committee, as was also the petition of J. F. Schuh and seven others, asking for a crosswalk on the north side of Washington st. across Fourth ave.

John Conde and 15 others asked for improvements on Ashley st.

The salaries of the city officers were fixed for the ensuing year as follows: City engineer, $1,200 per year; city assessor, $1,000 per year; city clerk, $1,000 per year; city attorney, $600 per year; street commissioner, $800 per year; city marshal, $65 per month; patrolman, $50 per month; city treasurer, $100 per year; city physician, $100 per year; health officer, $150 per year; inspector board of health, $100 per year; remaining members of the board of health, $50 per year.

Ald. Dell objected to the increase of salaries as times were too hard to permit of such a thing, but when it was demonstrated to the alderman that it would be a saving to the city if the city attorney and city clerk received an increase of salary and engaged their help and paid for it themselves, he acquiesced, and the salaries were fixed as reported by the committee.

The committee on sewers reported that they had made a general inspection of the lateral sewers of the city, and found that an unexpected and deplorable state of affairs existed. They found that the board of public works on Jan. 8, 1896, had taken the matter of control of the flush tanks or manholes from the city engineer, and made arrangements for a monthly inspection of the flush tanks and a report on the same and directed a man then employed by the city to make such inspection, in company with a member of the Ann Arbor water company. No such report was made until May 29, which was made by Daniel J. Ross. Dr. Hale, receiver

5 Sores TO FARMERS,

In combination, proportion and process Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself, and unequalled in true merit.

No other medicine ever possessed so much curative power, or reached such enormous sales, or made such wonderful cures, as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It is undoubtedly the best medicine ever made to purify, vitalize and enrich the blood.

That is the secret of its success. Read this statement:

"When my son was 7 years of age, he had rheumatic fever and acute rheumatism, which settled in his left hip. He was so sick that no one thought there was any help for him. Five sores broke out on his thigh, which the doctor said were sores. We had three different doctors. Pieces of bone came out of the sores. The last doctor said the leg would have to be cut open and the bone scraped, before he could get well. Howard became so low that he would eat nothing, and one doctor said there was no chance for him.

"One day, a newspaper recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla was left at our door. We decided to try this medicine. Howard commenced taking it the last of February, after having been sick for a year and a half. He hadn't taken it a week before I saw that his appetite began to improve, and then he gained rapidly. I gave him five bottles, when the sores were all healed and they never broke out again. The crutches he had used for four years were laid aside, as he had no further use for them. I give all the credit to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. ADA L. MOODY, Fay Street, Lynn, Mass.

This and many similar cures prove that of the water company, stated to the committee that none of their officials have received at any time a notification of an inspection as required by the resolution of the board. None of the flush tanks were operated according to the resolution of the board, which required a flow of water sufficient to fill the same in fond days, but instead some were discharging from three to six times in 24 hours, while others were not operating at all. The committee was led to believe that there has been more than criminal negligence on the part of certain incompetent employes of the board of public works, who were designated to do the work. The employment of a competent person recommended, who should have charge of the sewer system.

A sidewalk of stone or cement was ordered built on the west side of S. State st. in front of 14 S. State, the property of Mrs. Mary E. Hall; a plank or tar walk in front of 24, the property of Norman Gates, and that the cement walk on the north side of Miller ave., from the property of the Ann Arbor railroad, west along the property of the Anton Eisele estate, be relaid and repaired.

The treasurer reported the total amount of sewer money on hand as $7,171.23; total amount of sewer tax on hand, $7,067.55; uncollected sewer tax, $94.20.

Healthy Old Age

is the result of careful living. Keeping the blood pure and the body free from even minor ailments adds years of enjoyment to one's life. The trouble with most of us nowadays is, that we live too rapidly. We are in such a hurry to go some place, or do something, that the care of our bodily health is woefully neglected. Nature never pardons neglect. Her laws must be respected, or punishment ensues.

A man may abuse his stomach for a time, but after awhile dyspepsia comes and liver complaints and kidney troubles.

These things develop all the latent weakness in his body. They make digestion imperfect, they prevent proper assimilation, proper secretion of the digestive fluids and the proper excretion of refuse matter. Probably the last is most important of all, for poisonous matter in bowels, liver and kidneys soon gets into the blood and so is carried all over the body. There is no telling where such things will stop.

In the beginning, a little common sense and a simple, natural remedy is all that is needed. Even when the trouble has progressed to serious stages, a simple, scientific remedy working strongly with Nature—soothing, stimulating, invigorating, the organs of digestion, will have a wonderful effect on the whole body. There is really nothing wonderful about it. The blood is all made in the digestive organs. If they are healthy and strong, the blood is the same and it makes every part of the body strong.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery puts the digestive organs into perfect condition. It makes them capable of performing perfectly all their functions. It increases the power of assimilation and so makes good, solid healthy flesh. A book telling all about it (1000 pages) will be sent free on receipt of 25 cents in stamps to cover postage and wrapping only. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y.

A. F. Freeman will be the Officer of the Day at Manchester July 4th.

Whoop! Whiz! Phiz! Bang! Fourth of July celebration at Howell, July 4th.

June 24 to 26 inclusive, are the days fixed upon for the Ypsilanti Driving Club's meeting.

Chelsea's new water works are to be in operation by Oct. 1st, just in time to freeze up.

Palmer's basket factory at Dexter has been unable to meet the demands so far this season.

Geo. A. Hanson, of Milan, graduates from the Richmond, Va., College at its present commencement.

Mrs. D. A. Townsend of Ypsilanti, will teach the 2d grade in the grammar department at Saline next year.

The home of George Foster in Chelsea, was struck by lightning Sunday before last, but not injured very much.

Mayor Pingree has accepted an invitation to deliver a 4th of July oration at Manchester. Let the eagle scream.

The Leader says of their 4th of July celebration: "The men who have money to put up, have not the money to put up."

Married, at the home of the bride's parents in Azalia, on Wednesday evening, June 3d, Miss Coral Waite and Mr. Harry Sweeney of Wooster, Ohio.

Chas. Baggs, of Chelsea, shipped a car load of elder vinegar to Detroit parties recently. Since which time Chelsea has not been nearly so tart.

Lightning struck Louis Burg's residence last Saturday evening, and tore off a number of shingles, but none of the family were injured.—Chelsea Her-ald.

David Eddyington, of York, died on June 5th, aged 25 years 8 mos. He was a young man much respected, and his death was quite sudden, he only having been ill ten days.

An Ypsilanti night watchman fell down stairs the other night and was severely injured. A night watch should sleep at the bottom of the stairway, not at the top.—Monroe Democrat.

Cards are out announcing the marriage on next Wednesday evening of Miss Marion Eugenia Reynolds and Mr. E. Roland Boye at the residence of the bride's parents in Detroit.—Milan Leader.

Wm. Roe, on the Clark farm, had a fine horse killed by lightning Sunday afternoon. The animal was standing alone in the stable with both doors open when a bright flash came and struck the horse.—Saline Observer.

Henry Fish was in Brooklyn Sunday to attend the funeral of his father who died Friday of apoplexy and paralysis. He was sick only two days, was 82 years old and never before called a doctor.—Saline Observer.

The ladies and gentlemen of Howell have been doing their share lately to beautify the county court yard by planting flowers, etc. It now remains for the supervisors to do a little more in the way of improvement.—Pinckney Dispatch.

Mr. Alexander, of Webster, was in the city last week, with some extra nice strawberries. He informed one of our reporters that his family of six and what company comes, will eat twelve bushels of strawberries this season.—Dexter Leader.

Recent rains are said to have greatly brightened the prospects for wheat, and except in a few cases chances are favorable for an average yield. It is thought nothing can now hinder the development of the head and that the growing grain will be able to weather the remainder of the season without more rain. Rust is fast disappearing, and the insect is not working as persistently as at first.—Howell Herald.

The country north of the village was visited by the heaviest rain storm in years last Saturday and farmers report considerable damage to crops, corn and potatoes in many places being washed entirely out of the ground, and fields deeply gullied.—Dexter Leader.

A few days since Fred Jerry called us into his yard to view some plum trees that hang about as full of fruit as they can hold. There are clusters containing as many as 30 plums and other branches numbering from 15 to 20 plums on a 7 inch space. Looks as though Fred was in luck this time.—Saline Observer.

Mr. S. C. Gridley placed upon our table Monday a twig bearing an apple half grown, and another twig from the same tree with two full clusters of blossoms. There is evidently an effort on the part of that treacher to escape the codlin moth, and provide Mr. Gridley with a supply of apples whether or no.—Ypsilanti.

A southern journalist hits the nail on the head in this: "Let the young man about town out of a job, try a year on the farm. Plowing behind a mule will give him a new constitution, take the kinks out of his head, the frog out of his throat, the weakness out of his legs, the corns off his toes and give him a good appetite, an honest living and a sight of heaven."

Since selling the Commercial some nine years ago the Pattison family has become widely separated in more ways than one. C. R. Pattison, the father, is in Eustis, Fla., preaching and working for prohibition and free silver. Warren Pattison, the eldest son, is publishing a paper at Cosmopolis, Wash., and laboring hard for the republicans and the A. P. A. Fred Pattison, the youngest son, is in Uncle Sam's regular army, stationed in Idaho, we believe. He votes and talks democracy. Fremont Pattison, the second son, has gone out of the unicycle business. He now has a store in Ypsilanti, and is selling "three cargoes" of black pepper a day. Politically he has a "spice" of populism.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

Food, undigested, is poison. Digested, it is life and strength. Millions of us suffer from indigestion, but we often don't know it. We think it is something else. Even doctors often mistake the symptoms.

Pale, thin people, who are overworked, who need strength, who seem in want of proper food, should take Shaker Digestive Cordial. It is astonishing what food will do, when properly digested.

It will make you strong, revive you, refresh you, sustain you, make you fat, restore your color, make muscle, brain fibre, courage, endurance, energy; increase your power to throw off disease and keep you healthy and happy.

Indigestion does just the opposite, but indigestion can be cured and prevented with Shaker Digestive Cordial.

Sold by druggists. Trial bottle 10 cents.

Tricks of the Heathen Chinese.

"When Bret Harte wrote: 'For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain, the heathen Chinese is peculiar,' he knew what he was talking about," remarked a resident of Pacific Heights yesterday. "For months I have been wondering at the size of my grocer's bills, and finally I became convinced that there was something wrong.

"The matter bothered me so that I finally gave it up in disgust and employed a detective to look it up for me. He found that the grocer was paying my Chinese cook a commission on everything he ordered, and the cook was ordering everything that I could pay for. What we couldn't use he carried down into Chinatown and used to stock a small grocery, operated by his 'cousin.'

"I have since learned that nearly every Chinese cook in the town demands a commission from the butcher, baker, grocer, etc."—San Francisco Post.

Dear Sir:—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "Keeley Cure," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured. I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it. Yours truly, C. W. HORVICK.

Among the many relations of life none contain greater possibilities than the delightful and inspiring relation of teacher and pupil. The task of inspiring a love for knowledge, an appreciation of the good and true in nature and in art, is indeed a great privilege. It is a life work not to be lightly assumed. Entered upon with humility on the one hand and courage on the other, earnest striving can achieve results desired to most lines of effort. You are looking into the future with anticipation of success in an art that brings much of beauty to the world, an art which may if those who serve at its altars are true to its noblest messages, mean more and more to mankind.

May I not at this time as a brother and friend, turn your thoughts briefly to your duties as musicians.

First of all to yourselves.

If you expect to achieve success, if you desire to prove yourselves worthy of success you must begin your career by determining to be true to yourselves. You must ever bear in mind that ready as the world is to accept a man at his own valuation at first, in the end the counterpoint is invariably detected. Place before yourselves high ideals. Do not believe any ideal impossible. Never allow yourselves to be turned from the pursuit of the highest ideal by any doubt of its accomplishment. You may not reach the ideal you seek, but honestly striving you will attain an ideal. So long as you have something to strive for, so long as you see before you heights of attainment, keep your eyes fixed on the goal, and you will be astonished to discover how far above the level you will rise—if you can find time to look backward. To do this successfully, choose with care the path leading towards the goal most directly. This you can only do by intelligent self criticism.

Not that you must close your ears to other criticism. If you are honest in your self criticism you will feel little annoyance from outside, for you will in all probability have anticipated much of it, if not the most, and will accept it with a thankful spirit. But it must be criticism. Alas, how little one gets! Praise and censure. Yes; sometimes in homeopathic, oftener in allopathic doses. Sometimes undisguised, sometimes sugar-coated.

Accept them all—but consider yourselves fortunate if you can come into relations with a sympathetic critic, who can be severe when necessary, who can praise with discrimination, who can give grounds for the criticism, and who above all can show you that it is honest and kindly.

Learn to develop your strong points, but do not forget to strengthen the weak spots in your art. Always remember that art is one; that all are revelations of experiences, emotions and criticisms, which have found various channels of expression, which have spoken in many tongues, which try to become conversant with the best in literature and art.

The importance of general culture to the one who seeks specific culture, needs not to be argued. Let me enforce it at this time. The musician who knows nothing but music falls below his greatest possibilities as a musician in exact proportion to his ignorance. You say music depends upon feeling. True, but come to the feeling through the understanding.

Broaden your experience by learning of the experience of the world as recorded in literature. Interest yourself not only in cognate subjects, but in those which present the strongest contrast. A musician who does not take enough interest in politics to know how to vote, and why he votes a certain ticket, is not necessarily a better musician, because he as a member of society falls in one of his most important duties to society.

This interest in other things is a necessity in order that one may return to work with renewed zest. There is such a thing as musical insanity—and I sometimes think musical sortening of the brain is not an unknown disease. This is not saying that a musician should not keep his art uppermost, not at all, but that he may. The constant exercise of the emotions may—may often does—conduce to morbidness and exaggerated notions of musical expression, to say nothing of two often a letting down of moral standards.

It is not safe to dwell in the clouds, neither can one afford to encourage any tendency to make feeling and impulse motives of conduct. Self-restraint is one of the highest products of civilization, and one must ever keep in mind that self-restraint is, if not impossible, at least difficult to the man or woman who knows no law but feeling or emotion. Learn all that you can about life, but remember that all that makes life worth living may be summed up in the words honesty, purity and industry. Cultivate your moral and religious motives that you may add consecration to the virtues already quoted. Then you may most surely direct your labors that they may make for good and not for evil.

Of course it goes almost without saying that you must keep yourselves well informed of the progress of events in your art, that you seek opportunities for hearing the best music—in fact listen to none but the best—that you surround yourselves with a good working library of standard musical works, in short that you seek to advance yourselves in your art by precisely the same means by which the members of all professions advance themselves. Maintain the dignity of the musical profession in the only possible way, i. e., by proving yourselves worthy of respect and confidence.

Be modest. That assumption of modesty which is after all nought but conceit and hypocrisy masquerading, is unworthy of any man or woman. Despise that. Never servilely cringe before some one of superior gifts or attainments. Rather cultivate the genuine modesty which, humble in the presence of the great possibilities of art, is based on confidence in what one knows, and does not demean itself by unworthy comparison. If you have won a good name do not wave away the proffered laurel wreath, but accepting, prove yourself worthy in the future. To do your best work you must keep in good health. Take plenty of exercise, and do not be tempted to copy the so-called "interesting musician" who looks so pale and unhealthy, and must therefore be a genius." He may be, but he will not do as good work in the long run as the genius of equal powers, if genius can be equal to one whose veins are full of good red blood, and whose appetite is a fixed quantity and known.

All of these duties concern yourselves. Fulfilled, you are in a position to fulfill the greater duties you owe first to your pupils, second to the community and third to your Alma Mater. In your work as teachers, remember that promptness and regularity are cardinal virtues. Practice them yourselves and your pupils will follow in your footsteps. If they do not they must be made to for their own good.

Never lose your temper. You thereby lose your hold on your pupils. Humiliate yourself, for it is your duty to be patient. You will, unless your lot be an exceptional one, learn to regard the trials of Job as comparatively unimportant. Remain patient with the honest, slow-going plodder, even if you are obliged to unloose the vials of your wrath upon the rapid and indolent pupil.

Remember, that while there are difficulties and annoyances there are also great compensations. On the whole the pleasures outweigh the unpleasant experiences many times, if you bear in mind the teacher's best energies must always be given to the pupil. Do not give the pupil the fag end of your strength. If you are fond of composing do so, writing much and publishing little, but do not do so at the expense of your pupil.

Having put your hand to the plough you must not look back. The duties of the teacher are so many and so all important that only the lack of time impels me to leave them for a brief statement of your duties toward the community.

You must always stand for the best in music. Never lower your standard. In music it is your duty to lead. He who would lead the public must learn to dispise its decisions. The history of all the epoch making geniuses of our art; the experience of men of talent, of men of purpose, all attest the truth of this saying. There may be force in the criticism of uncultured people, but in general such criticism is not just, and whenever a community has an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the text it invariably rejects the mediocre.

We know that great fountains of art well up in the hearts of the common people, but in general the remarks just made are true. But to lead one must use tact. Leading is not driving. In attempting to be a leader be consistent, courageous, courteous, but unyielding. On the other hand remember that all good music is not severe; that simple music which is true is greater art than the complicated score which has nothing to say. A classical form may or may not conceal classical content.

Do not become an idol worshipper yourself in the attempt to introduce the worship of the good. All this enforces my original statement as to the necessity of general culture and acquaintance with the world, even the world of business.

In church music stand firm as a rock for the music written by men with the knowledge of music in their hearts as well as the love of God in their hearts. Ever protest against the weakly sentimentalism on the one hand, and the ignorance of the first principles of musical composition on the other so much in evidence in the church music of our day.

As church musicians be cleverest, always remembering the sacredness of your duty. Every conscientious trained musician knows what church music should be. Earn the respect of the ministry in order that the settlement of this question may be placed in hands of God fearing musicians, and the reign of unseemly church music will end.

In the question of music in the public schools help by insisting upon the employment of competent teachers at adequate salaries. In fact, in all these questions be active members of the musical board of health.

Finally, remember the institution in which you have studied. Bear in mind that this school represents the longing desire of the sainted Frieze, whose name we perpetuate in this hall, and the noble organ whose keys he never pressed. The man whose gentle spirit shone forth in all that he did. May that same gentle spirit enter your heart, and inspire your lives.

Members of the graduating class, you are the first to receive the diploma of this school. We have endeavored to establish a high standard of attainment. By that standard you have been judged worthy of this honor. We desire to make this diploma considered worthy of sustained effort. On you rests very largely the responsibility of making it an honorable distinction. The quality of your work will largely determine the future of this school. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

We do not give this diploma as an indication that we consider you finished musicians. You would be the first to resent such a statement. It means, as I interpret it, that you have finished a certain stage of your career as students. You are to leave us to enter the school of experience, in which the master often learns from the pupil; in which knowledge is crystallized and made serviceable. This is your entrance certificate. As you are the first to receive our diploma we look to you for support and encouragement. We have endeavored to thoroughly fit you for your work; honor that endeavor by careful self-criticism; by conscientious work; by pleasant recollections of the days spent in training in these halls; and lastly by fulfilling that highest privilege of man, living true and noble lives.

Our motto says: "Art is long, Life is short." Live the true and noble life which it should be your highest joy to live, and it will read: "Art is long, Life is Eternal." May this not be the last time that we see you all together beneath this roof.

A new pest has appeared as a menace to cherry trees in Michigan. It is a small red bug, and at the present time may be seen in large quantities devouring the foliage of the trees. Dr. Gale on Diseases of the Kidneys.

Dr. Gale observes in his treatise on disease that the great use of wine in France is supposed to have abated the prevalence of the gravel.

In some parts of this country where Speer's Port Grape Wine is principally used, not only the gout, but the gravel is scarcely known. Dr. La Porta relates as an extraordinary instance of the effects of Speer's Port Wine on gout the cure of Dr. Davara, who was attacked with it at the age of twenty-five, and had it severely till he was upwards of fifty, with chalk stone in the joints of his hands and feet, but who for four years preceding the time when his case had been given to Dr. La Porta to lay before the public, had by advice used Speer's Port Grape Wine, and had no return of the gout afterwards.—London Post.

A Good Thing to Push Along—

A movement seems to have sprung up that is a very commendable one, which looks toward securing for Ann Arbor's Y. M. C. A. a permanent home. Through great effort the association had secured for its building fund a little nucleus of $250. This had been placed in the bank and looked very lonesome as a nest egg, almost as hard and glazed as those of the china order that we often find in a hen's nest. Last Wednesday Moses Seabolt, who is always one of the first to give and work for anything that will benefit Ann Arbor, handed in a check to the treasurer of the association for $100. Another friend of the association, F. G. Schleicher, followed on Thursday with another just like it, and each day since $100 has been added. The list now stands:

- Fund on hand - - - $250
Moses Seabolt - - - 100
F. G. Schleicher - - - 100
Wm. E. Pardon - - - 100
Volney M. Spalding - - - 100
Wm. Goodyear - - - 100

It is to be hoped that these $100 checks will keep rolling in, every day for a year. Think it over my Christian friend, and see if you can not give such a check to a cause that is as worthy as any that has ever appealed to a person for aid. This association is doing excellent work. It is not only helping the good morals of the city, but it is helping young men to better lives. A home is needed. Greatly needed. In fact it will be hard to continue the work without one.

The Cyclone at Mt. Clemens—

One day last week, the writer took a stroll over the path of the cyclone that visited Mt. Clemens recently, and some things of what he saw may interest the readers of this paper.

In the first place it may not be out of place to mention the ease with which travelers from this section may visit this city of mineral springs and innumerable smells. Take any M. C. train, and step from the station in Detroit to the street car track and a rapid transit car will be found that leaves every half hour for Mt. Clemens. In a little over an hour after leaving Detroit you will be landed in Mt. Clemens. The ride is especially delightful one at this time of year. Open cars or closed cars, either one, may be had, and although the country is level with no hills or dales, yet the beautiful fields, and thrifty gardens—and there are hundreds of them—are pleasant to gaze upon.

Just as you enter the city of Mt. Clemens the cars pass the path of the terrible cyclone that did so much damage, and of which you probably have read, over and over again.

But even then one gets a small conception of what the elements really did. The path of the storm varied from a few rods to about a half a mile wide, and the freaks of the wind were very peculiar.

A few instances: In one place two two-story houses were standing side by side, not over ten feet apart. One of them was not injured a particle, the other was wrecked and smashed to pieces. One tree in an orchard would look as though nothing had touched it, while all around it the trees would be completely destroyed.

The pile of debris which was once the home of the woman Mrs. Pohl, who died the day succeeding the storm, was so flattened to the earth that not any portion of it was over two or three feet above the surface.

It did not seem possible that any human being could have come from under the pile either dead or alive.

One orchard of twenty acres, all fine, young, thrifty trees, was completely destroyed, not a tree being left. Here is where the damage comes in that can not be estimated in money value. Houses can be rebuilt, but fruit, shade and ornamental trees can not be replaced for years.

To show the peculiarities of the storm: In one place several rods of an old four foot plank walk was sucked up into the air slick and clean, not even one of the old stringers being left. To realize the force or power it took to do this, one has but to make the attempt to pry up an old waak with a lever. He invariably finds it a pretty difficult task.

Sometimes a house would be left unscathed except a patch of shingles some two or three feet across being taken out of the roof. One house was noticed with the walls all standing except the front wall, and with the roof gone.

Two brothers lived near together. The house belonging to one was torn all to atoms, not a vestige being left. The other one was scarcely injured.

Some buildings looked as though they had been picked up bodily into the air and then dropped. These instances were quite disastrous to the comfort and pleasure of the people inside.

The trees suffered greatly. There was one instance where the wind jumped over a man's house and destroyed a number of old oak trees, that stood there. They were large natural growth oaks, and greatly prized. The singular thing about this instance is that this place was some forty rods from the path of the storm.

One man has attempted to save his shade trees that were simply overturned, by digging a hole on the side torn out, pulling the tree back by means of rope and tackle. The experiment bids fair to be a success. This man is credited with saying: "I rather my house would have been destroyed than my trees, for the house could be rebuilt. These trees can not be replaced in a lifetime."

Of course the worst evidences of the storm had been cleared away. New roofs were to be seen all along for a mile or two. Some of the houses had been straightened up, re-roofed, and ready for the plasterers once more, while the family occasionally lived in a tent. Others were probably disheartened, and being in debt will let the land that is left be foreclosed by the mortgagee.

Had the path of the storm been a half mile further to the northeast, Mt. Clemens would to-day have been a sorry city. So that they appreciate the fact that after all it was not as bad as it might have been.

The people of Mt. Clemens are doing nobly. They have raised some $5,000 and will take care of their own sufferers without any outside help. Of

WILD With Eczema

I was a sufferer for eight years from Eczema, but now am entirely cured. The palms of my hands were covered and badly inflamed; little white blisters appeared, then would peel off, leaving a red, smooth surface, which would burn like fire and itch. On the inside of the upper part of my limbs, great red blotches would appear, and as soon as I became warm, the burning and itching would begin. Night after night I would lie awake and scratch, and almost go wild. I got a box of CUTICURA, and a bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and after a few applications I noticed the redness and inflammation disappear, before I had used one box there was not a sign of Eczema left. I can truthfully assert that $2.00 worth of CUTICURA RESOLVENT cured me.

course they can not place the people back where they were, but they will put them on their feet again and start them on their journey of life once more encouraged to go ahead.

The loss here runs up into many thousands of dollars, and the people of Mt. Clemens are deserving of the greatest praise for their prompt and generous response for help from these poor people, many of them having lost all of their savings.

Mt. Clemens is a city of about 7,000 inhabitants, but they appear to be the right sort of people. The city has been growing of late years. The springs and mineral water, of course have made it, but they have done the job in a substantial manner. This old French settlement which slept a contented sleep for years and years, has sprung into activity. It has electric street cars, electric lights, water works, sewers, and all the city luxuries. There are large hotels and summer resort club houses on the lake shore about two miles away, and the electric cars run to them from the city every half hour. The lake boats also come to their docks making a great pleasure resort for the people. Sundays the rapid transit cars, and the railroad cars as well, have all the passengers they can carry from Detroit, the trip being one that the city people delight to take. Instead of hurrying Mt. Clemens this electric road with its cheap fare of 25 cents, is helping to build up the city. New hotels, new buildings, new residences are to be seen everywhere.

As the limit lines of these two cities are only about 18 miles apart, with a thickly settled street lying between, it is thought that the greater Detroit may some time in the not distant future swallow her little suburban neighbor in regular Chicago style.

THE PIONEER SOCIETY.

It's Annual Meeting at Chelsea Last Week.

Wednesday was Pioneer Day, and the largest crowd of old settlers of this county that has ever met at any meeting of the Washtenaw Pioneer and Historical Society, was gathered in the Congregational church, Chelsea, which had been nicely decorated for the occasion. It was most distinctively a meeting of old people, there being but a very few of the younger generation present. The first settlers of this county are becoming fewer as the years roll by, but it seems that as the number decreases the interest and pleasure in the meetings of the society and in the recounting of their experiences in early days is on the increase. It was reported at Wednesday's meeting that 168 pioneers of Washtenaw county had died during the past year, the average age of each being 72 3-5 years.

It was a most pleasant and enjoyable meeting throughout, the one incident that occurred to mar its perfect pleasure being the sudden death of Mrs. Sarah Barton, of Lyndon township, at the age of 74 years. Mrs. Barton had been suffering from heart trouble for a long time, but was feeling so much better and brighter Wednesday morning that she determined to attend the pioneer meeting. Just before the afternoon session began she became frightened at a lady going upstairs on crutches and was taken with a serious attack of the trouble and fell to the floor. Kind hands lifted her up and gently carried her to the residence of L. Babcock, a couple of doors away where she expired in about half an hour. The event was not generally known in the meeting until just before its close, when the expression of sorrow and sympathy at this sudden death in their very midst, was general among the members of the society.

The proceedings were opened by Rev. Thomas Holmes, president of the society, who called the meeting to order with a gavel which he said had a history and was made from wood that had a history for the use of the pioneer society. Rev. W. H. Walker, pastor of the Congregational church, offered prayer.

President Holmes said it was usual to have an address of welcome and a reply by the president of the society, but as both these duties would this year devolve on him, he would dispense with the response. He said this was the most extraordinary meeting ever held within the walls of the church. It had never been his privilege to receive such an assemblage as this. It was the most honorable gathering ever assembled there. No class of people should be revered so much as the pioneers who had exercised such heroism in their early life. He was glad to see that notwithstanding the large number that had fallen during the year, so many were present at the meeting. "You are welcome today," he said, "and I am glad to be permitted once more to meet you and preside over this body. All the people of Chelsea welcome you."

J. Q. A. Sessions, secretary of the society, then read the minutes of the last year's meeting and Treasurer Reeves, of Dexter, submitted his annual report showing a balance on hand of $22.34, both of which were adopted.

Wm. H. Lay, of Ypsilanti, neologist of the society, then read his annual report which showed the following statistics: Total number of deaths in 1895-6, 168; last year, 198; total number where ages were given 153 as against 186 last year; total years of age 1895, 11,064, last year 13,910; average age this year, 72 3-5 years, last year nearly 72. Residents of county for 60 years or more, 28; the oldest resident was Mrs. Daniel B. Brown, of Ann Arbor, 70. Number aged 90 years and upwards 5, last year 11 (the oldest being Mrs. Mary Hakes, of Webster, aged 98); 80 to 90, 49, last year, 42; 70 to 80, 50, last year, 64; 60 to 70, 29, last year, 36; under 60, 20, last year, 31. Deaths by months—June, 1895, 15; July, 7; August, 11; September, 8; October, 20; November, 10; December, 8; January, 1896, 15; February, 22; March, 28; April, 11; May, 12. Deaths by cities and towns—Ann Arbor city, 40; Ypsilanti city, 84; Ypsilanti town, 3; Dexter, 6; Sylvan, 11; Salem, 6; Manchester, 4; York, 7; Lodi, 6; Bridgewater, 2; Ann Arbor town, 2; Soio, 11; Superior, 8; Augusta, 7; Sharon, 3; Saline, 2; Northfield, 2; Lima, 2; Webster, 2; Freedom, not reported. A full list of the names will appear in next week's Argus.

J. W. Wing, of Scio, gave a short biographical sketch of the late Philip Bach, of Ann Arbor, in which he spoke of that gentleman's value as a citizen and what he had done for the public schools of Ann Arbor.

M. T. Woodruff, of Ypsilanti, read a sketch of the life of his father, the late Hon. Charles Woodruff.

A committee to nominate officers for the ensuing year was then appointed as follows: Isaac Terry, Webster; D. L. Godfrey, Ann Arbor; Wm. H. Lay, Ypsilanti; J. W. Wing, Scio; R. C. Reeves, Dexter.

Judge Hariman not being present to take care of his topic "Influence of pioneer life on character," the president made a few excellent remarks on the subject.

Dinner was here called and ample justice was done to the substantial dinner provided by the good ladies of Chelsea and vicinity. About 250 people were served.

At 1:30 o'clock the meeting was again called to order. Mrs. Watkins, of Manchester, read a poem on pioneer days and J. P. Wood, of Chelsea, read an interesting paper on the early history of that town. A male quartet then gave an appropriate musical selection, and this was followed by the report of the nominating committee: President, Harrison W. Bassett, Saline; secretary, J. Q. A. Sessions, of Ann Arbor; treasurer, R. C. Reeves, Dexter; neologist, Wm. H. Lay, Ypsilanti; vice presidents—Daniel Hiscock, Ann Arbor town, Wm. Dansingburg, Augusta, George Rawson, Bridgewater, W. D. Smith, Dexter, E. A. Nordman, Lima, H. M. Twombly, Lyndon, L. D. Watkins, Manchester, E. E. Leland, Northfield, Henry Preston, Pittsfield, George S. Wheeler, Salem, Wm. H. Davenport, Saline, George A. Peters, Soio, W. S. Crafts, Sharon, Nelson, Fowler, Superior, C. H. Kempf, Sylvan, Isaac Terry, Webster, John W. Blakesley, York, Albert Graves, Ypsilanti town, Erastus Samson, Ypsilanti city; executive committee—A. A. Wood, Lodi, S. R. Crittenden, Pittsfield, J. W. Wing, Scio, Henry Kempf, Chelsea, H. D. Platt, Pittsfield. It was recommended that the meeting of the society next year be held in the village of Saline. The report was unanimously adopted.

A resolution was adopted that the neologist be instructed to include in his report only the names of those who have been 40 years or more in this county and who have died in the county, and the names of those who are members of the society.

Mrs. Julia Stannard, of Dexter, on behalf of her mother, Mrs. Samuel W. Dexter, presented the society with the saddlebags in which Judge Dexter, 69 years ago used to carry the mail between Ann Arbor and Dexter. The thanks of the society were unanimously extended to the family for the interesting relic.

Mrs. M. A. Foster, of Sylvan, read an interesting account of the early settlement of Sylvan and the experiences and dangers encountered among the wolves and Indians.

J. W. Wing recited a poem on pioneer life and Wm. H. Lay read a poem written by Wm. Lambie, also obituaries and biographical sketches of Mrs. Sophia Cully and Mrs. Mary Hakes, of Dexter.

The thanks of the society were by resolution tendered to the trustees of the Congregational church, Chelsea, for its use and to the citizens of Chelsea and vicinity, especially to the ladies, for the excellent dinner provided. The meeting closed with the doxology.

The doctor may be a good old man, but even so, medical examinations and the "local application" treatment are abhorrent to every modern woman. They are embarrassing—often useless. They should not be submitted to until everything else has been tried. In nine cases out of ten, there is no reason for them. In nine cases out of ten, the doctor in general practice isn't competent to treat female diseases. They make a branch of medicine by themselves. They are distinct from other ailments. They can be properly understood and treated only by one who has had years of actual practice and experience in this particular line. This is true of Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician of the Invalid's Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, a remedy for all derangements of the reproductive organs of women, has been in actual use for more than thirty years. It cures every form of "female weakness."

The Ann Arbor, New Agent—

Eugene S. Gilmore received official notice this afternoon of his appointment as agent of the Ann Arbor road at this place, to succeed R. S. Greenwood, resigned. The news will be received with great satisfaction by Mr. Gilmore's many friends, both here and elsewhere. A better appointment could not be made. Mr. Gilmore came to this city about four years ago from Saginaw, and since that time has filled the position of chief clerk or cashier for the Ann Arbor road here with rare fidelity and care. As assistant to Mr. Greenwood he has become thoroughly conversant with the unusually arduous duties of the agency at Ann Arbor, and by means of this knowledge and his own energy and native ability can not but give the best of satisfaction. His good fortune is well-deserved. The Times congratulates the Ann Arbor road on its wise choice of a successor to Agent Greenwood.—Daily Times, June 15.

A Five-Million Deficit.

The deficiency producer known as the Wilson law continues its deadly work. The receipts for the first half of the month of May are only $12,843,488, and the deficiency for the fifteen days of the month is in round figures $5,000,000. It is apparent that the month of May is going to be as disappointing as numerous other months—practically every month in fact—since the law went into effect. It is scarcely probable that the receipts for the month will reach $26,000,000, thus falling $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 below the average monthly expenditures. The deficiency for the fiscal year thus far is a little over $28,000,000, or $10,000,000 in excess of Secretary Carlisle's latest estimate and $56,000,000 more than his original estimate. As a guesser on the operations of the Treasury Department Secretary Carlisle is not a success. On December 3, 1894, when the Wilson law had been over three months in operation, Mr. Carlisle in his report to congress said:

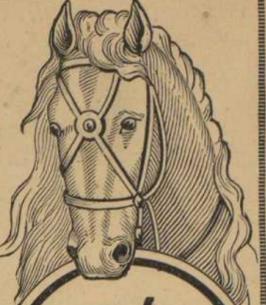

It is assumed that upon the basis of existing laws the revenue of the government for the fiscal year 1896 will be from customs $185,000,000, from internal revenue $190,000,000, from miscellaneous sources $15,000,000.

Following this statement he presented his estimate of the expenditures, which he put at $357,000,000 exclusive of the postal service. His full statement rounded up with the estimate that the surplus for the fiscal year, ending June 30, 1896, would be $28,814,920. It is now within 46 days of the end of the fiscal year. The custom receipts, which Mr. Carlisle estimated would be $185,000,000, are now $145,000,000, and to this the next 46 days will add about $15,000,000, bringing the total to $160,000,000 in round figures, or $25,000,000 below Mr. Carlisle's estimate. He also estimated that internal revenue receipts would be for the year, $190,000,000. They now amount to $127,000,000, and be at the end of the year, 46 days hence, about $143,000,000, or $47,000,000 short of Mr. Carlisle's estimate.

It is now apparent that the operations of the fiscal year, instead of producing a surplus of $28,814,920, as estimated by Secretary Carlisle, will produce a deficiency of about $35,000,000, besides the postal deficiency, which will probably amount to about $10,000,000, making the real deficiency for the year $45,000,000, instead of a surplus of $28,814,920. Had Secretary Carlisle carried out the orders of congress in regard to the refund of internal revenue tax paid on alcohol withdrawn for manufacturing purposes, there would have been taken from the proceeds of the revenue law $12,000,000, thus increasing the deficiency by that amount. These figures, it should be remembered, include nothing for the sinking fund. The law requires that a given amount be set aside each year for the sinking fund to extinguish the public debt. Had this requirement been complied with, it would have added $45,000,000 to the deficiency, making it over $100,000,000 for the year.

The recklessness of Secretary Carlisle's original estimate of $28,000,000 surplus for the fiscal year 1896 is more strongly marked because it was made in the face of extraordinarily low receipts under the Wilson law at the time the estimate was sent to congress. This estimate was made on December 3, 1894, when the Wilson law had been in operation three months, and had averaged only $20,000,000 a month in its total revenue. Yet Mr. Carlisle based his estimate of receipts on an assumption of 50 per cent, more than the law had produced up to that time.

The constant assurance of the friends of the Wilson law that it would improve with age, so to speak, or, in other words, furnish more revenue, after it had got into working order, is not being realized. The custom receipts for the last month fell nearly $1,000,000 short of the corresponding month in the preceding year, while those for March were $1,500,000 short of those of the preceding year. The total deficiency for the month of May '95, was $3,286,135, while the deficiency of May 1896 up to to-day, is $5,000,000. The falling off in the customs receipts is due to the falling off in the importations, which were enormously in excess of public demand during the first year of the Wilson law. So excessive had been the importations of last year that those of the present year have fallen off greatly. The April importations were only $58,705,299 against $68,794,958 in the corresponding month of last year—a falling off of over $10,000,000, and a consequent reduction in the customs receipts. The total deficiency since the Wilson law went into operation, twenty months and eighteen days ago, is over $85,000,000, and the total expenditures in excess of receipts since this administration came into office is in round numbers $150,000,000.—N. Y. Tribune.

Progress in Man-Flight.

It seems fairly doubtful whether Goldsmith, if he had been of this generation, would have felt justified in declaring that man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long. The contemporary sentiment about man, based on daily experiences, is that he wants everything that strikes him as even potentially desirable, and wants it vehemently and continuously until he gets it. For a long, long time he has wanted to navigate the air. His attempts to do so have been imperfectly successful, but he keeps on trying with irrepressible persistence. A long time ago he invented balloons, which are successful in a measure, since they will carry him up into the air. But they are far from satisfying him. He wants a machine that will take him where he wants to go.

He cannot fly yet, but this problem of man-flight now engrosses the attention of some of the cleverest scientists and inventors in the world, and they certainly seem to be progressing toward its solution. Professor Langley of the Smithsonian Institution, has been working at it for years, as is well known, and though he works in retirement and says very little, we get information now and then as to his proceedings. There was a little flutter the other day over the news that a machine of his which is run by steam had made two short flights, coming down each time in safety. It came down because it ran out of steam. But the fact that it did mount up, and that it kept its balance after the power gave out, and came down without disaster, is thought to represent an achievement of first-rate importance in aeronautics.

Professor Langley calls his machine aérodirigible. While he is busy in Washington, with abundant resources at his disposal, Mr. Maxim keeps experimenting in England with aeroplanes, and Professor Lilienthal and Count Zeppelin keep at work in Germany. A recent Berlin dispatch says that Count Zeppelin, after years of experiment, is building an air ship which is to carry 5,000 pounds, and go wherever its governor wills. But air ships that are going to carry loads are the dirigible hardly even excite the imagination. In aeronautics the hopes of inventors count for little with the public. It is incredulous, except in the face of an accomplished fact. Whatever Professor Langley's expectations are, he is wisely reticent about them.—Harper's Weekly.

A GOOD MAN GONE.

The intricacies of the task are appreciated by all who know the history of that period, and the perplexity and entanglement of the claims to the thousands of acres of land in California, to which there had so recently been made a rush for gold. All the questions of boundary, etc., raised by the Gradalupo Hidalgo treaty and Gadsden's purchase from Mexico, were not settled fully until within the past few years; but that commission accomplished the greater part of what has ever been done and in general established the dominion of the United States over the southwest territory it now covers. Before the commission began its labors, in May 1853, Gov. Felch was chosen president, and he occupied that position until the work was over, three years after.

In the department of the Interior at Washington, may be found 40 large volumes, comprising the records of the commission's proceedings.

With the year 1856, and the close of this commission's work, ended the ex-governor's active public life, at the age of 52. But for 17 years he continued the practice of law in this city, and several times his party—the democratic—attempted to put him into office again. He neither sought nor declined any nominations, and was not disappointed when defeated for Michigan had gone bodily into the republican camp.

Twice, once in the 50's and once in the 60's, he was nominated for judge of the supreme court, and he was also nominated again for governor of Michigan and for senator of the United States. In 1872 his party wished him for their candidate in Washtenaw county for the office of probate judge and it was generally supposed that he would be elected. But Washtenaw county went 1,000 republican that year and Judge N. W. Cheever won the race against the former governor.

Since 1873 Gov. Felch had not been engaged in the practice of law at all, but has lived in quiet at his pleasant home on North State st. In this city. Though living quietly, his interest in public affairs has been none the less active, and his opinion has often been sought as authority. He has always been an ardent democrat, and his voice always heard in party meetings here up to four or five years ago. The last time he spoke in public on any subject was in September 1894, when the bar of Washtenaw county gave him a banquet in honor of his 90th birthday.

In 1877, the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon him by Bowdoin college, and two years later he was appointed Tappan professor of law in the University, which position he held until 1886. For 14 years previous to this he had been one of the regents of the University.

The last time that Gov. Felch appeared in public, when he sat on the platform in University hall, Washington's birthday, 1895, he appeared strong and vigorous, though he showed his 90 years and more. But last fall he was taken down by what seemed a sudden collapse of his physical powers, and it was not thought that he could live. He never recovered from the attack and has been growing steadily weaker.

The extreme honor of Gov. Felch has often been brought out in a striking manner. In giving in his personal property for assessment, he never attempted to cover up a penny, but would set down with the assessor and figure up all of his property. Something almost unheard of, and the action fairly took the breath away from the assessor, at first.

It is related that one of his well-to-do clients came to him one day and laid before him some trouble he had gotten into. The Governor told him frankly that he had no case, and if he went into court would be beaten, and declined to take the case.

"Will you not take the case for me?" replied the client, in utter astonishment. "Is not my money as good as any man's?"

"Oh, yes," replied the governor, "but there is more than money at stake here. If I went into court with this case it would look as if I had advised the bringing of this suit merely for the fee there is in it, and no man has money wherewith to hire me to do such a thing."

"Very well," replied the man, "I guess I can find a lawyer who will take this case and fight it out for me."

"I have no doubt of that," was the reply, "but you can not find one who will win your case for you."

And his former friend and client departed in an angry mood. A year or so after the same gentleman called upon the Governor and said:

"Well, Governor, I found a lawyer to take my case, but I wish I had taken your advice. I lost as you said I would, and it cost me $500. After this sir, you are to take care of all my business."

The funeral was held at the family residence Tuesday p. m., at 3 o'clock. The pall bearers were:

Honorary—President J. B. Angell, Judge Thomas M. Cooley, ex-Governor Cyrus G. Luce, Judge Champlin, Prof. B. M. Thompson, Governor John T. Rich, Prof. Ten Brook, Judge E. B. Pond, Judge Waples and Prof. Raymond Davis; active—Judge E. D. Kinne, Prof. M. L. D'Ooge, Judge Hariman, Dr. W. J. Herdman, John F. Lawrence and S. W. Clarkson.

The bar of the city and county, about 30 in number, attended in a body.

There were present from abroad, Gov. Rich, Ex-Gov. Luce, all the members of the supreme court, Judges Long, Hooker, Montgomery, Moore, Ex-Judge Champlin of Grand Rapids, and Supreme Court Clerk Hopkins, of Lansing, Judge Howell of Detroit, and a number of the circuit judges of the state. George P. Warty, of Grand Rapids, president of the State Bar Association, Congressman George Spalding, Ex-Sec't of State Harry Conant, Col. R. R. Grosvenor and County Clerk Campbell of Monroe, and many other distinguished citizens.

The Episcopal service was observed, Rev. Henry Tatlock, rector of St. Andrew's parish, and Rev. J. M. Gelston, pastor of the Presbyterian church of this city, conducting it.

The cortege was a very long one, and contained a great many distinguished citizens.

The remains were placed in the vault at Forest Hill Cemetery.

Friends of the Human Family—

The great quantity of pests, especially worms, that infest the flower and vegetable garden, this season, is in a great measure accounted for by the marked absence of robins and other native birds.

Where there were formerly dozens and dozens of robins, yellow birds, blue birds, chippy, and other birds, there is scarcely one now. And even those that are here are being shot by boys with flobert rifles, "just for fun."

If the destruction of our native birds is not stopped, and at once, many people will have to abandon their gardens entirely. The native birds are the friends of the men who cultivate the earth and bring forth fruit and blossoms, to gratify our senses of taste and sight. Those who kill the birds are not only cruel, but are really enemies of all mankind. We have laws to protect these feathered friends and songsters and these laws should be rigidly enforced.

While perfectly aware that there are many thoughtless people who will put this aside without even reading it, when they find out what it is about, yet there is a serious side, and a very serious side to this question that needs some one to champion it.
