STREET NOMENCLATURE.

How Some of our Avenues Obtained Their Names.

Street names are always a subject of interest and wonder, especially to new comers. In fact many of the older citizens have little idea of how or why certain thoroughfares obtained their names, and when you go into a city and read the names of the street signs, on the corners, you wonder where that name originated, and how in the world it ever came to be applied to that particular avenue.

In this city the early settlers had but one street, and that was a Main street of course, which was not named as many think, after the state situated in the north-east corner of the union and mainly famous for producing statesmen.

Huron street like Huron river, was named after a tribe of Indians that owned this country in an early day. Detroit street came to be so called by reason of its being the road that started one on his way to the Michigan metropolis, in the earliest days of Ann Arbor's history.

The early settlers were patriots too as Liberty street testifies, and the fathers of our country were remembered in Washington and Jefferson streets.

Division street was thought to divide the city lots from the outlying large suburban plats which included the great blocks that lie on its east, and when John W. Maynard erected the house in which he lives the people laughed at him for going out in the country so far, as the east side of Division street was then considered. State street was named soon after the state had located the University here, and was thought to bear some relation to that event, not being a portion of the old state or territorial road as has been asserted. William, Ann and Catharine streets were named after the children of one of the Allen families. Elizabeth street was named in honor of Mrs. Elizabeth Swathel, who is still with us. Miller avenue perpetuates the name of Hon. John F. Miller, who was mayor of the city in 1861, and in this line other streets named for mayors might be mentioned. Maynard street after Wm. S. Maynard, who was president of the village in 1836, '37 and '39 and was twice mayor, once in 1856-7 and again in 1865. Ingalls street was given its name in honor of Chester Ingalls, who as far back as 1836, was a city father. Thayer street after Hon. Chas. Thayer who was a prominent man in many ways in the city in an early day, and at one time postmaster. Of our later mayors S. W. Beakes, our present postmaster, has a street named in his honor, and the first President of the Council Fred H. Belsler will also have his name carried down to posterity in a like manner.

Kingsley street perpetuates the name of one of our early day honored citizens, James Kingsley, and Lawrence street that of the late Edwin Lawrence, who for so many years graced the bench of the court of this circuit. More important streets might have been given these two names, as each of these men had much to do with the development of this city and county.

Ex-Gov. Ashley had the honor of having his name given to the first street west of Main, and which was originally known as Second street. Hiscock street takes the name from Daniel Hiscock who has seen this city rise from a frontier hamlet to its present proportions. Mann street was named after the late Emanuel Mann, Thompson street after the late John W. Thompson, etc.

Over on the Northside they laid their plans for big things, and the beautiful broad avenue that comes down the hill through the center of town is called Broadway, while another is called Malden Lane, and still another, Wall street, after the streets in the great metropolis of the nation, New York City. Of course there are others that might be mentioned but which slip our memory at this writing, but we have probably given enough for any one to peruse at one sitting.

St. Andrew's Fine Boy Choir—

The vested choir of St. Andrew's church in this city, under the direction of Prof. Reuben H. Kempf, has attained a degree of excellence of which but few choirs of the kind in the country can boast. It is a boy choir, and has boy soloists. Gerald Brown, who has officiated in that capacity for some time, is considered a marvel by all who hear him. Mr. Brown has had many offers from people who have been here, to take Gerald to other places for money-making purposes, but has persistently refused to consider any of them. Gerald has a clear, sweet voice, with a pathetic tone that appeals to the spiritual in one's nature in a most effective manner, and as one lady remarked: "the singing of that little boy always takes me near to the gates of Heaven." Another voice that has been added lately is that of Freddie Daly, who is also a soloist, and who in compass and volume surprises even some of our old musicians. Taken all together, Prof. Kempf may well feel proud of his choir, and the good work it is doing, for outside of the soloists, it is winning praise continually.

For Parents to Consider—

Martin Clark the truant officer for the Ann Arbor schools, wishes us to inform the public that the new school law of 1895 requires all children from the age of seven years to 16, to attend school.

Some parents supposing that the old repealed law is still in force, made the school age from seven to 15 years, take their children from school at the age of 15.

The law is very strict and any parent or guardian who refuses to send children to school during school age is liable to be summoned to appear before a justice of the peace and, on conviction of not complying with the law, can be fined from five to fifty dollars, or be sent to jail.

This Will Interest Teachers—

On Friday and Saturday, Nov. 27 and 28, there will be held in Ann Arbor a joint meeting of the Michigan Schoolmaster's Club, and the Association of English Teachers of the North Central States. The Friday morning and afternoon meeting will be held at Newberry Hall while those of Friday evening and Saturday will be held in the School of Music. All persons interested in University or secondary education are invited to be present.

President Angell is to deliver the address of welcome at 10 o'clock a. m., Friday, to which Prof. W. W. Cressy of Oberlin College will respond, followed by Prof. S. J. Hartwell, of Kalamazoo.

A program of great interest has been arranged.

Masonic School a Success—

The Masonic School of Instruction held by Grand Lecturer Clark at Masonic temple, Monday afternoon and evening, was one of the most notable events of the kind ever held here. There was a large attendance from all parts of the county, and the work from start to finish was of a superior character. In the evening the quarters were far too small to accommodate all who desired to see and hear. When the Masons fitted up this temple a few years ago, they thought they had secured sufficient room for all time to come, but even now they could use more space if they had it. The fraternity in this county is not only numerous, but very solid in character. Mr. Clark has good reasons for feeling elated over the condition of Masonry in old Washtenaw.

Perhaps Not—

The University of Michigan players seem to be under the impression that it is better to meet a team that claims to be from a college, made up of people with the reputation of sluggers, than to tackle an athletic club team that they know is composed of gentlemanly players.—Detroit Journal.

If the Journal refers to the D. A. C. of that city, we would call its attention to the conduct of that team in its recent game with the Normal team at Ypsilanti.

HE CHANGED HIS MIND.

How One of Our Citizens Was Converted to a Belief in the Militia.

A Believer in Our Military—

A certain citizen of this city who has not been a very strong believer in the military, has changed his mind. He saw the great parade in Detroit on the Saturday before election, and he also saw the horde of hoodlums who assembled about the Soldier's Monument, and kept their noise and racket going until they tired themselves out.

This gentleman also witnessed their antics and their behavior. He studied them thoroughly, and he then and there changed his mind as to the need of the state militia, for as he remarked to a friend, "our cities are infested with a class of desperate characters who are bent on mischief. Those men only need the hand of a leader. When that leader comes, it means serious trouble to the peace and welfare of the nation."

Our nation has no avenues of escape for "the floater." The man to whom fortune has been unkind; who has not prospered; who has neither home or kindred; who cares for nobody, and who stands ready for anything, if only some one will lead, is accumulating with great rapidity in this country. Great Britain has her colonies, and she has her army and navy, and between them all she keeps that class employed. The same is true to a somewhat less extent of all other European nations. Here they accumulate and cause great festers of human corruption in our large cities. They are dangerous, and our only hope is in our military. At any time the outbreak may come, and then the strong arm of the militia will alone stand between that horde of plunderers and ruffians and the home of the honest, quiet citizen.

A large standing army is sometimes thought to be a menace to the peace and safety of a republic; but honestly, it is a serious question if we are not arriving at the period when a large standing army is a necessity.

Wheelmen to Combine—

Various cyclists of the city who believe in organization, gathered, about 75 strong, at the School of Music on Thursday evening last and proceeded to organize "The Ann Arbor Cycle Club." Prof. Levi D. Wines acted as chairman and Henry J. Brown as Secretary.

There was a whirl of discussion for a time and then the meeting turned its pedals over to business, evolved a constitution, which was adopted, and the signatures of some sixty enthusiastic wheelmen was at once attached thereto.

The officers chosen are from the class of people who make things hum when they take hold of it, as follows:

President—Dr. Fleming Carrow.
Vice-Presidents—H. J. Brown, Mrs. Dr. J. N. Martin, Dr. Fitzgerald.
Secretary—Ralph C. McAllister.
Treasurer—J. H. Wade.
Executive Com.—Prof. F. M. Taylor, J. J. Goodyear.

Members of the Council—Dr. V. C. Vaughan, Mrs. J. V. Sheehan, Mrs. J. E. Reighard, E. L. Seyler, S. A. Moran, Dr. C. G. Darling, Robert Phillips, E. E. Calkins, P. C. Freer, Frank H. Warren, Mrs. Mary Wood-Allen, E. D. Campbell, J. H. Drake, Chas. Davis.

As the dealers here assert that there are 2,500 wheels owned in the city, it certainly seems as if an organization might be effected that would be effective in carrying forward needed reforms in some of our ways—high ways.

The main object, we understand, of the club is to secure better roads, and to keep the streets clean from broken glass, tacks and sharp objects that ruin the tires of wheels. A bicycle path to Whitmore Lake is one of the proposed desiderata.

The membership fee is only 25 cents, so that every one can afford to unite with the club.

The Whole Story.

Of the great sales attained and great cures accomplished by Hood's Sarsaparilla is quickly told. It purifies and enriches the blood, tones the stomach, and gives strength and vigor. Disease cannot enter the system fortified by the rich, red blood which comes by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

High School Notes—

School closes Wednesday evening for the Thanksgiving vacation.

The S. C. A. meets every Friday afternoon from 4:15 to 4:45. All are invited to attend.

Prof. and Mrs. Perry, Misses Porter and Hunt attended the funeral of Miss Dekey at Marshall.

The last half of the first semester began last week Wednesday, and all tuition for the last half, is now due.

The Athletic Association will give a party in the near future. As they are much in need of money it is hoped that there may be a large attendance.

The foot ball team goes to Grand Rapids Wednesday evening, where they will play the High School team of that place, Thanksgiving afternoon. Grand Rapids has not been defeated this year, and our boys are confident of administering to them their first defeat.

The foot ball team was defeated at Detroit Friday, by the High School team of that place. It was a hard fought game, but the referee, who was a Detroit man, was very unfair to our boys in many respects. Our line, the Detroit boys could not go through for any kind of a gain, they making their gains around the ends. About five minutes after the game began, Scharder, half back for Ann Arbor, broke his collar bone, and by this accident some of the boys lost their nerve. The final score was 12 to 0.

That's What's the Matter—

"Do you know what's the matter with the Episcopal church?" said a prominent citizen a day or two since.

"No, I didn't know anything was the matter with that church," was the reply.

"Well there is."

What is it?" was asked.

"This," was the answer, "the ministry of that church needs Americanizing. Many—not all—of the Episcopal ministers ape English speech, manners and customs in the pulpit. Such things may be all right for Canada, but they are not the thing for the United States. What we want is good plain Anglo Saxon. I like the service of that church. It is beautiful. But I have heard so many of its ministers who ape the English in the pulpit that it has made me cautious about attending. What that church needs is more Americans in its pulpits."

The above is the opinion of a pretty good man.

Hasn't the war gone far enough in Cuba? Would not our president be entirely justified in recognizing the Cubans as belligerents? It certainly would seem so.

Wars come in cycles, so says the man who keeps track of such things, and the cycle is about up. Consequently the government is urged to strengthen her coast defenses and in times of peace prepare for war.

Now there will be a chance for the old-time greenbacks to squeal. The next administration will probably retire all the greenbacks. They came into existence as a war measure and they have served their time. Their presence now means mischief.

A dispatch from Des Moines, Iowa, under date of Nov. 18, says:

"Edward W. Curry, chairman of the democratic state committee, died at the Savery house today of blood poisoning, the result of initiation into the Elk's lodge here a few weeks ago. He was seated in an electric chair and horribly burned before those operating it realized what they were doing. It was kept quiet until this morning. It was given out at his request that he had hemorrhoids."

Poor Blood

When a horse is poor in flesh, a new harness won't give him strength. If a house is cold new furniture won't warm it. If your strength is easily exhausted; work a burden; nerves weak; digestion poor; muscles soft; if you are pale and worn out, the trouble is with the blood. It is not so much IMPURE blood as POOR blood. Pills won't make this blood rich; nor will bitter, nor iron tonics, any more than a new harness will give strength to the horse, or new furniture will make a house warm. Judgment has just been rendered at Massillon, Ohio, declaring the liability of sleeping car companies for money stolen from passengers in their cars.

The speakership chances for our representative, Mr. Sawyer, is very good indeed, and improving every day. Being entirely conservative and friendly to all, the two extremes who are fighting each other, naturally prefer him to a victory for the opponents. And so he forges ahead.

Newspaper readers will remember that W. C. P. Breckenridge, who lectured here two years ago, had his box receipts at the lecture in Cincinnati, attached for costs in the case of Madeline Pollard, who had a heavy judgment against him for breach of promise. The attachment was last winter, and decision has just been rendered against Breckenridge. If he can't get pay for lecturing, he will probably conclude not to lecture, especially if people won't go to hear him, as they showed him in Wisconsin. And if he can't get into congress, as the people of Kentucky have now twice shown him, he may want to do something else. Mebby he'd better pay the judgment.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

The Ypsilanti Sentinel still refuses to see where the difference is between free silver at a ratio of 16 to 1, and bimetalism.

As near as possible we will inform him of the difference as we view it. Free silver, at a ratio of 16 to 1, would debase the currency of the country, gold would immediately go to a premium and disappear, and we would have silver monometalism, for silver alone would be the circulating medium.

Bimetalism means the use of both gold and silver, not only as money metals, but as money in actual circulation among the people.

The Courier is a believer in bimetalism and stands fairly and squarely upon this plank in the St. Louis platform:

"We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver, except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, when we pledge ourselves to promote."

The Courier will go a step further, and say that it is not opposed to the free coinage of silver at its actual ratio, though such a law might be troublesome from the fact that silver is fluctuating in value, and the coin of to-day might go to a premium tomorrow, or vice versa. By international agreement, no matter what the value of silver bullion would be, silver coin would pass for its face value. A stable currency is what the commercial nations of the world need, and the sooner they get together and agree upon it, the better for all. A currency that can be made use of by boards of trade or gamblers or stock brokers is not safe for any nation.

Is it clear?

The old story of Prometheus is a parable. Prometheus was on terms of intimacy with the gods. From them he stole fire and gave it to man. For this sin he was bound to the rocks of Mount Caucasus, and vultures were set upon him. They only ate liver. This grew again as fast as it was pecked away. Are his sufferings to be imagined?

Take a modern interpretation of the parable. There is no cooking without fire. In cooking and eating the mischief lies. The stomach is overtasked, the bowels become clogged, they cannot dispose of the food that is given them. The impurities back up on the liver. Then come the vultures—the torments of a diseased liver. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is more than equal to the vultures of dyspepsia and its kindred diseases. There is no more need of suffering from dyspepsia than there is of hanging one's self. Sold by all medicine dealers the world over.

NEGROES IN CHICAGO.

[Chicago Times-Herald.]

During the last three months I have spent most of the time in Chicago. My hotel is only three blocks distant from my office, yet I rarely walk from one place to the other without being accosted by one or more beggars. In the warm weather one of the serious drawbacks to the comfort of sitting in front of my hotel evenings and smoking my after-dinner cigar was the certainty of being accosted by some stalwart suppliant for the price of a meal. I do not write this for the purpose of complaining of the police or of asking whether there is any ordinance against begging in Chicago, and, if so, why is it not enforced. My purpose is to note the significant fact that among all these sidewalk beggars I have not seen a single colored man. The negro population of Chicago is about 30,000, and it is greatly to its credit that it furnishes no contingent, so far as my observation goes, to the great army of mendicants that infest the principal thoroughfares of the city.

On a sleeping car a few nights ago I made the acquaintance of the editor of the Chicago weekly newspaper which serves as the special organ for the colored population of the city. I told him of my experience with the Chicago beggars and asked him how he accounted for the nonappearance of negroes among them. To my surprise his answer was this: That the negroes are an industrious class and do not long remain out of a job. Now the popular idea of the average colored citizen is that his one particular vice is laziness. My friend, the editor, insisted that whatever natural tendencies may be inherent in the negro race that makes them want to sit in the sun and do nothing, this tendency has been pretty well eliminated by a heredity of many generations of hard work. He called attention to the great disabilities the colored people still labor under by reason of the fact that most of the vocations in which white men engage are closed to them by a custom that is stronger than law.

In spite of the barriers which popular prejudice has thrown around these people to keep them out of nearly all handicrafts, mercantile pursuits and employments connected with transportation, it is certainly remarkable that nearly all of them manage to be self-sustaining and independent. The colored men can be a barber, a waiter, a porter, house servant or a janitor in a business block, but these are about, all the occupations in which he can find employment. The colored editor pointed out with considerable animation the difficulties which lie in the way of success for a young colored boy who has gone through the schools with credit, who has a good home and refined associations and who wants to make something of himself in life. If he has mechanical talent, no shop wants him for an apprentice. If he thinks he has ability for trade, no store will admit him as a clerk. He cannot be an accountant or a bookkeeper, no matter how good he may be in mathematics. He will not be accepted as a street car conductor or motorman or in any of the branches of railway service. In fact, there is scarcely any avocation open to him which does not wear the badge of servility. He must be servant in one way or another.

It is true that a few, a very few, colored men are able to rise above the surviving class. There are in Chicago thirty colored lawyers and about twenty colored doctors. Probably there are fifty colored ministers. The colored people of Chicago own about $500,000 worth of church property. In the district largely peopled by negroes a few colored men keep small stores to supply people of their own race. In politics, however, the negroes appear to have a very fair chance in Chicago. The third ward has long had a colored member of the legislature. There are now about thirty colored men on the police force. Carter Harrison was the first mayor to make the innovation of putting a police uniform on a negro. When he was asked to appoint two negroes on the force he said they would have to wear citizen's clothes or they would be killed. The colored delegation that went to him to make the application said that the two men they recommended were brave fellows and willing to take their chances. "Well said Harrison, 'let them put on the uniform and get killed if they want to.'" There was good deal of talk at the time about white men being arrested by "niggers," but the two colored policemen performed their duties without any special peril.

My friend, the colored editor, said that the popular prejudice against his race is particularly hard on the young woman. Many of them graduate from the schools with high honors and are ambitious to earn something to help in the support of their households. They read good books, belong to literary societies and are intellectually the equals of the average young white girls of the working classes. For, the young white girl of good education there are many occupations open in the city, but for the colored girl there is absolutely nothing but to become a house servant. She cannot be a clerk in a store, a bookkeeper, a milliner, a stenographer or a teacher. She probably has the same aversion to domestic service that a white girl of equal intelligence naturally feels. She must either work as a cook or chambermaid or stay at home and do nothing. The Best Market.

The aim of the Protectionist is to hold the home market first of all for the domestic producer. What kind of a market is it? Is it worth holding? Mr. Carroll D. Wright of the Department of Labor, in a recent address, described some of its characteristics. In 30 years the manufacture of pig iron has increased 100 per cent, the railroad mileage is 150 per cent, greater than it was 16 years ago; the passenger traffic 500 per cent, greater, and the number of freight tons moved nearly 400 per cent, larger. The cotton crop of the South has doubled since the war. The coal deposits in a single strip of territory from Pennsylvania to Alabama contain "forty times the amount of coal accessible to economical production and distribution that was contained in the coal fields of Great Britain before a pick was struck." Not only these things; but the American people consume far more of the good things of life, without an exception, than any two, perhaps more than four, other nations on the face of the earth. This is a market which Free-Traders would open to foreigners without obtaining recompense of any kind for such a sacrifice. Further, this is the nation, with all this tremendous potentiality of wealth, which has to borrow money to pay the expenses of its Government; that permits its business to be paralyzed and its finances disordered because a few beggarly millions of gold vanish from its Treasury; which paid away last year ten millions of the property of the people to European bankers for upholding its credit, and which shivers whenever London financiers frown.—"The Manufacturer."

McKinley is elected. It means that thousands of men and women now idle will have a chance to earn a living; that hungry mouths will be fed and poverty-stricken homes be made happy.—Chicago, Ill., "Times Herald," November 4, 1896.

"TIS LOVE THAT MAKES THE WORLD GO ROUND."

Some people think money is a greater power than love. Oh! What a mistake! See how the great money kings are controlled by the little boy Cupid! See how the great soldiers and men of power are twisted around his little fingers! A woman's most precious possession is the capacity for awakening pure and noble love. More potent than wit or intellect is the womanly capacity for happy wifehood and motherhood. A woman who is weak or diseased in the special organism of her sex is deprived of the power and prestige which naturally belong to her. Such troubles are not a necessity. Perfect health and strength of the feminine organism is insured by proper care and the aids afforded by enlightened medical science. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures all weaknesses and diseases of woman's special organism. For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. No other physician has had a more extensive practice of greater success in the treatment of women's diseases. No other such perfect and scientific remedy for these ailments has ever been devised. It has restored health, strength and womanly power to tens of thousands of women. Women who would understand their own powers and possibilities should read Doctor Pierce's thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the most interesting and enlightening book of the kind ever published. A paper-bound copy will be sent absolutely free to any one sending 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For a handsome cloth-bound copy send 31 stamps.

The Woman's League objects to certain advertisements, which are representations of figures clothed in underwear only, or corsets. They will ask the council to enforce the ordinance prohibiting the display of indecent pictures in public places.

A colored man named George Brown was arrested Friday last, on a serious charge preferred by his stepdaughter Rosa Washington, a girl under 16 years of age. Ball was fixed at $1,500 and the prisoner sent to the county jail. If the offense is proven, the penalty will be life imprisonment.

The Lady Maccabees of the Ypsilanti Five gave their first annual entertainment last Wednesday evening, and it was a great success. The program consisted of three A's—Anecdotes, Articles and Art Souvenirs. The articles consisted of pop-corn balls and the art souvenirs were tastefully printed (pen and ink) inscriptions on corn husks. An address was made by Lady Commander Mrs. Mae E. Stannard, to which there were responses.

HER HAPPY DAY.

A CHARMING STORY OF MEDICINE AND MARRIAGE.

Two Open Letters From a Chicago Girl.—How Happiness Came to Her.

Among the tens of thousands of women who apply to Mrs. Pinkham for advice and are cured, are many who wish the facts in their cases made public, but do not give permission to publish their names for reasons as obvious as in the following, and no name is ever published without the writer's authority; this is a bond of faith which Mrs. Pinkham has never broken.

Chicago, Jan. 5th, '95.
My dear Mrs. Pinkham—
A friend of mine, Mrs. —, wants me to write you, because she says: "you did her so much good." I am now a mere skeleton. From your little book I think my trouble is profuse menstruation. My symptoms are * * * * *
Our doctor (my uncle) tells father that I am in consumption, and wants to take me to Florida. Please help me: Tell me what to do, and tell me quickly I am engaged to be married in September. Shall I live to see the day? * * * * *
LUCY E. W.

Chicago, June 10th, '95.
My dear Mrs. Pinkham—
This is a happy day. I am well and gaining weight daily, but shall continue the treatment and Vegetable Compound during the summer, as you suggest. Uncle knows nothing about what you have done for me, because it would make things very unpleasant in the family. I would like to give you a testimonial to publish, but father would not allow it. * * * * * I shall be married in September, and as we go to Boston, will call upon you. How can I prove my gratitude? * * * * *
LUCY E. W.

Just such cases as the above leak out in women's circles, and that is why the confidence of the women of America is bestowed upon Mrs. Pinkham.

Why are not physicians more candid with women when suffering from such ailments?

Women want the truth, and if they cannot get it from their doctor, will seek it elsewhere.

COUNTY AND VICINITY.

The L. O. T. M's of Mooreville, cleared $9 by a recent social.

Harry Stever, of Ipswich, N. Dak., is visiting his parents at Milan.

Wm. Bertke and family have moved from Sharon to Milwaukee, Wis.

Miss Nettie Herrick and Wm. Alber of Sharon, are to be married soon.

There is to be a dance in the Dexter opera house on Thanksgiving night.

The Reading and Literary Club of Dexter held its first meeting with Mrs. Seeper.

The new desks, seats, etc., have arrived at Milan for their new school building.

Whittaker has three aspirants for the postoffice. Must be a paying concern.

John Merrimane, formerly of Grass Lake, is the new night operator at Chelsea.

The people of Pinckney are to decide by ballot who is to be postmaster at that place.

Ann E. Smith has bought two houses and lots of Jas. Beasley on North street, Chelsea.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church of Milan, will hold a bazaar on Saturday, Dec. 12th.

No Thanksgiving party will be given by either the girls or boys of Manchester this year.

Verne Hendershot of Dundee, got 60 days in jail for over-driving and misusing a horse.

The Chelsea fire department now revels in two new hose carts and 1,000 feet of new hose.

Mr. Ryan, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. J. Quigg, of Webster, died suddenly at his home in Wayne, recently.

Martin Merkel, of Chelsea, has been serving as a juror in the U. S. court at Detroit, during the past week.

Hog cholera is raging among the farms north of Pinckney, over 100 hogs having died within a short time.

Baled rye straw has been one of the commodities shipped from Manchester this season in considerable quantities.

A man rolled three barrels of apples into the yard of Mat. Blosser at Manchester, and Mat. didn't get mad about it!

If the kids at Manchester don't stop jumping on the Lake Shore train at the crossing, they will get pulled by the village marshal.

Mrs. Mary Hinckey, who was born in 1812, died at Lansing recently, and the remains were taken to Pinckney, her home for many years, for burial.

Mrs. Mary E. Tubbs, of Dexter, has purchased the farm of Job A. Marshall, in Lodi. Mr. Marshall expects to remove to Ann Arbor to live.

There'll be a settlement with turkey before our next issue. A dead duck, sure!—Mhan Leader. Bet that editor will be a gobbler of turkey too.

John Gotts will put up 40 rods of patent fence for Watson-Barr, of Stony Creek, without money and without price, all because he bet on the wrong man.

Ingham county rejoices in the possession of a school house called by the queer cognomen "Break o'day school house." They must keep early hours in that location.—Northville Record.

P. B. Miller's old blacksmith shop at Manchester is to be turned into an ice house this season. Well, the ice caused many a shoe to be turned out of that shop. This is another turn, that's all.

They drew the name of a Dundee citizen who had been dead for over two years, for one of the jurors in the U. S. court at Detroit, recently. But even courts can not raise the dead, so he will not attend.

A Chelsea scholar in physiology described his "diabolical" nerve. How is it, Bro. Hoover, is he any relation to the man who stopped his paper and then borrowed his neighbor's to read?—Stockbridge Sun.

George Eaton, while feeding a corn shredding machine at work on the farm of George Holley near Saline, Friday, had his left hand drawn in, and ground to pieces, necessitating amputation above the wrist.

Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Honey, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Quisk, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. James, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Thompson, and H. D. Stannard, all of Dexter, came down to hear Richard Mansfield at the opera house last Wednesday evening.

Burtless & Ampoker have a curiosity in the way of a five-legged steer. The animal is about two years old. The fifth leg starts at the back of the neck and hangs downward, but does not touch the ground.—Manchester Enterprise.

A brilliant and pleasant social event was the marriage on Wednesday evening last, of Miss Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henkin, at Manchester, to Frank Davis, of Portsmouth, Ohio. About 30 relatives were present.

Peter Vansidrinhyster of Plymouth is sick. We hope he will get well and go on heroically bearing the burdens of life, as he must have done for all these years that have passed since the day of his christening.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

Willard Foster, who had lived for 60 years on the same farm in Scio, died on Thursday last, aged 83 years 3 mos. and 3 days. Funeral services were held Saturday from the house of Rev. B. L. McElroy conducting the same. The remains were taken to Detroit for burial.

We are credibly informed that after John P. Kirk read the election returns from Superior, and noticed the splendid vote given him for the office of prosecuting attorney, he decided at once to select a life partner from this township. John needn't look any further.—Superior cor. Ypsi. Commercial.

The Baptist church at Dundee has had its pulpit filled for a time by Rev. Frances Percival, an alleged convert from the Roman Catholic church. Some unsavory stories were to be investigated during the week, and on Tuesday evening last, he unceremoniously folded his tent and left for other parts—Chicago, it is said.

It is told that a tramp recently called at a residence in the village and petitioned the lady of the house to give him a cup of coffee. She very pleasantly told him that if he would saw a few sticks of wood she would give him his breakfast. "Thank you, madam," said hungry William. "If anybody should ask for me, just tell 'em that you saw me but you didn't saw me saw."—Dexter Leader.

Miss Carrie M. Jackson, editor of the Milford Times, was recently wedded to her foreman, Grant Roe. Now we look to see some editorial griffin grind out his "graff" about Roe "pressing" her "form" in a loving "embrace," popping the "???" and waiting during the "period" of her "pause" for the "???", "O, Roe me, O!" If any newspaper monster, so ink lined, rises up in his jungle, it will become the duty of the editorial brotherhood to "chase" him with a "shooting-stick" and leave him "off his feet" for the crows to "pick up" or "distribute" as "dead matter."—Adrian Press.

Price, the millionaire Baking Powder man, writes as follows: "Send me a dozen boxes of Gesslers Magic Headache Wafers. I would not be without them for all the world. They are the best cure for Headaches I have ever found and leave no bad after effects. If you have a headache you cannot afford to be without them." They are guaranteed to cure or your money refunded. A. E. Mumery, your druggist, will tell you there are none half so good. Price reduced to 25 cents per box.

DON'T STOP TOBACCO

IT'S INJURIOUS TO STOP SUDDENLY and don't be imposed upon by buying a remedy that requires you to do so, as it is nothing more than a substitute. In the sudden stoppage of tobacco you must have some stimulant, and in most cases, the effect of the stimulant, be it opium, morphine, or other opiates, leaves a far worse habit contracted. Ask your druggist about BACO CURO. It is purely vegetable. You do not have to stop using tobacco with BACO-CURO. It will notify you when to stop and your desire for tobacco will cease. Your system will be as free from nicotine as the day before you took your first chew or smoke. An iron clad written guarantee to absolutely cure the tobacco habit in all its forms, or money refunded. Price $1.00 per box or 3 boxes (30 days treatment and guaranteed cure), $2.50. For sale by all druggists or will be sent by mail upon receipt of price. SEND SIX TWO CENT STAMPS FOR SAMPLE BOX. Booklets and proofs free. Eureka Chemical & Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis.

Eureka Chemical & Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis.

Dear Sirs—I have been a tobacco fiend for many years, and during the past two years have smoked fifteen to twenty cigars regularly every day. My whole nervous system became affected, until my physician told me I must give up the use of tobacco for the time being at least. I tried the so-called "Keeley Cure," "No-To-Bac," and various other remedies, but without success, until I accidentally learned of your "Baco-Curo." Three weeks ago to-day I commenced using your preparation, and to-day I consider myself completely cured; I am in perfect health, and the horrible craving for tobacco, which every inveterate smoker fully appreciates, has completely left me. I consider your "Baco Curo" simply wonderful, and can fully recommend it.

Yours truly,
C. W. HORNSTOK.

Rev. T. I. Tamama, the Japanese student who addressed an audience
at Newberry Hall Saturday evening, was highly entertaining, and gave his hearers a clearer idea of Japanese customs and ways than they ever had before. Mr. Tamama is a good speaker, has a fair command of the English language, and takes his audience through "The Land of the Rising Sun," in a way that is entertaining. The stereopticon views with which his lecture is illustrated, are also good.

The great field enclosed at Chicago,
and known as the Coliseum, will be ready for the foot ball teams to-day, when the struggle takes place between the U. of M. and Chicago. This great structure stands where the wild west show was at the World's Fair, which those who visited that great exposition will remember. It is some seven miles or more from the center of Chicago, but the elevated road, the Illinois Central suburban trains, several lines of street cars, all reach it,
so that it is really only 15 or 20
minutes ride from the heart of Chicago. Great is Chicago, and great will be the game to-day. Many think that the excitement will be almost equal to that of the great so-called democratic national convention that met in the same place last summer and was led on to frenzy by the Boy Orator, Pitchfork Tillman, et al.

THE FUTURE OF SILVER.
Now that the struggle is over, and it has been settled that for the next two years and more the opponents of the silver standard will be in control of both the legislative and the executive branches of the national government,
the question suggests itself whether at the expiration of that period, fresh efforts will be needed to maintain the position that has been won, or whether the silver craze will, in the meanwhile, have subsided so that no further fight will be made in its behalf. The leading silverites in this country unanimously declare that, though beaten,
they are not dismayed. Mr. Bryan says that "the gold standard is a conspiracy of the money changers against the human race," and, therefore, he will continue the warfare against it, and Gov. Altgeld claims that "one more campaign of education will fore-ever bury the palsied form of that curse which has blighted the happiness and the prosperity of mankind." In the same spirit the British bi-metallic league hails the election of the Republican candidate as an assurance that the promise of his party to do all in its power to promote an international agreement for the free coinage of silver will now be performed. In view of these expressions of opinion and of the slender majorities by which in many states free silver was defeated,
it may well be doubted whether the end of the controversy has been reached. With 6,000,000 of the voters of the country taking one side and only 7,000, 000 taking the other, a great deal more education is plainly needed to secure for the establishment of the gold standard the general consent which is indispensable to its permanency.

This needed education will not be the work of speeches and essays alone.
Something more directly appealing to people's self-interest is necessary to influence their action. This country would never have declared its independence of Great Britain on purely theoretical and sentimental grounds. The tea tax and the stamp tax brought home to the patriotic sense the mischief of colonial subjection much more impressively than did the orations of political leaders. Great Britain did not repeal her oppressive corn laws
from mere consideration for the consumers of bread. The repeal was secured by the clamors of the hungry multitude and by fears of a popular uprising. All the labors of the Abolitionists failed to suppress slavery in the southern states, and it was not until those states arose in armed rebellion that their slaves were freed as a war measure. So, to, as long as the gold standard is defended by abstract reasoning only, it will fail to commend itself to the millions who are alive to the injuries which they think it causes
them. They must be made to feel its benefits by actual experience before
they will abandon their opposition to it, and until this is accomplished we
shall never be secured against the recurrence of just such contests as that
from which we have now emerged.

Opposition to the gold standard rests
chiefly upon the assumption that it
has not only measured the fall in prices
of agricultural products, of which
so much complaint is made, but that it has been the agency which has produced it. In vain it is pointed out that
this fall occurred, for the most part,
more than 10 years ago, and that during the last ten years it has been inconsiderable; in vain, too, is attention called to the actual rise in many articles
of the same class as those which have fallen, and, above all, to the universal
rise of the wages of labor in every country where the gold standard prevails; the assertion is obstinately repeated that the gold standard is the cause of low prices, and that, therefore, silver ought to be substituted for
it. It is true that prices would be higher if they were measured in silver than
they are while measured in gold, but
silver would not, in all cases, restore
the prices that prevailed before the present level was reached, although in some it would lift them higher. This consideration has little weight with men who have debts to pay, and who would
pay them more easily if they could sell
the products of their labor at silver prices instead of gold prices. Even to those who are not in debt high prices
are more attractive than low prices,
notwithstanding they involve paying as

the injuries which they think it causes
them. They must be made to feel its
benefits by actual experience before
they will abandon their opposition to
it, and until this is accomplished we
shall never be secured against the recurrence of just such contests as that
from which we have now emerged.

Opposition to the gold standard rests
chiefly upon the assumption that it
has not only measured the fall in prices
of agricultural products, of which
so much complaint is made, but that
it has been the agency which has produced it. In vain it is pointed out that
this fall occurred, for the most part,
more than 10 years ago, and that during the last ten years it has been incon-
siderable; in vain, too, is attention cal-
led to the actual rise in many articles
of the same class as those which have
fallen, and, above all, to the universal
rise of the wages of labor in every
country where the gold standard pre-
vails; the assertion is obstinately repeated that the gold standard is the cause of low prices, and that, therefore, silver ought to be substituted for
it. It is true that prices would be higher if they were measured in silver than
they are while measured in gold, but
silver would not, in all cases, restore
the prices that prevailed before the
present level was reached, although in
some it would lift them higher. This
consideration has little weight with men
who have debts to pay, and who would
pay them more easily if they could sell
the products of their labor at silver
prices instead of gold prices. Even to those who are not in debt high prices
are more attractive than low prices,
notwithstanding they involve paying as

much more for what is bought as is guided by selling for more what is sold.
Hope for reconciliation to the gold standard in this respect rests chiefly upon the power of time to render its effects familiar. Every year that it is maintained the memory of former high prices becomes weaker, and, eventually, after existing debts have been paid off, the conditions of which debtors now complain will no longer survive to cause discontent.

Habit, however, like confidence, is of slow growth, and the process of educating people into the acceptance of the gold standard by its continued
prevalence must necessarily be slow and tedious, besides being liable to interruptions by accident, which may undo in a month the work of years. A speedier and more certain way of reconciling to the supremacy of gold the people who now detest it will be a demonstration that under it as well as under the reign of silver high prices may prevail. Such a cure for the silver craze, although it is not immediately
at hand is, nevertheless, approaching.
The world's production of gold is growing larger year by year, while the sudden addition to the supply of other commodities, which commenced 20 years ago, has received a check. Consumption is therefore, catching up with production, and will thus aid in the restoration of the ancient level of prices.

But whatever be the steps by which the result is reached, and the length of time consumed in reaching it, no doubt can exist in the mind of the dis-passionate observer of the cause of events that silver is doomed, sooner or later, in the great civilized countries, to be discarded as a money metal. It is going the way of sheep, cattle, iron, and copper which have successively been in Europe used as money; of wampum and skins, which were the currency of our own early days,
and it will take its place with cowries,
salt, tobacco, tea, and other commodities which still survive as circulating mediums in Asia and Africa. The European bimetallics talk of a "scientific" double standard, but the very name of a "double" standard is of itself unscientific. Two standards may be employed alternately, but to combine them into one is as impossible as to make one animal out of a horse and a cow. As to the alleged superior stability of such a chimera, it is enough to say that it adds to the inevitable instability of a single standard, that of the fluctuation between two standards, neither of which can be counted
upon to remain permanently in force.
In short, bimetallicism, national or international, is a self-evident scientific absurdity, advocated only from the same dishonest motive of debasing the currency which actuates the advocates of free silver coinage. Its avowed purpose is to reduce the value of the monetary unit, or in other words, to compel creditors to accept in payment of their claims less than they are entitled by their contracts to receive.

Even for use as subsidiary coin, silver is needlessly expensive, and its place can readily be filled with bronze or some other cheap material, protection against counterfeiting being secured by workmanship superior to that now bestowed upon silver. The 360 odd millions of silver dollars stored away
in our treasury vaults might as well as not be sold for what they will bring as bullion. They add nothing to the value of the silver certificates, which represents them, since that value is derived, like the value of the legal tender notes, entirely from their availability in paying customs duties and internal revenue taxes. The whole mass of them and of the bullion purchased under the Sherman act might be annihilated, and the paper money nominally based upon it would be just as valuable as it is now and would circulate just as readily. If, too, all our silver dollars and fractions of dollars were replaced with bronze medals, these, too, would be just as good currency as silver coins are at present.
They do not pass by virtue of their being composed of silver, but because the government accepts them, and,
consequently, the public accepts them,
at their nominal value in gold. Taking this country and Europe together, there is in existence silver used as money to the amount of perhaps $1,000, 000,000, all of which, eventually, will come on the market and be sold and melted up.

The talk of politicians, who desire to placate the partisans of silver, about promoting a larger use of silver for the purpose of arresting a further decline in its commercial value, proceeds therefore, either from blindness to facts or from wilful purpose to deceive. The gold standard is supplanting that of silver as surely as a locomotive, electricity and cables are supplanting horses on railroads and as steam engines are taking the place of sails on ships. Silver money will be banished to the semi-civilized regions
of Asia, Africa and South America, and there it will linger only until the march of improvement drives it out,
as it will have been driven out here,
The age of silver is past and that of gold has succeeded it.—Matthew Marshall, in New York Sun.

Mrs. Sunderland's lecture at the Unitarian church Monday evening, on "Florence, Venice and Pompeii," was a charming one. She carried her hearers through the streets of these cities in a way that made one feel almost as if they too were treading those historic grounds. No lectures that have been delivered in our city this season, at least, can equal these of Mrs. Sunderland, descriptive of her recent travels. She is a woman who journeyed with eyes open and ears keen, mind receptive, memory perfect, and she has a most delightful fund of pure English with which to tell others of what she saw and heard in these old cities that have stood for thousands of years.

Electric Light

THE BEST

Some of the Advantages of Electric Light:

	Cubic feet of air vitiated.	Cubic feet of carbonic acid produced.	Heat produced in 1 lb Watt's raised 1° Fahrenheit.
12 c. p. Incandescent Lamp	None.	None.	13.8
12 c. p. Gas Light	345.25	3.21	278.6
12 c. p. Kerosene Lamp	376.30	3.54	232.6

Some of the Disadvantages of Gas:

Air consumed.	Carbonic Acid thrown off.
Heat.	Unsteadiness of Light.
Freezing Pipes.	Danger of Suffocation.
Humidity.	Danger from use of Matches.
Ceilings Blackened.	Water and Air in Pipes.
Sulphur thrown off.	Metals and Gildings Tarnished.
Ammonia thrown off.	Sulphuretted Hydrogen thrown off.
Gas cannot be inverted to throw light down.

None of these Disadvantages Accompany Electric Lighting.

In general the Incandescent Electric Light is much healthier and much more convenient to use than any other method of lighting, and is more economical for amount of light furnished than gas.

Electricity for all kinds of Power. Electricity for Heating.

The ripest and sweetest leaf and the purest ingredients are used in the manufacture of "Battle Ax," and no matter how much you pay for a much smaller piece of any other high-grade brand, you cannot buy a better chew than "Battle Ax." For 5 cents you get a piece of "Battle Ax" almost as large as the other fellow's 10-cent piece.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.
New Jackets—"Imperial" Collars—Velvet Capes—Furs—Collarettes—Neck Boas—"Marie Antoinette" Muffs—Fur Trimmings—Trimmed Skirts—

The front and back of winter jackets are not always similar; as for example the "Watteau" plait appears with a tight front, or a plain loose back may have a closely fitting front, or double breasted fronts fastened with from one to six large buttons, are appropriate to any style of back. Jacket skirts are of medium length, and sleeves are a larger edition of dressed sleeves—close below the elbow with a puff at the top. Braiding is much in favor, or fur collars with handsome cloth are always desirable. Slashed jacket collars are new and another collar, very broad at the front, is called the "imperial," and for outdoor garments overshadows all others at present. Black velvet jackets are shaped almost exactly like cloth jackets, but the lavish use of fur jet trimmings materially enhanced their cost. Velvet capes are fitted at the back or have the "Watteau" plait, and fur collarettes, sometimes with lace below, or jet passementerie bands placed over the shoulders and reaching to the lower edge are a favorite style.

FURS are now an all-absorbing topic, and styles originated or introduced by C. C. Shayne, are subject of special interest to the elite of the city, or connoisseurs in such matters. Russian sable, seal, Hudson Bay otter, mink or Persian lamb, hold a foremost position, and selection becomes simply an exercise of individual taste. A seal coat with imperial collar, with or without sable toils, varying from twenty-four to thirty inches in length, fills so many requirements that the demand for it remains standard, and the same shape is repeated in Hudson Bay otter or Persian lamb. A tight-fitting Persian lamb coat with imperial collar of Grebe, Hudson Bay otter or Russian sable, is well adapted to the display of a slender figure, and is additionally handsome in seal or Hudson Bay otter.

THE NEWEST MATERIAL for Winter capes is Grebe, the skin of a bird, showing beautiful natural gray stripes, and a cape having a yoke of seal or otter, with animal heads around it, with the lower part and collar of Grebe, is the leading cape of the season. A Persian lamb yoke cape with chinchilla collar, brings out the beauties of both furs to great advantage, or if desired, a Grebe or sable collar may be substituted. Collars or collarettes as they are often called, supply the place of the genuine cape, costing much less, yet very jaunty and handsome.

AS AN ILLUSTRATION comes the "Vienna" collar of Persian lamb, made very full, with imperial collar, and trimmed with Fisher tails and heads. The "Revere" collar is pointed at the front, slashed on the shoulders and ornamented with six tails at the front. The "Star" collar is pointed on the shoulder, having a cluster of tails and an animal head on the points, and the "Reed" collar has eighteen tails at the front, divided into three rows. Black or colored cloth capes, with imperial collar and front trimmed with Alaska sable and lined with Siberian squirrel, are the best possible substitutes for a fur cape, a twenty inch length being $25.00 and longer ones at a proportionate price. Neck boas, finished with tails are as fashionable as ever, and of course, price depends upon the number of tails. The "Marie Antoinette" muff is the leading style—very large, with flaring ends showing gay brocaded silk linings, and a pocket-book may be firmly attached to the inner side if desired; a wonderful convenience in shopping. Chinchilla, ermine or mandarin are favorites for evening, the first named however cannot be out of place. Inch wide trimmings of mink tail, ordinary mink, Persian lamb, stone-marten or chinchilla are in enormous demand, as fur is employed with almost every material this season; even as cross-bands on a white chiffon front.

TRIMMED SKIRTS are now a certainty, and braid, ribbon velvet, applique borders, fur bands either headed by passementerie or plain, divided popular favor. A wine embossed velvet band may be placed near the waist, a second about half way up, and a third at the lower edge of the skirt. Where the material has a large figure, a foot ruffle only is used, and on evening dresses, chiffon frills bound with satin, or accordion-plaited, are soft and pretty. Ball dresses range from plain velvet to chiffon or gauze over satin; necks round and low, and sleeves very short. Artificial flowers are used in profusion, wreaths around the neck and sleeves, with large clusters of roses anywhere that fancy may dictate.

ANOTHER LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

Advices Use of Dr. Greene's Nervura Because He Knows It Will Cure.

Lieut.-Governor Fletcher Bids the Weak, Nervous and Discouraged to Hope, for the Wonderful Dr. Greene's Nervura Will Surely Cure Them.

The world believes its great men. Their word is accepted as truth, their example followed, their advice taken. Knowing this fact, the illustrious Lieut.-Governor of Vermont, Hon. Henry A. Fletcher, of Proctorsville, Vt., who is the descendant of a long line of Statesmen and Kalers, tells the people if they wish to get well, if they desire to get back their health and strength, to use Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy because he knows from personal experience, from its use in his own family and among his friends, and from having observed time and time again its wonderful curative powers, that it will surely and certainly cure, that it will give strength to the weak, strong nerves to the nervous, natural refreshing sleep to the sleepless, perfect digestion to the dyspeptic, rich, red blood to the feeble, freedom from pain to the rheumatic, in fact, sound and vigorous health to all who use it.

Lieut.-Governor Fletcher's family have been leaders and advisers of the people and publicly identified with the history of the United States for more than a hundred years. His father was both Lieut.-Governor and Governor of Vermont and his grandfather was one of the framers of the Constitution of Massachusetts. Certainly no higher testimonial, no greater proof of a medicine's wonderful power to cure can possibly be given than is here bestowed upon Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy by this most distinguished statesman and head of the government of the state. Surely no one who is ill, worn-out, run-down, weak, nervous, discouraged and disheartened by repeated failures to be cured can require any greater proof, any stronger testimony that Dr. Greene's Nervura will cure, that it will certainly restore health and strength to the weak and nervous sufferer, than Lieut.-Governor Fletcher's powerful words wherein he states that he has personally used it in his family with greatest benefit, knows it to be a most wonderful curer of disease, and earnestly recommends its use by all who are out of health and need medicine.

The great Statesman says: "I have long heard of the good effects of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and have used it in my family. I have heard cases among my neighbors who have derived great benefit from its use and can truly say, that as far as my experience and information go, the results are highly satisfactory. This letter can be published for others' good." If you are a sufferer from weakness or disease, do not hesitate to take Dr. Greene's Nervura and get well after such a testimonial from so illustrious and distinguished a Statesman. Do you think so eminent a man of such high official position would lend his name and give his emphatic advice to use Dr. Greene's Nervura unless he knew positively its great value, its wondrous power to cure? He knows that his words will be heeded and his advice to use this grand remedy followed because of his high standing and he unhesitatingly tells the people, speaking the welcome truth to the sick with the voice and dignity of official authority, that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy will cure the weak and suffering, will give health and strength, renewed life, restored energies and the zest and happiness of living. Remember also that this is no so-called patent medicine, but the prescription and discovery of Dr. Greene of 35 W. 14th Street, New York, the successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, who can be consulted without charge, personally or by letter.

MCKINLEY'S CHARACTERISTICS.

Interesting Facts About the Next President of the United States.

Claude E. Porter of Detroit, the Western Union operator who remained in Major McKinley's home during the campaign, has an enjoyable interview in a recent Detroit Journal, from which we quote a few paragraphs:

"Major McKinley is the most even tempered and best poised man I ever met. During all the heat and excitement of the campaign I never saw him ruffled or out of sorts. At times when the average man would have lost his head completely, the major was as calm and composed as it can be possible for a man to be under the circumstances. He is not a man of moods and whims, but is the same every day, plain, sociable unassuming, yet dignified and impressive. He had a hearty hand grasp, and a way of looking directly at a person through his keen, handsome eyes, that has a tendency to make small men feel uncomfortable. When you meet Maj. McKinley you become aware of the fact that you are in the presence of a man of superior attainments and a born leader of men.

"Mrs. McKinley is an invalid, and the major is most devoted to her. At no time during the campaign did his devotion relax for an instant. No matter how important the conference in which he was engaged; no matter how distinguished his callers, if word was brought that Mrs. McKinley wished to see him, he would excuse himself and hurry to her room. He was equally solicitous of the welfare of his aged mother, and a day rarely passed that he did not walk or drive to her home in another part of the city. The McKinnleys live well but plainly. The major is a hearty eater, but prefers substantial to luxuries.

"There was not a moment in the whole campaign that Maj. McKinley was not confident of success. He placed his reliance in the patriotism and common sense of the American people. One day he said: 'It may be that the people on the other side are more numerous than we are, but if they are it will be a very painful fact to learn.' At 4:30 o'clock the morning of November 4, he packed up a writing pad and figured that he was sure of 285 electoral votes. Then he went to bed and slept, satisfied that he was elected.

The major addressed something over 1,000,000 persons between the date of his nomination and the Saturday previous to election day. One day he made 21 speeches. It was his custom to lie down every afternoon and sleep for an hour or two hours. But on Saturday the visiting delegations were so numerous that he would have to deny himself the rest. Some of the spokesmen delegations would have long speeches prepared, and type written copies would be sent to the major in advance of their arrival. He would look them over and have answers ready in his mind. Frequently these spokesmen would get stage fright and would be unable to proceed with their speeches. I have often heard the major prompt them by suggesting a word or sentence, and do it so cleverly that no one in the crowd knew how the embarrassed spokesman got out of his dilemma.

"Previous to his nomination the lawn about Maj. McKinley's home was the finest in Canton. Long before the election every blade of grass was gone and the yard was as bare as a tennis field. Every picket of the fence, and many of the fence posts were carried away by souvenir collectors. One day the major and a prominent eastern manufacturer were seated on the front porch, and in their conversation reference was made to the despoiled lawn. 'Don't you know, major,' said the manufacturer, 'there is a man in the east who would give $1,000,000 to have his lawn in this condition in the same cause?' He referred to Gov. Morton of New York.

"A few days after the election an Ohio farmer called at the McKinley residence, accompanied by his wife and a daughter 10 or 12 years old. The farmer stalked into the library where the major was looking over some correspondence, grabbed his hand in both his own, and greeted him in a voice that was heard all over the house. He didn't even remove his slouch hat, but the major greeted him as cordially as if he was the most polished man in America. Then the farmer's good wife came forward and was introduced.

"How'dy do, major," she said, "how's your woman?" "The major said Mrs. McKinley's health was improving, and thanked the lady for inquiry. He shook hands with the little girl, pinned a house button on each of them, and accompanied them to the door. After they had got half way across the porch the farmer's wife turned around and called out: "Say, Major, I want you and your woman to get your pictures took, and send us one."

"One of the prettiest sights I ever saw was witnessed the day the delegation from Oil City, Pa., visited Canton. The delegation included 45 girls, representing each state of the Union, and each bearing a big basket of flowers which they presented to Mrs. McKinley. These were placed on the speakers' platform in front of the house, and completely covered it. I cannot imagine a more beautiful picture than that mountain of flowers. "I was with Maj. McKinley in his library when Mayor Pingree and Col.

Atkinson called. As the mayor entered the room Maj. McKinley stepped forward and greeted him heartily, saying, 'How are you, governor?' As he shook hands with Michigan's governor-elect, he looked at him with that searching gaze of which I have spoken, and the mayor flushed to the roots of his hair, and the crown of his bald head. The president-elect then invited his guests into the dining room, where they talked for nearly two hours.

"The influx of visitors made a boom town of Canton. Not less than $2,000,000 was left behind by visiting delegations, and almost every line of business was benefited: At first some of the merchants complained that these crowds were killing business, but soon these complaints ceased, for visitors began purchasing dress goods, articles of apparel, and everything they could carry away as souvenirs of their pilgrimage."

In an Open Boat—Fifteenth Letter of this Interesting Voyage.

Heidelberg, Sept. 30, '96.

EDITOR COURIER:

So we passed the Iron Gates, the last great defile of the Danube. Now Roumania was on our left and Servia, soon to give place to Bulgaria, was on our right.

Our landing at Turn Severin is a fair sample of what we went through at every town where we stopped from the Iron Gates to the sea. I row up to land, a uniformed guard comes striding down to the water's edge.

These guards are usually dressed in a white linen suit, very dirty, and bound at the waist by a broad red belt. Their greatest peculiarity is, that they all look alike in features, and we feel like the hare in the fable, who raced with the hedgehog, and finding the wife of the hedgehog at the end of the furrow concluded that he was beaten.

It was near Turn Severin that we saw a new scheme for fishing. Stakes are driven in the sand at the river's edge, and the fisherman throws the leaded and hooked end of 50 foot line far out in the Danube.

When the fish bites, the stone falls, the fisherman awakes, and pulls in his game. This is by one degree the laziest scheme I ever saw.

One shore, the Roumanian, is low and marshy most of the way to the sea but the Servian and Bulgarian shore is very interesting. Now rugged scarred hills, and now steep rocky cliffs appear.

The Bulgarian hills at times look much as one imagines the moon's surface would look. They are cracked and seamed, bare, pitted and seared with fantastic lines.

Shepherds with their flocks are the life of these hills, while fishermen literally line the shores. Where the springs bubble out at the base of the hills, we always see a picturesque group of peasants, who come from the towns built in a forest of trees on the hillside.

In these groups are men in white divided skirts and long tunic. A colored sash wound many times around the waist, thick wool hose purple embroidered with pink roses and green leaves done in cross stitch, a high astrachan hat, and shapeless sandals tied with thongs, complete this costume.

Well, the day before we reached Widen, we nearly furnished, because we could get nothing in small towns which a human being would eat. But Widen was a surprise. If we had been dropped by the Arabian Sinbad's roc into some old oriental city we could not have marvelled more at our surrounding. An old Turkish wall and fort encompass that district of the city set apart for the sons of the prophet.

Royal Baking Powder ABSOLUTELY PURE

The Rarity of Christian Charity.

[The following beautiful lines, written by Judge J. Willard Babbitt, will touch many a person—perhaps. They are certainly too good to be lost.]—Ed. COURIER:

'Tis early night. The whistling winds, Possess the naked street, Save here and there some hapless wretch, Goaded by his hunger's pangs.

Why stands she here on such a night, And braves the killing frost, With hands outstretched and motionless, Like Sundry at his post?

A flash of light falls on her face— So gentle and so kind— Good Heavens! her eyeballs quick disclose That the poor girl is blind!

And now the person comes along— The last of this bleak band— He has no thought for such as she, His Christian kindness dead.

Not one note thy pleadings dumb— Not one note thy pleadings dumb— Not one note thy pleadings dumb— Not one note thy pleadings dumb—

An Early Career Gone—

Detroit papers of recent date give an account of the life of the late Dr. Edward Potts Christian, of Wyandotte, who was one of the first graduates of the University, and the very first Detroit boy to secure the degree of A. B., which he did from the Michigan university in 1847.

Dr. Christian soon rose to prominence in his profession, and was long considered one of the foremost practitioners in the state. He was at one time president of the state medical society, and at various periods a delegate to the National and International Medical Associations; member of the board of visitors to the university; for many years one of the editors of the Michigan Journal of Medicine, and a frequent contributor to other medical and health journals.

He was a member of the first board of alderman of Wyandotte, and the second mayor of the city. For 12 years he was a member of the board of education, and most of that period its chairman. He was a charter member of Wyandotte lodge of Masons, and Wyandotte lodge of the Knights of Honor; the oldest member of the Chi Psi society of the U. of M., and senior warden of St. Stephen's Episcopal society from its first election to the day of his death.

In 1854 he married Mary H. Foster, a niece of the late Richard Hawley, and she survives him. The living children are Thomas H. Christian, deputy county clerk, and Dr. Edmund A. Christian, superintendent of the Eastern Michigan asylum for the insane.

The College Alumnae—

A goodly number of Ann Arbor ladies attended the eighth annual meeting of the Detroit branch of the Association of College Alumnae, at Detroit, on Friday last. Several excellent papers were read, and the meeting was greatly appreciated by those who were there.

When it came to the election of officers the following from this city were chosen: Assistant Secretary—Mrs. Geo. W. Patterson.

Directors—Mrs. F. N. Scott, Mrs. W. A. Campbell, Mrs. J. T. Sunderland, Mrs. J. H. Drake.

Addresses were made by Mrs. Eliza Mosher, and by Mrs. W. A. Campbell.

Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centers in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c. or $1 per bottle at Eberbach Drug & Chemical Co's Drugstore, and Geo. J. Haussler, of Manchester.

Then a German tavern keeper hailed me as a countryman and insisted that my wife and self come in and have some wine at his expense. We accepted the invitation for experience sake. Such a crowd. Half a dozen market women sat at tables and drank wine and smoked, as many men did likewise. We told the German what we wanted to buy and he sent a boy to do the marketing. Upon the boy's return we excused ourselves and under the guidance of a kindly German entered the Turkish quarter. Going through a huge gate of the fortress—so damp and gloomy—we came to the streets gay with Turkish shops. Such fountains, such old, old decaying walls and houses, and in the shops were little Turks, boys, making caps and shoes. This all, to say nothing of a real circus and menagerie in full blast. We saw Turks of all sizes clad in all colors, and having every shade of devilry in their faces, but a feminine Turk did we see, and my wife was stared and leered at as if she were an Hourii. Our guide caught a lizard for our amusement.

We bought some real cookies, just like American cookies, and with the good bread, fruit, and vegetables, we were about to depart. By the aid of a German interpreter, a young Roumanian officer, who had come to Widen on business, asked me to take him as a passenger and land him on the Roumanian shore. I consented and we three embarked. We had not realized how small our boat was until we found that only careful balancing would prevent the boat dipping water, because of our extra load. When at last we got this dainty boatswain, with his white duck suit, peaked blue hat with red piping, and high boots, safely ashore, he insisted upon our visiting his den, the guard house, and sent his subordinates after some green corn and pears, which he presented us. C. H. VAN TYNE.

A Series of Lectures—

It is the policy of the Bible Chairs to secure the ablest Christian lecturers that can be engaged. In harmony with his policy Prof. Coler has secured President J. G. Rodger, of Benzonia college, to give a series of seven lectures on the general theme of "Scientific Grounds for Christian Faith." President Rodger was at one time a skeptic, and these lectures trace the progress of his thought in his return to faith in Christ. He is an able and pleasant speaker, a graduate of Yale University, and has spent several years in study in Edinburgh and Germany. The subject of his lectures, and the time and place of their delivery will be as follows:

- 1. "In a Personal God." Newberry hall, Sunday morning, November 22, at 9:15.
2. "In Jesus Christ." Presbyterian church, Sunday morning, November 22, at 10:30.
3. "In the Holy Spirit." First Baptist Church, Sunday afternoon, November 22, at 3 o'clock.
4. "In the Bible." Congregational church, Sunday evening, November 22, at 7:30.
5. "In the Reasonableness of Faith." Newberry hall, Monday evening, November 23, at 7:30.
6. "In Answer to Prayer." Newberry hall, Tuesday afternoon, November 24, at 4:30.
7. "In the Christian Conscience." Newberry hall, Tuesday evening, November 24, at 7:30.

These lectures are all free and are open to students and to citizens of Ann Arbor. President Rodger preached at one of the union services in Ann Arbor last summer and the people were greatly pleased with him. We feel certain that they will be as much pleased with this series of lectures.

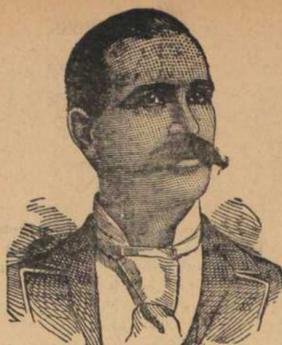

Hard to Classify—

The press spoke of a post-hole boring machine, the invention of an Ann Arbor man. The Courier states that it bores the hole in the post, not in the ground and adds that it is "a holey terror." Ah, no; it is not a post-hole borer, but a post-hole-borer. It makes a difference how you punctuate. A reporter in his account of a religious service wrote: "One of the brethren having gone to sea, his wife requested the prayers of the congregation; but in print the wife's feelings and the sense of the paragraph were hurt by the appearance of the comma after 'wife,' instead of 'sea.'"—Adrian Press.

And still that machine is not in its right class.—It is a hole borer but not a post-hole-borer. The hole that it bores is in the rail somewhere. But that doesn't make much difference. It bores the hole with rapid rapidity so to speak, and is turning ducats into the pockets of its inventor. That's the main thing.

REV. PERRY MILLAR.

Land of the Midnight Sun.

The people of Ann Arbor are to have a rich treat on Thursday evening Dec. 3d, in the lecture of Rev. Perry Millar, of Milwaukee, of the delightful subject "The Land of the Midnight Sun."

The lecturer has something to say, in the first place, and in the next place he says it in a way that is delightful to hear.

The press throughout Wisconsin, where he has delivered this lecture, are loud in their praises of both the man and the lecture. The Appleton, Wis., Crescent, for instance, has this:

"Rev. Perry Millar, of Milwaukee, was greeted by a large audience at the M. E. church last evening. Rev. Mr. Millar chose for his subject a very fascinating theme, 'The Land of the Midnight Sun,' and handled it in a masterly manner. He is a natural orator and his lecture was filled with lofty flights of impassioned eloquence. Mr. Millar has studied types of character totally foreign from anything we have ever known. The lecturer delighted his audience with his graphic descriptions of men and things."

Here is another, quite as flattering:

Last evening saw a goodly number of people assembled at the Congregational church to hear Rev. Perry Millar in his lecture on the "Land of the Midnight Sun." He is an interesting speaker and carries a vein of humor through his lecture, which is entertaining. He is a thorough believer in the honesty of the Scandinavians and considers them among our best immigrants. Mr. Millar has the happy faculty of being able to describe what he has seen in such a way as to make it a reality to his hearers. His description of how the sun appeared at midnight was fine. Such entertainments are instructive as well as interesting and are appreciated on that account.—Rhinelander Vindicator.

How to be Truly Thankful— Those who sit down to tables containing an abundance of good things on Thursday, should remember the many tables that are destitute, and when they return thanks for the bounties of their own table, let those thanks be given a keen relish by the knowledge that through their own efforts some one or more of those that were destitute have been filled. Instead of a day of feasting, let it be a day of charity, generosity and true thankfulness. No man can be a true Christian at heart, who can, on that day of all others, set down to a table bountifully supplied, with the knowledge that there are others empty that he has made no effort to fill from his own abundance.

Hon. Andrew J. Sawyer, who has been recently elected to the legislature, gave the members of the Ann Arbor Typographical Union, together with a number of newspaper men reporters of this city, a banquet at the Portland Cafe, on Tuesday evening last. It was a jolly affair, and responses to toasts were made by A. Pearson of the Daily Times, Geo. R. Cooper foreman of the Inland Press office, Sid W. Millard, Ed. Wells, Harry E. Parr, Converse G. Cook, Clyde Kerr, Robert Stevenson, Jas. B. Saunders, N. D. Corbin, Karl Harriman, Tom W. Mingay, Glenn V. Mills, and others. Mr. Sawyer proved himself a genial host, and all those present enjoyed the evening beyond measure.

At the meeting of Northside citizens last week, to talk over the new church project, the following committee was appointed to push the enterprise, in company with the officers already chosen: Charles H. Manly, George W. Weeks, A. M. Bowen, Spencer D. Lennon, S. M. Bangs, George Spathel, Jr., and Gilbert C. Rhodes. An able or more representative board to have charge of the work it would be hard to find. This committee was authorized to procure a suitable building site at once, and to make things hum in general, which there is but little doubt it will do.

State of Michigan, Washtenaw County—In Chancery. Dated, September 4, A. D. 1896. Morris Hall and Joseph H. Woodman, complainants vs. Agnes E. Flickinger, Daniel B. Flickinger and The Rochester Savings and Loan Association, defendants. Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw in Chancery, at Ann Arbor on the 4th day of September, A. D. 1896. In this cause it appearing from affidavit on file that the defendant, The Rochester Savings and Loan Association, is not a resident of this State, but resides at Rochester, in the State of New York, on motion of John W. Bennett, Complainant's Solicitor, it is ordered that the said defendant, The Rochester Savings and Loan Association, cause its appearance to be entered here, within four months from the date of this order, and in case of its appearance that it cause its answer to the complainant's Bill of Complaint to be filed, and a copy thereof to be served on said complainant's Solicitor, within twenty days after service on it of a copy of said bill, and notice of this order; and that in default thereof, said bill be taken as confessed by the said non-resident defendant.

And it is further ordered, that within twenty days the said complainants cause a notice of this order to be published in the Ann Arbor Courier, a newspaper printed, published and circulating in said county, and that such publication be continued there at least once in each week, for six weeks in succession, or that they cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said non-resident defendant, at least twenty days before the time above prescribed for its appearance.
