THE OLD MAN IN THE PALACE CAR.

Well, Betsy, this beats everything you ever had in your life!

We rode through this same country, but not as we ride now.

I wonder if young married folks to-day would take a wedding like ours, with log houses and no money.

How slow-like the old time coaches—our coaches were like that.

Some curious cases of kleptomania mentioned in Chambers' Journal.

Chauncey Joslin and the Spoils System. To the Editor of the Detroit Free Press.

If it be true that the democratic party inaugurated the spoils system in politics this should be one of the strongest reasons why it should now aid in "civil service reform."

We all know, no matter a rotten party, the spoils system has become a part of the national life, and in and through the body politic that a speedy remedy must be found, or republican form of government will soon fail in this country. I propose the following preventives:

1. Permit no man to seek an office before or after nomination.

2. Permit no man to spend time or money for office.

3. Amend the oath of office by adding: and I further solemnly swear, I have not directly or indirectly paid or expended any money or valuable thing or become liable to, nor will I, to procure said office.

4. Provide, by law, that any elector may appear before any canvassing board and challenge the announcement of the election of any person, and may challenge the certificate of election of any person, to any office. Provided such challenger shall at once file charges that such person has paid, expended, or promised directly or indirectly, money or other valuable to procure said office.

5. That such challenge shall, by the board of canvassers, be referred at once to the proper circuit court; which shall lay aside all other business, and forthwith proceed to hear, with or without a jury as in other cases, said challenge and specifications, and if the result of such hearing shall be that the candidate has before or after his nomination expended any money, or valuable things, directly or indirectly, or promised so to do, whether such money or valuables, belonged to said candidate or was contributed by his friends or party, then no certificate of election shall be issued; and a new election shall be ordered.

6. Provide, by law, that the appointed officers of the United States except the cabinet, shall hold office at least eight years, and shall not be removed, except for cause found on a hearing before some court, as high as a state circuit court, after notice to such officer, of such hearing according to the practice of said court.

7. Appointed officers shall not be assessed for the support of any party. Let their salaries be such that they will not freely contribute much.

8. Let the people proclaim that these, or like laws, shall be passed; and our constitution so amended, when necessary, as to carry out such civil service reform.

9. The spoils system and its outgrowth, office seeking, shot president Garfield, and will repeat the crime unless destroyed.

10. We are on a broad highway to destruction, and near the end thereof, unless we pass and enforce rigid laws against the use of money in elections.

CHAUNCEY JOSLIN. Ypsilanti, July 7, 1881.

School of Political Science. The committee appointed at the regents' meeting to prepare the necessary announcement of the establishment of a school of political science in the university have done so. The work of instruction to begin September 28, the opening of the academic year.

ADMISSION TO THE SCHOOL. Students of the academic department of the university will be admitted to the school of political science whenever they have completed the required studies of either of the general courses leading to the degree of bachelor of arts, bachelor of letters or bachelor of science. The required studies embrace nearly the whole of the work of the first two years. Students who have completed the studies of the second year in any other college or university having courses of study the first two years of which are substantially equivalent to the first two years in the academic department of the university of Michigan, may be admitted to the school of political science without examination. Certificates of standing and of honorable dismissal will be required of all students who are not graduates of the university.

Jersey Cattle in America. In 1868 the American Jersey Cattle Club was established. This society has done vigorous and successful work in guarding the purity of the stock and in will be held. Graduates of this university or of any other reputable college or university, will receive credit for any portion of the work they may have already completed, and will receive the degree on passing an examination in those studies in which they have not already been admitted to themselves proficient. Of such students, however, a residence at this university of at least one year will be required, and two years will generally be necessary.

Students not candidates for a degree may be admitted to any of the classes, provided they satisfy the officers in charge of the classes they desire to enter, that they are qualified to pursue the work with advantage to themselves, and without detriment to others.

FEES AND EXPENSES. The only fees to be paid to the university by students in the school of political science are those required of all students in the department of literature, science, and the arts. The year is divided into two semesters. The first extending from the opening of the year to February 17; the second from February 18 to the annual commencement on the last Thursday in June. Students may be admitted at the beginning of each semester, but no degrees will be conferred except at the close of the academic year.

Students in the school of political science will be permitted to take such studies in the academic department as they may desire, provided such studies do not interfere with the regular work. This privilege will be of special value to those who have no preliminary knowledge of French and German. Although a familiarity of both these languages is not a prerequisite for admission to the school, yet such familiarity will be presupposed and will be found indispensable to the highest success in the prosecution of studies.

EXAMINATIONS FOR DEGREES. Besides the regular examinations at the close of each semester, every candidate for a degree will be required as a condition of graduation, to present and defend a thesis before a committee of the faculty. The thesis must show an elaborate study of the subject considered, and so far as is practicable, must evince original research. Each candidate for a degree will also be required to pass an oral examination, in which he will be expected to show special proficiency in some one branch of study, and good attainments in two other branches approved by the faculty. These examinations will not be confined to the scope of instruction given in the school, but must show thorough research and such familiarity with the subjects under consideration as a special student may reasonably be expected to possess.

THE DARK CONTINENT.

It has been apparent for some years that Africa is to become for the Europe of today what America was to Europe of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

It must become the field for adventurous activity of exploration and colonization, and into this field all the great powers of Europe will enter as competitors in a race for the advantages that will come with the opening of the country to civilization and trade.

England was among the first to perceive that Africa had a future, and her operations southward across the desert in the Philippine Islands, Togo, and Senegal, and South Africa, only none of these are so hateful as the creatures of Swift's invention.

In Egypt British influence has encouraged explorations southward, and France has used Algiers as a base of operations southward across the desert to the Sudan.

England and Spain dispute for a foothold in Morocco, and France and Italy are on the verge of war over the possession of Tunis and Tripoli.
