Geo. Welch Sr. is a great big jazy fellow, who, if he can manage to get hold of a few cents a day with which to purchase a budget, is contented and happy. He has been arrested at different times for getting intoxicated and abusing his family, and for a late he has evidently been getting ready for a trip to the workhouse or somewhere else, judging from his actions. Last Friday night he was on the rampage, and threatened to raise hell with his family. After he had carried on for some time, his boys with the assistance of neighbors concluded he had better be taken to jail. They got a rope and bound his hands and feet securely, and started to carry him to jail, but he was too much for them. While one of the party went for the police, the others held the old man down. Soon officers Millman and Porter arrived, and after putting on the "dribbles" Welch was willing to go along and he was soon given over to sheriff Wallace.
It is considerably over a week since Albert W. Stevens, agent for Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, swore out an attachment on the goods of Gidley & Wheeler, milliners. The papers were given to deputy sheriff Fred Wallace and then to officer Warren, but as they were unable to obtain service the attachment was given to sheriff Wallace with instructions to force an entrance into the store. Last Friday afternoon, in company with Mr. Stevens, he went to the rear of the building and while trying a window Edwin B. Gidley, father of Howard Gidley, who holds a chattel mortgage on the stock to the amount of $500, it is alleged ordered his son to shoot the first man who attempted an entrance. Sheriff Wallace says he saw young Gidley reach for his revolver, when he concluded it was time to cease operations. The agent for the Chicago house then went before justice Frenault and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Edwin B. and Howard B. Gidley, on the charge of opposing the sheriff in the service of process. While the justice was busy making out the papers, constable Imus armed with a warrant issued by justice Granger, on the complaint of E. B. Gidley, arrested Albert W. Stevens on the charge of $100. Mr. Stevens gave bail in the sum of $100 for his appearance for examination with Christian Mack as surety. Constable Loomis arrested E. B. and H. E. Gidley and took them before justice Frenault, where they gave bail for their appearance Friday to-morrow. H. T. Morton became surety for the Gidleys' security for costs were also demanded and given in each case, so in any event the county will not be out a cent.

A High-Handed Outrage.
Last Saturday considerable excitement was occasioned in this city, when it was ascertained that a gentleman from Chicago was locked up in justice Granger's office, and deprived of his liberty without his consent of law. When it became known about the citizens took it up and all seemed to side in with the stranger. Some said: "He ought to knock Granger's head off." "That a good thrashing was what the justice wanted." "A pity the stranger didn't pitch him through the window." And like remarks were heard on the streets. Now for the facts in the case. About 9 o'clock in the morning, Albert W. Stevens, the agent referred to who had been in the city for a week on business, and in the interest of Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago, was given permission to look
AT A BILL OF SALE
given to Mrs. Sarah Bagley by Gidley & Wheeler milliners. Mr. Stevens further desired to make a copy of the bill of sale, and Granger handed him some note paper for that purpose. When he had nearly finished, for some unaccountable reason, Granger rapped on the table a number of times and told him to "drop it," "drop that paper I tell you," but the agent kept on writing, and when through put the copy in his pocket, buttoned up his coat and handed the original to Granger. He then made a motion as if to arise, when Granger jumped over the railing and looked
THE DOOR OF HIS OFFICE
and put the key in his pocket. Mr. Stevens was cool and collected, while the irate Granger paced his office like an enraged lion. Twelve o'clock came and Stevens was still kept a prisoner against his will, although he demanded a number of times to be released. "Not until I have that paper" was the reply which greeted him. A number of persons congregated at the foot of the hall stairs which lead to the office, expecting every moment the fun would commence and that Granger would come TUMBLING DOWN THE STAIRS.
But the agent was evidently not disposed to harm him, although it is alleged that more than once Granger stuck his fist under his nose. Between one and two o'clock Stevens got word to D. Cramer by Christian Mack that his presence was wanted in the justice office, and he forthwith held a consultation with his client.
He handed the papers which he had copied to Mr. Cramer, and when he left the office took them with him. When Granger ascertained this he unlocked the door and ordered Stevens to go. He went directly to Cramer's office, and soon after a warrant was issued by justice Frenault for Granger's arrest on the charge OF FALSE IMPRISONMENT.
The warrant was served by constable Loomis, a warm personal friend (?) of the Gidleys. Granger gave bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance for examination, which will come off next Saturday. The charge is a serious one, and if Granger was worth anything, he could be made to smart most handsomely. The proceeding was a high-handed one, and although Mr. Stevens would have been justified in using force—even to knocking Granger down—to regain his liberty, he probably took the better course, and the matter will now be fought out in the courts.
There is but one opinion that Granger should be taught a lesson, which he will not soon forget. It is thought there are good grounds and we await further results. The idea that one, who is himself a conservator of the peace, should deprive a man of his liberty by locking him up without the least shadow of right, is a serious matter.

A REMARKABLE CURE.—The infant daughter of A. C. Walling of Ypsilanti, was cured of a severe eruption of the face five months' standing by Mrs. N. H. Pierce. She is now well and happy and her hands at liberty. She requires little care, and her parents are relieved of untold anxiety and trouble. We certify that the above statement is strictly true.
