We worked through spring and winter...

It worked on nights and Sundays; it worked...

It settled down among us, and it never went...

It worked on every minute, and it ruled us...

The rust and blight were with us sometimes...

And sometimes not; the dark-browed scowling...

It worked on every window, stood guard at...

And happiness and sunshine made their home...

There is a class of fellows who frequent base-ball grounds who never play, but who spend their time in stalling, coarse jokes, and in swearing at the efforts of younger players. Lacking physical vigor they sit on the ground and hawk and spit, lacking mental judgment they are unable to distinguish between a good or bad play, and between their senseless remarks and obscenity they make themselves thoroughly odious to all those who love a good game.—Com mercial.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for May. The decided merits of this periodical—literary and artistic—have made it so popular, that the name is by no means a misnomer; and the excellence of the present number is so pronounced that it can scarcely fail to increase its already great popularity. So abundant are the good things, that space will only permit us to glance at the contents. "Giuseppe Garibaldi," "Inside Kairwan," "The Making of Tapestry," "Egypt," etc., are profusely illustrated and are the contributions of some of our best writers.

Dr. E. H. Flynn writes to THE DEMOCRAT that there is no truth in the statement going the rounds of the papers that he has got into any trouble in Maple Rapids. The facts are that one Goodwin was in the above place three weeks before presenting a check at East Tawas. Goodwin stated that he went to the Rapids to get out hard wood lumber for the Cincinnati car works. He borrowed of Flynn $95 to pay down on some land to bind the bargain, and proposed to return the same soon after. According to the doctor's statement Goodwin is a terrible fellow, that he is a forger, hotel beat, etc., and that he, Flynn, is out just $95.

Nearly every one knows what to do in case of injury sudden sickness, but it often happens that under the excitement attending such circumstances they become confused and forget all they know about it. The following suggestions might be posted up on the inside of the closet or book case door, where they could be referred to promptly; For burns sweet oil and cotton are the standard remedies. If they are not at hand, sprinkle the burned part with flour and wrap loosely with a soft cloth. Don't remove the dressing until the inflammation subsides, as it will break the new skin that is forming. For nose bleeding, bathe the face and neck with cold water.

John McCullough's production of Sheridan O'Hara's tragedy "Virginia" will occur at Hill's opera house on Wednesday evening, May 10th. The demand for seats will be great and the rush in other cities is likely to be repeated here. Of Mr. McCullough's recent success in Washington, a correspondent writes: "The numbers who crowded to witness Mr. McCullough's performances have never been equalled in this city of theatre-goers. An hour before the curtain rose at the National, Saturday, every seat including the window ledges, and every inch of standing room had been taken. Nearly 2,000 were turned away disappointed. If it is not true, as has been said of Washington, under the dispensations of Bon Ingersoll, have abolished the scriptural Deity, it is equally certain that they have found an idol in John McCullough."

The Ypsilanti Commercial discourses thusly on the branch postoffices: The prohibition of branch postoffices by the authorities at headquarters is quite an annoyance and inconvenience to those who have been so greatly benefited. Though it has, in the way of box and drawer rent diminished the receipts of the postoffices, yet on the other hand it has reduced the amount of clerk hire and labor. Considering the fact that the postoffice department is for the benefit of the people, it seems to us that to place a restriction upon privileges, and especially when the expenses are borne by the recipients, is suicidal. We are constrained to believe that only one side of the matter has been presented to the postal authorities, and that when the subject to all its bearings is understood, our depot friends will have no chance to complain."

THE DEMOCRAT doubts very much whether the government will do out thousands of dollars by opening little branch offices.

The people of this vicinity were considerably surprised on Monday morning last, to hear of the sudden departure of Wm. Sanford and his son Almond, for Dakota. What made it still more surprising to many of our business men, was the fact that the latter forgot (?) to call and settle his accounts before taking his departure. The father we are told settled with his creditors as much as possible, before leaving, but the son skipped without saying a word about paying his debts. Their departure was very cleverly managed, for although they took with them three carloads of stock etc. (18 horses) scarcely their nearest neighbor, it is said, knew of their departure until the following day. Their stock was driven to Tecumseh in the night, from which place it was shipped last Saturday night. This is certainly a poor "send off" for a man who expects to make life a success, for his reputation will be sure to follow him.—Saline Observer. This same Wm. Sanford beat THE DEMOCRAT for a small amount, and we will pay out three times the sum to advertise the scamp in his new home.

Dr. Benizar, Wells who has been a resident of this city over 40 years, died Tuesday morning. The doctor was a prominent and well known citizen. He held the office of mayor for two terms, and for several years was a member of the board of education. For the past 17 years he was president of the First National bank. In politics he was a democrat. But few men have served their generation with greater usefulness than Dr. Wells. His time and eminent abilities have been devoted to the duties of his profession for more than 40 years, and not until age and increasing infirmities prevented, did he refuse to respond to all calls for his professional services either by night or day. As a man he has been true to himself and to his fellow man. In all the relations of life he has maintained a noble and almost faultless character. As a physician he combined science and skill with a modest demeanor in the families of his patrons. He was always modest and attentive to the calls of the needy poor, as well as of the wealthy, never turning any away who needed aid on account of inability to reward him. But he has passed away from among us, leaving an unfulfilled character and a life of "labors abundant." The rich and the poor alike revere his memory, and feel that one of the most useful of our citizens has gone from among us.

Manchester Enterprise: Mrs. Fowle, wife of the late Benjamin Fowle, died in Moscow, March 28, 1882, from a protracted and severe disease of the lungs. Mrs. Fowle (Caroline Kellogg) was born April 10, 1810, in Connecticut, from whence, during her childhood, the family emigrated to western N. Y., and Avon, Livingston county, became their home. During her youth she not only helped her parents meet the exigencies of life in a new country, but obtained a creditable education. Benj. Fowle and she were married in 1829. They moved to Moscow, Mich., in 1833, where she again encountered the hardships of pioneer life. With fidelity and industry, a new home was soon obtained, which remains an evidence of the enterprise and thrift of the pioneer settlers who have done so much towards building up the country. Mrs. Fowle was quite a reader of the bible, of history, and of the news of the day, ignored gossip and works of fiction, was the promoter of peace and professor of many other good qualities which made her esteemed and beloved, not only by the members of her family, but by all who were acquainted with her. She did the best she could in life, and had an abiding faith in a brighter and better hereafter.

The Bad and Worthless are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy initiated is of the highest value. As soon as it had been tested and proved by the purest world that Hop Bitters was the healthiest, best and most valuable family medicine on earth, many imitations sprung up and began to steal the notice in which the press and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and every way trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H. B. Many others started nostrums put up in similar style to H. B., with variously devised names in which the word Hop or Hops were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style or name is, and especially those with the word Hop or Hops in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. Use nothing but genuine Hop Bitters with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.

THE ONLY MEDICINE IN EITHER LIQUID OR DRY FORM THAT ACTS ON THE SAME TIME ON THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, AND THE KIDNEYS. WHY ARE WE SICK? Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT WILL SURELY CURE KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, PILES, CONSTIPATION, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS.

THE HOUSEHOLD. Fashion Notes. Flush slippers are new. Scarf rings are now worn by ladies. Silver hair-pins are used by gray haired ladies. Bridesmaids wear short veils. Blue and white waists and paniers are prevailing style. Blue and white gremoline veils, for blondes, have white polka dots. Raw silk in artistic colors is offered for spring dresses. Sailor hats with wide streamers are among the new styles. Embroidery will be very fashionable, used on cashmere dresses. Seal brown and sapphire blue are shades that blend well. Fans and parasols to match are imported with the new cotton satines. Large Manila hats, laden with feathers, are in the artistic Rembrandt shades. Black velvet and white satin are combined in full dress toilet for matrons. Folding screens are covered with ornamental cords and bordered with plush. Sulphur yellow, with brown, is a stylish combination for dresses and bouquets. Very short polonaises, with Louis Quinze scarfs in the back, are in high favor. Dark straw hats, with gloves and hosiery to match, are announced for summer. Caps made of plush or velvet, reaching over the shoulders, are shirred at the throat. Matted roses and geraniums without foliage are the most fashionable flowers for the coiffure. Ribbons of two shades of one color, as pink with garnet, are used on black and white dresses. Hand sachets in colored silk plush are mounted with silver and have the owner's monogram on the front. Wide bands of black velvet are worn close around the throat. These are studded with gems or ornaments with a pendant either in gold or precious stones. A novelty in the way of ornamentation are humming birds, which are used to loop up, draped, a nestle among the flowers on the shoulders, at the throat and in the hair. Elegant black costumes are trimmed with black Spanish lace, real jet and wide wash bows. Soft, cream tulle of lace for the neck and sleeves complete these elegant dresses. Sulphur-colored lace, satin, brocade, and purple-colored bonnets, roses, stockings and whole costumes made up in conjunction with dark brown, is a late French fancy in dress. How to Have Company. It is not so very hard to have a little company to tea or to spend the evening, if one only knows how to plan her work and does not attempt to crowd too much in one day. If the cake is made the day before it will be fresh enough, and if you are so unfortunate as not to be entirely successful in making or baking, you will have plenty of time to remedy this trouble by trying again. If salad is to be part of the supper, the chicken may be prepared in the morning, and then late in the afternoon the turkey may be prepared and the salad ready to mix. When it is in the dish and ready for the table, wet a clean cloth in vinegar and lay over the top; it will keep it moist, and it will not lose its flavor by standing. If you are to have sandwiches, they may be buttered early and a damp cloth laid over them. Have the dishes and silver ready, and put in a convenient place where you can get them with no delay and trouble of counting. Silver may be rubbed, and tablecloth and napkins laid aside days before. Above all, after having done these things do not worry; think over all the times you have been to tea and you will hardly be able to recall a single time where everything went very badly. Avoid confusion; if anyone is to help you, they will not or friend, let her distinctly understand what her duty is to be, so that you will not interfere with each other. A few experiments will convince you of the good sense of these directions. The New Street Car Motor. The arrangements for the running of the State st. cable cars, Chicago, are on this wise: There are two tubes about the size of a common barrel about a foot beneath the surface of the street, composed of concrete. Every 16 feet, a strong iron rib, nearly the size of a railroad rail is embedded in the concrete, and coming just high enough, and spring flanges at proper places, to which to fasten the rails for the cars to run on. Above these are other sets of flanges upon which sustain two V-shaped rails, within 1/2 of an inch of each other, in the center of the track, so that it is a continuous frame of iron with its lower part embedded in concrete. There are endless cables passing through these tubes, supported upon rollers, the entire length, which pass over pulleys at the ends of the tubes; the upper and lower halves of the cable, of course, move in opposite directions, just like the chain of a chain-pump. About midway from each end, is a powerful engine, which continuously moves these cables. The moving of the cables can be seen through the slot between the inside rails. The slot is so narrow that, the cables of the shoes of the horses, which are continually passing and re-passing over it, cannot be caught in it. The attachment of the cars to the cable is by a broad, thin, strip of steel, which passes down through the slot between the inside rails, and is attached to the cable by a peculiar twist of the cable, which takes a firm hold and the car proceeds to move with the same speed as does the cable; so no shock is produced in the starting. At present the common horse-car—one, two, or more, as may be required, are hitched to the grip-car, and so a short train is made up. The arrangements at the ends are not yet perfected for changing the cars by the steam-power, from the track on one side the street, to a return upon the other side, but so far this has had to be effected by horse-power. It is a curious fact that ducks did not leave Lake Ontario, as usual last fall, but have remained all winter. Whether they knew it was going to be an open winter, and if so, how they knew it, is a matter that remains to be found out.
