MY DAUGHTER LOUISA.

In the light of the moon, by the side of the water...

MRS. DODD'S PORTIERE.

"I mean to have a portiere, sure's you live, announced Mrs. Dodd.

"I don't see the good of hanging curtains up to the doors; nobody can see through 'em."

"I don't believe it'll deceive me," sniffed Lucinda.

"I don't believe that's the right word," she said presently.

"No such word! You're just like your Aunt Jerry Dodd—always making folks mishear."

"I darsay she's poking fun at you."

"Poking fun at me! Do you think your mother is a person calculated to hev fun poked at her, Lucindy Dodd?"

"I darsay she's poking fun at you."

Entered as Second Class matter in the Post Office at Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Greenback party of Ohio is undoubtedly filling out, for at the state convention recently held only 50 delegates could be mustered.

The Jackson Citizen thus honestly refers to the political situation in Pennsylvania: "Some of the republican newspapers in Pennsylvania begin to talk with trepidation at the consequences of the split in the party in that state. They fear—and there is good reason for the apprehension—that the democracy will come in for the prizes, and if the division is carried down to legislative nominations, that a majority of the members of the next legislature will be democratic."

The democrats of Ohio who are to hold their state convention on the 20th of next month, feel confident that if the right ticket is nominated there is no doubt but the state can be carried for the democracy. It is well known that there are desertions in the ranks of the republicans, that many Germans who have heretofore acted with the party will not do so this fall, and besides the party is badly demoralized.

It is claimed by some who have investigated the subject that the present high price of meat is artificial, that there is no real justification for the outrageous prices now prevailing, as it is the work of speculators. It is said that the government lets contracts for supplies of meat at a decided reduction from last year's rates, and that while the cattle on the ranches of the west and southwest are not as fat as last year, still they are in good condition and there are thousands upon thousands for sale at low prices as ever. Still local meat merchants suffer from the speculators the same as consumers.

The negro Casanova was a member of the Louisiana returning board, and who allowed the Mad. Wells to inveigle him into the plot to steal the state for Hayes, has been financially ruined by the fine and costs of suit for forgery which he has had to pay. The touching sympathy of republicans for the poor negro is strikingly exhibited in the cool desertion of the poor, deluded colored man after he had committed a crime to seal the republican candidate for president. The party was saved, but the colored dupe is left to be ruined by the heartless knaves who lured him to his ruin.—Lansing Journal.

Of all the contemptible corporations that have ever done business in this state, that of the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Grand Trunk is the meanest. The men who managed the road seem to delight in insulting the citizens who made them to do what they are. The citizens of Ann Arbor put their hands into their pockets and generously gave nearly or quite $200,000 to aid in the construction of the Toledo road to this place. As a last resort, and to keep the streets from being obstructed longer than five minutes by trains of cars on this road, the council will pass an ordinance, and unless it is complied with, the citizens on the west side will take the matter into their own hands.

Soon the students will leave for their several homes, those who will graduate to return no more, except it be to visit old associations or talk over matters at some reunion. The young men who will sever their connection with the university on commencement day, will be watched with a deep interest by professors and friends, as they go forth to fight the great battle of life. Success does not crown one's efforts in a day, or a month or year. It requires persistent, hard work on the part of every young man if this is truly a great country, and there is ample room for those who are disposed to make the most of life, to gain for themselves a record which their friends need not feel ashamed of.

There is no doubt the extension of Catherine street is an improvement that should be made at once, and as the matter is in the hands of the street committee who have been given full power to act, the residents of that portion of the fourth ward are awaiting anxiously their decision in the matter. The street can be put through with very little expense and would make one of the finest drives in the city. The petition, it will be remembered, was signed by a large number of property owners who would like to see the street extended at the earliest possible moment. In view of these facts it is believed by many residents in the ward that the committee can come to no other conclusion, but what it is an improvement that should be made.

It turns out that the "city newspaper man" who was all "broke up" was none other than the individual who at present manages the sheet across the way. He it was who was sold, and fearful that it would come to the ears of the reporters, thought to turn the joke on them. For the past few days a brother editor has been seen to drag himself along at a snail's pace. The run, "up William Street" was evidently too much for him. He has not been able since then to gather his scattered senses, judging from the absurd yarns which he has been inflicting upon the readers of his paper. "Where's them boots" is a fair sample. He of course is not to blame, and a generous public will sympathize with him. Men of such nervous temperament are really to be pitied. Their imaginations lead them to believe that certain things have actually occurred, and when the spell is on they will reproduce in print what they think is a reality, and thus attempt to make people believe their insane ravings.

In the praise of glorious eighteen eighty-two. When swift years have rolled away, And our hair is silver gray, We as citizens and heroes take our stand; When these old and classic halls No more resound with our song, Still united may we be in heart and hand.
