CHRISTIAN WROTH'S STORY.

(Stuttgart, May, 1882.)

I've called, Mr. Conant, this morning, to ask if you please, your advice on a matter that gives me a great worry.

Let's hear it (I want money, I know). Here's my citizen-royalty. "All right," said I. I was born in the Schwanwälder Kreis, at Schramberg, and went to America forty-five years ago.

Yes, I'm near seventy now, and you see that my step is unsteady.

Plenty of numbers, you-I settled in North Illinois.

And there, ever since, I've been working and trying to get on my feet. I've got a nice farm,

Mr. Conant, that goes by-and-by to my boys.

How many children there's four, three boys and a girl. We've had seven.

But when the war came along, my William and Carl marched away. Both of them fell on the field, and last winter the good Lord in Heaven called home our dear little Minnie—she's twelve years old to-day.

Yes, the old woman is living. She's three years from being ninety. And our little Linna keeps house for them all. She's the handsomest girl in the county; I can hear even now her sweet voice as she said to me farewell at the door.

Why I left, well, perhaps, Mr. Conant, there's better than the truth were told.

But no matter—it wasn't my fault. My old woman and I can't work any more, and she's sick and can't work any more, and so she's cross, and she's just what I'm always wronged that she's always right.

It hasn't been always that way. In the days when we were young, my William and I hadn't a dollar laid by in the bank, and we were all poor. But since we began to get going, she's tried to be boss over me, and I didn't intend that she should.

And when that poor dear Minnie died, I hadn't a cent to bury her, and she was buried in the ground for four weeks and one day, about four weeks ago. The old woman, she's just what I'm always wronged that she's always right.

And the boys they all tried to make peace;

she would listen to naught that they said.

But my little Linna stood up by my side—she spoke not, but she was so kind.

As she put her sweet arms round my neck and rested her beautiful head on my breast, I felt that my heart was full of the tenderest pity for her.

And I said: "My Christina, we've labored and struggled together till now; our children are all grown up, and you want to separate, now we are old.

No lawyer can part us, Christina, no lawyer

can separate us, and I'll leave you and go forth alone on my way through the world.

Then my poor Linna cried and she made me

reflect, and the boys they said "Stay!"

I paused for a moment and looked at them all, and I saw that they were all one way or the other. "But no, it wasn't my fault," said I. "My old woman and I can't work any more, and she's sick and can't work any more, and so she's cross, and she's just what I'm always wronged that she's always right.

I have come to my mind, this morning to ask you to draw up my will.

And I want you to make my old woman inherited to all that I've got.

Our children are all grown up, and you want to separate, now we are old.

No lawyer can part us, Christina, no lawyer

can separate us, and I'll leave you and go forth alone on my way through the world.

Then my poor Linna cried and she made me

reflect, and the boys they said "Stay!"

I paused for a moment and looked at

them all, and I saw that they were all

MAKING A SOLDIER.

THE YOUNG RECRUIT'S FIRST DAY

IN BARRACKS.—(HURRAH FOR PERRIER.)

It was a lovely Sunday evening. The barracks were well-nigh deserted, as nearly all the soldiers had gone a pleas-uring in town. With them had gone the conscript who had joined the army only the day before, in hands of ten or a dozen, their caps awry, their coats wrinkled, and their hands imprisoned in spraying white gloves.

In the remotest part of the barrack-yard, sat alone—alone—on a doorstep, a poor conscript, his chin in his hands, his elbows on his knees, following his fellows who went out with wistful eyes, or when no one in sight gazed fixedly on the ground. He looked like one of those good boys who feel like the hand of death the summons which tears them from their families, but who finish by becoming the best of soldiers, with minds resigned, calm, willing. On his face, however, there was more than the expression of dreaming and surprise, such as a conscript usually wears during his first days of camp life—there was positive melanccholy. Perhaps he was regretting that he had not gone out with the rest of the fellows.

A corporal in fatigue dress, who happened to be crossing the yard, espied the conscript and strode up to him sharply.

"What's that fellow doing there with his hands crossed?"

"Who? I?" said the conscript.

"Who? I?" echoed the corporal. "He's a nice fellow! And whom is he speaking to—the moon? Here! Stand up when you are addressing your superior!" "Yes, your honor," said the conscript. "What company do you belong to?"

"What company?"

"Yes, what company, cabbage-head?"

and seizing him by the skirt of his coat he shook him till he reeled. "Look at that—see how you've fixed your coat quitting on a door-step like a dirty beggar!"

The conscript dusted it off with his hand.

"And your shoes—pretty shoes, those are!"

The conscript stooped to clean them with his handkerchief.

"And your cap—up, your cap—up, your cap—up, your cap—up, your cap—up, those legs inside of a week, button up your tunic, and don't stick there with your head sunk on your breast like a monk, or staring at everybody like a stupid stick pig!"

The poor lad trembled fingers at his clothing, but he succeeded; indeed he knew not what he was doing. At that moment the pretty young cantiniere of the regiment passed before them.

To appear ridiculous and stupid before a pretty woman—what could be worse, and the conscript utterly lost his presence of mind, fell with his fingers at his butt, and then let his arms fall dejectedly by his side, drooped his head and stood silent.

The cantiniere laughed and tripped away.

A FARMER'S CANDIDATE.

Yoking the Ox on the Nigh

Side.

Some 10 years ago, at the time when the epidemic was generally prevalent, a certain York county man was engaged in hauling goods to and from the freight depots at Portland, using oxen instead of horses. All of his own stock was in use, and he was obliged to buy several more yokes to keep up with the demands of his customers. He was chanced to meet Col. Robie in a railroad car, the Colonel being en route to Gorham, where he resides upon a large and highly cultivated ancestral farm. The Colonel and the York county man engaged in conversation, and during its progress the former said:

"William, what are you paying for oxen now?"

"That depends," replied William.

"Well," said the Colonel, "get off with me at Gorham and come over to my place and look at a yoke of mules; handsome as pictures; splendid pullers; as good as any you can get at a bargain."

The invitation was accepted, and soon our York county friend found himself in front of the Robie mansion, most beautifully situated in the midst of waving grass, surrounded by grand old elms, and itself an old-fashioned but sumptuously furnished house, beneath whose roof its present owner had many happy hours, and entertained with genuine hospitality, a host of friends.

"Jim," shouted the "farmer's candidate," as he drew near the barn, "catch that yoke of dark reds."

Now Jim had been enjoying himself that day, and it was not surprising that he made an occasional mistake.

"All right, sir," remarked the hired man, and soon a handsome pair of cattle were in the yard. But they didn't look well; they didn't pull well; they acted, in fact, as though the devil were in them.

The general Colonel was puzzled.

"Jim," he called out in covered of mingled disgust and anger, "Jim, what in the devil have you been doing to 'em?"

"Nothing to-day but feeding them, sir," replied Jim respectfully. "But don't tell me that," responded the Colonel, "because you've been kicking 'em."

Jim indignantly denied that such was the fact, whereupon the farmer's candidate said: "Well, give me that good," and with a "back up," "sh, sh," "go star," &c., the Colonel endeavored to have the animals show off to advantage.

But to the intense delight of our friend

William, and to Jim also, for that matter, the yoke of dark reds acted worse than before. "I don't see for the life of me what's in the reds," said the candidate, "and I'm sure you can't think of disgust at their contrivance. "I never knew 'em to act this way before."

"Well, Colonel," said the York County man, "I've seen your oxen, now what's your price?"

"Well, being's you," said the Colonel, deberately, and with a squint of one of his eyes, "I'll let 'em go for an even $250."

"Too much, Colonel, too much for a pair that don't pull better'n they do," responded the York County man.

"Well,

It is astonishing what grasping fellows some republicans are. Some half dozen candidates for the various county offices reside in the burg of Ann Arbor.

The question of prohibition, it is claimed, will figure quite prominently in the politics of this county this fall. Prohibitionists will nominate a candidate for congress, and possibly county officers.

A prominent republican-greenback-prohibitionist of this county, is of the opinion that the prohibitionists of the county will pole 2,000 votes this fall, and in the state 150,000 votes. If so good by Jerome.

NOTWITHSTANDING the democratic county convention has been called as usual on Thursday, a full report of the proceedings will be published in this paper, which will be a little late in consequence.

BEN. BUTTERWORTH, republican member of the house, from Cincinnati, on Friday became involved in a discussion with Mr. Cox of New York, and used language so vulgar and indecent that it was not permitted to remain on record, and received the censure of all parties. Mr. Cox characterized Butterworth's language as that of a low blackguard. - [Bill Poster.

DRIVING the last fiscal year Uncle Sam sold 15,000,000 acres of his domain. The railroads and states parted with at least 7,000,000 acres, and most of it was sold to actual settlers. That means wealth and prosperity in the future. It is not the men in cities but those on the fertile acres who hold the keys that will open the vaults of the old world.

THE DEMOCRAT could most cheerfully support such a man as the Hon. Julius H. Morgan of Grand Rapids, for governor, and the state convention couldn't do a wiser act than to nominate him. He is very popular with all classes and would pose a large republican vote - just what the democrats must get to elect their man. Let us have Houseman for governor.

COLONEL BRIGHAM, the tall granger of the sand-hills of Fulton, Ohio has been nominated for congress in the sixth district. He is going to make the issue on total abstinence and strict Sunday observance. His opponent, Hill of Defiance, has been known to take a drink and use such words; hence Brigham's sublime defiance of the wicked elements. - [ Toledo Sunday Journal.

IT is stated that General Chalmers "the hero of Fort Pillow," has received official assurance from the republican national committee that "no republican opposition will be made to his candidacy for congress from the shoeing district of Mississippi." Hence we may infer that if Chalmers should be elected, he can be safely counted on hereafter as a good enough republican for all practical purposes.

THE Register came out yesterday for the Hon. Andrew Jackson Sawyer for congress. This congressional district is republican, and as long as we must be inflected with a republican, we don't know of a man who would better discharge the duties of the office. Mr. Sawyer is an able lawyer, a clever gentleman, and has a host of friends, not only in Washtenaw county, but throughout the entire district. It is said he will have the vote of every man in the Washtenaw delegation.

THE democrats of California seem to have made a good choice in selecting as their candidate for Governor General George Stoneman. He is wealthy; he has a most creditable record as a military officer; he is very well educated; he is by no means a professional politician; since his retirement from the army he has been engaged in agriculture, and his private character is spotless. The republicans will have to put up a very good man to beat him.

A CERTAIN paper is endeavoring to give itself a little notoriety by vague and indefinite insinuations in regard to the extent of immorality and vice in the city. So far there has been nothing developed which seems to have had any foundation in fact. The effect of such articles is to give outsiders the impression that Ann Arbor is a sinkhole of vice and immorality and bring it into discredit, when the truth is that there are no cities in the state of the size of our own that are freer from immorality and debauchery. A newspaper ought to be able to support itself without resorting to methods that are the peculiar province of the Police Gazette and other papers of like character.

Mrs. INGERSOLL, the mother of E. C. Ingersoll, the well-known Washington lawyer, who was recently taken to an asylum to be treated for insanity, attributes her son's mental aberration to the habitual use of quinine. In a letter to the National Republican, Mrs. Ingersoll says: "Thinking it a safe thing to do, my son has been in the habit for months of carrying quinine in his pocket, and taking it in small but frequent doses, and the result is an elated, sanguine state of mind quite beyond the bounds of reason. His memory has not yet been impaired, and the marked improvement already consequent upon being deprived of the drug gives his friends reason to expect complete restoration in a short time. Meanwhile, let this case be one of many others to teach us all that, excellent as quinine may be in many cases, it is like choral or opium or alcohol, exceedingly dangerous to trifle with."

Detroit Chaff: My friend Harry Harris, dramatic and sporting editor of the Post and Tribune, in company with Frank Bower, the newly-devised theatrical manager, and J. H. Riggs, of this city, went down to Gross Lake last week and rented a cottage in which to pass their leisure hours during the summer. On the first night of its occupancy Harris and Bower occupied a room together, and having disrobed and "doused the glem" they lighted cigars and proposed to enjoy them in their separate couches. Frank finally threw his cigar out the window, as he supposed, and just as both were dosing off into dreamland a horrible stench arose - like powerful incense on the air it was; then followed a blaze, and the frightened Harris jumped from his bed and made for the chair where he had placed his clothes. Horrors! The blaze proceeded from his new summer pants! Frank's lighted cigar had fallen upon the broadest part of those pants and their beauty was ruined forever. Not having his wardrobe to the island with him, Mr. Harris was obliged to borrow a Prince Albert coat to return with on Monday. Harry may now be seen about town wearing green glasses. Perhaps it was the blaze that effected his eyes, and perhaps it was the smoke.

Laying the Corner Stone of the First Presbyterian Church at Milan. In accordance with the invitation of Milan Lodge, No. 323, F. & A. M., the brethren of Fraternity and Golden Rule Lodges of this city with a number of visiting brethren, took the cars on the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad, at 11:15 a. m., Tuesday, July 18th, for Milan. Our route lay through a portion of Washtenaw county which was beautiful to the eye. On either hand were seen the yellow wheat fields ripe and ready for the reaper. Some fields were already harvested, and in others the farmer was seen with his men busy in gathering the golden grain. A pleasant ride of 15 miles brought us at high 12 to Milan. We were met at the station by a committee who escorted us to the Masonic hall where we found a Special Communication of the M. W. Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the state of Michigan, about to convene.

The officers present were: Bros. C. F. R. Bellows, Ypsilanti, as Grand Master; W. D. Harriman, Ann Arbor, as Deputy Grand Master; P. W. Carpenter, Ypsilanti, as Grand Senior Warden; Howard Stephens, Ypsilanti, as Ann Arbor, as Grand Treasurer; Fred. Dressle, Belleville, as Grand Secretary; Rev. Wyllys Hall, Ann Arbor, as Grand Chaplain; C. H. McBride, Dundee, as Grand Senior Deacon; H. M. Burr, Milan, as Grand Junior Deacon; O. A. Kelly, Milan, as Grand Marshal; L. H. Reynolds, Saline, as Grand Steward; T. P. Wilson, Ann Arbor, as Grand Steward; Wm. Bogardus, Milan, as Grand Tyler; L. O. Hitchcock, Milan, as Grand Architect.

The Grand Lodge was opened in ample form by E. W. Deputy Grand Master, C. F. R. Bellows acting as M. W. Grand Master, who stated that he had convened the Grand Lodge at this time and place, for the purpose of laying the corner stone of the First Presbyterian church of Milan, in accordance with the request of the members thereof.

The Grand Marshal then formed the procession, which, under his direction, proceeded to the site of the building. The procession and those assembled to see the ceremony, had just reached the grounds when a storm which had been threatening for some time came on and caused them to seek shelter. After heavy and light rains for half an hour the clouds cleared away, the sun shone out, and all was pleasant again. The ceremony which had been going on during the rain was in accordance with the rites and ancient customs of the Order.

A box containing the following articles was deposited in the stone: A Bible. A copy of the records of the church. A list of the Grand Lodge officers. A copy of the records of Milan Lodge, F. & A. M. A copy of the Milan Leader. Visiting brethren from Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Saline, Mooreville, Dundee, Belleville and Toledo, were present and participated in the ceremonies. The address of Judge Harriman was postponed until after dinner. The Grand Chaplain then offered the benediction, which closed the exercises. The Grand Marshal then returned to Masonic hall, where the Grand Lodge was closed in ample form. Tickets for the dinner were then given out, and all went to the opera house where about 100 sat down to a bountiful repast. The tables were loaded with good things to eat. At dinner it was thought best to adjourn to the Union church so that those who wished could listen to the address and speeches. At 3 1/2 o'clock the ringing of the church bell called the people together. The address of Judge Harriman, and speeches from Capt. E. P. Allen, Dr. T. P. Wilson and Rev. Wyllys Hall were listened to with great interest and pleasure. A resolution of thanks was voted to the ladies of Milan for their entertainment. As we were not to leave till 6 1/2 o'clock, we were invited to partake of supper to which all went and did ample justice. After supper we went to the station and took the cars for home. Thus ended an eventful and pleasant day. One long to be remembered by all who went to Milan.

Within fifteen hours of the time "Chaff" was off the press last week, John L. Burleigh read it at Hyde Park, Ill., and wrote as follows: "Don't carry out that horrible threat contained in your issue of date. You don't hear from me I hear from you every week, and I find lots of wheat in your enjoyable 'Chaff.'"—(Detroit Chaff.)

Hastings Union: THE DEMOCRAT, of Ann Arbor, Mich., came to us last week in a new dress. We are pleased to see it, though it was not needed, as in its old one it presented as neat an appearance as any paper there. In its new dress, brim full of locals as it always is, and with Henry at the helm, it will continue to be the "boss" paper of Washtenaw county.

The Register has been removed to its new quarters in the Hamilton block. The office is one of the finest in the state. The bindery fronts on Huron street, the composing room just back of the bindery. The press room is in the basement which is connected with the printing office by an elevator. The gas engine is in position, and the paper came out as usual yesterday.

J. B. Van Atta tried the experiment of sowing ashes on a patch of onions, which proved to be too strong for his hands and ate the flesh, and immediately erysipelis set in, which has been a painful and faithful companion for the last three weeks.—(South Lyon Excelsior.)

Mr. Van Atta was the democratic candidate for representative against the Hon. E. D. Kinne.

Commercial: According to THE DEMOCRAT, A. J. Sawyer and C. H. Manly had a high old time shooting snakes and leech birds on the Fourth, at Silver Lake. Sawyer's shot was the most remarkable in history, the bullet entered the tail of a snake coming out of its mouth and not disturbing or even ruffling the skin. This beats our snake story at pioneer meeting all to pieces.

Observer: Last week we stated that a tramp named Katz had stolen $50 from the house of Geo. Meyer, of Lodi. Since then the money has been recovered. It seems when Katz found he was pursued, he dropped the pocketbook and stamped it in the mud, doubtless thinking he was afterwards get it, but in this he was disappointed as it was found by the owner. The tramp is still at large.

Jackson Patriot 13th: Capt. Manly, of Ann Arbor, commanding Co. A, first regiment state troops, was in the city yesterday, the guest of Col. Griffith. The Captain lost an arm at Gettysburgh fighting under Hancock and during the last presidential campaign did effective service on the stump for the general. Capt. Manly has been suggested as a suitable candidate in the coming state election for the office of secretary of state, and if by any chance he should be elected to that or any other position on the ticket would make a most efficient and trustworthy officer.

Chelsea Herald: The banner wool clip of the season was bought by Taylor Bro.'s last week from Henry Steinbach of Lima. There were one hundred fleeces, weighing 600 pounds—55 cents per pound. Samuel Seney of Lima, sold last week to Babcock & Gilbert one of the largest loads of wool marketed here this season, and acknowledged by all who saw it to be the best. There were 350 fleeces and not a discount fleece in the load, and scarcely one that differed in any respect from any other, so nearly were they alike. The load weighed nearly 1,900 pounds. The amount of wool purchased by the buyers up to date this season is over 200,000 pounds.

A National Greenback convention for the county of Washtenaw, will be held at the court house, in the city of Ann Arbor, on Thursday, August 10, 1882, at eleven o'clock A. M., for the purpose of appointing a delegate to the state convention, to be held at Grand Rapids, on August 22d, and for the nomination of a county ticket, a state senator and also for the transaction of other important business. Each township and ward will be entitled to delegates as follows: Ann Arbor city and town, 25; Augusta, 4; Bridgewater, 3; Dexter, 3; Freedom, 3; Lima, 4; Lodi, 4; Lyndon, 3; Manchester, 6; Northfield, 4; Pittsfield, 4; Salem, 4; Saline, 6; Seio, 6; Sharon, 5; Superior, 5; Sylvan, 6; Webster, 4; York, 5; Ypsilanti city and town, 20.

After being detained in jail for a long time on the charge of the Burnham burglary, Michael Horrihan was discharged Saturday for lack of evidence. He was immediately re-arrested on four charges of larceny from the Peninsula paper Co., it being alleged, and the evidence at that time had been systematically stolen, "soft wool" from the mill, and stealing of "soft wool" from a man named Davis taking them to Detroit to sell. Four loads, worth about $40 each, had been taken, three having been sold Simon's of Blumenthal of Detroit, by Horrihan (who called himself Johnson), and one being found in Davis' barn on the east side of the river. "Honor among thieves" was lacking, and Horrihan has evidently been unfortunate in choosing a comrade, for a clearer case of "sneak" never has been made known here. Officer John Schemel is entitled to the honor of having worked up the case, and has shown praiseworthy zeal and ability in his work. Horrihan seems fated to like trouble, as he is an old offender and has served 16 of his 35 years in penal servitude.—(Ypsilanti.)

A FISHING EXPEDITION.

Lawrence and Aldrich.

Fishing is a science, and fishing with a fly is something more; it is an accomplishment. Now John doesn't know anything about it, but Mr. Aldrich of Chelsea, is an adept. He has probably frightened more fish with a fly than any other one man in Washtenaw county. One day last week he came over to give the president of our sporting club a lesson in that art, with the possibility of securing to himself a few VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS.

John welcomed him heartily, little suspecting the experience that was in store for himself. "Come John," says Mr. A. "let's go fly fishing?" "All right, all right," says John, "you catch the flies while I dig some worms and we will soon be off." "Dig some worms! Mr. A. Oh! well, then I'll help you catch the flies," says John. This was too much for the fisherman, and he quietly informed his stupid friend that the least he said on that subject the better it would be for the cause. The Huron river was chosen as the

FIELD OF OPERATIONS.

And at John's suggestion the dogs were taken along to start up the fish now and then a friend that they called "Old Bay Rum" was invited to go along and carry the fish. Thinking that he wouldn't have much to do he accepted the invitation. An hour later three men, three poles, three lines, three flies and two dogs might have been seen just above the SECOND RAILROAD BRIDGE, floating promiscuously, now on the water, now under the water, and now in the air, without regard to the rights of each other or the feelings of the fish.

"The first thing," says Mr. A. "that you should learn, is that if you fish with a fly you must wade." John nodded assent and commenced to undress.
